Historical Sketch

The Americana Study Club was organized September 9, 1940. The club met on the second and fourth Tuesdays of the month at 12:30 p.m., September to June. Members were women and discussions focused on a selected book title. Topics included the history of prohibition, Jane Mecom (sister of Benjamin Franklin), architecture in America, psychology and politics. Selected book titles included Speaking of Man by A. Myerson and The Story of American Roads by V. Hart.

Scope and Content Note

This collection contains one booklet that lists program (or book) titles and club member names for the 1951-1952 year. It includes the date for each program, book title for discussion, author, Dewey Decimal number, and the name of the discussion leader. The remaining pages list member names and addresses in alphabetical order. Also included in the booklet is the club's subject for study, thought for the year, and time of meeting.
