Foreward

The answer to the strife in the world today can only be brotherly love in Christ. To achieve that end, Catholic laymen are uniting with priests and religious leaders to carry to the rest of the world the spirit of Christ. The training of students in the lay apostolate has been an important part of life at Lillis High School.

We, the seniors of 1948, pledge our co-operation to Most Rev. Edwin V. O'Hara, bishop of Kansas City, and to Most Rev. Joseph M. Marling, auxiliary bishop, who have been our inspiration and who have guided us in the work of Catholic action.

In this yearbook, angels carry the theme of preparation for Catholic action by their participation in all school activities.

Dedication

To the Blessed Virgin Mary, the model of today's youth, we wish to dedicate this yearbook. It is to her, the hope of the world, that we lift up our hands and hearts. We have begged her help for little things—we asked that it would not rain on the night of the prom, and we pleaded for big things—we wanted her to win the Italian elections. We think of her as a mother—as someone gentle and beautiful.

In humble sincerity we present this yearbook to Mary Immaculate to thank her for making us what we are and to ask her help and guidance in the future.

Senior Officers

Talking over one of the problems confronting the senior class, are class officers Edward McMullen, treasurer, Kathleen Dorian, secretary, John Quigley, president and Leonore Verde, vice-president.

The home room is the center of all activity at Lillis. It is just what its name implies—a home away from home for its members. At 3:30 students return to their individual home rooms for prayers. They spend their noon study hours there. They look to their home room teacher for guidance in personal problems as well as school affairs.

Once a week a home room meeting is held, presided over by the home room leader, who is elected by members at the beginning of the year. An assistant leader is elected to preside if the leader is absent. In the case that the leader elected is a boy, a girl is chosen as co-leader. The success of the home room as a group depends largely upon the character and leadership of the elected. It is their duty to organize their home room members for participation in both spiritual activities and other school projects.

Problems confronting students are brought up in meetings. Issues are voted upon and presented to the student council. Projects such as the Bishops' Relief Campaign, amateur hour, carnival, and homecoming are undertaken in the home room. Each room thinks of its own plan to make the project successful.

The close companionship of members forms a bond not found among members of classes. The tighter the bond, the more successful the home room.

Lay Apostles Work and Pray

Lawrence Merri- gan, Bernard Me- lia, Wallace John- ston and Joe Haeßling gather papers to be sold for European re- lief.

To Lillisites, Catholic action was more than just a word—it was something concrete, something very close. At Christmas time, students filled baskets for the underprivileged in Kansas City. During Lent, they assembled newspapers and magazines to be sold for European relief.

The essential part of Catholic action, prayer, was recognized as the basis of success in activities. At every hour during the day, students who gave up study periods to say the rosary could be found in the chapel. Somehow, no matter how many activities were taking place, there was always time for a brief visit.

Robert Fitzsimmons hooks up his batteries to a bell and finds out the bell really rings.

Reputed to be the home room with the prettiest girls in the school, 202 claimed such personalities as Barbara Meyer, head major-ette, and Carol LaNoue, junior editor of the Lillistrator. Pat Smith and Mary Ann Lechtenberg, junior cheerleaders, did their share to lead the team on to victory. Eugene Kane spurred home room members on in their various projects as their leader. The home room as a whole made the prom something to remember when they decorated the gym with the theme, "An Old Dutch Garden." In an environment of general science, which Sister Agnes taught practically all day, these students developed a common interest in things scientific, exemplified by the fact that theirs was one of the pencil sharpeners at Lillis in constant working order.

Home room members will remember this room with its many maps. The home room was shaken in December when its teacher, Sister Agatha, was taken in death. Sister Joan, who quickly replaced her, became a favorite. Bernard Heshion represented 200 at student council meetings. Margie Fitzgerald, junior cheerleader, was assistant leader. Norman Wiswell made a name for himself by winning the junior religion contest. With Jim Gladback as their captain, the "In-mates," home room basketball team, became champs of the junior intramurals.

Room 200 copped first place in the H. M. S. Pinafore contest, averaging 339.1%. 200 is one room every Lillisite must some day inhabit for a year of American History. Sister Joan keeps her classes lively with her sense of humor.

Jo Anne Lathy, Jo Ann McCormack concoct new aromas in the chemistry laboratory.

The home room with a scientific air. When not teaching physics or chemistry, Sister Gonzaga spent the year planning projects for European relief. Under the direction of home room leader Bob Zahner and his assistant, Ann Savage, this home room made a special project of collecting clothes to send to the needy in Europe. Return letters from grateful Europeans were pinned to the bulletin board for everyone to read. When it came to collecting funds for the Bishops' Relief Campaign, 304 shone. Everything from statues to spiral notebooks were raffled off at home room meetings to help swell the fund.

It took a while for home room members to get used to claiming the sewing room with its many windows as their home room. They found stray pins from Sister Giovanna's sewing classes on their desks and the girls primped in front of the large mirror before school. They took their problems to their understanding home room teacher after school hours. As activities, they sold chances on a doll for the carnival in November. They kept the audience in stitches amateur night with their reproduction of a football game. Pat Graham and Dave Griffith were elected as their leaders. They named their basketball team the "Apaches," and Bob Watkins took over as captain.

Sister Lucretia, biology and world history teacher, was one of the reasons why members of 306 were so satisfied with their home room. Her patience and gentleness were the foundation for the trust they placed in her. One of the few classrooms with two doors, 306 will be remembered for its rows of stuffed birds, and the aquarium in the front of the room, which never failed to be a source of wonder for everyone, with its fishes and baby frogs. The home room joke was the cigarette in the stuffed owl's mouth. 306'ers will remember the faint odor of formaldehyde which was always in the room. This was one of the home rooms which said the Rosary during the weeks preceding the Italian election. Joe Cosgrove, a whiz of an artist, presided at home room meetings, with Jo Ann Mueller as his assistant. Pat Warren placed in the C .Y. C. writers' contest.

Little Theatre

One of the largest home rooms in the building, the Little Theatre was the scene of countless rehearsals before a play was staged in the auditorium. The "Morticians" shared their room with the band instruments which found a home here when not in use. Not a few necks were strained when those students occupying the back seats tried to see around the poles in the center of the room. Chuck Ballard and Mary Lucy Charmello conducted home room meetings as leader and co-leader. Sister Sylvester, speech teacher and dramatics instructor, led her home room on to make a hit in the amateur hour with the production of "The House on the Bluff." Alice Devine won't forget her role as the fisherman's daughter, and Max Morrissey will remember stumbling across the stage in an oversize raincoat. Everyone in Lillis from freshmen to seniors was guessing when this home room launched its "Leo Lillis" contest for the Bishops' Relief Campaign. Home room meetings were not without eventful happenings as the day a hanging was staged—with a doll as victim.

bottom, by Mary Lucy Charmello, Patricia Liston, Carol Mitchell and Jo Ann Caracci. Something evidently went wrong with the "H," but reading from top to bottom, the left line of the "H" is formed by Helen Martin, Rosemary Collins, Mary Louise Pavela and Ray Hogan. The right line is represented by Mary Haidusek, Catherine Downey, Dorothy Haight and Donald Flint. George Ranallo and Bill Danaher compose the crossbar of the "H." Absent: Sue Ann Geil.

With the "At 'em Kids" as its official title, 302's basketball team walked to the top in the sophomore intramurals with Dan Connelly as captain. This home room was especially conscious of the importance of Catholic action and posted Adoration notices in all the home rooms every Wednesday. Sister Mary Charles astounded students with the many projects she successfully undertook. A special project of the sectional Sodality which met in this room was the making and selling of scapulars. Carnival night found home room members staging a Punch and Judy show. Their production of "Feudin', Fussin', and Fightin'" amateur night was a hit. They raffled off a chihuahua dog for the Bishops' Relief Campaign. Home room leaders were Louise Sullivan and Joe Haefling. This home room could claim three sophomore cheerleaders, Marjorie Derry, Louise Sullivan and Marian Koch.

Sister Mary Charles made a dead language live in all of her Latin classes with student dramatizations of Roman literature.

The room with the raised platforms was the home of the "Gismo's" of 303. Sister Constancea, foods teacher, helped to make this home room "home." Mary Pipes and Jack Weiber conducted home room meetings. Tom Ferguson and Carol Roland were the room's most courteous boy and girl. The room as a whole had a remarkable attendance record. Members brought in more ads for the Lillislog than any other home room. They collected nickels for the ring toss and horse-shoe throw at the carnival. The girls emerged from a Bishops' Relief Fund contest a few cents ahead of the boys.

303's ambition resulted in at least two adorers each Wednesday at 4:00 P.M. at Rockhill adoration chapel. When Sister Constancea's foods classes filled the halls with the fragrance of cake or cookies, the boys were first to meet the cooks at the door.

The Spanish home room. Barbara Yoder and Buddy Arensburg were elected to preside at home room meetings which usually contained a debate or two. As pets, this room kept two goldfish. Defying their title, the "Hitless Wonders," the home room basketball team came out second in the sophomore intramurals. Tom Fitzgerald was 402's pride as a Latin enthusiast. Pat Schaaff and Tom Fitzgerald were elected to compete in the popularity contest. Carnival night found 402 selling chances at a checkerboard. Sister Mary Carmen, who had a knack for Spanish and French, was a favorite.

X + Y = 404

The energetic spirit of Sister Vivina seemed to radiate to members of 404. They stepped quickly to the top in the football-pass contest and stayed there to be acclaimed the winners. They organized a peppy basketball team sporting the name "Blue Hornets," with Dick Welhoelter as captain. Under their sponsorship, the operetta ticket contest soared to the top. They presented a clever skit, "Hansel and Gretel," for the amateur hour. For famous people they claimed Elizabeth Sterbenz who won the sophomore religion contest. Bob Corkill came in second in the Young Catholic Writers' contest. Tommy JoRay and Pat Gurley were home room leaders.

Algebra classes, taught by Sister Vivina, were kept busy juggling the alphabet with + and -. Homework problems kept the freshmen thinking.

IN AN ATMOSPHERE OF FREEDOM

The branches of an elm tree almost touch the windows of home room 403 and members watched until the last leaf was gone last fall, sometimes forgetting their lessons. The civics room was a compact little home room with its Bill of Rights hung on the side wall. Sister Egberta's quiet smile and friendly manner won her students from the very beginning. This group of freshmen chose Agnes McCormick to represent them on the student council. They were proud of their musical star, Barbara Dennison, who was cheered on to an encore in the freshman St. Patrick's Day program, and who walked off with honors in musical contests. Home room meetings were famous for their debates.

The freshmen English home room. For the Bishops' Relief Fund, the "Wonders of 401" tried something new at Lillis—an indoor track meet. They sold hot dogs and chili and had charge of the wishing well at the carnival. Sister Andrea organized her religion class into baseball teams with each correct answer meriting a run. Home room meetings often were conducted as social meetings by Bob Sullivan, home room leader, and Shirley Lobb, co-leader. With banners of purple and green, the home room team placed second in the freshman intramurals with Steve Hayde as captain. The tie of activities and Sister Andrea's boundless energy seemed to bind the members of this home room closely together.

English classes which Sister taught made the most use of the library and read more books than any other classes in school. Oral reports were fun as well as work.

ANGELS AND ANGLES

At the board, Mary Ritter, Bernard Melia, Wallace Johnson, Marjorie Bell and Benjamin Mendoza demonstrate geometry problems.

This home room buzzed with activity during the weeks before the St. Patrick's Day program, which was under the direction of Sister Ruth, home room teacher. It always had a pleasant atmosphere with its ferns and flowers. On the boards were remains of algebra problems from Sister Ruth's classes. Mary Ann Hughes and John Haynes guided home room members in their various activities. Meetings were held regularly every week. This room's project for the carnival was the "most popular boy" contest. Members sold chances on a pen and pencil set for the Bishops' Relief Campaign. Sister Ruth's algebra and geometry students knew her as someone small but mighty whose method of teaching somehow made lessons easily learned. Trig classes agreed.

NEAT CHARACTERS!

Living Rosary

To commemorate the feast of Christ the King, Sodality and Holy Name members formed a living rosary in the auditorium. Before a statue of Christ, a group of sodalists, each representing a bead in the rosary, led students in the recitation of a Hail Mary. This was one of the joint Sodality-Holy Name projects launched during the year in the spirit of Catholic action.

Student Council

The students of Lillis have a share in planning activities. A student council, composed of a representative from each home room and a delegate from each club or organization, meets regularly during the year. Problems affecting students are discussed, and each member returns to the group he represents and informs them of decisions.

It is the job of the council to set the ball rolling for the Bishops' Relief Campaign and the Red Cross drive. This year members sponsored the delivery of Christmas baskets. They planned the Christmas program and the decoration of the tree. The square dances for the benefit of the Lillislog was one of their projects. When order was needed in the cafeteria, a new system for calling the home rooms was devised and carried out.

The constitution was revised and the president of the Girls' Athletic Association was admitted as a new member. It was decided that the freshman and sophomore home room leaders should make a point of keeping the halls clear of papers.

Members of the student council used their influence to promote the spirit of Catholic Action. As lay apostles, they worked the Catholic attitude into all activities.

Honor Society

Scholarship, leadership, character, service—these are the qualities embodied in a member of the National Honor Society.

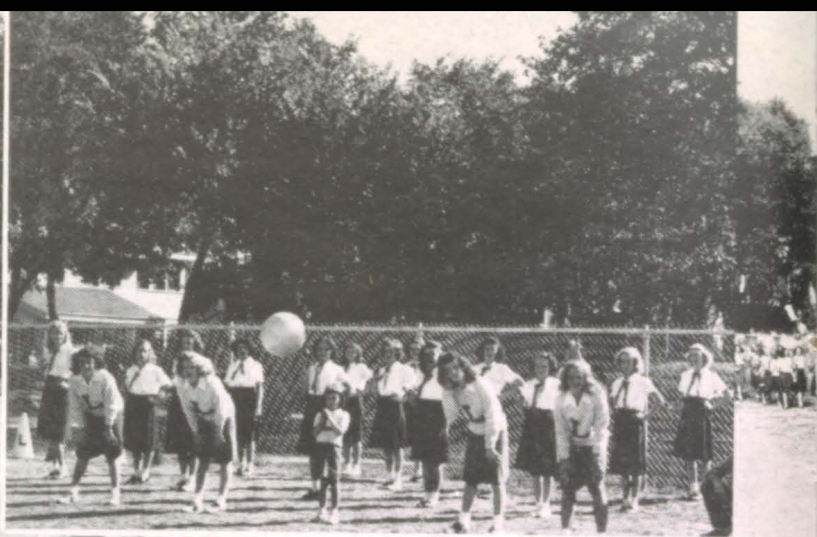

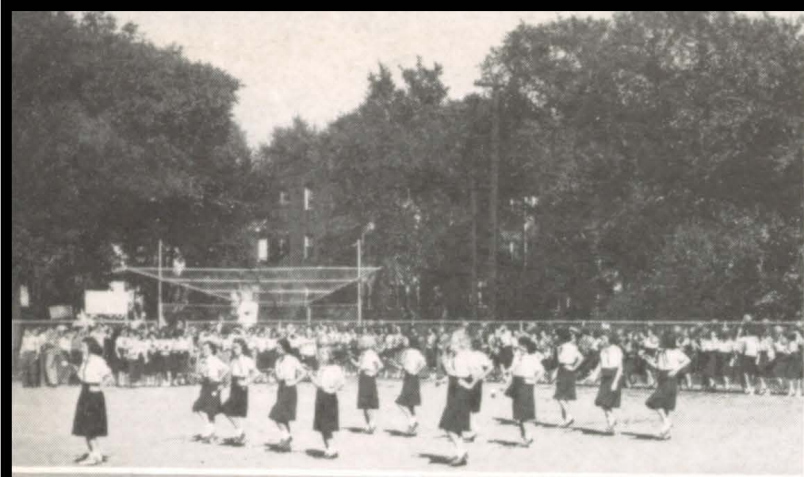

A student with scholarship is willing to learn and willing to pay the price for the knowledge he gains. Leadership is the ability not only to achieve followers but the ability to lead them toward what is right. The boy or girl with character has the faculties to distinguish right from wrong and the will to carry out what his conscience says is good. The willingness to give unselfishly of one's time and efforts to promote noble activities constitutes the virtue of service.

Homecoming

The thrills and suspense of homecoming week mounted to a climax the day of the pep rally, October 16. Band members wore white and led the parade of home rooms, each under its individual banner, along Forest Avenue and onto the practice field, right. As proof of their drive and spirit, members of 204 carried a stretcher in which lay the corpse of a football player, representing Glennon, homecoming opponent, top right.

The Green Peppers carried green balloons and formed a green and white "L" in the sun-drenched practice field. As the crowds lining the field waited tensely with the same question on every lip, "Who

When a slip of paper containing the results of the senior ballot was handed to Leon Gaschen, L-Club president, center, with balloon, he announced that Doris Roots, at microphone, with Dolores Luebert, left inset, and Helen Pilsh, right inset, as her assistants, would act as homecoming queen. Before the rally broke up, Coach Readecker gave a pep talk which fired the team on to defeat Glennon.

Publications

Lillistrator

There's more to getting out a school paper than meets the eye. There are the moments of relief and happiness when the finished product rolls off the press—the feeling of inner pride when someone laughs at a joke in “the column,” or when one of the boys shouts, “Hey, they spelled my name right.”

But working on the “Lillistrator” isn't all a bed of roses. There are always a few headaches and heartaches that seem to creep in.

The headaches come by the dozens. Maybe there's a 6-inch story that has to fit in a 2-inch space. Or somebody forgot to turn in a story on time. And then there's the problem of deciding if the prom story is more important than the operetta, or of finding a headline that's long enough.

And the heartaches—when the paper just misses the deadline by a few hours. And it hurts deep down when someone doesn't like a story you spent hours to write.

The print shop is the second home of staff members when the skeleton of the paper is being formed. Hands black with printers' ink that has to wear off and the peculiar smell of the shop are not easily forgotten.

Sometimes the light in the journalism room is burning until 9:00 and reporters are still waiting for an inspiration. Everybody works doggedly with the same thought in mind: “We've got to meet the deadline.”

The pride and satisfaction of seeing students rush to get their Lillistrators on publication day somehow seems to counter-balance the work that has gone into them.

Lillislog

There are a lot of people tied up in the publication of a yearbook. From the very first line drawn on the dummy pages to the last corrected proof, LILLISLOG helpers worked feverishly.

When editor Ed Farley was on the spot and needed assistance, there was always somebody who was willing to lend a hand back in the music room. When the senior write-ups were in the making, those who pooled their efforts were Helen Maloney, Norma Zammar, Sidney Johnston, Theresa Scanlon, Audrey Eden and Dolores Montgomery.

Without the help of typists, Anthony Weixeldorfer and Theresa Streit, who typed copy as fast as editors wrote it, the yearbook would not have arrived. Jim Sullivan assisted the business manager.

November, the fun-packed month. Everybody went all-out to make the carnival the success that it was. At 9:00, all present assembled in the gym to hear Father Anthony proclaim Norma Roth and John Kennedy the popularity contest winners.

The seniors wowed the audience amateur night when they walked off with the three top places. With its representation of an old-fashioned minstrel show, home room 203 was called back for curtain calls.

Library home room took second place with its hill-billy representation of "Romeo and Juliet" played to the tune of "Tim-ta-shun," starring Mike Damico and Kay Schweiger (next page).

Jim Humphrey scored a point for his home room, third place winner, by taking the part of "Shoot-happy Pete" in 204's skit. John Kennedy played the part of Shoot-happy's horse, and Jerry Branch was the villain.

Meet Your Partner

Sodalists combined their talents December 4 to produce a program in honor of the Blessed Virgin Mary. Sodality officers, Peggy Arensberg, Juanita Brungardt, Joann Munagle and Doris Roots, with representatives from each of the lower classes, enacted a play entitled "One Who Called." The play dramatized the appearance of the Blessed Virgin Mary to St. Catherine Laboure. The mixed chorus sang the "Ave Maria" while a group of dancers, top left, interpreted the meaning of the words. After the program, all Lillisites had the opportunity of being enrolled in the league of the miraculous medal.

The beauty of the Christmas story was portrayed with feeling December 18 by a cast chosen from the speech classes. "Venite Adoremus," the title of the play, accommodated a cast of thirty-two students.

February Forensics

Under the guidance of Sister Sylvester, speech and dramatics students engaged in many activities. The senior class play, George Kelley's "The Show-Off," was presented early in February. Double casts were chosen, each giving two performances.

New members were inducted into the National Forensic League, which promotes the interests of interscholastic oratory and public speaking by encouraging a spirit of fellowship. To become a member of this organization, a student must rank scholastically in the upper two-thirds of his class.

The debate club was active and entered two C.Y.C. debate contests as well as city and state tourneys.

Friday Mass During Lent

The monthly sacrifice of the Mass in the auditorium was as much a part of life at Lillis as hourly class and football practice. When the bells were rung at the Consecration (above), the gym was more than just an auditorium—the stage became something sacred. After a Friday Mass in March, communicants streamed into the cafeteria for cocoa and rolls as they did every morning during Lent. Below, Henry Raach, Tom Fuller, Jerry Johnson, Jim McCready, and John Yurchak wait their turn in the cafeteria line.

Once again the Irish of Lillis made a strong and determined fight for the championship of 1947. Starting out, they roared through the first six games only to be hit hard by injuries and get overrun in the last three games. "The boys played their best game with De La Salle," said Coach Readecker. "Even if they didn't win that League championship, still they placed Jim McCready and Bob Barrett on the All-star team, and Leon Gaschen, John Yurchak, Bob Zahner, and Bob Lobb on the second All-star." An outstanding highlight of the whole season was Jack Quigley's 105-yard run in the Glennon Homecoming game.

"They brought home the bacon." That is exactly what the Lillis basketball team did this year. By winning 25 out of the 29 games played, they set new records on number of games won and on number of trophies won. They also broke the high score record of the Catholic League. The total points of Bob Lobb were 369 and of Leo Schleicher, 360. The old record was 240 points made by Hank Schepers in 1944. Meriting berths on the All-star team were Bob Lobb, Leo Schleicher, and John Yurchak.

... AND THEN IT SHOULD GO IN

"This is how to do it," says Coach to Bob Lobb, John Yurchak, and Leo Schleicher.

"B"-Team Blitz

Won 15! Lost 1! Losing only one game by a count of 31-29 to Southeast, the Lillis B-team romped to the league championship by cinching ten league games in a row. "This is one of the best teams I've had for many years," remarked Coach Readecker, when asked about the champions. "They really worked together and were better balanced than any other team."

Bob Loschke (18) goes high into the air to "dunk" one while Bob McMullen (12) looks on tensely.

Just like their bigger brothers the "baby" Irish quintet also were victorious in their league and outside battles. Of the twenty-one games played only five were smeared with defeat. They took second place in the Excelsior Springs Tournament late in the season. Also under Coach Glennon this team has high hopes for the years to come. Coach says without a doubt that if these fellows keep improving as they did this year Lillis will see their finest varsity basketball ever had.

Practice Makes Perfect

Practicing after school, on Saturdays and Sundays, the B-team sweated the season out but not in vain, for victory was theirs. Combining sportsmanship with good playing, they made a good team.

Winning twelve and losing four, the Soph squad hauled in the first place trophy in their division. Under the guidance of Coach Glennon, this hard fighting team gave a fine showing this year in their all-around good playing. They played very well on the defensive and were good rebounders. In the future they are expected to become one of the tallest teams in the Catholic League. Starters this year were: Dan Connelly, Richard Shepard, LeRoy Barrett, Tom Fitzgerald and Bill Danaher.

"Racket" Men

Meeting both league opponents and outsiders, tennis players have shown improvement over the last few years. Returning lettermen are Jack Quigley and Joe Stockard. To the already crowded trophy case, these boys are expected to add another cup.

In front: Bill Schleicher, Harold Schleicher, Ollie O'Toole grin at the birdie. More serious are Jim Humphrey, Chuck O'Connell, and Leon Gaschen.

Gophers

Golf, also another minor sport, is making progress this year. "Returning golfers have grown better," says Coach Readecker, "and they are the greatest golf team I've ever had at Lillis." Returning lettermen are Jim Humphrey, Chuck O'Connell, Leon Gaschen, and Leo Schleicher, who took second place in last year's caddy tournament.

Below: Coaches Glennon and Readecker with their prize possessions.

To The Victors

Those five new basketball trophies are the reason for those big smiles on the coaches' faces. Winning a pre-season tournament at Greenwood started the fire that surged through the teams the remainder of the season. Partly responsible for these trophies is Coach Glennon, new assistant coach this year. Mr. Glennon attended Warrensburg College last year where he was a star basketball player. Besides leading the freshmen and sophomores to basketball championships, he coached the track teams which have placed in several meets.

Ball Knockers

With almost the whole team returning, Lillis has started a successful season. Returning starters are Bob McMullen, Bob Lobb, LeRoy Coulter, John Yurchak, Tom Geha, Bob Barret, Leon Gaschen, and pitchers, Jim McCready, and Bob Loschke. "I've got my hopes set on this team," remarked Coach Readecker, "but only time will tell how they will come out."

OUR NATIONAL SPORT

MR. G. V. SCHUH

Thanks, Dads!

The Dads' Club of Lillis is composed of the fathers of the students and alumni. The purpose of the club is to aid in the conducting of various extra-curricular activities. Throughout the year meetings are held bi-monthly at which time business matters are discussed and an outstanding speaker is presented. The project for this year was the card party and bazaar held in the school gymnasium, April 2. The proceeds will be used for the improvement of the athletic field. This year's officers were G. V. Schuh, president, Charles Gamm, secretary, and Father Anthony, treasurer.

Cinders and Sawdust

"I've got some very outstanding boys on my track team," said Coach Glennon. "If we had more equipment and a cinder track, we could do much better."

Losing first place in a meet at Chillicothe by only 1 $\frac{3}{4}$  points, the team still earned 13 medals of which Bob Lobb won four. The Lillis trackmen took second place at the William Jewell meet, bringing home seven medals.

Coach Glennon ranks Bob Lobb as one of the best hurdlers in the state. "Also a good high jumper, Paul Kirk made a fine showing in the 880 and on the relay team! Jack Quigley is ranked among the first five broad jumpers in the state and Gene Kane and Tom Geha do some fast running in the dashes," says Coach.

Girls Athletic Association

G.A.A. officers are, seated: Joan McGraw, president; Frances Connelly, secretary. Standing: Helen Pilsel, vice-president; Luann Jenkins, treasurer. Absent: Barbara Meyer, sports manager.

The G.A.A. got off to a good start this year under the able leadership of Joan McGraw. She explains that the purpose of this organization is "to inspire in its members the ideals of cooperation, charity towards each other, honesty, cheerfulness, and sportsmanship."

In order to become a member, a girl must earn

100 points in four sports. To be eligible for a letter, she must have 500 points and make an all-star team or earn 1,000 points.

Besides working for their points this year, the G.A.A.'s had fun planning their Spring formal in April, their breakfast-hike in November, and the weiner roast and banquet in May.
