Foreword

TO produce an annual that portrays the happenings of the past school year, with the background of Kansas City's progress woven inextricably into it, has been the purpose of the 1926 Centralian staff. We give the book into your hands hoping that it may fulfill its purpose, and instill in your hearts the true significance of the "Kansas City Spirit."

Dedication

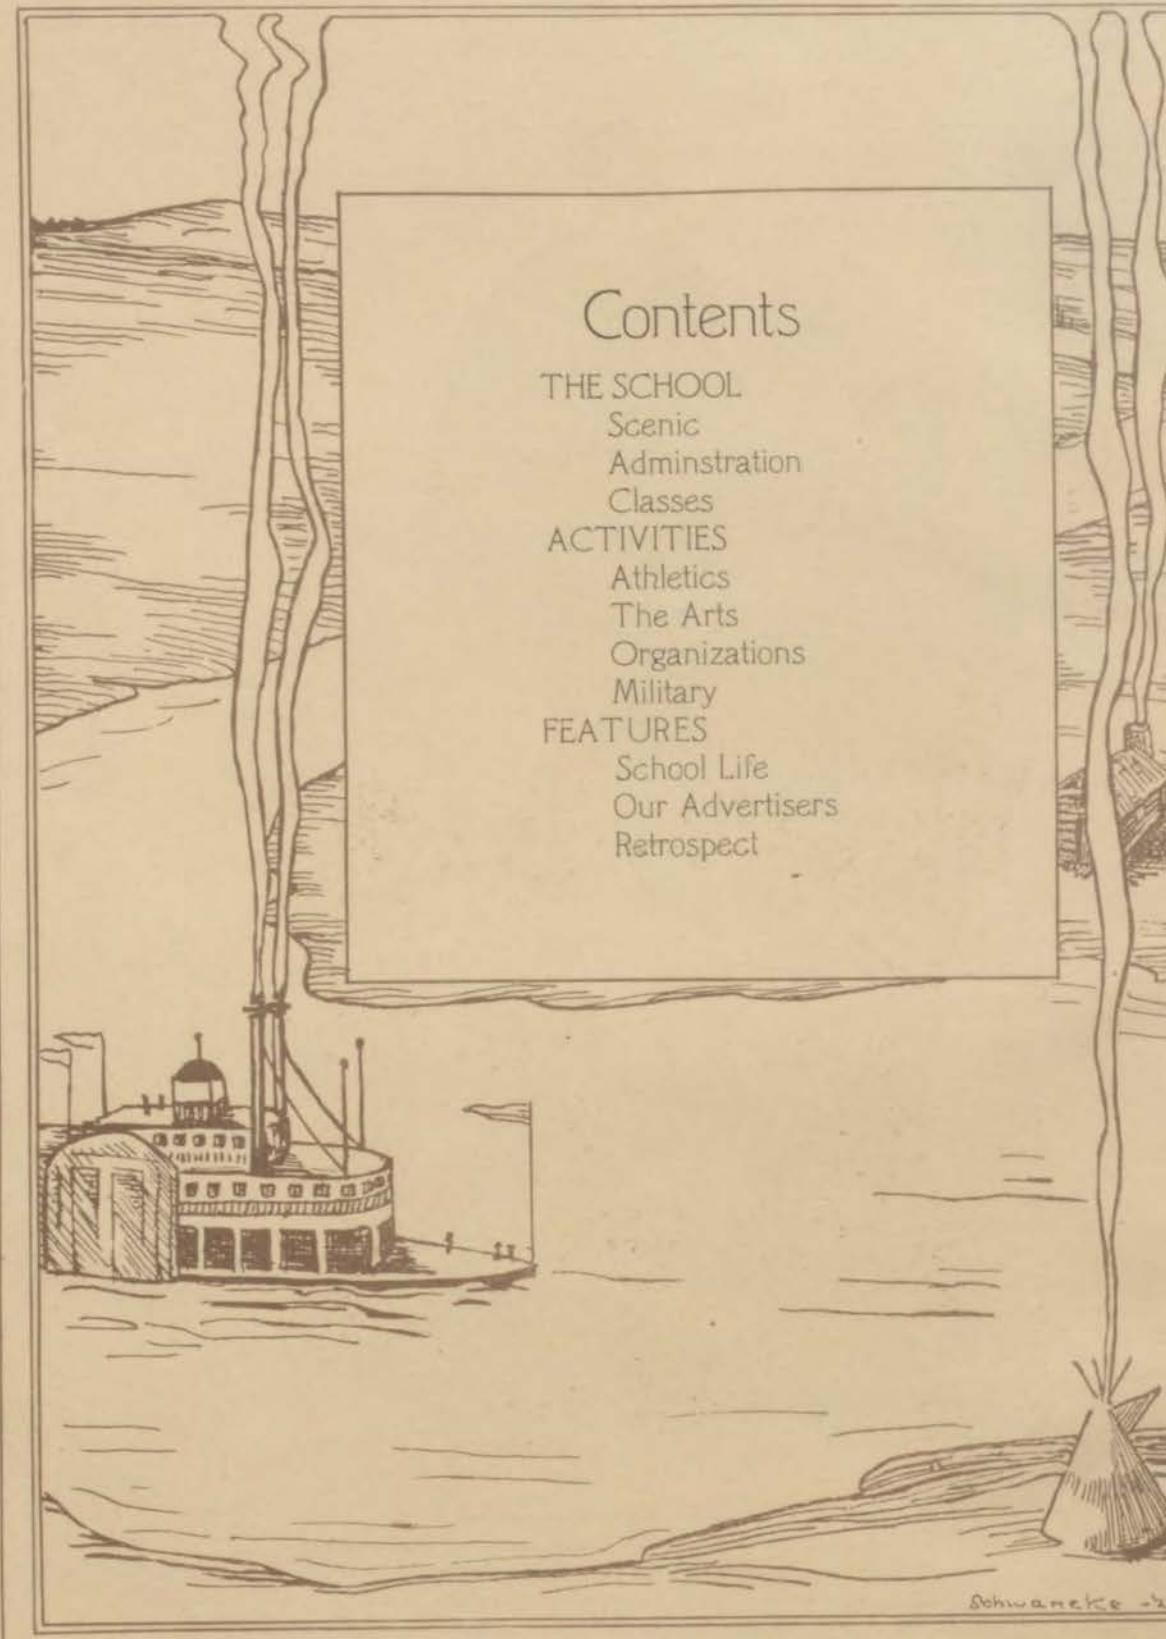

TO the Pioneer Settlers of early Kansas City—the fathers and mothers, who by their heroic sacrifices carried civilization to the western frontier, made a home of the wilderness, and endeared themselves forever to the Youth of the West, this, the 1926 Centralian, is proudly dedicated.

The Pioneer Mother

A bronze statue group by A. Phimister Proctor, to be presented to Kansas City by Howard Vanderslice.

Reproduction of the statue has been made possible through the courtesy of Howard Vanderslice, the donor

CHEERLEADERS

IN victory or defeat, Central's cheerleaders were ever on their toes, drawing from the Blue and White stands 'the power so vital to a team's success. Charles Hackler, a sophomore, measuring full four feet nine from toe to crown, was chosen head cheerleader, with Charles Edwards, and Lloyd Shinnick as his assistants. Claude McFarland, James Davey, and Fred Connelly acted as alternates.

All six of the boys faced the stands at the football games, and with the exception of Connelly, who was in the playing, led the cheering at Convention hall during the basketball season. While neither of these teams succeeded in ranking high in the championship races, it was these cheerleaders who were largely responsible for keeping the "Old Central Fight" in the boys on the field, and who in the darkest moments of adversity, never ceased to exhort the Central rooters to their utmost in lung power and what it represents,—the true meaning of the Blue and the White to a loyal Centralite!

Throughout the athletic contests Central's cheerleaders never once lessened their efforts in support of the boys wearing the Blue and White; so now let's "Everybody up! Now let's give two great big brackety-yacks, and make 'em so the boys can hear 'em! And fifteen for the Central cheerleaders!"

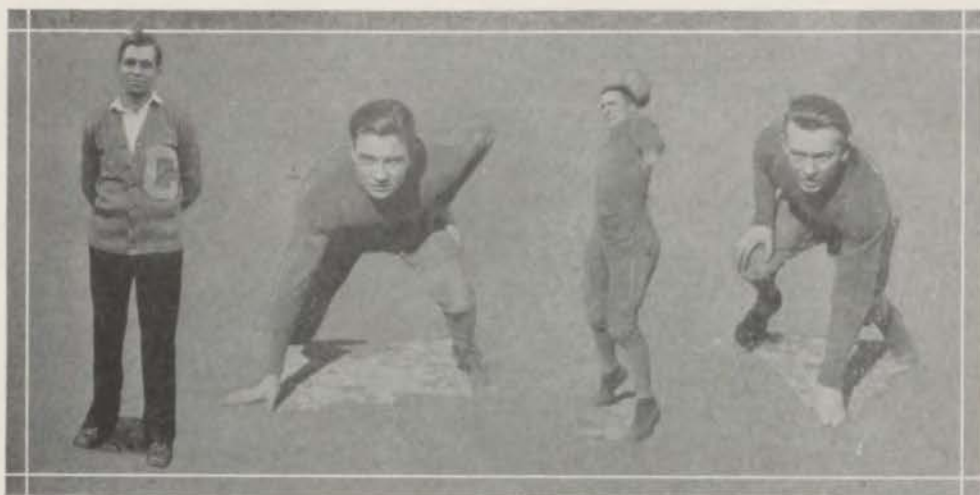

ATHLETIC DIRECTORS

EVEN as the Central students support and applaud their athletic teams, so do they show that same fine spirit of cooperation and esteem toward those members of the faculty who have expended boundless efforts in the development of athletes worthy of the Blue and White. Louis E. Menze, head coach; Gail Shikles, assistant coach; and T. E. Talmadge, business manager of the athletic department, have had charge of Central athletic activities, and have had the able assistance of Lester Fields, who has acted in the capacity of student athletic manager.

Coach Menze has been with us for seven years, and in that time has figured greatly in winning for Central the most enviable record in the high school league, besides gaining the admiration of every Centralite, whether on the field, or in the stands. Mr. Shikles has been with Central during the past three years, and his efforts this year probably find their best expression in the championship second football team, which advanced to first position under his supervision. Mr. Talmadge, who, also, is the head of the commercial department at Central, has filled his position as business manager of the school's athletics for the tenth consecutive year, and is a strong enthusiast for Central's athletic success. Lester Fields, who this year is taking a post graduate course, has filled the position of student athletic manager for the past two years.

FOOTBALL REVIEW

WHEN the 1925 interscholastic football season terminated Central was in last position. Of the six league games scheduled, the team tied one, and lost the remaining five. Both pre-season contests, however, found the Blue and White gridsters on the long end of the count. Considering that the squad was, in the main, inexperienced, the season may be regarded as successful. An unequalled spirit of fairness and cooperation prevailed throughout the season, and the boys displayed a fighting spirit that ever kept their opposition worried.

Central found little difficulty in subduing its two pre-season opponents. At Marshall, Missouri, the team dragged itself over a muddy field and through a drizzling rain to a 10-0 victory. St. Joseph Central held us scoreless for three quarters, but by the plunging of the Central backs, coupled with a pass and field goal from Oldham, the final period left us the winners with a 10-0 score.

In the initial contest on October 10, Central lost a hard fought game to Manual by a 7-0 score. No score was made till late in the second period, when Martin, all-star half for Manual, plunged over the Central goal line, and Herowitz kicked goal. The score remained unchanged through the remainder of the contest, although Manual's goal line was once seriously threatened when Central, through a series of trick plays, advanced to the Crimson 5-yard line.

Central met Northeast the following Saturday, and the game resulted in a 7-7 tie. Throughout the first half little distinction could be made between the teams; the third period, however, ended with Northeast holding a 7-0 advantage. Then, a minute and a half to play, Northeast advanced to Central's 3-yard line, and our defense weakened.

SECOND TEAM

A Northeast back fumbled, and Dorrance Byars recovered the ball, and with a strong interference and nearly an open field, raced for a touchdown, and Oldham added the extra point needed to tie the game.

A week later Central met the undefeated Westport eleven and held the strong south side team to a 6-0 victory. An extremely muddy field made large gains and a fast game impossible. However, in the second quarter, Byars, after recovering a fumble, raced 31 yards, but was downed by Kennedy, Westport back, four yards from the goal. In the last of the third quarter, Kennedy sprinted 45 yards for a touchdown. This six point score held in the remainder of the game, neither team threatening in the final quarter.

In her second game with Manual, Central was downed by a 21-7 count, but the score is an inaccurate description of the contest, for the Central team played a fast, interesting game, in which the Manualites were several times seriously threatened and never wholly out of danger. In the second period the Manual team scored 13 points, but the Central chargers responded with a threatening aerial attack. Manual scored again in the third and the last periods, bringing her total to 21 points. Byars plunged for Central's one touchdown in the second quarter, after which Dubach added the extra point. The breaks, however, ran against the Menze machine.

In the fifth round of play Central sank into last place, losing a 12-9 game to Northeast. Leading at the half, during which period Byars plunged over the Northeast goal line and Dubach dropkicked a field goal, victory seemed certain. But the breaks ran against the Blue and White in the final period, and, by recovering two punts, one blocked behind the Central goal posts, and the other initiating an 80-yard run for a touchdown, the Northeast players piled up the 12 points necessary to mean a victory.

The last league contest found the team greatly weakened by the loss of Captain Oldham and Dorrance Byars, star backfield men, and at the final gun the score stood 20-6, favoring the undefeated Westport aggregation. The Southsiders were held to a 6-6 tie till the half, but in the final period they crossed our goal line twice again. Sebastian scored for Central.

Three Central men were honored with positions on the all-star elevens. Dorrance Byars was again placed at halfback position on the first group, and Ralph Sipes was selected as all-star tackle. Richard Sebastian was placed at end on the second squad.

CENTRAL RESERVES ARE LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

The Central Reserves, captained by Nelson Bresette, held high the Blue and White, bringing to Central the 1925 interscholastic championship. Not once in the seven games scheduled did these players taste defeat. In the season's first game with Higginsville, Missouri, high school's first eleven, the result was a hard fought tie with the score 7-7. The first interscholastic game also resulted in a tie, but this time neither team was able to make a single score. Four of the league games, two with Northeast, one with Manual, and one with Westport, were Central victories, and one other, with Westport, ended with the score locked in a 7-7 tie. Central's second team deserves a great deal more credit for its championship record than it has been given. The boys played a consistently aggressive game, and, in truth, have, in a great measure, upheld Central's traditional prestige.

With the return of eight letter men, and the entire second squad, with the exception of Hesler, fullback, Central's chances in the 1926 pennant race look bright indeed, and let us hope that Coach Menze and Captain-elect Orville Sever will be able to mould a championship machine out of this excellent material.

BASKETBALL SQUAD

BASKETBALL REVIEW

LACKING the support of a single veteran player, Central's basketekers were seriously handicapped this year. The team, made up entirely as it was of green material, was unable to cope with the more experienced fives, and thus found itself in last position at the season's close, having lost five of the six league games scheduled. Of the six outside games played, the Blue and White met much the same situation, scoring but a single victory.

On December 18, Central opened her season in a pre-league contest with William Chrisman, the Independence, Missouri, high school team, and lost to the outsiders by a 25-19 count. At Warrensburg, the following evening, the Central team felt the ill effects of the preceding night's exertion and lost its second game by a score of 14-31. On December 23, a strong team composed of Central's 1925 cagers, defeated this year's team in a contest, the final score of which rested 27-39. The following week the Blue and White met its fourth defeat at the hands of the Kansas City, Kansas, high school team, the score being 15-19.

The interscholastic season opened at Convention Hall January 5, with Central matched against Manual for the first of the six dual contests. Coach Menze's boys, in the first half, threatened to upset the "dope" favoring Manual by piling up a 15-14 advantage, Sample and Tuley bearing the brunt of the offensive. In the second period, however, their defensive weakened and the Crimson players swept away to a 36-21 victory.

No league games being scheduled for the following week, Central engaged the Rockhurst cagers on January 15, and, after a thrilling spurt in the second half, were able to score their first victory with a final mark of 25-27.

On January 23, Central met Northeast in our second league game. The Central team was unable to get under way till the final half, by which time the superiority shown in their playing was not sufficient to counterbalance the heavy scoring of the Purple in the first period, so Central was forced to accept a 32-22 defeat. Captain Tuley and Arnold played well for the Blue and White.

The next week, Central faced the Westport aggregation, the team winning the championship in 1925, and although scoring but thirty-eight points against fifty-one for the Black and Gold, they made Coach Edwards' men fight for their victory until the final gunshot. The game was one of the fastest of the league contests and the entire Central team displayed great court work.

On February 4, Central encountered Manual, then the league leaders, and threatened for some time to knock them from their pedestal. But in the final quarter strong offensive work by the Crimson players, was sufficient to overcome the three-point lead held by Central at the half, and set Manual on the long end of a 25-20 count. Allen and Fuchs were Central's high point men.

A second intermission in the league schedule, on February 12, brought to Central, the undefeated team from Lincoln, Nebraska, together with a 19-18 thriller, the visiting team edging out the Blue and White by one point which they gained in the final minute of play. Fuchs, Allen, and Kaufman scored for Central.

The following week, Central, sweeping aside the Northeast players by a 20-11 count, obtained her first league victory. A whirlwind offense bewildered the Purple players and left them trailing, 13-4, at the half, nor were they able to turn the advantage in the final period. Kaufman and Tuley were high point men for Central.

The following week Central's basketeers journeyed to St. Joseph, Missouri, where they received a 21-14 whipping at the hands of St. Joseph Central. The game was slow, marked only by a spurt in the final quarter made by the visiting team.

On March 6, the Menze crew again suffered defeat at the hands of Westport. A 6-3 lead, held by Central at the end of the first quarter, gradually dwindled, and the Blue and White was unable to cope with the strong Westport offense. The final periods brought the score to 45-22.

Captain Tuley was the only Central player honored with a berth on either of the all-star teams, being placed at forward on the second group. Although Central has met defeat in the majority of this season's games, she will have an immense advantage in the league race next year, for she retains six letter men who show marked abilities in bidding high for championship honors next season.

RESERVES MORE SUCCESSFUL

Central's reserve cagers, captained by Orville "Brick" Sever, concluded a highly successful season, losing but three of their eleven games, thereby tying with Manual for second place. Starting off "on high," the team captured seven contests before it was staggered, this time losing to the fast Northeast team, which ended up by being the league champions. The loss of a second contest with the champions and a 15-12 defeat handed them by Manual constituted the three defeats of the season. No game, however, weakened the power of the Central players, and each deserves adequate praise in his specific position, while as a team it was able to handle any condition which it was obliged to face. In each fray the Blue and White players displayed real basketball skill, and decisively down the majority of their opposition. Their most outstanding victory, however, was that over the Rockhurst Academy high school team with a score of 36-9.

The reserve squad, composed entirely of men who will not graduate this year, has uncovered some especially good players who in next year's contests may replace some of the men who earned first team letters this year.

CLASS A TRACK SQUAD

TRACK REVIEW

CENTRAL has, in a large measure, counterbalanced her ill luck in football and basketball with a most successful track season; for, although the 1926 season is yet incomplete, the team has well proved its superiority, having captured first honors in each of the meets in which it has participated.

INDOOR MEETS

The season opened on February 5 with the Kansas City Athletic Club's Indoor Meet in Convention Hall. The Central track team scored 17 points, thereby tying Westport for first place, but by a toss up Central won a technical victory and obtained the trophy cup offered to the victor. The Blue and White runner breasted the tape first in both the 440 yard dash and the class A relay; she took second in the 440 yard dash, third in the 50 yard dash and class B relay, and fourth in the 880 yard run.

By capturing firsts in the 440 yard dash and class A relay, seconds in the 440 yard dash and the class B relay, and fourth in the 880 yard run, Central amassed 18 points, sufficient to gain first honors in the annual Missouri-Kansas Indoor Meet at Convention Hall, on February 18. This contest attracted local interest especially, since only the four high schools of Kansas City were entered in the high school competition. Central gained 18 points, Northeast 17, with Westport and Manual placing third and fourth with nine and seven points, respectively.

CENTRAL-NORTHEAST DUAL MEET

On April 9 Central met Northeast in a dual meet on the Central field, for the first outdoor event of the season. Although Central's track men were able to gain a strong advantage, heavy winning by Northeast in the field events placed the two schools on very close competition, and not until Captain McFarland breasted the tape two strides ahead of the Purple and White runner in the final relay was Central's previous one point lead turned into a victory.

The most commendable performance of this meet was the breaking of two school records by Captain Vernon McFarland, who lowered the record of 14 seconds for the 120 yard high hurdles, setting a new mark of 13 3-10 seconds, and who also set a new mark of 11 feet 8 $\frac{3}{4}$ inches in the pole vault. Oldham placed first in the 100 yard and 440 yard dashes.

CENTRAL-KANSAS CITY, KANSAS, DUAL MEET

The Blue and White colors were carried to a decisive victory on the Kansas City Kansas high field in the dual meet held on April 13. Although advance dope set the meet to be close, Central won twelve firsts, three seconds, and two third places in the twelve events scheduled.

It was decidedly Central's meet from the first gun, Oldham contributing a first to his teammates in both the 100 yard and 200 yard dashes. Each successive event spelled victory for the Blue and White, and the final race found the Menze team on the heavy end of a 71 1-3 to 23 2-3 score.

KANSAS RELAYS

On April 17 the Central relay team journeyed to Lawrence, and though their total of seven points was presumably equaled by Devitt Preparatory School, of Washington, D. C., against whom they competed in the mile relay, Central was later awarded first place in that event and in the meet, since the Devitt School ran two ineligible men. This decision brought both a trophy and four gold medals to the Central runners.

CENTRALIAN

Besides obtaining a first place in the mile relay Central placed second in the half-mile relay and received one point with a fourth in the two mile event.

The half-mile relay, expected to be a dual between Westport and Central, was won by the Blue and Gold quartet, with McFarland of Central but three feet behind. Central's fine showing in this meet gained for the boys a trip to Drake, Iowa, the following week, to compete in the Drake Relays.

DRAKE RELAYS

On April 24, the relay team which the week before had won first place for Central at Lawrence in the K. U. relays, again met with success at Drake, Iowa, by placing first in both the half mile and the mile relays, which they entered.

Central's victory in the half-mile event was partly unexpected, since she had been bettered by Westport, of Kansas City, the week before at the University of Kansas. The victory, nevertheless, was easily deserved by the Blue and White team, which finished ten yards ahead of the Westport quartet. Besides bringing to the school two gold trophies, the team won eight gold medals, two going to each runner.

CENTRAL-MANUAL CLASS B DUAL MEET

The Blue and White track squad completely overwhelmed the Manualites in a 70 1-3 to 20 2-3 victory, April 26, on the Central field. Of the eleven events, Central took eight firsts and tied in another, thereby giving but two firsts and a tie for a third. Cummings and Whittaker of Central tied for high honors with ten points each. Rogers and Coffman earned nine points and eight points, respectively.

MISSOURI UNIVERSITY STATE MEET

On May 1 Columbia entertained athletes from various high schools within the state with the annual Field Day meet. Tryouts to determine Kansas City's representatives were held on the Central field April 21. Northeast led with nine qualifiers. Central sent eight, Westport six, and Manual one. In the state meet Central again annexed a victory to her straight chain of wins.

The best individual performance of the meet went to Captain "Lefty" McFarland, who, besides setting a new record in the high hurdles, and placing first in the pole vault, also placed in two other events besides the relay. Billy Oldham took first in the low hurdles, third in the 220 yard sprint and participated in the half-mile relay.

Keith Hursley again won the 440 yard run, failing by only two-fifths of a second to tie the state record. Hursley also started the relay for Central and competed in the broad jump. George Batss, who tied for first place with three other pole vaulters, won a bronze medal on the flip. Ralph Blaco also contributed two points to Central by placing third in the high jump. Central's other representatives were Warden and Emery, who put the shot and ran the 880 yard run respectively.

QUADRANGULAR OUTDOOR MEET

On the Central field, May 8, the four high schools again met in the annual Quadrangular Meet, which brought to a close high school athletics in Kansas City for the 1926 school year. As in each of the previous meets this year, Central emerged from the contest victorious, and with a relatively wide margin over her opponents. Her total of 88½ points was seconded by Northeast, with 64½ points. Westport and Manual placed third and fourth with 55 5-6 and 32 points respectively.

The most commendable performance was the work of McFarland, Central captain. His mark of 12 feet 7 inches in the pole vault broke the former city record by 6½ inches. He also set a new city record by doing the 100 yard high hurdles in 13 4-10 seconds. McFarland with 13 points, Hursley with 12 points, and Oldham with 8 points were Central's high point men. These three with Jacobstein also placed second in the half-mile relay.

Miss Dorothy V. Bahe, Miss Margaret Taylor

GIRLS' ATHLETICS REVIEW

USHERED in by a swing of the racquet and maintained throughout the year with more enthusiasm and pep than has been displayed for some years, Girls' Athletics, under the direction of Miss Dorothy V. Bahe and Miss Margaret Taylor, strode to the front and took a prominent place in school activities. Miss Bahe has been in charge of the girls' athletic department for the past seven years, during which time she has instituted and maintained the system of sports which the department is now carrying on. Through her understanding of the girls and her ability along all lines in athletics and sports, her leadership has become acknowledged in the activities of the school.

Heretofore she has coached all the teams, both juniors and sophomores as well as seniors, but this year she devoted her time exclusively to the senior teams, while Miss Margaret Taylor, who is now spending her first year at Central, has taken charge of the junior and sophomore teams. Miss Taylor came here from California, where she had been doing gymnasium work. A pleasing personality combined with ability and training, soon won for her a warm spot in the hearts of the girls, and made her services in the department invaluable to Miss Bahe.

The first of a series of sports to be played off was hockey. The season began the first week in November. Throughout the whole season ideal hockey weather prevailed. The classes began by practicing dribbling, passing, defense, and actual team work and scrimmage. This continued until the second week in December, at which time the final teams were chosen. Captains of the three class teams were elected by the members of each team. Mary Louise Brown, Maxine Hackler, and Velma Huebner were chosen captains of the sophomore, junior and senior teams respectively. In the first game of the season the juniors defeated the sophomores with a score of 3 to 0. The seniors, in the next contest with the sophomores won a hard-fought battle by a score of 3 to 0. In the junior-senior championship game, the juniors lost to the seniors by a score of 5 to 0. This awarded the seniors the the hockey championship. The hockey games were refereed by people outside of the school this year, instead of by Miss Bahe and other teachers in the gymnasium department. Miss Florence Bradley, instructor in physical education at Westport Senior High school, Miss Lela Duncan and Miss Amaretta Root, instructors in physical education in the Central Junior High School, refereed the games.

The hockey season's arrangement were made and the games set by Helen Stevenson, who was manager of the hockey tournament.

The hockey season was ended shortly before the beginning of the Christmas holidays, and a few days after school opened again in January, practices for the basketball tournament began. Practices were held for the seniors on Monday nights, and the sophomores and juniors alternated on Thursday and Friday afternoons. After two months spent in intensive practicing the three class teams were picked and a schedule for the tournament was made out, under the direction of Jeanette Møller, basketball manager. An admission fee of ten cents was charged to the games. This was the first time that any admission at all has been charged, as all the girls' athletic contests had before this year been free. To add to the interest of the games for the spectators, each class team wore a different costume. The senior team wore the regulation gymnasium uniform with blue and white caps, the juniors wore white knickers and red jackets, while the sophomores wore gymnasium knickers and yellow middies.

In the first game of the tournament the seniors trounced the sophomores by an overwhelming score of 55 to 11. In the second game the sophomores were defeated by the juniors with a score of 16 to 55. The third and last game of the first round was a struggle between the seniors and the juniors. The seniors were victorious, fighting hard through the entire contest, and did not give up till the final whistle blew. The game closed the first round of the tournament and gave the seniors the lead.

The second round was opened by a game between the seniors and sophomores in which the seniors again defeated the sophomores by an overwhelming score, though the game was not a fast one. When the final whistle sounded the score was 38 to 13. The second game was an easy victory for the juniors, who defeated the sophomores by a score of 38 to 6. The junior-senior championship game held the most interest, score at the end of the half stood 17 to 10 in favor of the juniors, but in the second half the seniors rallied, and vanquished the juniors by a score of 44 to 22. After the tournament had ended an all-star basketball team was picked. The team consisted of the following: forwards, Jeanette Moeller, senior, and Sally Lu Carey, junior; center, Myrtle Cullens, senior; guards, Helen Stevenson, senior, Marna Burns and Aileen Hinote, senior and junior, respectively. Outside coaches refereed the games. Miss Florence Bradley, instructor in physical education at Westport Senior High School; Miss Lela Duncan, instructor in physical training in Central Junior High School; and Miss Rebekah Liebengood, instructor of physiology in Central Senior High School acted as referees for the games.

In addition to the regular round of sports, the girls' physical education department also undertook a number of special programs and features for the entertainment of the girls in the department. The annual Hallowe'en party, which was held October 30, was organized and arranged to imitate a circus. Each gymnasium class was allowed to have a booth. These booths were the sideshow tents of the circus. The main attraction of the performance, "the center ring," was arranged by Billie Weeks, Virginia Lohefner, Virginia Allen, and Leah Weinberg. Girls in varied costumes put on several different dance programs which occupied the time until the refreshments were served. This was the regular circus fare of pink lemonade and popcorn balls. Five hundred girls attended the party, and as all vociferously attested that they had quite a good time indeed, the party may be added as one more on the list of the successes of the girls' gymnasium department.

As one of the numbers on the program of the R. O. T. C. circus, which was held in Convention Hall the night of Saturday, April 10, sixty-four girls of the department danced two English folk dances. The girls wore the costumes of the English country folk, which were all in pastel shades, and which made the dance very picturesque. Cecil Sharpe's "Newcastle" and "Ruffy-Tuffy" were the folk dances given.

Each year the work of the Girls' gymnasium department culminates in the regular spring program, "The Gym Review". This year this event was held on Saturday night, May 8. "The Birthday of the Infanta", a Spanish dance-drama, was the main number on the program. Several number from musical comedies that have been seen in Kansas City were copied, such as "Totem Tom-Tom" from "Rose Marie", and the triumph march from the "Student Prince in Heidelberg". Also several short ballets such as "The Ballet of Time" and the "Story of the Spider" were given. This program was indeed a successful closing to a successful year.

The highest award any girl can win in athletics at Central is to receive a pillow top. Quite a number won it this year, more than there have been in any one year before. They are: Catherine Cottingham, Myrtle Cullens, Mayme O'Farrell, Jeanette Moeller, Flora Pittell, Margaret Canham, Hope Wilson, Shirley Manson, and Helen Stevenson.

BASEBALL REVIEW

DEVIATING from the usual schedule of the physical education department, in which the various sports were played off, the baseball tournament was played second, soon after the close of the tennis season in the fall. First, a series of games was played in each of the girls' gymnasium classes. From each of the ten classes a team was picked, and a tournament was then played among these class teams. The first hour class of Miss Dorothy Bahe won the tournament, and was awarded the class championship.

After the class tournament was completed, the final practices for choosing the class teams was begun. There was more good material available from which the teams could be picked this year than there has ever been before, according to the statement of Miss Bahe. After three weeks of practicing under the direction of the coaches and Myrtle Cullens, baseball manager, the sophomore, junior, and senior teams were chosen and the final tournament was played.

At the close of the tournament an all-star baseball team was chosen from the teams of the three classes. Four seniors, three juniors, and two sophomores were honored with positions on this team. The all-stars are as follows: Catcher, Sallie Lu Carey, junior; pitcher, Jeanette Moeller, senior; first base, LaVerne Marshall, junior; shortstop, Josephine Vochatzer, sophomore; right field, Ethel Douglas, sophomore; center field, Velma Huebner, senior; and left field, Geneva Newfarmer, junior.

TENNIS REVIEW

ENNIS, during the 1925 season, proved successful for Central. When the interscholastic tournaments closed Central's teams were sharing championship honors with Northeast. Such good fortune was made possible by Robert Page, boys' first team singles contestant, and Herbert Davis and Cecil Long, who composed the mixed doubles team, as each entry was victorious in the final matches.

Page triumphed over MacDowell of Westport, 7-5, 6-3, 6-4. Long and Davis won their final match from Godsey and Murel, of Northeast, 6-3, 3-6, 8-6. The boys' and girls' doubles and the girls' singles were less successful. Robert Page and Edgar Smith, boys' doubles team, survived the first round, but after a hotly contested match were eliminated in the finals by MacDowell and Smith, of Westport, 11-9, 6-8, 5-7, 4-6. The girls' doubles team, composed of Flora Pittell and Jeanette Moeller, also won its initial match, but lost to Thompson and Lyons of Northeast in the second round. Mayme O'Farrell, girls' singles contestant, was eliminated in the semi-finals by Marion Young of Northeast, 6-4, 6-8, 8-6.

Central also was represented by second teams in all events excepting the mixed doubles. However, none of these teams succeeded in reaching the finals. Central's tennis team this year was fortunate, in that it had the experience of several of last season's players. Robert Page, Herbert Davis, Helen Stevenson, Jeanette Moeller, Marna Burns, and Cecil Long, all participated in the 1924 matches.

With several promising candidates eligible for the squad, the 1926 season should uncover a team worthy of Central's support, and it is expected that these players will meet with the same good fortune that has befallen our racket wielders of 1925.

FORTIETH ANNUAL INTERSOCIETY LITERARY CONTEST

COMPETING SOCIETIES

Society of Literature and History
Central Webster Club
Aristonian Literary Society
Minerva Literary Society

Thalian Literary Society
Central Franklin Club
Delphian Literary Society
Central Emerson Club

THE societies of Central have for the past forty years engaged in an annual literary contest, calculated to stimulate the interests of the members in literary channels, and which have, in the past ten or fifteen years, come to be the one event of the entire year in which the clubs compete. The contests were instituted when there were but two societies in the school, and have gradually affair of an evening's duration, to a highly specialized matching of group against group.

In a series of eliminations each club chooses to represent it in the final contest a representative in each of the events, essay, poem, story, oration, extemporaneous speaking, and oration. The three written events are then turned over to be judged by three judges selected by the principal and vice-principal. The three oral events also are judged by judges selected by the principal and vice-principal, but they are not judged until the time of the final program, at which time the results are announced.

The intersociety program originally consisted of the orations, declamations, and extemporaneous speeches given on the night of the announcement of awards, but with advent of eight clubs in the school, the program became entirely too long for one evening. As a result it has been divided into two parts, the first, consisting only of the orations and extemporaneous speeches, was given on the afternoon of Thursday, April 22. On Friday evening, April 23, the program consisted of the declamations and the announcement of all the awards, the written events as well as the oral. In each event gold, silver, and bronze medals are given, the gold counting five, the silver three, and the bronze one point toward the total of the club winning the medal.

The contest is highly beneficial to those who actually participate, and to those members of the societies who are not entered in the finals as well, and it is an activity that is to be encouraged and made interesting as far as possible.

The ranking for the societies in this year's contest are as follows:

Central Webster Club	21 points
Minerva Literary Society	8 points
Thalian Literary Society	6 points
Central Emerson Club	6 points
Society of Literature and History	4 points
Aristonian Literary Society	4 points

LUMINARY SHORT STORY CONTEST

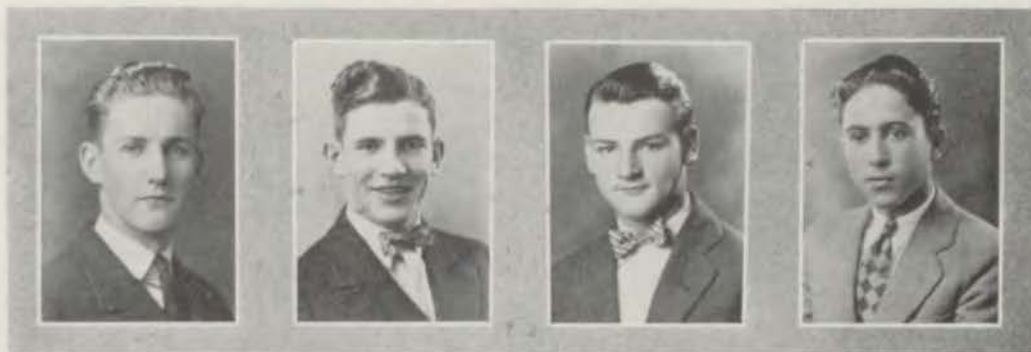

Each year for the past five years, the Central Luminary has conducted a contest for the best short story written by any student in the Central Senior High school. This year at the close of the contest there were something over thirty manuscripts entered in the contest, practically all of which were written by juniors and seniors. For the first prize an award of five dollars was offered, the second prize was three dollars, and besides the two cash prizes, the two stories ranking third and fourth were given acknowledgment by an honorable mention.

The first prize winner was Christine Spalsbury, a senior, with the story "Wings to Fly." Second place was taken by Ortis Johnston, a junior, with the story, "The Snow Trap." The papers ranking third and fourth respectively, were "Encounter," written by Josephine Wheeler, and "News" by Frances Sitlington. Two points are given toward honor society for the winning of first place and one point for second place. All four of the ranking stories were printed in the Luminary.

The manuscripts were judged by Arden R. Johnson of Lindenwood College, St. Charles, Missouri; Athur A. Vaughn, a member of the English department of the State Teachers' College, at Cape Girardeau, Missouri; and Miss Marie Todd, of the State Teachers' College at Warrensburg, Missouri.

The contest was first instituted for the purpose of interesting students in short story writing, especially those who did not have an opportunity to engage this branch of literary work through membership in the literary societies. The contest has in the past been one of the looked-forward-to events in the activities of the school year, and promises by its success in previous years to remain so in the future. Any student in the Central Senior High School, excepting members of the Luminary Staff, is eligible to enter the contest. Also, any student who may have won first place in one of the previous contests may not enter. The stories range in length from 1,500 words to 2,000 words, with no restrictions whatsoever as to the choice of subject.

AFFIRMATIVE DEBATE TEAM

BOYS' DEBATE

BY gaining a double victory over two opponents again this year, Central's boys' debate teams established the first record of three successive triumphs in the history of high school debating in Kansas City. The Amherst trophy, offered for this achievement by the Amherst Alumni association, has now become the permanent possession of the school.

This Central record of three successive victories is extraordinary, and besides this accomplishment, the Central teams have won the cup six out of the fifteen years that it was offered, and tied for first place once. In 1924, Central gained a double victory over her opponents; as did Manual. Central and Manual then debated off the tie, and Central again was acclaimed victor. In 1925, with three veterans, Central won both debates, defeating Westport 3-0, and Northeast 2-1. Her record this year is exceedingly brilliant when it is considered that with a new coach and but one veteran returning, she established as good a record as that of the two previous years.

The debates, which were held January 29, of this year, on the question, "Resolved, that the United States should cancel all financial obligations due for the governments of the Allies on account of the World War," resulted in a unanimous decision being rendered for the negative over Manual's affirmative, and a 2-1 victory for Central's affirmative over Westport's negative. Both of Northeast's teams were defeated by 2-1 decisions, in favor of Westport's affirmative and Southwest's negative, while Manual's negative came off winner by a 2-1 vote in their clash with Southwest's affirmative, but their affirmative met with defeat before Central's convincing argument.

Central's affirmative team, composed of Donald Cox, first speaker; Frank Dubach, second speaker; Fred Morehouse, third speaker and captain; and Nathan Aaron, alternate, visited Westport, where they supported cancellation of all war debts against the well-balanced opposition afforded by the Westport negative. Donald Cox, first Central speaker, upheld cancellation with the argument that there is an existing forty per cent cancellation. Frank Dubach, second speaker, further pointed out that our major debtors cannot pay. In concluding the case for the affirmative, Fred Morehouse based his speech on the unstabilizing result of payment in gold, both on the United States and Europe. The Westport team retaliated with a strong appeal, arguing that Europe was economically able to pay, that the United States was under no moral obligation to cancel, and that cancellation was not a cure for the European situation as pointed out by the affirmative. The convincing speeches and excellent rebuttal work of the Central team, however, was enough to turn the decision of two judges in its favor, which brought victory against the one vote accorded to the opposition.

The four who stayed at Central to protect the inner shrine of Central's glory, met a weaker rival quartet from Manual.

These intellectual invaders sought to establish their case first by appealing to the emotions of the judges through the argument of a common cause in the war, and by attempting to show that Europe gave no evidence of payment, and that the United States would be benefitted by cancellation. Central's negative team consisted of Howard Lee Hibbs, first speaker and captain, the only veteran from the team of 1925; John Proudfit, who had been appointed to the position as second speaker only a few days before; Jackson Hurd, third speaker; and Carl Matthews, who had also been placed on the team as alternate but a short time before. The negative team made a strong attack upon cancellation, based upon economic principles and research, and the maintenance of international integrity through good will and sound credit. The convincing manner in which the negative summarized their argument into a closely coordinated whole, together with their rebuttal work, left no doubt in the minds of the audience and judges that the Central team was superior to its opponents. The unanimous decision awarded to the negative team was the only unanimous vote to be rendered in all of the boys' debates.

Central's victories this year can largely be attributed to the untiring efforts and capable guidance of Roy Davidson, who this year coached Central's team, and with but one veteran, whipped into shape a team capable of standing under fire, and of winning the city championship.

Next year, with the return of three veterans, Donald Cox, Frank Dubach, and Carl Matthews, all three of whom were juniors this year, it is strongly predicted that Central's representatives on the debaters' platform will again be successful in securing premier honors, and in establishing a record, in support of their old reputation, of winning for the fourth consecutive year.

NEGATIVE DEBATE TEAM

GIRLS' DEBATE

UNABLE to secure a double victory over their rivals, the Central girls' debate teams witnessed both success and defeat in their attempts to retain the city championship standing which they had set last year. The results were a 2-1 decision in favor of the affirmative team against Westport's negative, while Central's negative was defeated by a 2-1 vote cast for Manual's affirmative.

The debates were held Friday night, February 5, on the question "Resolved, that the United States should establish federal control of child labor." The final results were a tie for the championship between Manual and Northeast. Owing, however, to the impossibility of breaking the tie, it was decided to let each school have the debate trophy cup, which was donated by the Women's University club, in its possession for one-half of the year.

To Harold B. Franklin, coach of the Central teams, much credit must be attributed. His able instruction, extensive and untiring work, his knowledge and resourcefulness aided the team materially in their final battle. It was through the persistent and intensive training which he gave them that he was able to develop from previously untried material two such capable teams as Central entered in the final interscholastic contest. It was also hard and diligent work and close application on the part of the girls comprising the various debate teams, which enabled them to present a dry and difficult subject in such a manner as to make it interesting enough for the large audiences to express their interest and appreciation in extended applause. No doubt, it was an inspiration and encouragement to all of the debaters to receive the glad hand when they stepped to the front.

At Central, the negative, composed of Helene Hausman, first speaker and captain; Vera Shonts, second speaker; Mary Hickman, third speaker; and Voncille Smith, alternate, met the Manual team in a remarkably close debate.

The Central team's case was presented by showing first that a high standard of child labor was not needed; second, that a low standard would prove a social menace; and third, that the state laws regulating child labor are adequate. The main speeches on both sides were well organized and delivered, and the outcome of the debate was doubtful until the very last. The rebuttals, too, were sharp and decisive, with a continual fire of questions and answers from one team to another.

At Westport, the affirmative, composed of Marjorie Cook, first speaker and captain; Lois Bridges, second speaker; Josephine Scroggs, third speaker; and Betty Herzensteil, alternate, met a capable rival. They presented their case clearly and precisely, however, showing that the state laws were inadequate, that the state control of child labor was incorrect in theory, and that federal control would be the only effective remedy. Westport's negative also presented forceful main speeches, while the rebuttals were close and hard fought.

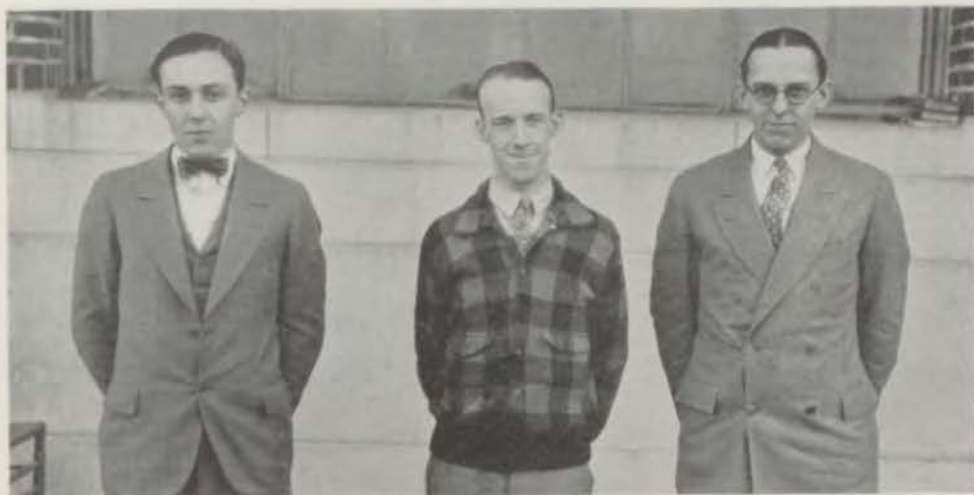

Those who acted as judges of the debate at Central were: Dean W. F. Saunders, Park college; Miss Ruth Hall, debate coach at Sunset Hill high school; and D. H. Ross, Kansas City, Kansas, high school. The judges at Westport were: Miss Cornelia Pofers, of the Women's University club; L. D. Wenand, professor of social science at William Jewell college; and E. A. Newcomb, executive secretary of the Lincoln and Lee university project. They were well chosen and deserve much credit for accepting the difficult tasks outlined for them at both the Westport and Central schools and the capable manner which these tasks were disposed.

It also should be noted with very favorable comment that the spirit of the opposing teams was one of good feeling and friendliness, and the losers were both, in the vernacular of the American boy, good sports.

This year all of Central's girl debaters were newly trained to meeting the opposition of a foreign school, while the school that came out with two victories and no defeats, both had several veterans pitted against their opponents. Seven out of the eight girls on the Central teams were juniors, and only one, Marjorie Cook, was a senior this year.

This speaks well for the girls on both of Central's debate teams, and both winners and losers are to be congratulated on the success of their efforts put forth to meet an opposition of such strength.

With this in view, Central's prospects shall be bright, indeed, for carrying off both the honors and the cup in next year's interscholastic debate race.

STAGE CREW

Edward Devona, Fred Pickett, Charles Mackie.

STAGE CREW

FOR years one of the established organizations at Central has been the stage crew, composed of boys interested in the mechanical features of presenting plays and other entertainments before the footlights. The crew this year consisted of Edward Devona, Fred Pickett, and Charles Mackie. Each received one honor point for the year's work.

A certain amount of technical knowledge is required, since one of the important features is regulation and arrangement of lights behind the curtain and in the assembly hall. Spotlights from the balcony are also provided when needed. In addition, the details of scene shifting and handling of furniture and other properties are taken care of by the stage crew.

Moreover, the responsibilities extended further than a mere handling of furniture, scenery, and lights. The crew must be familiar with the entertainment to be given and must exercise their own judgment in many important matters.

Central was fortunate this year in having an efficient organization and the success of the various play was to no small degree due to the excellent aid received from the mechanical force. The school is all the more indebted to each member of the crew because of the fact that under ordinary circumstances little recognition is given the electricians, scene shifters, and property men. The audience, witnessing a play, will generally take such features for granted.

This year three productions were given, "Iolanthe", "Egypt's Eyes", and "Tea Toper Tavern", all of which had two night runs. And all had three scenes, this giving some idea of the work that was necessary. That the plays were successes was due in no small part to the work of the men in the wings. The stage was also set for numerous other minor entertainments.

Organized stage crews in charge of students are not generally found in high schools.

SCENE FROM "THE TOYMAKER"
"THE TOYMAKER"

MISS Virginia Robertson's drama and advanced expression class presented "The Toymaker" as their annual Christmas play at a double assembly Wednesday, December 23, in the auditorium. "The Toymaker" is an adaptation from the play "The Toymaker of Nuremberg." It is an old world story showing the pitiful struggle of the peasants to keep up with progressive America.

Abraham Budel, an old toymaker, is a favorite among the children of the village, because of the wonderful dolls he makes. Kronfeldt, a wealthy merchant, by whom the toymaker is employed, demands that he make teddy bears instead of dolls, which he refuses to do. Kronfeldt threatens to foreclose the mortgage which he holds on the toymaker's home. However, Hesta, the daughter, plans to take her father to America and find her brother who has been gone fifteen years. Just as they are leaving for America, the son, Adolph, returns home with a fortune which he has made by cornering the market on teddy bears. Adolph restores his family, and the Christmas which was to have been all sorrow, becomes one of great joy.

SCENE FROM "EGYPT'S EYES"

"EGYPT'S EYES"

CENTRAL'S thirty-second annual play, "Egypt's Eyes", a fantastic comedy in three acts by Constance G. Wilcox, was presented to large and responsive audiences, Friday and Saturday nights, February 26 and 27. This was the first time that the play has been produced, open to the public, outside of New York City. The unusual plot of the play, supported by two capable casts, with an atmosphere of Egypt furnished by artistic scenery and impressions of Egyptian music, received the commendation of dramatic critics who attended the performance, as being a most remarkable production for high school students.

The play opens in the Egyptian room of the great New York Metropolitan Museum, where the tomb of Neferet, an Egyptian dancer who had been the favorite of the Pharaoh, Rameses II, is on exhibit. The tomb has been brought intact from Egypt and has but a short time before been assembled in the museum.

Nelly Jones, a struggling young actress, stops to rest on one of the benches before the tomb, and is discovered there, faint and hungry, by Peter, a good-natured caretaker in the museum. She tells Peter that she has had no dinner, and he goes to the nearest cafeteria to get her a cup of coffee. While he is gone, Neferet, the Egyptian dancer appears from her tomb and describes in glowing terms to Nellie Jones, the inviting warmth of Egypt. The two girls decide to exchange places, Nellie to go into the tomb to Egypt and Neferet to stay in the delightful land of the Future, as she calls New York. Meanwhile, Professor Periwinkle, an archeologist, and Mr. G. Puysen, the millionaire whose money has brought the tomb to New York, visit the museum and find Neferet, who believes them to be gods of the Future, and who dances before them. Many interesting incidents occur between the dancer Neferet and her bewildered admirers in New York, while Nellie Jones is also occasioned much excitement when she is allowed to pass into Egypt through a magic door in the tomb. The play contrasts modern New York, as witnessed by the dancer of ancient Egypt, with the dull, brutal life in that land, as Nellie sees it, for each is disappointed with the people and customs of the other's native land and eagerly prays for a chance to return to her own native home. Finally, however, they are allowed their happiness when, in the epilogue, Neferet returns to the tomb of Egypt and Nellie Jones is allowed to go back through the magic door to New York.

CENTRALIAN

SCENE FROM "EGYPT'S EYES"

The feminine leads of Nellie Jones and Neferet were capably interpreted by Irene Axene and Marion Thornsberry, and Carlotta Cuning and Margaret Canham, respectively. Peter, the guard of the museum, was well taken by Jack Morris and Lewis Gabbert. Eugene Allen and Charles Wentzel were equally well cast in the part of Puysen, the millionaire, while the character work of Jackson Hurd and Jack Parsell, as Professor Periwinkle, were indeed interesting.

Pharaoh, the Egyptian lead, was gorgeously portrayed by Herman Ferguson and William Phipps. Loretto Haefner and Paul Reichard aptly took the part of Ames, the high priest, and the part of Lescia, who had become the favorite of Pharaoh after the death of Neferet, was enacted by Cleo Corder and Helen Newcomer.

The remainder of the cast was as follows: Goddess Sekmet, Edith Wells; Laura Puysen, Mary Maxine Korfhage and Merl Cluff; Jimmy Greenlee, Earl Richmond and Grant Anderson; Graves, Marie Van Duesen and Diana Passman; elevator boy, Philip Mandel and Melbourne Ford; Yama, Virgil Scott; Mufu, Rollin Oates; Mrs. Van Rensseler, Margaret Bradfield and Janet Lawhon; Iris Van Rensseler, Betty Atwood and Glenna Hahn; Menes, Pauline Busch and Hazel Carpenter; Afer, Emma Moore and Agnes Elvert; priests, Iva Adkins, Harriet Thompson, Dorothy Pollitt, and Carilyn Broadhurst; fan bearers, Ross Guffin and Donald Thornton; mummies, Dorothy Johnson, Elizabeth Manon, Billie Weeks, Virginia Allen, Catherine Cottingham, Gertrude Cozad, Betty Slotkin, and Aileen Hinote.

Much credit for the success of the performance is due to Miss Virginia Robertson, who directed the play, and Miss Marguerite Zimmerman, director of the orchestra. Others who contributed their time and labor were: A. B. Richmond, business manager; Miss Delle Miller, art director; C. O. Williams, electrician; and G. M. Lortz, builder of scenery.

SCENE FROM "TEA TOPER TAVERN"

"TEA TOPER TAVERN"

FRIDAY and Saturday nights, March 26 and 27, the annual spring play was presented. "Tea Topper Tavern", a three act comedy-drama by Lindsay Barbee, was the production. It was directed by Miss Anna McCoy Francis.

The play abounded in cystery, excitement, humor, and love, and was enthusiastically received by large audiences both nights. The plot of the play centers around the difficulties of three college graduates, Sally Lou Dixon, Rosamond Reid, and Ann Annesley, who have been inspired with the determination to aid their college endowment fund by running a tea room during the summer months.

But Dallas Thorne, whose New York country home is rented to the girls, and where they start their establishment unbeknown to him, returns from a tour of Europe. He visits the house, and is mistaken by Dixie, as Sally Lou Dixon is called, for an applicant for the position of hired man, whom they requested. He yields to the fun of the situation, and takes the position. The same day, however, Tess, the parlor maid, becomes ill, and the doctor report the case "smallpox." Consequently, the house is quarantined; and Gloria Jerome, who years before had infatuated Dallas Thorne, but had jilted him on their very wedding day, in favor of an elder but wealthier suitor, is also forced to remain in the tavern during the period of quarantine, complicating matters still more for almost everyone in the household. In his capacity of man of all work, Dallas is attracted to Dixie, the girl with the enticing southern accent, while Ann becomes more and more interested, in a semi-intellectual way, in the Reverend Archibald Perry, who first visited the tavern to protest to her against the way, as he puts it, "that she is corrupting his well-meaning parishoners by her new-fangled social welfare organizations." Gloria brings added trouble to Dallas by disclosing to Dixie his identity; and also, dropping a few hints of their affair which occurred years before, but giving her the impression that he had come to the tavern under an assumed name because he still loved her and was following her. However, with the aid of a picturesque masked ball, a fire, and finally the news that the smallpox was only chickenpox, and a few incidents of less importance, the difficulties were all solved, and the play ended happily for all concerned, even for Aunt Marian and her suitor, John, who decided that they were by far better off as they were.

The feminine lead parts of Sally, Ann, and Rosamond were taken by Patsy Gilday, Josephine Scroggs, and Estalyn Reed on Friday night, and by Virginia Lohfner, Virginia Allen, and Rowena Planck on Saturday night.

CENTRALIAN

Charles Edwards and Thomas Maxwell played in the leading role of Dallas Thorne and made a success of their parts, which were enthusiastically acclaimed by the audience. Gloria Jerome, the passionate admirer and former fiancée of Dallas Thorne, was capably portrayed by Olive DuBray on Friday night, and Billie Weeks in the Saturday performance. Loretto Haefner and Irene Stubenrauch gave a realistic character portrayal of Miss Marion Day, Rosamond's maiden aunt, who acted as chaperon over the girls in their business enterprise.

The part of the Reverend Archibald Perry, who at first was not pleased with the near-radical social work carried on by Ann, and who later became her most ardent admirer, was tactfully filled by Howard Dueker and Bernard Fugate, while Cecil Rogers and Morris Fox acted the role of John Sedgwick, an elderly bachelor, who had for years been a suitor for the hand of Aunt Marion, though not entirely without results. Rosamond found a willing lover in Brian Pierpont, a college chum of Dallas Thorne, who was making quite a success in the world of law. This part was well taken by Frank Dubach and Carl Matthews. The character of Mike, a red-haired policeman, was very aptly played by Chase Allison and Carey Ballew. The "younger set" atmosphere of the play, Barry Reid and Harriet, Ann Annesley's younger sister, two adventurous college freshmen, was brought out by the lively patter of Donald Cox and Dorothy Dameron in the Friday night cast, and Wayne Forcade and Dorothy Miniace, for Saturday. Tess, the parlor maid, was well portrayed by Elizabeth Pinkard and Anna Belle Peterson. Dorothy Miller took the part of Celeste, Gloria Jerome's French maid, on both nights.

In the prologue to the play, a Colonial ball was given at the country home of the old Thorne family, in honor of Phyllis, the only daughter of Squire Thorne, and who was engaged to marry Lord Burleigh. The part of the host was taken by Allyn Smith and Arvin Heichan; Phyllis Thorne, daughter of the Thorne household, was well portrayed by Kathryn Gray and Aurelia Major; John Arcella and Baylor Sutton, were cast in the part of Rupert, her lover, whom she would not marry, because he could not give her the luxury Lord Burleigh had promised; and Edith Senner and Naomi White took the part of the Gypsy fortune teller. The connection between the prologue and the play proper was that the portrait of this Phyllis, who was the mother of Dallas, hung in the library of the old home, and attracted the attention of the romantic Dixie. She told Dallas how much she loved the portrait and the very quaintness of the old home, and shortly after she was mysteriously made a present of the very scarf and fan that were so wonderfully painted in the portrait.

An entirely new plan was used for the sale of tickets for the play. Instead of the expression students of Miss Francis' classes selling preliminary non-reserved tickets, and then having them all reserved at a later date, no preliminary tickets were sold, and the reserved seat tickets were sold instead. The plan was approved as successful by the large audiences attending both nights' performances, and its success will probably warrant its further use for future productions.

The success the production enjoyed was largely due to the unselfish cooperation and assistance of Miss Anna McCoy Francis, dramatic director; Miss Marguerite Zimmerman, director of the Central high school orchestra, which furnished the music for the production; J. M. Lukens, business manager; C. O. Williams, stagecraft adviser; Charles Mackie, stage manager; Edward Devona, property man; and Fred Pickett, electrician.

SCENE FROM "IOLANTHE"

"IOLANTHE"

THE comic opera, "Iolanthe," written by Gilbert and Sullivan, was presented in the auditorium by the Choral and Glee clubs under the direction of Miss Mari F. Whitney, on Friday and Saturday evenings, December 4 and 5. Large audiences attended both performances.

The plot of "Iolanthe" centers around Phyllis, a charming Arcadian shepherdess, who is a ward in chancery and has for her guardian the Lord Chancellor of England. Now, Phyllis is loved by the house of peers, without a single exception, and the Lord Chancellor is a great deal bewildered, for he cannot decide to whom he must give her hand in marriage. He is about to solve this momentous question by marrying her himself; but Phyllis loves the merry Strephon, a shepherd lad who through the influence of the fairy queen, has become a member of Parliament. Strephon's mother is Iolanthe, a fairy, who made considerable trouble for herself and others by marrying a mortal, a crime punishable by death in Fairyland. Strephon is, therefore, only half mortal, and half a fairy. But Iolanthe, his mother, being an immortal fairy, is young and beautiful; so when Phyllis finds Strephon kissing Iolanthe, she is horrified and quarrels with him. She does not believe, until she discovers that Iolanthe is a fairy, that Strephon could be her son, because he is a shepherd lad of five and twenty years, while the one he calls his mother is "but a maiden of seventeen." Many complications and amusing situations are created, but the opera cleverly solves all the difficulties and finally leaves every one, even the Fairy Queen, happy in the possession of her ideal love.

The part of Phyllis was well played on Friday night by Doris St. John, while Josephine McArthur can be commended for her performance in that role Saturday evening. Robert Bohannon and Louis Myers, playing opposite Phyllis in the character of Strephon, the Arcadian shepherd, added much to the entertainment both evenings.

Carol Clendennin and Mildred Kean were well cast in the part of Iolanthe, while Loretto Haefner and Lucile Christie made very charming and beautiful Fairy Queens. Staunton Nash and William Cade, with their dignified bearing, made the role of Lord Chancellor very interesting. Arthur Jolliff, who took the part of Lord Tolloller both nights, together with Harry Defabaugh and Philip Simon, who acted as Lord Mount-ararat, added a great deal of zest to both performances. The fairy characters of Celia, Lelia, and Fleta were well portrayed on Friday night by Leona Munz, Anna

Belle Peterson, and Aurelia Major, and on Saturday night by Grace Carlson, Roma Robeson, and Helen Newcomer. Ruth Sippell and Lorene Fields were attractive in their interpretations of Patience, a milkmaid. Donald Tiff and John Wymore, as the sentry of the Grenadier Guards, and Cecil Crippen and Daniel Todd, as Grosvenor a member of Parliament, all handled their parts well. The cast was ably supported and the whole production given atmosphere by the boys' chorus as a stately procession of English peers, and the girls' chorus, part of which represented the followers of the Fairy Queen, while others took the part of a merry troupe of milkmaids.

Much credit should also be given to the following for their capable management of the opera: Miss Mari F. Whitney, general director; Miss Anna McCoy Francis, dramatic director; Miss Edmutha von Unwerth, business manager; C. O. Williams, stage manager and electrician; Charles Mackie, Fred Pickett, and Edward Devona, assistants; G. M. Lortz, scenery; and A. E. Harley, programs.

CLUB REVIEW

The Boys' High School club has for its motto, "To create, maintain, and extend throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character." The chairmen of the various standing committees, who, with the president, form the cabinet or the governing body of the club. The club meets each Monday night and the cabinet holds a regular meeting every Sunday morning, at which they decide the activities for the following week. A new dignity has been given the membership in the club, and a more consistent effort is being made to discover and make welcome the fellow who is new in school or who doesn't know about the club.

It counts as its members boys who show by regular attendance at the meetings a desire to become a better member. All applicants for membership must declare themselves to be in working sympathy with the club's purpose, and must have been interviewed by the club adviser or president.

CENTRAL'S EARLY LITERARY SOCIETIES

HE history of Central's early literary organizations dates back to 1883. At that time Central was the only high school in Kansas City, and the early societies, which have long ceased to exist, were strong influences in the lives of some of Kansas City's prominent pioneer citizens. In purpose these first clubs did not differ greatly from those that now exist. They placed a high premium on personality, character, and scholarship. Their members gave expression to their literary abilities, they engaged in contests, and there was a certain amount of social activity.

In other respects, however, the differences are very great, chiefly in the matter liberty allowed the societies.

The pioneer organization was the High School Debating club, composed of both boys and girls whose purpose was the study and the presentation of debates. This group is remembered especially as the founder of the Luminary. The life of the Debating club was short, as it lasted only five years.

In 1885, when the Debating club was four years old, some of the boy members and other boys of the school announced the organization of the Platonian society. Shortly afterwards, the debating club changed its name to the Central Literary club, for the apparent purpose of broadening the field of its activities. Interest in debates, it seems, was not sufficient to maintain an organization dedicated to that study. In this respect the Central Literary club was following the Platonians' plan of organization.

The Central Literary club flourished for twenty-one years. Its official yell was: "Nika! Nika! Rip! Ra! Re! Nota Bena, C. L. C.," the exact meaning of which has been lost to posterity. Membership was open to both boys and girls.

The life of the Platonian society also spanned a period of twenty-one years. This group of young men, for some reason which the records do not reveal, had as their official colors, apple green and pink, and they met the enemy with the inspiring yell, "Agomen! Dergomen! Rip, Ray, Rah! Plato! Plato! Sis Boom Ah!"

In 1888, or two years after the advent of the Platonian society, the Philomathean society came into existence. This was composed of a group of girls who were known originally by the initials F. F., meaning "Folly Floggers," and the D. O. W.s, meaning the "Daughters of Wisdom." The school, it seems, refused to take these latter two organizations seriously and referred to them as "Funny Freaks" and "Dear Olde Workers." They eventually blossomed forth as the Philomatheans, which generally was shortened to Philos. They lasted until 1904. Their colors were gold and white, and they sounded the charge with the dignified yell, "Thalissa! Thalissa! Thala Philomatheas! Philo! Philo!"

In 1896, they were invited to join the Platonians, but refused. From the moment that the Platonians and the Central Literary club came into existence, a strong spirit of competition developed. Those two organizations held annual literary contests which even to this day are unsurpassed for rivalry. The Philomatheans were not allowed to participate in this contest, a situation which came to a crisis in 1899, at which time the faculty demanded that the contest be made strictly an intersociety affair. The Platonians and members of the Central Literary club did not accede to this request, with the result that the contests were discontinued.

The organization which existed the shortest time was the Delphians. This was a boys' club, organized in 1904 and discontinued several years later.

CENTRALIAN

For a few years the literary societies led a more or less uncertain existence. By 1904, at which time the Society of Literature and History, the Central Webster club, and the Aristonian literary society had been organized, the school office placed literary societies on a definite basis. Charters, faculty advisers, and definite standards of membership were made part of the organizations. The Central Literary club, the Platonians, and the Philomatheans, however, found it impossible to adapt themselves to the new environment and passed quietly out of existence.

In 1893, when the building which now stands at Eleventh and Locust streets was completed, each society was given a room for its exclusive use, an arrangement which was highly agreeable to them. They provided their own furniture and carpets. Prior to this the clubs had met at whatever place could be found. The new quarters, however, represented a little too much responsibility for the clubs, and within a few years the privilege was withdrawn, the board of education announcing that the excitement and confusion incidental to the clubs' sessions were detrimental to the school's best interests. The societies unwillingly gave up this privilege of special quarters and made numerous efforts to recover them, but were unsuccessful in their attempts.

In addition to literary programs, the early societies were entrusted with the publication of the Luminary. This system was abandoned in 1918, probably because this made the paper more of a literary society organ, than a school publication.

Social life of the early societies was not as much a factor in the late 90s and the decade that followed as it is now, because of the number of fraternities that then existed in Central. Many of the older graduates in Kansas City recall the Delta Omicron Omicron, the Phi Lambda Epsilon, and the Phi Sigma.

The only literary society in the more recent history of Central which has ceased to exist is the Central Shakespeare club. This was organized in 1903 and ended its career in 1925, when the girls organized the Delphian literary society and the boys, the Central Emerson club.

This gave Central eight literary societies, the most that it has ever had at one time.

Central high school now has eighteen student organizations, including three boys' literary societies, four girls' literary societies, one mixed literary society, three student organizations which deal with general school problems, one boys' scientific club, one girls' athletic club, three musical societies, one commercial business club, one art club, and an R. O. T. C. officers' club. Total membership is about nine hundred, or thirty-five per cent of the entire body. There is, of course, much duplication, as many pupils belong to two or more clubs. Approximately one-tenth of this number belong to literary societies. All organizations have faculty advisers and have received their charters from the office. The oldest club has been in existence thirty-four years and the youngest a little more than a year. Student organizations have always been an important part of the life of Central high school. Literary societies elect their own members. However, in most of the organizations anyone meeting certain requirements may apply for membership.

CLUB REVIEW

The distinction of being the oldest organization at Central belongs to the Society of Literature and History. It was organized in 1892 and is now in its thirty-fourth year. Four times has it been victor in the annual intersociety literary contest, its successes coming in pairs, first in 1913 and 1914, and again in 1917 and 1918. A tie with the Websters resulted in 1911. As originally stated, the purpose of the organization was to study the subjects mentioned in its name, but at present it does not differ materially from the other societies which interest themselves in general literary subjects.

Mrs. Lenora Showalter Ross '14 describes her association with the club as the loveliest of her high school days. "I cannot but feel," she says, "that the society was largely responsible for many of the good things that life has given me since that time. I wouldn't have tried to write had not the society and intersociety contests stimulated me, and I probably would not remember Central, as I do, with enduring affection, had I not known the loyal friendship of my fellow club members."

CLUB REVIEW

Twelve victories in the intersociety contests and one tie for first place out of twenty-three times that it participated, is the unsurpassed record of the Central Webster club. Besides this, each graduating class has carried off its share of the premier honors in school activities. It is the oldest boys' club in the school.

Charles S. Stevenson '13 says, "A literary society does much to develop initiative, determination, courage, and other fundamentals that go to make up character which in this day and age is just what is needed. Societies bring together groups with mutual interests; intimate friendships are formed, and an opportunity is given to develop one's natural bent. These associations are invaluable. In after years they are the things that will stand out in your recollections of high school life. I can remember as though it were only yesterday how the chairman called those old meetings to order. And they have stuck fast in my memory along with other priceless benefits I got from the club."

CLUB REVIEW

Two and a half decades ago the Aristonian literary society held its first meeting. It is now Central's oldest girls' club and it was the second girls' club ever to be organized in the school. Aristonians have always won their share of school honors and the club has ever been counted as one of the foremost in every activity in Central.

"To me," says Mrs. Gladys Pennington Houser '16, "the Aristonians meant an ever-widening circle of sincere friendships, a high standard of ideals, good times and many of them, and countless opportunities to serve the society and dear old Central high. Now, high school days are only happy memories to me, but still I treasure a few choice recollections—of a Friday afternoon club meeting, a play, an intersociety contest night with its songs, and yells, and colored banners, and a group of sisters singing in deep sincerity, 'Aristonian, we love you!'"

CLUB REVIEW

Taking their inspiration from the story of the Greek goddess of wisdom, a group of girls in 1908 organized the Minerva literary society. In 1910 it won the intersociety contest, but has not done so since.

"The Minerva literary society filled a place in my school life that nothing else could have," says Miss Jean Grissom '19. "In the classroom one receives instruction in a more or less routine manner; in the literary club one finds an immediate field for this knowledge. This distinction applies more to girls than to boys, because the latter have more than their share of chances for competition. Thus, to develop a natural bent, to develop individuality, to test capacity for leadership, and to form intimate associations one naturally turns to the literary organizations.

"Do the Minervas offer this opportunity? When in school I was thoroughly convinced that they did, and now as I look back in perspective I am surer than ever. May they flourish for many generations, and may they add new honors to their record each year."

CLUB REVIEW

In the six years that it has been organized the Thalian literary society has made an unusual record for itself; it has won the intersociety contest twice and ranked second the last two years. The patron of the organization is Thalia, the Muse of Joy, who, according to the myths of Greece, presided over the spirit of comedy and humor.

"My memories of high school life will always center around the happy times I spent as a Thalian," said Betty Hill '23. "Details of geometry and chemistry, the cause of the Seven Years War, the past participle of a Latin word may slip from me, but I can never forget the inspirations I received from the Thaliens. They are bound to flourish for many years and they will win new honors for themselves and for their school. I meet former Thaliens often, and without exception I find that they feel the same affections for the club as I do."

CLUB REVIEW

Organized six years ago, the Central Franklin club has carried away first honors in the annual literary contest once, and brought distinction to the school by having a speaker who ranked high in the National Oratorical contest in the spring of last year. The club was founded for the purpose of literary studies, with the American philosopher, Benjamin Franklin, as its standard. It was organized one month after the Thalian literary society.

"The goals which are set by student organizations, such as the Central Franklin club, inspire their members to do greater things in greater ways," says Francis R. Key '23. "These organizations also bring a relationship between its members that is inestimably valuable. Unless associated with other people, we will never learn their ideas and how to get along with them.

"That literary societies at Central high school have brought lasting friendships between their members, paved a foundation for human agreements, and inspired them to get everything valuable out of their studies and activities cannot be denied by those whose have earnestly striven to fulfill their ideals."

CLUB REVIEW

Of the four girls' literary societies now active in Central high school, the Delphian literary society is the youngest. It was organized in May, 1925, only a week or so before the Central Emerson club came into existence. The club was organized largely through the efforts of former members of the Central Shakespeare club, which disbanded the first part of May.

The club's name, as that of the Minervas, harks back to Greek history. The ancient town of Delphi was famous as the home of Apollo's oracle.

While the club as yet has had little opportunity to achieve a great deal in school activities, its members are already making a name for themselves, and promise great things in the near future.

CLUB REVIEW

The youngest of the eight literary organizations is the Central Emerson club. Its charter was issued in May, 1925, shortly after the dissolution of the Central Shakespeare club. Most of the organizers had formerly been Shakespeares, though there was no definite connection between the two clubs.

The Emersons consequently have no past record to point to, but they outline their future in enthusiastic terms.

Emerson,—scholar, philosopher, and man of letters,—is the "patron saint" of the club. This is the third boys' club of Central.

CLUB REVIEW

This is a girls' society, composed of the active members of the girls' gymnasium department. Membership is determined by the number of points gained by the individual in gymnasium work during her three years in the Central senior high school gymnasium department. The Olympian is one of the most active of the departmental clubs in that the members are always striving for additional honors within the club in the form of points gained in athletic work. The club each year sponsors an Annual Girls' Gynasium party, and other entertainments and programs are arranged for and given by the members. The club also takes a very active part in the Annual Girls' Gymnasium Review, which is always held late in the spring.

CLUB REVIEW

Members of the various art classes who have completed two years' work and made an average grade of G are eligible for membership in the Art club. The club was organized in 1915, and generally has a membership of between thirty and thirty-five, consisting of both boys and girls. Regular biweekly meetings are held at which technical and general matters pertaining to drawing, sculpture, decorating, and designing are discussed. The Art club has always, in the past, made itself one of Central's outstanding departmental organizations, and the present program of the club, and that outlined for next year give promise of its being again foremost in club activities.

Organized, November, 1907

Advisers: Mme. E. G. Clarke, Mlle. Gerardine Knotter

Motto: Nous ne pouvons etre sage que de notre propre sagesse.

Flower: Fleur-de-Lis

CLUB REVIEW

Le Cercle Francais was organized in November, 1907, for the purpose of aiding students of French to perfect themselves in the conversational use of the language, and in the knowledge of French literature, life, and customs. It was disbanded in 1922, because there was no suitable place in which to meet, due to the junior high school students using the building in the afternoons. The organization began functioning again this year.

The meetings, held twice a month, are purely of a literary character and are conducted entirely in the French language. Students having had at least one year of French, and maintaining an average of G in that subject are eligible to membership. They are not voted upon, but automatically become members.

CLUB REVIEW

A desire to promote business efficiency led to the organization, in 1922, of the Gregg Writers by girls and boys of the shorthand and typewriting classes. At present, membership is limited to girls. Biweekly meetings are devoted chiefly to commercial business subjects, but many of the programs are purely literary in character. There is a moderate amount of social activity carried on by the club. The Gregg Writers help to send a representative to the annual state typewriting contest at Columbia, Missouri, and take an interest in numerous other shorthand and typewriting contests. The chief interests of the club are now centered in achieving greater accuracy and speed in both typewriting and shorthand.

CLUB REVIEW

Membership in this society is drawn from the girls enrolled in the singing classes. In recent years about seventy girls have belonged. The work is conducted much in the manner of a class, anyone taking the music work being eligible to membership in the Choral club. The annual opera given by the music department has been the principal activity of this and the other musical organizations. At various times the Choral club has sung at school assemblies and other gatherings. In recent years there have been music contests of different kinds among the high schools of the city in which the Choral club has always taken part. The School entrants in the Spring Music Festival have, in recent years, been chosen from this club.

CLUB REVIEW

The Glee club has been in existence at Central eighteen years. It sings at school assemblies and other gatherings, and takes part in the annual opera. In the earlier days of its organization an annual tour in nearby towns was one of the features of the club's activities during the year, but this has more recently been discontinued. Regular club meetings are not held, but the class meets and practices are held for such events and contests as are scheduled. The club each year takes part in the Spring Music Festival, and from it are chosen the school's boy contestants in this and many other music contests.

CLUB REVIEW

Appreciation of music is the basis of the Trouvere club, an organization which is composed of both boys and girls who are enrolled in the music classes, or others who are interested in music. The club is a little more than five years old. Musical programs are arranged at the regular meetings of the club which are held every other week. At the senior carnival in 1925 the club was awarded first prize for having the most attractive booth. The club has, since its organization, been very active in promoting musical activities in Central. Its membership has always consisted of those students whose interests were centered about musical performance and appreciation.

CENTRAL VOICE CLASS

CLUB REVIEW

The first voice class at Central was organized in October of last year by Mrs. Esther Darnell, a music supervisor in the public schools of Kansas City. The first class of twenty-two members proved such a success, that now, there are two classes with a total enrollment of thirty-eight.

The course of study has included various exercises for tone placement and pronunciation, Siber studies, and individual songs as well as those done by the class. At the end of the year's work, an examination given by an outside music examiner must be taken and passed successfully, in which every student is required to know one Italian, one German, and twelve other songs, besides a set of exercises and vocal easies to be chosen by the instructor.

In order to obtain the two solid credits which are given for the completion of the year's work, it is necessary for every student to turn in a report specifying the amount of time spent in practicing for each day of the course.

CLUB REVIEW

In 1921, troop one of the Girl Scouts was organized at Central high school under the direction of Miss Alice Scott, teacher of physiology. At present, there are twenty-two registered members. Meetings are held once a week, which are devoted chiefly to homemaking activities and community service. In addition, recreation programs are given, featuring nature and educational game, handcraft, singing, and campcraft. In the past the organization has taken a great deal of interest in Mercy Hospital and has given aid of various kinds to deserving girls.

Members have an opportunity to spend two weeks in a summer camp in the Ozarks. The Girls Scouts is an international organization, organized by Lady Baden Powell, whose husband has been prominent in Boy Scout activities. The American branch was founded by Miss Juliette Low of Savannah, Georgia. To Miss Scott goes the distinction of having organized the first Kansas City troop.

CLUB REVIEW

ORGANIZED in October of this year, the Girls' Rifle Team has rapidly developed until it now has a membership of nineteen. It is under the direction of Staff-sergeant Bowling, with Mrs. Bowling as honorary adviser. Miss Rebekah Leibengood, teacher of physiology, is the faculty adviser. The object of the organization is to promote better use of the rifle among Central girls. The requirement for membership is an M average. The colors of the organization are red and blue. The team uses the standard R. O. T. C. rifle, and practices marksmanship on the Central R. O. T. C. rifle range.

The meetings, which are held once a week, consist of a short business session followed by target practice. Two teams have been formed under the first and second lieutenants, and these sides compete against each other during the practice.

Besides the regular work of the team, there is also some social activity. During social events.

CENTRAL BATTALION R. O. T. C.

HAVING completed a very successful year, the Central unit of the Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps, has accomplished more towards building up the standing of the corps in the Kansas City high schools than has been done in any year previous to this time. The unit has an addition of two companies over last year, bringing the total enrollment of the battalion to a little over two hundred cadets.

The method of electing the officers of the unit has been changed in that a printed form was sent by Staff Sergeant Frank Bowling, Instructor of the Corps at Central, to teachers of all cadets under consideration for promotion. The blank asked for information concerning a cadet's neatness, cleanliness, courtesy, effort, scholarship, and all other requirements deemed necessary for a competent officer, and with this as a basis officers of the battalion were selected.

The first event of importance on the R. O. T. C. calendar for the year was the competitive inspection, the first half of which was held on January 5, by Captain Harry E. Mitchell, professor of military science and tactics in the Kansas City high schools. The second half was conducted by Captain N. Imboden, instructor in R. O. T. C. at Southwest high school, on February 24. Company "C" of the Central unit was the highest ranking company; however Southwest high school placed first as a school, with Central second.

During the first part of the month of January, Miss Mayme O'Farrell was elected sponsor major of the Central battalion. All senior girls who were passing in three solid and one non-solid subject were automatically nominated. The cadets then voted on the list and the highest five were sent to the faculty who cut the list to three. The girls of the school then voted on these three girls.

On February 26, John E. Johnson was appointed Major of the Central unit by Captain Harry E. Mitchell, with the recommendation of Staff Sergeant Bowling and the approval of O. F. Dubach, principal. Major Johnson is the ranking officer of the battalion.

The third annual "Military Hop" was held March 20, in the large gymnasium. Only cadets, graduate cadets, or previous cadets were allowed to attend. Captain and Mrs. H. E. Mitchell, Staff Sergeant and Mrs. Frank Bowling chaperoned the dance.

The month of April brought with it the third annual military circus on the tenth of the month. At the circus the capes and caps were officially presented to the sponsor majors of the several high schools. Lieutenant Colonel A. B. Dockery, officer in charge of R. O. T. C. affairs in the seventh corps area, gave the Kansas City unit of the Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps its annual inspection on April 9, and attended the military circus April 10.

The latter part of May brings the grand climax of R. O. T. C. work for the schools of Kansas City—the Field Meet. In this event there will be competition in company drill, platoon drill, squad drill, and individual drill. The winning school will be allowed to appoint the Colonel of Kansas City Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps, and the school placing second will appoint the Lieutenant Colonel.

MAJOR JOHN E. JOHNSON

SPONSOR MAJOR MAYME O'FARRELL

John Johnson was appointed major of the Central battalion of the R. O. T. C., Friday, February 26, by Captain Harry E. Mitchell, professor of military science and tactics in the Kansas City high schools, upon the recommendation of Staff-sergeant Frank Bowling, and with the approval of Principal Otto F. Dubach.

Mayme O'Farrell was elected sponsor major of the Central battalion of the R. O. T. C. by the girls of the school and the cadets of the unit after preliminary election. Miss O'Farrell received formal recognition of her office at the annual military circus, April 10, where she was presented with a cape and cap.

RIFLE TEAM

CENTRAL'S Rifle Team, working under the instruction of Staff-sergeant Bowling and captained by Cadet Major John E. Johnson, is a division of military work that cannot go unnoticed. The Central indoor gallery range is considered the best in Kansas City. The first match of the year was the interscholastic contest, in which the Central team placed first, winning a new Springfield Amory rifle. In the City match, also between the high schools, the Central team won the trophy cup offered by the Schmeltzer Arms Company. In the contest covering the entire Seventh Corps Area, which is comprised of the states of North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Missouri, Kansas, and Arkansas, the Kansas City high schools placed fifth, and nine out of the fifteen members of the Kansas City team were members of the Central Battalion. As a result of the high scores made in the Corps Area match by Edward Stewart, John Townsley, Howard Dueker, Rowland Heist, John Johnson, Fred Barker, Milburn Concannon, Lee Van Duesen, and William Pahlman. They have been selected to represent the corps area in the national intercollegiate indoor gallery match.

Marksmanship exercises in the R. O. T. C. department at Central are not confined to cadets of the unit. Several members of the Central faculty have taken advantage of the instruction given by Staff-sergeant Bowling in rifle marksmanship. Twenty girl students of Central have formed a club, known as the Central Girls' Rifle Team, with marksmanship as their objective.

SENIOR WILL

WE, the Senior Class of nineteen hundred twenty-six, of the School of Central High, City of Kansas City, State of Missouri, being about to leave this school, and in full possession of a sound mind, memory, understanding, and being of the age of four years, do make, publish, and declare in loving memory thereof, this, our last will and testament, revoking all former wills made to the requests and schemes of the exploiting Juniors.

That is to say:

We bequeath to the faculty the same opportunity of controlling destiny in the future as they have made such good use of during the past four years in shaping and directing ours.

To the Juniors we leave our roller skates, on condition that they learn to use them proficiently by next fall.

To the Sophomores we leave our senior pictures and club pins, and a few legends of how we carried on the year's activities.

To Mr. Dubach we leave our dear old Central for him to watch over the halls thereof.

Into the hands of Mr. Laughlin we give with good faith the tender care and guardianship of our literary societies.

To our very dear friend, Mr. Gunter, we leave what little silverware we didn't happen to get our hands on.

To the Slaches we leave a great deal of society, and request that they try a little more literature and history.

To the Websters we leave our single copy of "Political Organizations: How to Organize and Maintain Them".

To the Aristonians we bequeath as many bronze medals as they can find, and the flannel out of last year's intersociety dresses.

To the Minervas we leave the Franklins.

To the Franklins we intended to leave the Minervas, but the Franklin juniors petitioned us, and relenting, we leave them to no such cruel fate.

To the Thaliens we leave a pile of "E's", assorted, to enable them to maintain their grade average.

To the Delphians we leave two quarts of milk, so they may some day be restless to taste from the "old milk can."

To the Emersons we leave the honors the other societies don't deign to grab off.

The the Student Council we leave a bucket of paint and some lumber for their new "keep off the grass" signs.

To the Choral and Glee Clubs we bequeath our sheet music of all the popular songs published in the last year, for them to memorize and use in the spring cantata next year.

To the school at large we give and bequeath a set of dimmers for the stage of Central's auditorium, in hopes that they may in some degree enhance the plays and operas that unsuspecting students will be forced to sit through.

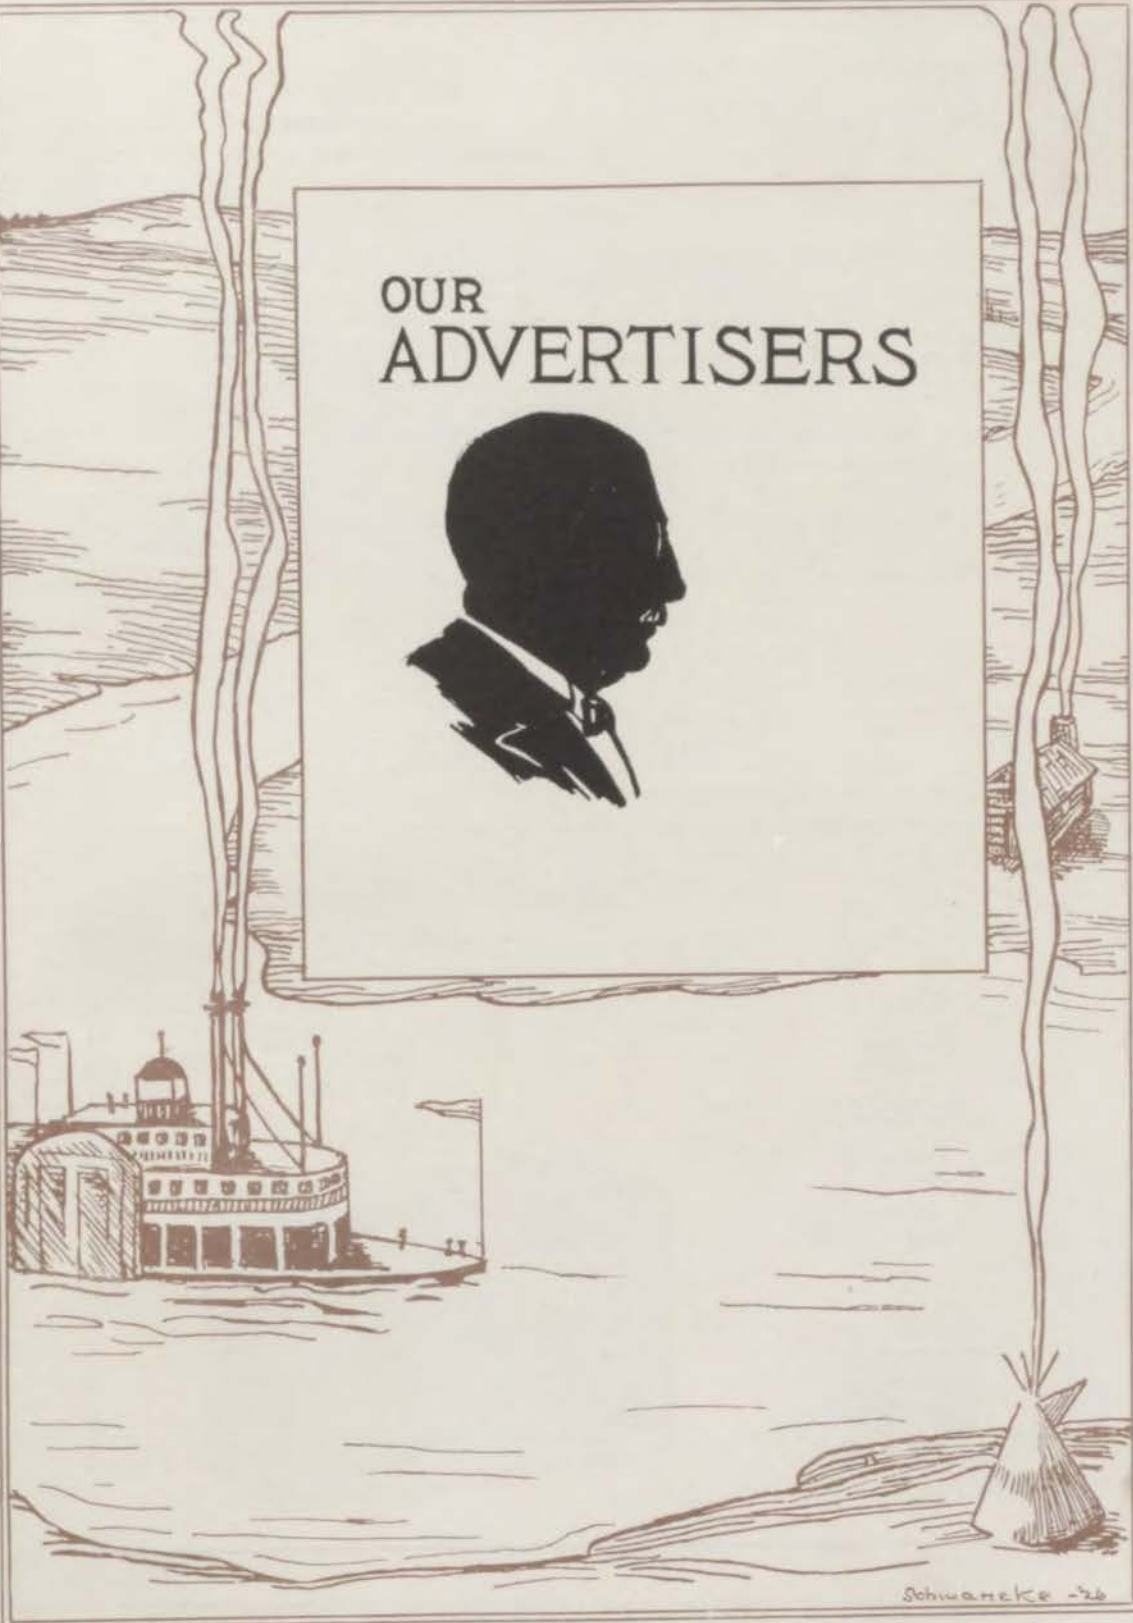

Lastly, we, the aforesaid and above mentioned Senior Class of Central High School, Kansas City, Missouri, do hereby appoint the faculty of the school as executors of this, our last will and testament.

All the rest of our properties not already disposed of, we do give, devise, and bequeath into the solicitous hands of Mr. Hedlund, for him to dispose of as he may think most fitting.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF we have hereunto set our hand and official seal this seventeenth day of the month of May, A. D., nineteen hundred twenty-six.

RETROSPECT

SEPTEMBER

September 8—Two thousand three hundred thirty-four of us meet and exchange initial greetings for the new year at Dear Old Central. The junior high moves to her new home, while we spend $20,000 for repairs on ours.

September 9—The unexpected arrives. School is dismissed after Mr. Dubach finds that there is more than one kind of "jam" in the lunchroom.

September 10—New clocks are installed. No longer will absent minded students, on arriving at school, return home for more sleep.

September 11—With an arm so much like iron it's cast, Mr. Laughlin handles the eight literary clubs in a joint meeting.

September 14—Two rackets are started today. Both girls' tennis and debate begin.

September 15—The journalism classes rush to get their first news items, and visitors wish they had visited on another day. "Who knows to use his nose for news?" asks Mr. Ditmars.

September 16—The eighth wonder is here at last! It's the fellow in Oxford bags who wonders just where he will wander next.

September 18, A.M.—Twenty-two boys enter the fall tennis tournament, and for the sake of Central's honor, we caution them to be selfish with their love. P.M.—The girls retreat to Camp Washita, but dont worry, boys, they will be back Sunday.

September 21—Blue Monday. Our teachers begin to tag us with our right names and it isn't half the fun that tag once was. Charleston? Something we hear and see every day. Can you do it? Wiggle your feet; let's go!

September 22—Mr. Gunter sprinkles the lunchroom floor. We wonder if it was to help us to lunch sooner, or to keep us from lunch longer. Mr. Gunter also has his doubts.

September 24—Here's an April fool joke in September. The first free Luminaries will be out tomorrow, dated today. They will be the last free ones, too.

September 25—Central's gridsters "mash all" at Marshall with a score of 10-0. Mr. Dubach is a "stick-in-the-mud"—on a Missouri road on the way to the game. The boys' club cabinet retreats to Camp Washita where it can work without being bothered. Sounds bad, girls!

September 28—They're off! Jack Morris wins the Student Council race, and Gaynell Tolle comes second. Three cheers for the new presidents.

September 29—David Christie tests the new sounding boards in the auditorium before our first double assembly. He tells us of the "rats, and snails, and puppy dog tails," that little boys are made of, in contrast with the "sugar and spice, and everything nice," that he says the girls are made of.

September 30—We wish to extend our deepest sympathy and best regards to Mr. Laughlin, who is forced today to return to the hospital for the third time.

OCTOBER

October 1—Our literary societies infringe upon the patent rights of Mr. Heinz by sending bids to 57.

October 2—Central beats the St. Joseph team to nothing. Score, 10-0. The girls walk one over on us. They parade for Girls' Week and become weak girls.

October 6—Charles Hackler turns a flip and flops up as head cheerleader. Edwards and Shinnick are chosen as "yackety" and "yack," to help lead Central in this year's games.

November 12—Fire drill signal is given to the second floor while the rest of the school wonders if they must burn up when the fire really does come.

November 13—The Websters and Franklins show an unprecedented spirit of brotherhood by combining their efforts for a dance. There may be a pecuniary reason, however, that strengthens the brotherly feeling.

January 12—"Leave it to the girls", says Mr. R. O. T. C. as the ballots are passed to them for the sponsor major election.

January 13—Mr. Ditmars asks the journalism students for their "heads." They are to be used for news items in the Luminary!

January 14—Central has a cage with something big in it. It isn't a canary or a lion. It's just M. Gunter.

January 15—A large silver trophy cup with "Brown" on it is added to our collection. David Brown wins it for first prize in the Civic Forum essay contest.

January 17 P.M.—"WDAF broadcasting! The next number on the program will be 'Iolanthe', by Central's Choral and Glee clubs, under the direction of Miss Mari F. Whitney."

January 18—Today was a big double header among the "non-existing" political groups of Central. Gaynell Tolle heads the Council while Charles Edwards leads the ace for presidency of the Boys' club—and so the honors are well divided.

January 20—Mid-term exams are here! One third of the flunks flunk. The other two thirds will flunk tomorrow and the day after.

February 23—Someone brought the idea back from the Columbia conference! Anyway, a journalism class for the juniors was installed today, and the directing staff will consider enlarging the paper of the paper basket.

February 26-27—Nellie Jones and the Princess Neferet give us an eyeful of Egypt in "Egypt's Eyes." Processions, dancing, haunted tombs of Egypt, Mighty Pharaoh, and the New York museum, each, added their part to two full night of thrilling and fascinating drama.

MARCH

March 2—A. G. Todd, local tenor, gives "Trees"—that is, the song—to the Glee club, and it is decided to use it in the Spring Music Festival.

March 4—Today Miss Zimmerman and the orchestra gave a concert at the Hotel Baltimore, and receive favorable comment from all the critics.

March 6—"Last, but not least," was the dying hope of satisfaction burning in the heart of every Centralite as Westport filled our basket in the last quintet rally. Score: 45-22.

March 8—"Where candy is, there is paper, also." With this as his text,

Mr. Gunter confronts the Student Council and complains of the high cost of waste paper baskets.

March 9—At least twelve hundred parents know the condition of their children. Some of us will be better cared for, now that open house has acquainted our parents with the existing conditions.

March 11—The Schmeltzer trophy is again awarded to the Central R. O. T. C. Rifle Team, which shows that we can shoot bullets, if not basketballs.

March 12—"Father of Waters" is the title claimed by Commodore Longfellow, who demonstrates another kind of Life Savers in our pool. But you can't eat this kind!

March 15—Now that the senior ballot has all been elected, we have thrown away all our old "dope sheets" and begin some new ones for intersociety.

March 18—Dr. Robertson presents the gyroscope, which, to the great surprise of many of us, is neither a fruit nor an animal. Several sophomores asked if they could get on the "little two-wheeled street car" for half fare.

March 20—Manual wins blue honors and we raise the white flag over third place. Anyway, Central's colors were in evi-

January 24—Funeral services were held today from the Eylar chapel for Richard Harvey, a junior at Central, who passed away Friday, January 22.

January 25—Isn't it fine to start all over again? We don't know, but the office reports that at least a few will have a chance to find out this semester.

January 28—Again the best man, this time a woman, wins the race, and Mayme O'Farrel is elected Sponsor Major of the Central battallion of the R. O. T. C.

January 29—The Amherst trophy cup comes to Central for keeps, which proves that we can get what we talk for. Due thanks to Mr. Davidson for his efforts in producing our third set of champion debaters!

FEBRUARY

February 2—Through the kindnes of the P. T. A. three hundred and fifty students are able to see "The Iorn Horse" in assembly for a dime. It was Central's family circle night, that came in the afternoon.

February 4 A.M.—The Quadrangle Club of Washington University gives us a mouthful in assembly, and we in turn give them a handful. P.M.—Manual threw another victory through the basket at us but it's the last time this year that they will high ball us. Score: 28-20.

February 5—The girl debaters are able to break even; even without voices and good health. Results: 2-1 victory over Westport; 2-1 defeat by Manual.

February 9—Six heads are better than one, so President Oldham chooses Myers, Hesler, Morehouse, Lawhon, Heinlein, and Sipes as chairmen of the senior committees.

February 10—Sixteen buttons are added to the Officers' club. This means that four first and two second lieutenants are "rank" enough to be captains.

February 11—Gilday, Lohefner, Maxwell, and Edwards will lead the cast to "Tea Toper Tavern." Miss Francis will show them the way. And all we shall do is watch.

February 12—The Lincoln high quintet (from Nebraska) got a taste of the Central spirit in the big gym. Perhaps they gave us a big bite of theirs. The score: Lincoln, 19; Central, 18.

HAVE YOU EVER NOTICED THAT THRIFTY HOMES ARE HAPPIEST?

When debt enters, it brings sleepless nights, worry, and strained nerves, none of which are conducive to happiness. But when one saves, the world looks rosier—the chin is higher, the eye brighter, and the step brisker. Bank your money here.

February 15—Do you C? Then buy a Centralian. Sixteen hundred satisfactory answers to this question are needed.

February 17—Walt Filkin, Kansas City poet and former Centralite, gives us some of his rhymes in assembly. We hope his selection on "What Wins" was not a special number intended for the basketball team.

February 18, A.M.—Good men, like cream, rise to the top. Carl Matthews is elected junior president. P.M.—A Charleston contest aided in making the Gregg Writers' mixer successfully mix. A compact and a toy elephant were the prizes.

February 19—Mr. Filken's poem had its effect. The Purple and White quintet bows to Central in her first league victory of the season. Score: 20-11.

February 20—A homey atmosphere! A lighted candle! A birthday cake! And the Slaches furnished their part of amusement at the annual open house in the big gym.

February 21—Here's a pleasant memory of winter. Helene Hausman is elected secretary of the 1927 midwinter conference of the Missouri Girl Reserves at St. Louis.

Central's manhood. P.M.—Mayor Beach gives the Boys' club a lesson in the fundamentals of politics. We wonder, now, if it wasn't time wasted.

March 26-27—Love, fire, and quarantine

as Miss Francis opens "Tea Toper Tav-

March 29—A revolution takes place in a old, tattered constitution for a new this was called the Mothers' and
