Death, Be Not Proud
By John Donne

Death, Be Not Proud, though some have called thee
Mighty and dreadful, for thou art not so;
For those whom thou think'st thou dost overthrow
Die not, poor Death; nor yet canst thou kill me.
From rest and sleep, which but thy pictures be,
Much pleasure; then from thee much more must flow;
And soonest our best men with thee go —
Rest of their bones and souls' delivery!
Thou'rt slave to fate, chance, kings, and desperate men,
And dost with poison, war, and sickness dwell;
And poppy or charms can make us sleep as well
And better than thy stroke. Why swell'st though then?
One short sleep past, we wake eternally,
And Death shall be no more: Death, thou shalt die.

Odysseus' Adventures

Penelope missed her husband a lot;
She feared him dead since he did not return.
But against the suitors she bravely fought,
Because for Odysseus she still did yearn.
A horrible beast did want to eat him.
His sailors were turned into snorting pigs.
The prospects of getting home were quite dim.
They didn't even have any more brigs.
The cyclops was defeated with a trick.
The winds blew the boat hard but would not stick.
A portion was given him by a god,
So now the men were no longer a fraud.
Then to Ithica Odysseus did come,
Finally he and his wife would be one.

"The World As It Should Be"

This, our world, should be a nice place to live,
A place of refuge and a place of sun.
It should have people who love and forgive,
And it should also be a place of fun.
It should consider humans very smart.
It should recognize all as persons.
It should not divide races into parts,
So that situations will not worsen.
It should also be a place of glad hearts,
In which everyone can play a part.
We should be to each other as if lights,
But not to display our power and might.
This, our world, should be a place of freedom,
As it is in God's almighty kingdom.
