Foreword

To keep alive and growing the spirit of '28, we place in your hands the Eastonian, a mirror of the East High School. May the memories of pleasures and achievements bound herein ever grow more dear with passing time.

The Mother of men, this stately one,
A gracious figure stands,
With the word of truth upon her brow
And blessings in her hands.

Dedication

TO that eternal spirit, Youth, which fires the world with its enthusiasm; which inspires all nations with its ideals; which leads the search for the unknown; which amazes all with its courage and determination, and which is bringing a higher and worthier civilization to the world—to this elusive, indomitable Youth we dedicate this book.

History

"A city is known by the schools that it keeps." Kansas City keeps good schools and in this developing section of "the heart of America" is kept the young, vigorous and active East High School. About 1922 the movement commenced which was to produce this school. The East Side Improvement Association first presented the matter to the board effectively, and in 1923 the site was purchased from Mr. R. A. Long.

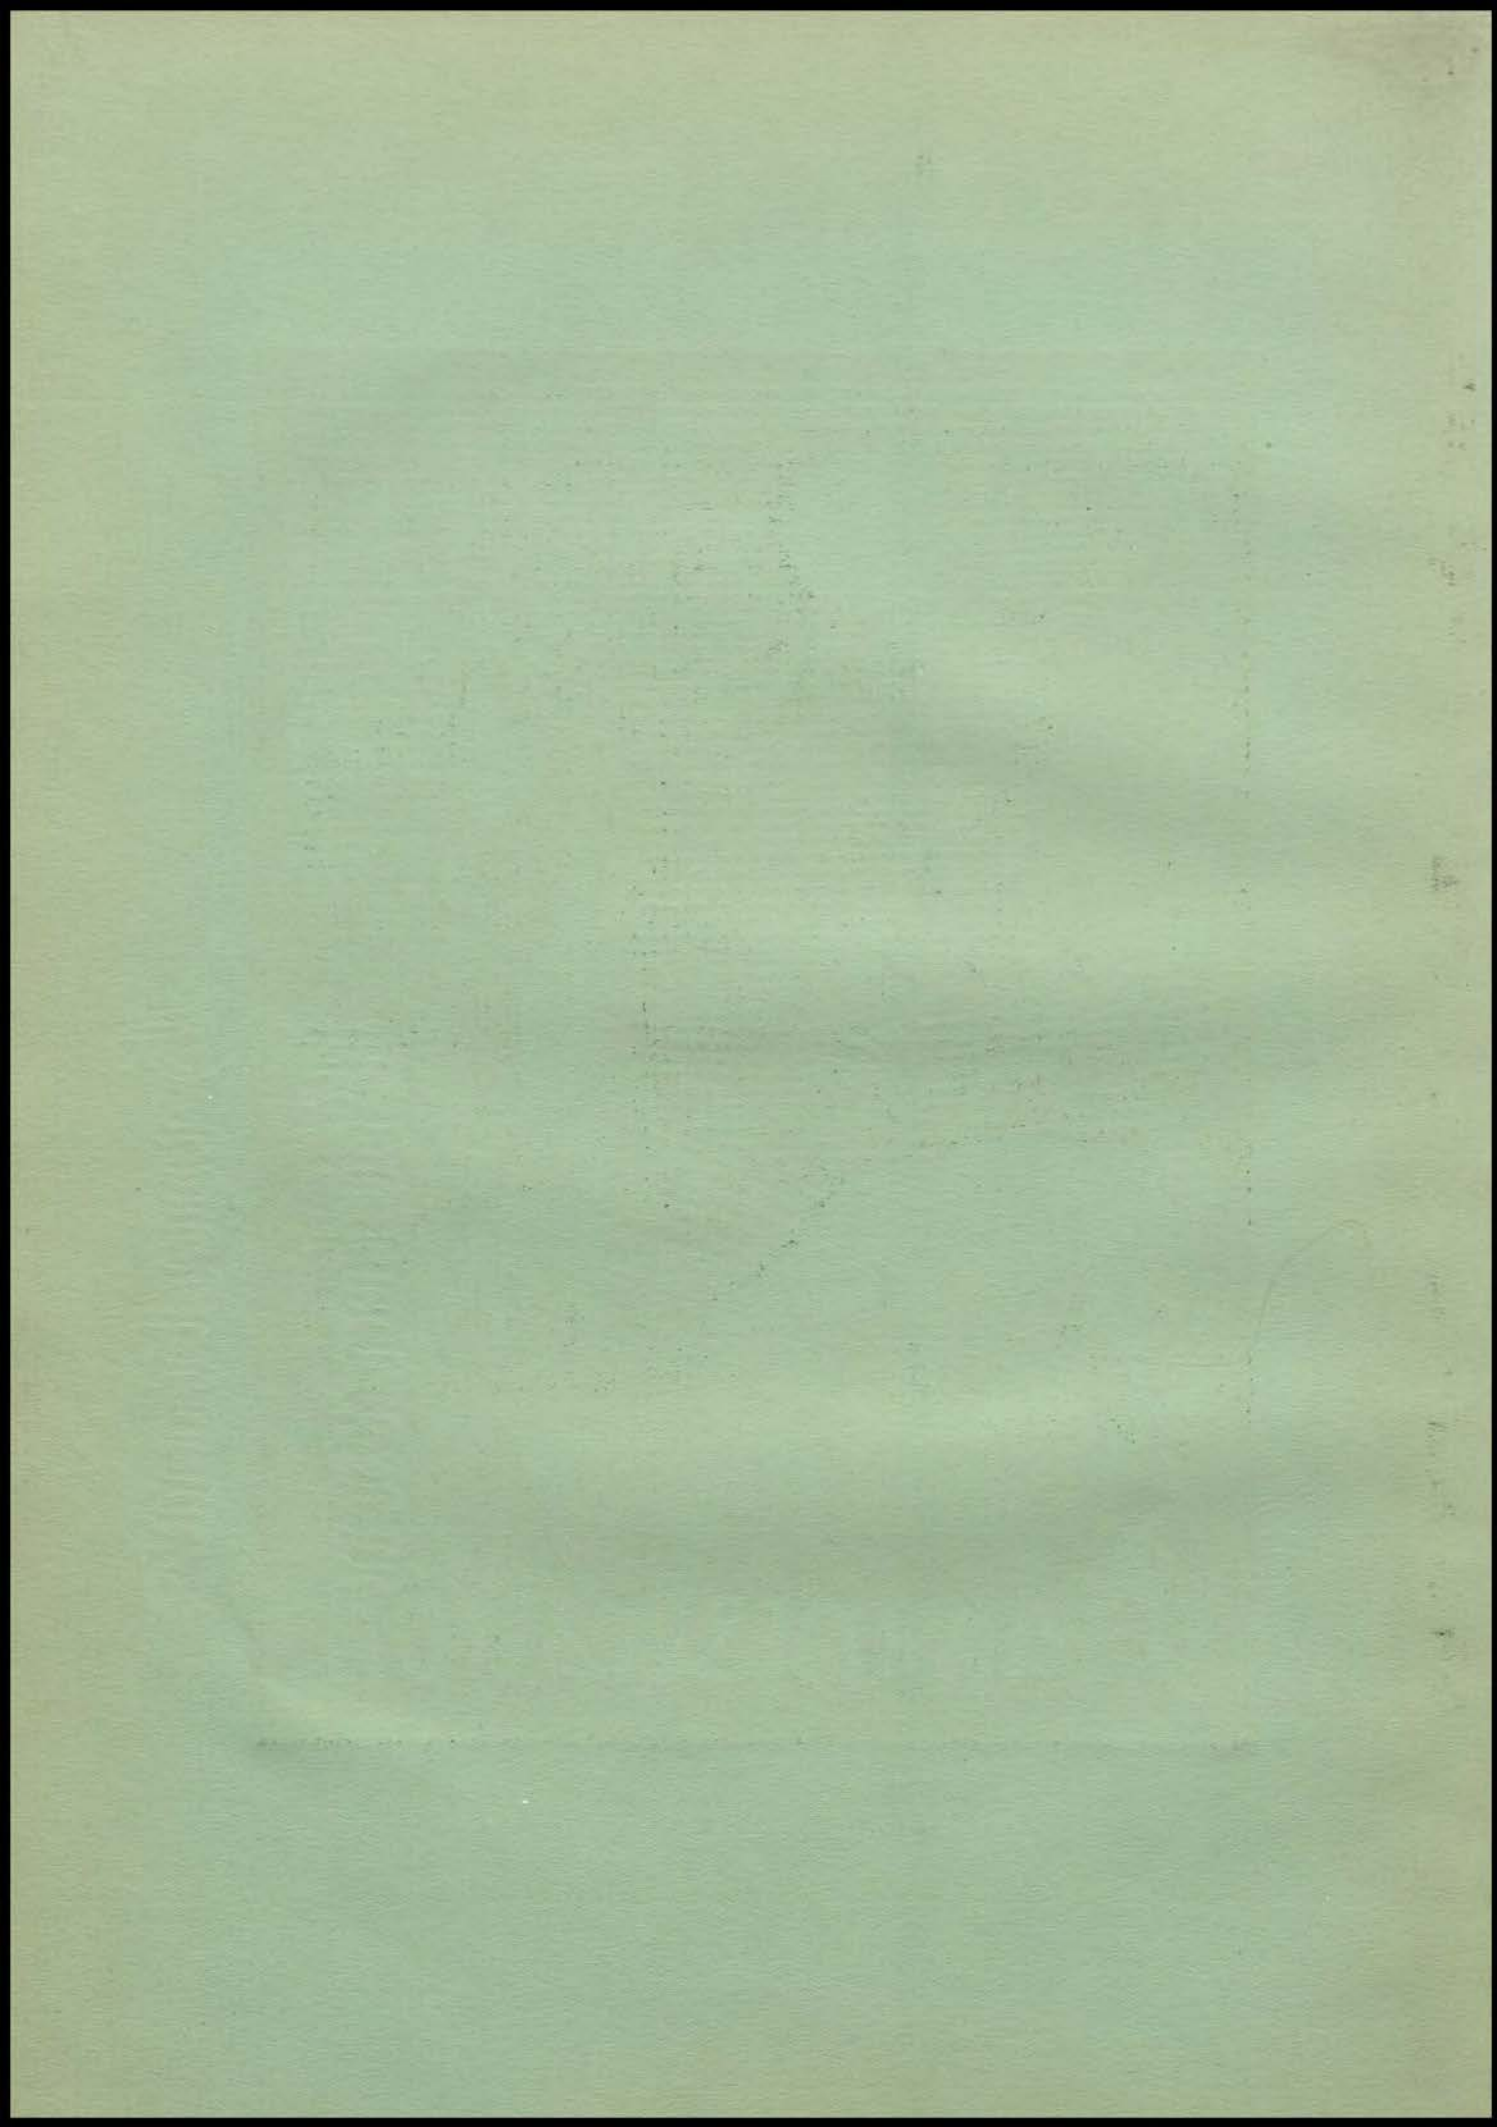

The first year of our existence was marked by effective organization of all departments of a smoothly running modern High School. A class of about one hundred members was graduated and clubs, societies, athletics, publications, and contests were organized and began to furnish their part of the composite school life. During the pioneering year we attained honors especially in music and publications.

This year with the benefit of experience and improved morale we take increased pride in the work of the year. Scholarship has advanced, athletics have been well supported and successful, organizations are becoming more effective and our pioneer spirit is still alive.

Our brief record must be concerned as much with the future as with the past. Those who leave East this year will cherish its memories but will maintain their interest in its advancement. Those who remain will not cease to improve themselves and the school by earnest determined effort.

Senior Class History

Lo, as Freshmen and Sophomores our class of 1928 were allowed to wander freely here, there, and everywhere. But on the seventh day of September in the year of nineteen hundred and twenty-six, the Fates collected from other schools as Juniors. They stood humbly by while the first Seniors passed, but they felt that they had become so learned that they could well impart some knowledge to their underclassmen.

The passage of a year made this famed class Seniors. Although Seniors are sometimes thought to be sophisticated they are not always egotistical. This class has proved it by mixing with all underclassmen in social and school activities in a fraternal manner and enjoying the fellowship of East.

They showed their dramatic ability by producing a popular and amusing side-show for the Outburst. The Senior play, "Once There Was a Princess," was well attended and greatly enjoyed and added to the triumphs of the class. The class has been most honorably represented in athletic, musical and literary contest.

The Seniors have striven to retain their high ideals of fellowship and it is their fondest hope that they have so conducted themselves as to be an inspiration and guide to the classes which are to follow.

Class Will

We, the Senior Class of 1928 do hereby and in the presence of witnesses, will and bequeath all claims, powers, and holdings upon the articles listed below:

1. To the Freshmen we bequeath our unsurpassed power to bluff.
2. To the Sophomores we fondly present our skill in the art of flirting.
3. To the Juniors we turn over our success in being graduated. (To be collected after Wed., June 6.)
4. To the faculty we only too gladly leave all our old exams, themes, and note books.
5. To the R. O. T. C. we transmit our clean, shining necks, so the timid little creatures need never be bawled-out at inspection.
6. To the Student Council, we transmit all our resolutions, new and old, New Year's and otherwise, to add to their collection of said stock.
7. To the Echo Staff we bequeath 98c with which to purchase four dozen new "noses for news" with copper plates so they will not wear off so easily.
8. To the Leundis we hand down our old mirrors, compacts, combs, and fingernail files, to aid them in their quest for the Hamiltons.
9. To the Hamilton's we give Fred Timberlake's power to resist women (especially the Leundians.)
10. To the Eastonian Staff we present fifteen million hours of sleep. May they rest in peace.
11. To Mr. Nowlin we bequeath the lands, buildings, and appurtenances of East High and because he is so good, two nice, new, beautiful wings.
12. To Miss Robinson we hand over Mr. Wahlstedt's paddle to be made into a cage for her to keep the bad boys in.
13. To Coach Cohlmeier we offer a full set of silverware, and a large silver service.

INDIVIDUAL BEQUESTS

1. I, Ruth Burk, present my elbow grease to Dixie Manley, if she will promise not to surpass my volley-ball record.
2. I, Sam Byars, give my art of stuttering to Mary Alice Wilson, so she will not have to think up so many excuses.
3. I, Mary Dolson, present to Arta Jane Thomas, my famous "Mama-buy-me-that" look to be used only when her own supply runs out.
4. I, "Mel" Feeback, give the magnetic power of my personality to Dick Quinn, if he will pledge himself not to let it go to waste.
5. I, Margaret Goodson, leave all my dates and little friends to Margaret Gartrell.
6. I, Hershel McManus, hereby will my Ramon Navarro squint to Earl Neal to match his Caruso Voice.
7. I, Vivian Redmon, give to Virginia Hyre my modest bashfulness.
8. I, Lena Singleton, transmit my power to move the public to Warren Paskett. He must use it to sway oratorical contest judges, the public speaking class, and basket-ball officials.
9. I, Walker Stephens, give this little hint to Maurice Chaney, to be used by him when he gets old enough:
"A mis-placed eyebrow will make him look like me."

We hereby submit this legacy to the safe-keeping of Mr. Wm. Shelly, and in the presence of witnesses affix our signature and seal.

THE CLASS OF 1928.

The National Honor Society is an organization for high schools which compares to Phi Beta Kappa of the colleges and universities. Its purposes are to foster and promote scholarship, leadership, character and service in the high schools of the country. The East High Chapter of the National Honor Society received its charter in 1928.

Candidates eligible for membership in this organization must rank in the upper twenty-five per cent of the graduating class in scholarship and must have spent at least one year in East High School. From this upper twenty-five per cent the principal and faculty may elect not more than fifteen per cent of the entire senior class, basing the election on scholarship, leadership, character and service.

Each member receives the emblem of the society, a gold pin in the shape of a keystone, with a torch super-imposed upon it and bearing the initial letters of the qualities for which the National Honor Society stands—Scholarship, Leadership, Character and Service.

Junior Class History

In the fall of 1927, the members of the second Junior Class began their career in East High School. They held their first meeting February 8, when they elected the officers for the year. Earl Neal, the popular songster of the school, was elected president; Mildred Rex, vice-president, and Catherine Lee, secretary. The curly-haired boy of the school, Louis Galbraith, was elected as the "Watch-dog" of the class treasure. Berry Thompson was elected as sergeant-at-arms, and Dorothy Zimmerman as reporter. Ruth Stout received the position of gift receiver. Following in the footsteps of last year's juniors, the class elected Bob O'Neal mascot.

The Junior Class has been well represented in every phase of the school life this year. The official Junior Day was May 18th, when a program in assembly was given and ivy was planted to decorate East High School. The juniors again sped the seniors on their way with a successful Junior Prom, May 25. The Junior Class of this year, although not the first, lays claim to being the best.

Class History

The sophomore class organized in April. The class, which numbers nearly 300, accomplished much by its earnest cooperation with its officers, and adviser, Miss Laura May Preston.

The Sophomore team won the Inter-class Basket-ball Championship. Also, a large percent of the sophomores are on the honor roll.

The most outstanding social feature of the class of '30 was the truck ride and picnic which the class held at Swope Park at the close of the school year.

The Freshman Class

The Freshman Class of 1928 was organized near the beginning of the second semester. The following officers were elected: President, Theodore Burton; vice-president, Doris Bates; secretary, Bessie Anderson; treasurer, Farris O'Neal; sergent-at-arms, William Roseberry; reporter, Dorothy Jean Gamble; mascot, Virginia McLaughlin; adviser, Mr. McDaniel.

The freshman boys have won distinction in athletics, and the class has been active socially. Among the social events of the year, the Freshmen had a Line Party and a Picnic. The latter was held the afternoon and evening of Freshman Day. Most of the Freshmen were conspicuous that day because of their queer or unusual costumes.

The class enrollment is about 300 and we hope they will all graduate in '31.

School Life

Horticulture Department

The horticultural department of East High is the outgrowth of a long felt need for plant study that would have a practical application in the life of the student. It is the natural projection of nature study from the grades into the High School. Although the project has been in operation only two years, it has already demonstrated its popularity and efficiency. More interest in plant life and kindred natural science subjects has been aroused and more knowledge disseminated than the most optimistic had expected. One cause for its immediate success has been the splendid equipment installed. East High is probably the best equipped to teach horticulture of any School of like ranks in the United States. Another contributing factor has been the unusual interest of Kansas City in general in the city beautification and gardening.

Two courses have been offered this year, one advance course in floriculture, and a course in general horticulture. The field of general horticulture being so large that a detail study of the different types of plants is almost impossible, so the pupil is introduced to the fundamental practices in the propagation and culture of plants useful as food and beautification. This course is used as a foundation for further study.

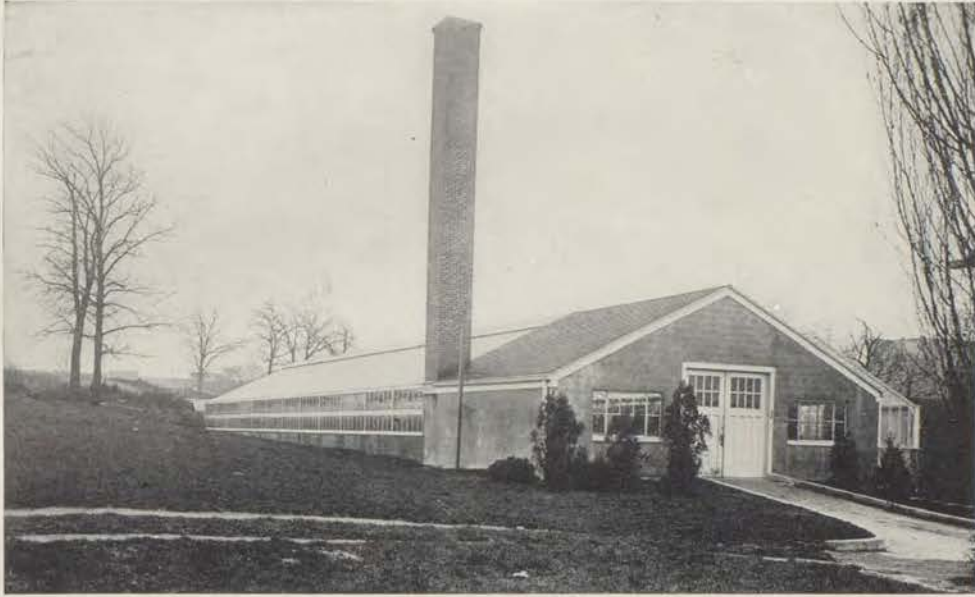

In the course in floriculture plants that are used chiefly for ornamentation are studied. The botanical classification of each plant, the cultural methods, the diseases and insect pests are studied so that it is possible for pupils to actually go out and produce plants for themselves. The actual contact with these plants in the greenhouse is the best method of teaching the subject. Some time is spent in the beautification of the homes and floral arrangements.

The nature study program in the grades and the botany courses in the high school correlate with these courses, making a definite program from the first grade up through the high school to college entrance, with the East High greenhouse and gardens the center of all activities.

HARRY FISHER, Vice-President

Has been a horticulturist for a number of years having worked in the school gardens several summers. Expects to take it up for his life work.

ADELL SILVEY, Secretary

Popular in all lines from dancing to reigning on a throne. Ag Queen 1928.

VIRGINIA LINGLE, Treasurer

Her golden locks have been missed in the horticulture classes this year, but her interest in the club has continued.

LEONARD CLEMENTS, Sgt.-at-arms

His soldierly conduct has been lent to all of our occasions. A good financier and one that looks forward to much time spent in horticulture.

GRACE RIDDLE, Reporter

A loyal member of the club and an accurate reporter of the happenings therein.

History

The "Ag Club" was organized in October, 1926, for the purpose of creating a demand for the material produce in our greenhouse. The many flower sales of last year and those of this year have been educational as well as profitable.

The trips and social activities have brought the pupils closer together in good wholesome recreation. Adell Silvey was elected Queen for 1928 and the crowning was one feature looked forward to by many.

The Home Rooms

The Home Room period is the second hour. Activities such as banking, ticket selling, school announcements, and Student Council reports are given at this time. Each class is organized into a club which elects officers and two Council representatives. This hour affords an opportunity for a more personal relation between the pupils, teachers and school activities. Although the Home Room facilitates the transaction of school business, the main purpose of it is to build strong and lasting friendships among the students.

Interscholastic Contestants

LENA SINGLETON

Lena Singleton represented East High School in the international oratorical contest which is held annually. By winning the contest of the school, Lena was a representative in the district contest. This district, number 10, was sponsored by the Kansas City Star.

DOROTHY TYSON

Each year the Young Men's Civic Forum sponsors an interscholastic extemporaneous speaking contest. This is the first year that East High has entered such a contest. This school was represented in the city-wide contest by Dorothy Tyson.

BERNICE EICHENAUER

In the same contest of school paper prizes are offered for the best of each type of literary work. The prize for the best feature story entered was awarded to Bernice Eichenauer.

BRENDA GROESBECK

The department of journalism of the University of Missouri each year offers prizes to school papers and annuals throughout the state of Missouri. Also prizes are offered to the best piece of art in the papers. Brenda Groesbeck won for herself and for the honor of East High School, a first prize metal for a linoleum cut which appeared in a paper judged in this contest.

The Present Significance of the Constitution

LENA SINGLETON

Freedom! The cry of thousands of soldiers as they lay down their lives in battle. Freedom! The cry of hundreds of martyrs as they gave their lives to that worthy cause. Freedom! The cry of all people through the ages. The cry of people who have struggled and sacrificed through years of toil and strife when the flag of freedom has been trampled under foot only to emerge the more beautiful and unblemished, having been cleansed by the blood of heroes. Freedom! The sacred trust and heritage of our forefathers as given us in the constitution of the United States.

Since the beginning man has searched for freedom. Vainly has he looked for it in the reign of the most benevolent of kings. He has sought it in the greatest of governmental documents and in but one—the Magna Charta—has he found a trace of that which he so ardently desired. And then out of the darkness there came a light. Hope surged within his breast. The light grew brighter and brighter until the whole world saw it. The quest was ended. So strong was that light that its rays pierced the very innermost parts of the monarchies, the empires, and the autocracies of the world. Stripped of the pomp, the wealth, and the ceremony used to blind men's eyes, there stood forth the grinding greed of power and privilege. Man, his back turned on what was past, faced now the light. There lay his salvation. That light, friends, toward which all mankind turned so hopefully was the constitution of the United States.

One of the greatest achievements of the Anglo-Saxon race is our constitution. It is an achievement of which America can justly be proud, for it has completely revolutionized the thought of liberty seeking people.

Planned by the most patriotic assemblage of great and noble statesmen any age has ever produced, our constitution has met every test and remained firm and unshaken. The men who made our constitution were wise. They studied constitutions, forms of governments, peoples and countries, and the histories of different races, taking the best feature of a government here, guarding against the weakness that had proved another's downfall, and planning with the combined wisdom of Jay, Hamilton, Madison, Franklin, and Washington, they brought forth our constitution "conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal."

The success of our nation in the future must lie as in the past with the people and with those men chosen by the people to administer and interpret that document. We have found the document of liberty. Can we read it? Do we see only liberty or do we see also responsibility? It's magic, if magic it has, is the combining of high privilege with sacred duty. The destiny of the United States lies with each individual citizen.

We may keep the constitution alive by eternal vigilance, or by our indifferent, thoughtless attitude so warp it that it will bear small resemblance to the governmental triumph its authors planned. We must beware of indifference toward our future. We must not take our government as a matter of course. Each generation, though benefitting by the achievement of our forefathers, must interpret and administer the constitution in the light of the idealistic spirit of those great men who established it.

Lincoln gave his life that our constitution might live. Many others serving in humbler ways, with no tribute of memory, nevertheless gave their all for that constitution. Will there come a time in the history of our nation when we shall forget these heroes of the past? Americans, we must not cease to follow their guidance or profit by the examples of their inspiring lives.

There is one thing today which is striking at the very heart of our democratic American government. The demon which thus threatens daily to tear down the noble structure which has been so carefully erected is lack of law enforcement. We have the laws. Our constitution provides for enforcement through the executive department. Why are they not enforced? The menace of present conditions is that we lay the responsibility of law enforcement on others shoulders instead of assuming our responsibility as citizens. The executive department cannot keep our records stainless. They cannot create sentiment in support of orderly government. They can only punish the unlawful deed. The correction for such a condition as exists in the United States today must start with each of us. By obeying the laws ourselves we may help others by our example.

Our government is a government of individual rights. Do we want to enjoy the blessings of such a government but shirk its responsibilities? The opening words of the constitution are: "We, the people of the United States." We accept the constitution and we must be sincere enough to stand by that which we accept. We secure the blessings of liberty. Let us pledge loyalty to the responsibilities of such a government.

Let us through our schools, our churches, and our homes teach our youth to revere and obey the constitution. Develop constructive patriotism, devoted patriotism, self-sacrificing patriotism.

People of the older generation, remember that the youth of America longs for responsibility. Help us through earnest and sincere cooperation to grow into men and women whom you will be proud to look upon as representative American citizens. And above all, give to the youth of today the highest standards and ideals of American citizenship.

And to those of us who are young I make my plea that when we direct the affairs and the destiny of this nation may there be no blemish or scar to mar the beauty of American democracy through our wrong-doing.

Let us all stand in readiness to make any sacrifice—the supreme sacrifice if need be—that this government of the people, by the people and for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

Art Club Officers

CLYDE STUCKER

His quiet leadership led the Art Club to be recognized by the entire school.

BETTY MANLEY

A personality that will long be remembered at East High School. Her loyalty has won many honors and endearments.

PEARL McFARLAND

A two year member of the Art Club who has worked faithfully in everything. Always willing to do more than her share.

ROBERT KRATSCHEMER

A sophomore who shows great promise for future art work.

The Staff of the 1928 Eastonian desires to express their appreciation to the members of the Art Club who have worked so faithfully on the art work of this annual. The hours spent in making the division page cuts and mountings not only have made this book unique but have saved much expense.

LeROY McELFRESH

A pleasing personality which enables him to make friends easily.

BRENDA GROESBECK

A lover of art, and loved by everyone. Has won state and national recognition through her excellent work.

RAY OLDHAM

A post graduate whose suggestions and ideas for this year's Eastonian have been very valuable. He is an enthusiastic supporter of the Art Club and a good, all round fellow.

LUCILLE CRAIN

An enthusiast in all activities, with a smile for everyone.

TREVLIN TRAINER .....	Cadet Major
BENNETT THIXTON .....	Cadet Captain
LEONARD CLEMENTS .....	Cadet Captain
JAMES NUGEN .....	First Lieutenant
DARIUS MELCHER .....	First Lieutenant
BILL FRYER .....	First Lieutenant

This year the R. O. T. C. unit with Sergeant Robitsch as the instructor, was composed of two companies, meeting during the fourth and fifth hours. The drill consisted largely of close order movements and physical exercises. The cadets were also instructed in rifle marksmanship and extended order formations.

At the annual R. O. T. C. Circus, the East High cadets took part in the physical exercises, the platoon drill and the jumpstick relay. This year's work promises greater progress for the future.

C. H. COHLMEYER, Coach

A team always reflects the attitude and spirit of its coach. Coach Cohlmeier needs no written phrases to describe his loyal spirit and ability as a coach, for the teams reflect the careful training in technique, sportsmanship, fight, and loyalty in which he has been their instructor.

B. W. McDANIEL, Manager

Faithful, loyal, aggressive, efficient. The athletic department deeply appreciates the wonderful relationship we have had with this "regu'lar guy."

MELVIN FEEBACK,

Captain Football Team

We were fortunate in having two captains who so well combined those qualities essential in a leader. We have set a high standard of requirements for the captaincy here and these two lads have ably reached it.

JACK PETERSON,
Captain Basket Ball Team

CAPTAIN MELVIN FEEBACK

Full Back—Weight 162—Senior

Backed by one year's experience Mel proved a capable leader. His kicking and offensive work were consistent throughout the year. A triple threat man—kick, run or pass.

LEONARD HIGGINS

End, Half, Weight 145, Senior

The boy from across the Kaw. In his only year of competition Leonard developed into a splendid reserve man. And reserves are important.

WALKER STEPHENS

Quarter, Half, Weight 135, Senior

Speedy's second year as a regular found him playing a vastly improved game both on offense and on defense. His shiftiness and passing ability made him particularly valuable as an off-tackle threat.

JOE VENTIMIGLA

Guard, Weight, 155, Junior

Man must progress—and Joe is progressing. A mean boy with his second year of competition now behind him. Joe and Jim made a good pair to draw to.

LOWELL BARGAR

End, Guard, Weight 130, Senior

When opportunity knocked this lad was not found wanting. A wholly admirable fellow.

CHARLES WITT

Guard, Weight 135, Sophomore.

Do not pick on a little man. "Chuck" was wiry, tough, and a real scrapper. With this year's "know how" behind him he should make a mighty tough customer next year.

LESTER JONES Captain-Elect
Guard, Quarter, Full, Weight 153
Sophomore

Lester rounded out his second year as a regular with a performance that justified his selection as the 1928 Captain. Steady, dependable, a wicked tackler. Valuable on offense but particularly potent as a defensive man.

JAMES BROWN
Tackle, Weight, 160, Senior

A football man in action must be nasty, wicked, vicious. Jim was all of this—may his tribe increase. His first and only year of competition.

DONALD BARROWMAN
Tackle, Center, Weight 160, Senior

Consistent, faithful, intelligent. Don developed steadily during his first year as a regular. Such boys make coaching a pleasure.

EDDIE SEBASTIAN

Ed's previous experience of one year fitted him to be the brains of the left side of the line, steady on offense, dependable on defense. A close student of the game.

FREDDIE TALIAFERRO

End, Weight 150, Sophomore

In his first year as a regu'ar proved the spark plug of the right side of the line. "Bunkie" was clever as a pass receiver, vicious as a tackler. Has the football instinct.

ERNEST WING

Center, Weight 135, Junior.

One hundred and thirty-five pounds of grit. In his first year Ernie filled a man's job in a man's way.

DAN SPANGLER

End, Half, Weight 135, Junior

The "Dutchman" was loyal in all his work. The job of utility man is no bed of roses. He has another year to win a regular berth.

EDDIE ROBINSON

Half, Weight, 135, Senior

Ed was used as a blocker and long distance passer on offense. He could hurl the prolate spheroid accurately for a distance of thirty yards. His first and last year as a regular.

This tribute is due the East High School team of 1927: They afforded seven successive thrills on seven consecutive Saturdays. Seven times this group of inexperienced lads entered contests out-weighted, out-experienced, out-numbered in reserve material. Seven times they come out of these contests bruised, battered and out-scored. But not once did they come out whipped!

Future teams of East High will win games, will win championships. But they will win them only as present day teams build and hand down a heritage that EAST HIGH FIGHTS! Let's learn to thrill to the fighter.

Center—Senior.

To our mind the outstanding center of the city series. A balanced player, consistent from the field and from the free throw line, aggressive on the floor, and a power on defense. A two year man.

CO-CAPTAIN JACK PETERSON

Forward—Senior

"Jack-rabbit Jack" more than justified his selection as co-leader of this year's team. Alert defensively, the team's most consistent scorer, possessed with the spirit that determines the winner.

Forward—Sophomore.

A brilliant floor man, aggressive defensively, dangerous as a scorer, a regular from his Freshman year. The steadying influence of experience should help develop this boy into a wonder.

ED SEBASTIAN

Captain-Elect, Guard—Junior.

Up from the oblivion that surrounds a second choice second string man came "Steady Ed" to become one of the outstanding defensive men of the city. Such popularity must be deserved.

WARREN PLASKETT

Guard—Sophomore.

Drafted from last year's Freshman team with no previous experience and molded into a guard fit for any man's ball club. Experience will add scoring ability and then!!!

Six feet three inches of real basketball ability. The coach's stabilizer whenever the team got off balance. Time is adding strength to his length and "Bud" will blossom next year.

1928 Basketball Squad

*First Row: Sebastian, Taliaferro, Quinn, Feeback, Peterson, Plaskett.
 Second Row: Coughenour, Pierce, Brown, Stoup, Harrison.
 Third Row: Belger, Burton.*

To subjugate you must fight and co-operate! How well we fought and co-operated must be attested by the fact that we were subjugated thrice and in turn walloped our foes seven times. And this with a team composed of three Sophomores, one Junior, and two Seniors.

The high point of the season was the well 'nigh perfect game we put up against the championship Northeast team. The low point was the reaction that caught us in the curtain game with Manual and cost us undisputed possession of third place in our first entry into the big league.

To those who are faithfully laboring through that unheralded and unsung apprenticeship known as the "scrubs" we salute you! Of such stuff are champions made.

HAZEL ROADS
Director of Girls' Athletics

The Physical Education department for girls, one of the largest departments in school this year, is under the direction of Miss Hazel Roads. Under her instruction those girls enrolled in the gymnasium classes have taken up such activities as baseball, basketball, volley ball, end ball, and dancing of various types.

Competitive games of end ball and volley ball have been held between the different classes, the sixth hour class being victorious in both events.

Cheer Leaders

Although East was not victorious on the football field, the stadiums were filled by an enthusiastic student body.

The cheerleaders, Sonny Grogran, Sam Damico, and John Moubert, spared no energy in leading the cheering enthusiasts.

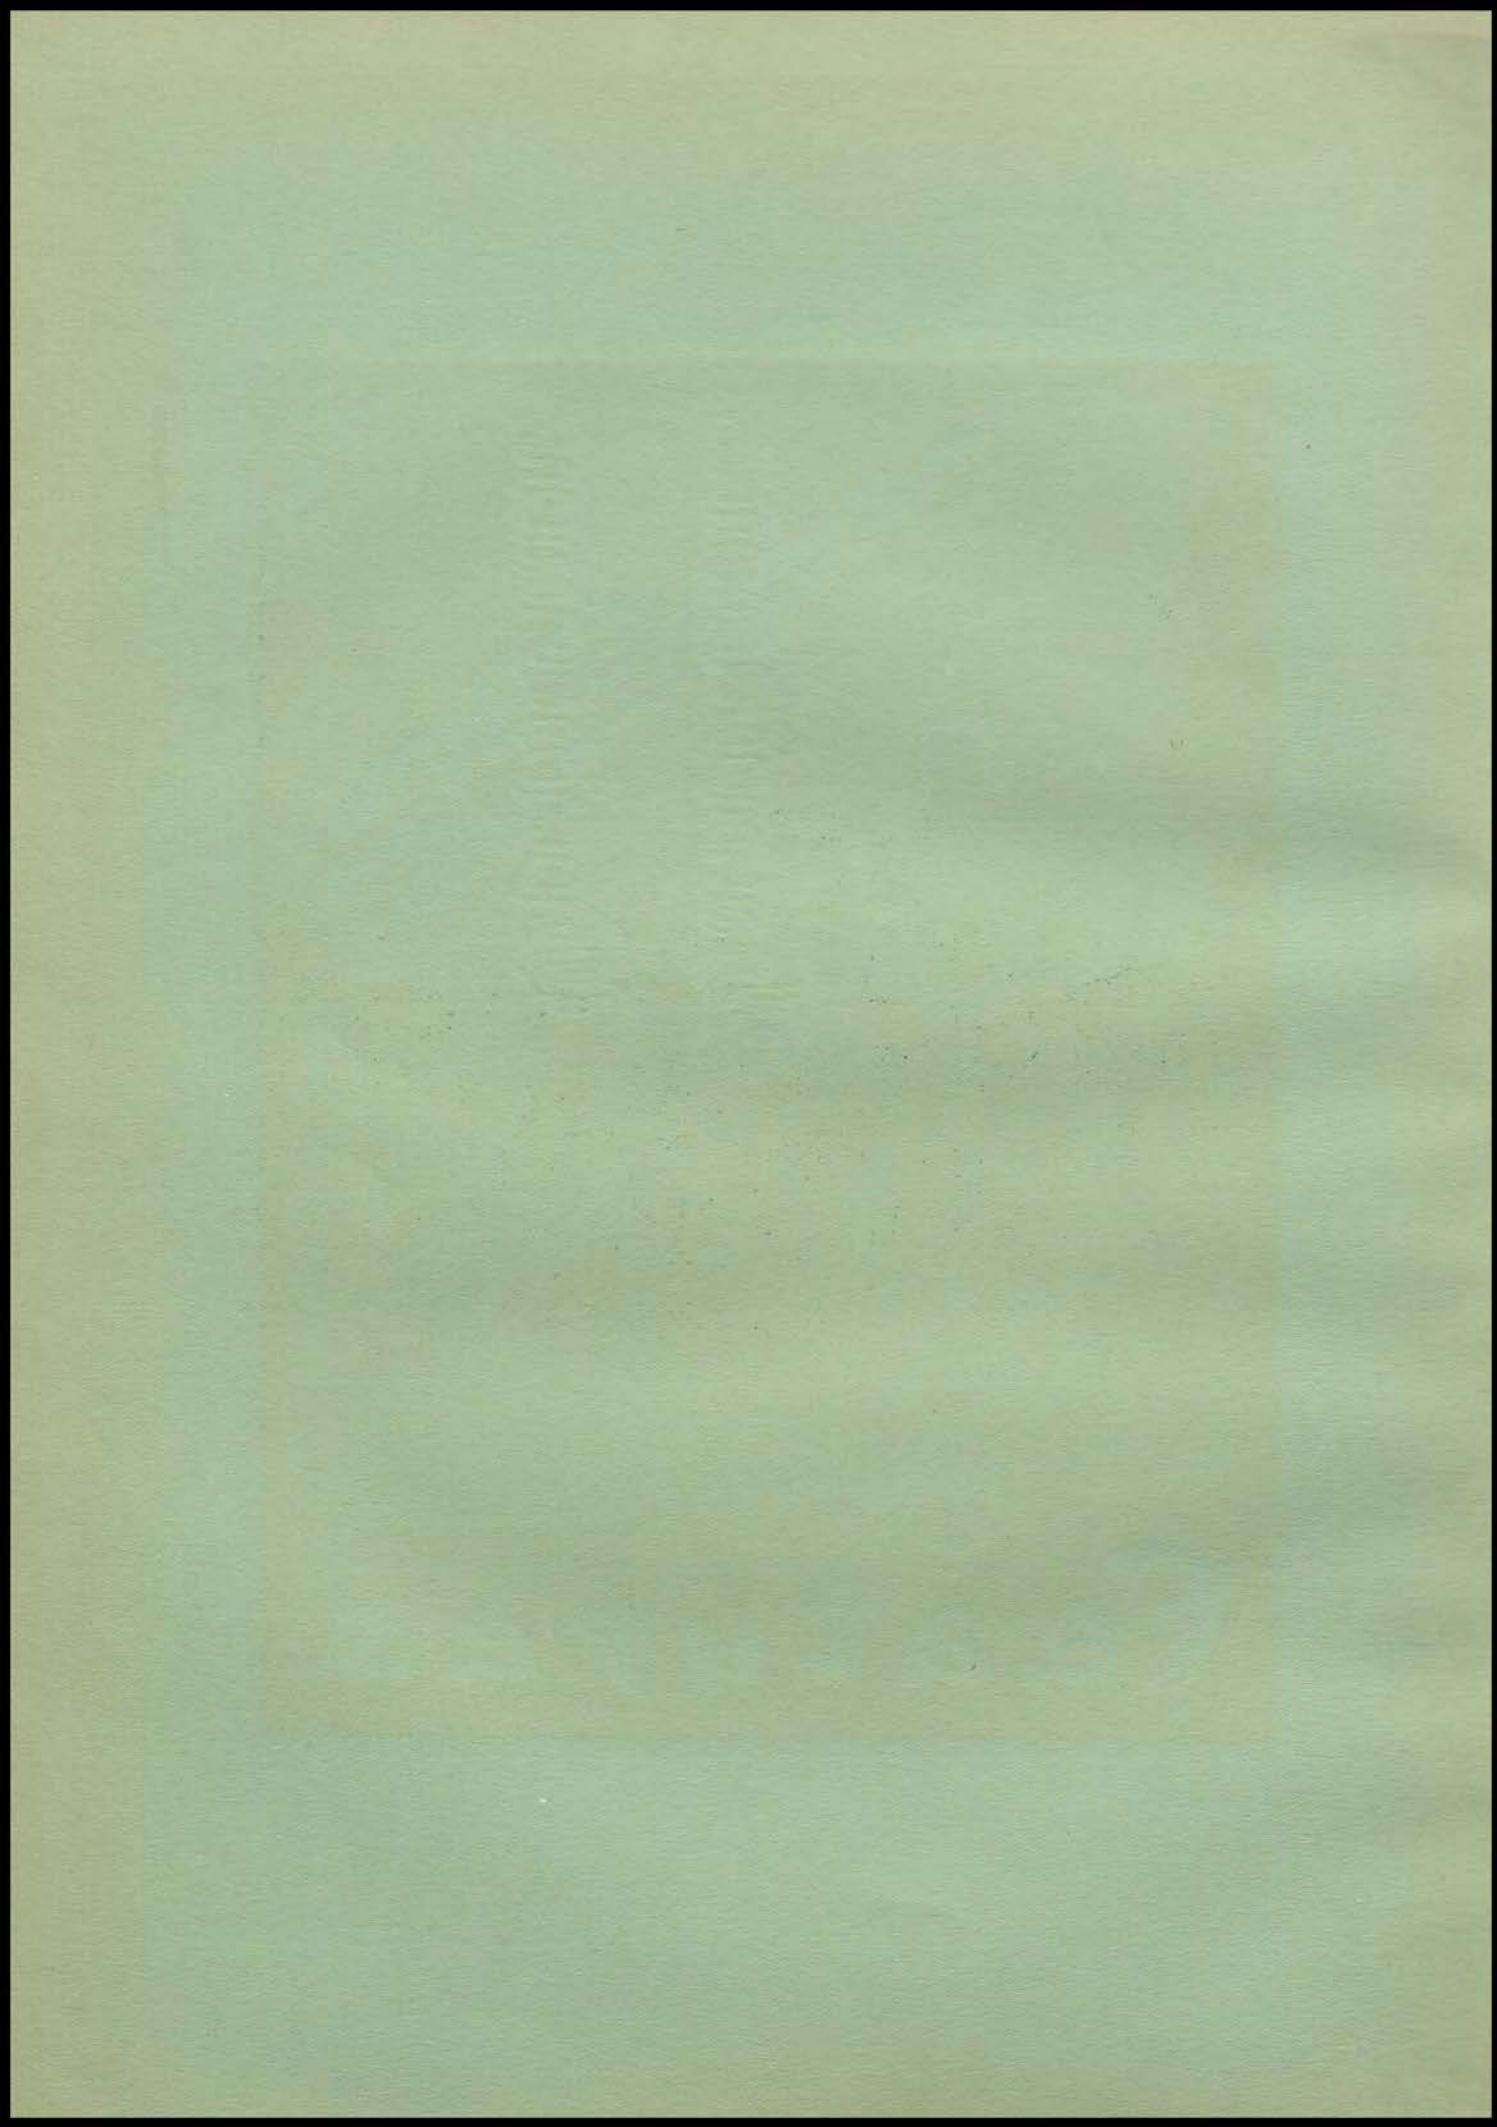

In the basketball season, the report proved more favorable and many are led to believe that if it had not been for the encouraging sideliners, the team would not have been so successful in capturing their many victories. Our incomparable cheerleaders were responsible for all of this.

Literary Contest

The first annual Literary Contest was held on May 18. One representative from each of the literary societies and two representatives from the school-at-large competed in each event. The Literary Contest is held for the purpose of encouraging original literary work among the students.

There are three written events and three oral events. The essays, verses, and short stories that are to represent the various organizations are judged before the evening of the Literary Contest.

The extemporaneous speaking and the declamation are judged at the contest. The original oration is judged on its subject matter before the contest, and on its delivery, during the contest.

The first Literary Contest was won by the Kalailu Club. The Leundis Club received second honors, while the Hamilton and School-at-Large tied for third place.

Gold medals were won by the following students:

The Exile

Alone came I into the night
 All alone;
 As the lone-wolf bays in the grim starlight
 So wail I my lonely plight
 Alone.

Alone I go in the world; lone still,
 All alone;
 As the gray-wolf makes his lonely kill
 So fight I, will against will—
 Alone.

Alone I came, alone go I
 All alone;
 As the lone-wolf steals away to die
 So in the end will I
 Alone.

THE CONTROLLING FORCE

BY BERTRAM EDWARDS

The greatest force in the universe. Everything else is secondary to it. It is so powerful that the slightest human effort cannot be put forth until it has done its work; and if it should suddenly be annihilated from the world, all activity would come to a standstill, and humanity would become a mass of automatons moving about sluggishly in meaningless circles.

This force is not love; it is not religion; it is not virtue; it is not ambition—for none of these could exist an hour without it—it is imagination.

And there we are. Yet, important as it is, imagination is the least understood of any of the human faculties. If it is thought of at all it is considered merely as something which the artist and poet must have, but which, so far as any practical use is concerned, is nearly, if not wholly, worthless. Still, it is the vital factor in all mental operations, the ignoring of which means a loss of efficiency.

Let us consider something of the value of imagination as it relates more nearly to our own lives. We first find imagination in childhood. Some children must be taught to play, must be led step by step into the spirit of the game and are never contented when alone. But to the child who possesses the happy faculty of imagination, all things unite to interest him. If without playmates he is never at a loss to know how to play. He makes playmates of his dolls, and the old broomstick, used for a horse and the limb of the old apple tree, are, for the time being, realities. His fairy books are not filled with strange impossible stories. To him it is not wonderful that the birds and animals talk with each other. Such happenings are not strange to him. He paints in his mind pictures of what he reads, hears and sees, until perhaps, a Raphael or a Michael Angelo is born. Other children play with their toy blocks, building castles, bridges, churches, and lo, an architect or engineer is in the making. Still other children hear the whisperings of the wind in the trees, understand the songs of the birds and to them noting is unreal. As they grow older this faculty is developed until we have the great poet and musician.

It is to such children as these that the world looks; and especially is this true in the higher and finer arts. Vision, imagination is the life of all true art. We cannot conceive of a great painting or piece of sculpture without thinking of the wonderful power of the imagination that guided that artist's or sculptor's fingers in his delicate work. How can one listen to the thunderous chords of a Wagner or the tender melodies of a Mendelssohn or the loves and tragedies of Shakespeare without realizing that here the imagination reached its zenith? All art must depend upon imagination for existence, and without art the world would be an empty shell indeed.

But this great force does not confine itself to art, literature and music. It governs the acts of the engineer, scientist, inventor, in fact, the constructive man in every line of work. It is not only a decorator and embellisher, but creator and constructor as well. It takes vision for the architect, railroad or bridge builder to complete his marvels of science and skill. It took vision for our pioneer fathers to leave their eastern homes and, after untold hardships and fighting in the wilderness, to reach the mouth of the Kaw where they visualized a great city. In other lines men like Edison, Ford, Tesla, Marconi, Roebing, the Wright Brothers, and Lindberg have shown the magical qualities of this imaginative power. Without imagination who can appreciate the ring theory of the universe, the nebular hypothesis or the vast numbers and far-reaching spaces marshalled by the calculations of the astronomers?

Then, since we have seen how necessary the imagination is to work in the highest branches of human endeavor, let us consider it for a moment as it relates to the middle and laboring classes in their work. It has been shown that a man without imagination is on a plane with the imbecile. Then we may naturally ask what shall the great number of workers do to retain their cheerfulness and thereby their sanity. The hours of labor are long and money not too abundant, amusements, commonly so called, belong to the rich and leisured classes, so the only alternative remaining for the worker is to idealize his work, to think of it, not as a mere means of gaining a livelihood or eking out an existence, but as a part of the beauty and music of creation.

The most important force in anyone's life is imagination. Nothing can take its place; it is indispensable. With it life continues to be and to move and to achieve; without it, life would cease.

Morse imagined the telegraph; Edison imagined the incandescent light; Wanamaker imagined a great store; the Wright Brothers imagined the aeroplane; Lindbergh imagined spanning the ocean in that aeroplane; Tony the Greek imagines a fine shoe-shine parlor; Mr. Bacon imagined the beautiful Lincoln Memorial; Burbank imagined his plant species; Mike the Wop imagines a ditch before he begins to shovel. The great thing Henry Ford imagined was not an automobile. The reason Ford is great is that he was able to imagine what the horseless carriage would do to the world. Because he imagined this marvel, he was able to do with his car what nobody else has done; his imagination showed him a universal need and compelled him to work to that end—to the end of supplying that need.

America stands in need of a return to idealism, to this dreaming, this imagining, this visioning. Our thoughts seem to run almost wholly to this question of material welfare. Would it not be better to think a bit about things that are immaterial, but which go so far to make the material worth while? The material structure is well served by the immaterial. If we will spare some of our time to think about the furtherance of ideals we shall find that such thoughts react in better government, and better government means better business and greater happiness in the long run.

On the other hand, the imaginative power is equally essential to the aesthetic view of life. To the unimaginative mind, a butterfly is nothing more than a pretty and, sometimes, bothersome insect flying about. But to the scientist, it is a thing of beauty, representing to him the great forces of nature, it is a sign of the eternal spring. It brings to his mind, not the thought of a single butterfly, but the thought of millions of others like it and many others of different form but all pointing with sure sign to the existence of unknown and immutable laws. To the man without imagination a stone is nothing but a rock to be stepped upon, but to the geologist that dull stone is an open book wherein is written the story of creation and the history of the earth. How much better it is to be able to find, with the immortal bard:

"Tongues in trees, books in the running brooks, Sermons in stones, and good in everything," than be one whom "A primrose by the river's brim, a primrose was to him, and nothing more."

Then how wonderful is the imagination! Who can estimate its power and value. Man, with this marvelous imaginative power, stands on the threshold of life where as a child he needs no playmates, besides the creatures of his own mind; as a youth it is his guiding star and shapes his talents, his genius and is his inspiration; as a man he sees the fulfillment of his imaginative dreams, yet never satisfied, he ever reaches out for something more desirable which his imagination pictures. This great force has the power to inspire, transform, refine, idealize, comfort and encourage. It is the motive power behind all great and small things. It is the controlling force of civilization.

WHO'S WHO?

Edna Mae, our cashier, was as honest as day—
Yet within a great cage they have put her away.
Alyce is a flatterer, on that you can just bet.
And though I live a hundred years, I'll hear her giggle yet.
At laughing and joking, our Altie's no dub—
If you don't believe it, just ask the Glee Club.
Her accomplishment is talking, as we have found out.
Lucille Crain is her name, as you've guessed without a doubt.
Miss Chapman is a Typing fiend
Her equal you have never seen.
Pearl guards so well the candy bars
That now we have to pay for ours.
Thelma doesn't like English as well as she might,
But at pounding piano's she's surely all right.
Melvin Feedback is known as a popular lad
In the athletic line, he isn't so bad.

WHO'S WHO?

"Always Late's" George Allan's fame
(But he sometimes gets there, just the same.)

Miss Vivian Knight was a student sincere
She carried a stack of books up to her ear.

Mary Dixon is one with a musical face
She's the one who plays tunes on the huge double bass.

If you're ever quite blue and beginning to frown
And you want to cheer up—Just remember Jim Brown.

In the dancing meets ever she was a prize-taker

A praiseworthy dancer was young Mary Baker.

To reach school on time was Miss Dolson's worst worry
To get there on time she had always to hurry.

Here's to Miss Groesbeck, a promising sketcher
She was always so busy we never could ketch 'er.
When it comes to English, she knows quite a lot.
Lulu Waskom's a poet (believe it or not)

George Carter is known as a very good student.
Though I've known him to talk when he really shou'dn't
Herschel McManus is known as a curly-haired sheik
They say that he has a bran new crush each week.

Lea Roenspie's can act with expression to spare.
And also can dance with an air debonaire.

Wilma Stone is the girl with the famous marcel
She, too, is an acress, who does very well.

He carries out notes from the office and back.

The Empire Printing Company

shares in the honors and in the pleasure of these awards, for each book was printed by them, bound under their direction and delivery made within the specified limit.

The Empire Printing Company

sincerely appreciates the association with the instructors and the students of the winning books. We are proud of their success and are pleased to know that this year has afforded an added opportunity to aid in this most interesting work.

The Missouri Interscholastic Press Association for the 1927 Year Book Contest awarded to—

The SACHEM — Southwest High School, Kansas City—First—for the best annual in high schools with from 500 to 1,000 enrollment.

The EASTONIAN — East High School, Kansas City—First—for best annual selling for not more than $1.00 in schools with from 500 to 1,000 enrollment.

The BUCCANEER — Northeast Junior High School, Kansas City—First—for best annual in junior high schools, with 1,000 or more enrollment.

Acknowledgments

THE Eastonian staff of East High takes this opportunity to express its appreciation of the assistance given us so freely in the production of our Annual. We are indeed grateful and wish to express our thanks to Mr. Sayles of the Empire Printing Company and Mr. Callahan of the Burger-Baird Engraving Company for their valuable suggestions in regard to the publication of the Eastonian. The individual and faculty pictures were taken by Nicholson studio. All the views of the school and group pictures were taken by Mr. Grube. We wish to thank each of the advertisers for their loyal support. We are deeply indebted to Miss Abbott for art work; Miss Latshaw, Mr. Nichols, and Miss McGloin for literary suggestions; Miss Baker and Mr. Broadlick for circulation and advertising aid. In closing we desire to express our highest appreciation for the work done by Mr. Grube, the general staff adviser, who so willingly and untiringly devoted his time and efforts to the publication of the Eastonian.
