The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that every entry, no matter how small, should be recorded to ensure the integrity of the financial statements. This includes not only sales and purchases but also expenses, income, and any other financial activity. The document also highlights the need for regular reconciliation of accounts to identify any discrepancies early on.

In addition, the document provides a detailed overview of the accounting cycle, which consists of eight steps: identifying the accounting cycle, journalizing, posting, determining debits and credits, preparing a trial balance, adjusting entries, preparing financial statements, and closing the books. Each step is explained in detail, with examples and practical tips to help users understand the process.

The document also covers the preparation of financial statements, including the balance sheet, income statement, and statement of cash flows. It explains how these statements are derived from the accounting records and how they provide a comprehensive view of the company's financial performance and position. The document also discusses the importance of comparing these statements to industry benchmarks and previous periods to assess performance.

Finally, the document provides a summary of the key points discussed and offers some concluding thoughts on the importance of accurate financial reporting. It encourages users to stay up-to-date on the latest accounting practices and to seek professional advice when needed.

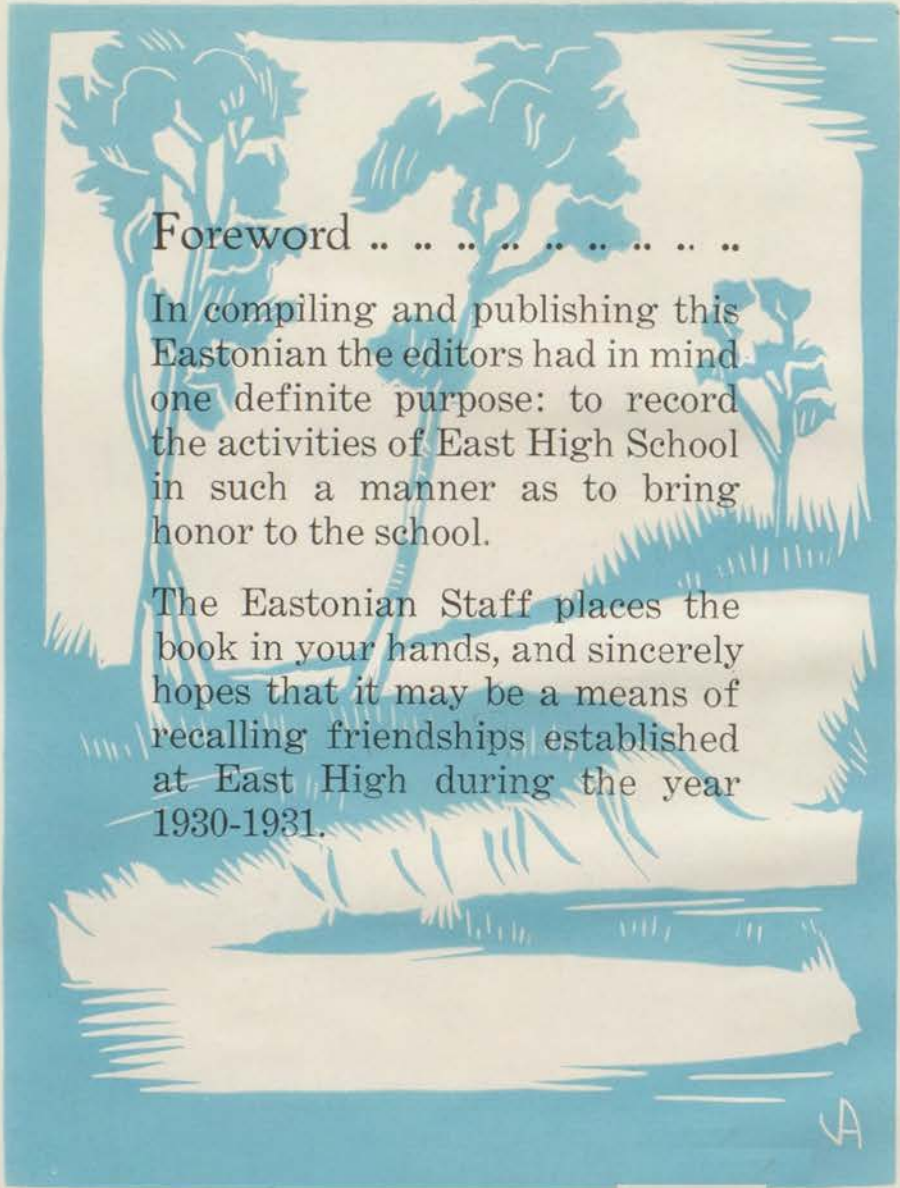

THE

Eastonian

Published by the Students of

East High School

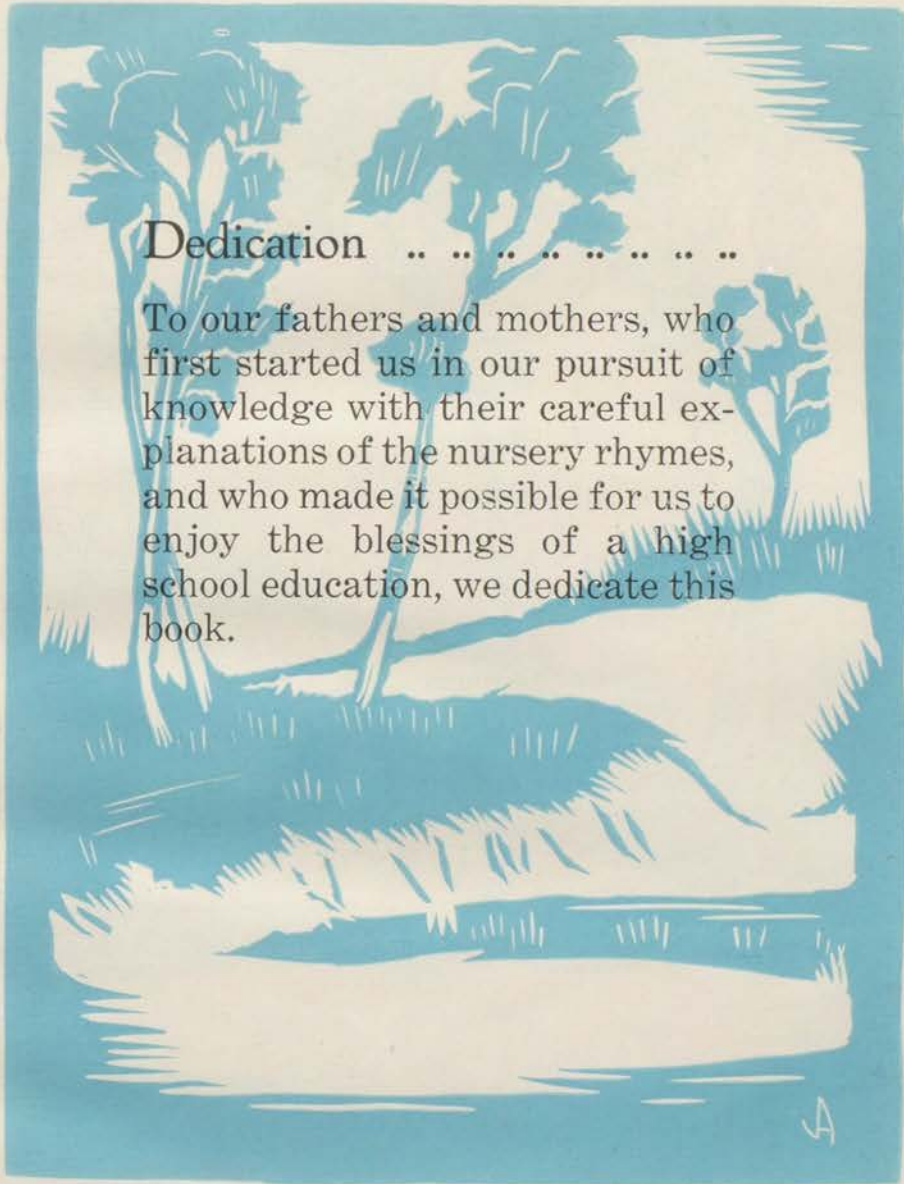

Foreword

In compiling and publishing this Eastonian the editors had in mind one definite purpose: to record the activities of East High School in such a manner as to bring honor to the school.

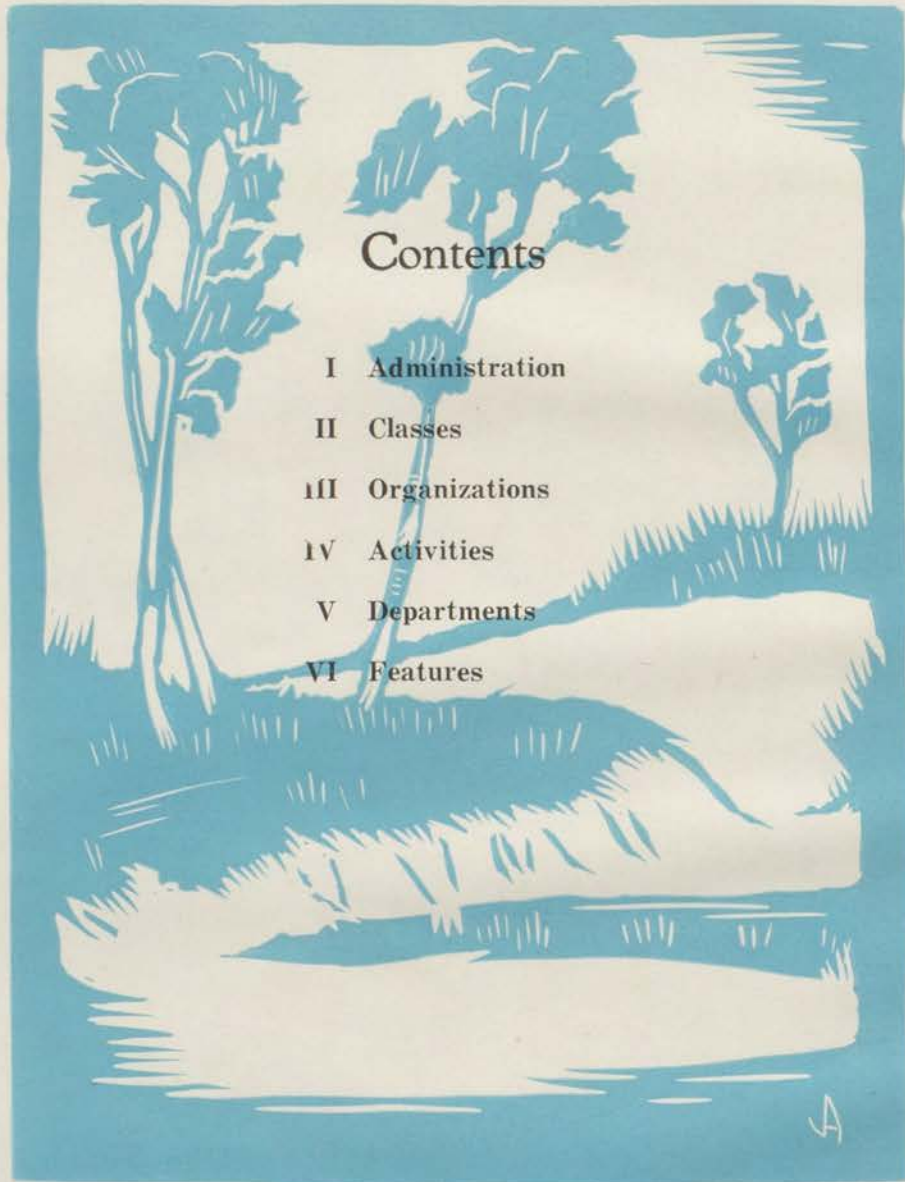

The Eastonian Staff places the book in your hands, and sincerely hopes that it may be a means of recalling friendships established at East High during the year 1930-1931.

LA

Dedication

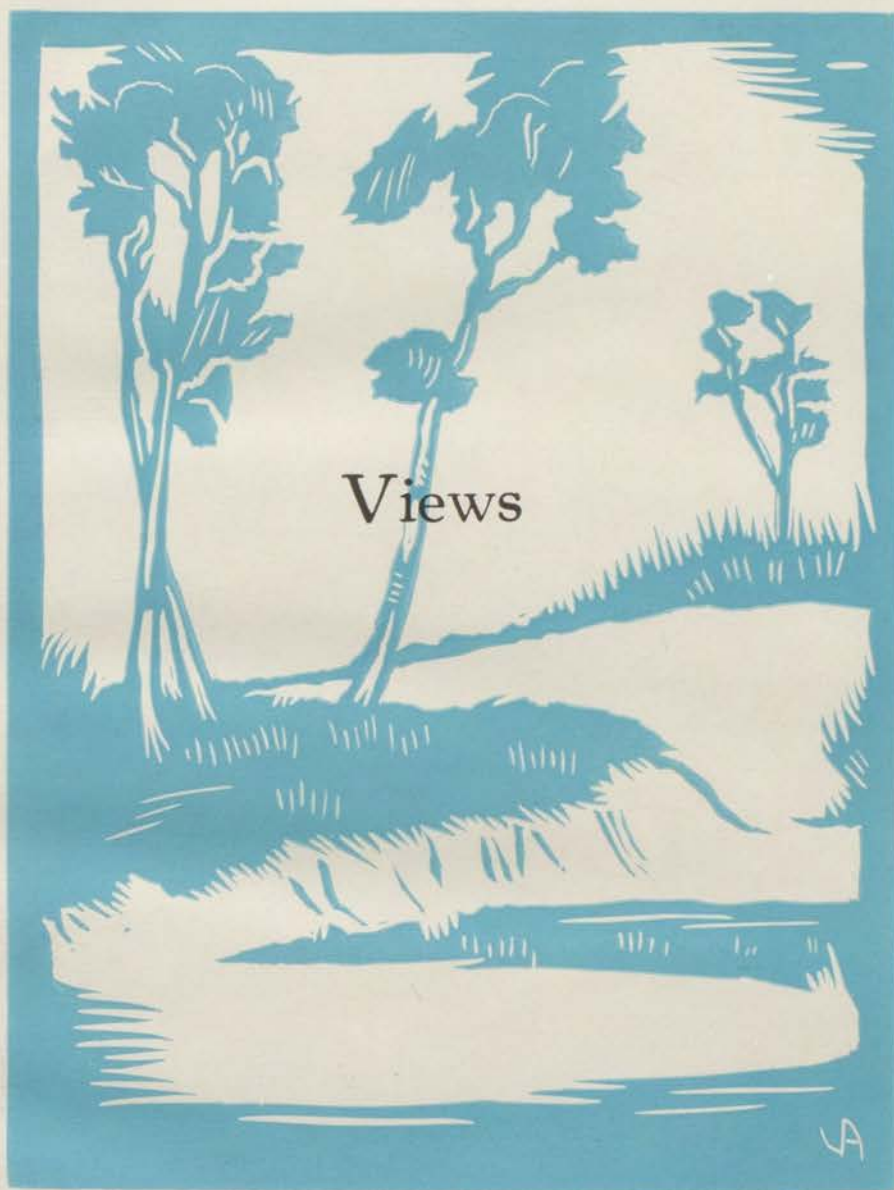

To our fathers and mothers, who first started us in our pursuit of knowledge with their careful explanations of the nursery rhymes, and who made it possible for us to enjoy the blessings of a high school education, we dedicate this book.

REFLECTIONS

In Memoriam

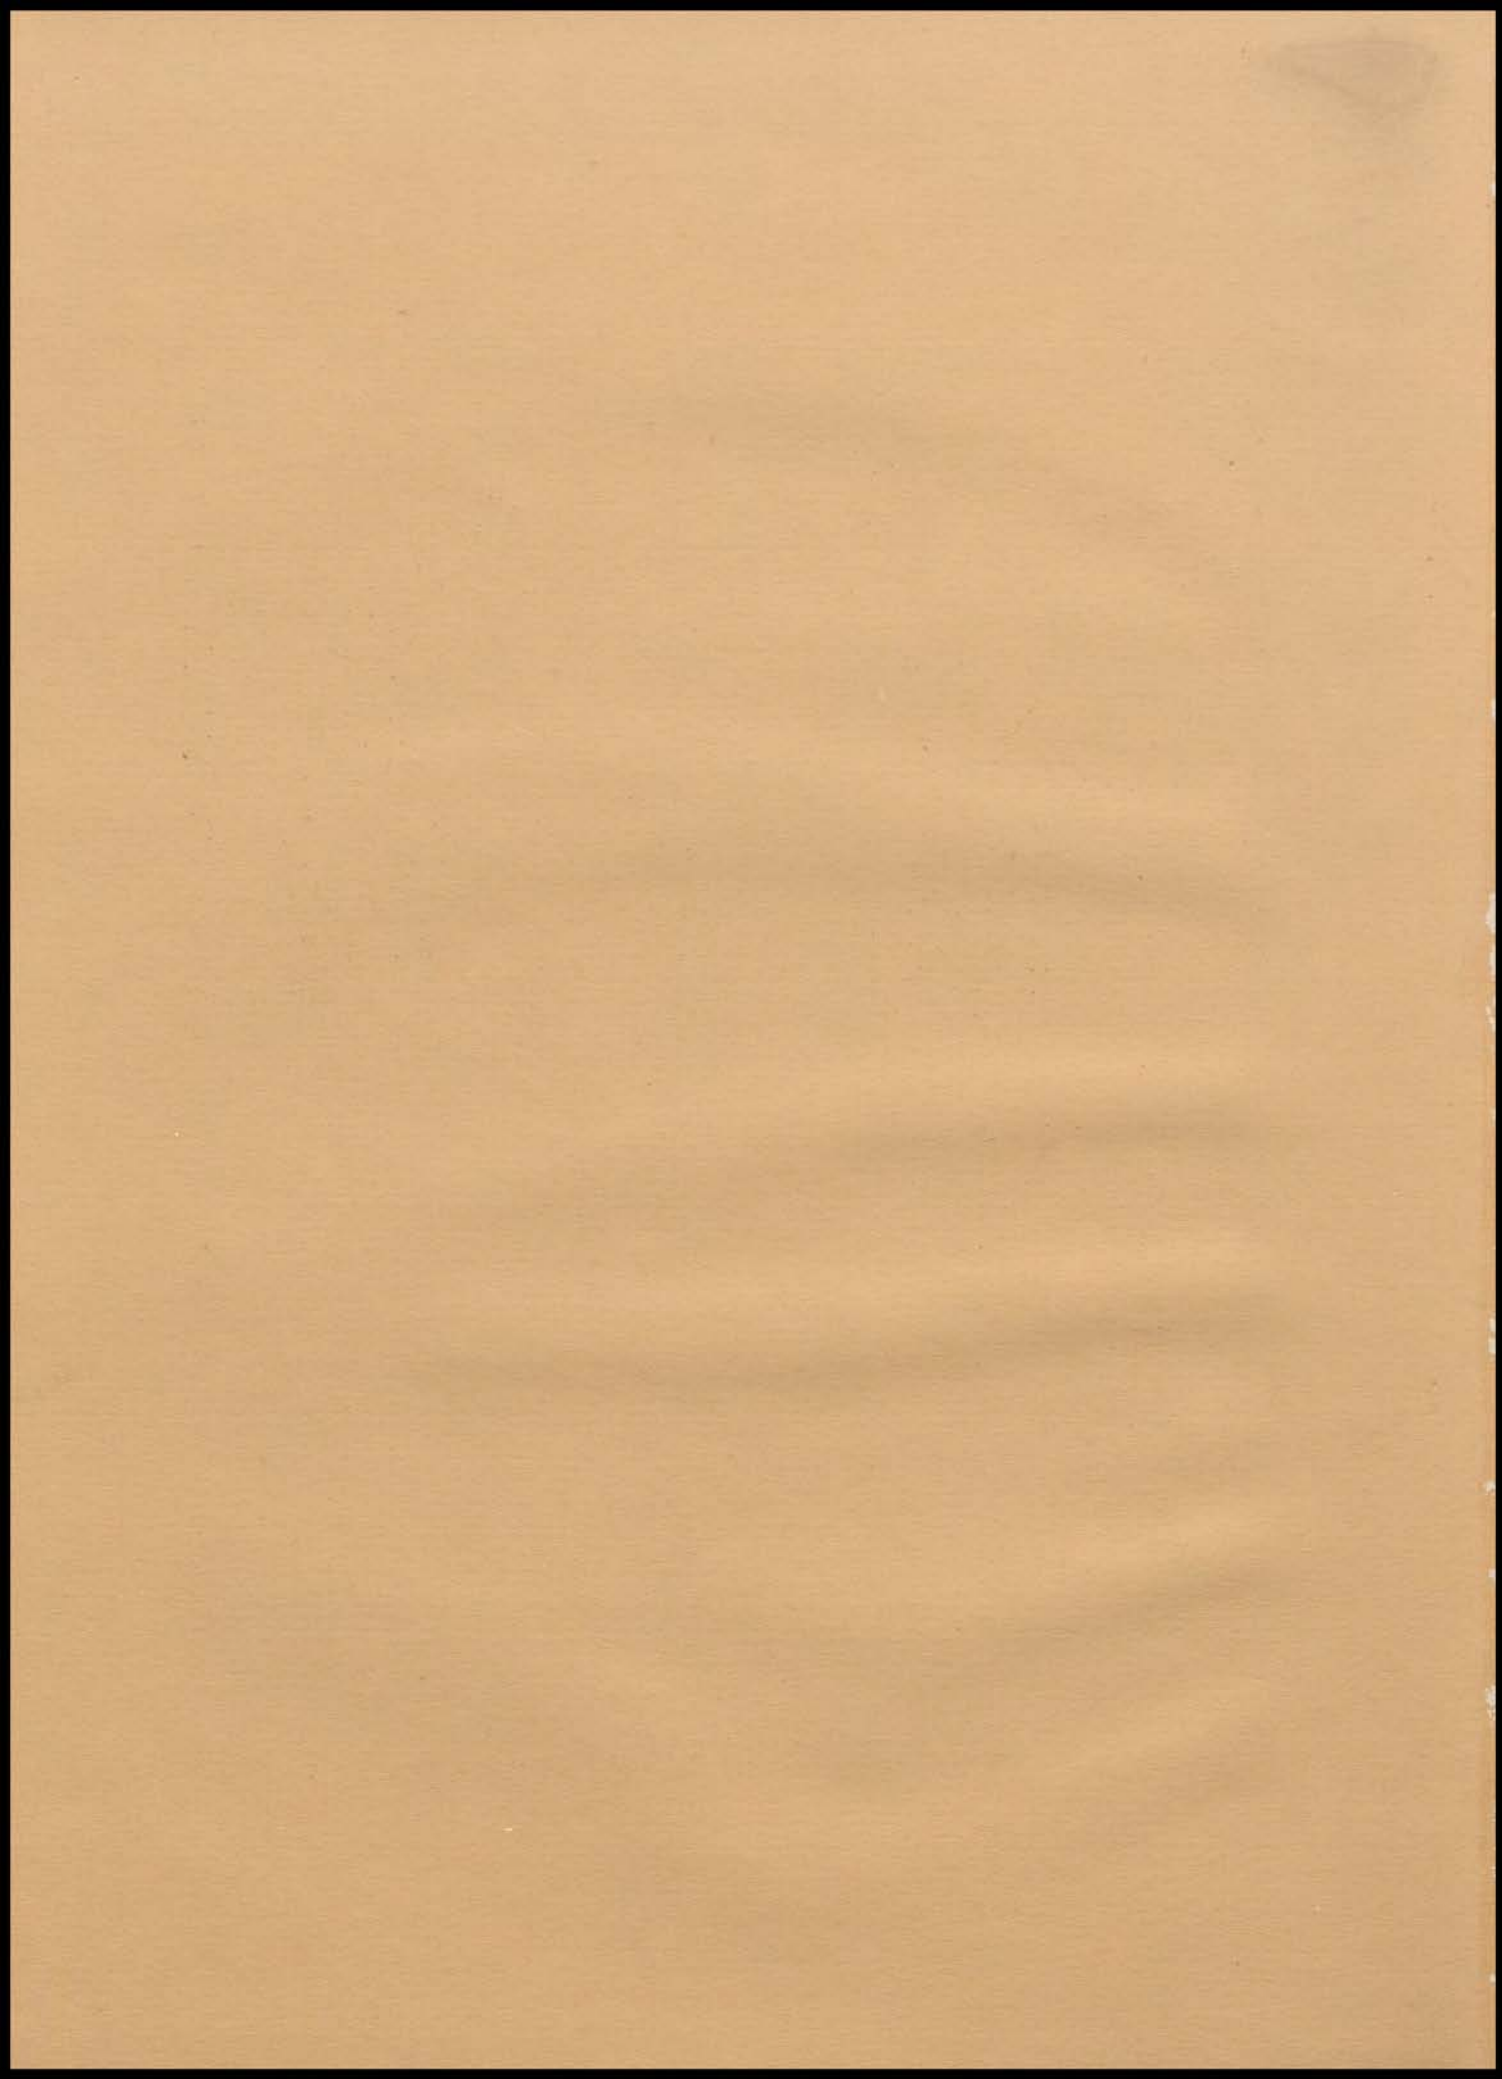

MISS FLORENCE WINGERT.....March 20, 1931

EDWARD BAUERAugust 1, 1931

We wish to show our appreciation for the efforts of two very dear friends of East High who have passed from our midst during the last year. Miss Wingert endeared herself in the hearts of every member of the faculty and student body by her ceaseless endeavors to help others. She always had time to smile and to aid others who were in trouble. Not only was she active in school affairs but also in various activities of the city. Edward Bauer, a promising singer, scholar, and athlete, was a friend to everyone. He had within the scope of his power the determination to do something really worthwhile and had he been given the opportunity he would have triumphed over all obstacles.

Principal

Mr. Nowlin is a priceless asset to our school. He has deeply endeared himself in the hearts of both the faculty and student body of East because of his willingness to aid and comfort those who come to him for advice. The secret of Mr. Nowlin's success is the daily observance of the "Golden Rule."

JOHN R. WAHLSTEDT
Vice-Principal

Mr. Wahlstedt is one of the best examples of the valuable favors that have been bestowed upon this high school. He endeavors to do everything in his power to enable the students to reap the best results from their education. Everyone that comes into his acquaintance honors and respects him.

National Honor Society

The National Honor Society was founded in the high schools throughout the United States in 1924. The East High chapter was established in 1928. This year students of the senior class were chosen by a faculty committee for membership in the society.

To be eligible for membership in this organization, the candidates must rank in the upper twenty-five per cent of the graduating class in scholarship. The faculty may select not more than fifteen per cent of the entire senior class from this upper twenty-five per cent. The selections are based on scholarship, leadership, character, and service.

Figures showing scholarship and extra-curricular honors were compiled by a committee composed of Miss Hiatt, chairman; Mr. Wahlstedt, Miss Gilchrist, and Mr. Tiefel.

Each member receives the emblem of the society, a gold pin in the shape of a keystone with a torch superimposed upon it and bearing the initial letters of the qualities for which the National Honor Society stands—Scholarship, Leadership, Character, and Service.

Class of 1931

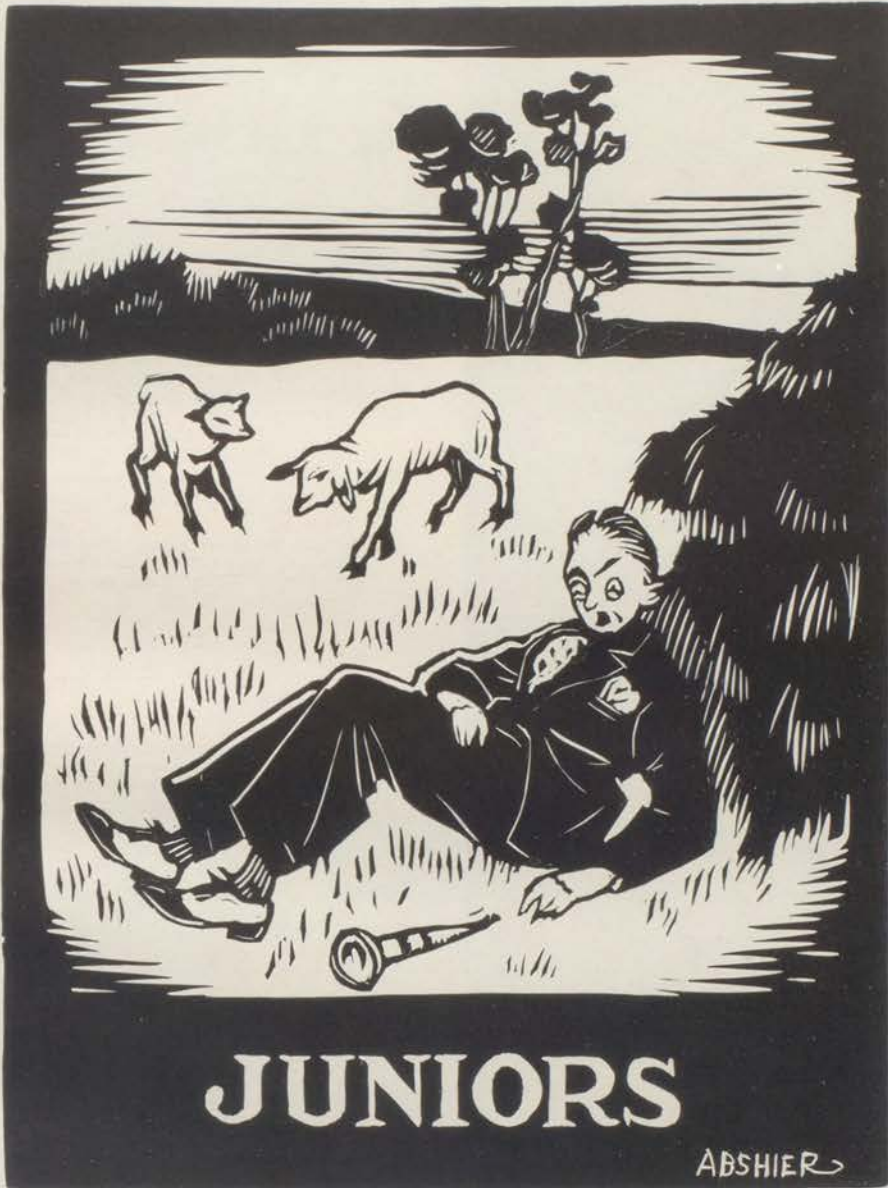

In the year nineteen hundred and twenty-seven a group of boys and girls, having been graduated from the nearby elementary schools and prepared to meet any obstacles that might be encountered in a new phase of education, entered the corridors of East High School. From the moment of their entry, the faculty and upperclassmen were compelled to admit that they showed promise of being very progressive in spite of the fact that they were at that time very young and green "Freshies."

During the freshman, sophomore, and junior years of these youngsters, the older classmen had to call upon them for aid in making a state-champion basketball team, in publishing an exceptionally fine school paper, and in many other important school matters. During their junior year these youngsters adopted a class ring, an idea which no other junior class at East had tried. They gave a Junior-Senior Prom that surpassed any similar affair of the whole year and former years.

These students, having successfully fought their way up to the senior class with many honors, began their last year, determined to carry out their progressive platform to the last degree. They were not satisfied to follow to the very letter the cut and dried policies of former senior classes and, therefore, inaugurated new ones. To begin this progressive platform they chose a new method of electing a senior president. The campaign that followed revealed many outstanding individuals who were seeking the office of class president. The other classes took this as an example and conducted their class elections in the same manner.

The senior class proved its right to be ranked as the outstanding class of the year by producing a city champion football team and an excellent basketball team. Two members of the class were placed on the all-star football team, while one made a similar ranking in basketball. They also gave a remarkable senior play and were leaders in practically every department of the school.

The members of the senior class will conclude their high school careers by receiving their diplomas and bidding all the faculty and the underclassmen an affectionate farewell.

JUNIORS

ROBERT HENEHAN

President

"Bob" was well qualified for the position which he held. His ability to manage a group made him an ideal choice for the office.

GORDON SHUMAKER

Vice-President

The whole school knows Gordon for his energy and friendliness. What more could you want in a fellow?

GENEVA CHAMBERLAIN

Secretary

Her personal charm and faithful work have made Geneva dear not only to the class of 1932 but to all who know her.

KENNETH JONES

Treasurer

Kenneth has shown us that good business judgment and musical ability can go hand in hand. The class of '32 has much for which to thank him.

HUGH NEVINS

Reporter

Hugh's cheerful smile made him a friend of everyone. His ability to write obtained for him the position of class reporter.

MARVIN SILVEY

Sergeant-at-Arms

When the juniors choose Marvin they selected someone who was good-natured and likeable as well as capable.

ALTAMAE BEARD

Gift Receiver

Altamae has proved already that she is more than well qualified for the position of gift receiver by her work in the dramatics department.

Junior Class History

After an interesting and exciting political campaign, the Junior Class met to organize on December 15, 1930, under the leadership of Mr. Nowlin.

The following officers were elected: Robert Henahan, president; Gordon Shumaker, vice-president; Geneva Chamberlin, secretary; Kenneth Jones, treasurer; Glenn Thomson, sergeant-at-arms; Hugh Nevins, reporter; Altamae Beard, gift receiver; Evert Caton, mascot. After the withdrawal of Glenn Thomson from school, the class elected Marvin Silvey to fill the post of sergeant-at-arms.

Mr. Wendell Ryder was chosen class adviser.

The dues were set at one dollar.

A class ring was chosen from rings selected by previous classes.

Plans were made for the Junior-Senior Prom to be held May 22 in the school gymnasium.

SOPHOMORES

RUDOLPH BEISER

President

With a bright smile and cheerful word, Rudolph won the hearts of his classmates; consequently, his class elected him as its leader this year.

EUGENE SEBASTIAN

Vice-President

Judging from his ability to uphold the standards and duties of his class last year, the sophomores thought it fitting to elect Gene as the vice-president. He has done outstanding work on the athletic field this year.

NEDRA DIAMOND

Secretary

Nedra was, indeed, the girl for the office of secretary. Her charm won her friends in all classes of the school.

WILLIAM QUEAR

Treasurer

Initiative and a friendly manner are the outstanding traits of a good treasurer.

LINDELL BRANCH

Reporter

Lindell was well qualified for this position. He was the only sophomore on the East Echo Staff.

JAMES KRATZ

Sergeant-at-Arms

"Bud" is one of the outstanding athletes of the sophomore class. This was, indeed, a position for him.

Sophomore Class

After a week of interesting campaigning, the sophomore class organized, January 8. Rudolph Beiser was chosen to head the class. The other officers elected were: Eugene Sebastian, vice-president; Nedra Diamond, secretary; William Quear, treasurer; James Kratz, sergeant-at-arms; Lindell Branch, reporter, and Dorothy Schupp, mascot. Miss Schoenlein was chosen adviser.

The sophomore class was well represented in athletics, the Literary Contest, Outburst, and Mid-year plays this year.

FRESHMEN

CLIFFORD LEMEN

President

The greatest honor that can be awarded to a freshman came to Clifford. His kind personality and efficiency made him deserving of the honor. The school has found a future leader.

JUNIOR PIERCE

Vice-President

He was a friend of all. His sunny disposition made friends for him everywhere he went.

MARGARET PLASKETT

Secretary

Margaret's cheery smile cast a light over the whole school. Her class was not disappointed when it selected her for this office.

LUCILLE CAHILL

Treasurer

Lucille's winning personality and persistence will win her not only many a dollar but also friends.

NELLIE GRAVINO

Reporter

Having been a leader in the school activities this year, Nellie was thought to be the person to represent the freshman class in this office.

OSCAR ROBERTSON

The Leundis Literary Society has proved its ability by the fact that, in the four years of its existence, the club has won first place twice and tied for first place in the annual Literary contest.

The club, which is an all-girl society, was organized in November, 1926, with these purposes in mind: to promote literary appreciation and to foster higher ideals among its members.

The Leundians gave a tea for the Eulexians, January 30, 1931. The society presented the "Leundian Follies" at the Outburst this year.

Miss Marie Burrus has been one of the club advisers since it was organized. Miss Edith Tarbet, the other adviser, has been with the club for two years.

The Kalailu, "Friendship," Society, is the oldest literary club at East, being organized during the first year of the school, 1927. It is the only boy and girl literary society at East.

The club won the 1928 Literary Contest and tied for first place with the Leundians in the 1929 contest.

The Kalailus organized with these purposes in mind: to create a greater interest in literary works, to further the study of parliamentary law, and to foster a finer spirit of friendship among its members.

The club chose as its motto, "Vera amicitia omnia vincit," true friendship conquers all.

Mr. Garland Nichols is the club adviser. Miss Florence Wingert was also an adviser before her death.

The Hamilton Literary Society, which was organized in February, 1928, is the only all-boy literary club at East.

The club was named in honor of Alexander Hamilton, brilliant soldier and statesman, and the first secretary of the American treasury. Each member of the society has Alexander Hamilton as his ideal, striving in all ways to live up to Hamilton's high standard of literary and parliamentary work.

The colors of the society, like those of the American army in Hamilton's time, are blue and white.

Mr. John Broadlick and Miss Vee Flinn are the advisers.

The Eulexia Literary Society is East's newest literary club, having organized in December, 1929. It is an all-girl society, having as its main purposes the promotion of higher ideals in literature and the social life of the school and the cultivation of a taste for the finer things in life.

Although the club did not place high in the Literary Contest last year, the work of the society has been worthy of commendation.

The club's first social affair was a tea given for the Leundians, September 17, 1930.

Miss Celia Waring is the club adviser.

The Literary Contest

The Leundis Literary Society, with a total of 15 points, won the Fourth Annual Literary Contest which was held in the school auditorium on April 24. This was the second consecutive year that the Leundians have won the contest. The Hamiltons, with only two points separating them from the winners, placed second. The Kalailus and Eulexians tied for third place, each society receiving 9 points. The school-at-large followed with 8 points.

The medals were about evenly distributed between the Leundians and Hamiltons, although all of the groups were rewarded with at least one first or second place. The club costumes and their songs and cheers added color to the scene.

The Archimedian Math and Science Club was formerly the Archimedian Club and the Science Club. Last year the two clubs merged since the subjects in which the clubs are interested are so similar. The result was a more interesting club with an increased membership. Many interesting programs dealing with problems of math and science were presented at the club meetings. Moving pictures, scientific experiments, and discussions tended to create a greater interest in the club.

The Art Club was the first departmental club to organize in East High School. The first meeting was held September 29, 1926.

The purpose of the Art Club is to encourage the study of art and to assist in the activities of the school. The emblem of the club is a tube of paint with the letter "E" on it and a brush behind the tube. The mascot of the club is an orange palette with brushes for legs.

This year the club members made a block print history of Kansas City. The club also made many posters, charcoal drawings, marionettes, and sticker emblems.

The advisers of the club are Miss Martha Abbott and Miss May Farr Hiatt.

The Ciceronian Club was organized in October, 1929, for the purpose of creating a greater interest in the classics. Students who are taking Latin or have taken at least two years of Latin are eligible for membership in the club.

The programs of the club concern the daily life of the Romans. An attempt is made to introduce the customs of Rome to the members in such a way that ancient customs may be compared to those of modern times. Mr. Nowlin has addressed the club several times with tales of Greek and Roman myths.

The club is one of the largest departmental clubs in the school. There are approximately fifty members at the present time.

A Junior Glee Club was organized at East for the first time this year. The club is composed of freshmen boys, with the exception of a few upperclassmen. The club sang in the Music Festival with the junior high chorus.

Mrs. Carrie Margaret Caldwell is the adviser of the club.

The Student Council was organized in the year 1926 in order to secure a closer co-operation between the faculty and the student body.

During the year 1930-1931 the Student Council accomplished many outstanding things. The Council purchased and presented to the school an oil painting, "The Shadowed Wharf," by Miss Delle Miller.

The Student Council sponsored an upper-class mixer, under-class mixer, and an all-school Christmas mixer. At the Christmas Mixer silver tokens bearing the school emblem were presented to the students who attended.

The Council sponsored "East in the Movies" at the Outburst this year. The Student Council gave East handbooks to all freshmen this year.

Miss Minnie Baker is the adviser.

ACTIVITIES

AESHER

MISS EVA VAN NATTA

EVA GOODALL

In reviewing the fifth season of dramatics at East, nothing seems more indicative of success of the productions than the large attendance. Although East does not have an auditorium and adequate stage equipment, the dramatics department enacted the plays in such a way that the patrons overlooked the insufficient equipment.

The Dramatics department, under the direction of Miss Eva Van Natta, presented three dramatic productions this year, namely: the Midyear Plays which consisted of "One Egg" by Babbette Hughes, "Mazie" by Ruth Giorloff, and "The Vanishing Princess" by John Golden; at the Outburst the department presented "Aunt Jane's Accident" in the main show, and the Senior Play, "Kempy," by J. C. Nugent and Elliott Nugent.

The Dramatics department offers three years of preparatory work; expression, advanced expression, and public speaking. The course instructs students in parliamentary law, debate, oratory, extemporaneous speaking, and declamation. From these classes students are selected to produce plays and also to represent the school in various oratorical contests.

Miss Eva Goodall was the East representative in the Star Oratorical Contest which was held in Convention Hall, April 11. The other finalists at East this year were Paul Ireland, Edward Kuhn, and Draper Jennings.

Midyear Plays

The midyear plays, a group of three one-act plays presented annually by the students of East High, were enacted on Friday and Saturday nights, November 28 and 29, in the school auditorium.

The plays chosen were "One Egg," a farce by Babette Hughes; "Maizie," a tragedy by Ruth Giorloff, and "The Vanishing Princess," a fantasy by John Golden.

The scene of the play "One Egg," was laid in a restaurant where a young man was attempting to write a vaudeville sketch before eating breakfast. An attractive young woman entered and, seeing that she was in some difficulty because the waiter refused to serve her one egg instead of two, the young man kindly offered to order the extra egg. Later they found out that they knew each other. A great many difficulties followed but finally they were overcome.

"Maizie," the tragedy, concerned a young woman who had grown tired of the monotony of a man who, in his efforts to make good in the world, spent most of his time pouring over his books. During a scene in which John, the young husband, tried to make his wife see his point of view, Molly, their child, was killed by a truck while she was playing in the street.

"The Vanishing Princess" was a fantasy, which portrayed the story of Matinka, the old magician who was saved from the wrath of Mr. I-Say, the new landlord, by the fortunate arrival of his son. The son, otherwise known as the King, promptly fell in love with Cindy, the young girl who was taking care of Matinka. The troublesome landlord was made to disappear by the magician. The King, the princess, and Matinka all enjoyed a happy Christmas Eve.

The casts were under the direction of Miss Eva Van Natta.

Senior Play

The annual senior play was presented in the school auditorium on Friday and Saturday nights, March 27 and 28. "Kempy," a three-act comedy by J. C. Nugent and Elliot Nugent was the production. Miss Eva Van Natta directed the cast. The play abounded in humor, excitement, and love, and was received enthusiastically by large audiences on both nights.

Katherine Bence, who is full of lofty aims, had a quarrel with her sweetheart, "Duke" Merrill, a family friend. "Kempy" James, the "plumber-hero" comes to repair a water pipe in the Bence home. Once, in the Y. M. C. A., he had read "Angie's Temptation" written by Katherine Bence, and he had resolved to marry the girl who had written the book. Kate meets "Kempy" at her home and finding out what he intended to do asks him to marry her to spite "Duke." They elope in the afternoon. Later Kate realizes that she loves "Duke," and after many complications the marriage to "Kempy" is annulled. "Kempy" pairs off with Ruth, Kate's youngest sister, whom he has adored from the first; while "Duke" and Kate are happily reunited, and "Dad" and "Ma" Bence plan their trip to California.

SENIOR PLAY

The Fifth Annual Outburst

The Outburst, in which each department of the school takes part either in the main show or the numerous side shows, was held on the nights of March 6 and 7. Not only does this entertainment provide pleasure and entertainment for the students and patrons of the school, but it also increases the school funds.

The auditorium was filled to capacity during the main performances this year.

Aladdin's genius of the lamp, played by Ridenour Parrent, produced many wonderful things in the main show for Aladdin, Ferrel Heady, to see. America with all its curiosities and unfamiliar things was transported to the Orient for Aladdin to see. He saw a tap dance, "Wouldn't It Be Wonderful," by Virginia Miller; a playlet of family life, "Aunt Jane's Accident"; Clifford Lemen singing a love song to Marguerite Wolfe, and the Darktown Jubilee Singers from Dixie.

The Jubilee Singers were: Doris Bates, Bernice Barlow, Nelda Collins, Dorothy Fletcher, Helen Ganzer, Gladys Hanna, Grace Brown, Marie, Corazzin, Alys Lehrack, Hazel McKee, Ethel Ribakoff, Mary Skaggs, Frances Smith, Laurie Worsham, John Casey, Gilbert Callicotte, John Frantz, Theodore Fehrenbach, Mark Green, Stewart Kistler, Bill Knowles, Albert Millard, William Stepp, Emerald Schroder, LeRoy Twitty, and Joe Wilson.

The singers gave a medley of negro songs. Virginia Stilts sang a solo, "When a Black Man's Blue." Ina Virginia Proctor danced. The girls' quartette, Dorothy Jean Gamble, Inez Jones, Nedra Diamond, and Frances Parish, sang "Heav'n." John (Sonny) Grogan gave "Dreamin' In De Twilight."

T. A. Parker and James Gunn played a banjo duet, "Bye, Bye, Blues." Bill Wilkison sang "Land of the Yaks," while Bill Coleman played the part of the yak. The boys' quartette, Theodore Fehrenbach, Bill Wilkison, Clarence Lucas, and Bob Clarkson, sang "Down Mobile" and "Kentucky Babe."

Gertie Ribakoff read a humorous selection, "Uh, Uh, Not Me!" Virginia Williams and Dorothy Jean Gamble sang a duet, "I Never Had a Mammy."

Merl Day played "St. Louis Blues" on the accordion and accompanied Jesse Anderson's tap dance, "Crying Myself To Sleep." The Jubilee Singers sang "Dem Golden Slippers" as a finale.

The East High Orchestra and Band played under the direction of Mr. Wendell M. Ryder. Virginia Jones was the accompanist for the singing and dancing.

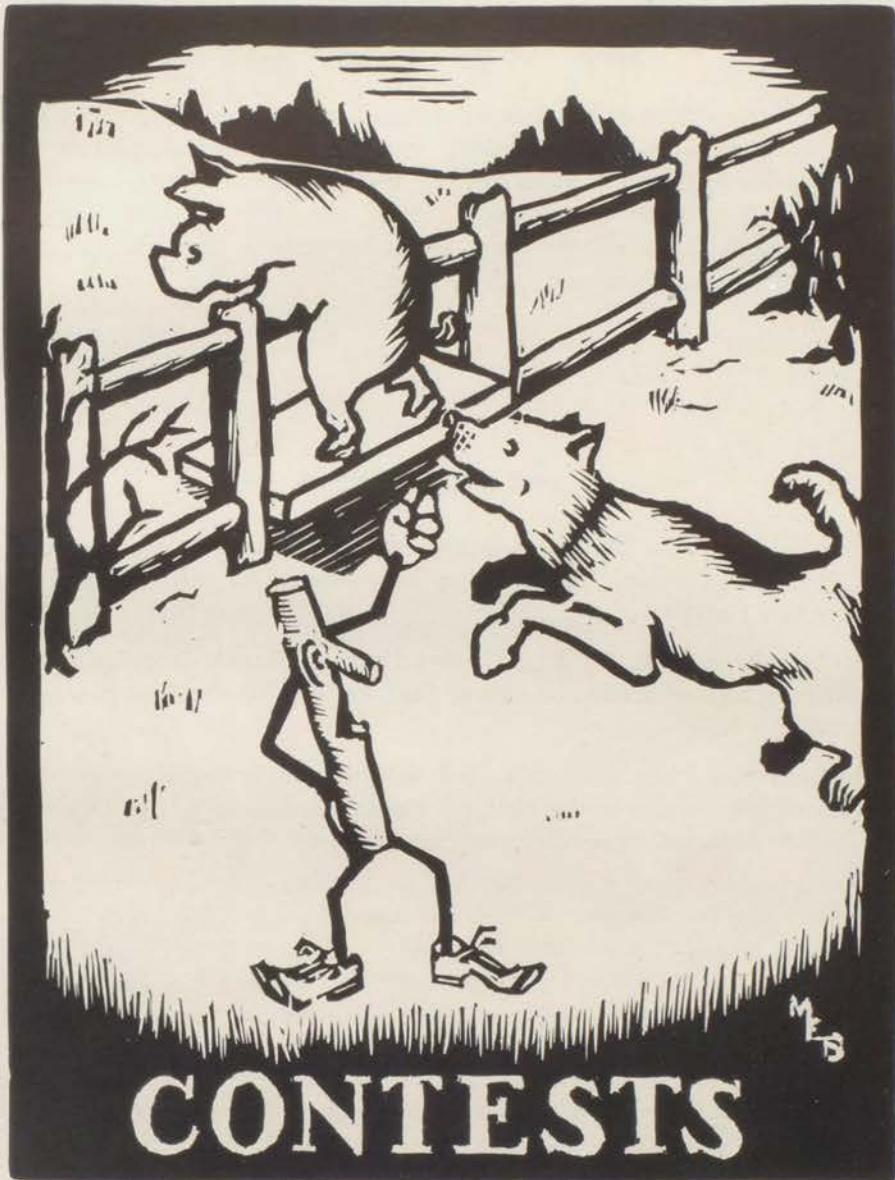

The side shows were Tarzan, Leundian Follies, Humanettes, East in the Movies, Madame Queen's Beauty Parlor, Gypsy Caravan, Popularity Contest, Before and After, Pup Tent Special, Shooting Gallery, and Doll Rack.

THE OUTBURST

Drawing Honor List

The Drawing Honor List is composed of art students under the supervision of Miss Martha Abbott. Nine students were designated for this honor this year because of their excellent work in drawing and their service to the school and the department. The students who were named are Jack Abshier, Melvin Beyer, Gilbert Callicotte, Elvena Duderstadt, Helen Henderson, Bernard McCarty, John Messenger, Carolyn Thompson, Jack Wallace.

Art Contests

Jack Wallace won first place in the Outburst poster contest this year; John Messenger placed second, and Carolyn Thompson, Jack Abshier, and Bernard McCarty tied for third place.

In the city-wide R. O. T. C. Poster Contest, Frances Engel placed fourth. Jack Abshier was selected to make the linoleum cut for the first place poster in this contest.

Bernard McCarty '32 and Hubert Lowman, a student at East last year, were given honorable mention in the National Scholastic contest held in Pittsburgh this year. Their work will be exhibited in that city.

State Typing and Press Contests

The annual University of Missouri High School Day contest for second year typing students was held in Columbia, Missouri, May 1, 1931. East High was the only Kansas City high school entering the contest. Marian Shelton received third place.

In the Missouri Interscholastic Press Association contest for high school and junior high school papers Hazel Lee Steffee received third place for a news story.

Music Festival

The annual Music Festival was held in Convention Hall on April 10, 1931. Seven thousand elementary and high school students participated in the event. Mr. Howerton of Westport directed the High School Choral and Glee Clubs.

The East freshman girls' music class sang with the Junior High School girls' choir. The Junior Glee Club sang with the Junior High School Boys' Glee Club.

Music Contest

East won fourth place in the annual Music Contest held in the Westport Junior High School auditorium, March 14. Westport placed first in the event.

The winners from East were: William Wilkison, tenor, second; Inez Jones, mezzo soprano, third; Robert Stockwell, bass, third; Boys' Quartette, Theodore Fehrenbach, William Wilkison, Clarence Lucas, Merl Day, second place.

The other contestants who did not place were: Clarence Lucas, Frances Parish, Verna McGlynn; triple trio composed of Dorothy Ferguson, Edna Marie Lindstedt, Helen Wolff, Nedra Diamond, Frances Parish, Alice Solsberg, Dorothy Jean Gamble, Elizabeth Milhauser, and Mary Jane O'Connell; and double mixed quartette, Inez Jones, Verna McGlynn, Dorothy Jean Gamble, Elizabeth Milhauser, Merl Day, Joseph Murphy, Clifford Lemen, Theodore Fehrenbach.

BOYS' ATHLETICS

J. C. COHLMAYER

Coach

East's diminutive mentor was all that one could ask for in the coaching line. A fine student of all competitive athletics, an exponent of sportsmanlike conduct, a glowing personality with efficiency as his goal. Coach Cohlmeier was an ideal coach.

EDWARD THELEN

Assistant Coach

This genial young man who was in charge of the reserve material and the track team did his work well. He handled the boys efficiently and was another booster of sportsmanlike spirit.

B. W. McDANIEL

Manager

East's "financial wizard" made athletics a paying proposition this year with his never tiring work. No other school can boast of a more efficient athletic manager.

CHARLES WITT

Football Captain

"Chuck" was undoubtedly one of the best leaders that East's teams have had. He had every quality that it takes to make a great leader and had a strong influence on his teammates. He was the city's most outstanding player and captain of the All-Star aggregation.

GEORGE LIGHT-THEODORE BURTON

Basketball Co-Captains

Two boys possessed with the determination to win that able leaders must have were captains of the Basketball team this year. Both were good players in their respective positions. They aided the coach by keeping up the morale of the team. Their steady play brought praise from the critics.

ADOLPH STOUP-DEAN PIERCE

Track Co-Captains

The Bears' track captains were willing, hard workers and both were leaders in their line of competition. Such captains are not found every day.

HERBERT HACHENBERG-RUDOLPH BEISER

Student Managers

These two boys held down difficult positions most efficiently. The duty the boys performed in handling athletic equipment took a great amount of worry from the coach.

CHARLES WITT

Captain, Guard—Senior

"Chuck" was an inspiration to the entire team, not only on the field of play but on the practice field. His ability as a leader and a player was recognized, as he was chosen captain and most outstanding player on the all-star team.

MARVIN SILVEY

Fullback—Junior

Captain-elect "Mott" was 145 pounds of concentrated dynamite. Whenever a yard was needed Silvey was the man for the job. His ability in backing up the line and his line-plunging made him an almost certain choice for the all-stars.

GEORGE LIGHT

Halfback—Senior

"Sparkie" was a triple threat man. His well aimed passes, his remarkably placed kicks, and his ball carrying ability, plus his generalship, made him the "Carideo of the league."

ROBERT HENEHAN

Quarterback—Junior

"Bob" was a continual threat because of his elusiveness in dodging tacklers. He returned punts very consistently and played a good defensive game. Another boost for a good team in 1931.

CARL BLAINE

Guard, Tackle—Junior

Carl was another first year man possessed with that "old fighting spirit." He played steady football and sometimes his play was exceptionally brilliant. He is a boost for our team next year.

JOHN EASTIN

End—Senior

This was John's first year to wear a football suit, but he developed into a valuable man. While not outstanding on defense, he was responsible for long gains because he could snag long passes.

DEAN PIERCE

Center—Senior

His name in the line-up brought grief to his opponents. He was undoubtedly the best center East has ever produced and one of the best that has graced the all-star column in several years. His ability to sense plays and to break them up brought him the name of "East's Roaming Center."

RILEY McCANN

Tackle—Senior

Riley was 200 pounds of real football ability. His smashing work on the offense opened many holes through which much yardage was gained by the ball luggers.

JOHN MURPHY

End—Sophomore

"Johnnie" wasn't a regular until the latter part of the season, being shifted from a sub-guard position to right end. His play was of the highest caliber for the little experience that he had at the wing position. He was a deadly tackler and should develop into a threat on the offense. He will be a big help next year.

THEODORE BURTON

End—Senior

"Ted's" fighting spirit and the "old will to win" made him a threat to the opposition. He was a demon tackler and developed into a good offensive end. He also saw service in the backfield.

BUFORD KELLOGG

Guard—Senior

"Boots" was aggressive on offensive and a stone wall on the defense. He was admired because of his ability in "smearing" plays before they were under way. His play in the championship game with Southwest was the high spot in his football career.

ADOLPH STOUP

Halfback—Senior

"Abe" was East's big offensive punch. His ability in "smearing" end runs was a high spot, as were his end runs. East will miss him.

EUGENE SEBASTIAN
Quarterback—Sophomore

"Gene" was small but was Coach's handy man. He could call signals well, and his calmness was ever present. The team functioned well with "Gene" at the helm. He should be a valuable man in the future.

GLENN THOMSON
Tackle—Junior

"Pete," although this was his first year on the team, was nevertheless a good tackler. Big, powerful, and aggressive, he stopped many a thrust at his side. He could be depended upon to take care of his man.

J. C. COHLMAYER
Coach

Football Season

EAST 34—LAFAYETTE 0

In the first game of the season East ran rough-shod over the inexperienced team from Saint Joseph. Scoring in every quarter, East showed surprising ability as an offensive team. The defense also was superb.

EAST 0—WESTPORT 0

The Bears and the Bengals fought valiantly to chalk up a score, but to no avail. With two powerful backs on the injury list, East gave the Tigers the fight of their lives.

EAST 25—NORTHEAST 7

With Stoup in fine form East sank the Viking ship with little difficulty. The line played splendid football, making holes through which our backs gained consistently. Incidentally, Northeast was the only team to score on the Bears in the League campaign.

EAST 0—ROCKHURST 35

With nearly every regular on the side lines recovering from injuries, the Bears were crushed badly by the south side aggregation. The score does not indicate the hard fought game that it was.

EAST 25—MANUAL 0

Still using a revamped line-up, East came back to beat the Crimson, meeting little opposition. Every member performed above the average, in a rough-shod victory over Manual.

EAST 0—CENTRAL 0

In their second scoreless contest East showed well, although using several injured players. Central gained more yardage than did the Bears, but when the Blue Eagles got into scoring position, the green and black defense held.

EAST 19—PASEO 0

The Bears evened an old score with the Pirates by crushing them with a late attack. Although held scoreless in the first half, the Bears came back strong in a last period attack which bewildered the spectators.

EAST 6—SOUTHWEST 0

In the last game of the season for the league championship, the Bears showed real football ability over the highly lauded Southwest even. Although the Indians were heavy favorites, East had the ball in their territory throughout the contest. A quick pass, Light to Burton, brought the coveted prize to East after five years of hard fighting.

Henchan, Reed, Stoup, Alexander, Eastin, Burton, Dennis, Light, Pierce, Silvey.

First Team Basketball

East's fifth year of competition found the Bears finishing in a tie with Manual for third place in the Interscholastic League.

Although the team possessed some fine athletes, the boys could not hit a winning stride. They played several games which brought back memories of a year and two years back.

The schedule was long and hard, but the team kept a high morale, a thing which sometimes is lacking in teams that suffer defeat.

Four victories and five defeats is not an impressive record, but it uncovered unknown talents of the boys who will return next year.

GEORGE LIGHT

Co-Captain, Forward—Senior

Light was undoubtedly the most polished player on the hall floor. When other members of the team played badly, George continued to play high class ball. His cleverness and scoring ability was never underestimated by the opposing guards.

TED BURTON

Co-Captain, Guard—Senior

Ted's fighting spirit was ever present. He developed into one of the best defensive men in the league. His guarding in the Southwest game was a high-light in his career.

ADOLPH STOUP

Center, Guard, Forward—Senior

"Ade" was the handy man of the club, being equally effective at either guard, forward, or center. His scoring punch and speed bordered on the sensational type.

ROBERT ALEXANDER

Center, Guard—Junior

Bob was a reserve at the first of the season, but he developed into a good player before the season was ended. He has the height and practical knowledge of the game and should be a big help next year.

WARD REED

Forward—Junior

Ward was another reserve who became a first team man before the season was well under way. Reed was a clever performer on the floor and had a good eye for the basket.

MARVIN SILVEY

Guard—Junior

Although not large in stature, Marvin made up this by his fighting play and fine cooperative spirit. He played well when he was put into the line-up.

ROBERT HENEHAN

Guard—Junior

Big things are predicted for Bob next year on the court. A cool, calculating type who, with a little more scoring ability, will be a help for next year's club.

DEAN PIERCE

Guard—Senior

Although not playing up to his standard because of a late football injury, Dean showed good basketball ability. His ability to handle the ball made him a threat to the opposing team.

JOHN EASTIN

Center—Senior

John, although he did not play often, played a fine game when he was put into the line-up. His height made him valuable on rebounds.

HARRY DENNIS

Forward—Senior

"Spike" was a reserve forward whose good qualities were known by the coach. When he entered the game he played well and was a big threat from the scoring angle.

Basketball Season

ALUMNI 37—EAST 9

The Bears encountered stiff competition from the "grads," who played like the East team of old. Many men saw service for the alumni, and every reserve saw action for the Bruins. Quinn led the scoring with sixteen points.

WYANDOTTE 14—EAST 6

Although the Bears played a better brand of basketball than they did against the alumni team, the Bulldogs won by eight points. The feature of the game was the defensive tactics of both clubs. Most of the goals were scored from afield.

WESTPORT 17—EAST 29

Displaying a brand of basketball above par, the Bears trimmed the Tigers with ease. Passing and hitting the basket with unerring regularity, the Bears won as they chose. Light garnered eleven points for scoring honors.

NORTHEAST 30—EAST 10

The Vikings played the Bears off their feet on their way to the championship. The Vikings, playing "above the heads" of the East boys, found little opposition in the Bears. The verdict was never in doubt.

MANUAL 17—EAST 16

In one of the most hair-raising games the Hall has ever witnessed the strong Crimson team won from the Bears by a single point. The teams were tied at the half, but Manual pulled away and it looked as if the game were sewed up. A late East rally fell short by one point.

CENTRAL 8—EAST 21

The Bears had little difficulty in turning back Central. Making the Blue Eagles play the game, the Bears won easily. Light and Stoup led the attack.

PASEO 19—EAST 11

This game found the Bears at a low ebb and the Buccaneers snatched the game. Paseo did some exceptionally fine shooting from the center of the floor and steadily pulled away from the Bears after the intermission. The Bears had numerous opportunities but failed to take advantage of them.

ST. JOE LAFAYETTE 4—EAST 26

Again the Bruins showed their followers that they were capable of playing a high brand of basketball. Their defense was almost perfect and their offense was brilliant. Light and Stoup led the attack with twelve and eight points respectively.

SOUTHWEST 16—EAST 33

East played its best basketball in the league finale, defeating the Indians from Southwest. Burton held Singer, the league's high scorer, without a point, while Light made eighteen points. Stoup added nine more.

WESTPORT 16—EAST 12

In the district tournament East was eliminated by a fighting band of Tigers in the first round. Westport obtained an early lead and was able to keep it, although East came within four points of victory. The Bears play was listless as they rang down the curtain for the year 1930-1931.

Track Squad

In East's second year of track competition the prospects were not bright for a winning team, but the boys sprang several surprises. With an inadequate practice field as a handicap the boys worked hard and possessed a fine spirit. Adolph Stoup and Dean Pierce were the co-captains of the squad. Mr. Thelen coached the boys very capably.

Second Team Basket Ball

The reserve squad, which was instructed by Coach Thelen, showed possibilities of rounding into a good ball club. They not only furnished stiff competition for the regulars but they worked hard in learning the fundamentals of the game. Several of the boys show great possibilities for a champion team in the future.

Their work as "scrubs" must be admired.

Winners of Gold E's

The girls' physical education department has shown splendid teamwork in its baseball, endball, and volleyball games under the excellent coaching of Miss Hazel Roads and Miss Rose Segelbaum.

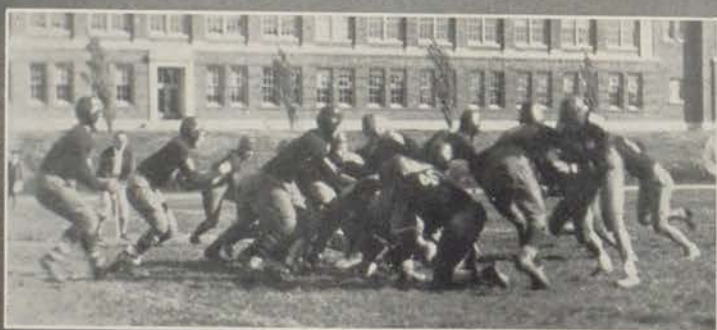

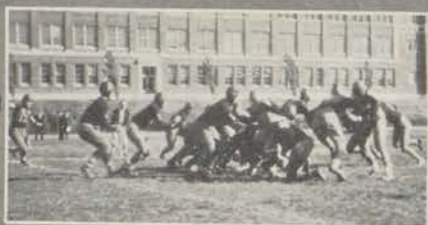

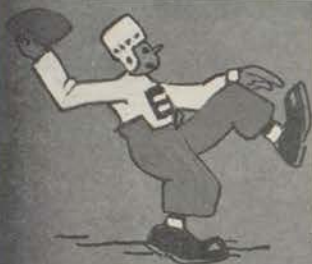

Twice a week the girls made a beneficial study of First Aid.

Folk dancing and tap dancing were taken up by the members of the department this year. A "snappy" tap dance was exhibited at the R. O. T. C. Circus.

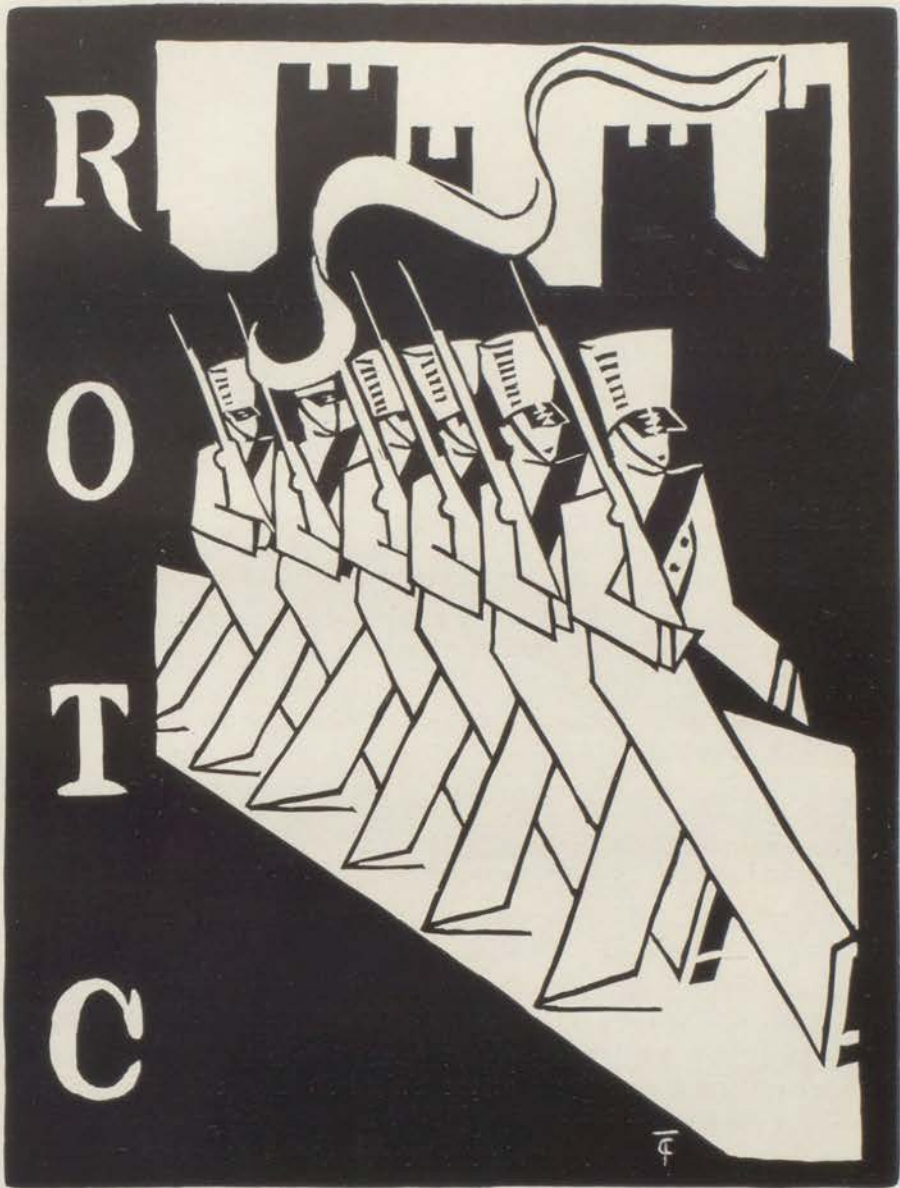

Miss Roads has made it possible for the girls to earn athletic awards by a point system. The points required for each award are:

	Points		Team Points
Small Letter E	40	plus	20
Large Letter E	70	plus	30
Pilloy Top	110	plus	40
Gold E Pin	150	plus	50

The gold pin is awarded to Seniors only. The winners of pins this year are: Mary Grace Honeyman, Eloise Edwin, Gladys Hanna, Laurie Worsham, Marian Shelton, Sarah Green, Maxine Burke, and Grace Gaba.

1930
CHAMPS

SGT. J. T. JENKINS

MAJOR WILBUR SIMCOE

Reserve Officers Training Corps

The East High unit of R. O. T. C. is composed of three companies whose total enrollment is 163. The three periods of drill under the instruction of Sergeant James T. Jenkins are held every day during the second, fourth, and fifth hours.

The purpose of the R. O. T. C. is to instruct the boys in character building, respect for the law, and physical training.

The R. O. T. C. has won many honors this year. In the Corps Area Rifle Match, East had the two high point men, Richard Bruce and Richard Branch, the winners of the gold and silver medals.

The rifle team won first place and the Leacock trophy in the five-state rifle match held February 21 at the Kemper Military Academy, Boonville, Missouri. Richard Branch was high point man in this meet. The members of the team were: Richard Branch, Richard Bruce, Kenneth Jones, and Harry Haase.

The team placed third in the interscholastic matches of Kansas City. A third place trophy was awarded to them.

East was well represented in the two outstanding matches of the year. Eight men were selected for the Corps Area match and four for the National matches.

The East High Rifle Team placed fourth in the Hearst Trophy Match in which all high school rifle teams of the United States participated. There were 422 teams entered in the match.

Richard Branch placed eighth in the Seventh Corps Area Rifle Match.

Jennings Johnson and Richard Branch placed third in the city in the annual Theoretical Test.

The crack company last year, under command of Captain Arthur Veits, won the third place trophy for company drill in the city.

The East battalion was represented by calisthenic drills at the R. O. T. C. Circus held at Convention Hall, April 17.

FEATURES

Senior Will

We, the Senior Class of 1931 of East High School of Kansas City, Jackson County, State of Missouri, being of sound mind and short memory, do make, publish, and declare this to be our last will and testament, to-wit:

First—If absolutely unavoidable, all our just debts shall be paid from what money (if any) we have in the treasury.

Second—We do bequeath, deed, and devise to all future students of East High the new addition so that they may enjoy its classrooms, roam its spacious halls, assemble in its auditorium, and ditch its study halls, if it is ever built.

To our friends, the juniors, the campus upon which they may play golf, dig dandelions, and park their dogs and other pets.

To the science department all test tubes that have survived long and hard usage by Jane Darling and Winnie Miller, all left-over grasshoppers, dead or alive, that we have secured in our field trips.

To the freshmen and sophomores our most treasured volumes, "True Tales of Hunting and Fishing," by our favorite author, Mr. Esther.

To the geometry classes our bent compasses and protractors (they may be helpful).

To the freshmen our study hall day dreams.

To the members of the faculty the memory of our cunning ways, charming manners, sweet tempers, helpfulness, eager, blank or bored faces, and clever remarks.

Third—We do nominate and appoint Mr. Nowlin and Miss Baker to be the executors of this will and testament, hereby revoking all former wills by us made.

In witness whereof, we hereunto set our hands and seal this 5th day of June, A. D. 1931.

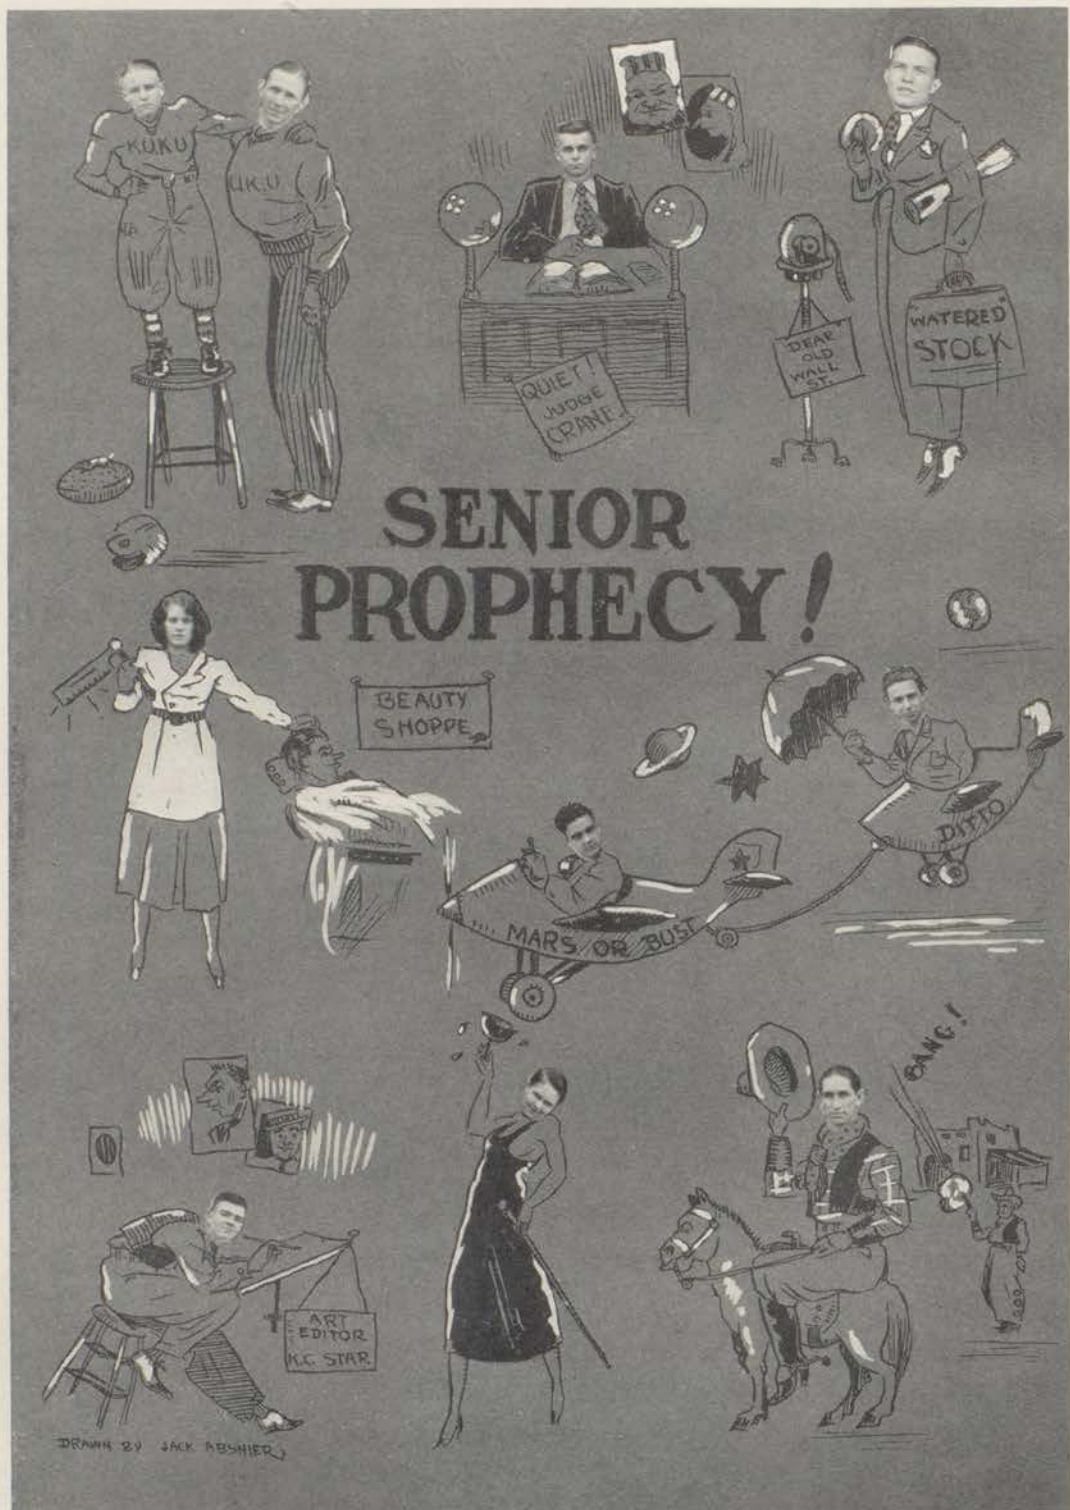

SENIOR CLASS OF 1931.

SENIOR PROPHECY!

DRAWN BY JACK ASHNER

Senior Class Prophecy

I drew my shroud more closely around me, moaned and turned over in my coffin. Ye gods! how did they expect a person to get any sleep with all that racket going on? Who in the heck was trying to play that saxophone anyway? I bet Rudy Vallee could give him a few pointers. Oh well, maybe I could get a snooze anyway. No such luck, a piercing voice reached my ears.

"Hey! Get up! If you don't I will get some cold water and——"

I did not wait for the unknown personage to finish his threat, but sat up so suddenly that I bumped my head sharply against the lid of the coffin and caused it to fly open. I stepped out and surveyed the person who had so rudely awakened me. He was an odd looking specimen, indeed. His long grey beard and white hair seemed to melt into his flowing white robes. From his shoulders there arose an enormous pair of glistening wings. His gentle blue eyes did not correspond with his sharp voice, and, as presented me a peaceful aspect, I demanded to know why he had so rudely awakened me.

"Great Scott!" he answered me. "Here you sleep for a thousand years and then don't want to get up. This is the judgment day. Come along. I will be your guide. Just call me Bumakin."

I thanked the old angel (for that is what he was) and we joined the hurrying throng of people who were wending their way toward the place of judgment. My guide informed me that the judgment seat was just across Hell and outside the gates of Paradise. Then he offered me a stick of gum and requested me to give the tin-foil to him, as he had a hobby of collecting it.

I thanked Bumakin and as I handed the tin-foil to him I asked him if he knew who was playing the saxophone.

"Oh, that's Gabriel," he replied with a touch of pride in his voice. "He hasn't taken lessons very long, but I think he does very well. He is playing to awaken the dead."

"He certainly does it," I replied, and Bumakin, taking my remark for a compliment, thanked me.

We hurried on and as we crossed high above Hades my companion pointed out the guardians of Hell-Gates to me, the terrible woman and her son, death.

"Gee, they are nothing new," I told him. "I read all about them in 'Paradise Lost' over a thousand years ago when I went to East High.

"Oh, sure," my guide answered. "Most seniors have read Milton. He is a great old guy. He ought to crash the gates of Heaven easily."

I wondered if I could crash them, and by the time I had decided to ask Bumakin about it we had reached the place of judgment.

St. Peter, sitting in a swivel chair behind a huge walnut desk, presented no fearful spectacle. I thought him to be a pleasant looking chap and my spirits rose considerably. The good old saint was clad in long flowing robes and wore large horn-rimmed spectacles. Behind his ear was a long pen and in his hand an ever-sharp pencil. His white hair reminded me of Santa Claus.

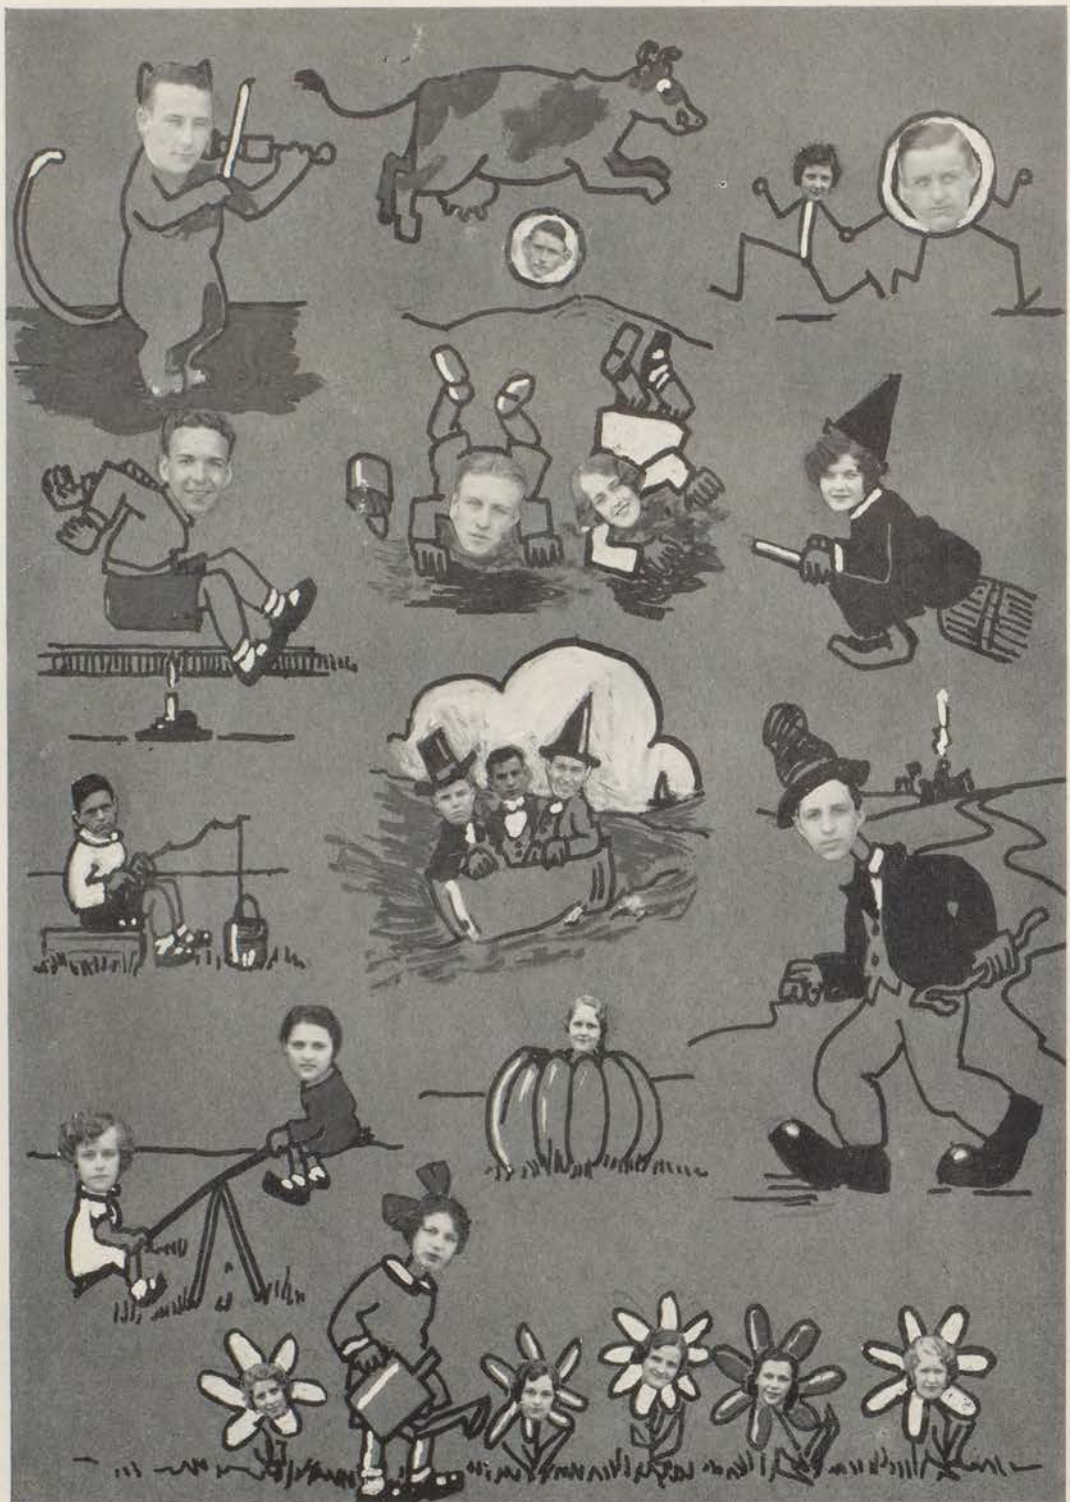

As I glanced around me I beheld many people who had been in the senior class of East High School back in '31.

St. Peter cleared his throat, and, after explaining that we were to be judged one by one and given our rewards, he called the first before him.

"'Boots' Kellogg, what have you to say for yourself? What have you accomplished in your lifetime?"

By "Boots'" reply I gathered that he and Dean Pierce, after being graduated from Harvard, where they played on the varsity football team, had become bond salesmen on Wall Street. St. Peter declared that they needed a rest and assigned them to quarters in Paradise.

Bill Meyer, upon hearing his name called, nonchalantly tried "to light a Murad," but his effort failed dismally as the cigarette lighter would not work. When St. Peter inquired about his life work, Bill stated:

"Well, you see, I am an inventor. I have invented many useful articles, among them this cigarette lighter. Let me demonstrate it." Even in his hour of need the lighter would not work, so St. Peter said:

"Send him down chute number 1. Maybe he can find a light in Hades."

Then Ethel Jane Clark, toe dancer, Maxine Burke and Virginia McLaughlin of the Ziegfeld Follies were awarded places in Paradise, as were Dorine Bennett, Helen Krysa, Florene Cooley, Mary Johnson, Jeanette Lockhart, Margaret Smithey, Florence McNaul, and Helen Keeler, who had been housewives.

Because of the excellent work that they had done the following stenographers were also given places: Esther Annan, Marian Shelton, Gladys Whitworth, Mary Martin, Eula Taylor, and Eria Hamilton.

Jimmie Nuckolls and his partner, Maxine Hunter, had been famous dancers. Eva Goodall was a lecturer, and Leta Belle Livesay and Monta Ward were social workers.

Clifford Burrows was chef at the Pickwick Hotel, and Bill Roseberry was head bellhop.

Charles Crane was a judge and Kenneth Miller a prosecuting attorney.

Charles Witt and T. A. Parker, both famous football coaches, were placed in Heaven because only one-half of their men had been subsidized.

Bessie Anderson, Doris Bates, and Dora Hoss had been proprietors of beauty shops. Nelda Collins, Sarah Green, Florence Ferree, and Ruth Tipton had been nurses. I was quite astonished when I learned that George Light, Joseph Wright, and Esther Cummins had been doctors.

Bert Goins and Dick Dillon had been sent to Hades because they had taught freshmen how to ditch classes successfully.

John Seward, matinee idol and also most handsome man on the screen, Mike Blessing, comedian, Laurie Worsham, Ethel Jane Alcorn, Virginia Williams, actresses, and Peggy McDowell, comedian, were highly praised.

St. Peter declared that all school teachers deserved a place in Heaven after the hectic lives they had led, and so he opened the gates to them. They were Irene Mason, typing; Frances Parish and Inez Jones, voice; Norman Schupp, Roy Vaughn, and Mary Perry, English; Alberta Christie, Latin; Catherine Hathaway, Spanish; Florence Hofstra, expression, and Howard Wilson, mathematics.

As Draper Jennings, Basil Boquist, Mary Grace Honeyman, and Dorothy Lavery started to enter the gates they told the saint that they had taught chemistry.

"Oh," he cried, "So you taught chemistry! Well, then, chute number 10."

Leroy Twitty, Paul Steffee, Calvin Brock, and Harry Dennis were lawyers and therefore gained Heaven as easily as the missionaries, Ruth McKee, Gladys Barnett, and Loie Allen.

The traveling salesmen, Milton Elmer, Roy Argo, Harold Bartlett, and Alva Jackson were escorted to Hades.

I was intensely interested in the lives of my classmates and learned much about them. Jane Darling had illustrated all of the novels written by Mildred Gilmore and many of the poems by Ramona Petersen and Virginia Smith.

Jack Abshier, Gilbert Callicotte, and Jack Wallace had been artists of note. They promised to redecorate the gates of Heaven if the saint would permit them to enter after work was finished. John Messinger, Wendell Lincoln, Thelma Bertram, Lois Block, Alice Rose Brown, Ruth Swanson, and Reva Johnson had followed journalistic professions.

Leonard Andrews, Keith Long, and Pines Dunn had been architects. Patty Cox, Teddy Cox, Lillian Pearl Funk, Frances Tinsley, Bob Stockwell, and Paul Ireland were radio entertainers. Joe Erickson wrote songs in Tin Pan Alley.

Ray Davis was President of the United States, Jack Easley, Vice-President.

Various cabinet members were Edgar Kennedy, Albert Millard, and George Young. Marvin Tickner was a senator from Missouri. Bernice Barlow was his secretary.

Oral Bailey had been the golf champion who succeeded Bobby Jones.

When St. Peter learned that DeWitt Gilpin had been a columnist for a New York paper, he reproved him severely for his sarcastic writing, but allowed our author to enter Heaven upon the condition that he learn to spell.

Harry Haase and the members of his jazz orchestra, among whom were John Frantz, Jack Jones, William Johnson, Watrous Smith, and Eddie Schanzer, all gained access to Heaven because St. Peter liked jazz.

A scientific expedition to Mars had been headed by Wilbur Simcoe and Joseph Proctor, aviators. Henry Lee Ballard and Walter Brown were the mechanics. Rolland Pruitt, Ted Burton and Bill Bussell were the scientists.

Skippy Ryburn was a successful editor of a movie magazine owned by Celia Peaslee and Frances Smith. Noreine Williams and Clite Weibel were among those who write for the magazine.

Adolph Stoup was owner of a cigar factory, of which Ray Hall was the manager. Ethel Ribakoff was the secretary and Mary Skaggs, the bookkeeper.

Dorothy Jean Gamble, opera star, had Farris O'Neal for her press agent. Alys Lehrack, Ruth Oldham, and Elizabeth Milhauser were models for a large Fifth Avenue establishment, where Gertrude Norton was a designer, Ethel Parry was the manager, and Dorothy Wilkey a saleslady.

Alice Butler, Eleanor Massman, and Juanita Amos had been prominent in society at Palm Beach and Atlantic City.

Dorothy Dean Hill, Margaret Brierley, and Jesse Anderson had a school of expression and dancing. Gladys Hanna and Eloise Erwin were gym instructors.

John Eastin, dude ranch owner, had for his assistants Ed Blatherwick, Riley McCann, and John Casey.

Earl Lee Moore was a novelist and Rosemary Wills a short story writer.

Rebecca Smith and Inez Yocum were partners in a bakery. Some of their employees were Grace Marie Trebilcott, Dorthie Webster, and Lillian Shellberg.

Verna McGlynn was a world famous swimmer and Ethel Mayes, an aviatrix.

Thomas Gorzik was contractor for the tallest building in Kansas City. Kenneth Bradley and Elmer Jones were riveters. Clyde Madick was a bricklayer.

Homer Burgard had been a tight rope walker in a circus and Lula Case had played the calliope.

Alice Davidson was the woman golf champion of the United States. Florence Bafford, Helen Knox, and Pauline Johnney members of a women's hockey team.

Ethel Olson was a dramatic coach in London, Kasper Sniecenski, American consul at Milan, and Norman Williams, a traffic policeman at Portland, Oregon.

Alma Soltys and Fern McClanahan were librarians at the East High branch library. Josephine Brownfield was a member of a theatrical company. Katherine Sullivan and Joy McCloskey owned a pet store. Eve'yn Keeling was instructor at a skating rink.

Lennie Mae Featherston was a landscape artist; Mary Ellen Carr and Goldia Fuller, interior decorators. Helen Ganzer and Grace Gaba matrons at orphan DeWayne Wixon stated that he had been an automobile speed king.

St. Peter frowned and said, "Well, I'm afraid that if you were a racer you led a fast life. Chute number 4."

Then he said, "Winifred Miller, hurry. Winifred, Winifred!" My knees shook and my heart failed me. I decided to stay where I was.

"Winifred! Winifred," St. Peter called.

Bumakin shook me by the arm. I opened my eyes and saw my mother bending over me and telling me to get up. It was almost time for school to start.

With a cry of joy I jumped out of bed, for the first time in weeks glad to go to school.

OFFICERS' CLUB

Literary Contest Short Story

By EARL LEE MOORE.

NO GOOD IF DETACHED

Jim McGarvin glanced at the clock and pushed aside his school books.

"Aw, what's the use of studying," he groaned to himself. "If I don't study, I'm a dumb egg; if I do, I'm a book-worm."

He reached in his pocket and found a quarter—just enough to go to the Majestic.

"Hey, Mom," he called as he grabbed his cap, "I guess I'll go to the movies—got nothing else to do."

"All right, Jim," his mother answered from upstairs, "but don't stay out too late."

"O. K., Mom. I'll be home right after the show. There isn't any other place for me to go. Goodbye."

"Goodbye, Jim."

In a few minutes Jim arrived at the Majestic and noticed several of the high school boys standing in front of the theater.

"Hi there, Jim," called one of the boys. "How are——"

"Oh, I'm all right," Jim cut him short and entered the box-office. Although he had met the other boys before, he didn't show any recognition towards them.

As Jim was getting his ticket, he overheard one of those boys remark sneeringly, "Oh, he's no good—just a dim bulb."

While Jim was walking through the lobby, he dropped his ticket. When he stooped to pick it up, he noticed the words "No Good If Detached" on the stub of the ticket. The words appeared to blur and then grow larger than ever. They seemed to be accusing him of something, he knew not what. He gave the ticket to the usher who detached it from the stub, and returned the stub to him.

Jim hurried to the west section and slumped in a far seat. The Wellington High School crowd usually sat in the east section, and although he went to "dear ol' Wellington," Jim sat in the west section.

Something was troubling Jim, but as he was sitting there listening to the jazz music of that famous musical comedy "Gay Youth," he lost some of his dullness and felt sort of peppy.

In the midst of the gay music of the show, a popular melody, "The Song of the Fool," suddenly made Jim become quite alert.

"You're wasting your youth—you've only a few minutes—share them—find happiness—how long are you going to sing the song of the fool"—the phrases of the "Song of the Fool" shouted to him defiantly. Even after the show had changed to a more lively and lighter mood, those words haunted Jim.

Jim became nervous. He wiggled around in his seat and started to tear up the ticket stub which he still had in his hand. He stared at it and the words, "No Good If Detached," loomed up at him. What a coincidence! All the world seemed to be mocking him: "Dim bulb—no good—detached—wasting youth—few moments—fool!"

Jim couldn't stand it much longer. He was very nervous now and wanted to get out in the fresh night air and walk, and walk, and walk.

He hurried out of the theater and started out walking without any idea as to where he was going.

After he had gone several blocks, he heard shouts of husky voices coming from a brick building nearby.

He now realized that he was near the high school. But why all the shouting? Oh, yes, he remembered now, they were having a basketball game. Someone had asked him to go to it, but he had refused and said that he didn't have any time for such things.

HO HUM

As he hesitated for a moment, he thought he heard someone say: "You're wasting your youth." He looked around, but, of course, there was no one there.

Jim walked on farther up the street and heard the music of an orchestra. It was the Wellington High School Orchestra giving a benefit program for the Community Club. When someone asked him if he could play an instrument, he had replied in the negative, but he had been playing the banjo at home for nearly three years now. He had deliberately lied so that he "wouldn't have to be bothered."

"I guess I do have a little talent, but I don't share it," Jim mused. As he was thinking of this, he remembered the phrase, "Share them—with somebody else."

"Will I never forget that silly song," he muttered as he rushed down the street toward the Trinity Church. Jim noticed that the church was lighted and then knew that the boys' Sunday School class, "The High Fliers," were holding a business meeting that he had promised to attend, though he had had no intention of doing so even when he had made his promise.

Jim, in utter despair, soliloquized, "Maybe I am 'passe,' as my French teacher says. But why ain't I like other kids? Why haven't I any interest in my studies and all these outside things?"

Poor Jim, like many other human beings, he had not, as yet, awakened to the reality that, with only a selfish aim in life, there can be no true joy in one's work or play. The universe was made not to be inhabited by selfish beings who live only for themselves, but by people who conduct their actions for the welfare of humanity.

While Jim was standing there in front of the church, meditating as to how to go about it to break this selfish habit, for a habit, once established, is hard to break; he saw Bob Burnett coming down the street.

"With someone like Bob," Jim deliberated to himself, "I can more easily break the ice. I know Bob will help me and maybe I can help him a little also. I've heard that he has a hard time staying at school because of financial worries at home."

"Hello, Bob, old boy, where you going?" Jim greeted as he extended his hand.

"Why—hello—Jim," Bob managed to answer. Jim had never been friendly before, and Bob was somewhat taken back at this sudden outburst of friendliness. He was undecided as to whether he should go ahead and invite Jim to go with him or to "ditch" him. He knew that Jim was considered as sort of "an old drag." Still, the High Flier Membership Contest was still on, and if he could get Jim to join, he would have exactly the member he needed in order to win the Five Dollar Prize!

"Why—I'm going to the High Fliers' meeting and then I'm going to play a game of basketball down at the gym. Wanta come along, Jim?" Bob added invitingly.

"O. K., Bob. I'll go with you. I've got plenty of time. I can call Mom at the gym."

"Sure thing, old pal," agreed Bob as the two entered the church.

That night Jim joined the High Fliers' Club and made several friends at the gym. He and Bob soon established an inseparable comradeship.

During the rest of the school year, Jim joined the church, "made" the second team basketball squad, joined clubs, played in the orchestra; and made such a fine scholastic record in his senior year that he attained the Second Roll of Honor.

At the senior class election, the boy who had once called Jim "a dim bulb" nominated him for senior president; and Jim won by an overwhelming majority.

Perhaps Jim went a little to the extreme in his spontaneous outlet of suppressed energy, yet he gained something which should be the goal of every boy or girl—a sterling character and a magnetic personality.

Essay

By THELMA SCRIVNER.

ON DREAMS

Anyone who is so fortunate as to possess a vivid, realistic imagination does not know what it is to be lonely, to be blue and discontented, or to be bored and unhappy. For they are always able to float away on the billows of some light, fanciful dream to a mystic land of romance and enchantment; a land of beauty and laughter; a place far removed from common every-day scenes, and yet so near that under the most adverse circumstances one may, by turning the magic ring of the brain, be transported to a fairyland of eternal delight.

What country is so distant that it cannot be visited in the imagination of these dreamers, what battle so ancient or so terrible that it cannot be refought and won, what dangerous adventure is there in which these gifted mortals cannot feel the thrill of actual participation? To be able to drift to a land of sunny skies and soft, whispering breezes; a land of happy laughter and low, caressing music; a land where, for a time, dull care and worry can be thrown aside and one's mind and spirit can find rest and peace under the soothing influence of romance and adventure!

There is no limit to the amount of pleasure and comfort that can be derived from a vivid imagination, and anyone so unfortunate as not to possess an imagination misses a great deal of delightful entertainment. But then—he has never experienced the charm of a dreamy hour at twilight when, with the gray shadows of evening enveloping everything in a soft, mystic veil, one can sit before an open fire and, as the ruddy blaze mounts higher and higher, drowsily build dream castles—so how can he miss it?

Fairyland! that enchanting land of romance and adventure which exists only in the imagination of a child. What can compare with the delightful, whimsical dreams a child has of fairyland? And how they long and plan and hope for just one glimpse of this wonderful little land and its small inhabitants whose romantic life so endears them to their childish minds. Imaginative children can sit for hours dreaming of the fairies and elves, dwarfs and witches that inhabit their own particular fairyland. They imagine every animal, and every plant to be a handsome prince or beautiful princess who, having been forced by some cruel witch or nefarious dwarf to assume the form of an ungainly animal or ugly weed, are only waiting for the right person to break the charm.

"Do you believe in fairies?" Oh, to be able to forever answer "yes" to that question! To know for sure that all around us the little people live and frolic; to know that in the far off mystic somewhere there is a little kingdom of genuine fairies! How can we forgive the cruelty of the one who first told us that there were no fairies, or the others who heartlessly confirmed their statement? The grief, the sorrow, and the pain we felt when we saw all our cherished dreams demolished by the ruthless tongue of some unthinking older person, has never been equaled. At that time we explored depths of woe and grief that were until then unknown.

Gradually as a child grows older his dreams change. From the fragments remaining of his ruined dreams of fairyland he constructs other dreams, mainly centered around himself. These are chiefly concerned with the future when he will realize his ambitious dreams of becoming President of the United States, of leading great armies, or of exploring new lands. With a typical boy these dreams run true to form, varying as he imagines that some other occupation offers more thrills and excitement and furnishes a better opportunity for one to receive honor and glory. A girl has many different dreams, but she too dreams of being prominent, of being admired and envied.

To a person with an imagination life is one grand drama, full of romance and adventure, crowded with thrills and excitement, enriched alike by love and beauty and made broader and deeper by trouble and misfortune.

Life is a long, long highway with many a crook and turn. One never knows what is waiting just around the next curve. But there is a thrill in anticipating what is hidden by that bend in the road and as the traveler on life's highway approaches nearer and nearer he tingles with excitement and vaguely outlined hopes and dreams begin to form. Sometimes these duty travelers are disappointed and in sorrow watch their dream castles fall in ruins at their feet. A few are discouraged and fall behind, but those with grit and courage enough to toil onward are sure to find the fulfillment of their dreams around the next corner.

Someone once said that a man with a liberal mind moved in a perpetual comedy of errors. What must life be to one gifted with an imagination—a dreamer whose dreams perhaps rarely come true, but whose whole life is enriched two-fold by the creating, nourishing and caring for of these children of Fancy? The life of such a one could not be a perpetual comedy of errors, for his mind is not literal, his instincts are not practical. Like a reed in the wind he is swayed by every emotion; everything affects him more deeply and more strongly than it does a practical, unimaginative person. Although he suffers more acutely and feels pain more keenly, so also does he enjoy life more thoroughly and derive more genuine pleasure from it than does the man with a literal mind.

Think how greatly the world has benefited by the dreamers, and how today we pay homage to men who dreamed and made their dreams come true in the years long past. Those practical men—men who were plentifully stocked with common sense, but who had no imagination, no visions, and no dreams—have long since fallen into oblivion and their very existence forgotten. But the world still pays tribute to the men who, in achieving the fulfillment of their dreams, gained glory and honor in the fields of war, art, music, science, literature, and philosophy.

All great creators of history have been dreamers. What else but dreams made those sturdy Pilgrims cross the vast ocean and settle in America? What but the highest ideals could have helped them to endure the many hardships? In the heart of every pioneer there is a dream, and this dream he follows. In his mind there is an ideal, and with all his heart and soul he lives up to it. Nations could not exist without the dreamers, nor could empires be constructed or cities built.

An ambitious dream of making himself ruler of the world helped Caesar lead his army to one stupendous victory after another. It was a wonderful vision that inspired Joan of Arc to lead the despairing French soldiers to victory over the English, and so restore peace and prosperity to France after one hundred years of bloodshed and strife. Are not dreams and visions the material with which poets, writers and artists create the works of art that we so admire and cherish? The delicate beauty of line and color portrayed in some great artistic masterpiece, the grand and lofty sentiments expressed in some great book, the haunting melody that lingers in the minds of the people long after the musician has laid down the bow, are all first woven and created in the imagination of the artist, author or musician.

Boys and girls who have a remarkable faculty for day-dreaming when their minds should be more attentively concentrated on something else, should not be scolded too severely or criticized too harshly. After all, who can tell but what these same children will achieve fame and fortune in years to come, as a fulfillment of the dreams they are constructing now?

THE PAGAN

Oh, am I a pagan because my heart
Murmurs a prayer where the sea-gulls dart,
Or because I bend a reverent knee
There, before the majesty of the sea,
There, where the waves chant in unison
Reflecting the glory of the sun;
Am I a pagan?

Am I a pagan because I can see
My God in a mountain or in a tree,
Because in the song of a happy bird
My Creator's voice is sweetly heard,
Because in the sunlight and starlight too,
I learn of a God who is kind and true;
Am I a pagan?

WE STRIVE TO PLEASE

SEPTEMBER

With two hundred forty-five pupils new

Our East High started as most schools do.

Sixty boys tried for a berth on the team

To be high school heroes has been their dream.

Then the R. O. T. C. was organized;

At their uniforms we were surprised.

A new Echo Staff was chosen also;

Miss Varney adviser, we'll have you know.

School Board voted to build an addition;

Seems at last they will yield to petition.

OCTOBER

Our East Bears tied Westport in our first game

But second team won to uphold our fame.

Underclass mixer held October eight

Our sophomores and freshmen began to rate.

Our first night football game was one that thrilled

Although the score was not what we had willed.

Bears defeated Northeast and Manual

So our October games went very well.

Our Harvest Moon program was a success

But of course we never expect less.

Clubs started off with a whirr and a bang;

"Initiation" is the song they sang.

NOVEMBER

Tied with Central, beat Southwest, Paseo;

East won the championship by doing so.

We all had a bonfire to celebrate; We think the Journal-Post cup is great.

The Glee Club concert was certainly grand

Better than any they had before planned.

After a period of hectic campaign Kellogg the senior presidency did gain.

Then our longed-for Thanksgiving holidays

Were followed by delightful winter plays.

Acknowledgment

The Eastonian Staff wishes to express its appreciation of the assistance given so freely in the production of our Annual.

To Mr. Sayles, of the Empire Printing Company, and Mr. Maplesden, of the Burger-Baird Engraving Company, we are indeed grateful for their valuable assistance and suggestions. To the Leroy Studio which took the individual pictures; to Miss Abbott who gave her time and services to the art work, we wish to express our thanks. We are especially indebted to Miss Varney who so willingly assisted the literary staff; Miss Baker and Mr. Broadlick who spent many hours working in the business and advertising departments; Mr. Grube for his indispensable photographic work; and to all students who have aided in the publishing of this Eastonian.

We wish to take this opportunity to thank also the advertisers and patrons of East High School who have made possible the publication of this book.
