THE

To that Spirit of Education which has inspired man throughout the ages with the desire to leave to his posterity a greater knowledge than he himself received, we, the Staff of the 1933 Eastonian, dedicate this book.

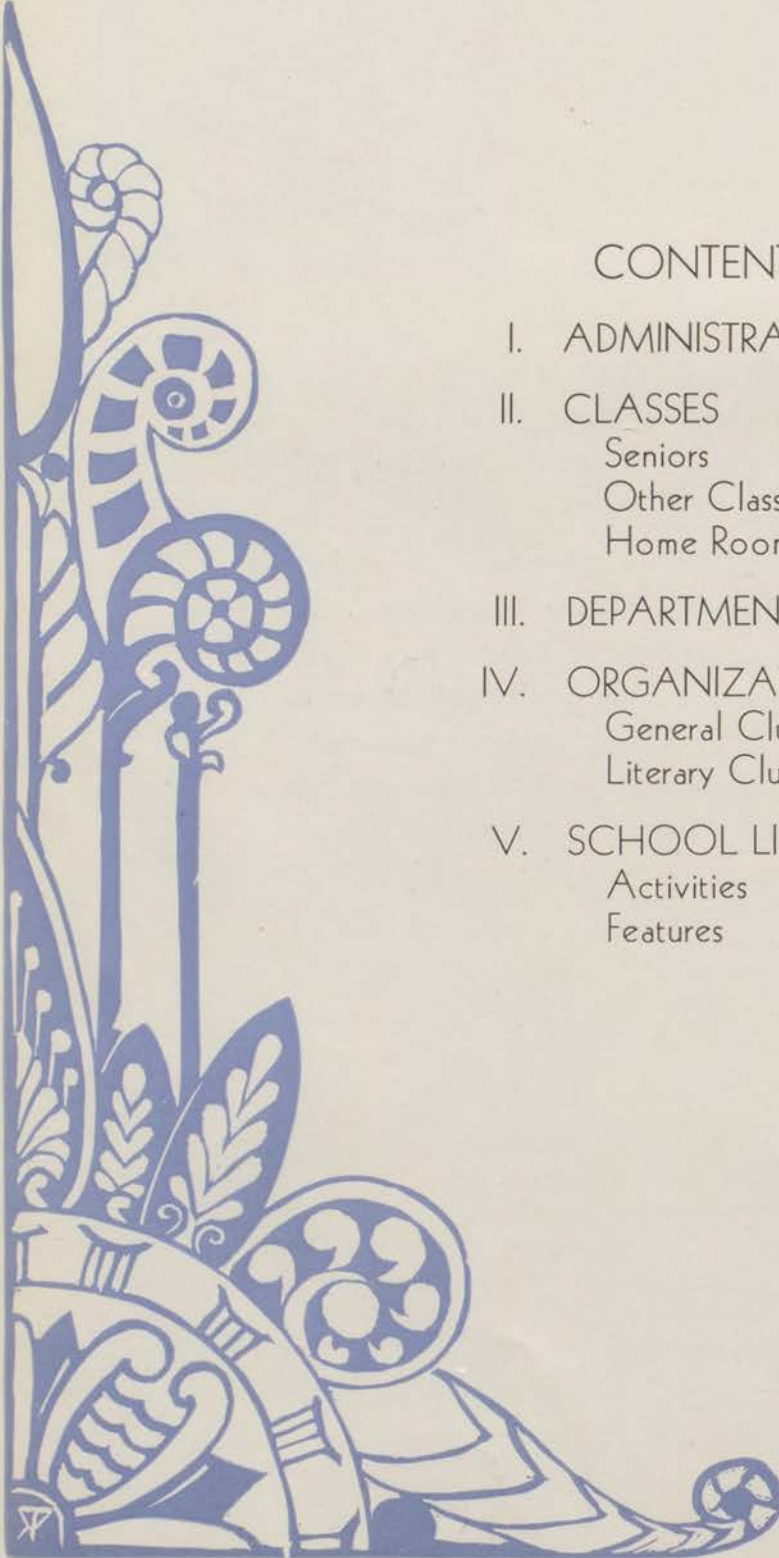

Since his creation man has been in a constant process of Education. Beginning with his struggle to overcome the powers of nature in the days of his barbarism, he has labored on through the centuries; creating the magnificent civilizations of Egypt, Greece, and Rome; searching blindly for the truth in the darkness of the Middle Ages; finding once more a fulfillment of his aspirations in the glories of the Renaissance; seeking a new liberty of thought in the New World; and finally, bringing to us, the heirs of all the ages, a heritage at once inspiring and bewildering in its magnitude.

PREFACE

This year East High School enjoys the facilities of a new addition. Inscribed upon the walls of this edifice is the design of the Chambered Nautilus, symbol of growth, emblem of the spirit of evolution which still inspires the modern world. As it was with a dream of future greatness that the men of history recorded and propagated their knowledge and theories, so it is that our new addition, forming as it does a greater East High, brings with it the selfsame hope that we students may see in the future something greater than anything we have done or thought in the past.

VIEWS

THE doors to a larger East High School are now open. The doors to the school of education, however, are open only to those who possess a key. The key, defined, is a desire to learn. A few there are who enter a school without using this key, but to them are not opened the treasure vaults of education.

In this age education is internationally considered a necessity, not a luxury as it once was, and the fact that not everyone realizes this truth only makes success easier for those who take the most from education. Of course, we cannot all be preeminent, but by trying we can make our lives more worth while.

In the same way, the key to the door of our library is a desire to know more than is afforded us in our class rooms. The mere reading of books will not profit us; they must be intelligently read.

Yes, one must do more than attend school to receive an education. If the desire to learn was not born within us, we must create that desire. We must remember that today education is necessary to success.

ALMA MATER—DIRECT APPROACH

EDUCATION is one indispensable part of modern life—without it we are lost. And so, whether times be good or ill, the building of institutions of learning progresses.

Like the nautilus, we under the roof of East outgrew that shell which was the home of our education, and we were rewarded with the enlargement of that home into a great palace which holds all the necessities plus all the conveniences we ever desired. Do any of us dare say that dreams cannot come true?

EAST BRANCH LIBRARY

On February 1, 1933, the East Branch of the Kansas City Public Library System was opened to the general public. With the beauty of its design and coloring, and with the wealth of knowledge which it contains, this section of the new addition to East High School has afforded both education and recreation to large numbers of persons, not only in the school, but in the community. Students have had the privilege of studying in the library during their regular study periods at school. The library contains approximately 13,000 books and covers every department of literature.

The students of East and all other persons who are making use of the library have Mr. Purd B. Wright, chief librarian of Kansas City, to thank for the efficient system which is in operation. Mr. Wright supervised the present branch system, which aids high school students in their school work.

Miss Rachel Agg, who was previously at both the Central and Kensington branches, is in charge of East's library. Mrs. Maude Martin is the director of the children's room. The assistants on the library staff are Miss Helen Dinklage and Miss Margaret Miller. Miss Mary Ross is part time assistant, and Robert Crees, a student at East, is page.

CAFETERIA AND AUDITORIUM

A new place to meet and a new place to eat have been ours to enjoy this year. We, perhaps, have appreciated them this year more than classes which follow us will do; for only those who knew the inconvenience of the old gymnasium auditorium and the corridor cafeteria can fully realize the benefits which we now enjoy.

The auditorium, with its nautilus design of many colors, seems as near to being a fairyland as any structure built by human hands can be. It seems inevitable that any performance given with such a background should be a success.

The cafeteria, light and roomy, has provided us with many happy hours. There is a little verse which we of East High School might have believed before this year, but now each of us should say:

"The world is so full of a number of things,
I'm sure we should all be as happy as kings."

This lovely lake, adjacent to East and contributing to her beauty, holds many pleasant memories for those who know it.

Stately in her dimensions, lovely in her coloring, and consecrated to the higher ideals of youth, East's new auditorium stands as a symbol of inspiration and achievement.

EGYPT

That the civilization which existed in Egypt more than 5,000 years ago has contributed theories to our modern education seems astounding. However, at that time books were written on science and mathematics, and wheat was cultivated in the Nile valley.

The gigantic sphinx has remained intact throughout the ages; how the ancient Egyptians were able to erect such a great and imposing object is a mystery to modern civilization. Also there remain the mighty pyramids, with bodies yet preserved and entombed within them. Science cannot discover the secrets of the Egyptians.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

As the seventh year of the life of East High School draws to a close, we cast a retrospective glance at our progress. This has been an epoch of beginnings in membership, customs and ideals, and we regard our achievement with pardonable pride. But now, with new rooms and equipment we have entered upon a second period of expansion. Our beautiful building is a challenge to greater success and an inspiration to every pupil to make this noble resolution:

"Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul,
While the swift seasons roll."

With adventurous hope,

C. H. NOWLIN, Principal.

A friend once said to me: "I would rather take in washing than teach school." Had he known the joy of directing the lives of young people or the vivid memories of years of pleasant associations with high school pupils, or the cherished thought that he may have made their lives fuller and happier, my friend would not have looked so scornfully on the world's noblest profession.

JOHN R. WAHLSTEDT, Vice-Principal.

LOUISE HATCH

DORA HANSEN

EVELYN L. GILCHRIST

East High School is fortunate in having Miss Louise Hatch as its Counselor. Miss Hatch adjusts student programs to the student's needs and ambitions; ascertains the cause of failures and strives to make repetition unnecessary; encourages pupils to do work which is commensurate with their ability; investigates and adjusts home problems; makes financial consultations and adjustments; examines attendance and excuses; cooperates with the school nurse in health problems, and with the faculty in the interests of all pupils.

Miss Dora Hansen, East High School nurse, has been in charge of East High School's emergency room for the past five years. Miss Hansen renders first aid and adjusts the health problems of those connected with the school who seek her advice.

Miss Evelyn Gilchrist has been in charge of the main East High School study hall for the past seven years, since East High School was built. Miss Gilchrist has made the study hall a place of quiet and attentive study.

RUTH ROBINSON

HELEN WILKIN

PAULINE HINDMAN

Miss Ruth Robinson, registrar, has charge of the enrollment at East High School and keeps the grade records. In addition, Miss Robinson is Mr. Nowlin's personal secretary.

Miss Helen Wilkin, clerk, has charge of the attendance and assists in other office duties.

Miss Pauline Hindman, East High School cafeteria manager, directs the purchasing, preparation, and serving of the food used in the cafeteria and keeps the cafeteria accounts.

TO A NEW HIGH SCHOOL AUDITORIUM

Hall of dreams, you welcome us at last
With open arms so hospitably vast
As would encompass all our restless youth
In quest of wisdom, pleasure, beauty, truth.

The visioned artist hung the chambered shells
Of the nautilus to cast their magic spells,
Inspiring all who seek the higher goal
To build more stately mansions for the soul.

Here may the voice of prayer like incense rise
Upon a thousand altars to the skies;
May praises to the Father here impart
A grateful hallelujah to the heart.

'Tis yours to be a forum where are taught
The arts of noble speech and subtle thought,
But more, where loyalty becomes a chain
Of golden links that hold through loss or gain.

Upon this stage may come a youthful star
Who, rising, sheds his Thespian glory far,
But homing from the land of palms or pines
Will bless the boards where first he spoke his lines.

Here may a Hamlet pour out all his grief
And sweet Ophelia may find relief;
Here may a Shylock whet his bitter blade
Which Portia the learned doctor stayed.

Perchance some timid youth with silver throat
May here achieve his first clear, liquid note,
Emboldened now, he joins the chorus choir
Or earns the skill to touch the Orphic lyre.

Hall of dreams, we dedicate your space
To lift the eager youthhood of the race;
To them we give our faith, our hope, our heart,
Praying that each may choose life's better part.

—C. H. NOWLIN.

The second semester Council continued the "before school study hall" for industrious students. A member of the Council was in charge.

The "clean up" campaign was carried on to rid our corridors, class rooms and lunch hall of papers. The Art Club cooperated by painting posters urging students to do their part in keeping East a model school.

On the night of March 24, a "Prosperity Ball" was held. During the intermission, Helen Mae Smith and Lewis Richardson were crowned King and Queen "Prosperity."

MIDDLE AGES

In the time of Charlemagne, attempts were made to revive the learning which had been lost. It is true that throughout the Middle Ages the monks wrote manuscripts and taught all within their knowledge to their friends, but when Charlemagne desired to build schools there seemed no place for him to begin. However, the emperor established some schools which became famous, and ones which other than the clergy were allowed to attend.

It was not until about 1100 that Europe began to establish trade schools. The crusades were a factor in bringing about the building of medieval universities, and education was fitted to the life of the people at that time.

SENIOR COMMITTEES

The cooperation and efficiency of the senior committees this year did much toward making the class of '33 a success. Each committee member did his part and they deserve much credit. Each year the seniors are asked to state what committees they would like to be on. From these expressed wishes, the class adviser this year appointed thirty-three members of the senior class for the seven senior committees. These committees spend their time and efforts in preparation for the senior play, commencement exercises, Senior Day program, and Alumni Party. The committees and their members are as follows:

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Twenty-nine seniors received pins signifying membership to the East Chapter of the National Honor Society. These students were chosen by the faculty as those who best represented the four cardinal points of the society—scholarship, leadership, character and service.

The members were installed at the assembly Friday, April 28. Dr. Andreas Bard gave the address. Ferrel Heady explained the purpose of the organization. The symbolism of the emblem was explained by Bill Metcalf. The candles representing the principles of the society were lighted by Mary Jane O'Connell, scholarship; William Quear, leadership; Martha Howard, character; and Wilton Bargar, service.

The following seniors were awarded membership: Robert Allen, Albert Barbe, Wilton Bargar, Kenneth Berning, Caroline Clark, Ernest Cooper, Ramona Crowley, Frances Cypert, Betty Dallam, Ferrel Heady, Martha Howard, Allene Johnson, Clyde Kerr, Deana Koutelas, Frank Kratschmer, Dorothy Kuster, Lucille Lane, Clarence Lucas, Harold Mann, Thelma McDougal, Bill Metcalf, Richard Nixon, Mary Jane O'Connell, Ruth Parrish, William Quear, Hilton Smith, Ruth Wilkison, Londaline Winkle and Marguerite Wolfe.

The following officers were elected April 28:

SENIOR PLAY

The Senior Play, "Abraham Lincoln," was presented in the school auditorium Friday night, May 12. This outstanding drama written by John Drinkwater was an ambitious undertaking for a high school. One reason for the selection of this particular play was that it shows a great national crisis, a consideration of which should help restore confidence in the America of today.

Its author, a British subject, first presented the play in London. It gained much popularity, and remains today one of America's most impressive historical dramas.

The play, in six scenes, brings out the high lights in Lincoln's life. Beginning the thread of its story with Lincoln's nomination, the play carries through his presidency until the time of his assassination in the Ford Theatre in Washington. The cast are figures prominent in the history of that time and ones with whom every American is familiar.

Many distinguished visitors, several from outside the city, were present.

The production was directed by Miss Cecile Burton, teacher of dramatics. Indispensable assistance was given also by Miss Minnie Baker, adviser of the Senior class.

CLASS OF 1933

Approximately two hundred students graduated from the various grade schools and came to East to compose the Freshman class of '30. This class immediately showed signs of marked ability. Various Freshmen took part in the journalistic, musical, and athletic events.

As Sophomores they furthered the good work begun in their Freshman year. They were represented well in the dramatic department and took part in various contests. Several medals were taken in the literary contest by Sophomore contestants. Two Sophomores were members of the championship football team of that year and others took part in athletic contests.

The third year of this class proved even more successful. For the first time, an orator was chosen from the Junior class to represent East at Convention Hall. Again the class members took an active part in athletics, helping to compose the track, basketball, and football teams. Several Juniors were members of the publication staffs. A number of Juniors were given roles in the mid-year plays. Others participated in the art contests, literary contests, and music contests.

The Senior class achieved great things. They presented a program for the Alumni Party instead of the usual dance, thus inaugurating a satisfactory plan for the annual entertainment. The Senior play, "Abraham Lincoln," was a large and successful undertaking. Several members were chosen as all-stars on the honorary football and basketball teams. Other honors were awarded Seniors in numerous contests and activities.

The high school careers of the members of this class have come to a close. When they receive their diplomas, they will have proved themselves capable and efficient. May their future lives be as successful.

OTHER CLASSES

Back Row: Cubine, O'Neal, Kiloh, R. Barbe, Stout.
Front Row: Taylor, Lovelace, Cahill, Parrent.

OFFICERS

President: ROBERT BARBE

"Bob" was well qualified to be leader of his class. Popular, efficient and dependable, he put the Junior class well on the road to success.

Vice-President: PAUL O'NEAL

Popular with his classmates and an outstanding athlete, "Barney" loyally served his class.

Secretary: LUCILLE CAHILL

Her personal charm has endeared her to all who know her. She filled this job faithfully.

Treasurer: RIDENOUR PARRENT

His initiative and friendly ways were desirable traits for a treasurer.

Sergeant-at-Arms: JOHN KILOH

Large in stature, this cheerful athlete was a good one for this position.

Reporter: ROY STOUT

His experience on the Echo Staff and friendly attitude were his qualifications for this office.

Gift-Receiver: ROBERT LOVELACE

An excellent and popular student, his class chose Robert to uphold the colors of the class as gift-receiver at the graduation exercises.

Mascots: JUNE TAYLOR AND DENNIS CUBINE

The Juniors thought that these fun-loving classmates were the ones to bring them good luck.

HISTORY

The Junior class was well represented in all sections of the school. Several Juniors were contestants in the annual literary contest. They were present on the football field, basketball court and track. Juniors were prominent in the R. O. T. C. Department, Commercial Department, Art Department and Music Department. Several are members of the East Echo staff, and others have positions on the EASTONIAN staff. The Junior class sponsored an outstanding Junior-Senior Prom. Members also took part in dramatic events. This class has asserted itself in every department of the school, thus proving a successful group.

Miss Melba Schoenlein and Mr. Edward F. Thelen were chosen the sponsors for this year.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

Front Row: Gowdy, Lee, Stenfors, Abramowitz, Clements.

OFFICERS

President: BILLY MANIETT

Good-natured and likable, Billy was an ideal choice as the leader of his class.

Vice-President: TED DETTWEILER

His pleasing manner won him many friends. His work foretells his future success.

Secretary: DOROTHY LEE

She served her class faithfully and well. Her sweet personality was one of the factors which led her to popularity.

Treasurer: LOIS JEAN GOWDY

Her attractiveness was a valuable asset in this important office. The class didn't make a mistake in this choice.

Assistant Treasurer: CARRIE ABRAMOWITZ

A valuable aid to the treasurer in the performing of her difficult duties.

Sergeant-at-Arms: LEROY O'BRIEN

His cheerful smile and ability to make friends played an important part in his election.

Reporter: ESTHER STENFORS

An outstanding sophomore, she was chosen for her writing ability and dependability.

Mascots: PAUL GORDON AND ELAINE CLEMENTS

Jolly and friendly, the class thought them deserving of this honor.

HISTORY

The class of '35 accomplished many things. It was well represented in the annual literary contest and its members participated in musical and athletic events. They took part in the R. O. T. C. Members also made good records in the Art and Domestic Science Departments.

The above officers were chosen at their meeting March 1. Miss Mary Latshaw and Mr. J. N. Broadlick were elected advisers of the class.

FRESHMAN CLASS

Back Row: Sawyer, Murphree, Gray.
Front Row: Kelley, Tipton, Smith, Heady, Lamb.

OFFICERS

President: WALTER SMITH

His class bestowed this honor on him because they saw him as a leader.

Vice-President: KENNETH HEADY

Cheerful and dependable, Kenneth rapidly became popular with everyone.

Secretary: ELLEN GRAY

A sweet smile and efficiency were her qualifications.

Treasurer: VERA MURPHREE

A little lady from the South who was recognized as trustworthy and deserving of this office.

Assistant Treasurer: MAXINE KELLEY

Her quiet determination was just the quality necessary in this work.

Sergeant-at-Arms: BILL SLATER

Peppy and possessed of a winning personality, he fulfilled this position well.

Reporter: GEORGIA SAWYER

Intelligent and attractive, she was a successful leader.

Mascots: MARY JANE TIPTON AND KENNETH LAMB

Lots of pep and ginger made these students the best choices for this office.

HISTORY

The freshman class of '33 is the first to have produced an orator in the school finals. The members also proved their capability in the Athletic, Music and Art Departments. Miss Alice Sutherland and Mr. W. M. Ryder are the sponsors of the class.

RENAISSANCE

About 1350 the Middle Ages began to give way to the Renaissance in Italy. From there it spread through the European countries and lasted till the beginning of the seventeenth century. The chief characteristic of this era was the desire of the people to know more about the world in which they lived.

The Renaissance brought with it a new education. The most refined parts of Greek and Latin literature were studied in place of the medieval works. Later, when the awakening had spread, St. Paul's School, after which the late English "Public Schools" were modeled, was established.

DEPARTMENTS

DEPARTMENTS

With the opening of its new addition, East High School this year finds itself better prepared to serve the increased student body and the community than ever before. Some of the departments are working in new class rooms; some have introduced additional subjects; some have new equipment with which better to instruct those who enter their courses.

It has been thought appropriate, therefore, by the editors and advisers of the 1933 Eastonian to introduce into this year's book a section dealing with the work of the various departments of the school, including in the section pictures of classes actually at work. Recognizing the fact that no student may become familiar with every subject offered, the editors hope that by classifying the different subjects according to departments, they may acquaint the school at large with the range of subjects offered in the curriculum.

A further hope in arranging this section of the annual is that recognition be given to some departments that ordinarily receive little acknowledgment of their work. This is due to the fact that these departments, such as English, Mathematics, History, and others, are not in their nature spectacular. The work of other departments is brought before the public in concerts, exhibitions, plays, operas, athletic contests, and publications, but the rest go forward with their work in comparative obscurity. It is the desire of the staff that the following section may show the real importance of these departments as well as of the others.

The departments dealt with herein are: English, Mathematics, Languages, Social Science, Science, Commerce, Fine Arts, Publications, Industrial Arts, Home Economics, R. O. T. C., and Athletics.

ENGLISH

Perhaps in nothing is the extent of our education so clearly exhibited as in our command of the English language. Moreover, English is used more extensively than any other subject studied. In every spoken word, in every social or business letter, in making any type of composition, written or oral, our command of our language is thrown into bold relief. From our use of our mother tongue the inference as to our education and social level is drawn. English is the channel to all other learning; no amount of learning in any other subject can avail a person if he has not the ability to convey his knowledge fluently by an easy command of the language.

For these reasons the English Department of all high schools is the most extensive, employing more teachers and enrolling more pupils than any other department.

The department at East High School endeavors to give to its students a foundation in both English composition and literature which will enable them to meet the demands which later life makes on their command of the language. Three years of English are required for graduation from East High School. The fourth year, a survey course of literature is elective.

The Freshman year of English consists of both composition and literature. The literature is the reading of biography, the novel, narrative poems, and a drama from Shakespeare.

Sophomore and Junior composition aim to develop creative writing. Sophomore composition is work in the development of the fundamentals of advanced writing, being a study of advanced sentence structure and paragraph writing. Junior composition makes application of the fundamentals learned in the Sophomore year in the writing of short stories, poems, essays and argument.

Sophomore literature is a study of the works of American authors from late colonial to contemporary works. Junior literature consists of selections which illustrate the type forms of composition. This study of literature is undertaken with two objectives: to develop in the student an appreciation and understanding of good literature, and to inspire the talented student to emulate the works of the authors who come under his observation.

Senior English is a survey course of English literature from Beowulf to contemporary writings. This fourth year of English shows English literature in its relation to historical events. Such a survey course serves both as a guide to the significant periods in English literature and to the outstanding writers who have influenced the best literature.

The teachers of English at East High School are: Miss Marie Burrus, Miss Mary L. Latshaw, Mr. Garland Nichols, Miss Alice D. Sutherland, Miss Edith L. Tarbet, Miss Eva Van Natta, Miss Dorothy W. Varney and Miss Celia Waring.

LITERARY CONTEST

The School-at-Large, for the first time since the curtain rose in the Literary Contest, was present at the climax, May 5, 1933. Kalailu placed second, lacking four points to tie the winners, who had a total of eighteen points.

Songs, stunts and costumes added to the color of the spectacle.

The results:

ESSAY

First	RUTH PARRISH, Eulexia
Second	ROBERT LOVELACE, Kalailu
Third	GEORGE WEIS, Hamilton

POEM

First	HELEN HENDERSON, Eulexia
Second	CHRISTINA HENTSCHEL, Kalailu
Third	ERNEST COOPER, Hamilton

SHORT STORY

First	GLENN WOLFF, School-at-Large
Second	HILTON SMITH, Hamilton
Third	LOIS JEAN GOWDY, Leundis

ORATION

First	EDWARD KUHN, School-at-Large
Second	MARY IRWIN, Kalailu
Third	BILL METCALF, Hamilton

EXTEMPORANEOUS SPEAKING

First	FRANK KRATSCHMER, Kalailu
Second	LUCILLE LANE, Leundis
Third	DOROTHY RAMSEY, School-at-Large

DECLAMATION

First	KENNETH CORBETT, School-at-Large
Second	KENNETH HEADY, Hamilton
Third	JANE STIVERS, Leundis

Gold, silver and bronze medals were given, respectively, to first, second and third place winners.

MATHEMATICS

EMIR AMMERMAN

BAIRD PARKS

VEE FLINN

Mathematics is a very necessary branch of learning. Before even the days of the earliest Egyptians, Mathematics was in use. The Egyptians, whose record is the only authoritative one we have, used it as a means for keeping their estates surveyed and to relocate their land after the annual overflow of the Nile. They also used their mathematics in deciding the positions of their temples which were required by their religion to face directly East. However, all the mathematical science was monopolized by the priesthood and was a mystery to the common people.

Today, our educational system is doing its best to blow away the mists which surround the mathematical symbols. In East High School this objective is being taught by the presentation of both Plane and Solid Geometry, Algebra 1 to 4, Trigonometry, and Mathematics 1 and 2.

Algebra is the calculation of functions and the manipulation and reduction of formulas. Algebra is both a simplification of arithmetical functions by the use of symbols instead of numbers and the introduction to all higher Mathematics except pure Geometry.

Geometry is a solution of plane and solid figures and Trigonometry is a study of the triangle and its functions. Much modern construction and mechanization of all kinds depend upon Geometry, while Trigonometry is used largely in Astronomy and Surveying.

The course defined as Mathematics 1 and 2 and presented in East High School is the study of a practical application of Mathematics.

It is the aim of the Department of Mathematics to train its patrons in methods of thought which will help them in the solution of the many problems which life lays at their feet and bring the students to realize the tremendous significance of Mathematics in their daily life, inspiring them to study it in relation to its importance.

The teachers of Mathematics at East High School are: Miss Emir F. Ammerman, Mr. W. S. Esther, Mr. John Finn, Miss Vee Flinn, Mr. Garland Nichols, Mr. Baird Parks, and Miss Edith Tarbet.

LANGUAGES

BERENEICE CANNON

ALICE SUTHERLAND

VIRGINIA MCCLURE

In the mighty grip of the telegraph, telephone, cable and radio, the world grows ever smaller. Business flows backward and forward between the nations, dealing in all their varied tongues. At the cross-roads must stand an interpreter. Yet even the dead tongue of the past is not mute. Latin speaks in the lawyer's office, in the doctor's study, from the composer's sheet, and in every professional practice.

One ancient language, Latin, and three modern languages, German, French and Spanish, are offered in the department of language at East High School. Four years of any of the languages offered may be had on sufficient demand.

Latin, French, German, and Spanish each has its peculiar appeal. Latin is necessary to any student preparing himself for a career in a profession. Latin also lends much to an understanding of any other language or to an advanced study of almost any subject.

The increasing importance of Mexico and South America in American affairs makes Spanish more and more valuable to the student with plans for pioneering in the New World which lies to the south.

French, although not today the cosmopolitan language which it was some generations ago, is even now a recognized cultural medium. Fluency in French is a very valuable social accomplishment as well as a business asset.

Many of the great scientific discoveries and industrial inventions of the day have come from Germany. So much of science and industry is fundamentally German that advanced study of many sciences or extensive industrial activity is impossible without familiarity with the German language.

The teachers affiliated with the Language Department of East High School are: Miss Bereneice Cannon, Spanish; Miss Virginia McClure, Latin, and Miss Alice Sutherland, French and German.

SOCIAL SCIENCE

It has often been said that the past is the surest prophet of the future. Certainly, experience bears this out. The most fundamental and comprehensive aim of history is to make the present social, economical and political world intelligible. History can teach us whence we came, whither we are going, and how to regulate our living. This department also strives to impart to its students the culture which is a product of familiarity with the past.

PEARL JENKINS

In the Freshman year in high school a course of Civics, or Citizenship, is required. This course is intended to acquaint the young citizen with the functions of institutions in his community and the functions of governmental agencies; to illustrate the industrial and social problems of the day, and to point out the part the citizen should take in the affairs of his community.

World History or the History of Civilization is offered in the Sophomore or Junior years. In the panoramic review obtained, the relation of the history of the various peoples and period studied is made clear, illustrating the fact that all of history is really one continuous chain of events.

American History is available in the Junior or Senior years. This course aims to remove American History from the field of legend and establish a definite concrete knowledge of the events in the history of the United States. It is further intended that the student shall learn to use intelligently books and reference material and that he will become familiar with the simpler methods of historical research.

As a logical climax to the training in the Social Sciences, courses in American Government, Economics and Sociology are offered to Seniors as electives. The aim of these courses is to give the student an intelligent conception of the great society of which he is a member and what it requires of him.

Citizenship and American History are required for graduation from East High School. One additional unit of Social Science must be taken electively.

The teachers of History at East High School are Miss May Farr Hiatt, Miss Pearl Jenkins, Mr. B. W. McDaniel and Miss Jessie Marie Willitt. Teachers from other departments who are affiliated with the Department of Social Sciences are Miss Mary L. Latshaw, Mr. Baird Parks, Mr. W. M. Ryder, Miss Rose Segelbaum and Mr. E. F. Thelen.

SCIENCE

Science is the foundation of civilization. On Science is built business, culture, construction, and recreation. Without Science no advancement is made by man. Civilization first appeared when man learned the simplest of the Sciences and its advancement was commensurate with the advancement of Science.

Two main divisions of Science, exclusive of the Social Sciences, have been made: Physical and Biological. These two have been found to be yet too wide and they have been sub-divided into various other parts.

The principal courses in both Physical and Biological Sciences are presented in the Department of Science at East High School. They are: Psychology, Miss Emir F. Ammerman; Physics, Boy's Physiology and General Science, Mr. J. N. Broadlick; Physiography and Chemistry, Mr. W. S. Esther; Horticulture, Mr. W. M. Grube; Girls' Physiology, Miss Louise Hatch; Zoology, Miss Anna K. McGloin; Biology, Miss Melba Schoenlein; and Hygiene, Boys', presented in Boys' Athletics by Mr. J. C. Cohlmeier; and Girls', presented by Miss Hazel M. Roads in Girls' Athletics.

Most of the Sciences are restricted to either the Freshman year or any of the three remaining years.

In the Freshman year, General Science and Hygiene may be taken. It is thought desirable to give the principles of Hygiene which are so important to general health to the students as soon as possible so that they may be put into operation and show their effect early in the life of the pupil. General Science is intended to provide a foundation for the Sciences taken later in the high school course.

Biology is restricted to the Sophomore year. This arrangement is made because of the fact that some of the remaining Sciences require Biology as a prerequisite.

Psychology, Physiography, Chemistry, Physics, Physiology, Zoology and Horticulture may be taken in the Junior or Senior years. Psychology must be preceded by either Biology or Physiology. Algebra 1 and 2 is a prerequisite to Physics and is desirable preceding Chemistry.

Two years of Science are required for graduation. One year of either Biology or General Science is required, and the other year may be taken electively.

COMMERCE

An increasing number of students are each year going to college from high school. But statistics show that even now only one out of every ten ever receives a college education. Then, nine pupils out every ten who graduate from high school should be prepared to go into the business world and make their own way. The Commerce Department at East High School endeavors to give a foundation to its students which will enable them to carry on in the business world, assisted by the experience and facility which time and practice give.

Nine business courses, representing the preparation needed to establish a business, to command an executive position in business, or to occupy a secretarial or bookkeeping position, are given at East High School. These include two years of Bookkeeping, Shorthand, and Typing; one year of Commercial Arithmetic and Applied Mathematics; and one term each of Commercial Geography, Commercial Law, Office Training, and Business English.

But it is not alone to the students expecting to enter the business world instead of college that the courses offered in the Commercial Department are valuable. Nearly all of the courses given have great value and are required to be used at some time during the career of a student. Shorthand, Typing, and Commercial Law are especially valuable to any student, regardless of his chosen profession.

The Commerce teachers at East High School are Miss Minnie Baker, Miss Mabel Cobb, Mr. John Finn and Miss Louisa Johnston.

The Commercial Club of East High School has had a continuous existence since the year the high school opened, in the fall of 1926. It has always been one of the largest and most active clubs in the school.

Its purposes are to promote interest in commercial and economic subjects and to supplement the work of the class room by bringing speakers from the various fields of business to address the club and by visits of the club to industrial plants and business houses.

The advisers of the club this year are Miss Louisa P. Johnston and Mr. John M. Finn.

FINE ARTS

Fine Arts comprise the expression of the beauty man produces, in sound, in color and form, and in drama. It has been said that our birth occasions music, our victories in life are celebrated with music, and that our death is solemnized with music. Drama and oratory give expression to man's philosophy of the life he sees around him and to the conclusions he makes as to the issues with which life confronts him. Art is a delineation and preservation of the physical beauty which man sees or envisions. These three compose the Department of Fine Arts at East High School.

MUSIC

Certain phases of the music curriculum at East High School are devoted to appreciation and understanding of music, others to group singing and group instrumental work, and still others to individual singing; but the entire course aims to develop appreciation and ability of the students who enter it.

Music I and II give equal emphasis to all aspects of music. Group singing is done at East High School in both Junior and advanced Glee Club and Choral Club. Mixed concert singing is done by the Choral and Glee Clubs in conjunction.

Boys' and Girls' Voice Classes provide individual training in singing. It is the aim of the course in these classes to overcome excessive shyness and stage fright, as it is to develop the natural talent which is found.

Harmony is devoted to the appreciation and understanding of good music through creative and analytical effort.

Instrumental training is given in Band A and B and in Orchestra. An increasing number of students are each year availing themselves of this work as the expensive instruments are supplied by the school.

Mrs. Carrie Margaret Caldwell instructs Junior Glee Club, Choral Club, Junior Choral Club, Girls' Voice Class, Harmony and Music I and II. Mr. W. M. Ryder teaches Band A and B and Orchestra. Mr. John R. Wahlstedt, vice-principal, instructs Glee Club and Boys' Voice Class.

ART

CECILE BURTON

The Art course in East High School aims to further in the students any native talent which may be found and to develop an appreciation of the works which have been produced in the field of Art. Four years of Art are offered.

In the first year, block and lower case lettering, elementary design, soap sculpture, and pencil drawing are done. The second year carries the first year's work into its more complicated forms and adds textiles, block printing, poster drawing, simple oil painting, dynamic symmetry, perspective, and leather work.

Continuing in the work of the preceding two years, the third year also includes batik dyeing and charcoal drawing. In the fourth year, metal craft, spatter painting, advanced oil painting, and drawing from cast are done in addition to advanced work in previously covered subjects. Miss Martha Abbott is the Art instructor.

DRAMATICS

The work of the Dramatics Department is divided into speech making (expression) and the production of drama.

The Dramatics Department this year under the direction of Miss Cecile Burton sent students as speakers on the Charity Campaign and the W. C. T. U. 18th Amendment Drive. Aside from these activities, Miss Burton was the coach of our representative in the Star's Oratorical Contest and also contributed valuable criticism to contestants in the oral events of the school Literary Contest.

In the field of drama the Dramatics Department this year has offered John Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln" as the Senior Play, and the following short skits given before the assembly: "Two Crooks and a Lady," "Neighbors," "The Ghost Story" and a play for Washington's birthday. The advanced dramatics class presented "Flowers For Sale" before the Parent-Teachers Association on May 20.

ORATORY

The Art Club was the first departmental club to organize at East High School.

The purpose of the Art Club is to encourage the study of art and to assist in the activities of the school. The emblem of the club is a tube of paint, behind which is a brush. The letter "E" is emblazoned on the tube.

This year the club made scenery for the "Mikado," the National Honor Society, and posters advertising the Senior Play.

At the meetings the club draws portraits, does charcoal and crayon sketching out-of-doors, paints with oils, and does sketching of costume models. The club also works on EASTONIAN panels and cuts.

Miss Martha Abbott is adviser and Miss May Farr Hiatt is the assistant adviser.

The East High Glee Club was organized in 1927 with Mr. John R. Wahlstedt as director.

Since its organization, the club has annually given several concerts. This year two were presented: one at the East Gate Lodge, and the other at the Ashland Theater. A Christmas program was also given.

To climax the school year, the club always holds a picnic in Swope Park, where fun and food reign supreme.

In February of 1933, the Glee Club, in conjunction with the Choral Club, made its debut on the opera stage with the presentation of "The Mikado." The play was presented in the beautiful new East auditorium.

The East High Choral Club was organized in September, 1926. Its purposes are to practice group singing and to promote interest in music among the members by the study of worth while music.

Together with the Glee Club, the Choral Club sang for the State Teachers' Convention, the Art Institute, and the East High open house. It participated in the city music contest and provided choruses for the Christmas program and the "Mikado."

The climax of the year's work is the Choral Club concert, which is presented every spring.

JOURNALISM

The speed which modern life has attained has caused many people's sole literature to be found in their daily newspaper. It is therefore obvious that the journalistic tastes of these people should be cultivated and trained so that they may understand and appreciate the higher types of journalism. This is one of the objectives that the Journalism Department of East High School strives to attain.

Primarily, Journalism is a course in English. It is the aim of the department to give motivated practice in the use of written English, rather than to train students for a journalistic career.

The Department of Journalism purposes to develop in the students who take the course self-reliance, initiative, accuracy, dependability, observation, judgment and cooperation. A good reporter illustrates all these qualities. He must have enough of self-reliance, initiative and observation to obtain news. He must exercise careful discrimination in dealing with the news which comes under his notice. He must be accurate in the conception and writing of his stories. In the daily routine of his work he must demonstrate responsibility and cooperation if he is to be consistently successful. Thus, in teaching the fundamentals of Journalism and in assigning to the second semester students a definite task on the staff of the school paper, the necessity for the play of the qualities is brought into prominence, and development is brought about.

One year of Journalism is offered. The first semester is devoted to a study of the fundamentals of newswriting in preparation for the second semester work. The various types of the news story, editorial writing, headline writing, and general journalistic style are studied. Newspapers representative of the various types of journalism in this country are observed and their style and material are studied.

In the second semester, practical application of the fundamentals learned in the first semester is made. The former first semester class becomes the staff of the East Echo, each student being assigned to a position commensurate with his ability.

The year of Journalism may be substituted for one semester of English composition, but if this is done, either Junior or Senior literature is required.

The writing and compiling of the EASTONIAN, which is an extra-curricular activity, is carried on under the direction of the Journalism Department, and the literary staff is composed chiefly of students who have studied Newswriting.

Miss Dorothy W. Varney, instructor in Journalism, teaches the Newswriting I class and directs the literary staffs of the Echo and the EASTONIAN.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

The Industrial Arts courses in high school are organized with two purposes in mind: to make appreciative consumers by giving to the students a foundation suitable for the conservative purchases of material for their own consumption; and second, to give them suitable foundation upon which to continue in one of the branches of Industrial Arts as their life work. The courses offered in the Industrial Arts Department of East High School are: Drafting, General Metal Working and Wood Working.

Drafting is the language of industry. It is the means of communication between those who plan and those who execute. It is the objective of the Drafting course to introduce students to this language, develop their appreciation and interpretation of it, and to aid in discovering and furthering native talent.

Four years of Drafting are offered. The first two years comprise general mechanical drawing as a foundation for the more complicated work of the ensuing two years. In the last two years of work, machine drawings, architectural drawings, and a study of type architecture are made. The study of type architecture is of particular value to students preparing to study architecture in college. In the machine drawing, parts and the whole of machines are designed. One and two-story houses are planned and drawn in architectural drawing. Mr. R. E. Tiefel is teacher of drafting.

General Metal Working, a new study at East this year, is a course in the handling and working of sheet metal, ornamental iron and bench metal, work on the machine lathe, forging, and oxy-acetylene welding. In this course practical application of the elements of work done is made in the production of jig-saws, band-saws, circular-saws, drill presses, and other machines, by the advanced students. The instructor in Metal Work is Mr. Joseph A. Stadler.

Wood Working at East High School is a continuation of the less complicated manual training given in grade school. The projects undertaken by the students are determined by the experience and ability of the individual. In the early years such simple projects as upholstered foot stools, wastepaper baskets, hat racks, and wall ornamentations are done. As the ability and experience of the student increases, more complicated work such as inlaid tables, cedar chests, porch swings, and large motor boats are produced. The advanced pupils also assume the responsibilities of being shop foremen, directing and overseeing the work of the others. Mr. Lynne C. Monroe is instructor in Wood Working.

HOME ECONOMICS

Home Economics has found a definite place in the present day high school as a preparation in home making for girls. The greater part of high school girls look forward to establishing and managing, some day, a home of their own. Modern life has brought a great deal more of complication into the problem of successfully managing a home, both the economical and social sides of it, and girls need a scientific preparation to meet these perplexing problems. The Home Economics Department at East High School includes a much wider scope of training than its two courses, Foods and Clothing, indicate. In these courses it is intended to include more than just the actual preparation and serving of food and the production and repairing of clothing and to embrace the associated problems with which a homemaker is confronted.

Elementally, the Foods course teaches the planning, preparation and serving of the three daily meals. The planning of meals is studied in relation to the health value of the food to the family. Preparation is also done with the retaining of the food value in mind. A study is made of the serving of foods so that the home-maker will be able to present an attractive and appetizing, as well as healthful meal. The selection of a well balanced school luncheon, either one purchased at school or one packed and carried to school is studied. In addition to these directly related subjects, the Foods course also includes a study of the preparation of invalid food and care of sick in the home and the furnishing and management of the home kitchen. Care and training of children and other subjects of direct importance to the well being of the family are also brought under observation.

Miss Genevieve Nowlin is the Foods instructor at East High School.

Three years of Clothing are offered at East High School. In these three years of training, the production and care of clothing, child care, family relationships, design and color, as applied to clothing, and textiles are studied.

In addition to this course of study the Clothing course also strives to teach appreciative purchasing of clothing. As in Foods, the subjects taken under consideration have been greatly broadened and increased to fit the demands made on the modern homemaker. It is intended to teach girls how to purchase or produce clothing for a family in the most economical way without sacrifice of quality in their purchases. It is also intended to further tasteful selection of clothing according to season, personal requirements, and fashion.

Miss Beneta Reid is the instructor of Clothing in East High School.

RESERVE OFFICERS TRAINING CORPS

The R. O. T. C. strives to instill into the boys who enter it, character building, leadership, physical training. It is also intended to supply a reserve in a national emergency. Materially, the R. O. T. C. is a physical training unit, and credit for a year of Physical Training is given for a year of R. O. T. C.

This unit may not be entered before the Sophomore year. In this first year the principles of R. O. T. C., Hygiene and First Aid, and competitive rifle training are given.

The Junior year of R. O. T. C. includes a review of the three parts of Sophomore work and study of three additional topics: Scouting and Patrolling, Musketry and Combat Principles. The Rifle Marksmanship is continued through the Junior year in the form of periodical practice and the selection of a Rifle Team to represent East High in firing matches.

The Senior year is a continuation and review of the studies made in the preceding two years with the addition of Map Reading. It is during the Senior year that promotions are made. The officers selected have almost complete charge of the drilling and daily inspection work. These officers also must be qualified to give examinations in and teach the six topics of work which they have been over in their under-class years.

The East High R. O. T. C. unit has an enrollment of 139. With the exception of the year between September, 1930, and September, 1931, the enrollment in the R. O. T. C. has shown a steady and substantial increase each year since 1928. In September, 1928, the enrollment was 62, which was increased to 91 at the mid-year. The 1929-30 school year started with an enrollment of 101 in the R. O. T. C. which changed to 114 at the second semester. The enrollment in September, 1930, was 119. This was raised to 121 at the mid-year, remaining fixed until the beginning of the 1933 mid-year semester when it was raised to 139.

Sergeant J. T. Jenkins commands the R. O. T. C. at East High School. He has served in this capacity for the past five years before which time he served since 1906 in a United States Army Regiment.

MAJOR FIDELAS REEDY

Fidelas Reedy, who became the Major of the East High School unit of the R. O. T. C. in 1932, has participated in R. O. T. C. work since his Sophomore year, 1930. During the school year of 1932-33 he received his promotions from Private to Second and First Lieutenant, to Captain, and finally to Major. Under his direction the R. O. T. C. has become a well drilled and well disciplined unit.

OFFICERS' CLUB

Back Row: Kuhn, Branch, Stokes, Doughty, Ballard, Bleich.

Front Row: Simons, Metcalf, Reedy, Sgt. Jenkins, Nixon, Hansell, Barnes.

The Officers' Club is an organization of the cadet officers of the East High School unit of the R. O. T. C. Cadet officers earn their commissions by excellence in drill, by high scores in the annual inspection, by competing in the finals of the annual R. O. T. C. Circus, and by competition in the events of the annual Field Day. In addition, the candidate for a commission must show ability in command and instruction of privates.

BOYS' ATHLETICS

With the completion this year of the new gymnasium and its accompanying equipment, East's athletic department has known a great expansion of interest in previously untouched fields. Football, Basketball, Track, Boxing, Wrestling, and Ping Pong all knew new popularity this year.

Three men were in charge of all of East High's athletic undertakings. Two of these men were the instructors and general supervisors and the other took a firm hold on the financial reins. Coach Cohlmeier had charge of and instructed the first teams in Basketball and Football, while Mr. Thelen coached the track team and second team Football and Basketball. To Mr. B. W. McDaniel fell the great responsibility of supervising the financial income and output for the teams. He directed the ticket sales campaigns for both the Football and Basketball seasons.

Through the selection by student and faculty ballot, six cheerleaders were chosen. There were two Seniors, Donald Anderton and John Simons; one Junior, Joe Roggy; one Sophomore, Bill Reynolds; and two Freshmen, Leonard Santoro and Walter "Puggy" Smith. The cooperation of these lads was the chief reason for the huge noise per capita to be found in the East athletic undertakings this year.

Joe Roggy, John Simons, Donald Anderton.

SUMMARY OF FOOTBALL SEASON

Of eight games played, East lost only one. Southwest nosed the Bears out by a score of 7 to 0 in the championship game, played October 29 on the Southwest field. The Indians barely succeeded in scoring a touchdown near the end of the fourth quarter. This was the only time an Interscholastic League opponent crossed East's goal line.

As is the custom, two preliminary games were played before the league schedule began. This year East played Ottawa, Kansas, and beat them 7 to 0. The next game was with an old rival, Rockhurst, and East won over them, 18 to 7.

Manual was completely routed in East's first league game by the score of 25 to 0. The East-Central game was a hard fought battle from start to finish, but the Bruins finished victorious with the score 7 to 0. Continuing their winning streak, East defeated Paseo, the 1931-32 champions, by the score 13 to 0. East's first and only defeat came from the hands of Southwest. Nearly 6,000 persons watched East out-gain and out-down her conquerors. The score was 0 to 7. Undaunted by their defeat, the Bears came back strong and for the first time in the history of the school trounced Westport to the tune of 26 to 0. The end of the last game of the season found East far in front of Northeast. The score was 20 to 0.

The football team won the permanent possession of the Dartmouth Alumni Trophy this year. This trophy is awarded to the high school team of Kansas City which has the highest ranking in the athletic ability and in the scholastic average of the members of the team. This year, which was the third consecutive year, East excelled in the scholastic rankings. The team average, which was 2.51 (an S minus or M plus) this year, is the highest to be attained during the period that this particular trophy was offered.

It was an honor for East to receive the trophy this year, greater even than previously, because this year the athletic fortune of the team placed it only second.

FIRST TEAM FOOTBALL

Back Row: Gunn, Hartman, Hayward, Christie, Lundstrom, O'Neal, Kellstrom, Wynn, Kiloh, Fehrenbach.

Front Row: Fain, Sebastian, Richardson, Jury, Murphy, Argo, Kratz, Cubine, Murphree, A. Barbe, Quear, Scroggins.

FOOTBALL SEASON

Six years of continued development have been climaxed in East's football team this year. Each successive season after the first year a football team was organized, East's gridiron teams have progressed in co-ordination, team work, and playing ability. Although the team did not win the championship, they did win the whole-hearted respect and admiration of their field-of-play enemies. The Bears were not the biggest team in the city, but they were considered by many to do the cleverest playing. They quickly adjusted themselves in many trying circumstances, and kept the foe guessing.

CO-CAPTAINS

JOHN MURPHY

"Irish" was the most popular man on the team. His good nature and cheerfulness won him many friends. His record as a football player goes back to three years ago when he first began to play right end. Since that time his ability to play the game of football has named him a member of the First All-Star Team and a captain of his own.

JOHN

GENE SEBASTIAN

Gene will long be remembered for his fine spirit and character. He was a natural leader and used his influence for the good of all concerned. This is his third year as quarterback. The team always functioned well when Gene was calling the plays. His clear thinking and good judgment carried the team through many a difficult situation.

GENE

SECOND TEAM FOOTBALL

Back Row: Johnson, Dettweiler, Stout, Hale, Miller, Driscoll, Lilla, A. Lucas.
Third Row: Bowman, Strandberg, Robertson, Johnson, Hill, Blankenship, R. Barbe, Yates.
Second Row: Mr. Thelen, Mook, Ireland, Butler, Schuble, Messer, Maniett, Butler, Mr. Moore.

SUMMARY OF SEASON

Closely following the splendid example that was set for them, East's second team duplicated the fine playing done by the first team. This group of ambitious athletes also captured second place in the Second Team Interscholastic League. They played eight games and lost three. Their record does not do them justice, because one should have seen them in action to appreciate their fine team work and potential power. They should bid very seriously for the trophy next year.

The second team opened their season by playing Ottawa. They were at a disadvantage in "breaking the ice" for the first time. They played Ottawa's first team and were beaten 57 to 0. In their next game they came through, true to form, and defeated Rockhurst by the score of 19 to 6. Their first league game proved a harder assignment. They succeeded in pushing over a single touchdown on Manual and beat them 6 to 0. In the game with Central the Bears, after looking bad in the first half, came back strong in the last half and won by a single point, 7 to 6. They continued their winning streak by rolling up four touchdowns in the first half to beat Paseo 25 to 0. Although they outplayed their opponents, East's seconds lost to Southwest 7 to 12. Westport was next given a trouncing to the tune of 20 to 7. The last game of the season was lost to Northeast by the score of 7 to 13.

FIRST TEAM BASKETBALL

Beiser, Jury, O'Neal, Richardson, Quear, Sebastian, Barbe, Van Deusen.

STATISTICS OF THE SEASON

Although East's quintet at the beginning of the season gave little promise of being championship material, this group of boys developed into a smooth, polished, dependable piece of machinery that settled down to hard playing and refused to stop until the co-championship of the city and fourth place in the state were theirs.

At the start of the Interscholastic League season, East's basketeers were forced to stress their very capable defense. Many things made up the reasons for their slow start; and the biggest of these was that the new gymnasium was not completed until late. A few losses and other discouragements were not enough to keep these boys from pushing ahead to lead the field in the end. They had that never-say-die spirit that characterizes the athletes of East High School.

BASKETBALL CO-CAPTAINS

Upon a close analysis of the team this year, on the part of the coaches and the reporters for the press association, these two boys and Rudolph Beiser received positions on all-star teams while Lewis made the Associated Press all-state forward position. Within the team these two were the mainsprings in our offense and defense, Lewis especially in the defensive and William in the offensive plans of attack. Because of their superiority over their teammates, as the team thought, these two share the honor of co-captains.

SUMMARY OF SEASON

East's first team played a total of thirteen games, and of this number it lost five. This record does not even begin to show the marvelous progress this group of boys made in more than just basketball. They enriched their lives by victories and made themselves better men by defeats. They entered into stiff competition and battled their way to the top. Although they did not emerge as champions of the state, they did come through with heads held high and the things in them that it takes to be champions.

The team's first game and first defeat came from the hands of Wyandotte. This old court enemy trounced them 34 to 17. Their next attempt was also futile, for Rockhurst trimmed them 18 to 9. When the time for the first Interscholastic League game came, the team seemingly had found themselves, for they had little difficulty in scoring their first victory over Manual, 24 to 13. Central was their next foe, and East again rode the crest of the wave to bring back a victory of 19 to 13. Little difficulty was encountered in defeating Paseo, in the next game, 18 to 8. The evening following the Paseo game, East was a host to Ottawa. The Bruins continued their winning streak by defeating the boys from the Kansas town 23 to 17. Southwest next bowed to the team's prowess 18 to 8. The next game was a complete surprise to everyone. Westport took many a breath away by winning 26 to 15. The game with Northeast was the championship game and East's only hope hung on that game. True to form, East, by superior playing, defeated Northeast 11 to 9, and claimed the co-championship of the city with them.

East and Northeast, sharing the city title, went to the state tournament at Columbia. The Bears' first game was with Maplewood, a St. Louis team. In a thrilling performance, in which marvelous playing was done by each East High man, the Bruins nosed Maplewood out by the score 17 to 15. At the quarter-finals East was paired off with the Smith-Cotton High School of Sedalia. Again East came through with flying colors and a victory of 16 to 15. In the semi-finals East's cagers played a team of giants from the St. Louis University High School. These six-footers, because of their superior height and power, took the game with a score of 28 to 16. Still undaunted and in there fighting, East played the Roosevelt High School of St. Louis for third place. The St. Louisians were just able to nose East out by a score of 21 to 17.

NAISMITH TROPHY

The East Basketball team this year won, for the second consecutive year, the Naismith Basketball Trophy. This trophy, like the Dartmouth award in Football, is given to the Kansas City high school team having the highest ranking in scholarship as well as athletic ability. The scholastic ranking of the East team this year was 3.26, while our athletic ability ranked us in a tie for first with Northeast. Should the East quintet next year be fortunate to excel in scholastic and athletic ability, the trophy will become the permanent possession of East.

SECOND TEAM BASKETBALL

Back Row: Funston, Bradbury, Scroggins, Blau, Peelle, Brelsford, Huff, Gordon.
Front Row: Pierce, Neilson, Blankenship, Hill, Barbe, Schuble, Wilcoxson.

STATISTICS AND SUMMARY

The second team broke even on the number of games won and lost this year. They played a total of eight games and of these they won four and lost four. The scores of these games and the defeats that were suffered do not begin to tell the story of the team's accomplishments and progress. They tried hard and were rewarded but little for their efforts. Next year, when these same boys become members of the first team squad, they should go quite high in bidding for the league trophy, if spunk is a good quality to possess.

Their first attempt at playing as a team proved very satisfactory, even though the Wyandotte seconds did beat them by two points. The score was 18 to 16. The next game ended much better. A fourth quarter rally that brought them up from far behind found them in the lead at the last gun. They won over Rockhurst, 16 to 15. The first league game was with Manual, and like the first team, the East's seconds won 25 to 16. Central nosed them out by one point in the following league game. The contest ended 18 to 17. Paseo was next in line to bow before their playing. That game ended 16 to 13. Their next attempt to repeat a victory proved unsuccessful. Southwest trimmed them to the tune of 36 to 16. The team bounced right back on its feet in the next game, as can be seen by the fact that Westport was downed, 23 to 14. The last game of the season was a loss suffered at the hands of Northeast. The final whistle left the score 22 to 15.

TRACK

Back row: O'Dell, Kennicutt, Lucas, Teed, Fahlstrom, Fain, Weiss, Schwertscharf, Sousley, Wynn.
 Middle row: Webster, Berning, Branch, Murphy, Van Deusen, Allen, Fehrenbach, Barbe.
 Front row: Westbrook, Pierce, Soltys, Campbell, Maniett, Potts, Millard, Marchisio, Butler.

Though not of championship caliber, East High's track team this year did make a decided impression upon its followers by its promising individual showings. One statement made concerning the team this year was that it wasn't a balanced team, but that it was certainly a point winner. The ambitious athletes who composed this team trained hard and diligently under the capable coaching of Mr. Thelen.

Aside from Eugene Potts, East's star sprinter, Coach Thelen produced several other outstanding athletes. The rankings of the first four point winners is: Eugene Potts, Edward Van Deusen, Ralph Campbell and Ted Fehrenbach.

In view of the potentialities of the team this year, there should be a real city championship contention next year. The tabulation of dual meets and triangle meets:

	No. of Points		No. of Points
East.....	23½	Southwest	67½
East.....	16½	Northeast	74½
East.....	29	Central	49½
East.....	56½	Westport	20½
East.....	59 3/5	Argentine	34½
		Wm. Chrisman	31 2/5

EUGENE POTTS

CAPTAIN EUGENE POTTS

Beginning his record as an indispensable member of the track team as a Sophomore last year, Eugene continued his career this year in a larger way. In the century and the furlong dashes Potts' time remained very close to the league record of 20.3 and 9.9 seconds, respectively. His performance in these two events this year made him the unanimous choice for captain. His record as an athlete next year undoubtedly will reach statewide recognition.

WRESTLING AND BOXING

Wrestling and boxing classes were held each evening after school in an unused printing room in the basement. There many boys came for recreation and instruction in the two manly arts of self defense. Mr. John Moore, Y. M. C. A. director at East, coached the boys in wrestling and Homer Hayward and Fritz Kellstrom taught what they knew about boxing. Both boys had had some experience in boxing at arenas about town.

At first these classes were composed of those boys who were expecting to go out for spring football practice when the weather permitted, but soon the idea of wrestling and boxing took hold of many of the lighter weight boys who began to suit up and appear regularly for practice.

Rudiments of both means of defense were given first in class groups, and after these fundamentals, then individual matches were held with an increasing length of time for the tussles.

A tournament was soon started in wrestling with the boys divided into weight classes, and, by a series of elimination bouts, the weight champions were selected.

The winners in their respective weight class were: 95 pounds, Charles Simpson; 105 pounds, Robert McElroy; 115 pounds, LeRoy O'Brien; 125 pounds, Junior Pierce; 135 pounds, Romagene Shuble; 145 pounds, Dennis Cubine; 155 pounds, John Yates; 165 pounds, Marburg Lundstrom.

GOLF

Representing the best we had to offer in competition with the other high schools of the city our Golf Team, composed of Bill Keeling, captain, Harold Funston, Chester Hecker, Warren Funston, Clyde Self, and Paul Gordon, entered the tournament this year for East.

Under the instruction of Mr. J. R. Wahlstedt, the boys prepared for the meets which were held on the Number One Swope Park Course every Saturday morning during the season. The boys used their own clubs but Mr. Wahlstedt furnished new balls for each of the matches. Letters are to be awarded to those members of the team whose average score, covering at least three games, places them in the upper fifty per cent of the final standings of all the players in the city. The alternative to this requirement is that the team must place first, second or third in the tournament. In the final games on the Swope Park course the boys tallied these scores: Chester Hecker and Harold Funston, 82; Bill Keeling, 87; Warren Funston, 88; Clyde Self, 90; and Paul Gordon, 95.

The final ranking of the team this year was sixth in the city.

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

BASKETBALL

The greatest interest that East has ever shown in intramural basketball was evidenced in the whole-hearted support given to the inter-class and inter-club tournaments this year. Two games were played each evening after school, and the balconies were nearly always filled with enthusiastic rooters. The inter-class group of teams was divided into an A league and a B league. Each class entered two teams, one in each league.

The Seniors A team defeated the Juniors B team 17-6, to take the inter-class championship.

The teams finished:

A LEAGUE			B LEAGUE
	W	L		W	L
Seniors -----	3	0	Seniors -----	3	0
Juniors -----	2	1	Seniors -----	2	1
Sophomores -----	1	2	Sophomores -----	1	2
Freshmen -----	0	3	Freshmen -----	0	3

An inter-club basketball league was organized for the purpose of providing recreation for the majority of boys who did not get a chance to play and also for the purpose of giving them a chance to take a "workout."

The teams were divided into an inter-club and departmental club league. The Boys' High School Club was champion of the inter-club, and the Biology Club of the departmental group.

The teams that participated were: Inter-Club: Boys' High School Club, Hamiltons, and R. O. T. C.; Departmental Clubs: Biology, Commercial, Band, Junior Glee, Art, and Kalailu.

TRACK

An indoor, inter-class track meet was won by the Juniors with an accumulation of 66 points. The Freshmen placed second, the Seniors third and the Sophomores fourth.

The meet was divided into two classes, A and B, according to the weight of the entry. The Class A was for those weighing more than 115 pounds and Class B for those under 115 pounds.

The fast sprinter for Class A was Gleason Sousley, the Junior ace, while Ernest Schwertscharf held the laurels for the Class B sprinters. Farris O'Dell succeeded in leaping 5 feet 9 inches to win the high jump for the Seniors.

PING PONG

A new field of entertainment and competition was created in the gymnasium this year by two ping pong tables that were gratuitously made in the school shops by Joe Murphree. These tables and the purchased paddles and balls became instantly popular with all the boys. Many interesting and heated battles were had in the locker room.

An inter-class ping pong tournament was soon started. The eliminating contests lasted over a month. The Freshman class champion was Ben Schanzer; the Sophomore champion, Billy Reynolds; the Junior champion, Virgil Burger, and the Senior champion, James Higgins.

In a school championship bout, Higgins easily won over Burger by the three straight game scores of 21-11, 21-19, 21-6.

HAZEL ROADS

GIRLS'
ATHLETICS

ROSE SEGELBAUM

Much could be said in praise of the Girls' Athletic Department. This section of the school's Physical Education system, under the supervision of Miss Hazel Roads and Miss Rose Segelbaum, every year justifies itself by its accomplishments. One has only to look at the improvement so evident in the young womanhood of East High School. The marked advancement in the Physical Education of the girls, and the benefits derived from it, are plainly to be seen.

Many fields of athletic endeavor are open to the girls. Some of the sports practiced in the gym classes are endball, volley ball and baseball. Each hour's gym class is classified as either a beginning or advanced group, and from each class, teams are chosen to represent that hour in the inter-class baseball, volley ball, and endball tournaments that are held throughout the Fall and Winter in the girls' gymnasium. When the weather in the springtime permits, baseball is played out of doors.

These three forms of physical exercise are not the only means of recreation for the girls. They also play basketball. Dancing is another form of exercise enjoyed by the girls. It develops control of the muscles and makes the body more supple.

This year a large group of girls from East danced in the annual R. O. T. C. Circus.

Hygiene is included in the Freshman year Girl's Gym.

POINT SYSTEM

The point system is a means by which athletic awards are earned. It enables the girls to set an objective in their minds and strive toward it. The high award given is a gold "E." They are awarded as follows:

	Points	Team Points
Gold E - - - - -	200,	including 50
Pillow Top - - - - -	150,	including 40
Large E - - - - -	100,	including 30
Small E - - - - -	60,	including 20

For being on a class team, each girl received five points. When a group hikes, each mile walked earns one point, and there are many other ways by which points may be earned.

WINNERS OF AWARDS

GOLD E: Lena Felt, Kathryn Tonge and Lucille Lane.

PILLOW TOP: Grace Burk, Lucille Cahill, Kathryn Tonge, Marguerite Wolfe and Marianne Haley.

LARGE E: Carrie Abramowitz, Jeanette Caskey, Vera Donnigan, Edna Felt, Betty Mathis, Naomi Patterson, Veneta Roberts, Myrtle Schad and Marguerite Wolfe.

SMALL E: Mildred Nixon, Ina Virginia Proctor, Veneta Roberts, Frances Davidson, Opal Harmon, Elva Jane Olson, Louise Osenburg, June Taylor, Wilma Bechtol, Yvonne Bugg, Naomi Patterson, Shirley Randol, Alice Bauchop, Esther Brown, Doris De Long, Virginia Eggelson, Marjorie Holland, Mitzi Kudernatsch, Iola Linscomb, Marian Norquist, Genevieve Pycior, Evelyn Spalding, Helen Burleson, Irene Galbraith, Pauline McHone and Georgia Sawyer.

TEAMS

Because they now have a new gymnasium in which to play, the girls' athletic department, under the supervision of Miss Roads and Miss Segelbaum, have shown a new interest in athletics.

The advanced classes and the beginning classes have their inter-class games separately. Each class this year had an end ball team and a volley ball team. Different teams are chosen for each tournament.

In the advanced classes the winners in the different games were as follows:

End Ball—Sixth hour: Lorene Seever, captain; Barbara Allen, Lucille Cahill, Vera Donnigan, Lena Felt, Opal Harmon, Lucille Lane, Elva Jane Olson, Beatrice Whitt, Marguerite Wolfe. Substitutes: Cecilia May, Grace Burk, Ella Silvey and Carrie Abramowitz.

Volley Ball—Sixth hour: Elva Jane Olson, captain; Carrie Abramowitz, Barbara Allen, Grace Burk, Lucille Cahill, Vera Donnigan, Lena Felt, Opal Harmon, Irene Higgins, Cecilia May, Lorene Seever, Beatrice Whitt. Substitutes: Lucille Lane, Marie Walker, Marguerite Wolfe.

In the beginning classes the winners were as follows:

End Ball—Second hour: Mary Luella Harrison, captain; Dorothy Breitag, Lillian Gordon, Pauline Lamanno, Betty Peckenpaugh, Esther Rumpf, Louise Saviano, Margaret Smith and Phyllis Stebbins. Substitute: Alma Jean Searcy.

Volley Ball—First hour: Louise Buzan, captain; June Fisher, Fay Godi, Anna Mary Gulick, Edith Hare, Eunice Jones, Maxine Kelley, Rose McGinley, Mary Jane Sopp.

The Athenian Club was started in December, 1929, and is advised by Miss Hazel Roads. The purpose of the club is to promote athletics, sportsmanship, and high ideals among the girls.

Chief among its activities are hiking, basketball, endball and volley ball. The girls also have pot-luck suppers.

COLONIAL DAYS

As soon as the first troubles of the colonies in the New World were overcome, the colonists devoted a part of their time to education. In 1636 Harvard University was founded, and by the beginning of the eighteenth century William and Mary and Yale were organized.

As early as 1649 the inhabitants of Massachusetts passed a law which required every town of fifty families to support an elementary school and every town of a hundred families to support a grammar school, and the other New England colonies provided similarly for the education of children.

The Girl Reserves Club of East High School was organized in 1926, the year in which East was founded. The club is a junior branch of the Y. W. C. A. and represents the highest ideals of a girl. The purpose is to find and give the best. The slogan: Face life squarely.

The theme of this year's meetings is homemaking.

The programs are varied, consisting of parties, discussions and plays, and talks by interesting speakers.

In lieu of this year's mid-year plays, the Girl Reserves presented a three-act play, entitled "Artichokes for Dinner," at the Van Brunt Presbyterian Church.

Miss Virginia McClure is adviser of the whole organization. The triangle advisers are: Miss Jessie Marie Willitt, Senior adviser; Miss Genevieve Nowlin, Junior adviser; Miss Mabel Cobb, Sophomore adviser; Miss Louise Hatch, Freshman adviser.

The Kalailu Literary Society is the oldest literary club in East High School, having been organized in 1927. It is also the only mixed literary society at East.

Kalailu was organized with these three purposes in mind: to create a greater interest in literature; to further the study of parliamentary law; to foster a finer spirit of friendship among its members. Kalailu is a Hawaiian word meaning "friendship." As a motto, the society chose "Vera amicitia omnia vincit"—"true friendship conquers all."

Activities of the year in which Kalailu participated consisted of a rush party, the "Lit" Dance, the Literary Contest, and a picnic at Swope Park.

Miss Emir Ammerman and Miss May Farr Hiatt are the advisers.

The Leundis Literary Society, an all-girl organization, was organized November 8, 1926, with these purposes in mind: to promote literary appreciation and to foster higher ideals among its members.

The society has proved its ability in the Literary Contest, tying with the Kalailu Society for first place in 1929, with the Hamilton Literary Club in 1932, and winning in 1930 and 1931.

Miss Eva Van Natta and Miss Melba Schoelein are the advisers.

The Hamilton Literary Club was organized in 1928, and still remains the only all-boy literary organization in the school.

The fundamental purpose of the club is to create a greater fellowship among its members in the study and creation of literary work.

A change of advisers this year brought Mr. Baird Parks and Mr. Garland Nichols to the sponsorship of the club.

The accomplishments of the club in the last three years indicate its advancement in literary endeavors. It placed third in the Literary Contest of 1930, second in 1931, and tied for first place in 1932.

The club is limited to forty members. Its colors are blue and white.

The Eulexia Literary Society was organized in December, 1929. It is composed of girls who are interested in studying literature and in maintaining a high standard of scholarship.

The society meets every Friday afternoon in Room 313 for a literary or social program.

It holds an annual Founders' Day Banquet, Tea, and Christmas Party. It cooperates with the other literary societies in giving the Inter-Society Dance and the Literary Contest.

The advisers are Miss Mary Latshaw and Miss Bereneice Cannon.

MODERN TIMES

Down through the ages has been developed an understanding of life and what humanity must do to solve the problems which arise. The citizens of the United States today have devised a system by which the citizens of tomorrow may learn how to conquer difficulties.

There now exists a network of grade schools, high schools, and colleges which afford education to all minors. No one within the United States is denied the privileges of a modern education. Furthermore, education is now so thorough that it not only envelops all juniors in its folds, but it is carried into the homes, churches, and other social institutions to bring about peace and harmony to all who grasp its meaning.

SCHOOL LIFE

ACTIVITIES

THE MIKADO

"The Mikado," a comic opera by Gilbert and Sullivan, was presented at East High on the nights of February 24 and 25 under the direction of Mr. John R. Wahlstedt. Besides the cast of ten principals, there was a chorus of sixty members and an orchestra of sixty pieces.

East's first attempt into the field of comic opera was a grand success. Large audiences filled the new auditorium both nights of the presentation. Over 1,500 persons attended the first night and 1,200 the second night.

The performance was colorful both as to scenery and costumes. The background was a typical Japanese scene painted by the art classes. The kimonos worn by members of the chorus were the work of the girls in the clothing classes. The performance brought many distinguished visitors to East's doors and was a success in every way.

Mr. Wahlstedt was assisted in the production by Mrs. Carrie Margaret Caldwell. Mr. Wendell M. Ryder trained the orchestra. Other faculty members whose help was indispensable to the production were: Miss Cecile Burton, instructor in dramatics; Miss Martha Abbott, instructor in art; Miss Beneta Reid, instructor in sewing; and Mr. J. N. Broadlick, who superintended the lighting.

PARENTS' ORGANIZATIONS

East High School is fortunate in the interest that has been shown in its work by the parents of its students. Three organizations have contributed much to the understanding and friendship existing between the home and school. The cooperation of these groups has been of great value to the school as a whole and to the individual student.

MOTHERS' "E" CLUB

The Mothers' "E" Club tries to promote a better understanding of athletics and their purpose. Each year this club gives a banquet at which the football and basketball letters are presented. The mothers always sit in a body at the football games and cheer for their boys. Their part of the game is to give the boys the best home conditions possible in cooperation with the coach.

The officers this year are: President, Mrs. I. D. Pierce; vice-president, Mrs. E. M. Moberly; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Frank Alexander.

OFFICERS' MOTHERS' CLUB

Two years ago, this club was formed for the purpose of keeping up cadet enthusiasm for R. O. T. C. and to provide entertainment for the boys. The club also helps financially those who are less fortunate. Benefit card parties raise money for this purpose. A party is given each month for the cadet officers and a picnic annually. Once a year, there is a dinner for the officers and the cadets who have earned special qualifications. This club is the official boosting organization of the R. O. T. C.

The officers this year are: President, Mrs. E. C. Windisch; vice-president, Mrs. G. W. Branch; secretary, Mrs. W. A. Stolper; treasurer, Mrs. E. U. Simons.

PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION

The Parent-Teacher Association was organized for the purpose of securing greater harmony between the parents and teachers and helping the student with his problems. Every member of this organization is vitally interested because his own children are to profit by the workings of the organization.

The biggest activity of the Parent-Teacher Association is the annual picnic in which the East division takes an important part. They sponsored a benefit card party this year and an open house. A parent education class running for eight weeks, one afternoon each week, was another of their activities. Gifts of money to worthy causes are made by this generous organization which has the students' interests at heart.

The officers this year for first semester were: President, Mrs. E. M. Moberly; vice-president, Mrs. Maurice Hansell; secretary, Mrs. C. E. Gray; treasurer, Mrs. Irvin Trowbridge; historian, Mrs. R. L. Harrison; parliamentarian, Mr. C. H. Nowlin. The officers for second semester were: President, Mrs. Maurice Hansell; vice-president, Mrs. E. M. Moberly; secretary, Mrs. G. M. Gowdy; treasurer, Mrs. Irvin Trowbridge; historian, Mrs. R. L. Harrison; parliamentarian, Mr. C. H. Nowlin.

THE OPEN HOUSE

Overflowing the new auditorium, the first big crowd to see East's new unit came to the official housewarming sponsored by the East High Parent-Teachers Association on the night of February 13. Parents, teachers, friends, students, and everyone else interested in East High came to make merry and initiate the new wing. The object of this Open House was to show the parents what their children were doing in school and where they worked.

In the auditorium, the East High band opened the program with "The Silver Jubilee." Mrs. E. M. Moberly, president, called the meeting to order. Mr. C. H. Nowlin, principal, then took charge and conducted the opening exercises which were the salute to the flag and the singing of "America" by the audience and a prayer by the Reverend W. R. Ferguson.

High spots of the program were speeches by Miss Annette Moore, of the Board of Education, and Mrs. Herbert Fairchild, Founders' Day chairman.

Mr. Nowlin, at the beginning of the program, extended a hearty welcome to all who were present. The Choral Club, under the direction of Mrs. Carrie Margaret Caldwell, sang "Sage of Mount Vernon," the words to which were written by Mr. Nowlin.

Miss Cecil Burton, dramatics teacher at East, read "The Chambered Nautilus," by Oliver Wendell Holmes, and "To a New High School Auditorium," by Mr. Nowlin. Mr. John R. Wahlstedt, vice-principal, sang three songs. Ferrel Heady, president of the Senior Class, explained for the benefit of visitors the arrangement of the rooms in the new unit. The program closed with the singing of the school song, "To East High School."

After this program, the visitors made a tour of the building. Each teacher was in his room. The shops and some of the science rooms put on demonstrations of their work for the visitors.

ALUMNI ENTERTAINMENT

On the night of April 13, the present students of East welcomed back to their enlarged school building those who had attended East in other days. Instead of a dance, as in previous years, the Alumni entertainment this year took the form of an Open House and Minstrel Show.

The show, "The Darktown Revelers," presented by a group of former and present East students, was directed by John "Sonny" Grogan '28. Comedy, melody, and dancing provided a colorful entertainment which pleased the audience and created a demand that this type of program be given on similar occasions in years to come.

The members of the cast were: Elizabeth Allen, Albert Allen, Bart Cook, Nedra Diamond, Dorothy Ferguson, Hazel Green, Dorothy Jean Gamble, Tommy Grogan, Ham Hampton, Merrill Hartmann, Inez Jones, Dorothy Kuster, Albert Lucas, Bob McMahon, Bertha McElfresh, Don Michael, Joe Murphree, Billy Odom, Eleanor Odom, Ruth Oldham, Frances Parrish, Mary Helen Pemberton, Gertie Ribakoff, Ella Silvey, Alice Solsberg, and Carl Wynn. Virginia Jones was accompanist for the entire company.

A few of the special features of the program were: "Darkness on the Delta," by Nedra Diamond; "Forty-Second Street," by Dorothy Kuster, a medley by Bob McMahon, and a tap dance by Hazel Green.

Before the show started, Buford Kellogg, president of the Class of '31, explained to the audience the various stage curtains, their cost and use. Both he and Faris Davis, president of the East High Alumni Association, were introduced by Ferrel Heady, president of the Class of '33.

An opportunity was provided for the alumni to see the new units in the building.

CONTESTS

MUSIC CONTEST

East High School was well represented in the annual Music Contest this year. The girl's Triple Trio and substitutes were: Mary Agin, Virginia Baum, Wanda Bybee, Nedra Diamond, Dorothy Ferguson, Doris Haynes, Marianne Haley, Irene Higgins, Martha Howard, Mildred Kraft, Alice Solsberg, Ruth Wilkison.

The soloists were Dorothy Ferguson, soprano; Ruth Wilkison, mezzo-soprano; Alice Solsberg, contralto.

The boy's quartette consisted of: Merrill Hartman, Theodore Fehrenbach, Clarence Lucas, and Oscar Robertson.

The boy soloists were: Theodore Fehrenbach, tenor; Clarence Lucas, baritone; and, Oscar Robertson, bass.

POSTER CONTEST

The clean-up campaign, put on by the Student Council, was aided by the art department in the beautification of our school this year. A poster contest and a one dollar prize was won by Frances Cypert. Those who received honorable mention were Marion Marchisio, Ruth Parrish, Helen Henderson, and Duane Pickerell. All these students with their posters were presented in assembly.

The P. T. A. sponsored a contest for advertisement of the "Dutch Detective."

DRAWING HONOR LIST

Each year those who have made "E" in Art consistently, are placed upon the Drawing Honor List. Those so honored this year are: Frances Cypert, Helen Henderson, Vincent Manley, Marion Marchisio, Ruth Parrish, Duane Pickerell and Ellis Purdy.

Vincent Manley won honorable mention in the Scholastic Awards National Contest for his design applied to leather. The award carried with it a five-dollar prize.

DANCES AND MIXERS

Several dances were given at East this year. The Student Council sponsored two mixers, one at Hallowe'en time, using the cafeteria as a ballroom. Lewis Richardson and Helen Mae Smith were elected King and Queen reigning over the Prosperity Prom, the second mixer, sponsored by the Student Council in March. The Pep Club gave a mixer to the football boys at the end of the season. The Junior Class gave a Spring Prom for the Senior Class on the night of May 19.

RAIN

(First place in Literary Contest)

The rain is wild and driving hard:
His stallions ride the gale;
The coach behind him dips and sways:
The ghostly trav'lers wail.

With maddened roar he surges through,
His eyes set wide in trance:
The stars he flicks from out his path
With not a backward glance.

On, on he goes, now steadied down
To faint and fainter beat:
His passengers, relaxing, still
Their timid prayers repeat.

The rain has passed, his carriage sped
Into the black night far:
He turns and smiles and through the clouds
He flings—a tinsel star.

—HELEN HENDERSON.

FEATURES

SENIOR CLASS WILL

Know all men by these presents, and to all whom these presents may concern, be it known that we, the Class of 1933, of East High School, of the County of Jackson, of the State of Missouri, being of sound mind and short memory, and realizing that our long expected departure from East will soon be at hand, and desirous of making full and complete provision for the final settlement of all our terrestrial cares and personal achievements, do hereby make and declare this our last will and testament, to-wit:

First: It is our final request that the student body and faculty deem our departure just cause for lamentation and will reverently dispose of our remains.

Second: To the Class of 1934 we give our Senior dignity, provided they pass it on without having added more than 99 cents to it.

Third: To the Class of 1935 we give the hope that some day they will be the bright and shining light of East that we were not.

Fourth: To the Class of 1936 we give the opportunity of initiating new "greenies" into the lore of high school.

Fifth: To all and sundry we give our carefully marked books, ponies, broken compasses, ineffectual pencil-sharpeners (such as is in 106), lunch checks on which to chew, in case one becomes overly eager for lunch, and so forth.

Sixth: We do nominate and appoint our faithful counselor and kind principal, Clifford H. Nowlin, executor of our last will and testament.

In witness whereof we have this eighth day of June, A. D. 1933, signed, sealed and declared this our last will and testament and do hereby revoke all other wills made by us.

THE CLASS OF 1933.

The signature of the foregoing will of the said Class of 1933 of East High School was acknowledged by them in our presence to be their act and deed, and we have attested the same in their presence.

BOB BARBE, of the Class of 1934

BILL MANIETT, of the Class 1935

PUDGE SMITH, of the Class of 1936

SENIOR PROPHECY

Once upon a time on a day in June, to be explicit, in the year of our Lord 1953, I sat on the veranda of my country home reminiscing. All the East High annuals were by my side, and I was reading the one marked 1933, the section, the Senior Panels. Ah, there we were in all our young, innocent (?) glory. Look! There's—but just then an old gentleman with white hair and beard, carrying a scythe, appeared before me.

"Come!" said he. I followed him without choice, for I discovered my will power had vanished. He led me to a peculiar looking machine and ordered me to enter it. He followed me. After seeing that I was comfortable, he pulled a lever and we shot into space. Suddenly we stopped with a jerk, and again I was told to follow, which I did. Then I began to realize where I was.

"East High School!" I exclaimed. Yes, there was the office, the auditorium, the library down the hall, everything. "But why am I here?" I inquired.

"You shall see," was the reply.

I was led into the auditorium and there I saw my old classmates, who were all as bewildered as I, having met with much the same experience. There was calling, embracing and crying as pal recognized pal. Then our guide went up on the stage and called for order.

"You are here to show to each other what marks my passage has left," he said. "We will begin. Ferrel Heady."

There was a ring of doom as the name was called.

"I, sir," said a squeaky voice.

"What have you become in this world?"

By Ferrel's reply I gathered that he and Bill Metcalf were professional ping pong players.

One by one the remainder of the class was called to accounts and from them I learned these facts:

Jane Stivers was owner of a Home for Lost Cats, with Helen Henderson as manager, and Rosalie Boner and Jenny McGuire as nurses in the Home.

Ed Kuhn was owner and lion tamer of the elite Squeal and Holler three-ring circus, featuring Gene Sebastian's daring tight rope act. Bud Kratz and Al Barbe were waterboys for the elephants.

Geraldine Armstrong was head of the "Home Plane Aviation Company." In the company was Sarah Gartrell, inventor of the Housetop hangar for family planes. Dorothy Kuster was hostess on one of the luxurious air liners, with Wilton Bargar as porter and Nedra Diamond as maid. Mary Agin was leader of the "Five Peppers" dance orchestra, with Ruth Wilkison on the ivories and Alice Solsberg as the crooner. Betty Dallam, Ramona Crowley and Lucille Lane were stunt fliers for the company. Rudy Beiser and Bill

Quear were co-operators of the trans-Atlantic airline sponsored by the Home Plane Company.

Doris Haynes was a missionary to Africa and Wanda Bybee was doing very nicely as a minister's wife. Her husband, the raving reformer, John Simons, was exploiting certain daring church reforms. Tom Grogan was also a minister, and Carl Wynn and Merrill Hartman were deacons in his church.

In the government of the nation were Deana Koutelas, President of the United States; Laurabelle Clark, Vice-President; Ruth Parrish, Secretary of Art; Caroline Clark, Secretary of War; Ruby Tuttle, Secretary of Labor; and Geneva Crook, Secretary of Agriculture. Virginia Baum was the beautiful Senator from Texas; Albert Abreo, Senator from Oregon, and Robert Allen, Donald Bryan, Kenneth Chaney, Holland DuBois and Clyde Kerr were Congressmen. Wilson Cooley, Ray Hennier and Kenneth Hildebrand were pages in Congress, their main duty being to carry the telegrams from the respective political bosses to their subjects. Harold Dodson was Ambassador to Turkey, and Philip Ruhl was Ambassador to jolly old England, Bah Jove!

Also in Washington was Meryl Day, driver of a sight-seeing bus, and Ernie Cooper, barker on the same bus. Thelma McDougal and Sophie Sharkut were soap-box orators, urging relief for the poor jig-saw puzzle workers.

Fidelas Reedy was a bookkeeper in the chic "Duckye Apparyl Shoppe," owned and operated by Helen Mae Smith, with Allene Johnson, Dorothy Schupp, Mary Irwin, Marguerite Wolfe, Harold Mann, Bill Utz, Marburg Lundstrom and Clarence Lucas as mannequins. Doris Bader, Lewis Richardson, Frances Fairfax and Bill Gray were salespeople.

Anna Pearl Scott, Ara Mae Anderson, Frances Davidson, Dorothy Askins, Mary Doran, Delcie Enloe, Elva Cannon, Elizabeth Potter, Geraldine Gilson, Margaret Herren, Mary Hitchcock, Maxine Schwartz, Lois Robinson, Ruth Cummins, Marietta Butler and Dorothy Ramsey were housewives, comparing notes on the price of eggs.

Winifred Kelso and Vivian Lester were famous silver-voiced songsters over Station N-E-R-T-S in New York, sponsored by the Snicker Candy Company, of which Anna Mae Calhoun was president. Among the other entertainers on the station was Harold "Windy" Wenthe, conductor of the Hooey Philharmonic Orchestra. Among the members of his orchestra were Harvey Agin, violinist, and Laurel Shippy, who played French horn. Sarah McGuire was a famous radio and stage prima donna. Helen Light was the latest radio, stage and screen siren.

Hazel Cox had found her place in life as the principal of the Swelle Educational Institute for girls. Maxine Carlson was the house mother of the dormitory, Helen Butler was the dietitian, Pauline Merritt was the cook and Rose Schanzer was her helper. As teachers were found Bessie Reams, instructor in psychology; Kathryn Martin, instructor of a course on how to keep contented husbands; Ruth Cook, instructor in physical education; Dorothy Kost, instructor of mathematics; Adah Myers, instructor in commercial work, and John Ballard, instructor in girls' military tactics.

Stanley Fahlstrom and Howard Block were celebrated Olympic stars, while John Murphy and Ed Van Deusen were water boys.

The dashing editor of a country paper was Mary Jane O'Connell. Duane Pickerell was her sports writer, Lilyan Hooper was her gossip writer, Pauline Davis and Vera Donnigan were typists, and Mack Scroggins was the janitor who invariably picked up all the copy and destroyed it, accidentally. Velma Dozier, Annamae Ellsaesser, Jean Faulhaber, Velma Hedberg, Belle McClanahan, Marion Piehler, Earline Randol, Georgia Rider, Virginia Weinberg, Dorothea Welland and Leota Millard were reporters.

Ted Fehrenbach was editor of the Woman's Home Companion, with Hilton Smith as editor of the Confidante running in the magazine. Sylvia Abramowitz and Rosella Finfrock were the brain power behind the burning tales running in the book. Marion Marchisio was the advertising manager secured by the Tear-Em-Down Advertising Agency, managed by Frances Cypert. On her staff were found the sure-fires Marianne Haley, Nettie Glenn and Ellis Purdy.

On dear old Broadway the red-haired team, Wilma Wright and Leslie Potter, were wowing them. Loretta McCurley and Kathryn Peckenpaugh were ushers in Radio City.

Mildred Moore, now Madame l'Moor, was manager of a beauty salon for men, with Janice Rupe, Kathryn Tonge, Vera Wuth and Hazel Green as operators. In the same building was the famous beauty culturist, Kenneth Berning. His operators were Paul Barnes, Donald Anderton, Lindell Branch and Joe Murphree.

Farris O'Dell and LeRoy Nelson were operating a free ice station, with Myrtle Schad and Ruth Payne as their stenographers. Their drivers were Don Tetrick, Vincent Smith, James Osborn and Lewis Lesniak.

Mildren Mosiman was president of a secretarial school; Marie Ryan was vice-president; Homer Hayward, Charles Hammon and Frank Kratschmer were instructors.

Albert Allen and Warren Stokes were insurance salesmen for the Dying Insurance Company, which was owned by Lorene Seever. The Kansas City branch was managed by June Miller and Mary Mittong. Among the other salesmen were found Jimmie Noble and Charlie Nunamaker.

In the field of medicine were discovered Otis Bleich, feminine heart specialist; Helen Wolff, head of the social workers of Kansas City, under whom were Alyce Willson, Bertha Sokoloff, George Coffin and Bill Keeling; Mary Mayes, veterinary at the stockyards; and Beatrice Cummings and Ethel Runyon, dentists.

Chester Hecker was president of the Heck Sash and Door Company, with Bill Stolper as vice-president and Althena Glasner as secretary. James Chapman, Carl Wilcoxson, Richard Nixon, James Thomas, Winfred Lynch and Vernon Laffoon were expert woodworkers in the company.

Curtis Strother was the designer of the latest television apparatus, with Fred Wallace, Bob Hawley, Bob Forcht, Laurance Russell, Hubert Cline, Carl Graham, Murl Gladden and James Higgins as his assistants.

Fritz Kellstrom was pilot of a boat on the Missouri River. His crew consisted of Buford Christie, Don Davidson, William Davis, Merl Dopp, Michael Gorzik, Clyde Graham, Herbert Gulick, Wilber Kelso, Holden Pearce and Charles Quackenbush.

Fiery Elizabeth Doane was judge of the county court; Hazel Buell was the prosecuting attorney; Eugene Cox was court clerk; Mary Eva Gibbs, Mary Frazier and Mary Greenstreet were assistants. Lena Felt, Mary Jean Stevenson, Rebecca Brackenridge, Londaline Winkle and Teresa Wisniewski were attorneys.

At length he came to my name. Martha! Martha Howard! The things around me passed away and I found myself sitting on my own front porch. My book had fallen to the floor and I was slumped over in my chair.

WHY TEACHERS GO INSANE

1. Shall we write on both sides of the paper?
2. I didn't hear the question.
3. I studied the wrong lesson.
4. I wrote my assignment but left it at home.
5. May I go to my locker?
6. I haven't any paper.
7. I was absent yesterday.
8. I don't have my excuse; shall I get an admit?
9. I lost my book.
10. My book is in my locker.

BUTTONS

By RUTH PARRISH

(First place in Literary Contest)

Chief mainstay of our civilization, example of colossal versatility, indispensable servant to humanity, we salute his royal highness, the Imperial Button. Of all devices for upholding the reputation of ourselves and our posterity the button holds undisputed predominance. Its merits are not confined to one phase of practicality, for it is a highly ornamental as well as useful attachment. We all use buttons; modern civilized man is a slave to them.

There are many kinds of buttons. There are those that babies swallow invariably and which must be extracted by vigorously upsetting the equilibrium of those unfortunate individuals. Adorning the massive chests of rotund policemen are big brass buttons designed to inspire little children with awe. Rows of buttons on ladies' dresses always excite the curiosity of children in ascertaining whether they will come out "rich man, poor man, beggar man, or thief." Shoe buttons, Sunday school buttons, political buttons, romper buttons and mechanical buttons—all are variations of an old principle with new application.

Buttons are much like people. Some gaudy, ornamental buttons are subject to the inborn desire to "show off" common in certain kinds of people who always want to be "in the limelight." Other buttons, unobtrusive, shy and plain, are of more vital use and value to the wearer than the bright, flashy ones. "Usefulness before beauty" is a motto followed by all those buttons whose duty it is to keep wearing apparel intact. They scorn their snobbish brothers whose main purpose is to make a display of their anatomy.

Buttons, these undistinguished ones, have one fault; they are utterly lacking in discrimination. To them it matters not whether they repose on a king's jeweled waistcoat or dangle irresponsibly from a bricklayer's ragged collar. The sophisticated buttons would coldly disdain the stupid drudgery of fastening coats or serving humanity in such an unromantic manner. That ignoble urge for the sensational, the fantastic, in life blinds them to the real secret of happiness through service.

Buttons are both the bane and blessing of our daily life. They make appearances in strange, unsought-for places, and decline, yes, refuse to be found when their presence is most urgent. They have a faculty for emerging from the laundry only half there. This extremely annoying situation is far more aggravating than having them show up completely missing. Distracted husbands are continually beginning at the top of a vest and buttoning down, only to come out of the struggle with the bottom button stranded. After several unsuccessful attempts to fasten the unwieldy garment, the poor man resembles a ship with its flag at half mast, the vest managing to slip off his arms in the battle and to swathe itself precariously about his waist.

The story of the exasperated old lady who committed suicide because she was so tired of buttoning and unbuttoning her shirtwaists, has always filled me with amusement, and wonder, too; for in all of my observations, I have never seen a lady of any age who considered the task of buttoning such a distasteful procedure. Men come by it honestly—the aversion to buttons. They have no means other than buttons for fastening their clothing. Women have all sorts of devices for this purpose, including snaps, hooks and eyes, brooches, safety pins, buckles, sashes and even ribbons. Buttons appear on women's apparel mostly for ornament.

An exceptional example of the decorative effect of buttons is found on the uniform of bell boys, who are broken out with buttons like an attack of brass measles. I have always thought the reason that "bell hops" were called "Buttons" was because of their ostentatious display of these badges, but I have just learned that it is because these impassive young gentlemen are always missing when they are most needed!

The romantic story of the button is a fascinating one. It involves the lives of policemen, "dough boys," chauffeurs and preachers of the present, and kings, queens, knights and warriors of the past. Long before buttons were used for fastening clothing, gay and fantastic ones were used for ornaments, while the people went on fastening their robes with thorns, pegs, ties, pins and even strings. The button is essentially a distinguishing mark of our modern civilized clothing. It was many years before some wise and far-seeing creature perceived the practical side of the button—that with a little coaxing it could be pushed through a hole and thus be made to hold two pieces of a garment securely.

In the middle of the sixteenth century, when buttons were still a novelty, there was a button craze which swept the northern European countries. In the court of King Charles I of England, handkerchiefs were decorated with buttons. Louis XIV took great pride in showing his great collection of fancy buttons made of gold and set with precious stones. He was said to have spent much time trying to decide which buttons he would wear each day. Some of these buttons had miniatures on them. Those buttons in existence today are priceless.

Buttons had a singular symbolic value to the Chinese. Five buttons on the front of Chinese coats served to remind them of the five virtues set down by Confucius. The thirteen buttons on a United States sailor's uniform represent the thirteen original states.

It is a mystery to most people why men's coats button from left to right, while women's coats button from right to left. Originally, since most people are right handed, all coats buttoned from right to left. But as the men carried swords on the left, to which they frequently referred, it was rather inconvenient to have their coats buttoned that way; therefore the manner of buttoning was changed to suit the convenience of medieval warriors. Since then the custom has remained.

Men's dress was once as fancy as women's. Take for instance the case of the lacy frills on their shirt sleeves, which often got in their soup. This inconvenience was offset by turning back the ruffles and securing them by means of three buttons on the cuff. Stiff and stately gentlemen whose coat tails were in the way when they went horse-back riding fastened them up by means of buttons. These decorative buttons on men's clothing are relics of the necessity of days past.

Just as it is a far cry from the cumbersome cart wheels of other days to the tiny balance wheels of milady's watch, so is it a far cry from the first colored rock tied on the toga to the varied buttons of today. What marvels the button performs, like a modern Aladdin's lamp. Buttons have made history. The Panama Canal was opened by the President's touching a button in New York. Cleveland's most popular act was his touching a button which opened the World's Fair in the beginning of his administration.

Speaking of mechanical buttons, we might say that we are living in the "Button Age." Just press a button and up pops your maid—if you have a maid—or a button. Press another button and an elevator is at your service. Turn a button and you will find entertainment for your every mood. By means of pressing a few buttons before the take-off, an airplane may make a trip controlled by a mechanical man. It would seem that in time the forces controlled by buttons will dominate the universe.

In the future perhaps one will have the pleasure of sitting in an easy chair at a fashionable dinner, a little silver machine with a pearl button at his side, which, at the touch of the button, will convey food to the level of his mouth, and when he opens his mouth, the device will bestow juicy morsels on his eager palate. Perhaps some day a final touch of perfection will be made by which the button will provide the energy for opening the individual's mouth for him!

Next time you see a button, remember its manifold uses and think of this little rhyme:

"Buttons, buttons, buttons!"
Forever rings the cry.
Shall we ever see the day
When we no longer sigh,
"Button, button, where's the button?"
All have one complaint,
The rich, the poor, the meek, the low,
All cry without restraint,
"Buttons, buttons, buttons!"

THE CUMMINS CASE

By GLENN WOLFF

(First place in Literary Contest)

The old printer staggered to the type case and, with an alcoholic hiccough, solemnly placed a gigantic "H" in a line of small newspaper straight matter. The foreman watched him with mingled feelings of amusement and pity.

"It's no use," he said to the shop owner. "He's too drunk to see anything, much less set type. I guess I'll have to fire him."

"I suppose you're right. I hate to do it though, for he is an expert type-setter when he's sober."

The little, stoop-shouldered, old tramp printer, George Thayer, had received many dismissal notices during the course of his wanderings. He took his hirings and firings without emotion, whether he was cold sober or "under-the-weather." Strangely enough, he thanked the man who fired him for having given him the job originally. Despite his downcast look he had a certain dignity and kindness which he frequently displayed.

The old man had one possession which he jealously guarded through his ups and downs. It was an immense gold watch. Thayer made slight objection to theft of money, but the instant anyone touched the watch, which was inside his shirt and fastened to a chain around his neck, one hundred and thirty pounds of wildcat would leap at his throat.

The depression had not affected old Thayer's varying degrees of fortune until the fall months of 1931, when Thayer became one of the army of the unemployed, a situation not unfamiliar to him. This misfortune overtook him in Kansas City, his home town. The printing business was at an unusually low ebb that year, and there seemed to be little chance of securing a job. His money was about gone and no more was in sight. He wouldn't join the bread-line on any account, for he had a bit of pride, unsuspected by his cronies at the "speakeasy," where he readily accepted drinks and food.

A few days sped drunkenly along and then the amount of Thayer's capital registered "nil" and, in like manner his "friends" shrank in number. His predicament, however, wasn't unusual enough to startle him. He knew the only thing to do was to hunt for work which he did with a technique gained from much experience.

Several days' canvass of print shops failed to reveal the slightest hope of a position. George Thayer was desperate; he staggered with weakness from hunger, and his old bones ached from the wintry blasts which easily penetrated his thin suit. He knew he must have food, yet he wouldn't ask for charity.

The one and only possession that might have been converted into cash was his beloved watch from which he had sworn never to part. However, a man will forget many promises when he is starving, and, after a night spent in an alley tossing sleeplessly about on an old blanket, he sadly decided to part with the one treasure that shared his secret.

Clutching the precious article tightly, Thayer headed for the doorway above which hung the three dirty brass balls ever associated with pawn shops. He stopped a moment in front of the grimy plate glass window and gazed in with something of scorn in his face as he saw watches of all sizes and descriptions. He slowly turned and entered the doorway.

Over in one corner a little man, of a nationality famous for its shrewdness, was bent over a piece of jewelry examining it intently with the aid of an eyeglass. As Thayer entered he straightened up and went to meet him.

"What may I do for you, sir?" he inquired with a dubious look as he observed Thayer's frayed clothing.

"I want to get a loan on this watch," came the reply as the prize was tenderly laid on the counter. "How much will you give me?"

"H'm, this is a very old model," commented the proprietor after he had carefully looked over the case and movement, "but I'll give you fifty cents on it."

An incredulous expression passed over the old man's face, and without a moment's hesitation he swept up the watch and hurried as best he could out of the shop.

"Fifty cents! Fifty cents, indeed!" he scornfully muttered to himself as he weakly staggered down the street. "I'll starve before I'll part with it for that," he vowed.

The truth of the matter was that Thayer had made so many sacrifices for his watch that it had assumed a great monetary, as well as personal value in his eyes.

That evening Thayer shuffled slowly down a dark street on the North Side looking for a place to pass the usually unpleasant night.

He presently came upon a promising nook. It was a set-in doorway to a business office, the exact nature of which Thayer was unable to determine, due to a combination of near-sightedness and poor lighting. Anyway it wouldn't have made the least difference to him if it had been the entrance to the police station.

Having picked his lodging, he slowly and cautiously lowered his aching limbs to the cold cement and, with a sigh which was at the same time a groan, he stretched full length in the doorway.

The next thing that his weary mind registered was the fact that he was being shaken, and not unkindly. He opened his eyes a mere slit and, observing that his disturber neither scowled nor appeared dangerous, he completed, with perfect innocence, the operation of waking.

Before he had time to move away or to speak the tall, slim, brown-eyed stranger inquired, "You're pretty hungry, aren't you?"

Thayer nodded silently.

"Well, here's a quarter; take it and buy yourself something warm."

Tears of gratitude and shame came into the old man's eyes.

"Isn't there something I can do to earn this?" he asked.

The stranger smiled quietly and replied, "Not unless you're a printer. I own the shop in the doorway of which you've taken up residence. I've just received word that my compositor has quit."

Thayer eagerly stated that he was a printer—a little to the surprise of the other man.

"The job won't pay much," continued the stranger, "but you can work until I get a regular man."

When Thayer had signified his desire for the job his new boss told him to get something to eat and report back to the shop within an hour.

As Thayer returned from a hearty meal with new hope in the future, he solemnly promised to himself that he would never drink another drop of whiskey.

For a week Thayer lived up to his vow and then, on the morning after pay day, he failed to arrive at the shop. Believing that he was ill, the kindly proprietor did the work himself until Thayer returned three days later.

Thayer offered no explanation for his absence and, except for a rather ashamed, down-cast expression and dark circles under his eyes, there was no evidence of the past three days' debauchery.

When, however, Thayer again disappeared after pay day, the owner began to suspect that he was indulging in a few drinks. His suspicions were confirmed when Thayer arrived the next day under the influence of cheap liquor. The owner retained him because, in his sober moments, he showed great ability. Then, too, he liked Thayer, despite his shortcomings.

It cannot be said that Thayer made no attempt to conquer his drinking habit, for he strove with all his will power to overcome it.

It was no use, though, because his mind and resistance had been subjected to the deadening influence of liquor over such a lengthy period that he was unable to resist the temptation to indulge in his vice.

One morning when Thayer arrived at the shop he was still affected by the whiskey he had consumed the night before. His condition was not noted by the boss.

He composed one job and got it ready for the press. After it had been printed it was discovered that the date was wrong. Most of the responsibility for this error rested upon Thayer. The proprietor smiled grimly and said little.

When, however, Thayer spilled an entire case of type on the floor, the boss lost his good nature and, striding angrily over to Thayer, he shouted in his face:

"You're fired!"

That night it rained and then the thermometer dropped rapidly to below zero. The next morning a policeman found a little greybearded, thinly clad man lying in the gutter. George Thayer had frozen to death.

In one hand was clutched a newspaper article evidently torn from a recent paper. In the other hand the huge watch, which was still fastened to the chain around his neck, was grasped so tightly that it was necessary to cut the tendons to secure it.

The assistant coroner read with interest the news article. It was the follow-up of a story which had appeared several days before. It read as follows:

NO CLUE IN CUMMINS CASE

No clue as to the whereabouts of Joseph Cummins, brother of Alfred Cummins, prominent Kansas City lawyer, has yet been found. Police and private detectives are still active in the search but there is little hope of success.

This wide search was recently instigated by Mr. Cummins when he found an old note among some forgotten papers, the contents of which revealed that his unknown brother had sacrificed his opportunities after the death of his parents.

Mr. Cummins explains that, as the disappearance had evidently occurred when he was but two years old he was unaware of the existence of a brother.

As Mr. Cummins is quite wealthy he states that he is anxious to share his fortune with the man who can prove he is his brother.

When the coroner placed the clipping back on the desk his face wore a puzzled expression. He wondered why this old printer whose identity had already been established as that of George Thayer could have been interested in this story. Picking up the gold watch which lay before him, he examined it curiously. As he turned it over, he noticed a worn inscription on the back. It read:

*From Mother
to My Beloved Son
Joseph Cummins*

SEPTEMBER

September 6. The jolly old daily grind opened today with a new building in which to lose ourselves and several hundred new studes. Like good little green and black cubs we polished ye old lamp in order that we might burn the midnight oil.

Bill Metcalfe leads second term Student Council.

February 17. Whoopee!! Bears defeat Vikings and tie with them for the Interscholastic Basketball Championship. What could be sweeter (other than undisputed championship).

February 23. Dear diary, my face is ruined by grease paint, my feet are sore from standing so much, and my wrists are stiff from using those Japanese fans; nevertheless, the "Mikado" was a success.

MARCH

March 1. Dear old pal, another curly-haired brunette boy is elected president of his class—Bill Maniett is chosen by the Sophomores.

March 11. Ho Hum! Time out while I yawn. These lit clubs do stage some pretty good things at times, especially that dance last night.

March 20. Rah! Rah! Rah! for the scrappiest bunch of ball players in the State of Missouri. That's one swell bunch that went to Columbia and the only thing that kept them from first instead of fourth place was lack of brawn and not brains.

March 25. What a king and queen Louie Richardson and Helen Mae Smith make, what a mixer, what an orchestra. Swellegant! Thanks to the Student Council.

APRIL

April 6. Third place, my, oh my; but that Heady boy does rate, doesn't he? Even the judges of orations at Convention Hall think so, and it's a cinch we do.

April 21. Left, right, left, right. Halt! One, two. Hello, everybody, and how do you like those uniforms? Boys, they're sumpin'! And how about the girls in white, pink, blue and green? Gee, aren't they pretty? Each R. O. T. C. Circus is a little better than the last one, isn't it?

April 28. Oh, aren't those panels and flowers gorgeous? Well, it would have to be with twenty-nine tip top Seniors up there being given the highest honor, the pin of the National Honor Society. Mary Jane O'Connell is at the very top, then come Martha Howard, Ramona Crowley, Ernest Cooper, Deana Koutelas and Harold Mann in order.

MAY

May 5. "To East High School, brave and true," and the school-at-large takes all the lit clubs for one grand ride, winning three gold medals and one bronze in the annual lit contest.

May 12. Dear little book, "Abraham Lincoln," is still a drawing card, it seems, for the Senior class played to a full house. Wilson Cooley was Abraham and Jane Stivers was Mary Todd Lincoln.

May 19. "Do unto others as you would have them do unto you, not as they did to someone else" is the motto of the Junior class in staging one grand Junior-Senior prom.

May 26. Imagine my "rebarrrassment," says one Junior or Senior to another, dear diary, after annual class day.

JUNE

June 8. Farewell to thee. Two hundred and almost twenty students go out to make a name (?) for themselves from East's stately corridors. The first class to graduate from the new auditorium—aren't we proud?

June 9. Your covers are ready to be sealed, old pal, but you've served us long and faithfully. You're not quite as fresh as you were last September, but nevertheless you're dear to us for your fond memories.

SHORT SHOTS

1. Your bank roll won't count when the roll is called up yonder.
2. A ripple of laughter is worth a flood of tears.
3. If at first you don't succeed, try some other way.
4. Don't take chances and wail at results.
5. Be firm with your enemies and fairly so with your friends.

EVOLUTION

After the telephone came the phonograph.
 After the phonograph, the movies.
 After the movies, the radio.
 And after the radio comes the collector.

John Simons: When is your birthday, dear?
 Wanda Bybee: Whenever it will be the most convenient for you.

Howard Block: Eating pickles is a sign you're in love.
 Babe Schupp: So that's why they are so repulsive!

Dear Editor: What's a good name for the Freshmen?
 Answer: "Tonsilitis," because they're pains in the neck.

John: May I hold your hand?
 Nettie: Of course not, this isn't Palm Sunday.
 John: Well, it isn't Independence Day, either.

Want ad in the K. C. Star: Wanted—House by respectable man with large bay window.

Alice Solsberg: I don't see how football players ever get clean!
 Marg Wolfe: Silly, what do you suppose the scrub team's for?
