With the close of school in June, the first decade of the life of East High School will be completed. Nine former Eastonians have pictured the life of the school from year to year. Now we pause for a brief glance backward at the busy, happy years which have made the events of our recent history possible.

Chiefly, however, this book is a record of the year now closing. With the sincere hope that it may provide an accurate account of the major events of 1935-1936 in the life of East High School, the Eastonian staff of 1936 have compiled and published this book and presented it to you. It is the product of much hard work in many lines; it represents our greatest endeavor.

If later it enables you to experience again some of the thrills, laughs, joys, sorrows, disappointments, and triumphs of this year—if it creates fond recollections of nearly forgotten friendships, and mellows the sharp memories of lost acquaintances—if it immortalizes those who have made great the name of East High School and have set higher standards for future students to aspire to—if it brings honor to our school by keeping alive in you its progressive and highly estimable spirit, this Eastonian of 1936 will serve its purpose well, and our duty is completely fulfilled.

DEDICATION

Clifford H. Nowlin

This book, into which we have infused our labor, our interest, and our joy—the Eastonian of 1936—we now dedicate to our beloved principal, Mr. Clifford H. Nowlin, in appreciation of his considerate and patient care throughout our years of schooling.

Mr. Nowlin has been a leader for us in other ways than in those pertaining to academic education. He has labored to teach us the value of a good character and the importance of abiding by the Golden Rule. He, himself, has excelled in honesty, love, dependability, virtue, and service, and has tried to inculcate these principles in our minds. His delicate sense of art in poetry has shown him the beautiful side of life which his generous soul shares with every student with whom he comes in contact.

Throughout the ten years of the school's history, Mr. Nowlin has shown enthusiasm for his work and has devoted his attention to making East a school worthy of his pride. His untiring efforts to raise its scholastic standard and to build strong personalities among its students have been fruitful enough to give East a high rating among the Kansas City schools.

For these efforts we wish to express, with this token, our humble thanks, as we carry with us always a guiding vision of Mr. Nowlin, a kind and unselfish school patriot.

THE EASTONIAN

Shaded View

Year by year our school grows, not only in the scope of its activities, but in its physical beauty. In 1926 it stood, a square, box-like first unit, in the midst of a large, bare field. Today its campus is adorned with shrubbery and the shade of trees. The small frame structures to the north of the building are now long a thing of the past. The handsome new south wing was opened when the members of this year's graduating class were freshmen. Today, to the west and north of the school, are taking form an athletic field and a garden with shelter houses, which will surpass anything of the kind possessed by any other school in the city. Truly our school is becoming more and more a thing of beauty. In the long days ahead, may the years we have spent in it live in our memory as a joy forever.

BOOK II

In Retrospect

That the progress of the community is marked by the progress of the schools has been proved by the rapid growth of East High School from a small pioneering educational venture to a large and established institution. Within ten years East High has risen from the rank of a newly organized school on the east side of Kansas City to an important position in the extensive educational system for which this city is so favorably known. It is fitting that here at the close of East High's tenth year a review be given of the events which have raised the school to the enviable position which it holds today.

Early in 1922 there was much discontent among the parents of East Kansas City, many of whose children were forced to go great distances to attend high school. This sentiment was solidified that same year when the East Side Improvement Association went before the Board of Education and presented, in a convincing manner, the necessity of a high school in this section of the city. After extensive deliberation, the Building Committee decided that the site on Van Brunt Boulevard, owned by Mr. R. A. Long, was most suitable. Mr. Long had purchased the property years before with the intention of building a hospital there; but plans were changed and the hospital was built elsewhere. As a result of negotiations with Mr. Long, a resolution was passed by the Board of Education on October 23, 1923, providing for the purchase of sixteen acres of ground for $75,000 and the acceptance of Mr. Long's gift of the remaining eighteen acres. Thus was the thirty-four-acre site of East High acquired. In 1925 the cornerstone was laid and the first unit was constructed at a cost of about $391,000.

The school opened in 1926 with Mr. Clifford H. Nowlin heading the list of thirty-three faculty members as principal. During the first year many clubs were organized, and many athletic and other contests were held. The music department won honors; and the East Echo received first place in the Missouri Interscholastic Press Association Contest in its first year of publication. Seven members of the first graduating class were elected into the National Honor Society, and were to receive their pins when East received its charter the following year. The First Annual Outburst was also held that year.

The school year 1927-1928 marked further advancement from both the scholastic and activity standpoint. Twenty-two members of the Senior Class attained membership in the National Honor Society. A rapid growth of school spirit was noted. The Kalailu, Leundis and the Hamilton Literary Clubs competed in the First Annual Literary Contest. The Kalailu Club won.

Athletics and the R. O. T. C. made 1928-1929 an important year in the annals of East High. Entering the Interscholastic League, the school carried off the basketball co-championship. It then went to Columbia and returned as the state champion. The R. O. T. C. unit received a cup as a result of its high ranking in the city rifle matches and another for placing as one of the three best battalions in the annual inspection. Early in 1929 Mr. John R. Wahlstedt became vice-principal. The first Junior-Senior Day resulted in a victory for the Juniors. The Second Annual Literary Contest was won by the Leundis and the Kalailu Literary Clubs, which tied for first place.

In December, 1929, the Eulexia Literary Club was organized. The Bruin was adopted to replace the Gazook as a school emblem. The R. O. T. C. staged its first military hop. The dramatics department came into prominence with the production of three short Mid-Year Plays and a Senior Play.

Again East held the Interscholastic League spotlight when it won the football championship in 1930. Leundis won the Literary Contest for the second consecutive year. The Outburst, the Mid-Year Play and the Senior Play were the leading entertainments of the year. In March of 1931 Miss Florence Wingert, teacher of shorthand and typing at East, died.

The 1932 school year was darkened somewhat by the deaths of two other members of the faculty. On August 15, 1931, Mr. Ewing B. Avery, an instructor of history and German, died suddenly. Hardly had East overcome the shock when the death of Mr. W. D. Hifner, woodwork instructor, occurred on December 4. In the 1934 Literary Contest the Leundis and Hamilton Clubs tied for first place. Second place honors in the Missouri Interscholastic Press Association were won by the East Echo. In February of that year the R. O. T. C. Rifle Team entered a four-state match at Kemper Military Academy and fired the highest score ever fired by a high school team to that date.

The extremely crowded conditions in 1932 led to the construction of the second unit to the school at a cost of $378,900, bringing the total cost of construction and purchase of property to $846,156. Additional equipment which has been added from time to time has put the building into the million-dollar classification. Besides a new gymnasium, auditorium, cafeteria and many class rooms, the new addition provided equipment for a branch public library. In February the Kensington branch moved to East with a total of almost 15,000 books. Since then the number has been increased to almost 18,500 volumes. In 1933 two of the four full tuition scholarships offered throughout the state by Washington University were won by East High Seniors, Ernest Cooper and Ferrel Heady. For the first and as yet the only time, the school-at-large won the Literary Contest. John Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln" was the first play to be directed by Miss Cecile Burton, who joined the faculty that year. Gilbert and Sullivan's comic opera, "The Mikado," furnished classic, yet humorous, entertainment. At the close of the football season East received permanent possession of the Dartmouth Alumni Trophy. The basketball team won the Interscholastic League co-championship and placed fourth in the state.

The following year East placed first in both football and basketball. The school also received permanent possession of the Naismith Basketball Trophy. Both this and the Dartmouth Trophy were awarded to the team having the highest ranking in both scholastic and athletic ability. Again Leundis won the "Lit" Contest. The dramatics department received much praise over its remarkable production of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" on Thursday, April 23. The R. O. T. C. Circus was held the following night in the new Municipal Auditorium. The Junior-Senior Day was May 22, and the Senior Play May 28.

As one looks into the probable future of East High, many advancements are to be expected. These ten years have marked an unforgettable era in the history of East. One sees the opening of a complete athletic stadium in the future, and the construction of the third unit, which will probably contain a swimming pool and many other features which have long been desired. Rapid development of property on the East Side, development of Fifteenth Street, of U. S. Highways 40 and 24, and the extension of Twenty-third Street to and beyond the Blue River will undoubtedly result in a great increase of population in this section of the city. Such a situation would be reflected in the enrollment of East. One may be assured that "The Shape of Things to Come" at East will embody a larger and more beautiful school and campus, where the students will cultivate the physical, intellectual and spiritual attainments of a full and happy life.

GREETINGS AND FAREWELL!

To the seniors who are graduating, a gesture of farewell!

We have traveled together for four years, and now you are not being put off at a siding, but you are transferring to the University of the World. Here's wishing you a well-earned success with the big curriculum.

To the teachers and underclassmen, Greetings! Let us make our vacation a time for preparing to attain greater heights next year. May we return in September bearing freckles and tan, and filled with the undying spirit of youth.

Your friend,

[20]

Mr. John R. Wahlstedt
Vice-Principal

"A greeting to the school?" repeated Mr. Wahlstedt. "I'm not good at writing greetings."

And so our genial vice-principal continues to give his oral greetings which we all know so well: "Good morning, Betty." "How are you, Jim?" "How goes it, old man?"

To those who have known him as adviser in the office, as inspiring teacher in the classroom, as playfellow on the picnic grounds, Mr. Wahlstedt is the ideal host, whose greeting makes one feel at home. To all who enter East he extends the glad hand, as if welcoming them to a large family in which he is the big brother.

THROUGH TEN YEARS WITH THE EAST HIGH FACULTY

With the organization, in 1926, of East High School, a milestone toward the fulfillment of our city's dreams of education, there came the task of choosing a faculty worthy of guiding the youth of the East Side.

In the laying of the foundations of East High School, Mr. Clifford H. Nowlin played a leading role. He and Mr. John R. Wahlstedt, together with a number of teachers, transferred from several of the high schools and took upon themselves the responsibility of making the new school one of the best in the city. Mr. Nowlin, formerly principal of Northeast Junior, now took on the title of principal of East; and two years later, Mr. Wahlstedt, who for the first two years was teacher of music and science, became vice-principal.

Accompanying Mr. Nowlin and Mr. Wahlstedt from Northeast Junior, were the following faculty members: Miss Martha Abbott, Miss Ruth Robinson, Mr. J. C. Cohlmeier, Miss Celia Waring, Miss Virginia McClure, Miss Pearl Jenkins, Miss Jessie Marie Willitt, Miss May Farr Hiatt, Miss May Sadler, mathematics; Mr. W. D. Hifner, joinery; and Miss Eva VanNatta.

This same year Miss Emir Ammerman, Miss Marie Burrus, Miss Doris Callahan, English; Mr. Roy Davidson, history; and Miss Beneta Reid, were transferred from Central High School to the new East.

From Manual Training High School came Miss Florence Wingert, commerce; Miss Genevieve A. Nowlin, and Miss Anna K. McGloin. From Westport Junior came Mr. W. M. Grube, and Miss Gertrude Brueser, music.

Miss Louisa P. Johnston came from Northeast Senior; Mr. W. S. Esther, Mr. Garland Nichols, Mr. Ralph E. Tiefel, and Miss Nelle Ambrose, Spanish, were out-of-town teachers. Miss Evelyn Gilchrist formerly taught in the McCoy School. Miss Grace H. Burnett was the manager of the cafeteria. Miss Mary Latshaw, and Miss Laura Preston, foods and mathematics, were new to the "teaching game" when they entered East. Mr. B. W. McDaniel, in January, 1927, entered East from Gillam, Missouri, where he had been superintendent of schools. Sergeant Howard was appointed R. O. T. C. instructor.

During the year 1927-1928, the following teachers entered East: Mr. Ewing Avery, history and German; Miss Katrina Baldwin, English; Miss Clara Boulton, mathematics and counseling; Miss Frances Cheatham, English; Mr. John M. Finn, commerce; Sergeant Robitsch, R. O. T. C. instructor; Mr. W. A. List, band; Miss Pauline Hindman, cafeteria; Miss Hazel Lesh, nurse; Miss Minnie Baker, Mr. J. N. Broadlick, Miss Bernice Cannon; Mr. Franklin Rose, botany; Miss Hazel Roads, and Miss Edith Tarbet.

The years that have followed have seen many more members added to the East faculty: Miss Melba Schoenlein, biology; Mrs. Carrie Margaret Caldwell, Miss Stella Sutermeister, English and newswriting; Miss Rose Segelbaum, Miss Anna Hughes, foods; Mr. E. F. Thelen, Miss Dora Hansen, nurse; Miss Helen Wilkin, Mr. W. M. Ryder, Miss Dorothy Varney, Miss Vee Flinn, Miss Mabel Cobb, Miss Louise Hatch, Mr. Baird Parks, Miss Alice Sutherland, Miss Cecile Burton, Mr. L. C. Monroe, Mr. J. A. Stadler, Mrs. Frances Romine, Sergeant Earl Ruth, R. O. T. C., Miss Amanda Rucker, Mr. Allen T. Whisamore, Sergeant Harry E. Strider, Miss Alice Walton, Miss Helen Johnson, Miss Marie Crow, Miss Mary Sisson, Miss Nora Boone, and Mr. James Curtis.

Several of the persons mentioned above are no longer with the East High faculty. Three have passed away, some have been married, and others have taken up new duties. At the present day East High School is an excellent example of a highly organized, co-operating body. Each department, under the leadership of competent men and women faculty members, has at one time or other been distinguished in civic, or even national activities.

The English department strives not only to teach the English language as a tool for gaining success in life situations, but to open up the field of literature as a source of pleasure and of an enriching and understanding of life. The teachers of English this year are: Mr. Nichols, Miss Burrus, Miss Rucker, Miss Tarbet, Miss VanNatta, Miss Waring, Miss Cannon, Miss Hatch, Miss McClure, and Miss Varney.

To promote straight and accurate thinking, as well as to lay the foundations for scientific studies, is the aim of the mathematics department. The following are the mathematics teachers: Miss Ammerman, Mr. Broadlick, Mr. Curtis, Miss Flinn, Miss Sisson, Mr. Tiefel, and Mr. Whisamore.

The broadening influence which knowledge of the language of another nation has upon a student is impressed upon those who come into contact with the department of languages. Those who study Latin under Miss McClure are convinced that Latin is not merely a background for the study of English, but that it may be interesting for its own sake, especially when the time comes for the annual Roman Banquet, a feast served in true Roman style. Miss Cannon's Spanish classes teach not only the language, but also the customs, of our neighbors south of the Rio Grande.

The science department teaches its students to understand something of the biological and physical world around them, and to use in a practical way some of the knowledge gained in the courses. Miss Ammerman, Miss Boone, Mr. Broadlick, Mr. Esther, Mr. Grube, Miss McGloin, Mr. Whisamore, and Miss Hatch are the instructors in these fields.

The social science department, through its teaching of past and present institutions, attempts a task of vital importance—the making of good and intelligent citizens. The members of this department are: Miss Hiatt, Miss Jenkins, Miss Johnson, Miss Latshaw, Mr. McDaniel, Miss Segelbaum, Miss Willitt, Mr. Curtis, and Miss Hatch.

To prepare a student for a job that will earn him a living after he has left high school is the object of the commerce department. This department enables its students to put their knowledge to good use for school projects. In this department are Miss Baker, Miss Cobb, Miss Crow, Mr. Esther, Miss Johnston, and Mr. Parks.

Directed by Mr. Monroe and Mr. Stadler, the industrial arts department provides instruction which may afford boys a livelihood in the future, or which will at least make them "handy about the house."

Miss Nowlin and Miss Reid offer in their courses a study of foods and clothing and of many allied subjects which contribute to the making of an attractive and well-managed home. This department sponsored an extensive fashion show and foods exhibit this year.

The fine arts department not only offers opportunity to those persons who expect to make themselves artists in their fields, but affords the amateur in art, music, or speech, an appreciation of these subjects which will enrich his life. Miss Abbott is instructor in art; Mr. Wahlstedt, Mrs. Caldwell, and Mr. Ryder, in music; and Miss Burton, in speech.

Not only for those who play in competitive interscholastic athletics, but for all those who engage in athletic and gymnastic work, the physical education department provides guidance in spiritual and mental, as well as physical, development. Mr. Cohlmeier and Mr. Thelen direct the boys; Miss Roads and Miss Segelbaum direct the girls; and Sergeant Strider instructs the R. O. T. C. boys.

The study halls, under the direction of Miss Gilchrist and Miss Boone, are "life savers" in this day of swift education.

The office force, headed by Mr. Nowlin assisted by Mr. Wahlstedt, performs duties too numerous to mention. Miss Robinson, registrar, and Miss Wilkin, clerk, keep the complicated records, answer questions, and endeavor to relieve the principal and vice-principal of the hundreds of minor problems which arise every day. In the office of the counselor, Miss Hatch, students are aided in the solving of any and every type of problems, whether academic, personal, or financial.

Many hours of profit and pleasure are spent yearly by the average student in the East Branch Library. Miss Rachel Agg is librarian. The children's department is under the direction of Mrs. Maude Martin. Assistants in the library are Miss Sarah Bower, Miss Idris Smith, and Miss Mary Ross. Robert Crees and Preston Russell are pages.

Under Miss Alice Walton, nurse, the health department has carried on a program which has emphasized the importance of preventing disease, as well as curing it after it has begun. An important project this year has been the campaign for better posture in which the whole school engaged.

No room in the school is more popular than the cafeteria. Headed by Mrs. Romine, an efficient staff prepares appetizing meals. Miss Grace Booker is cafeteria cashier. Assistants in the cafeteria are Miss Irene Jones, Mrs. Lorea Henley, Mrs. Mary Audsley, Mrs. Hazel Tonge, Miss Alice Edwards, and Mr. Fred Clarke.

No large building can be run without an efficient staff of custodians. Mr. William Shelley, head custodian, and Mr. Jess DeMoss, engineer, are the heads of an organization which keeps the school plant running smoothly. Assistants are Mr. William F. Vogel, night watchman; Mr. Theodore Carter, Mr. William Dickson, Mr. Herbert Krout, and Mr. V. W. Swartz.

These constitute the personnel of the East High School organization. So sufficient to itself does East High School seem to the average student, that he sometimes does not stop to realize that East is only one member of a much larger family. Over this larger family presides a wise and kindly superintendent, Mr. George Melcher. His able assistant and the high school supervisor is Mr. John L. Shouse. Directing the entire Kansas City school system, is a group of public-spirited men and women who give their valuable time and talents to the schools of Kansas City without remuneration. The Board of Education this year consisted of the following: Mr. Robert L. Mehornay, Miss Annette Moore, Mr. A. O. Thompson, Mr. Wallace Sutherland, Mrs. Frank E. Dorsey, and Mr. Herman M. Langworthy. Mr. C. W. Allendoerfer is treasurer, and Mr. George C. Tinker, secretary and business manager of the Board. It is these civic-minded men and women, and their predecessors, as well as the loved and familiar persons in our own school who have made possible this first prosperous decade of East High School.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Miss Louise Hatch, Adviser

Ten years ago, under the sponsorship of Miss Nelle Ambrose and Miss Pearl Jenkins, the Student Council began its career as student governing body of the school. Adopting as its position that of intermediary between the faculty and students, the council began working to remove many school problems, to promote better faculty-student understanding, and to bring about a more satisfactory attitude towards school, its activities, and one's associates, on the part of everyone.

To carry out this policy, the organization has met once each week after school hours, to deal with specific problems brought in by the representatives of the home rooms. The organization consists of a representative from each home room in the school, from whom are selected four students, one from each class, to form an executive board with the officers. This board acts as an advisory committee to select and pre-arrange business to go before the council.

Since 1926 the position of Student Council sponsor has been taken over, first by Miss Mary Latshaw and Miss Bereneice Cannon in 1929, and finally by Miss Louise Hatch, school counsellor, in 1932. She has led the council over many a rough road, and the respect and love of the body have made it "her organization."

The Student Council has entered many activities, but among the most important of these to the student body, at least, are the mixers which are the main "get-together" social functions for the school. The three mixers which the Student Council sponsored this year were all successes. The first of this trio was the small afternoon mixer, the object of which was just generally to "get acquainted" and to learn how to dance. The admission was but five cents a person.

The next was the Halloween mixer, a far more elaborate affair, with black cats and witches on broomsticks running rampant. The sweet music for the "customers" to dance to was provided by Harold Hartmann's orchestra. Various diversions were presented in the form of ping pong, cards, and an entertaining floor show.

The last Student Council mixer on the night of April 3, was well planned and all went smoothly as on newly oiled rollers. The "syncopators" at this mixer were Judson Cooper's orchestra. A new policy was inaugurated by the new council, under the direction of Ted Taylor, when the floor show was presented in the auditorium during intermission. Several well-known school entertainers composed the program.

For your remembrance are here given the past presidents of the Student Council organization.

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

Realizing the ambition of their four years' life at East, thirty-one seniors were inducted into the National Honor Society in an impressive ceremony on May 15. The purpose of the organization is to recognize superior attainment in the four cardinal principles of scholarship, leadership, character, and service.

The service opened with a prayer by Ruth Draper and a Scripture reading by Phyllis Stebbins, followed by an effective address by the Rev. Claude W. Sprouse, Dean of Grace and Holy Trinity Cathedral. The history of the organization was explained by Arnold Leweke, and the symbolism of the emblem by Kenneth Heady. Ted Taylor represented scholarship; Bill Gibbs, leadership; Helen McCreedy, character; and Vera Murphree, service.

After the ceremony the members met and elected the following officers: Kenneth Heady, president; Ted Taylor, vice-president; Phyllis Bedingfield, secretary; Bill Slater, treasurer.

The faculty committee, who compiled the scholarship and activity points, arranged the program, and planned the annual banquet for the organization, are as follows: Miss May Farr Hiatt, chairman; Miss Martha Abbott, Miss Evelyn Gilchrist, Mr. J. N. Broadlick, Mr. R. E. Tiefel, and Mr. John R. Wahlstedt.

SCHOLASTIC HONOR ROLLS

Each semester students who have earned distinction in scholarship are placed upon an honor roll. For achieving this distinction one year a student receives a bronze "E" pin; for two years, a silver pin; for three years, a gold pin. The fourth year he receives a guard for his pin.

Those who attained the honor roll first semester were as follows:

Twenty points: Vera Murphree and Ted Taylor.

Nineteen and one-half points: Ruth Lee Williams, Beverly Raymond, and Norman Mercet.

Eighteen and one-half points: Evelyn McDonald.

Eighteen points: Ona Woodward, June Stites, Georgia Sawyer, Archie Clarke, Dorothy Smith, and Alvin Seiff.

Seventeen and one-half points: Dorothy Breitag, Helen McCreedy, and Olga Meyn.

Seventeen points: Vivian Strandberg, Mary Virginia Stoltz, June Stanton, Bob Shornick, Smith McDonald, and Edith Gaba.

Sixteen and one-half points: Wanda Ball, Bobby Boehm, Rose Ellen Brown, Robert Cohlmeier, Paul Flucke, Maxine Kelley, Ruth McComas, Helen Sharts, Phyllis Bedingfield, Alice Woodward, Ted Weis, and Helen Stewart.

ART HONOR SOCIETY

The Art Honor Society is the ultimate goal to which the budding Da Vincis may attain. To be admitted to this city-wide society, one must excel in art, and though the peak is hard to reach the reward is well worth the years of work.

Those in the Art Honor Society are: Guy Allen, Marvin Andrews, Otis Bennett, Paul Clarke, Dorothy Craig, Bill Gibbs, Lionel Golston, Edwin Gray, Charles Grube, Mary Belle Haworth, Fred Kautzman, Alma Koiner, Norman Kratschmer, Gene Lefebvre, Irma Lowman, Jerry McKinney, Louise Saviano, Lyla May Shope, Gunter Stave, Mary Virginia Stoltz, Mary Jane Tipton, Maurice Viets, Mary Louise Wilson. The judges ranked Bill Gibbs first, Gunter Stave second, and Fred Kautzman third.

POSTURE HONOR ROLL

With "Posture is an expression of the mental and physical state of an individual" as a slogan, Miss Walton, nurse, Coach Cohlmeier and Sergeant Strider launched a posture campaign which resulted in the election of thirty members to the Posture Honor Roll. Too, the posture of the entire school was greatly improved and chests were held high and shoulders thrown back.

STATE MUSIC CONTEST

At the State Music Contest held in Columbia this year Barbara Smith for the third time secured a first honor rating of excellent for her exceptional ability with the cello. Too, Vivian Abreo received a first honor rating for her piano solo and Ellen Gray was awarded a third honor rating for her piano selection.

TYPING HONOR ROLL

For those typing students who achieve "mastery of the typewriter keys" there are various awards. The ability of these typists is evidenced by the pin which they receive. For 40 words per minute with less than three errors a bronze pin is awarded. The awards go as high as the rates and accuracy do.

This year the following persons received typing awards: Hazel Lewis, Mabel Denton, Esther Rumpf, Edith Johnson, Pauline LaManno, Lois Hambel, Betty Peckenpaugh, Laura Gray, Geneieve Gregg, Louise Pickrell, Joe Sheeley, Wilma Crawford, Marjorie McGuire, Kathryn Tucker, Ellen Gray, Lorraine Haley, Georgia Smiley, Bette Cornett, Mary Joe Fischer, Helen McCreedy, Virginia Moberly, Evelyn Poe, Margaret Hackett, Dorothy Breitag, Chester Cross, Bernice Anderson, Olga Meyn, Phyllis Highman, Emilie Wheeler, Dorothy Craig, Mary Jane Sopp, Dorothy Jessen, Mary Virginia Stoltz, Norman Mercet, Louise Saviano, Rose Mary Burns.

At the state typing contest at Columbia on May 2, Edith Gaba won second place in accuracy.

Senior Activities

We present for your remembrance the leaders of the class activities, the officers of '36.

Kenneth Heady	President
Bill Slater	Vice-President
Ellen Gray	Secretary
Sam Bower	Treasurer
Loye Trower	Sergeant-at-Arms
Cecil Finrock	Reporter
Leland Gordy	Giftorian
Mary Jane Tipton	Girl Mascot
Marvin Andrews	Boy Mascot

Kenneth Heady, at the head of his class for the last three years, is one of a long line of illustrious Senior leaders. Ten years ago the first Senior president took his place. Now, these men who have left stand as memories: Ted Dettweiler '35; Dennis D. Cubine '34; Ferrel Heady '33; Gordon Shumaker '32; Buford Kellogg '31; Ralph N. Morgan '30; Louis Galbraith '29; Joseph L. Bargar '28; Carl Grabau '27.

"We must have our fun," say the Seniors. Though advertised as somber and gloomy affairs, the Senior "flings" are really events to bring an envious and hopeful expression to the faces of underclassmen. Read on, for the fun begins.

The Senior dance at Ivanhoe will be a long remembered May 2 for the graduating class. Swirling evening gowns trailed the floor, with everyone attended by a "gentleman for a night" striving to look his best, and take the fancy of his lady fair as well as everyone else. The gleaming hall and the flashing orchestra, "The Cavaliers," went far to make the affair a festive occasion—and the refreshments were reported to be "swell."

Save for its different location and change of orchestra, the same things might be said of the annual prom, which the Junior provided. The highest praise that can be given it is that of the Seniors, who called it better than the one given by them to the Senior class of the year before.

Field day gave the class the chance long awaited, to do as they pleased, amuse the school with freshman antics, and have a general rough and tumble free-for-all. The laughing girls and roustabout boys were hardly to be recognized as the same swaggering, dignified upper classmen who will soon sit solemnly and seriously to receive their diplomas as the climax of four years of work. "Our day" said the Seniors and they made it their day of days.

As a symbolic gesture, perhaps, the upper class leaves to the school's remembrance, and will end their year with, "Is Zat So?" It may be an insult to the school's intelligence for the Seniors to present a comedy for their final entertainment, but maybe the class desires to be remembered with a laugh. It's a good play, and a good cast.

SENIOR PROPHECY

I entered the bus, and settled myself and my baggage. Thinking over my prospective trip back to Kansas City from New York, I found that I was looking forward with pleasure to seeing old friends.

Glancing from the window, I was startled to see a vaguely familiar face. For an instant I couldn't place it, but of course, Ferrod Stumbo! He looked so different after fifteen years that I hardly knew him. And he was going to be driver of my bus, too! As he came in the door, I called to him. He told me that Richard Thompson, Bernard Lanoue, Floyd Boosman, Thomas Elley and Ted Grebowiec were drivers for that same company.

Imagine my surprise when Ferrod called my attention to a man walking by the window carrying a brief case. I recognized Fred Kautzman. He came to the window and told me that he was going to lecture at an artists' colony outside Los Angeles. His invitation to speak there had been extended by Mary Belle Haworth, and signed by Gunter Stave, Otis Bennett, Kathryn Haberkorn, Dorothy Craig, Guy Allen and Mary Virginia Stoltz, all residents of the colony. I asked him to say hello to these people for me and he went on to his bus.

As I watched him walk away, I became conscious of a queer bumping sound in the bus. I looked up to see what was wrong, and there coming down the aisle was Laurence Test carrying two violins. Before I could do more than speak to him, Charles Guinn came up to us. It seemed that they two traveled together over the country playing at square dances. They were a sensation in a mild way. Their destination was Cleveland, Ohio. Hartford Mathis, president of the American Farm Association, had invited them to play at the annual dance of the association. They said Wilma Crowley was secretary of this organization. Laurence and Charles were glad that they could attend the big baseball game to be held in Cleveland the day after the dance. It was to be a unique game, for the only all-woman's baseball team in the world was going to play the winner of the Major League pennant. I had read in the paper of this feminine team, and remembered that Mary Jo Fischer, Geraldine Collins, Bette Cornett, Ruth Draper and Mary Fowler were members of the team. Bill Easterman was the team's manager.

We stopped in Akron for a while en route to Cleveland. Of course, I went to the airport to watch the planes come in. While I was there, a passenger plane landed, and who should get out of the cockpit but Earl Allen! Following him were Betty Jo Dyer, Viola White and Isabelle Adams, who were air stewardesses on his plane. When I talked to them, I discovered that Walter Driscoll, Glen Hedberg and Bob Ragsdale were pilots on the same passenger line, while Hazel Lewis, Edith Johnson, Esther Rumpf and Erlene Conley were stewardesses.

Just alighting from the plane was Evelyn Poe. Of course, I had read of her sensational rise to film stardom as a result of her tap dancing. She remembered me, so I drove to her hotel with her. She said she had come to Akron to visit Dorothy Jendrasiak, who had married the president of the Akron airline and now lived there. I was surprised to hear that many of my former classmates at East were in Hollywood. I had seen a few of them, such as Nellie Martin, the "hit girl," Nadine Orr, the Irish lassie who was one of the most popular actresses, Wallace Lewis, the handsomest man in films, and Kenneth Heady, star of the stage and screen, who was said to be the greatest actor since the days of George Arliss. I did not know, however, that the former Gladys Hill was the mother of little Teddy Barrie, the juvenile screen star, nor did I know that Dorothy Erker, Jewell Hall, Lorraine

Haley, Kenneth Kay, Robert Agin and Gertrude Castor were extras in the films. Evelyn said that Robert DeHart, Clint Cloughly, Norman Mercet and Robert Burns were scenario writers. I recalled that Arnold Leweke, with Phil Blum as assistant, had directed Evelyn's last picture.

As I left Evelyn's hotel, I saw Mary Virginia Thomas. She was married and living in Akron, where her husband owned a chain of grocery stores. We decided to eat lunch together. As it happened, Lawrence Henze was the waiter in the place we entered. He had worked his way around the world and was trying now to save enough money to get back to Kansas City.

After lunch, we went to the new stage show downtown. On the billboards we recognized the faces of Jean Gray and Jessie House as the stars. We recognized, too, Leonard Santoro, billed as Ted Adair, the greatest tap dancer of all time. After the performance, we went back stage to see them, and there we found Helen Sharts, Katherine Greene, Dorothy Miller, Grayce Hays, Bernadine Newton and Dorothy Hughes dancing in the chorus.

After leaving them, I went back to the bus station. Our next long stop was to be in Cleveland, so I looked for nothing interesting to happen until we reached there.

My conclusions were correct, but immediately upon arriving in the city, things began to pop. As I stepped off the bus, I noticed a big crowd of women. There in the center on a soap box was Dorothy Breitag, loudly urging the members of her sex to sign a petition to Congress asking that the woman's name be taken as the family name instead of the man's. There on her right as campaign managers were Phyllis Stebbins and Mildred Walters. Among the crowd I saw Phyllis Bedingfield, Gertrude Goldsworthy, Margaret Chess and Thelma Jensen, all loyal supporters of the cause. I read the petition and noticed that it was addressed to Congressmen Bill Slater and Gene Patterson, who were supposed to feel favorably toward this movement. They were criticized a great deal for this attitude, especially by Ted Taylor, congressman from Missouri, who stubbornly stood up for the rights of the "stronger sex."

This meeting was being held before a tall, imposing building which was the City Bank of Cleveland. This bank was famous because Lois Hambel, the only woman bank official in the United States, was the president. I remembered Lois well, also her assistants, Mildred Cummings and Dorothy Jessen. Sam Bower, Marvin Ellison, Sam Hileman and Cecil Finfrock were all cashiers in this bank.

Here in Cleveland was the world renowned "Boss's Helper Secretarial School." I had heard so much about this school and the perfect courses offered that I determined to visit it. There I found Chester Cross as principal, with Betty Peckenpaugh and Louise Saviano as his ablest teachers. Mildred Martin, Ruth Talbott, Russell Robinson, Ann Simcoe, Geneieve Gregg, Joe Sheeley and Alma Koiner were all on the teaching staff in this school.

When I visited the largest automobile plant in Cleveland, I was shown through it by Frank Peterson. Charles Russell, Ben Schanzer, Maurice Viets, Harley Wyatt, Wilson Teed, Bill Anderson, George Branski, Elvin Durns, John Gartrell and Don Kimble were all working here.

These boys told me that June Fisher and Margaret White were working in the office of that plant. They also said that Charles Wheeler, Glenn Stark and Bill Gibbs were in the executive department of this concern.

From the automobile plant I visited the world-famous settlement of little people, called the Tiny Town Tourist Camp, just outside of Cleveland. The first persons I saw there were Mary Jane Tipton and Marvin Andrews, joint owners of the tourist camp. Estelle Lee, Frank Brown, Georgia Brownfield, Lynn French, Eugene Hughes, Lester Jones, Mildred Nixon, Mary Saathoff, Maxine Kelley, Alma Jean Searcy and Walter Smith all lived here in the half-size houses. Robert Martin was publicity agent for this venture, and did they have publicity!

I arrived back in Cleveland just in time to catch the bus. We were in Chicago before we stopped again for any length of time. Here I planned to stay overnight, as I had to change buses anyway.

As I walked through the city, I saw a huge picture of Georgia Sawyer over a theatre. She was the star of a stage play being given there. Leland Gordy was playing opposite her as the male lead. In her supporting cast were Hilda Balke and Betty Jane Rider.

While I was in Chicago I visited one of the greatest broadcasting studios. I was surprised when I saw Kenneth Stinson and Theodore Marsh announcing programs. One of their most popular features was Pauline La Manno's all-girl orchestra, composed of Ellen Gray, Mary Louella Harrison, Mary Jane Sopp, Marjorie Klotz, Georgia Gilson, Mary Connor and Mabel Denton. Because of their soft voices, Mary Jean Blackburn and Alice Woodward were the "Lullaby Ladies" on this station. Another popular program was the fifteen-minute song review, sung by Glenna Brewer. Her fan mail was equal to many of the popular movie stars. During my visit at the studio, Loye Trower and Gene Reardon, both world champion wrestlers, spoke over the Sports Review, conducted by Robert Hall and announced by Elmer Peelle.

That evening I attended the opera and there was Phyllis Highman singing the leading role. There, too, were Harold Reynolds and Glenn Miller, the masculine leads. After the performance, I hurried back stage to congratulate them, and there were Charlie Simpson, John Klotz, Dallas Blair, Ora Lee Meador, Bill Canon, Eugene Moore, Leslie Cory, R. J. Shepard, John Hinrichs and Justus Motter, all members of the stage crew. Myrtle Parish, Bonnie Siler and Delyte Chism were in charge of the wardrobe.

As it happened, that night Inger Simonsen, the famous interior decorator, was back stage congratulating her classmates, too. She invited me to join her party that night. Of course, I accepted, and was glad I had when I found that Mary Ellen Toler, Dorothy Lyon, Olga Meyn, Edith Hare and Elaine Clements were entertainers there. As luck would have it, Russell Cottrell, prominent lawyer and "man about town," was seated at the table next to ours. Marjorie McGuire and Bernice Anderson, the famous dress designers, and Harry Rode, professor of psychology at Chicago University, were in his party.

The next morning, as I read my paper, I found a review of John Gilpin's latest book. He had continued writing, after graduating, and had achieved some success. Glancing through the pages of the paper, a full-length picture caught my eye. Homer Erickson! Reading the story by the picture, I found that he was to represent America diving in the 1951 Olympics. Forrest Clark and Ernest Taylor were going with him to make up a team.

Reading on the women's page, the name of Hazel De Shazer fairly leaped at me. She was to speak that afternoon at an Advanced Home-Maker's Club meeting. Rose Mary Burns, Laura Gray and Martha McPeck were prominent members of this organization.

Hurrying back to the bus station, I saw Marion Herrell and Lawton Riggs. They both were professors at Chicago University and were going to Kansas City for the summer.

When we arrived in my home town, Kansas City, it seemed good to me to walk along the familiar streets again. The first different thing I noticed was the imposing front of the De Long Hosiery and Gown Shop, owned and operated by Marvin De Long. Louise Pickrell, Margaret Hackett, Geraldine Murphy and Leeta Belle Snow were saleswomen here.

Walking up the street gazing interestedly about me, I ran right into Owen Souther, who was a member of the Kansas City police force. He told me that Charles Teeple, Charles Redenbaugh, Robert Holmes and Edgar Rogers were also policemen.

Presently I saw a sign, "Women's Shoppe for Men." I was curious about this odd title, so I went in to investigate. I was met by the door by Fay Claxton, owner of the store. Wilma Crawford, Helen McCreedy, Elizabeth Quackenbush, Norma Frazier and Marian Nielsen were working here. They said their work was very interesting because most of the customers were men. Fred Cunningham, a prominent Kansas City lawyer, and Clarence Roberts, head usher at a downtown theatre, were two of their best customers.

They told me of a Walkathon being held in the city. Virginia Moberly, Jack Reardon, Don Lewis, Emilee Wheeler, Forest Snowden and Kathryn Tucker were all entered in this show. Kathryn and Don had won several Walkathons and were ranked as near-professionals.

As I started to leave the shop, Fern Butler and Margaret Smith came in. These girls were happily married. They were buying new "stiff shirts" for their husbands to wear to the annual Firemen's Ball. Jack Moore was in charge of this ball, to be held in the Stoneburner and King Hall, which was owned jointly by John King and Gilbert Stoneburner. Juanita Warden, popular blues singer, had been engaged for that evening.

I left the shop, and there in front of a big department store was Bill Moore, carrying a sign with "Unfair to Organized Labor" spread across it. I gathered that he was quite a big shot in labor organizations.

I noticed a clever sidewalk cafe across the street. It seemed to me to be a novel idea, so I went over to look at it. I recognized the waitress as Virginia Bowman. She and Wilma Gamble owned the little cafe and were making a big success of their idea. Ernestine Andrew and Velma Campbell worked as waitresses there, too. They said their greatest competitor was the B. A. D. Lunch, owned by Darrell Tinsley and Harold Childers. Georgia Smiley was waiting tables there.

After talking to them, I hailed a taxi. As I stepped in, the driver looked at me and said, "Vera Murphree, I thought I recognized you." He was George Villarreal. He had been driving a cab for a long time and now was writing a book on his experiences.

At last the cab drew up before my door. My head was reeling from the terrific effort of remembering all those names and faces. Finally I was safe at home. With a sigh of relief, I opened the door and went in.

The main objective of the Kalailu Literary Society is to promote the usage of formal parliamentary law. The club was organized in October, 1926, to create a greater interest in literary works and to foster a finer spirit of friendship among the members. From the latter objective of the club comes its name, which means "Friendship," and its motto, "True friendship conquers all."

The club won second place in the Literary Contest last year and tied for second this year. One of the most distinctive sideshows in the Outburst was presented by Kalailu.

The club sponsored two parties this year: one, a Halloween party and the last, an annual dance given after the literary contest.

Miss Emir Ammerman and Mr. J. N. Broadlick are the advisers.

The Leundis Literary Society was organized November 8, 1926. It is one of the all-girl clubs of the school. The name Leundis symbolizes three principles of the society—learning, understanding, and discernment. This year the society tied for second place in the annual literary contest.

Initiation of new members started the list of activities. Then an apron and overall dance, the annual Hamilton-Leundis after contest party, followed. Again the "Follies" was presented with unusual success at the Outburst.

The advisers of the club are Miss Eva Van Natta and Miss Vee Flinn.

The Hamilton Literary Society was organized in February, 1928, to encourage higher ideals of literary and parliamentary life. It enjoys the honor of being the only all-boy club at East.

Starting slowly at first with the initiation of new members, the activities gained headway rapidly. A Hamilton-Leundis annual party celebrated leap year. Finishing this rush of activities came the annual picnic.

The club has made a good showing in all the contests, having tied for first, and having won the contest in 1935.

Because of the similar name, the Hamilton Watch Company has become the donor of a Hamilton watch to successful literary contestants during the successive years.

Mr. Garland Nichols and Mr. Ralph Tiefel are the advisers.

The Eulexia Literary Society is composed of a group of girls interested in literature. It is the youngest club of the school. Its objectives are the encouragement of original writing and the promotion of a greater appreciation of good literature.

The club is distinguished by a large number of outstanding students and leaders. This year it won the ninth annual Literary Contest.

Miss Marie Crow and Miss Mary Latshaw are the advisers.

MEDAL WINNERS

Third Row: Gordy, Easley, Taylor, Burns, Mercet.

Second Row: Santoro, Stoltz, Williams, Smith.

First Row: Stites, Hartmann, Murphree, Bedingfield, Meyn, Sawyer, Raymond, Haley, Gaba, Breitag, Chess.

The ninth annual Literary Contest, on April 23, 1936, inaugurating the new policy of free admittance, drew one of the largest and most appreciative crowds that had ever been in attendance at one of the yearly events. The Eulexia Club, an all-girl organization, emerged winner with a total of fifteen and one-half points. In a tie for second place were Leundis and Kalailu, each with twelve points. School-at-large was third with nine points and the Hamilton Literary Society, the winner of last year's contest, was undisputed holder of fourth and last place.

THE STABLE

By MARGARET CHESS

Winning Poem of 1936 Literary Contest

Here is the drowsy buzz of flies,
The bleating of a wakeful calf,
Gray mist without; a lantern gleam
That shows the flying dust of chaff;
A dry chain rattling through a ring,
The strong, sweet tang of warm horseflesh,
The lowing of a beast that scents
The breath of dawn—cool, clean, and fresh;
The shuffle of the horses' hoofs,
Deep sleep, the smell of hay as when,
Long since, great kings came to adore,
While in the straw there knelt wise men.

THE SILVER SPOONS

By VERONICA WILLIAMS

Winning Short Story of 1936 Literary Contest

In an old mahogany chest, carefully wrapped in cotton, six beautifully engraved, treasured teaspoons repose after two centuries of use. However, they were not always teaspoons.

Down the sunny street of the little town of Richmond, Virginia, hastened a slender, dark haired girl. Behind her perplexed brow, her mind seemed to race on, even ahead of her hurrying footsteps. Turning into a majestic iron wrought gateway, which, although used for horses and carriages, was nearer than the walk, she fairly flew over the lovely sweep of lawn, her long, full skirt billowing about her.

Her old playmates, the lofty trees which stood like regal sentinels along the drive, gently beckoned to her with their leafy arms. However, she had no time or thought for them now. Her whole, beautiful little world, in which she had happily lived for sixteen years, seemed to be crumbling around her head, crushing her, stifling her.

The precious basket which she carried, felt very heavy, and a slight shudder ran over her body as she thought of the trouble she had had in purchasing its contents. In all of Elizabeth George's sheltered existence, she had never before had to go to market to purchase food. Still, war, devastating war, had changed her whole well ordered life in a few short months. Now, the slaves could not be trusted to do the buying, for it was almost impossible to get any food at all.

At last, gaining the side door of the stately southern mansion, Elizabeth ran to the kitchen with her heavy burden. Leaving it on the table, she ran to find her mother.

"They're coming! Oh, mother, the British are coming!" she sobbed.

Her mother cried in alarm, "Are they near yet?"

"Oh, yes, they are just down the road about a quarter of a mile," Elizabeth exclaimed, breathlessly. "There is a large force under the command of Benedict Arnold, and they're plundering everything that they can pile into their wagons."

"Come, we must try to hide what we can. Were you able to get any food?" Mrs. George called back as she ran out of the room, Elizabeth close behind her.

"Yes, I bought all that the money would buy, but the whole countryside has been so ravaged by the British, that there is scarcely any food to buy. We've just got to save that food in some way. Oh, if father were only here," cried Elizabeth.

As they ran down the long, gracefully curving stairway, the mother exclaimed, "Oh, my dear, we must hide the silver! It is the only really valuable thing we have left."

"Mother, our beautiful old silver! I couldn't stand it if those 'Red Coats' should get it."

"Putting all sentiment aside, we must save it, because our money is practically gone," Mrs. George answered soberly.

"We've got to hide it quickly, because they will be here in a few minutes," Elizabeth exclaimed.

"The secret panel will find use at last," said her mother.

"No," Elizabeth reflected, "That is what they will look for first. I'm sure of it. I know! We can pry up some of the boards in the back porch floor. Hurry!"

"Call one of the servants. I'll start carrying the silver out." Mrs. George started toward the dining room.

"No, mother," warned Elizabeth, "we will have to do it ourselves. If any of the servants knew, they would give it away. They wouldn't mean to, but the British are very shrewd."

Elizabeth flew to the kitchen, procured a large knife, and knelt on the floor of the enclosed back porch. The small boards slowly gave way, and she removed four of them. Mrs. George returned with all of the silver she could carry. Elizabeth stowed it away as her mother brought it from the house. It was extremely difficult to fit the fine, heavy old platters, pitchers, and candlesticks into the space.

As the last sugar bowl was fitted into place, there came a thundering knock upon the front door. It echoed and re-echoed through the house. It appeared to stun the two women for a moment.

As the mother tried to fit the first board into place, she ordered, "Elizabeth, you go to the door, and keep them there as long as you can."

The girl walked slowly through the house, striving to regain her poise. As she reached the reception hall, another knock resounded through the house, causing her to tremble. She gathered her courage and forced herself to open the door. She faced a man in the brilliant uniform of a British Officer.

"Are there any men here, madam?" asked the officer, in a gruff voice.

"No, my father is away," answered Elizabeth.

"Fighting?" came the quick query.

"Yes," the girl replied.

"On which side?" demanded the "Red Coat."

"In the service of his country," the girl calmly declared.

"Then you are Rebels?" he accused.

"Patriots, sir," answered the girl, curtsying.

The British Officer turned abruptly, and ordered:

"Search the Rebel house. Take anything that's valuable."

British soldiers streamed into the stately reception hall, after the officer.

"Please, sir," Elizabeth addressed the officer in command, "don't wreck our house. If you'll tell me what you want, I'll try to get it for you."

"You don't need to bother," brusquely answered the officer. "We'll find what we want. Men, tap the walls! There are always secret panels in these houses."

Elizabeth stood indignantly by as the soldiers swarmed over the front part of the house.

Suddenly, one soldier shouted, as he heard the hollow thud which came from the wall near the stairway. The soldiers crowded around as they prepared to smash the wall.

Elizabeth stood watching them, parrying for time. Then she ran over to them and begged:

"Don't do that. I'll open it for you."

With the slight pressure of her finger, the heavy oak panel slid back, revealing a small dark room.

The soldiers crowded around the opening, investigating. In a moment they turned, with rather sheepish looks upon their faces. The room was empty.

As the party moved swiftly through the house, Elizabeth feared that they could hear her heart beating, as it nearly suffocated her. The soldiers had reached the kitchen.

Thinking that she might detain them longer by offering food, she took the precious basket from the chimney, where a servant had hidden it. Nevertheless, even this sacrifice did not restrain them long. The officer strode across the room, jerked open the back door—her mother was not there.

The boards were all in place, and not a trace remained to show what had occurred. Elizabeth caught a glimpse of her mother in the garden, sedately cutting flowers.

Elizabeth felt dizzy with joy, jubilant. She wanted to dance and sing, and shout.

After thoroughly searching the house, the slave quarters, and questioning the slaves, the hated "Red Coats" finally departed, carrying with them what small valuables they could find.

The mother and daughter flew into each other's arms, and wept with joy and relief.

Many years later, part of the silver was melted and made into spoons, which now lay, carefully wrapped in cotton, in an old mahogany chest, treasured reminders of long ago.

CLOUDS

By EDITH GABA

Winning Essay of 1936 Literary Contest

Is there any form of nature more beautiful or more necessary to us than clouds? Yet, do we ever stop to think how useful are those odd-shaped masses of mist floating in the sky? On a hot day, how welcome are a few clouds which curtain off the sun and give us relief from its piercing rays! How refreshing are the cooling raindrops from the clouds when all the plants are thirsty for water and the ground is dry and parched from lack of moisture!

Because the clouds are so varied in form and ever-changing in beauty, they are always fascinating to watch. The eye can sometimes see mile upon mile of great white mountains of billowing mist stretched across the heavens. Such glorious masses of curving foam and misty nothingness have a matchless beauty which seems to fill one with awe and wonder. Certainly no earthly peaks, no matter how beautiful, possess the majesty of these unending ranges of snowy white in the heavens.

During my childhood days, I cherished a strange desire to climb these soft, gleaming cliffs of cloudland in my dreams. I wondered what mysteries one might see as he scaled the craggy side, what fathomless, foamy white abysses he might discover as he rounded the curving slopes and went on, up and up the towering pinnacles to opal summits, shimmering in the sunlight.

Many times I have taken great delight in finding pictures in the great moving panorama of the clouds. I have seen all kinds of animals formed in those ever-changing mists—huge, clumsy elephants; humpbacked camels; long, scaly alligators with trailing tails; waddling ducks; fluffy little Persian cats; startled rabbits; and frisky, scampering billy goats.

The clouds are always changing in color as well as in form. There are soft, Quaker grey clouds; heavy, black storm clouds; the rosy clouds of dawn; sunset's glorious clouds of flaming crimson, orange, purple, and gold, which slowly change to blue and lavender as the glowing rays of the sun fade and twilight begins silently to weave her shadowy veil over the earth. Perhaps the most common clouds of all are the snow white clouds. They seem to me to bring an atmosphere of peace and contentment over the world. On a magic moonlit night, I have sometimes seen silvery clouds which appeared so because of the radiant moonbeams shining through their soft mistiness.

Dark grey or black clouds always seem to suggest rain to us, but they may bring many different kinds of rain. There is a gentle, drizzling rain, swaying and shifting with the wind. There are the bold, bragging raindrops which make splotches on the pavement but soon evaporate. Too, there is the slow, steadily falling rain which pats musically on the roof and drips monotonously from the eaves. There is the fierce, beating rain which bursts angrily forth from the heavens in raging torrents. With it we associate the crashing storm. Then the thunder reverberates through the sky. The wind rides in all his fury, bowing trees to the ground before him. Fingers of lightning dart across the black sky like quicksilver.

To me there is something wonderful, yet frightening, about the crash and whirl of a storm. The raging elements make one feel so small and insignificant. To think that mere clouds can bring such darkness and floods of water over the earth! What great mystery and power they hold within their depth!

Clouds are present in the sky almost all of the time. It is they who usher in the dawn, and they again who bid the day farewell when twilight comes. Even before the great golden sun peeks his head over the horizon, the rosy little clouds of morning announce his coming. His first glowing rays caress them and suffuse the eastern sky with radiant light. All through the day the clouds follow the sun across the heavens, sometimes hiding his face from our sight. At evening when the weary sun begins to sink slowly behind the western hills, they once more glorify the heavens by reflecting his bright beams and illuminating the sky like a many-colored mirror.

Clouds have played a leading role in the history of the world. They are mentioned often in the Bible, and always with significance. When Jesus was crucified on the Cross, blackness came over all the earth, and clouds darkened the sun. Likewise, in His ascension to heaven, clouds played an important part. He was taken up into the sky and "a cloud received Him from sight." When God gave the Ten Commandments to Moses on Mt. Sinai, "there were thunderings and lightnings and thick clouds." Clouds have served as the medium of God's communication to man through all time. In ancient Bible days, He spoke from a cloud on many occasions.

Millions of years ago when there were no animals, plants or other living things upon the earth, there were clouds. Scientists tell us that then the earth was hot, so hot that the water boiled and the air was full of steam all the time. Nothing could live because of the intense, burning heat. Great clouds of steam rose into the air, causing continual thunder storms. The clouds were so thick then that the sunlight never reached the earth. But finally, after long ages, the world began very slowly to cool. The clouds scattered; and the bright sun shown down, chasing away all the gloomy darkness and eerie shadows from the earth. The rain from the clouds was no longer turned into steam by the hot rocks, but soaked into the thirsty, parched ground.

Thus clouds have always been one of the most essential things in the world, as well as one of Nature's greatest beauties. Even in ancient times, man no doubt realized how dependent he was upon the clouds. Perhaps the savage cave man prayed to them for rain. In his crude thoughts, he probably admired their glorious beauty of form and color and wondered at such magnificence just as we do today. But never in his wildest dreams could he have imagined that thousands of years later men would fly above his cloud-gods in machines created by the master mind of some great genius.

Besides their beauty and usefulness, let us consider what a great influence clouds have had in the culture of the world. Thousands of poets, musicians and artists have been inspired by them and have attempted to interpret their matchless beauty in verse, in song, and on the canvas. Many of our most beautiful poems, songs and paintings are of clouds. Yet, could the cold, written or printed words of man ever adequately describe the great majesty and glory of these gypsies of the heavens? Truly they possess a spiritual beauty which we must see to appreciate fully.

Yes, the clouds are nomads. Always they wander on through the heavens, carefree and unfettered. I have often wondered if the people of all other countries may be looking at the same clouds which I see. Whether it be a toil-worn peasant, a stately king, or a South Sea Island native, he no doubt marvels at their loveliness of form and color just as I do. He, too, may wonder how far those billowing mountains of pearly white mist extend. Who knows, perhaps sometimes they touch the gates of heaven!

Three important departments of the school co-operate in the final presentation of the Eastonian to the students. This combination in itself shows the scope of the project. These three major divisions, the English department, the art department, and the business department, are represented by Miss Dorothy W. Varney, Miss Martha Abbott, and Miss Minnie Baker, respectively, as advisers to the various staffs. Mr. Baird Parks directs the student staff which secures advertising for the yearbook, and Mr. W. M. Grube has charge of group photography.

1932-1933

- September 6 —School opens with new addition in use.
- November 30 —Mothers' "E" Club holds annual banquet.
- February 17 —East's basketball team wins co-championship.
- February 24, 25—Music department presents "The Mikado."
- May 5 —School-at-large for first time, wins Literary Contest.
- May 12 —Seniors present "Abraham Lincoln" as class play.

RESERVE OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS

In all the ten years of East's existence the R. O. T. C. has been one of the largest organizations. The object of the training offered in this department can be stated no better than as it is prescribed by the War Department:

"The general object of this course is primarily to lay the foundation of intelligent citizenship by inculcating into the student habits of precision, orderliness, courtesy, correctness of posture and deportment, leadership, respect for and loyalty to constituted authority; and secondly, to prepare him for further military instruction which will qualify him for a position of leadership in time of national emergency."

The history of the R. O. T. C. Battalion at East has been varied. The battalion was organized the first year under the leadership of Sergeant Howard. A change of instructors the following year brought Sergeant Robitsch to East. In 1928 the East Battalion presented a calisthenic and a platoon drill, as well as a jumpstick relay at the annual R. O. T. C. Circus.

In the fall of 1928 Sergeant James T. Jenkins, who had formerly been stationed at Jefferson Barracks, St. Louis, was stationed at East. Holding many expert marksmanship medals and awards, Sergeant Jenkins perfected many championship rifle teams. In 1929 the East Battalion received two silver trophies, one of which was won by the rifle team, and the other by the unit for placing as one of the three best battalions in the annual inspection. In 1930, the rifle team won another silver cup; and the crack platoon presented a silent manual drill at the R. O. T. C. Circus. This platoon was under the command of Cadet Captain Arthur Viets, a brother of Cadet Captain Maurice Viets '36. The crack company, also under command of Viets, placed third in field day, and received the corresponding trophy. The school year 1930-1931 was a big year for the R. O. T. C. and brought many additional awards. In the Seventh Corps Area Match East's Rifle Team had two high point men, Richard Bruce and Richard Branch. These cadets won gold and silver medals. The rifle team also won a five-state match at Kemper Military Academy. In another match at Kemper the following year, the East R. O. T. C. Rifle team won a four-state match, by firing a score of 739 out of a possible 800. This was the highest score ever fired by a high school team to that date. Also in 1931 East placed fourth in the Hearst Trophy Match, competing against four hundred twenty-two teams throughout the entire United States. In 1932 East's team defeated over four hundred other rifle teams, and won the mid-sectional championship; and the following year placed third in the mid-west sectional match.

In 1934 Sergeant Earl Ruth was appointed military instructor. After serving only a few months, Sergeant Ruth retired, and his position was filled by Master Sergeant Harry E. Strider, who had been stationed for many years previously at the University of Minnesota. Early in 1935 Cadet Major Carl Hall was promoted Cadet Lieutenant Colonel, second-in-command of the Kansas City R. O. T. C. regiment. This year Bill Gibbs of East was also promoted to that high rank.

CADET LIEUTENANT COLONEL BILL GIBBS

East's R. O. T. C. Battalion was organized soon after the beginning of school with Bill Gibbs and Glen Stark as second lieutenants. From these positions they have advanced to the ranks of lieutenant colonel and cadet major. One of the first events of the year in which the R. O. T. C. participated was the annual Armistice Day Parade. A policy was adopted this year of holding officers, and non-commissioned officers, meetings every Tuesday afternoon following the close of school. When the weather became warmer, battalion parades were substituted for these meetings.

This year an R. O. T. C. Band was organized with Paul Fischer as drum major. Regulation officers' hats and citation cords were purchased for the band.

The cadets revived the custom of holding a military ball, on February 29.

One of the biggest days of the year for the R. O. T. C. was April 24. In the morning a military assembly was held, in which Mr. George Melcher, superintendent of Kansas City schools, spoke on the values of R. O. T. C. training. A demonstration was staged on the campus following the address. That night East presented a Lentz Cadence Drill at the R. O. T. C. Circus. On May 5 the annual War Department inspection was held. Cadet Sergeants Robert Coffland, George Bleich, and Lowell Dodson were presented gold, silver, and bronze medals, respectively, at Field Day, May 15.

The complete organization of the East R. O. T. C. Battalion for this year was not effected until almost the middle of the school year. Bill Gibbs and Glen Stark received the first two cadet officers' commissions. From their original ranks of second lieutenant, they have advanced respectively to the positions of Cadet Lieutenant Colonel and Cadet Major. From time to time, and as a result of many competitive practical and theoretical examinations, other cadet officers and non-commissioned officers have been appointed.

The Battalion Headquarters of the East High R. O. T. C. unit this year is headed by Cadet Major Stark and consists of Cadet Captains Maurice Viets and Jack Reardon; Cadet First Lieutenants Phil Blum and Franklin Campbell; and Cadet Second Lieutenants Robert Burns, Melvon Ireland, and Charles Russell.

The Art Club was the first of the departmental clubs to be organized in East High School. Its purpose is to facilitate the study of art and to assist and encourage the activities around the school. The design of the pin represents a tube of paint with the letter "E" inscribed and a brush behind the tube. The club mascot is an orange and blue palette with brushes for legs.

The club makes sketches, water color drawings, and chalk outlines at most of the meetings. This year it has presented marionette shows at the University Women's Club, Woman's City Club, Oakwood Country Club, St. George's Church, and at the annual East Outburst.

Miss Martha Abbott and Miss May Farr Hiatt are the advisers.

In order to create a more typically Spanish atmosphere and to learn something of the cultural development of the Spanish speaking peoples, the second year Spanish classes are organized as clubs.

These clubs, which meet every other Thursday, have their own specially elected officers who endeavor to present interesting and instructive programs. The great Spanish writers are studied briefly. Oral reports are given on the most famous literary works. The outstanding Spanish painters and their masterpieces are discussed. The strange customs of celebrating national holidays, the thrilling excitement of a "corrida de toros," the wonderful religious processions, and the historic monuments at Granada and Seville—all these arouse the students' interest.

To give added pleasure the club members sing such songs as La Paloma, Amapola and La Cucaracha. The meetings are conducted in Spanish as far as it is possible. Spanish games are played which aid greatly in increasing the vocabulary. Through these club organizations the students acquire a more intimate interest in the everyday life of the Spanish speaking peoples. Miss Bereneice Cannon is adviser.

The Latin Club was organized under the direction of Miss Virginia McClure. The members hope to gain a better knowledge of everyday language, customs, etc., through the reading of Latin classics.

Not only does this club delve into stories that bring to life the splendor of ancient Rome, but also they have discussions on the effects of Latin on modern times and what remaining traces of pure Latin words may be found in the English language.

The big event celebrating the year's work is the Roman banquet. Here the students for a few hours, bedecked in Roman costumes, live the life of typical Romans.

The Commercial Club is one of the largest and oldest departmental clubs in the school.

The Club attempts to provide supplementary information to the commercial students, through trips to manufacturing and business houses, speakers on business subjects, demonstrations of business machines, and information on occupations and job getting and job holding. The Club also provides social activities for the students, the main feature this year being the Halloween party.

Miss Louisa Johnston and Miss Marie Crow are the advisers.

CLUBS

Inasmuch as extracurricular activities are becoming increasingly important in the life of the average student, it is indeed fitting that a number of clubs, including both departmental and literary, should be organized. Not only has their existence provided pleasant social fellowship among the students, but through their programs they develop the qualities of leadership that are indispensable in student education. Thus these organizations justify themselves by the work they are carrying on.

Because the departmental clubs have no intra-mural activity at which, like the Annual Literary Contest, members of the different organizations can compete, these groups are not thus inspired to further their existence in school life. But the thought resting in every member's sub-conscious mind that maybe some day he will be the leader of his group, and the realization of the pleasure and education derived from being a member, have helped keep these clubs an active part of this institution.

Besides all this, the existence of the clubs is justified by the decreasing amount of ignorance concerning the rules of parliamentary law and the increasing advancement of interest and appreciation in the type of work they are doing.

Aside from their great benefit to their respective members, the four literary societies entertain the school at the annual Outburst and the Literary Contest, and provide excitement and merriment for the entire student body.

The parents' organizations are also great assets to both members and the school. The Parent-Teachers Association was the promoter of the jolly afternoon spent at Fairyland Park, May 20.

During the ten years of its duration on the East Side, the Boys' High School Club, or Hi-Y, a part of the Young Men's Christian Association, has increased to such a large membership that it was necessary to divide it into three organizations.

The club was organized in 1926 to create, maintain, and extend high standards of Christian character throughout the school and community.

Speakers are procured for many of the meetings, and members are encouraged to express their opinions about the talks.

The club sponsored a "smokeless smoker" in the East gymnasium and held banquets and outings as a part of its work to make life more enjoyable for the members.

Mr. Lee Grace has charge of the hut, and is adviser to the boys.

Parent-Teachers Association

Whenever the school needs financial backing or some type of entertainment, the East Parent-Teachers Association is ready to supply it. The club sponsored the Harvest Moon entertainment on November 1, and the annual Parent-Teachers picnic on May 20 at Fairyland Park. It has also sponsored several class demonstrations at its meetings in order that the parents may more fully understand the work being carried on in the school.

To provide financial assistance for students who need help in order to gain a high school education, the East P. T. A. gave several benefit parties. It has also contributed to the Gold Star Fund, Caroline B. Ullman Student Loan Fund, Mary Harmon Weeks Foundation, and the East Hi-Y.

The parent education classes were under the instruction of Miss Julia May Ward of the Kansas City Teachers College. During the past year the classes studied as topics, "Mental Health," "Disturbing Factors with Which the Adolescent Has to Contend," and "Adjusting the Rate of Living."

Mothers' "E" Club

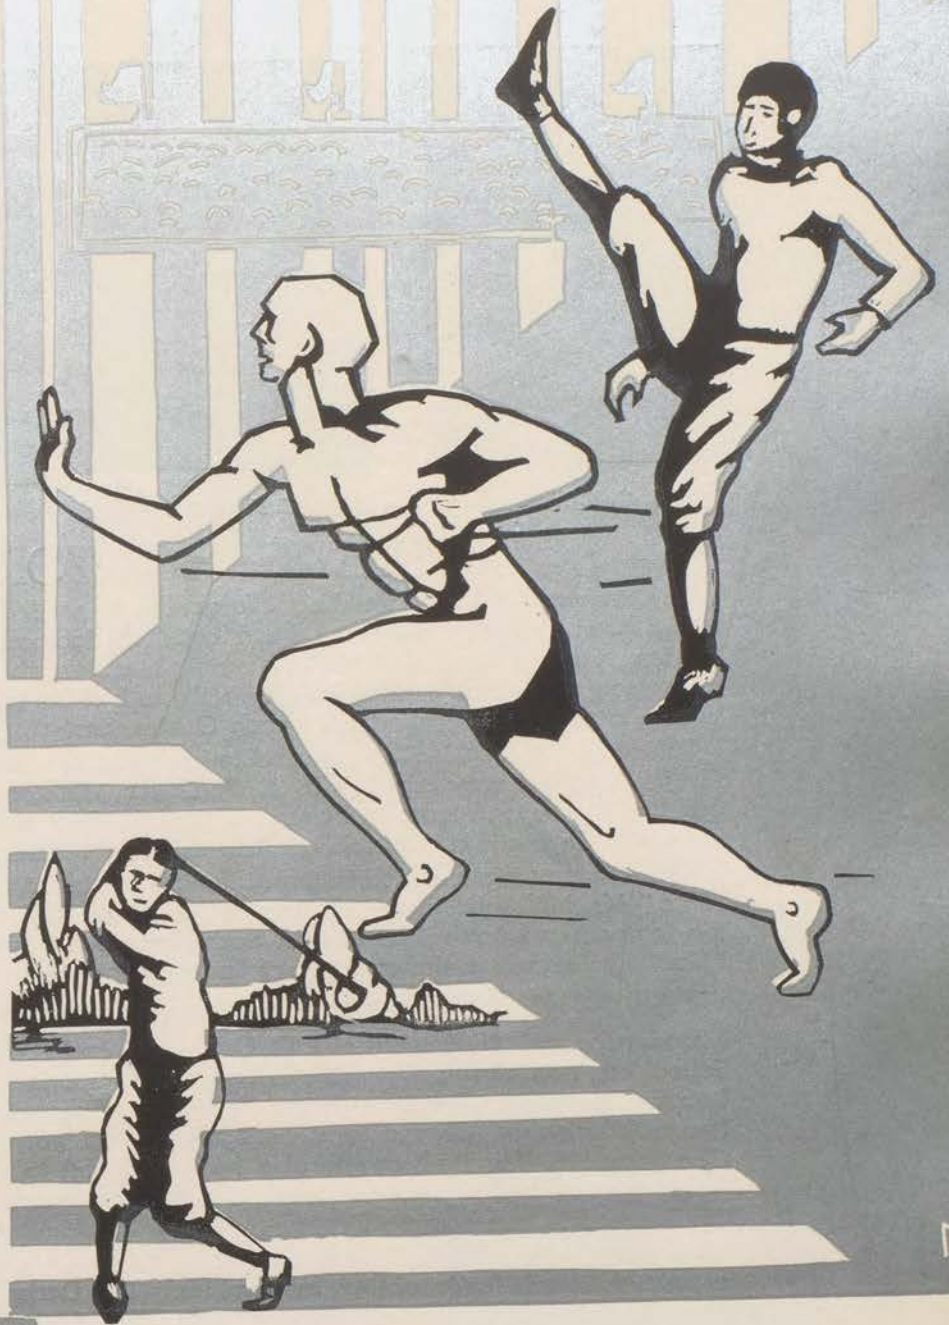

Behind all types of athletics is the Mothers' "E" Club. It enables the parents to become better acquainted with the coaches and to know what is going on around the school in the way of athletics.

During the year the club sponsored a number of activities. There were the monthly meetings which the parents of the boys in the athletic department usually attend. After these came the banquets celebrating the end of the football, basket ball and track seasons. At these occasions the members of the teams who earned letters were awarded them by the coaches.

ATHLETICS MENTORS

The responsibility of moulding characters as well as forming powerful teams goes to J. C. Cohlmeier, head coach of football and basketball. In his ten years at East, Coach Cohlmeier's teams have won the respect of every opponent. Their admirable play is the talk of the League and the credit is due to the untiring efforts of Coach Cohlmeier.

Teaching the "rookies" the principles involving basketball and football is the job handled very capably by E. F. Thelen, assistant coach. Mr. Thelen coaches the second team in basketball and football and is head coach of track. Mr. Thelen is a valuable asset to the East coaching staff.

When money is mentioned in the Athletic Department, all eyes turn toward "Mac." Mr. McDaniel serves as financial manager and the responsibility of the football and basketball season ticket campaigns rest on his shoulders. "Mac" also serves in the capacity of "pepper-upper."

THROUGH THE TEN YEARS

Under the able leadership of J. C. Cohlmeier and E. F. Thelen, East High School has had its share of glory in competitive sports in the Interscholastic League. During the last decade the Bruins have shared two Interscholastic League Basketball Crowns and held undisputed possession of the State Championship. The East cagers also have annexed to their trophy case a runner-up and fourth place position in the State tournament. On the gridiron the Bears hold one League Crown.

Not only do the East Athletes rank high in competitive sports but have proved their scholastic ability by capturing the Dartmouth and Naismith Trophies which signify scholastic excellence. With the athletic field rounding into shape the Bears have hopes of claiming a track championship in the near future. At the Kansas Relays this year the Medley Relay team breasted the tape and brought home the treasured Weaver Challenge Trophy.

CAPTAINS

William Slater's fighting spirit and fine play in backing up the line featured his three years of football competition. In his sophomore year "Willie" lettered on the second team, playing center. His junior year found him lettering on the varsity at the same position. In the senior year he was switched to fullback, where he displayed his talent offensively as well as defensively.

Loye Trower played regular center on the varsity two years. In his sophomore year he lettered on the second team. Loye's coolness featured his play. When a goal was needed in a tight spot Loye always came through. Trower had an eye for the "bucket" offensively and could always be counted on to hold his man down.

Eugene Reardon's sportsmanship together with his fine performances and likeable disposition qualified him for the track captaincy. Although his first year out for track, Gene developed into one of the best half-milers in the city. His performances were near record time at every meet. He will be remembered as one of the best half-milers ever developed at East.

MANAGERS

The care and condition of the athletic equipment rest on the shoulders of the student managers. Robert Martin, Kenneth Kay, Russell Cottrell, Walter Smith, and Charles Wheeler. It is their duty to see that every piece of equipment taken out is checked back in. They also have charge of the "cage" in the gymnasium locker-room. Responsibility is the word to express their job.

FIRST TEAM

Coach Cohlmeier's call for the varsity eleven was answered by fifty-one football aspirants. This number included three lettermen and fifteen others who have had some experience on the second team.

The squad as a whole was the lightest team in the history of East, the average weight being 145 pounds. Handicapped by weight, and lack of experience, Coach Cohlmeier drilled his warriors on speed and deception and again the Bears were rated as the smoothest "outfit" in the league.

Conquest of Central

The close of the football campaign found East resting in third place with four victories and two defeats. A commendable record! In their only non-league game they were defeated.

In their initial appearance, the Bruins were defeated by a much heavier and experienced Ottawa eleven 20 to 0. The Cyclones were held scoreless in the first half but a battered East line could not hold them.

With the East line and backfield not functioning properly the Paseo Pirates ran roughshod over the Bears to the resounding tune of 43 to 0. East did not have the answer for anything Paseo had.

Already rated the cellar position by the "dopesters" the Bruins unleashed their power on Southwest and won their first ball game 12 to 6. Jack Black, ace ball carrier, smashed over right tackle in the second and third quarters for the tallies. The Indians' touchdown came as the result of a last minute passing attack.

A 12 to 7 victory was scored over the Westport Tigers in the next tilt. Loye Trower and Black led the attack for the Greenies.

With the East team functioning as a well oiled machine, the Crimson of Manual were defeated 18 to 0. A first half scoring spree led by Captain Slater put the game on "ice." Dan Henehan and Loye Trower, all-star end, starred in the line.

Playing "heads-up" ball the East line blasted its way to an 18 to 0 victory over the Central Blue Eagles. This game was featured by the superb blocking of the backfield and the ability of the line to open holes.

By winning four straight games the Bears met Northeast in the championship battle. East held a slim lead of two points in the first quarter when Trower blocked a punt in the end zone; but the Vikings, led by Harry Ice, retaliated with two touchdowns in the second quarter. In the third quarter, Jack Black, all-star half-back, plunged over for a touchdown. The Bears' chance of a triumph was dimmed when Ice again ran through the entire East eleven. The final score, East 9, Northeast 18.

At the annual football banquet given by the Mothers' "E" Club, the following boys received first team letters: Leland Bonar, Bob Ferguson, Eugene Reardon, Glenn Bingman, Leroy Butler, Leslie Hill, George Bleich, Don Henehan, Loye Trower, Bob McLeroy, Jack Black, LaVerne Mathis, Bill Slater and Louis LaFountain.

Jack Black and Loye Trower received additional honors by being placed on the mythical all-star team. Black, who led the league in scoring, was elected co-captain of the all-star team along with Harry Ice of Northeast.

SECOND TEAM

Under the able guidance of E. F. Thelen, the boys on the second team are taught the game of football as it should be played. Hard knocks and little glory are theirs—they are not cheered on by the crowds—but their own spirit, grit, and determination pave the way for their success.

The second team played a schedule of six games, winning three and losing three.

A last-half rally that netted 12 points enabled the Cubs to come from behind and win their first game of the season from Paseo, 12-6.

With an off-tackle smash as their offensive weapon, the Cubs crushed the Southwest Bravelets 19-0.

The Cubs' first taste of defeat came at the hands of the Westport Kittens. East scored in the first few minutes of play when Junior Kern returned the kickoff 40 yards and Lee Hildebrand carried the ball over the goal line on an end run. In the second half Westport scored two touchdowns and one conversion, taking the game 13-6.

The Central Eaglets defeated the young Bears 12-6. The Cubs fought hard to overcome an early lead but a last-quarter rally fell short.

With Elmont Dye as their offensive weapon, the Northeast seconds conquered the Cubs 18-0. The Cubs were at a disadvantage when their ace ground-gainer, Junior Kern, was removed in the first half because of injuries sustained while playing. Manual forfeited its game to East.

INTRA-MURAL SPORTS

A new grading system inaugurated by the Athletic Department did much to create an interest in intra-murals and after-school activities. A boy's grade depended on what he earned. If his grade was low he could come to the gym and do a little extra work and receive credit, thereby raising his grade.

Among the sports offered, were basket ball, volley ball, dart, baseball, boxing, wrestling, tumbling and ping-pong.

Twelve teams, consisting of 120 boys, took part in the annual inter-class basket ball tournament. The tournament was held on an elimination basis which proved to be very successful. The championship game between the Junior A's and the Senior A's resulted in an 18-7 victory for the upperclassmen. The purpose of the tournament is to find material for the basket ball squads.

By running up a total of 63 points, the Seniors captured the inter-class track meet. The Seniors placed first in the following events: 50 yard low hurdles, 50 yard high hurdles, 440 yard dash, 880 yard run, shot-put, pole-vault, and broad-jump. The Juniors placed first in the following events: 50 yard dash, 100 yard dash, and the relay. The Sophomores placed first in the high-jump.

Jack Black, senior, captured the high-point honors with 14 points. Jackman Wilson, junior, placed runner-up with 9½ points.

An elimination ping-pong tournament also was held. This sport created quite a bit of interest among the boys. The tournament was divided into four classes: Senior, Junior, Sophomore, and Freshman. The matches were played in the gym, the winner taking two out of three games. Class championships were won by the following boys: senior, Paul Clarke; junior, Bob McLeroy; sophomore, Wilson Sprout; and freshman, James Goforth.

Under the supervision of Coach J. C. Cohlmeier, tumbling became an active after-school sport. The boys were taught numerous stunts on the mats and the parallel and horizontal bars.

GOLF

Led by Melwin Merritt, who shot a 74 for the low score of the tournament, the East golfers placed fifth in the Interscholastic League tournament that was held at the Swope Park fairway early in the fall.

Captained by Elmer Peelle, the following boys made up the team: Melvin Merritt, Norman Hoopes, Frank Brown, Edgar Rogers, and Jack Moore. Paseo won first place, with Westport second.

The individual scores were as follows: Melvin Merritt, 74-74; Elmer Peelle, 98-97-93-89; Norman Hoopes, 98-95-93; Frank Brown, 98-96-94; Edgar Rogers, 98-96-94; Jack Moore, 98.

FIRST TEAM

Although not enjoying a very successful season as indicated by the "loss and win" column, the ever-fighting, small East cagers supplied their followers with many breathtaking battles. The Bears wound up the season with four wins and seven losses. As has always been the case, the Bruins displayed a fine defense, but their offensive ability was somewhat lacking. Finishing down the ladder in the Interscholastic League, the Bears were respected by every opponent and their aggressiveness and fine spirit featured their play.

In their first appearance on the court the Bears defeated Warrensburg, 30 to 24. Bob McLeroy, with four field goals and one charity toss, led the attack on the Tigers.

A last minute goal by Captain Loye Trower necessitated an overtime period, and LaVerne Mathis sank the winning goal as the Bruins defeated the De LaSalle Cavaliers, 26 to 23.

The Bears went on a scoring spree in defeating the Alumni, 56 to 38. Nine field goals were scored by Mathis, while Trower contributed seven field goals and one free throw.

By displaying a tight defense the Bears scored their first victory in the Interscholastic League over the Paseo Pirates, 21-10. Slater led the scoring with 6 points.

The uncanny ability of the Southwest Indians to hit the basket from outside the free throw circle resulted in a 21 to 17 setback for the Bears.

Another loss was encountered when the Ottawa Cyclones defeated the Bruins, 25 to 15, at Ottawa, Kansas.

A last half rally, which netted fifteen points, resulted in Westport's 25 to 19 victory over East. The Bears led at the half by a slim margin of three points.

Northeast, Interscholastic League champions, defeated the fighting Bears, 29 to 15.

The Bears took up relations with Clinton High of Clinton, Missouri, and suffered a 35 to 29 reversal. Trower led the Bears' attack with thirteen points.

In a hectic battle the Crimson of Manual nosed out the Bears in the last quarter, 26 to 23.

A last half rally that garnered fifteen points fell short, and the taller Central Blue Eagles emerged as 22 to 18 victors.

Varsity letters were won by the following cagers: Loye Trower, Jack Black, Willie Slater, LaVerne Mathis, Buss Rowland, Bob McLeroy, Kenneth Heady, Charles North, and Wilson Sprout.

SECOND TEAM

Boasting an enviable record of six victories and one defeat in seven starts, the East Cubs enjoyed a successful season. The young Bruins placed runner-up in the second team Interscholastic League and should provide good material for next season varsity squad.

The Cubs opened their season with an overwhelming 26 to 6 victory over the De LaSalle seconds.

Led by Charles North, who caged thirteen points, the young Bears defeated the Paseo seconds in a see-saw affair, 25 to 24.

Holding Southwest scoreless in the last half, the Cubs won a defensive battle, 16 to 13.

The Westport seconds were the next victims to the Bears' victory string. "Buss" Rowland paced the Cubs in their 19 to 14 conquest with nine points.

Northeast's second team champs defeated East in their only loss of the season, 25 to 19. North paced the Cubs with five field goals and one charity toss.

With Charley North in rare form, the Cubs conquered the Manual seconds, 27 to 25. "Chuck" led the parade with 15 points.

In an air-tight game the young Bruins emerged victors over the Central Eaglets to end the season in a 14 to 13 victory.

Second team letters were won by the following boys: Ed Stiglich, Dan Henehan, James Cammack, and Malcolm Gerhardt.

Third Row: Everett Stoddard, sprinter; Jim Parks, pole-vault; Russell Willcoxson, assistant manager; Wilson Sprout, high jump; Lee Caviar, pole-vault; Leland Gordy, 440; Chester Goforth, hurdles; Gerald Strain, hurdles; Jack Kennedy, sprinter; Wilbur Wynn, manager.

Second Row: Don Lee, assistant manager; Forest Clark, 880; Jimmy Hickman, pole-vault; Lawton Riggs, high jump; Charles Yates, shot-put, high jump; James Cammack, hurdles; Norman Kratschmer, 440; Leslie Hill, shot-put; Malcolm Gerhardt, 880; Leland Bonar, 440; Don Lewis, pole-vault; Lee Hildebrand, 440.

First Row: Junior Kern, broadjump, relay; Vernon Hoover, 440, relay; Jackman Wilson, 100, 220, relay; Harold Branham, 100, 220, relay; Lawrence Test, 880; Eugene Reardon, 880; Jack Black, broad jump, 440; Bill Easterman, pole-vault, hurdle; Ted Soltys, hurdle, high jump, relay; Bob McLeroy, broad jump; Ted Weis, hurdles.

RELAY TEAM

Jack Black, 440 yard dash; Jackman Wilson, 220 yard dash; Harold Branham, 220 yard dash; and Gene Reardon, 880 yard dash.

MEDLEY RELAY TEAM

The East High School medley relay team journeyed to Lawrence, Kansas, to the annual Kansas Relays and captured the Kansas City Interscholastic special medley event. The team, composed of Jackman Wilson and Harold Branham in the 220-yard dashes, Jack Black in the 440-yard run and Eugene Reardon in the 880-yard run, won the relay in the fast time of three minutes, 46.9 seconds.

When Reardon received the baton from Black, East was in third place but Gene pulled up fast and breasted the tape with about 25 yards to spare. Paseo, winner last year, placed third and Central, second.

TRACK SEASON

Having only two lettermen returning to the track squad, Coach E. F. Thelen was confronted with the task of handling a green track team. Although the team won only one out of four meets, it showed development of a well-balanced team for next year. Harold Branham, Jackman Wilson, Eugene Reardon, and James Cammack developed into consistent point-winners.

Lawton Riggs tied the East High School high jump record in the Westport meet by leaping 5' 7 $\frac{1}{4}$ ". Eugene Reardon set a new record in the half-mile by clipping it off in 2:07, bettering the old East record of 2:07.4.

The high-hurdle record of 16.8 seconds set last year was equalled by James Cammack.

SUMMARY

The Bears opened the season by journeying to Leavenworth, Kansas. The Pioneers won by a score of 70-49. East scored heavily in the running events while Leavenworth garnered their points in the field events.

Winning firsts in all but three events, the Southwest Indians defeated the Bruins 65-26. Hamilton of Southwest led the scoring with 15 points in the sprints and relay. Gene Reardon won the 880 in the good time of 2:07.

The Central Blue Eagles defeated the East tracksters 56-35. Harold Branham was high-point man for the Bruins, scoring eleven points in the dashes and relay, while King of Central won both the 100 and 220 to lead the parade for the Eagles.

Scoring heavily in the running events as well as the field events, the Bears defeated the Westport Tigers 60 $\frac{1}{2}$ to 30 $\frac{1}{2}$. James Cammack captured the high scoring honors by taking two firsts in the high and low hurdle races.

The Paseo meet was rained out.

By placing in two events, the Bears were able to garner 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ points in the city meet. Eugene Reardon placed third in the 880-yard run, and Lawton Riggs shared fourth place in the high-jump with McDonald of Southwest. Northeast annexed its second consecutive track crown by scoring 44 points. Bill Wilcox of Northeast set a new record in the 120-yard high hurdles by topping them in 15.6 seconds. Running the 880 in 2 minutes, 3.3 seconds, Carl Morgan of Central set a new record in the event. The Northeast 880-yard relay team also set a new record by running the distance in 1 minute, 32.3 seconds.

GIRLS' ATHLETICS

The girl of today often ruins her health and life by not getting the correct kind and amount of exercise and outdoor activity. The physical education department has made the developing of the East High girl the basis of the entire course of study. Games and sports are planned with the view to educating the girls toward greater care and proper use of their bodies.

The mental, as well as the physical, side of the question of health is being considered in connection with the physical education classes. The incoming freshmen are required to attend hygiene classes several times a week. This course serves to help the girls to improve their old methods of caring for their bodies and to learn new ones.

The attitude of the girl toward her classmates has been a vital feature in the course. Much stress is put upon sportsmanship, speed, accuracy, and co-operation. The girl who enters the physical education class with a lack of any of these qualities is soon transformed, and before she has completed her required two years she has acquired a sense of sportsmanship and co-operation that cannot be surpassed.

This year a plan is being used by which those girls whose programs are too full to take physical education, but who are interested in games and sports, may participate. After-school activities on Tuesdays and Thursdays give these girls and those in classes an opportunity to play volley ball, end ball, basket ball, baseball, hockey and soccer.

Miss Hazel M. Roads and Miss Rose Segelbaum have charge of the girls' athletic department at East.

POINT SYSTEM

AWARDS

Small "E".....	450 points
Large "E".....	1000 points
Gold "E".....	2000 points

Under the point system this year any girl in the school can obtain an award. A girl does not have to be in the physical education department to receive her "E," although a slight advantage is held by the student who is in a class. The after-school activity plan has made it possible for all girls interested to take part in the school's activities and sports and, too, win her award.

This year the following schedule is being followed in awarding the large, small, and gold "E's":

- I. After school attendance.
- II. General requirements:
 - a. Posture.
 - b. Teeth.
 - c. Skin.
 - d. Throat.
 - e. Eyes.
 - f. Ears.
- III. Special awards:
 - a. Sportsmanship.
 - b. A grade of "E" on grade card.
 - c. Performing.
 - d. One year beyond requirement.
 - e. Two years beyond requirement.
 - f. Hiking.
 - g. Squad leader.
 - h. Monitorship in class.
 - j. Manager of sports.
- IV. Individual achievement:
 - a. Stunts.
 - b. Skill test.
 - c. Track and field.
 - d. Individual sports—archery, aerial darts, horseshoes, tether ball.
 - e. National Honor Society.
- V. Athletics—teams:
 - a. Volley ball.
 - b. Soccer.
 - c. Basket ball.
 - d. Baseball.
 - e. End ball.
 - f. Hockey.

"THREE FACES EAST"

This play of war time uncertainties, presented in the East High Auditorium under the direction of Miss Cecile Burton on the night of Friday, December 13, quite effectively displayed the ability of the drama department to produce a fine and entertaining performance. The play opens with the head of the German Intelligence, Herr Kugler, played by Kenneth Heady, giving instructions to Georgia Sawyer in the role of Helene, a beautiful spy, before she should embark on a dangerous mission of espionage.

THE EASTONIAN

With this bit to work from and base their inductions and deductions on, the audience has to be contented, for no other conclusive evidence is set forth which will aid in reaching the bottom of the mystery.

In general, the play may be said to concern the attempts of Germany and England to learn of the military maneuvers of each other by dispatching spies whose work it is to ferret out this valuable information and send it to their country. Helene is such as this, to all appearances a member of the German Intelligence.

Another potent if mysterious character is Valdar, servant, spy, and in general, all that is unknown, acted by Leland Gordy. The plot may be said to revolve about him for he seems to be involved in all the action yet without his moves being interpreted. As the play progresses the characters seem to become more and more inextricably interwoven in an intrigue of plots and counterplots to which there seems to be no suitable or logical solution.

Though the spectators had in all probability decided "who was who," it is a safe bet that not one out of one hundred guessed correctly. The end of the play carried such a punch and contained so much excitement and such an element of surprise that it might well be termed one of the most entertaining productions yet presented in the new auditorium.

OUTBURST

Signifying the progress of a decade, the tenth annual Outburst was presented the nights of Friday and Saturday, March 3 and 4, to full houses. The entertainment was produced on a larger scale and with more lavish presentation than any former one. The main show was built around the theme of a night club with George Callen, an alumnus, as the harassed head waiter. The various acts that were presented were introduced as constituting a floor show. Another alumnus in the main show was Kenneth Corbett, who met his "doom" standing at the wrong end of a sawed-off shotgun well aimed by Charles Easley, another waiter. The name of the main show was "Tree Top Inn," deriving this title from a huge and artistic tree in the top of which dined patrons of the "hot spot." At the conclusion of the show a large artificial cake was brought on the stage with ten flaming red candles glowing brightly to portray the tenth year of the existence of East High School.

To lend a carnival atmosphere to the general hilarity of the two evenings were the various sideshows which the patrons of the main show might attend after the performance. These lesser entertainments ranged in variety from a marionette show presented by the Art Club, to a lively "Follies of 1936" given by the Leundis Literary Society. With all the barkers of the many sideshows loudly ballyhooing their wares and in general exhorting the crowd to "come one, come all," the parents, relatives and friends of the student performers were very probably reminded of nothing more than the old-fashioned carnivals which toured the small towns in a bygone era.

With the rapid strides made from the small Outbursts of nine or ten years ago to the magnificent production of 1936, one may clearly see the advancement made at East.

EASTONIAN

"THE MIKADO"

The pomp and grandeur of Imperial Japan were portrayed on the stage of the East High Auditorium on Friday and Saturday nights, April 17 and 18, when the music department, after an interval of three years, again presented the grandest of all comic operas, "The Mikado." The stage was lavishly decorated with lanterns and cherry trees to lend the proper atmosphere. Impressive Mount Fujiyama was visible in the background.

The masculine tenor lead of Nanki Poo, a wandering minstrel and son of the Mikado, was taken by Ted Fehrenbach, '33, who had the role three years ago, while Phyllis Highman portrayed Yum Yum, a demure maiden, ward of Ko Ko. Charles Easley was cast in the latter role of the poor harassed Lord High Executioner who must either perform an execution or forfeit his own life.

It is largely through the doings of the two connivers, Ko Ko and Poo Bah, that the opera deserves the adjective, comic. Robert Burns well characterized the Lord High Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, etc., etc., ad infinitum, who, though heir to a most illustrious lineal descent was none the less averse to being quite substantially "insulted" by bribes for his valuable services. Ko Ko, through his efforts to obtain a subject for his snickersnee, contributed more than his share of humor to the proceedings.

A regal air was provided when the Mikado of the "Land of the Rising Sun" appeared in all his glory and worked all the weighty problems out officially.

Ethel Krute well acted the role of Katisha, an elderly lady who, though at one time she had designs on Nanki Poo, was finally forced to be contented with Ko Ko. The events which led up to the peaceful union were well the most humorous in the complete opera.

The hilarious comedy, "Is Zat So?", will be presented by the Senior Class in the auditorium the night of May 28. James Gleason, famous comedian of stage and screen, collaborated with Richard Taber in writing this play.

The story of "Is Zat So?" revolves about the "squared circle." Involved in the plot are Eddie "Chick" Cowan and his carefree manager who "knows all the answers," Hap Hurley. King Mirth begins to hold sway in the play when this duo of scrappers come into the up to now tranquil domicile of a New York millionaire, C. Clinton Blackburn.

Cast in the parts of the fighter and the manager, are Leland Gordy and Kenneth Heady. The ability of these two to portray the typical Broadwayite fighter and manager combination should greatly add to the comic element of the production.

As a result of the uncommon plot and spontaneous dialogue of this three-act comedy, "Is Zat So?" has been favored with smashing acclaim wherever it has been presented. All precedents in the history of the theatre were shattered when it was shown five hundred consecutive nights in New York. It has since been translated into other languages and shown in foreign countries.

The role of the millionaire is enacted by Fred Kautzman; and his sister, Susan Blackburn Parker, who supplies the love interest, is characterized by Georgia Sawyer. The "eternal triangle" is present with Kenneth Kay in the role of the Honorable Maurice Fitz-Stanley, Susan's lover. Russell Cottrell plays the part of Robert Parker, Susan's husband.

The school has long waited for a comedy of the calibre of "Is Zat So?", but with this production it is proved that the wait has not been in vain. The comedy is an appropriate climax to a year of particularly entertaining and outstanding dramatic presentations.

Miss Cecile Burton is director of the play.

Assemblies

All containing the "three points," loyalty to country, loyalty to God, and loyalty to school, the assemblies of this year carried on their tradition of entertainment and instruction.

Dr. E. W. Skinner of the Kansas City Medical Society spoke at the first important assembly of the year on the necessity of keeping oneself in good health. The centennial of Mark Twain's birth was commemorated in a following assembly when Dr. J. E. Kulp delivered an address on the life of the great humorist. The audience fairly clamored for more when the Gillespie-Sullivan School of Dancing entertained the assembly December 6. The spirit of Saint Nicholas pervaded the Christmas assembly with several renditions of Christmas choral numbers by the various musical organizations. In the American Legion oration tryouts in assembly February 21, Leland Gordy placed first and was awarded his medal by Mr. W. J. Nathan on the following week. Mr. George Melcher, Superintendent of Schools, spoke at the R. O. T. C. assembly on the value of the military training in high schools.

Among the popular programs presented by colleges were those presented by the Missouri University band, the Missouri Valley College a cappella choir, the Kansas City-Western Dental College glee club, and the Baker University male quartet.

On the whole this year's assemblies were abundant in student talent, speeches, and other varied entertainment.

Harvest Moon

The now annual Parent-Teacher entertainment, The Harvest Moon, was presented November 1, much of the talent coming from the classrooms of East High. With the program containing melody, mirth, and melodrama, the various acts and bits were run off smoothly to the accompaniment of ripples of laughter and spontaneous bursts of applause.

The beacon light of the performance was a one-act comedy, "The Burglar," given by the students of the Kelley-Mack School. Another dramatic bit, a hilarious pantomime, was presented by Miss Burton's speech class. The mixed chorus under the direction of Mr. Wahlstedt, and two trios and a soloist supervised by Mrs. Caldwell, provided music.

The gym classes contributed athletic feats and gymnastics for their share. Coach Cohlmeier and Mr. Thelen were in charge of this part of the festivities.

The orchestra conducted by Mr. W. M. Ryder played several selections.

Russian Chorus

The world traveled and renowned Russian Chorus under the direction of Mme. Slaviansky presented two programs of folk dances and songs in the East High Auditorium on October 2. The afternoon concert was for the student attendance and the night presentation for adults.

The chorus, composed of ten members, was directed by the daughter of the founder of the group which has been functioning since 1858.

The audiences of East could not get their fill of the folk dances, which were remarkable demonstrations of equilibrium and agility.

DEPARTMENTAL EXHIBIT

With many of the departments of the school co-operating, the fashion show was presented in the auditorium Friday, May 8. Beginning as a project of the clothing department, this event has expanded to include demonstrations by the foods, art, commercial, and industrial arts departments.

The modeling of the dresses by their makers was the main event on the program. Between one hundred and fifty and two hundred girls were in the fashion show displaying the designs that they had finished after five weeks' work. Sport dresses, silk, formal, afternoon and school dresses, and children's clothing were all modeled. Miss Beneta Reid, teacher of clothing, was in charge of this part of the program.

The speech department took part by furnishing announcers for the mannequins. Those who announced were Leonard Santoro, Jimmy McCormick, Charles Easley, Seymour Moubert, and Dale Richardson.

The orchestra, directed by Mr. Wendell M. Ryder, played at intervals throughout the show.

The commercial department was represented by a short skit demonstrating to what extent clothes play a part in business. The girls who were applying for the position were differently attired, and though some undoubtedly qualified for the job, their interviewer passed over them in favor of the girl who knew how to dress for the occasion. The commercial department also had an exhibit in the front hall. There were students typing and also taking dictation to demonstrate the work done daily in the typing and shorthand classes. The teachers in charge of the commercial exhibits were Miss Minnie Baker, Miss Mabel Cobb, Miss Marie Crow, Miss Louisa Johnston, and Mr. Baird Parks.

The art department, directed by Miss Martha Abbott, presented in Room 215 an exhibit of paintings, sketches, pencil drawings, decorative maps, soap carvings, and other sculpture work more difficult. Each art student was required to exhibit at least one piece of work. This display by the art classes attracted a large crowd of spectators after the fashion show.

A striking and beautiful exhibit was the combined display of the woodwork and foods classes. In the exhibit were a bed, a dressing table, and a hope chest, all matching, made by Glenn Miller. Also, there was a table made by Homer Erickson, lavishly set by the students of the foods classes. Miss Genevieve Nowlin, teacher of foods, was in charge of the demonstration, and invited several teachers into the enclosure for tea. The guests were served by the students of the culinary art.

The woodwork display evoked the approving comment of all, for what mother or father could resist the possession of such a decorative and useful suite as was on exhibition? In many parental minds was undoubtedly the swiftly formulating plan to induce Johnny or Jimmy to enroll for woodwork and bring home such an example of his skill. Mr. Lynne C. Monroe is instructor in wood shop.

An exhibit that would delight the heart of a machinist, and which was intensely interesting to the layman, was the metal shop display under the direction of Mr. Joseph A. Stadler. In it were lathes of various sizes and purposes, jigsaws, and other mechanical devices fashioned in the machine shop by the students.

By this Departmental Exhibit the parents were shown what the students have done along the various lines of work, and the production resulted in a clearer understanding of the work of the different departments.

DIARY OF A SENIOR GIRL 1935-1936

September 3. Oh, it was fun to see all the old kids again at school today. And just think, we have three new teachers and they seem to be awfully nice. I guess that shows East is growing every year. I sure am glad I go there.

September 5. Miss Varney selected the Echo staff today. Robert Burns, Mary Virginia Stoltz and Vera Murphree are the editors. Here's hoping it's a good paper. There sure is lots of talk about the coming Russian Chorus. The football team is practicing now. Gee, I wish they would finish the stadium before I graduate.

September 22. The team was beaten by Ottawa yesterday. Tough, because they worked plenty hard. Oh, well, there's hope for the future.

September 29. Paseo beat us, too, but we hope the bad luck won't last. Anyway, those football boys are really heroes to us girls, as the great number of female fans at the games would indicate. The senior class is starting off with a bang already. They're taking pictures and paying dues. Good class!

October 2. The Russian Chorus lived up to all expectations. They were really swell.

October 6. Oh, boy, did we ever take Southwest? That was really one grand game. Hope we keep it up. The Student Council is planning two mixers. One is to be an afternoon "party" on the eighteenth, and one a night mixer the twenty-fifth. Everybody knows that Heady was elected president last year. Departmental Clubs are under way, too, now. School's getting into its old stride again.

October 18. We beat Westport! "Goody, Goody!" Southwest had some tough luck though. Last Saturday, John McKee, quarterback on their team, was killed in the game with Manual. There has been a lot of talk about abolishing football because of this, but yesterday the Board of Education met and decided to continue the League games. They changed the Basketball schedule, though, until now the games will continue over period of ten weeks.

October 26. Three seniors, Helen McCreedy, Norman Mercet, and Ted Taylor received gold honor pins. Three cheers for them! The Eastonian staff has been appointed, and John Gilpin is editor-in-chief.

October 31. Halloween, and all the spooky, spooky stories and sights!

November 2. The Harvest Moon last night was really swell. Lots of fun, songs, dances, etc. Really a good entertainment. The Dramatics Department is going to present "Three Faces East" for the mid-year play. It's a World War play, and should be interesting, and, of course, very dramatic.

November 19. Senior Election was held yesterday. Kenny Heady is president, and Ellen Gray is secretary. It was a good election. All the kids deserved what they got.

November 24. Phooey! Northeast beat us in the championship game. That pushes us back to third place, because Paseo ranks second. Well, we gave them a mighty good battle anyway. Miss Burton announced the Mid-year play cast the other day. Kenneth Heady (who by the way has been scoring a big success in "Ah, Wilderness" at the Resident Theatre), Leland Gordy, and Georgia Sawyer have the leading roles.

LIFE INSURANCE, A BULWARK OF SAFETY

BECAUSE

Children must be free from the struggle for existence;
Family ties must be held together and homes made secure with the necessities of life;

Youth must be educated to meet the demands necessary for entering into modern business;

Every man and woman desires safety and security against the vicissitudes of life;—

LIFE INSURANCE has built up A BULWARK OF SAFETY, taking many of the "IFS" out of life and making possible the fulfillment of our most precious desires.

December 14. The Missouri University Band was really keen. Some of those boys are plenty good-looking, and did the drummer make a big hit!

Well, Jack Black is Junior president. These big athletic boys rate plenty high.

The Mid-year play was exciting. I was surprised at the way it ended. Some nice acting was done by the boys.

You know, the faculty at East has some good times. Mr. Nowlin's birthday was the seventh, and the teachers had a surprise for him. I think it's keen for them to do things like that.

Lots of plans for Christmas and New Year's parties are in the air. We get a long vacation this year, and boy, am I glad!

January 2. Back again after one grand and glorious vacation. The Christmas assembly was so nice, and, boy, did they have parties in the rooms this year! Oh, Bill Gibbs was promoted to major sometime last month, but it wasn't announced until today. He'll be a good one, I think. Am I ever studying! You know, final exams come up before long. The teachers are pouring it on, too.

January 20. Bill Gibbs is lieutenant-colonel. Good for him! Today, the new semester began. I survived all my finals, thank goodness. Now, I've got all new classes, and I have to work harder than ever to get along. Oh, my.

Oh, we've got two new teachers at school. Five new teachers in one year. Not bad for old East High, eh, what? New Echo staff too. Helen McCreedy, Edith Gaba and Ruth McComas are editors. Seems like it's an all-girl's year.

January 24. Senior ballot was elected today. Kenneth Heady and Vera Murphree were chosen those who have done most for East. Ellen Gray and Bill Slater are "most popular." Lucky kids! "Lit" Clubs elected new officers too. Things are beginning to happen thick and fast.

February 15. Oh, dear, I feel so weak. Just got over an attack of flu. It's awful, especially when so many things are happening. Last semester's honor roll was made out and published. Ted Taylor and Vera Murphree both had twenty honor points, the highest number possible. I'll bet they put in some work. Ted, by the way, is president of this semester's Student Council. Gladys Hill is secretary. The Council is beginning to get under way now. Lit Clubs took in new members again.

Say, the Outburst ought to be mighty good this year. Rehearsals are going on now. Classes are rather disrupted, but who cares? Answer: The teachers. And on top of the Outburst, they're going to put on the "Mikado" again. I'm glad, but it's sure a lot of work. Oh, yes, Bob Shornick, the cutest sophomore in the school, was elected president of his class. I think he's darling, and so do the sophomores.

March 8. The Outburst really went over big. It was one of the best we've ever had, I think. Miss Abbott does a keen job on whatever she attempts. The other day in assembly, Leland Gordy was chosen to represent East in the America Legion Oratorical Contest. Boy, he was really good. He certainly ought to win the District Contest. Hope he does.

March 18. Antoinette Milazzo, the first girl class president in years, was chosen head of the Freshman Class at the meeting last Monday. She's a swell kid. They had Mikado cast try-outs, too. Ted Fehrenbach is coming back to play Nanki-Poo again. Phyllis Highman is to be Yum-Yum. It's going to be lots of fun putting that on. Half the school, I think, is learning to snap fans Japanese style. There's quite a trick to it. The boy from Northeast won out over Leland in the Legion Oratorical Contest. You can never tell what judges will do, but —oh, well, it's over now.

April 2. Boy, are the next two weeks crowded! Tomorrow night is the Student Council Mixer. There's going to be a big stage show, and everything. The dates for the "Mikado" are April 17 and 18. The Lit Contest is the twenty-third. And on top of all this, we have lessons to get and classes to go to. This school year has been one gloriously hectic time. I'll be awfully sorry when it's over though.

April 12. East High was bombed last night! The main entrance was wrecked completely, and practically all the windows in the front were broken. That seems too dumb to me. What was their object, or was there any? Who can tell?

April 19. Charles Easley is a born comedian. It was all I could do to keep from laughing at him while I was on the stage. And the audience got the biggest kick out of him. The entire "Mikado" was pretty good, I think. Of course, having been in it, I can't say what I really believe.

April 24. Eulexia won the Lit Contest! Kalailu and Leundis tied for second, School-at-large, third, and Hamiltons last; what a come-down for them from last year. They know what I mean, ha, ha!

April 25. The R. O. T. C. Circus last night was really good. Bill Gibbs, lieutenant-colonel of the city, was very much a big shot. And were we Bears proud!

April 28. "Is Zat So" is our Senior Play. It's going to be plenty good and plenty funny.

May 3. Senior dance last night at Ivanhoe Temple. It was one of the nicest school dances they've ever had. They had a grab bag, and I won the cutest atomizer. Gee, the time is passing fast. Before long, I won't be in school any more. In a way, I'm glad, but it makes me feel badly, too. Things in school are sort of quiet now, but social activities are really on the up and up. Picnics especially.

May 21. Senior examinations started today. Dear Lord, be with me!

May 26. I don't have to go to school any more. That seems so silly and I don't think I'll like it. "What will I do now?"

May 29. Senior play was put on last night and it really went over big. Big bouquets to the cast.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

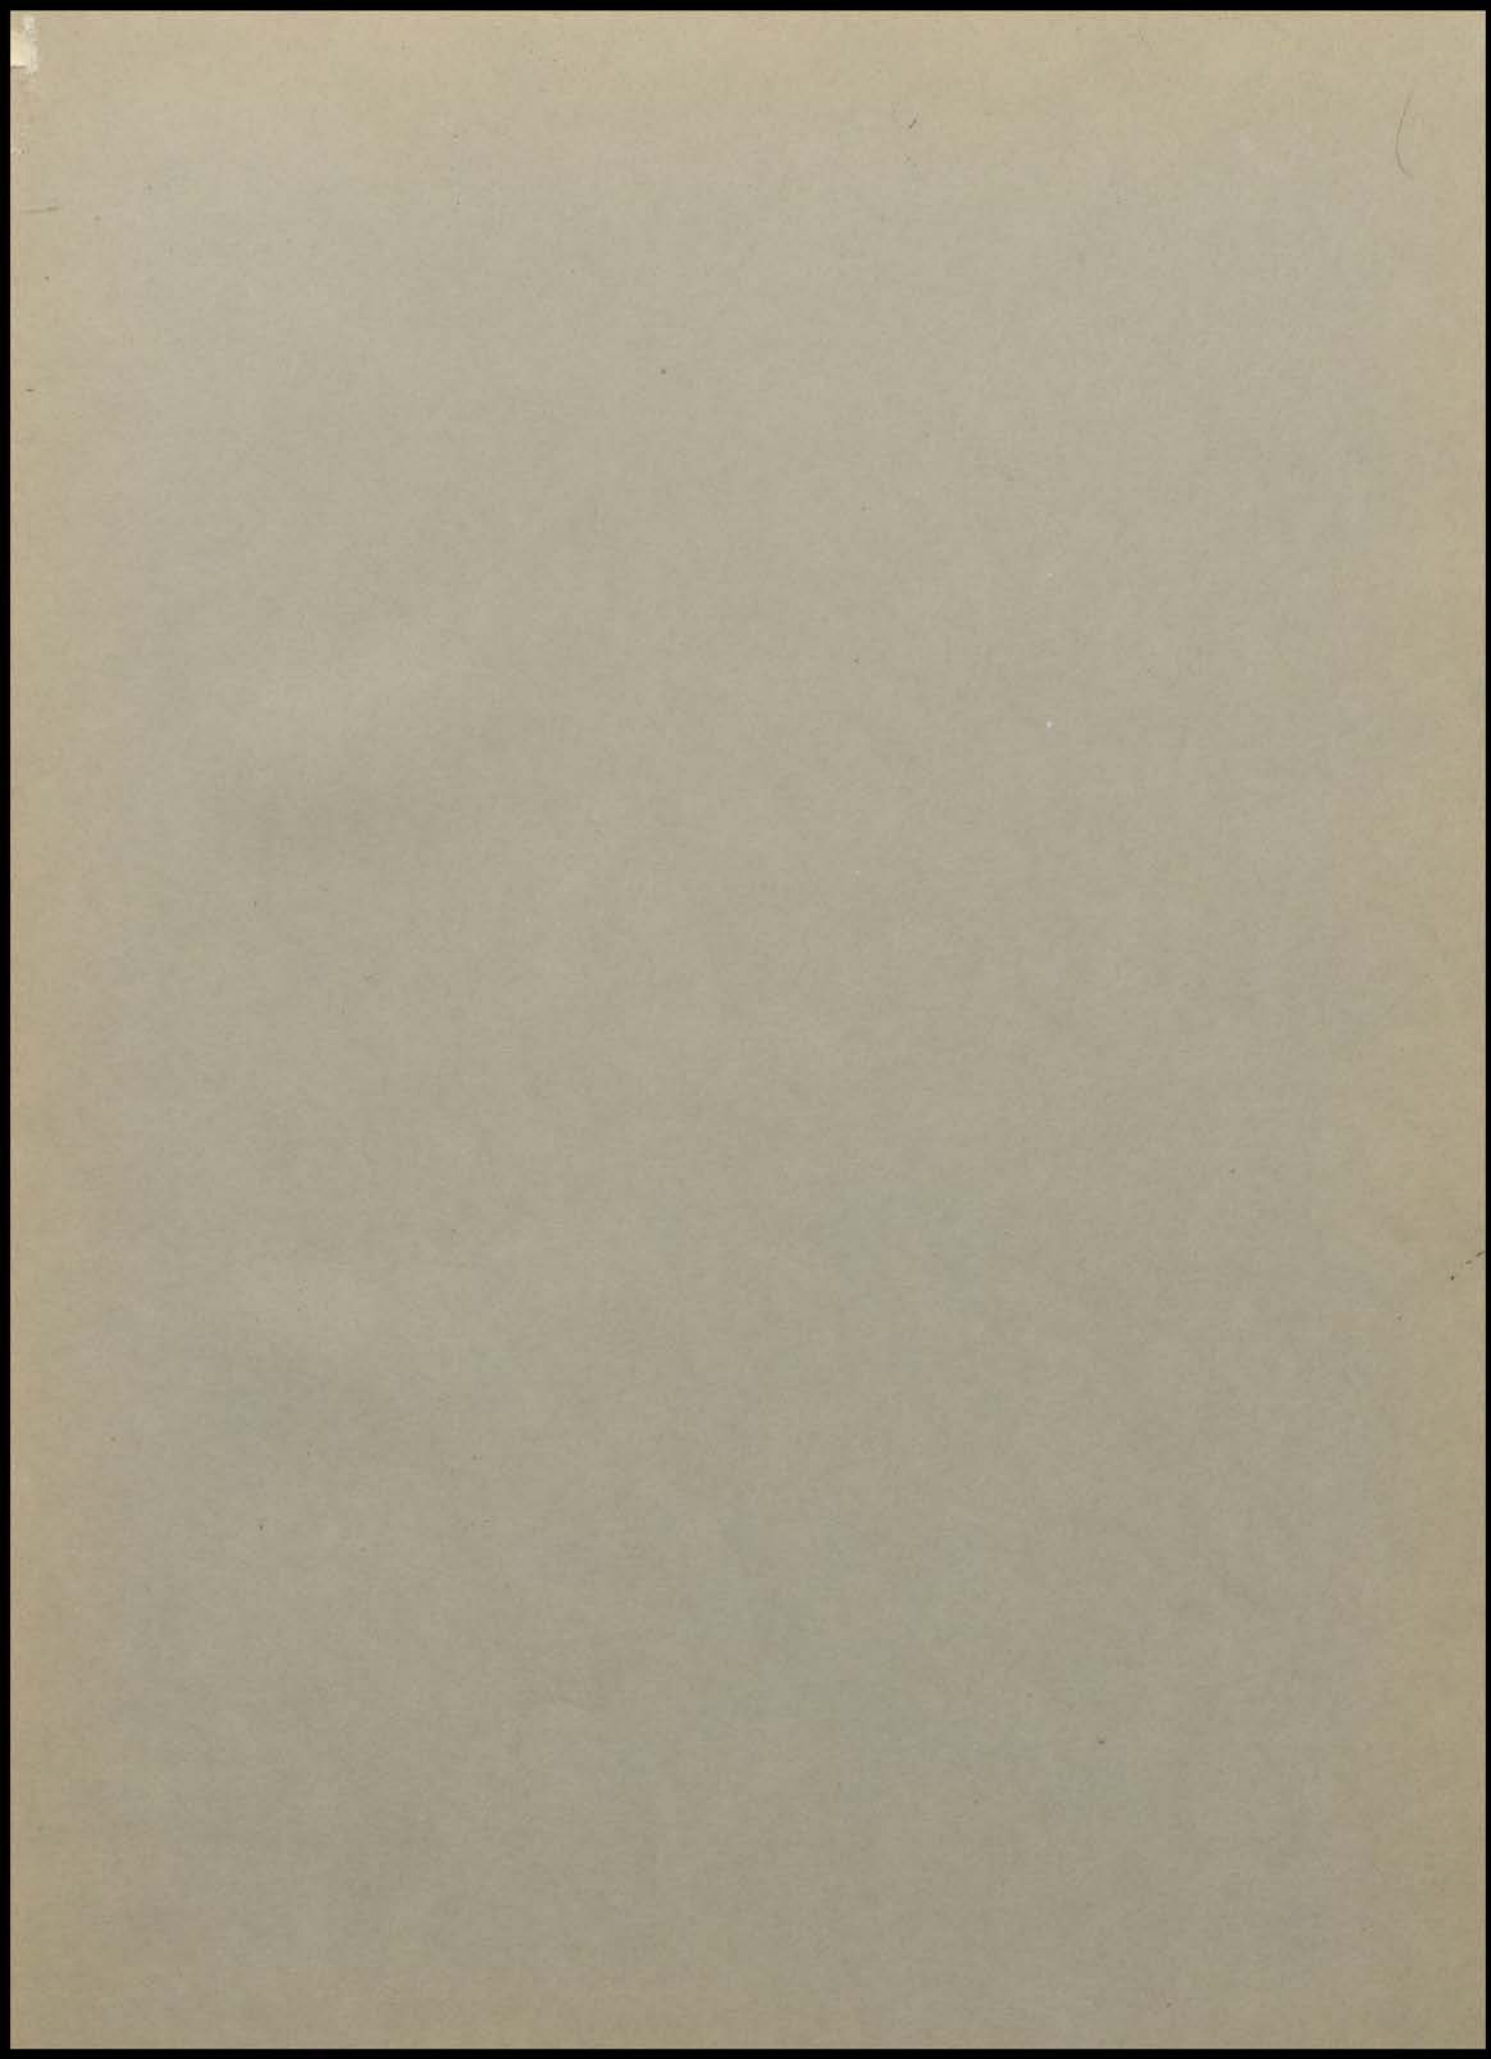

Wishing that our last words be in appreciation of those who have by their efforts in their respective fields made possible the publication of this book, we of the Eastonian Staff of the school's tenth year take this opportunity to express as nearly as possible our deep gratitude. Thanks are due to Mr. Smith of the Smith-Grievess Printing Company and Mr. Dew of the Teachenor-Bartberger Engraving Company for their assistance in planning the book; to Mr. Haines, of the Haines Studio for his helpful photographic work; to Miss Baker for her able business management; to Miss Varney for her advice in literary matters; to Miss Abbott for her supervision of the art work; to Mr. Parks for his aid in securing the advertisements; and to Mr. Grube for his arrangement of the group pictures. We wish also to declare our sincere appreciation of the concerns that further helped to make this publication possible by purchases of advertising space, and of the student body, which has done likewise through its sales support.

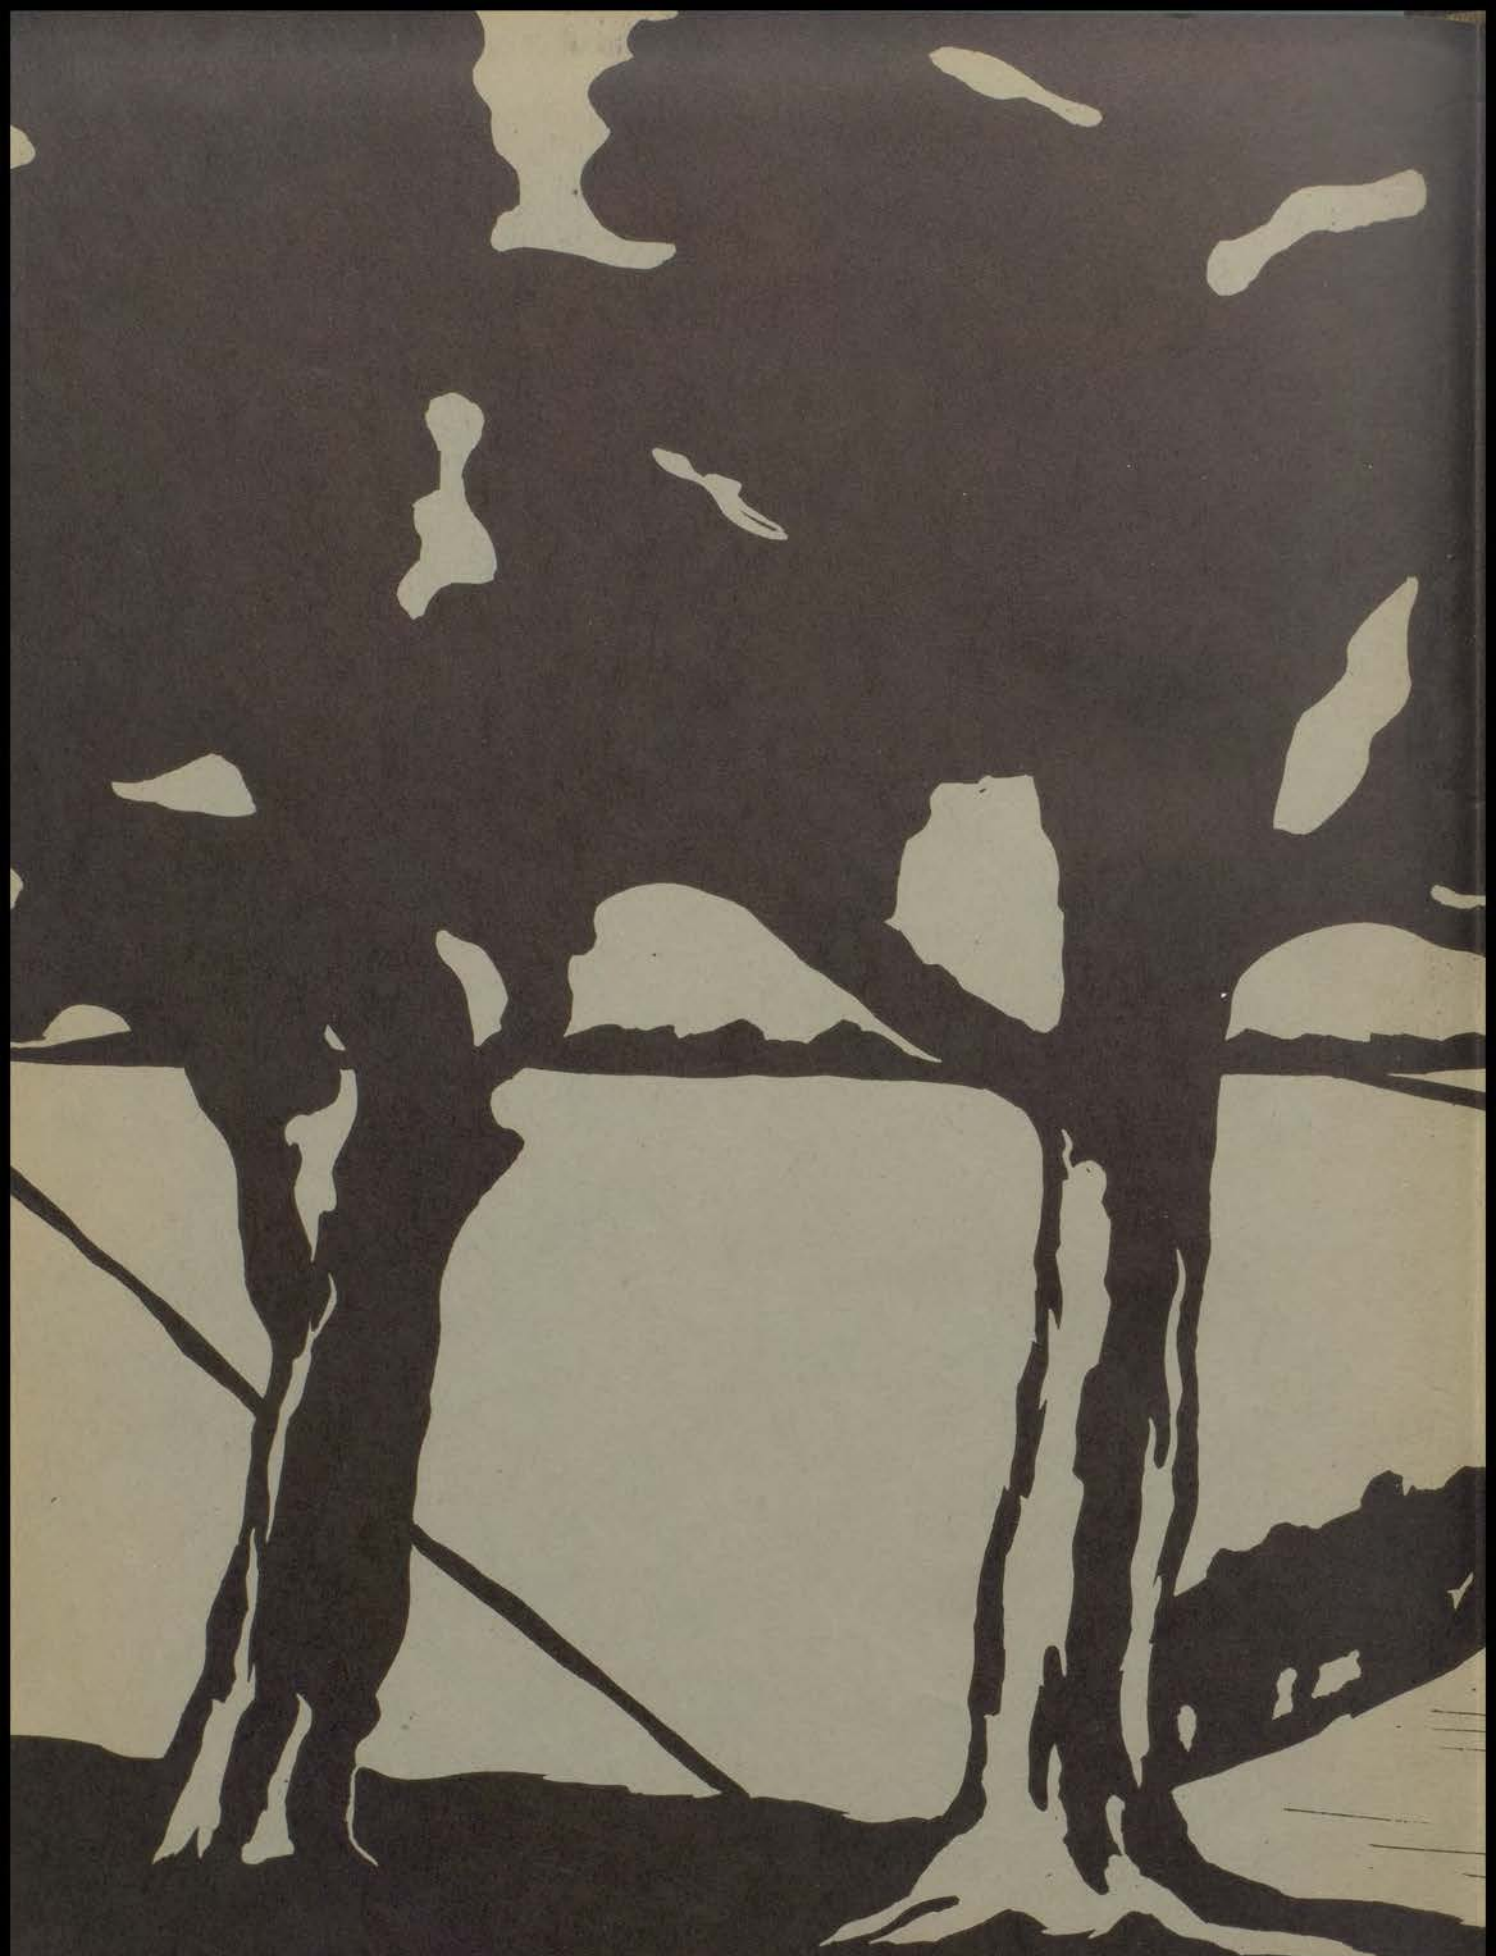

EASTONIAN

Bill Gibbs
