and Woodland avenue.

The President's Message

The members of the graduating class of Lincoln High School, in the year Nineteen Hundred Thirty-six, bring to the world a message of triumph and determination. We have triumphed over the studies presented to us in the elementary and high schools, and now we are determined to triumph over higher educational fields and the hardships of life. We know that whatever success we may attain, or whatever heights we may climb, our obligations to society and our duty to humanity will never be obliterated. We have found joy and comfort within these walls. We will the world be kind to us? What do we care for a bed of roses? We are filled with determination to do or die!

We cannot stop here, for to stop is to admit defeat; and for us no such word exists in the language of American youth. We will not wait to be led to the door of success but we will get there through undying effort and faith in humanity. And then—when some one has said that we have finished—we will say to him, with a smile, "Not finished—just begun!"

Lincolnite Queen

*Hail
the Queen!*

Again, we are indeed happy to present to the patrons and friends of Lincoln High School the queen of the class of '36—Miss Virginia Price. She worked most diligently in this contest, trivial though it may seem, and emerged victorious over a large number of competitors. We feel certain that she will continue to lead in every task that she undertakes even more easily than she emerged victorious in this contest.

There was no equal to Miss Price this year.

Miss Price is a member of Mr. Mayberry's advisory group. The class of '36 bows down in humble reverence to her majesty, the queen, for she has set a record for Lincoln High School.

Lincolnite King

The royalty of Lincoln High School increases this year as we present to the reading public a king, in the person of Mr. Wendell Givan. This is the first time since 1930 that the boys have been interested enough in the selling of the Lincolnite to appear with the queen. Mr. Givan worked untiringly and in the end emerged victoriously over his three other opponents, Victor Travis, John Wesson, and Cecil Whitney. Mr. Givan is a member of Mrs. Goss' advisory group.

Along with the queen, the class of '36 bows humbly to his majesty, the king.

Class History

The day was hot, oh so hot! A wave of warm hot air overswept two lazy caterpillars just crawling around the front door of Lincoln High School.

"Did you ever see such a day in your short life?" asked one solemnly.

"It's terrible, I do admit, but this shadow from this splendid building is grand," rejoined the other.

"A friend of mine told me the doings of the class that is coming out of it this year; it's a school, you know," replied the first. "Shall I relate it to you as I heard it."

"Oh, well, it's so cozy here, I guess you'd just as well. If it's not interesting I'll go to sleep. If it is, it will keep me awake."

Freshmen, 1932-1933

"As freshmen, they came to the dear old edifice, 649 strong, in September, 1932. There never was a jollier and more frivolous group. Yet, I remember they were a shy group and regarded upperclassmen with great caution. They held their standards, though, for when the upperclassmen tried to tack green on them for a class color they protested. They waved the banner of school spirit for the freshmen class high and kept it there. Among their honor roll residents for that year were: Theo Nix, Ella Mathews, Eunice Weaver, Mae Della Alexander and Fryne Coleman. That first year was kind o'hard for some of them and with such excuses as 'I must work,' 'I'm too dumb to learn,' 'My health won't stand it,' 'I'm tired of going to school,' and so forth, they dropped to 506 that first year."

Sophomores, 1933-1934

That second year they started with a bang! They knew more of the school customs now and tried harder to observe them. There were no more pranks played upon them by the fine upperclassmen. They were a wiser group by now. I saw the playful, frivolous little freshmen of yesteryear begin to attain special likes in that second year. Some were battling with mathematics, others liked English, science played a part and many decisions concerning trades began to arise.

It was real fun to see those little boys of a forgotten prankful day don their first R. O. T. C. uniforms; see the shyness leave them and watch them claim student council offices only to promote a growth of their dignity. They participated in everything worth while and everything they turned their hand to went over.

Juniors, 1934-35—How Many?

A perfect junior class! They were just that. Now the positions they had longed for began to be a reality. They were very proud of Eunice Weaver and Fryne Coleman as president and secretary of their student council. I often saw them at athletic activities, for there they often watched John Wesson and Andrew Ervin capture track honors, marveled at the spunk of Walter Dayton and Charles Neaves on the football team and fairly gasped at the speed with which some of their classmates

Class Prophecy

A world renowned psychiatrist, Professor F. F. Future, came to town and opened a consulting room for the unfit and the unsound of mind. Some of our earnest students went to see him.

I am not implying that they were unfit, unsound or un anything. They all went to be examined. Of course, no one ever found out what the professor said to the others.

Last night I, too, had occasion to enter Professor Future's office. Not because of mental weakness; merely to get an examination. The professor wasn't in and to kill time I gazed silently into his crystal ball, on the table in a very dark corner of the room.

In a very large city I saw a very neat-looking modiste shoppe. The owner was Mr. Walter Agins and his chief models were: Marion Foote, Irene Whitley, Sudie Brooks, and Fayrene Richardson.

The scene grew strange. An orchestra was seated awaiting a signal from their leader, James Westbrook, to play. A switch was turned, and an announcement was made, and the orchestra began to play a merry tune. A saxophone solo was introduced into the midst of the selection by James Miller.

The scene shifted to the display room of a large gown establishment. The manikins marched about the platform. One of them was exceptionally graceful and wore her evening gown well. It was Bernice Saunders, chief manikin of the establishment.

Buzzings and ringings filled the air. I saw a long room around the sides of which were seated many girls. It was a telephone office and the head operator was Margaret Jones.

I saw the interior of a public building—the library. Seated at her desk was the reference librarian, but she was not doing research for anyone. She was reading the latest novel and letting those who searched for books, wait. She was our old friend, Theo Nix.

Walking down the streets in Miami, Florida, I saw Thomas Wright, a noted philanthropist. With him walked his secretary, Hiawatha Davis.

Frances Walker owned a very select shoppe in St. Louis, where she designed gowns for all the best dressed women in the country.

How strange! I saw a room in great disorder and a man down on all fours looking at the rug through a magnifying glass. He acted very peculiarly. It was John Maddox. He was a detective. This was the result of the mystery stories he was always reading.

The scene was dim but I saw a small shop or meeting house with a large sign, "Sedate Misses." It was owned by Roberta Ann Huff. The members were: Evelyn Sublett, Christine Simmons, Ruby Harris, Willa Fennell, Helen Walls, and Maudell Johnson.

In this same city I saw a lovely building. I was told it was an asylum. Maryann Tyrees was president; David Pierce, secretary, and Dora Whisonant, treasurer. The nurses were: Hilda Beaty, Mary Louis, Ethel Mullins, Georgia Hollins and Bessie Mathis.

Now that your anxieties are all at rest, it is only fair to tell you that I learned the crystal ball was a large door knob with pictures of my classmates. Of course, that will not affect the accuracy of its prophecy at all but I thought you might like to know. So there!

The queen has two lovely attendants, in the persons of Miss Dora Whisonant and Miss Georgia Hollins, who took first and second place, respectively. Miss Whisonant is a member of Miss Smothers' advisory group while Miss Hollins is attached to Mr. Jeffress' group.

Giftonian

Comes the time of parting! Gee, that gives me a kind o' funny feeling—as if I were laughing and crying simultaneously. Here are a few gifts I would like to distribute among my friends. I hope these tokens will be found useful to them and that they will accept them in the good spirit in which they are given.

To Kathryn Benton and Sudie Brooks, I give a bucket of lip-stick, although I know it will last only a few days.

To A. V. Monroe, I give a badge to remind him of his helpfulness to the Student Council Court.

Something to make Venus Lee's and Dorothy Williams' soft voices audible? A loud-speaker is just the thing.

To Marion Foote, Vera McCoy and Mary Jane Lewis, I give a reducing machine for fat people only. Imagine!

Here's a box of height reducing pills for Robert Ann Huff and Evelyn Sublett.

To Monteal Davis, I give Everett Williams for keeps along with a job, for she'll need it.

To Richard Pullum, I give the middle-weight championship title.

To Dorothy Miller, I present a pent-house in Harlem so she can quit speaking of owning one.

To Willa Silvers, I give a hot-dog stand so she can stop "charming" the frankfurters at the school cafeteria.

For Mr. Howell, his second semester, American Government class has written a book using his favorite expression, You Will Stop This Braying, as the title.

To Louise Johnson and Ruth Adams, I give the right to argue whenever and wherever they please.

Here's a basketball for "Tango" Harris. Now he may practice to his heart's content.

To William Harmon and Harlette Briscoe, I give a miniature library, so they may read all of the best sellers.

To Sidney Tullis, I give a Remington typewriter so folks won't have to strain their eyes deciphering his hand writing.

To Irene Whitley, Edilene Grissom, Frieda Roye, Nadine Thomas and Helen Walls, go the honor of being the popularity belles of '36.

To Harold Tyler, I give Fay Richardson wrapped up like a yuletide gift and tied with silver strings.

To Rhoda Scott, Fryne Coleman, Thelma Wright, Madeline Gaines, Georgia Hollins, Margaret Floyd, Dora Whisonant and Hilda Beatty, I give a fully equipped gymnasium so they can indulge in baseball and basketball as much as they like.

Mr. Bluford's chemistry class presents to him a fountain pen because his has just about worn out from beating for order with it.

To Eunice Weaver, I give the honor of being the most studious girl of the Senior class.

To Miss Spurlock, I give this book, Sweetness, and I hope she will remain kind and sympathetic.

Joe Louis' place in the heavyweight division of the fistic world—this will I give to Charles Neaves.

To Mary Ann, Tyrees, I present Bluffing My Way Thro' Government by Goffy.

To William Stevenson, Herbert Washington and Hollie Linder, I give the dramatic success of Leslie Howard, Paul Muni and Joe Fenner.

To Miss Smothers, I give a "Lit." class that knows something about English V.

To the fifteen pupils of this year's journalism class, I give silver pins with the words LINCOLNITE STAFF printed upon them. In this way we might recapture happy memories of that model class.

Because of his melodious voice I give William Kyle a place in one of the nation's leading choruses.

To Christine Simmons, Lida Sprawley and Octavia Starnes, I give a modiste shoppe. Then they can sew to their greatest pleasure.

In order that they may pursue their course in art, to Frederick Cooley, Margaret Hopkins and George White, I give a tuition to any art institute which they want to attend.

To Ruby Brown, I give the privilege of imitating Gracie Allen to earn her bread and butter.

Here are a pair of boxing gloves for Robert Nix. Now he may forever punch the speed bag in a fashion of his very own. Isn't there something in the left glove? Well, if it isn't Leotina Blakely! Yes, you may, also, have her.

To Lavarina Howell and Jaunita Harper, I give the dramatic ability of Myrna Loy and Sylvia Sidney.

To Howard Street, I give a contract to dance with Duke Ellington's orchestra.

To Mr. Cook, Mr. Ellison and Miss Byrdie, I give the power to run Lincoln High School in their efficient manner for the next fifty years.

To Grady Alexander, I give the right of hamburgers to remind him of his nickname, "Wimpy."

To Wendell Givan's protege, Franklin Pierce, I give Givan's ability to make the trumpet "talk to you."

To Norvella Rucker, Ernestine Richardson and Thelma Saunders, I give a motor car so they will not be late in the future as they have been in the past.

To Mr. Carroll, I give a brand new voice, since his original one has about worn out from shouting at pupils.

Senior Girl Reserves

In spite of financial depression, suffered by every one, the Senior Girl Reserves have had a very profitable year. The most outstanding activities included the Inter-racial work at the Main branch of the Y. M. C. A., the annual Mother-Daughter reception, the work of the Girl Reserve Glee Club, under the careful supervision of Mrs. Dollie Brown Cave, and the Farewell Tea party at which the Senior Girl Reserves were the hostesses to all of the girls of the Junior Class.

The members of the Glee Club: Ruby Harris, Hazel Royal, Dora Whisonant, LaVaria Howell, Dorothy Williams, Thelma Wright, Geraldine Smith, Willa

Silvers, Mary Lewis, Rhoda Scott, Bernice Sanders and Mae Della Alexander.

The form of the Girl Reserve meetings has changed, considerably, from the regular form. The Juniors have their meetings with the Seniors once each month. The next two weeks are spent in interest groups with the Freshmen and Sophomores. The last week, all of the Girl Reserves meet together and discuss the accomplishments of their particular clubs. Evelyn Sublett is president of the entire group of Girl Reserves.

The officers of the Senior Group are: Dora Whisonant, chairman; Mae Della Alexander, vice-chairman; LaVaria Howell, secretary; Ruby Harris, treasurer.

derson, I give some laughing tablets. No longer shall their comely foreheads be puckered with frowns.

For Charles Edwards and Eddie Lee Haney, I purchase this book, Devoted as You Want Them by Love.

For Fred Harris, I buy a fully equipped masonry shop.

An ultra modern kitchen is opened to Martina Price Willa Fennell, Ethel Mulens and Mae Della Alexander that they may flaunt their domesticity.

A penthouse in the sky is quite the thing for Sidonia Jones and James Westbrook. Happy lovers!

To John Wesson and James Miller, go the honors for dancing most gracefully on the ballroom floor.

To Beatrice Johnson, I give the right to fall in love seven times a week.

Here's a lease for a farm ten miles from nowhere with apple orchards and a vegetable garden. Just the thing for Mr. Bryant, whose ideal home is a farm! A model T Ford goes with the gift.

To Mazola Humphrey, I give Hillis Buckman along with a copy of the song, "You're All I Need."

To Mr. Griffin, I give the world's championship chess title.

Having given away all my treasures, I wish each and every person a long life filled to the brim with fun, joy and happiness.

THEO BEATRICE NIX,
Class Giftonian, '36.

I will A. V. Monroe's office duty to Orville Allison.

To Clarence White and Deloris Yates, I bequeath the championship of Hiawatha Davis and Thomas Wright.

Alexander Moore, Frances Walker, Gladys Craig, Frances Clardy, Virginia Price, and Percy Myers as Mr. Howell to give the Seniors of next year's Negro History class the privilege which they took—talking—continuously without permission.

The Senior class wills Mr. Daugherty all the Freshmen for we know there is no better teacher of discipline.

To Deora Pittman, I will the cinder path speed of William Kyle, Jr.

To everyone, I will health, happiness and loyalty. May they follow you through the best of your days. I hope you like your gift read from the will.

ROBERTANN HUFF,
Class Will, '36.

Psychology Club

The Psychology Club was the former psychology class. Its purpose is to observe and discuss psychological facts and happenings about the school. The most outstanding activity during the year was the psychological experiment conducted by the club on the pupils of Lincoln High School. The results were tabulated and discussed by the members of the club and then presented to the teacher's study club for their approval by Mr. John Jones and LaVaria Howell. The officers of the club include: John Jones, president; Bessie Mathis, vice-president; Winona Carlock, secretary; Thelma Sanders, assistant secretary; Harold Mezile, treasurer; Amos Gibbs, critic; Eunice Weaver, chairman of program committee.

Other members are: Dora Whisonant, LaVaria Howell, Harold Reynolds, Jessie Shelton, Jessie Mae Van Winkle, Willa Fennell, William Kyle, Jr., Walter Dayton, Fauncil Coleman, Leon Dixon, Walter Agins, Loreatha Smith, James Westbrook, Hilda Beatty, Virginia Price, Theo Nix, and Helen McGaughey. Mr. Griffin is the adviser.

Trigonometry Club

The "Trig Tribe" was the former Trigonometry class under the direction of Mr. J. A. Jeffress. In order to continue the study of higher mathematics throughout the remaining half of the year the class formed a club known as the "Trig Tribe."

The most outstanding activities of the year include the farewell party given by the class and the gigantic mathematical exhibition depicting the development and significance of higher mathematics.

In order to make the club more interesting all the "members of the Tribe" have trigono-metrical names, which are: Harriette Briscoe, Interpolation; Georgia Hollins, Mantissa; LaVaria Howell, Sexagesimal; Victor Travis, Formula; James Sason, "Pi"; Fryne Coleman, Infinity; Eunice Weaver, Constant; Cullen Hodge, Contazent; John Jones, Sine; Ella Matthews, Quadrant; Dora Whisonant, Characteristic, and Thomas Marshall, Radian.

The officers of the Tribe are: Thomas Marshall, president; Mae Della Alexander, vice-president; Ella Matthews, secretary; LaVaria Hollins, treasurer, and Dora Whisonant, chairman of the program committee.

R. O. T. C.

The R. O. T. C. Department Is Instrumental in Building Sterling Character

The R. O. T. C. unit of Lincoln High School consists of one hundred and eighty-nine cadets and thirteen cadet officers. The first of the year the battalion paraded to the dedication of the new Lincoln High School. The cadets also took a part in the Armistice Day parade. A firing squad fired salutes Memorial Day, in honor of the unknown soldier. The service was sponsored by the V. F. W. The cadet officers participated in the first annual fashion show presented in the new Municipal Auditorium. The battalion was inspected by the R. O. T. C. inspector on Thursday, May 7.

The appointments made by Sergeant William Banks follows: The honor of cadet major was bestowed upon Cadet Captain William Stevenson; Cadet Adjutant, William Palmer; Cadet Captains, Cullen Hodge, Howard Wilkins, and James Miller; David Pierce, Lawrence Mayfield, Maynard Kelton, Walter Agins, Edgar Love and Ernest Anderson.

Trade Club

These boys have done outstanding vocational work in three of the departments in Lincoln High School. Those who completed work in the gas engine department were Edward Avery, Bernard McGary, Albert Giles, Clifton Hoard, Leroy Jakes. John Owsley was interested in carpentry; consequently, he finished in carpentry, while Richard Allen completed his work in masonry.

Student Council

EUNICE WEAVER
President

In the annual election of the president of the Student Council, Ozella Grissom, the junior candidate, emerged victorious over Eunice Weaver, the senior candidate. Miss Weaver moved in as permanent president because of a serious illness contracted by Miss Grissom. This illness prevented Miss Grissom's returning to school. The council consists of one member from each freshman and sophomore advisory and two members each from the junior and senior groups.

The activities of the council are conducted by departments, each department having a chairman chosen from the personnel of the council and a faculty adviser. The department of recreation has as its chairman, Irene Whitley and Mr. Jeffress as faculty adviser. In the department of justice, Cullen Hodge is chairman and Mr. Griffin adviser; department of research, Ella Mathews, chairman, Mr. Mayberry, adviser; department of foreign relations, Bernice Sanders, chairman, Mr. Dunlap, adviser; department of awards, John Smith, chairman, Miss Nolan, adviser; and department of safety, William Stevenson, chairman, and Mr. Carroll, adviser.

Two noteworthy accomplishments of this year are a revision of the old constitution printed in 1928, and the writing of a booklet, "The Ideal President," by Eunice Weaver.

CLASS SONG OF '36

'Tis Oh, so hard to part when friends
we've made grow dear
But now the time has come when we from Lincoln part.
So we loyal Lincolnites must clear and cheer and cheer.

CHORUS

May we forever fix in memory
Thoughts of dear old Lincoln high.
Who taught us as a mother would her child.
We avow our thanks to you
For showing us the value of far set goals.
Now with vain attempts to smile
This class of '36 bids you adieu.
Words: MAE D. ALEXANDER,
Music: FREDERICK COOLEY.

Editorial

DON'T STOP, KEEP GOING

We, the class of '36," are being graduated from high school. But was this our goal? Was this our only ambition? No! We must go forward and combat the trials of life. Graduation was ONE of our ambitions, but it is just another milestone that we have to overcome on our upward climb to the top of the ladder of success. We must strive more than ever now for the higher assets of life, for those character builders that make us strong in every respect. Our work has just begun. Remember, Loyal Lincolnites, "Honor and shame from no condition rise. Act well your part, there all the honor lies" Forward! March! Class of '36.

Four years of minor disappointments, but balanced with four years of overwhelming joys. This sums up the four years that we seniors have spent at Lincoln High School.

We started out as freshmen. Lincoln High School was one of our goals. It has been reached. But after we reached Lincoln High School, we were a little uncertain and nervous in our strange surroundings.

During the sophomore year our uncertainty began to leave us, we began to feel as if we were at home and to know what loyalty was, and to develop courage. We also made friends that were to be with us during our junior and senior years.

Then came the junior year, the year when we began to think that the lower classmen should have a better opinion of us. Our studies became harder and there were more social activities which we could attend.

After three years of trying to reach the goal we finally made the senior class. Of course, there were a few of our friends that had dropped from the class, and then as the time came near for graduating there was not so much joy because we would miss the building after we left and the many teachers who had helped us on our way. But what a thrill at graduation!

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

The Lincolnite Staff of 1936 is truly grateful for the assistance of our principal and faculty and for the support of our readers and friends.

We appreciate the fatherly guidance of our beloved principal, Mr. H. O. Cook. To the faculty, for their untiring efforts to broaden our knowledge, we could never give thanks enough; and to the readers and friends who gave us support when we needed it most, we do express our deep gratitude for your encouragement.

MAE DELLA ALEXANDER, Editor-in-Chief.

Reflections

If with one message I may impart
Fresh hope to some fast fainting heart
It would be this—O classmate, O friend,
This day of rejoicing is not the end,
We may be twisted by the cruel hand of fate—
But no matter what happens, be strong and wait.

Clouds may hang darkly over your head,
And your feet once light become heavy
as lead,
But presently those clouds will disappear
Sweet music ring heavenly in your ear
A sunbeam will point the way to go—
How will I know?

For I have stood beneath a threatening
cloud,
Looming dimly as from a shroud,
And always a ray has broken through,
And shown me the urgent thing to do.
And so success like a golden cup
Awaits the person who keeps his chin up.
EUNICE WEAVER.

VICTORY

We were tried and found true; we stood the test;
'Neath whirlwinds of doubt when all the rest
Crouched down and submitted, we fought best.

There are wounds on our breasts that can never be healed,
There are gashes that bleed and may not
be sealed,
But, wounded and gashed, we won the field.

And others may dream in their easy
chairs,
And point their soft hands to the scares
we bear;
But the laurels are ours—not theirs!

Mr. Bluford: "Children, that was Duke Ellington, the famous orchestra leader."

Student: "Mr. Bluford, have you ever danced to Duke Ellington's music?"

Another Student: "No, he hasn't danced to anyone's music."

Mr. Bluford. "All the children who are absent today raise their hands."

F. Cooley (in Negro History): "Gee, but these chairs are hard to sleep in."

Miss Smothers (just before giving exam.): "I will answer no questions."

C. Whitney (looking at exam. written on board): "Neither will I."

C. Hodge: "There is enough iron in your head to make a kettle."

V. Travis: "And there is enough sap in your head to fill it."

Mr. Bluford: "What do you know about nitrates?"

W. Agins: "They are cheaper than day rates."

Our Farewell

AN ODE TO LINCOLN

Dear Old Lincoln High, we hate to leave you,

But to your memory we'll ever be true
Altho from your portals we now depart
Many good lessons are stamped on each heart.

We hope our dear teachers have no cause to regret

That the good advice they have given us, we chance to forget,
For we are now just beginning our lives
to live

And we hope to the world our best to
to give.

Many times our teachers have been fretted and vexed

And over many problems we have been perplexed.

But our days spent in Lincoln

Have been a source of much pleasure
And they will remain in our memory as a valued treasure.

RUTH E. PATTERSON.

FAREWELL LINCOLN

Dear Old Lincoln High

Is the school young people adore;
We hate to leave it
Because we love it more and more.

When we were freshmen

And on up through the years,
We decided to stop at Lincoln
Until we grew beards.

We love the teachers and the principal,

Mr. Hugh Ollie Cook;
Whose picture is always seen
In the front of this book.

And now it is time for us

To say good bye, to
Our friends, who have been
So loyal and true.

But in the end

We all shall meet
In the gorgeous heavens
Where angels are fresh and sweet.

ROBERTANN HUFF.

GOODBYE, LINCOLN HIGH

We, the class of '36, for the last four years

Have surmounted many milestones with bitter tears;

Our leaving fills us with deep sorrow

But, we smile again when we look toward tomorrow.

In every condition we've stuck together
Through sunshine and through cloudy
weather;

We saw in the distance a far set goal
And worked in earnest, heart, mind, body and soul.

We thank you kind Principal and teachers, too,

For advice and theories we've learned
through you,

May Providence forever keep you up high.

Now, the class of '36, bids you goodbye,
dear Lincoln High.

MAE D. ALEXANDER.

In Memoriam

The very walls of your school—yes, even the substance of the atmosphere in that school—seems to be proclaiming over and over the words you have spoken there, whether you are present or not.

Class History

played basketball. It was even more interesting to see their R. O. T. C. boys rise from positions of privates to commissioned official positions.

The honor, that year, was bestowed upon Cullen Hodge, Ella Matthews, Victor Travis, Eunice Weaver, Mae Della Alexander, Henriette Briscoe, and Mildred Brummel. I never saw so much pride exhibited as when Mae Della Alexander, Fryne Coleman, Eunice Weaver, Ella Matthews, and Mildred Brummel entered the National Honor Society.

They were a dutiful class. That year they gave a marvelous reception. The class officers were: Mae Della Alexander, president; Herbert Washington, vice-president, and Bernice Saunders, secretary, they worked very diligently to put the grand event over. It was the grandest event of the whole year.

In 1935 there was given an exhibition of Lincoln High School at its best. Miss Rhodes and Miss Smith trained their junior girls who showed their best. Those R. O. T. C. privates of other days were now putting forth their best appearance as officers in a drill that surprised the whole audience. There was no complaint; that junior class did its part.

The dramatic department was a wonder! They put forth a junior play that was well worth its production. Hiawatha Davis, Herbert Washington, Sudie Brooks, Madolia Massey and William Stevenson played excellent parts. Hollie Linder and Ruby Brown had most efficient leads.

Seniors, 1935-1936

That last and most glorious year at last arrived. Now I see them as seniors. Cullen Hodge, as a most ably proficient classmate, was judge of the student council court while David Pierce and Frederick Cooley were sheriff and assistant sheriff, respectively. They looked with honor at such students as Theo Nix, Henriette Briscoe, Mose Davenport, Cullen Hodge, Eunice Weaver, Ella Matthews, Mae Della Alexander and Mildred Brummel, for they were honor students.

The R. O. T. C. was a prominent feature. The boys had finally attained their hopes with William Stevenson as Cadet Major, William Palmer as Lieutenant Adjutant and the three captains as follows. Cullen Hodge, James Miller, and Howard Wilkins.

The monthly Lincolnite staff boasted Mae Della Alexander as its editor-in-chief and Margaret Hopkins as assistant editor. They worked rather hard to put forth a monthly edition and succeeded.

Those likes and dislikes formed in the sophomore year now began to manifest themselves. A special class in journalism was organized. They eventually took the monthly issue of the Lincolnite on their hands. A trigonometry class was organized and resulted in a trigonometry club.

The promise of a new junior college has turned most of their hopes for a college education there. A project to secure information for a commencement program was a duty for all of them. Their dignity and pride was increased when they were told that their graduating exercises would be held in the new municipal auditorium.

"Say, are you asleep?" he asked.

"How in this world did you expect me to go to sleep? I never heard anything so interesting in all my life. It was something to be proud of, indeed!"

HARRIETTE J. BRISCOE.

LINCOLN

Never Had These Advantages!

Lincoln—one of the most beloved of American presidents—read and studied before the flickering light of the open fireplace.

He succeeded and left his name engraven in history in spite of the great handicaps under which he lived in his time.

TODAY—you have advantages Lincoln didn't have. You have available America's great educational system, and you have modern electric lighting that makes it easier to study—without strain and effort to read.

Close-seeing tasks, such as reading and study demand sufficient and proper light. Incorrect lighting places a burden on eyesight that makes restful reading difficult.

The I. E. S. Reading and Study Lamp removes strain from the eyes. It provides correct lighting—keeps muscular tension low and preserves eyesight.

TOMORROW'S LEADERS

THE CALL is proud of its hundreds of newsboys. In these boys we recognize the leaders of tomorrow. In its 18 years of service to the community, thousands of boys have sold THE CALL and in so doing have learned valuable lessons in salesmanship. Many of these boys have earned their way through school by selling THE CALL. As we look back through the years we can count numbers of successful men who once were CALL newsboys and we attribute their success in part to the lessons in salesmanship and leadership learned while selling this newspaper. We are pleased to have played a small part in helping shape their lives.
