The Manualite

Foreword

As the youth of our city, state and nation seek new ways to best convert their energies and enthusiasm to the channels of good and worthwhile endeavor, there should be adequate recognition and encouragement to serve as a guiding light so that they may achieve and excel even more.

We believe that there are definitely many youths in our school who have proven their talents and abilities but fail to execute their full potential merely because they do not have that certain something which seems to literally push them on. Perhaps they need something which emits a "Spotlight on Youth Achievement."

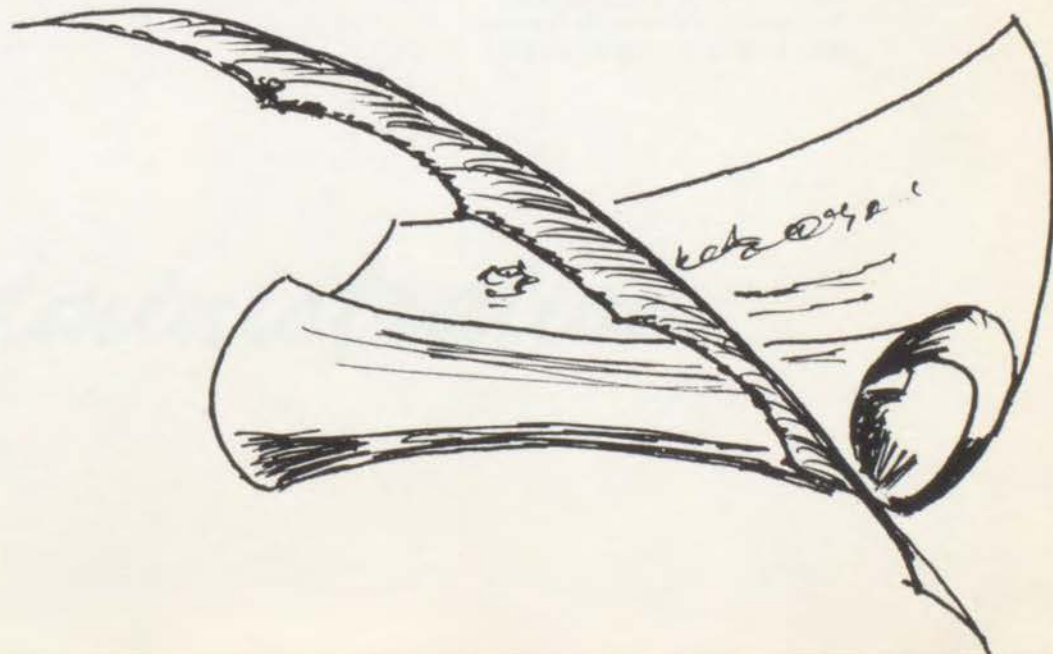

"Spotlighting Youth Achievement" is the theme of this year's Manualite. The Staff has designated this as their theme in the hope of (as the statement implies) bringing into the limelight some of those worthy of recognition because of their outstanding achievements.

The entire Staff joins in hoping that you enjoy what they have placed between the pages of your 1964 Manualite. They hope that in years to come it may become one of your most treasured possessions and that at every fingering of its pages, it unfolds again and again the beautiful memories of yesterday.

Administration

Principal

Mr. C.B. Means

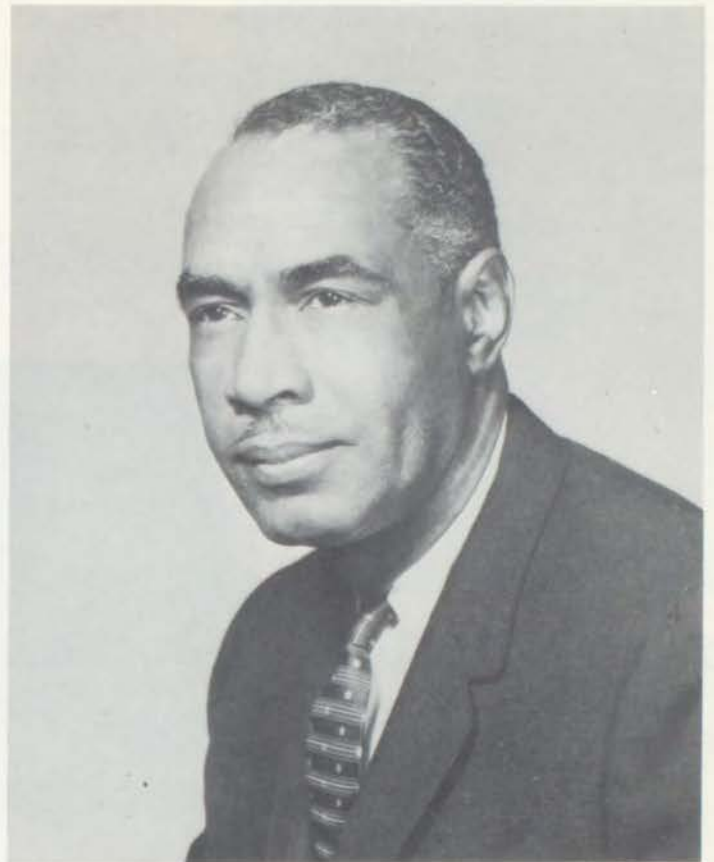

Conferences, discussions and informal conversations constitute a facet of his day too!

Work, work, work, and more work. The administrative tasks which daily face our hardworking and devoted principal are many.

Vice-Principal

Mr. Perry R. Kirkpatrick

Mr. Kirkpatrick, in one of his more serious moments gives Gary Fritz some important pointers.

A right moment in the cafeteria. With two seniors, Sharon Moore and Leotis Belcher. Laughter is the order of the day!

Shirley Busby, Sandra Motbia, Diane Hubbard, Janice Alexander, Joyce Bagsby, Alice Wilson.

The office staff is very proud of their office helpers, who donate their free periods and study periods to office work.

Virginia Bolin, Mr. Minshall, Janice Alexander.

Mr. Minshall, treasurer, and his three assistants make sure that the financial part of our school is running smoothly.

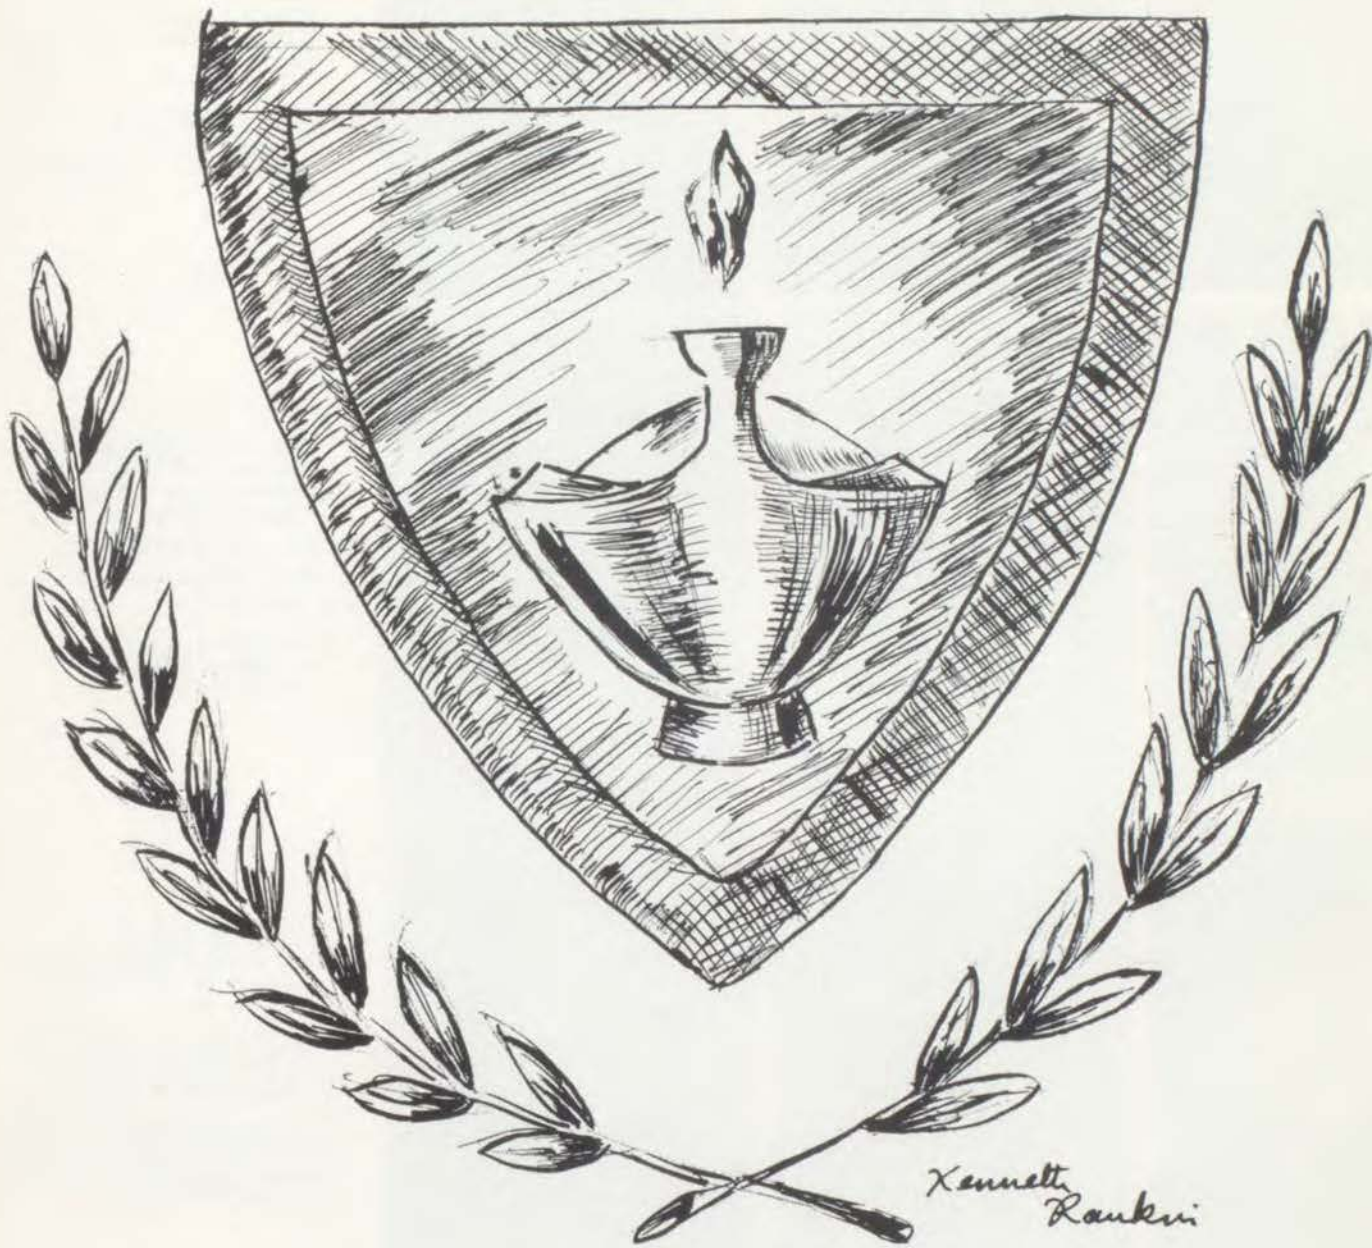

Lula Beattle

Treasurer's Office

Because of their extraordinary ability to follow directions, freshmen Donna Dover, Rose Mucker and Lonnie Beattle have been trained to be Business Office assistants.

Academic

Art demands constant effort and concentration.

The art department generously supplies the school's needs for promotional posters. The display cases on the first floor full of posters from Mr. Payne's classes add a bright and festive touch, which the students appreciate.

Portrait of man's hopes, feelings.

Students are encouraged to develop their creative abilities.

Students are taught the fundamentals of art, as the first step in developing their talent.

Don Douglass

Don is an outstanding art student who was honored this year by receiving the Scholastic Art Award Gold Key and a certificate of merit on his work.

Don is also an outstanding member of the Manual R.O.T.C. Unit. Recently he won the rating Sergeant Major All City from contestants representing six high schools.

. . . and aspirations . . . This is Art.

Sixth hour art class seems to be relaxing while the picture is being taken.

Man's creativity is utilized in all advancements.

Mrs. Smith's art class is in the process of completing a project on paper-mache. All seem to be enjoying this experience.

Manual High School Band. The band and orchestra program is fast becoming an integral part of music education. A meaningful ensemble activity, highly effective in motivating and educating instrumental music students.

These young people are eagerly learning to be secretaries of tomorrow. Typing requires speed, accuracy, spelling, and determination. In the professional world, the ability to compose business letters, understand the formulation and purpose of reports and statistics will be to his advantage.

The clerks and secretaries of tomorrow

Success in the commercial department will aid a student as he enters the professional or vocational world.

Having ability and speed is a necessity in Mr. Bowen's typing classes.

Music . . . the sound of success.

The choir serves as a contributing factor to the school curriculum in many ways. It participates in a great majority of the school functions and also serves as a representative of the school in outside activities.

FIRST ROW: Lonnie Beattle, Lula Beattle, Alma Tucker, Virginia Bolin, Stephanie Waters, Gertrude Turner, Laura Warfield. SECOND ROW: Brenda Hutton, Betty Jackson, Portia Gill, Carol Worley, Betty Henderson, Geraldine Hawkins, Josephine Osborne. THIRD ROW: Raymond Musgrave, Clarence Gant, Ronell Williams, Curtis Light, Allen Pace, Richard Fernandez. FOURTH ROW: Lawrence Braden, Clinton Washington, Thomas Gipson, Theodore Gibson, Clarence Wine, William Wells, Sandy Ricks.

The Girls' Glee Club participates in such functions as the All-City Glee Club Festival.

. . . the sound of creativity

The All-City Music Festival, various church functions, the Youth Day Achievement Program and the KCEA Banquet were some of the items which constituted our choir's busy schedule this year.

FIRST ROW: Abigail Arthur, Sandra Gibson, Bethel Jones, Sarah Johnson, Barbara Currie, Artoria Wallace. SECOND ROW: Barbara Morton, Patricia Mercer, Emma Robinson, Deborah Simms, Vera Gant, Sidney Haynes. THIRD ROW: Michael Jackson, Charles Gant, Dennis Saunders, Walter Allen, Clarence Ewing, Michael Williams. FOURTH ROW: David Brown, Samarius Ricks, Charles Cruise, James Wolf, Joseph Ramirez, Richard Taylor.

The male section of the choir takes an active part in musical affairs also.

James Warfield (slightly hidden) and Brenda Dowdy lead the English Literature class in an interesting discussion.

English . . . Mastery of the English language is . . .

Discussion is a very important phase of each day's assignment.

The English Literature class is very well organized and the student officers--President Henry McCoy, Vice-President Arthur Strozier, Secretary Lovia Anderson, and Treasurer Janice Alexander--help their instructor, Mr. Frank Weber, to keep it a model class.

English opens many doors. In Mrs. Kelso's Junior English a very attentive group is being briefed on some phases of class procedure.

English courses are designed to further the use of necessary skills that enable people to intelligently and pleasantly cooperate with others.

The written word and the spoken word.

Reading develops one mentally; it helps the individual to increase his vocabulary and better express himself. In all areas of learning, reading, writing and being able to speak correctly and fluently are of paramount value.

Here are characters from the Spring play performed by the speech department of our school. The title of the play was "Headlines" and the names of the characters are: TOP TO BOTTOM FIRST PICTURE: Jerry Lark, Jerelene Steward, Darrell Timmons, Arthur Strozier, Uganda Weatherspoon, Frank Alexander. SECOND PICTURE: Alice Wilson, Raymond Musgrave, Yvonne Holmes, John Downton, and Willa Slayton. THIRD PICTURE: Darrell Timmons, Frank Alexander, Alice Wilson and Arthur Strozier.

both. powers to create and further man's progress.

Learning to listen is as important as learning to speak because we learn by listening and observing. Anna English is reading from the book as the class follow her by listening and reading silently for themselves.

*a dominate force in achievement . . .
. . . a dominate force in all human endeavor . . .*

Jerline Boykin is showing the class a placard of the basic steps of fundmental speech. The class is doing a good job of listening and observing.

Bruce Ponder is giving a book report while the class watches the birdie.

... This is Speech.

Group activities are a part of the speech program. It encourages students to develop self-confidence.

The use of the tape recorder is almost a necessity in Mrs. Norwood's class. Willa Mae Slayton is giving a report which is being recorded. The purpose of the recorder is to let students hear their own faults.

The use of correct English is important to everyone. Mr. Washington's English class is taught the fundamentals that are needed now and will be needed later in life.

Languages provide a pathway to progress.

These young girls are paying close attention to the instructor Mrs. Briggs in their homemaking class.

As close as two pages in a book are the "library pages" as they complete their assigned library tasks. Edna Harris, (right) a full year page, came to us this year as a transfer student. Virginia Bolin, (left) a '64 graduate, asked to assist in the library as a way to increase her working knowledge of a library before entering college in the fall.

*What role does our School Library
play in a Manualiter's day?*

For a drafting class the library's encyclopedias and card catalog are a source of information to check on those who have become renowned in this field.

For Patricia Nodder, junior, the library is a quiet place to study during the noon hour.

For social studies classes the library offers an hour's respite from regular class assignments, Mr. Robert B. Roe of Kansas City, Missouri, placed the "Negro Americana" display in the library for one day, February 3.

We learn to do, we learn to create.

Industrial Arts play a big part at Manual in creating an interest and teaching boys the fundamentals of problem solving, construction and working together as a team.

From the academic studies the ability to communicate is one of the most important skills. The student needs to be able to read and follow directions correctly.

In addition to being able to read the student needs a working knowledge of mathematics. So, again, it seems as though the academic and the vocational complement each other.

AMERICAN HISTORY

"The only thing we learn-from history is that we do not learn."

Current Affairs. Lula Beattle, Wallace Coleman, and Genola Johnson.

World History. Jackie Roberts, Joseph Randle, David Cutburth, and Laura Warfield.

We must know of the yesterdays of man's success.

American History makes us better citizens through the knowledge of our rights and the responsibilities and the prices that were paid for them.

Modern transportation and communication, as well as long range missiles, have made the world so small that our future depends upon the future of people in far away lands.

Books, maps, and globes help us to understand the past with its struggles, defeats, and moments of glory. Through books and classroom films we can be present at the signing of the constitution, or the attack on Pearl Harbor.

To better acquaint young people with the constitution of the United States and how it operates, Mrs. Cheek does a wonderful job of teaching the students.

He who succeeds is well prepared

The chief aim of citizenship is the establishing of a better understanding of government and its workings, Mr. Madison is the instructor.

Human Relations is a senior subject which seeks to give some insights into the solution of present-day problems as they arise in human beings. FIRST ROW: Sylvia Roberts, Wallace Coleman, Clarence Gant, Artoria Wallace. SECOND ROW: Lala Miller, Bobbie Daniels, Darrell Timmons, and Jimmie Morton.

No man is an island: we must learn to get along with others if we are to move ahead.

Some guidelines for courtship, marriage, and sex were developed by the students. FIRST ROW: Herman Williams. SECOND ROW: Alfred Roberson, Sandra Campbell, and Fredrick Gee. THIRD ROW: Otha Overton, and Emmett Loyd. FOURTH ROW: George Richison.

FIRST ROW: Lovia Anderson, Siretha Herron, Ross Jones, Frank Scott, and Helen Farr. SECOND ROW: Juanda Wells, (Hidden) Bobbie Daniels, Don Douglass, Sandra Price and Earnest Smith.

Here Human Relations comes in to help us best understand and live with our fellow human beings.

Civics stresses the importance of good citizenship, so valuable in school now and just as meaningful to our future roles as members of the community.

Work is the criteria of success.

World History is a study of man and his achievements from earliest time to the present.

Standing at the right are Jerry Lark and Timothy Walker who served as circulation managers for The Craftsman. They traded jobs at midyear. Jerry was inside manager in the fall and in the spring had charge of mailing the papers to subscribers throughout the nation. Timothy did this in the fall and in the spring saw to the distribution inside the school. The two girls helping prepare the papers for mailing are Billie Nash and Aurora Morales, business and advertising manager for the spring semester. The boy helping is Theodore Gibson, sports editor.

Arithmetic or Mathematics deal primarily with reasoning and computations, both of which are quite essential to everyone.

Stephany Waters, Thomas Gibson, Richard Harris, Everidge Cade, Betty Jackson, and Donna Dover are learning that the student has a better chance for advancement when a portion of the study is done in several small groups.

It has been said that mathematics plays one of the largest parts in human achievements.

Homemaking for Eighth Grade Girls

A variety of units are designed to help the girls meet present problems as well as to prepare them for the future. They learn good baby sitting techniques, proper care for the sick, preparation of well-balanced meals and construction of simple garments.

And quite often those who achieve themselves; in America both men and women progress.

Cooking is a very important task for the homemaker. Kaye Randle, Audry Tilford, Peggy Harris, Naomie Kelly, Linda Bruce and Wanda Hadley practice this art.

Brenda Young and Colleen Van tackle a job of manicuring.

Vera Gant, Linda Jacob and Sharon Littlejohn proudly display garments, which they have designed and made themselves.

The learned achieve.

This is Manual's excellent girls' swimming team which made quite a splendid showing this year. The members of the team are Deborah Hurt, Patricia Gibbs, Alma Tucker and Regina Gardner.

Girls' Physical Education Activities

These girls had the privilege of acting as hostesses at the first All-City Play Day held at Manual. Manual was hostess to this event representing all of the high schools in the city. Lula Beattle second row-center, was the Mistress of Ceremonies for the day consisting of competitive sports, a banquet, and an assembly.

Rope climbing, which Mr. Harris's class is demonstrating, is one of the many exercises of the Physical Fitness program.

Mr. Washington's classes are also building better physiques through exercise. Exercising also helps develop body coordination.

Here are the members of the Junior (business) Manualite Staff: Tresta Jones, Alma Tucker, Joe Randle, Raymond Musgrave, Betty Jackson, and Eddie Jean Murphy. NOT SHOWN ARE Keith Hines and Yvonne Brown. This is the first year that the Manualite has had a business staff and the enthusiasm and dedication of the members indicate that this will be a permanent part of the Manualite staffs of the future.

Fun

A necklace for me?

Mr. Ellis, you'll get yours.

I got it straight from the horse's mouth!

Mr. Hudson, you aren't supposed to eat ice cream with a knife and fork!

Don't they ever get tired?

I'm sure glad that class is gone.

Stop putting paper down my back!

These shirts just won't stay buttoned these days.

Now, let's go over it one more time.

Fun Time

That nasty ol' photographer will never get my picture!

I am the greatest!

Well, young lady, why do you persist in being tardy?

Gee whiz, Sylvia has lost her appetite for lunch!

Cecilia says, "I enjoy the cafeteria food so much, I stay hungry."

Who took my cheerleader's manual?

Manual's track team sure is fast; they just came flying down the halls and look what happened.

Wait just a moment and we'll have a nice freshly churned batch of butter.
