RETROSPECT

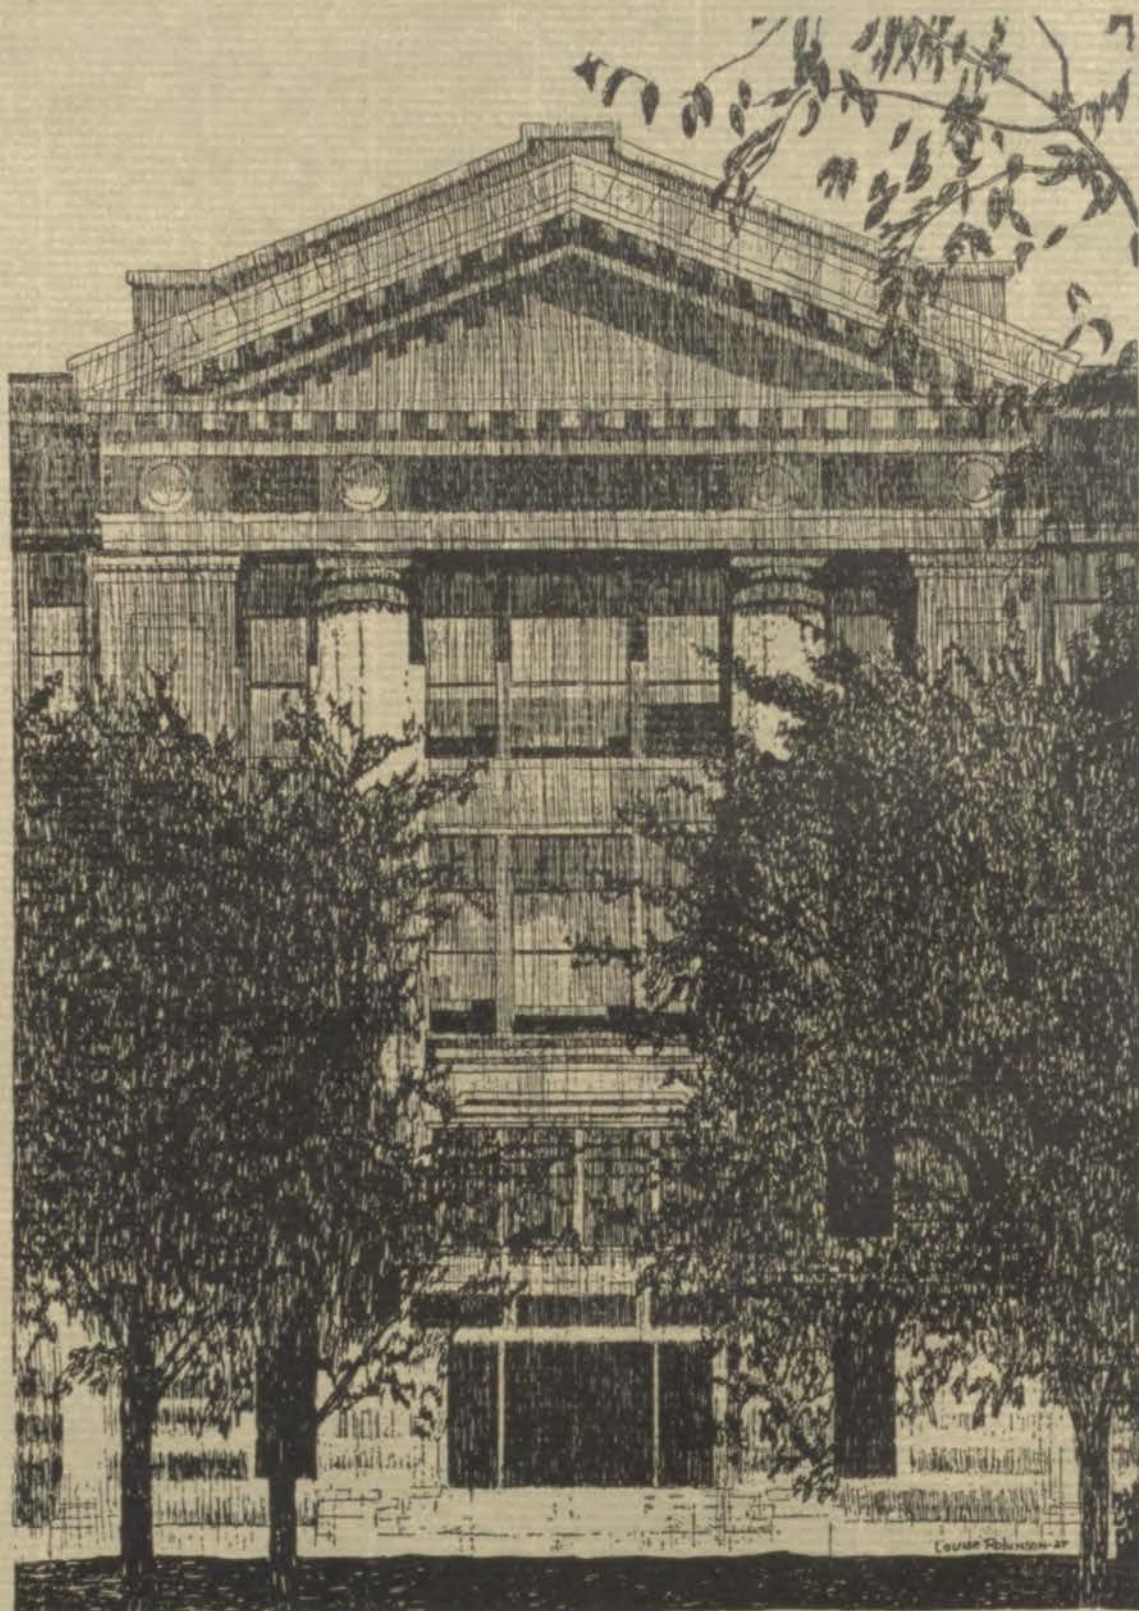

Northeast High School was organized late in the year of 1913 and Charles B. Reynolds appointed as first principal. The fourteen years since that time have seen a splendid cultured school dominate the community. Northeast has won city, state and national prominence in scholarship, fine arts and athletic prowess. With standards of loyalty, truth, high ideals and lofty ambition, the Vikings have sailed a true course and a successful one.

Our Alumni

It has become an annual event to invite the alumni to return Northeast Night to hold a reunion and to assist their alma mater in maintaining a fund for the incidental expenses of the school. The meeting place for this body has been the gymnasium. The entertainment has consisted of a short program and dancing. Northeast night of the Spring of 1927 was the first alumni reunion. During that evening Sammy Baird of the class of '21 presented her pupils to an appreciative audience of old friends. Elsie Frisbie Norman, class of '17 sang. Mary Klaveter '22, danced the Gypsy dance, she had danced while a student. Harold Richter '21, sang, Brenda Ritter played the piano. John Moore, class of '22, made the announcements. There were so many expressions of appreciation that it was decided at that time to hold another Northeast Night of 1928. Ray Siler became the announcer for the 1928 one. A quartette composed of Uhl Winans '26, Raymond Barr '26, Gordon Willis '26, and George Swope furnished the program and the remainder of the evening was given over to dancing. During a recess the alumni were called together and a committee was appointed to bring about a permanent organization at a later date. The committee was made up as follows:

Kenneth Jordan '27, Chairman.
Dorothy Custenborder '23, Secretary.
Frank Wheat '21.

Jack Becklean '26.
Russell Atkinson '25.
Ethel Dawe '27.

SOL McINERY '21, is a Senior at the University of Kansas. He has made a most enviable record in track there. This year he has won every broad-jumping event he has entered, beginning with the Missouri Valley Conference indoor meet.

The University's former record for the event was made by McNery when he leaped 23 feet 10 5/8 inches last year, in the Missouri-Kansas dual meet.

While at Northeast McNery was very prominent in athletics.

MISS HELEN TAYLOR made her debut in New York, November 14. She was acclaimed a decided success. Miss Taylor's work was notable for the fresh quality of tone and the dramatic sense that marked the more compelling passages. While in Northeast she was a member of the Treble Clef Club for three years. She was a member of Les Penseurs and the reporter of the Senior Class.

MISS GLADYS MORRISON '25, won the Atwater Kent music contest in the State of Missouri, being the choice of more than a thousand contestants.

Gladys had a leading part in the opera "Rigoletto" which was presented last year at the Schubert by the K. C. Opera Company.

RICHARD LOCKRIDGE '16, is a member of the rewrite staff on "The New York Sun." He writes many feature stories and book reviews for this paper. In a recent book entitled "The Story of the Sun," he had a story as an example of news that is written for that paper.

MARY DE REBURTIS '26, is now assisting her father in his orchestral school. She is also studying piano under Richard Canterbury. She intends to become a concert pianist.

VIRGINIA WHITING '25, played the leading part in a play at the Kansas City Theatre one week last November. While at Northeast she was a member of the Clonian Literary Society, Art Club, Botany Club, G. H. S. C. and Student Council. She played in a Clonian play, Christmas play and Senior play. She was "Best Girl Actress" on the Senior Ballot.

MILDRED MECK '21, has been appointed Superintendent of Public School Music of the Pawnee Rock District in Western Kansas. While at Northeast Mildred was a member of the Treble Clef Club and played second violin in the school orchestra.

LOUISE SPALDING '18, was recently honored by the Putnam & Sons Publishing Company of New York. She was given the commission to draw a special box cover for an extra Christmas edition of the book of Lindbergh's life "We." Miss Spalding is studying art in New York and has illustrated several books for children that were published by Putnam & Sons.

While at Northeast, Louise was president of the Girls' High School Club, Art Editor of the Annual, Junior Class reporter, and "Society Belle" on the Senior Ballot.

MARIAN SHOCKLEY '25, was among the girls selected by the Columbia merchants to act as mannikin for the Spring Fashion Show. These girls were selected from the co-eds at the University of Missouri. Miss Shockley while at Northeast was a member of the Alphas. She was elected the "Most Popular Girl" on the Senior ballot.

GEORGIA MINOR '26, has been attending Park College for two years where she has been assistant to the dean. She is intending to teach in high school next year. She was one of ten girls chosen in beauty contest at Park.

MISS BERNICE RUTHERFORD '23, is now attending Iowa State University and is a Senior there. She is majoring in debate work and is a member of the State University Debating team.

FRANCES MILLER '23, recently took the leading role in "The Masquerades," a play presented at the University of California at Los Angeles. He is a member of an honorary dramatic society, Kap and Bells. While at Northeast he was on the track team in his Junior and Senior years and a member of the "N" Club. He was also secretary of the Student Council, treasurer of the Boys' High School Club, a cheer-leader and a member of the Northeast Society of Debate.

NILES D. GILMOUR '21, is a professor of chemistry at Christian College and is taking an extension course from Missouri University.

FRANCES PALLISTER '23, is studying at the Sorbonne, the University of Paris. While Frances was in Northeast she belonged to the French Club and to the Northeast Shakespeare Club. In 1925 she had the lead in a French play at Junior College. She graduated from Kansas University in 1927.

She sang Rigoletto in the Civic Grand Opera in Kansas City.

DOROTHY BARRETT '24, will complete her course at Park College this year. She is graduating with very high honors. She hopes to secure a position as a librarian.

RAY SILER is Credit Manager of the Vacuum Oil Co., Kansas City Branch. He has been a member of the committee of Management of the Northeast Y. M. C. A. from its beginning and a leader in "putting over" the new building project now under way.

He is a teacher, coach, and manager of the Siler Class of the First Congregational Church here in Kansas City, which has thirty loving cups representing championships won in basketball, baseball, tennis, track and swimming. He has had the class for eight years, whose members now average about twenty years old.

EVA LEONARD SILER '17, teaches the girls whose ages correspond with the Siler Class.

DR. FRANK A. BAGLEY '20, graduated from Illinois University in 1927. He is now serving a very successful internship at the General Hospital and expects to complete his course in June, 1928, after which he will practice in Kansas City.

GEORGE COMBS '17, is a representative in Congress from the Sixth District in Kansas City. Mr. Combs is 28 years old and is the youngest member of Congress. While at Northeast George was very much interested in public speaking, debating and other activities.

MISS ROSE SHAPIRO '27, has been given a special promotion to the Sophomore year, for her excellent work in an examination.

Rose is now attending the Boston Conservatory, School of Music.

This is not her first triumph since her schooling there. She also won a scholarship for voice work.

DAVID ROLLINS '22, went to Los Angeles, California, after graduating here. There he became interested in the "movies." He recently played an important part in "The High School Hero."

RUTH HAYWOOD '17, is now Mrs. Joseph W. Parker and the two own and run a testing laboratory in Los Angeles, California.

HARRY E. COOPER is dean of the college of music of Ottawa University. Before taking this position he was professor of music at William Jewell College for eight years. He is also organist of the Country Club Christian Church of Kansas City. He holds the degree, Doctor of Music, from Bush Conservatory, and is an academic member of the American Guild of Organists.

MISS DOROTHY PLANCK '23, attended William Jewell College and graduated from there in 1927. She is now teaching Ancient History in a school in Oklahoma.

ETHEL FRANCES NOWLIN '17, after graduating from college in '23 taught a year in this country, then went to China and taught a year in Lientsin and a year in Peking in schools for American children.

FRANCIS MISSELWITZ '17, is steadily gaining prominence in the Orient. As correspondent for the New York Times, Mr. Misselwitz has been in the Orient for four years. He has three years of foreign service in Japan to his credit and a year in China. That the Chinese are recognizing his ability and popularity is shown by the fact that he has written a song about the Orient which has become quite popular.

FRED HAWKINS '25, is now attending Harvard University and has completed his Sophomore year there. Fred won the four year scholarship offered by the Kansas City Harvard Alumni. Fred was a member of the Music Appreciation Club, business manager of the Nor'easter Annual, and president of the Debaters.

MR. ANTHONY SAVOCA '26, has been chosen as an assistant to his chemistry teacher. Anthony attends the William Jewell College at Liberty, Missouri.

ALICE BARBOUR '24, after graduating from Northeast she attended Teachers College and graduated from there in '26. She is now teaching the fourth grade at Irving School. Last summer she attended the University of Colorado, where she is completing her A. B. degree.

LOIS SWANEY '25, last year toured with a musical revue through Kansas and Missouri. Miss Swaney was the guest soloist at the first birthday dinner of the American Legion at the Hotel President.

VIRGINIA KURFISS '20, is achieving success in the field of art in New York City. Some of her drawings have been accepted for the Childrens' Magazines. She has brilliant prospects. She was formerly on the Art Staff at Emery, Bird, Thayer Company, writing the Toyland section.

LE ROY SMITH '22, is a member of the Opera Company of the Eastman School of Music, at Rochester, New York.

EDWARD DONOHUE '21, was ordained into the ministry at the Mt. Washington Baptist Church, Sunday, October 23.

MILDRED FLANARY '19, is now circulation manager of the largest newspaper in Long Beach, California.

LOUISE DE LOUIS '22, has been on Orpheum Circuit for three years. She is now singing in local theatres.

NELL COOK '24, with her sister has been appearing in vaudeville on the Orpheum Circuit. Nell Cook and her sister play and sing popular numbers. For some time before going on the stage, they were famous as singers over W. D. A. F., the Kansas City Star's radio station.

LOIS GREENE '17, is now Mrs. Charles Southern of Houston, Texas. Mr. Southern is in pastel work. They have a son, Daniel, age three years.

ROBERT COZIER '23, recently completed a seven-week engagement with the Schuberts in New York and Washington. While in school here Robert had a leading part in "Clarence." He is now living in New York where he has made a successful entrance into dramatic circles.

JOHN BLISS '20, and Mary Louise Trotter '19, are now married and living at 3214 Randolph Ave., Oakland, California. John is in the wholesale millinery business.

J. HARVEY JENNETT '18, has finished his internship at the General Hospital and has now obtained his medical degree.

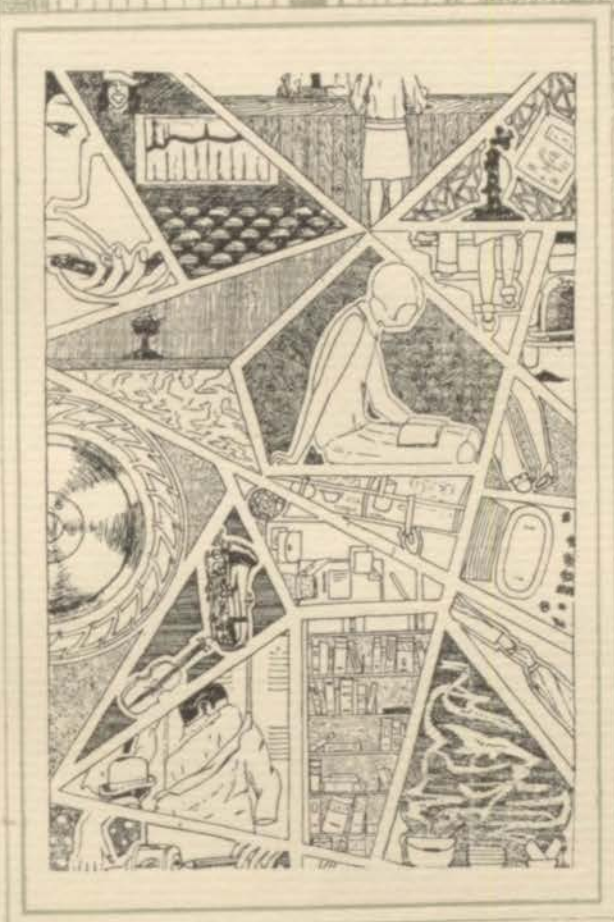

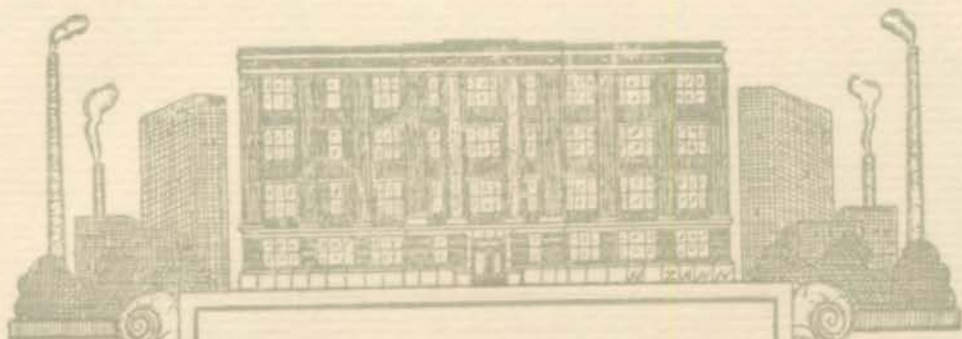

FERRIS B. FRATTER '17, is now married, living at 311 South Van Brunt, and works for the Kansas City Nut and Bolt Company.

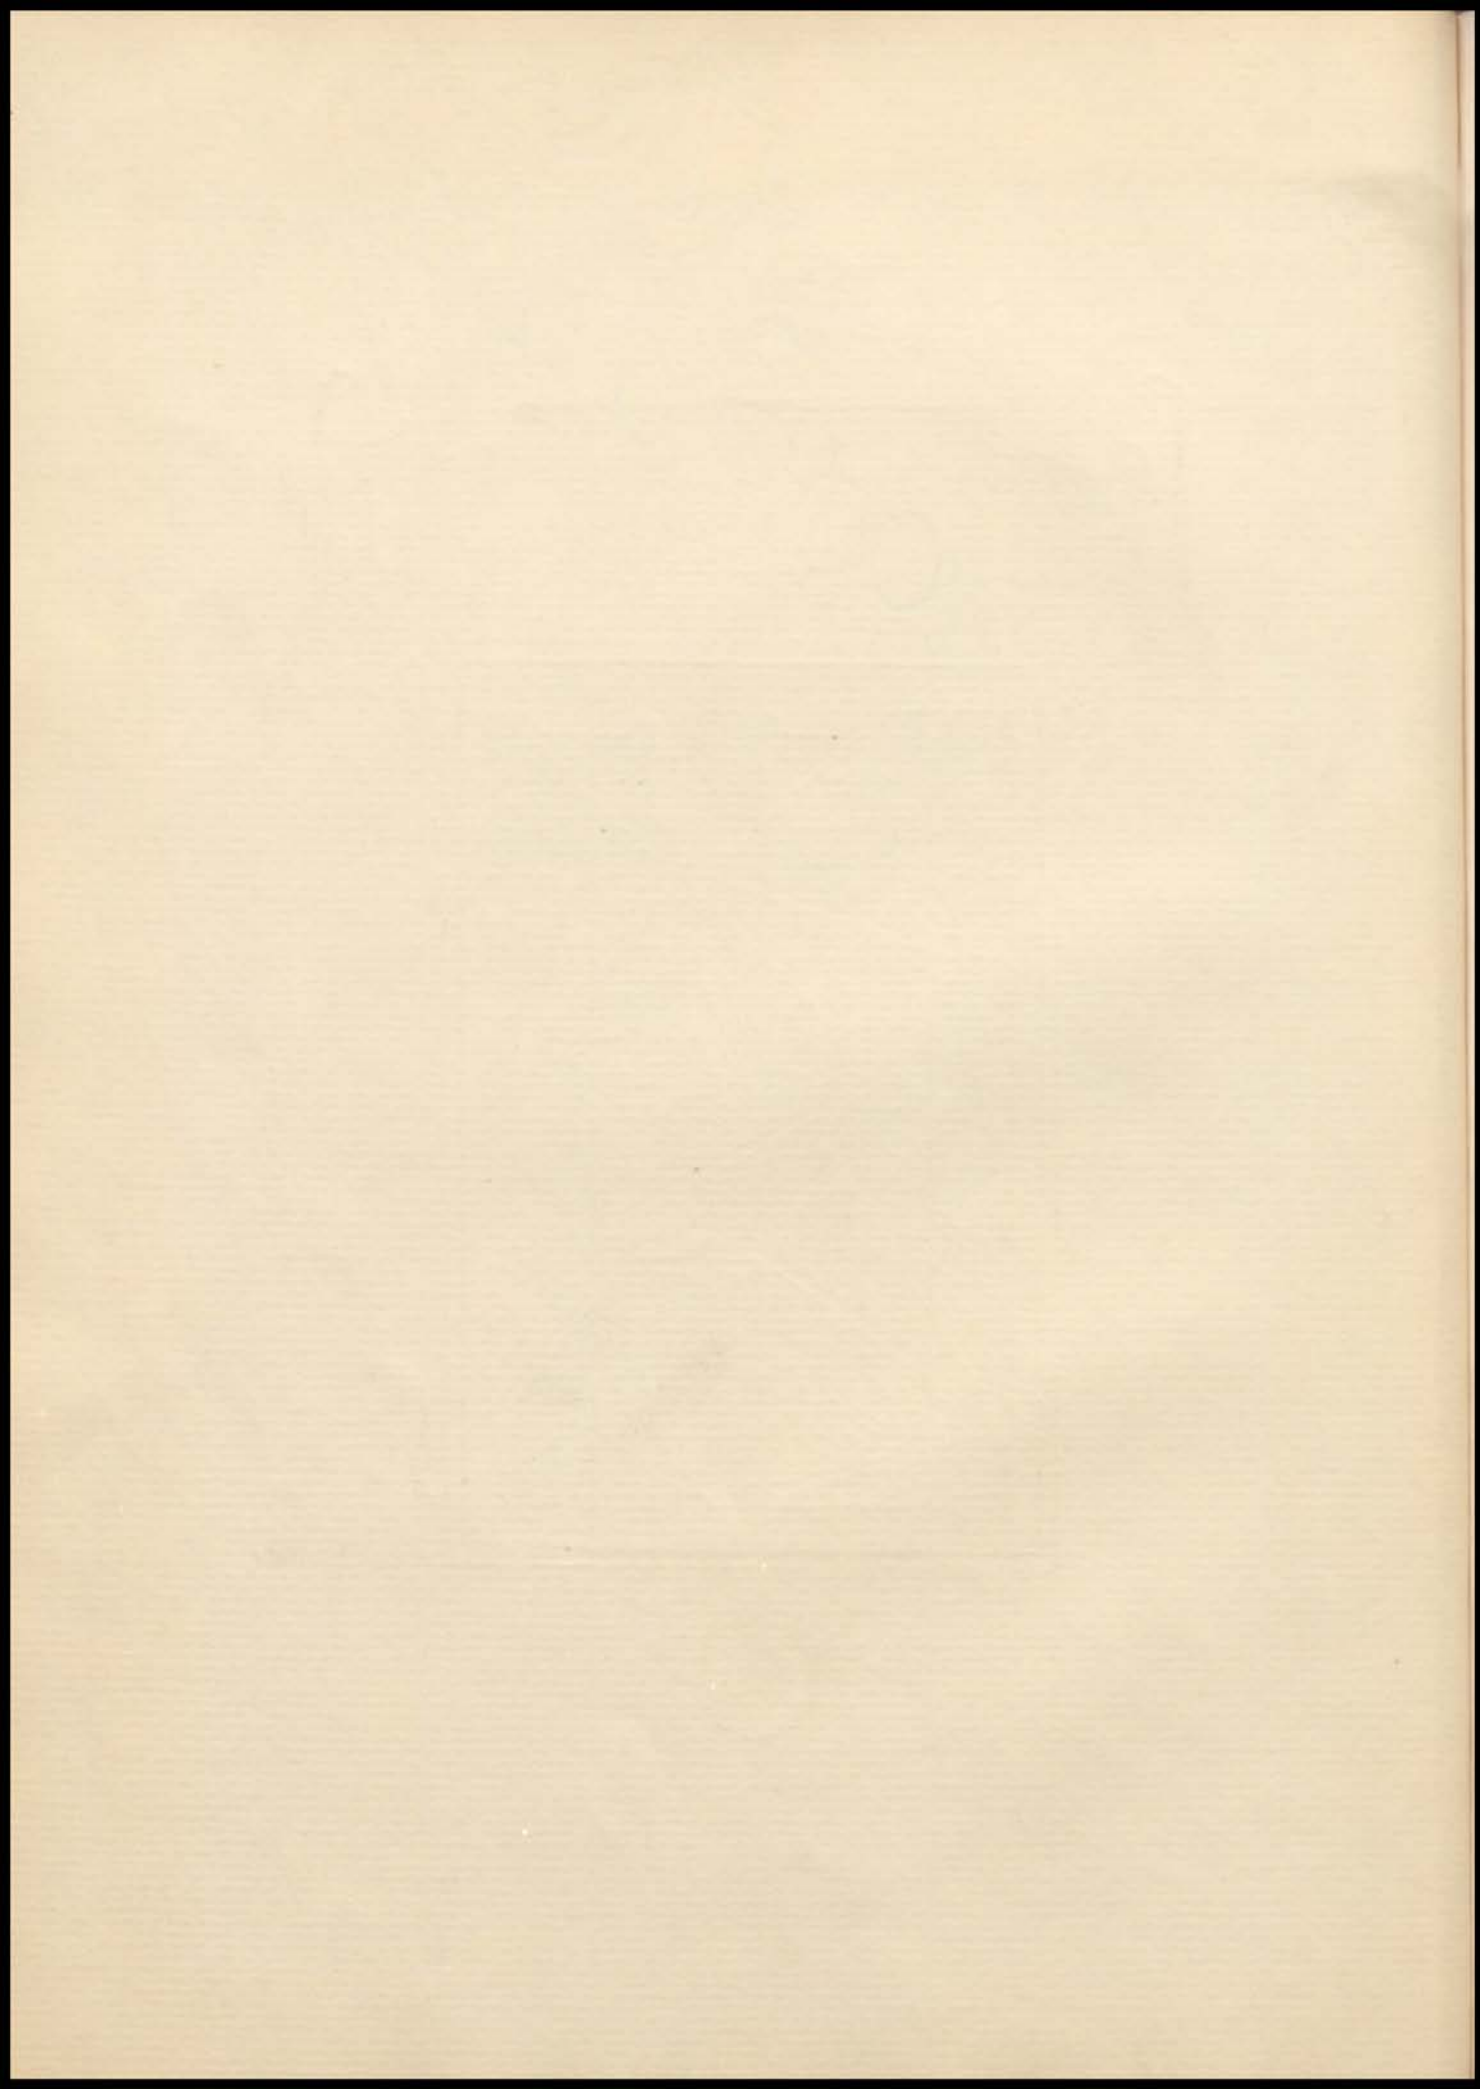

MARJORIE THOMPSON '23, has been doing much dramatic work. Last year she played one of the leading parts in "Minick" a play given by the Kansas City Theatre. While at Northeast Miss Thompson was president of the Theta Literary Society, and a member of the debate team. She graduated from K. U. two years ago, where she was a member of the Kansas University Players.

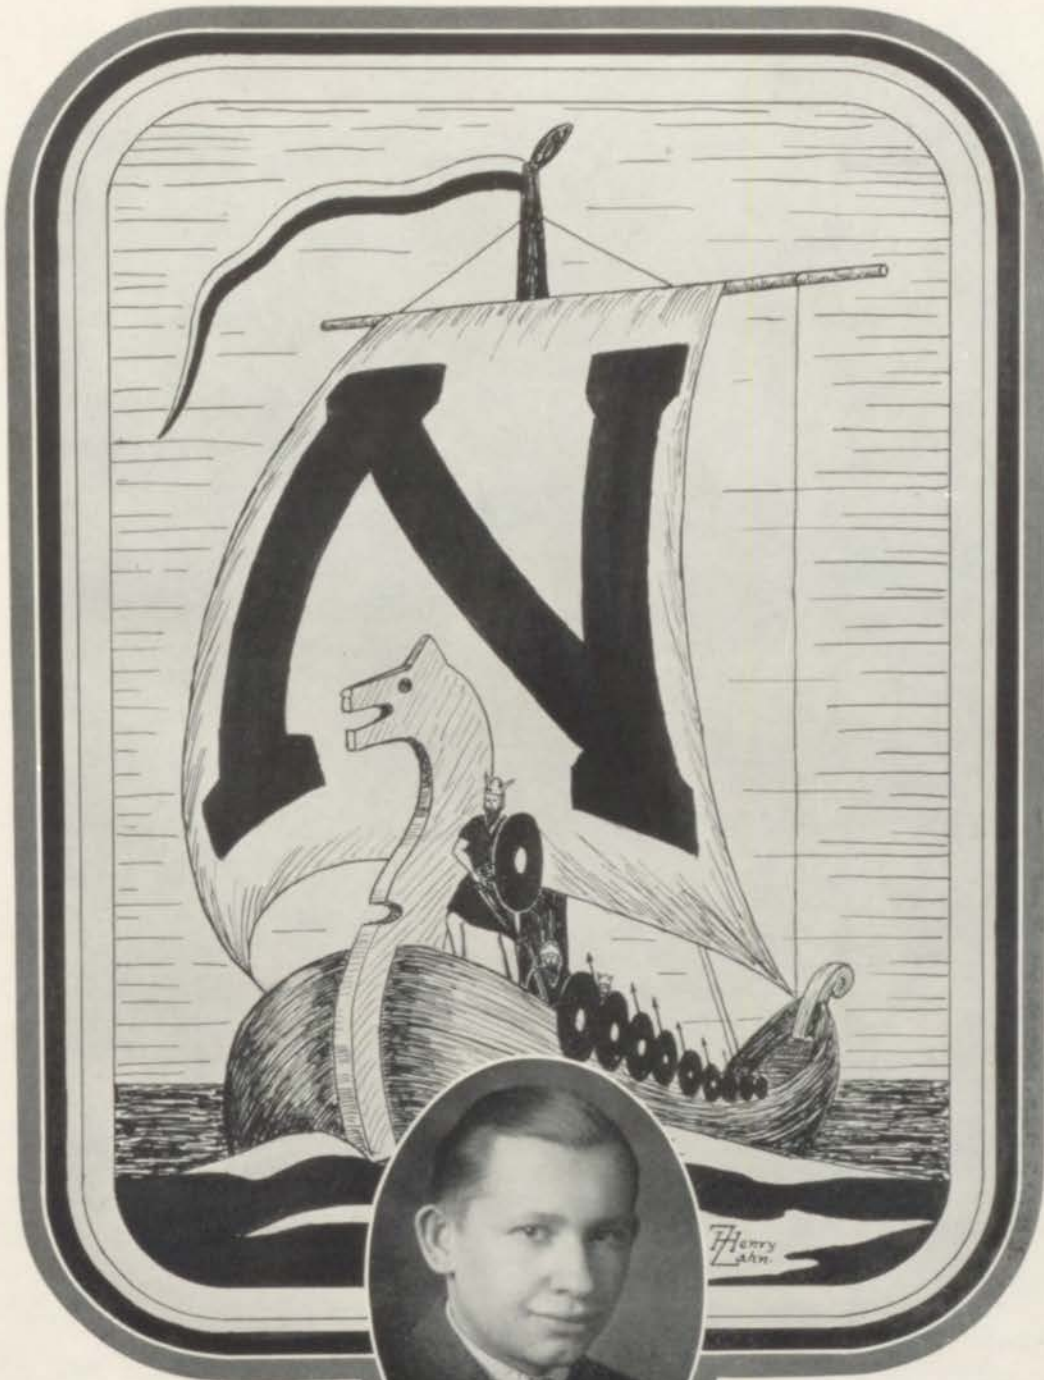

GOULD H. WARREN '17, formerly a member of the Northeast Debate team, is now a minister of the Methodist Episcopal church.

SCHOOL LIFE

SCHOOL LIFE

HENRY ZAHN.

The Vikings are known to be men of strength not only in war but also in wisdom. So is Northeast Senior High a strong school, not only in sports, but also in learning. The Vikings were brave, so are Northeast students. They do not give up when they are losing, but keep on fighting. As the Vikings explored the northern seas so does Northeast explore the great sea of wisdom.

The annual Christmas Play, "The Goose Hangs High," was presented in the auditorium, Friday and Saturday evenings, December 16 and 17.

The play is centered around the home life of a modern American family. The twins, Lois and Bradley Ingals return from college to spend the Christmas holidays with their parents and find that their father has lost his position as city assessor. However, with the help of the old grandmother they solve the difficult problem confronting their parents and the curtain falls on a happy family.

Robert Thomas, the father, was very paternal in his attitude toward his three modern children. His wife, played by Lucille Biersmith, was quite charming.

Sara Jane Freeman and Louise McNulty, as alternates for Lois Ingals, were equally fine in their portrayal of the modern college daughter of the family.

Von Allen Carlisle, impersonating Bradley Ingals, the twin brother of Lois, kept the audience in an uproar of genuine mirth.

Another droll, amusing character was the grandmother, Mrs. Bradley, played by Marjorie Hentzen.

To Miss Hobbs, who directed the play, should be given the credit for the success of the performances.

Senior Play

The Senior Class of 1928 presented to appreciative audiences, Booth Tarkington's well-known comedy, "Seventeen."

Seventeen is the story of youth. Willie Baxter falls in love with a flippant little clinging vine and the complications which arise when he thinks he must have a dress suit and goes to any lengths to get one are very humorous. Jane, the small sister, is continually placing obstacles in the way of her brother's love affair.

Homer Pratt and John Leslie were highly amusing in their characterizations of the young boy. Robert Thomas made a splendid father. Majorie Hentzen and Zelpha Land who played the part of the mother gave excellent portrayals of their character. Celina Young as the young daughter contributed a great deal to the enjoyment of the audience.

To the most critical observers it was a well selected cast and a fine play, coached and presented by Miss Helen Hoobs.

Northeast Night

Northeast's annual jubilee was again a successful venture! Replete with fun-making of all varieties, the program presented an interesting assortment of plays, side-shows and stunts that kept the large crowd in a constant state of enjoyment.

Hundreds of pleasure bent students, alumni, visitors milling through the halls! Barkers, attracting attention with their shrill voiced entreaties.

Cleverly attired girls selling their wares, noise, fun, costumes, all the ingredients that go into the making of a joyous festival, were present in abundance.

The feature of the evening was the alumni reunion in the big gym. Graduates representing every class since 1914, joined in the dance that was given for them.

A varied program was presented in the main show held in the auditorium. Skits, under the direction of Miss Hobbs and Miss Burton were given by the fifth and sixth hour expression classes and Dramatic Art Club. The Treble Clef and Glee Clubs, the boys' and girls' gym classes, and the R. O. T. C. Drum and Bugle Corps contributed to the success of the evening. Mr. Verne Pickens, with the help of his committee deserves credit for his splendid work as chairman of the Northeast Night Committee.

Northeast Junior Prom

The Junior Prom, given for the Class of '28 was held May 25, 1928, in the gymnasium at Northeast High School. The gymnasium was decorated with spring flowers, carrying out the idea of spring.

Hughes Porter and his orchestra furnished a novel and entertaining dance program.

We take this opportunity to thank the Juniors for their hearty co-operation and to give each and every Senior who is leaving "Northeast" our best wishes.

FORREST THORPE, Junior Prom Chairman.

Von Allan Carlisle won the first place in the Star's Oratorical Contest finals at Northeast with his oration, The Present Significance of the Constitution on March 30 in a well contested battle. He represented Northeast with his cleverly written, well delivered oration on April 20 at Ivanhoe Temple. The school representative this year won second place in the finals last year. John Johnson, '29, won second place this year.

Raymond Wells was awarded a finalists' medal for participation in the finals of the Young Men's Civic Forum Contest on March 16. He won his place on the program at Westport Junior High with his speech on The Opportunities for Industrial Expansion in Kansas City which he gave in assembly on March 9. John Marston was given second place at Northeast.

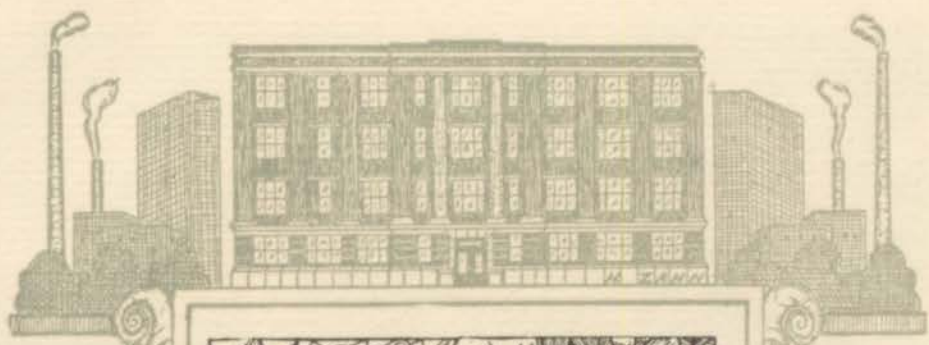

The quartet composed of Harry Headrick, Monica Goddard, Florence Jacobs, and James Muzzy won the privilege of singing in the cantata The Legend of Don Munio by winning over quartets from the seven other schools in a contest held March 3, at Westport Junior High School.

Mary Alta Beach and Edward Mills won the duet in the Legend of Don Munio in the same way. It was a very short but none the less very well sung selection.

Callie Bierman, '29, won first prize in a city poster contest for R. O. T. C.

Northeast HIGH SCHOOL

A detailed illustration within a rectangular frame. It depicts a male teacher with glasses and a beard, wearing a suit and tie, looking down at a desk. A female student is partially visible in the upper right corner, looking towards the teacher. The background is filled with various school-related items: a pencil, a ruler, a book, and a small circular emblem with the number '113'. The style is consistent with the top illustration, using fine lines and cross-hatching for shading.

MR. F. H. BARBEE

Mr. F. H. Barbee became principal of Northeast in 1926. After serving in that capacity one year and two months, he was promoted to the position of Assistant Superintendent of the Kansas City Schools.

Parent-Teacher Association

Third Row: Ellis, Gunn, Chapin, Webb, Harlan.
 Second Row: Sapp, Bleistein, Marslow, Garner, Flensburg.
 First Row: Primm, Flowers, Horn, Harris, Spurrier, Brown.

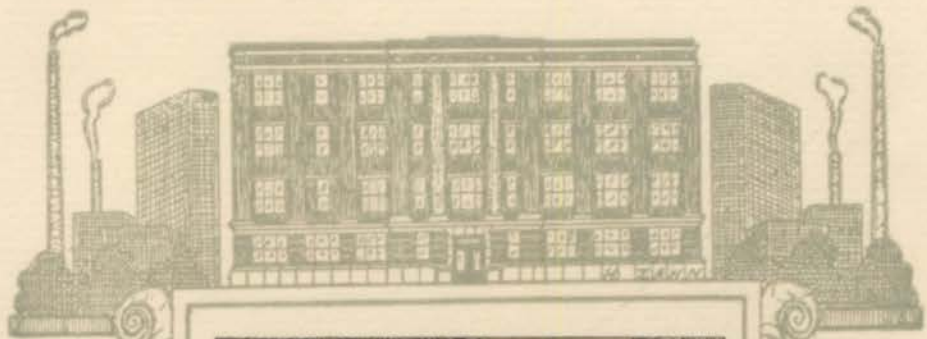

The Northeast Parent-Teacher Association was organized in June, 1921, with the following objects: To promote child welfare in the home, school, church and community; to raise the standards of home life; to secure more adequate laws for the care and protection of women and children, to bring into closer relation the home and the school, that parents and teachers may co-operate intelligently in the training of the child; and to develop between educators and the general public, such united efforts as will secure for every child the highest advantages in physical, mental, moral and spiritual education.

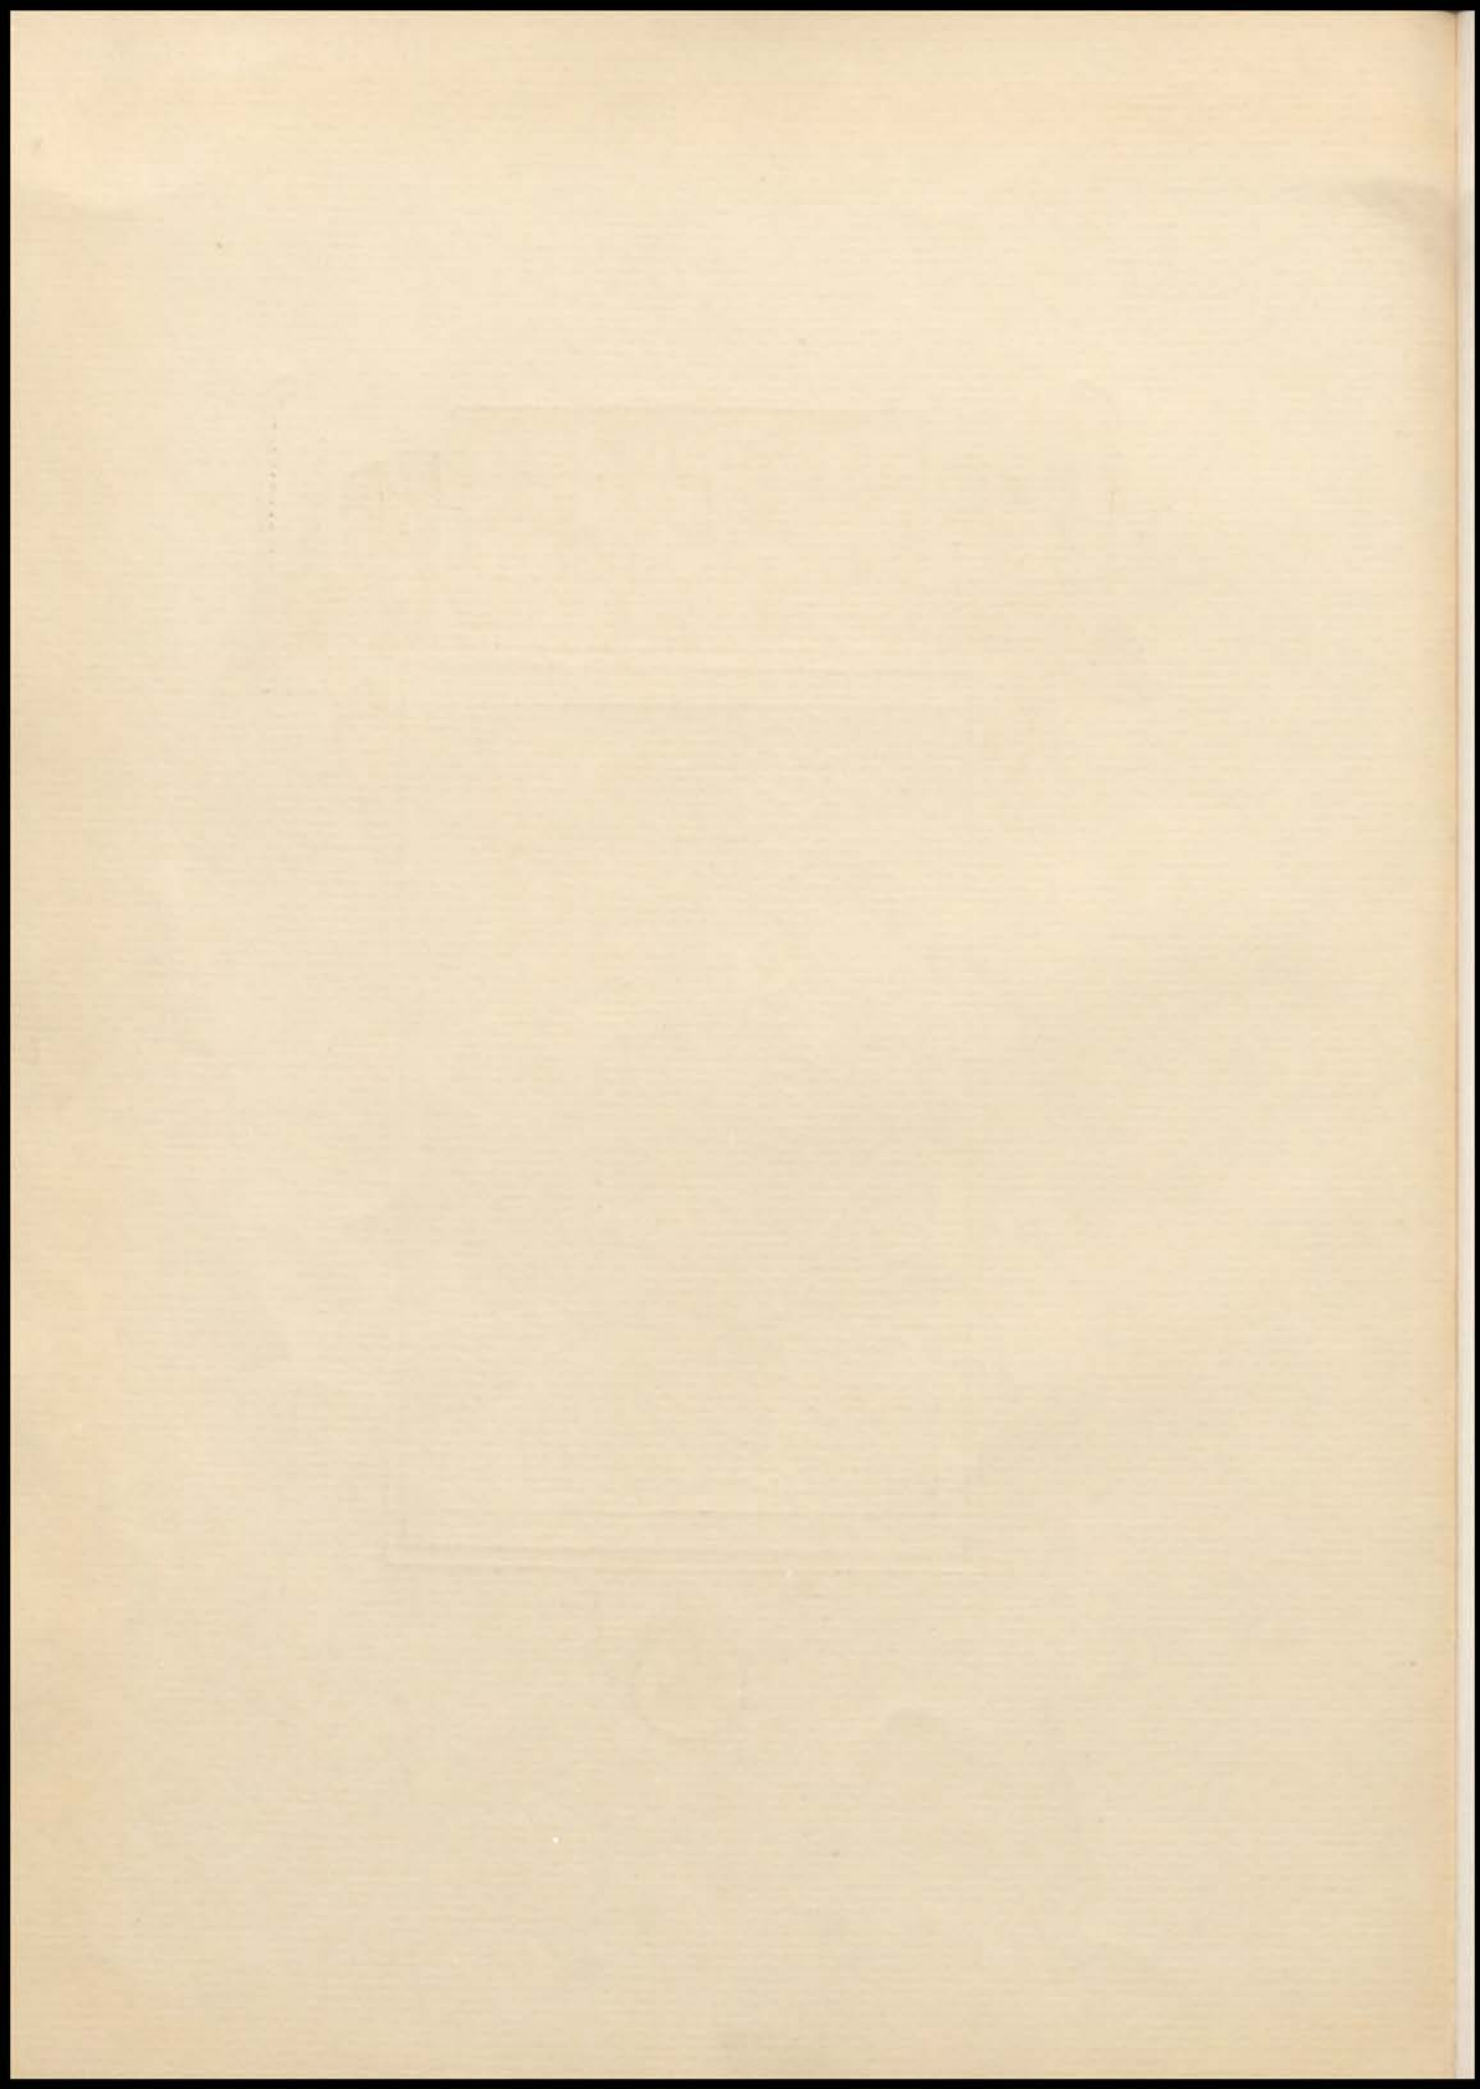

Through the proceeds derived from plays and picture shows this organization has been able to contribute to the Mary Harmon Weeks Fund and the Gold Star Scholarship Fund, which in turn give aid to worthy students, enabling them to continue their education.

GEORGE C. ABBOTT

A member of the National Athletic Honor Society and the "N" Club, who has taken a creditable interest in athletics. He was an excellent high jumper. He received letters in Track and Football.

DEAN ADAMS

Dean is interested in science and electrical engineering. He was a charter member of the Archery Club and a R. O. T. C. cadet. He also has been a member of the Benton Literary Society.

JOHN WILLIAM ARMANTROUT

John is musically inclined. He played in the band his last two years at Northeast and the orchestra his first two years. He is interested in science and intends to be a dentist.

HARRY ANDREW

Harry has majored in history and took four years of drafting. He expects to pursue architectural engineering.

IRENE VIVIAN ARTHUR

Irene has been a very talented member of the Art Club for three years and was its president during her Senior year. She has contributed much valuable art work to the Northeast Annual, having made a page in the view section and done the most of the printing this year.

NELLIE AVERY

She has distinguished herself in the Shakespeares and the Commercial and Music Appreciation Clubs and has proved to be an altogether likeable and all-around girl.

ROSALIE ADAMS

A loyal member of the Girls' High School Club and the Theta Literary Society for three years. She was also a member of the Treble Clef Club, and took part in the solo contest. In the Thetas and the Girl Reserves her work has been recognized by official positions.

FRANCES MAYBELLE ANCHORS

Her chief school interest is in athletics. She was a member of all the inter-class teams, and of the all-star hockey and basketball teams. She won a large "N". Her membership in the Northeast Shakespeare Club proved an asset to the society. She had a part in the Senior play.

MARGARET RUTH ALLEN

Margaret has held offices in both the Delta Literary Society and the French Club. She has also been a faithful worker in the Girls' High School Club, Student Council and on the Courier Staff.

BRYCE ANDERSON

Youthful exuberance and a happy nature have won countless friendships for Bryce. He is especially interested at the present in mathematics and engineering, which presages that his profession will deal with engineering problems.

LEONIDAS BEEBE ASHURST

Leonidas has a desire to go into some sort of woodwork and machine business for himself, and with his magnetic personality we are sure he will be a success. He is interested in auto-mechanics and cabinet work of all kinds.

VIOLET ALLAN

Violet has been very regular in attendance, especially during her Freshman year. She has taken a commercial course and intends to be a stenographer.

ROBERT W. BAGBY

"Bob" has taken a wide interest in extra-curricular activities. He has been president of the Glee Club and a member of the Boys' High School Club, Music Appreciation Club and Spanish Club. For two years he has sung bass in the solo contest among the Kansas City High Schools.

GERALDINE BAILEY

For two years Geraldine has been a member of the Treble Clef Club. She has been a Shakespeare and a Girl Reserve and a true Nor'easter.

THELMA BAMFORD

Her loyalty to the Delta Literary Society has been an example of one of Thelma's strongest characteristics. She made the honor roll in her Junior year. She served on the Student Council and was a member of the French Club and the Girls' High School Club.

ANTHONY JOSEPH BASILE

Anthony's happy, ready smile has been evidence enough that steady, faithful work can be made pleasant. He has been most active in Spanish work. He was a prize winner in the National Essay Contest conducted by La Prensa, Spanish newspaper. He is a member of La Sociedad Castellana.

FRED WILLIAM BEERS

Fred's musical ability won for him a place in the Senior Play of '27. Fred's talent in music is very apparent as during his Senior year he sang in the choir of one of the largest churches in the city. He has been a member of the Music Appreciation Club and of the Glee Club.

JERRY P. BIDDLE

Jerry has sturdily born the brunt of the gridiron onslaughts in his position on the first team, this year and the second team last year. It is not always the spectacular player who deserves the credit but the reward should also go to him who consistently applies himself to his tasks. Such a worker is Jerry.

HAZEL MARIE BAHR

She has not, however, confined herself to music, but has been a member of La Sociedad Castellana.

ROBERT KENNETH JASPER

Robert is a musician particularly interested in the interpretation of modern music. He was a member of the Northeast Band and of the Music Appreciation Club.

ROBERT B. JOHNSON

"Bob" has been on the Tennis team for four years in his high school career. This is good proof that he is faithful and steady in what he chooses to do or follow up. He will be remembered as one who always tried to do his best.

MILDRED KALINICH

A three year member of the track team Mildred has won the marks of athletic success—two "Ns" and her class numerals. She is versatile, playing hockey and volley ball as well as she plays basket ball and baseball. She won enough points in her work to become a member of the Olympians.

MARY J. KAPP

She was interested, primarily, in school work, Mary has, nevertheless, been active in organizations. She was one of the nominees for Sponsor-Major. She is a charter member of the Dramatic Art Club.

MARY VIRGINIA JENNETT

If Mary were not such an all-around girl she would be called musically inclined. Her chief interests during her high school years have been along that line. She has been president of the Deltas and Treble Clef, and was given a part in the Senior Play cast.

ELEANOR MAE JAMISON

With an unusual ranking in scholarship, leadership, character and service, Eleanor has been prominent in school life. She was elected to membership in the National Honor Society and is a Theta and a member of the Music Appreciation Club. She was stenographer of the Annual and served on the Courier Staff.

WILLIAM R. JACKSON

Another boy who helped keep up Northeast's extra-curricular activities and was a member of the Debaters and Botany Club. In R. O. T. C. he was a corporal, lieutenant and a member of the Non-commissioned Officers' Club.

BETTY JOHNSON

Betty's interests, it seems, have been centered on girls' athletics. She was a member of all inter-class teams during her sophomore and senior years and was vice-president of the Northeast Olympic Association. She is a Clonian.

J. PAUL JEFFERS

Here is a lad who knows how to do his own thinking in chemistry. He has been an active and trustworthy member of the Botany Club for two years.

FRANCES CARLEE SAVOCA

Frances has been interested in different fields. In athletics she has been a member of a basketball team and the girls' track team. She has held membership in the Commercial Club and the Girls' High School Club.

HARRY SHARP

Harry is another who has done his hardest work during his Senior year. He has taken a great interest in annual staff work and tried out for ad manager, ranking second. After leaving Northeast he plans to take an agricultural course, in order to teach the subject in high school.

THOMAS MICHAEL SHARP

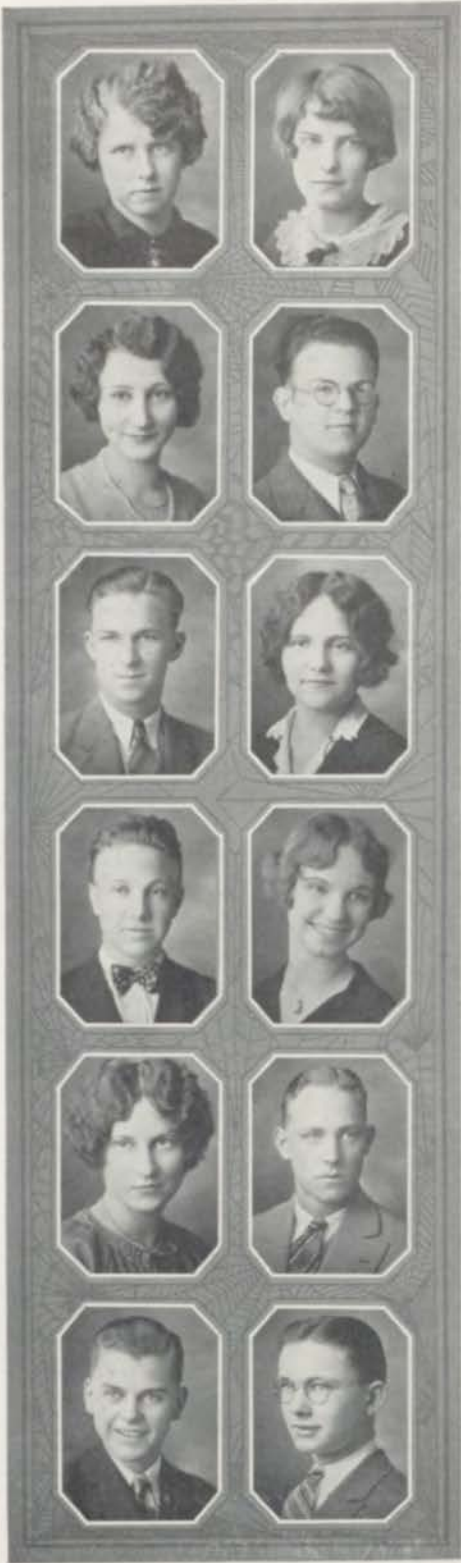

Thomas is undoubtedly interested and talented in art. He designed one of the three emblems from which our school emblem was chosen. He has been in the Art Club three years and in the student council for one year. He designed several of the Art features of the Annual.

RHODA C. SHOTLIF

A lively Alpha for two years, she also belonged to the French Club and served in official positions in the French Club and the Girls' High School Club, during her Junior year. She was also a member of the student Council. Rhoda's extra curricular work has not prevented her from making an excellent scholarship record.

RAY DONOVAN SLADE

Don came to Northeast only this year, after he was graduated from Lathrop Trade School. He belonged to the student council this year, and had he been here longer, we feel confident that he would have distinguished himself in school activities as he did at Lathrop where he was last year's Cadet Major.

PAULINE F. SCHROEDER

Quiet but forceful and a dependable friend is Pauline. She is most interested in Mathematics and desires to attend the University of Kansas.

KENNETH A. SECHREST

Hortense has shown matchless constancy in all that she has attempted. She was a member of the Delphian, G. H. S. C. and Vesta Club. She worked faithfully as classroom and music editor of the Courier.

MARTHA STAPP

Steadiness and dependability characterize Martha's work. She was a member of the Deltas, Girls' High School Club, and secretary of the Vesta Club. She has shown a deep interest in science, English, and history.

JOHN SNEDAKER

Our very efficient major has also been prominent in other school affairs besides H. O. T. C. He was president of his Junior Class, sergeant-at-arms of the Senior Class, president of the Math Club, and vice-president of the Debaters. Each of his years at Northeast, he has been on the H. S. C. Cabinet.

MARK B. SLATER

Mark is very quiet but he has an exacting, pleasing manner about him. He is interested in service. During high school he has worked outside but his scholarship has been kept up.

THELMA SMEDLEY

On this year's Senior ballot, Thelma was chosen "Most Popular Girl." She was a Clio and a member of the Math Club for three years. She was on the Junior Prom committee, a member of the Girls' High School Club, and treasurer of the Math Club.

MARIAN G. STEWART

Marian has found outside work interesting, during her four years' stay at Northeast. She excels in Dramatic Arts. One of these home-like girls is Marian.

RAYMOND CARL STAUFFER

For three years Raymond spent most of his time in purely scholastic work, but as a Senior he engaged in extra-curricular activities, joining the Archery Club and the Northeast Shakespeare Club. He intends to be a journalist.

MILFORD H. STANHART

Harold held his interest on athletics and for two years participated in track. He was interested in Senior Midget basket ball. He majored in Commerce, so we expect him to be influential in the business world.

ZEVA IRENE SMITH

Zeva intends to enter the Commercial world as a stenographer. Besides her interest in commerce, Zeva has favored athletics. She was a member of the basket ball, baseball, and hockey teams.

GERALDEAN SMITH

"Jerry" has been an interested member of the Music Appreciation Club, and the Commercial Club. In her Sophomore and Junior years she was a Girl Reserve.

LILLIAN M. STILL

Lillian was a mid-year graduate but is coming back to graduate with the 1928 Senior Class. "Thy gifts are needless; thou dost bring a treasure in thyself."

ROBERT D. THOMAS

Robert came to Northeast as a Junior. As president of the Boys' High School Club, and the Debaters—a member of the Debate team and the Christmas play cast, and as a member of the Phi Alpha Sigma and Math Club, he has left an enviable record. His scholarship has been excellent. This year he was elected a member of the National Honor Society. Robert aspires to be a lawyer.

WILLIAM SLATEN TEUBNER

"Bill" has taken every mathematics course offered at Northeast and has done well in it. He is modest about himself. He has not as yet chosen his future occupation but he'll surely be a success.

MARGARET LOUISE TERHUNE

One of the "peppiest" girls in school, and one full of fun. Her career has been well rounded out, as she was a Clio, Girls' Athletic Editor of the Annual, a member of the Treble Clef, and the Olympic Association. She's a fine basketball player.

EVELYN GERTRUDE TAYLOR

During this year, Evelyn has been president of the Commercial Club, and a member of the Delta Literary Society. She also served on the student council the first semester of this year.

LOUIS SWINKEN

Louis has the highest record in scholarship in the Senior Class. He has been particularly active in science and French. He won a gold medal for French in the State Inter-High School Meet at Columbia. He was president of the French Club and a member of the Bentons. Lou's won a silver medal in short story in the "Lit" Contest this year.

MORLEY H. SWINGLE

A student of splendid calibre, Morley has made an enviable number of friends among teachers and students. He has been an active member of the Shakespeares, Commercial Club and the Boys' High School Club.

BERNARD REVARD THIEL

Essay

ON BEING BOTH THE YOUNGEST AND OLDEST CHILD

First Place in Essay by Richard Meek

This is not to be one of those innumerable essays "On Being an Only Child," for I am not an only child. Would that I were but it cannot be. No, I must be the youngest child, the oldest child, and several in between.

The above enigmatic paragraph was put there only to catch your eye and quicken your interest. You guessed as much. However, though it does look a little like "how old is Ann?" I assure you that it is not part of a guessing game, but a live, vital group of these, treating, rather indirectly, with a problem which faces a very considerable percentage of the youth of America today. If you are not interested in the problem of youth, you had better throw aside this manuscript, for you may find it boresome.

I am one of those unfortunate individuals who live with uncles. An uncle, you know is a close relative who wants to be a father to you. The fact that you already are possessed of a very competent father does not deter him from his purpose. No, he feels it his duty to lecture and guide you all through life, or at least until one of you succumbs, and thus becomes a second father to you, as though one were not enough. There is, however, one important difference between him and the real article. "Father" is synonymous with "paying teller," while in the case of the uncle the stress is on the "teller." He tells, and tells, and tells, but is good for nothing else.

One uncle of this type is bad enough, but can be kept tractable if closely watched and fed winning smiles. But think of the situation in which one is placed who has three, as I have. Therein lies the keynote of the problem I wish to bring before you.

Each uncle wants a different type of nephew, and, for lack of material, I am all of them. This is fine for the uncles, but far from a sinecure for me, for I must go Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde one better, and have three personalities ready for me to jump into, as a fireman jumps into his boots, at a moment's notice.

N—, my youngest uncle, wants, as a nephew, a bright, sprightly young fellow who can exchange quips and jests with him with a ready and nimble wit; a sort of combination columnist and parlor entertainer. B—, the next, wants a strong, healthy, "real boy" type, ready at all times to scuffle or box with him. T—, the eldest, wants a quiet, earnest, studious young man, who works hard and has plans for the future. Ah, how well I know their little idiosyncracies and idiocies.

Through experience and character study I have learned to please any one of them part of the time, but it is beyond my power to please all of them all of the time; for (and herein lies the main part of the problem) if ever I chance to use the wrong personality on any one of them, mayhem comes in at the door and love flies out at the window.

For instance, every morning I rise at the unearthly hour necessary to those attending school, and enter our charming Victorian dining room to enjoy a piping hot breakfast; or rather, to eat one, for I know from bitter experience that I shall enjoy it about as much as eating a squashy meringue pie on a street car at the rush hour.

No sooner have I sat down and started to lift a luscious morsel to my lips than my uncle B—, enters, glowing from a cold bath, in the preparation of which he has used all the supply of hot water, and stops me with a few brusque words.

"My, you're looking peaked. What you ought to do is run around the house a few times every morning before breakfast, then you'd enjoy your food."

Outside there may be a foot of snow upon the ground, or a hailstorm may be in progress, but my hardy uncle sees no difference between typhoons and simoons. I do not want to go out at all, much less run, but from experience I know that I shall have no peace until I have done so, so I drag myself around the house at a shambling trot ere recommencing my meal.

I have scarcely begun to eat again when uncle N—, breezes cheerily in, and noticing that I am not smiling like a hand-shaking senator, reminds me that I cannot digest my food unless I am happy and makes some remarks calculated to cause one who has never heard them before to roar with laughter, but alas, I was brought up on them, and though I smile with my mouth for his benefit, I am afraid I make it look something like a calisthenic exercise.

Then, after N— is through, I really begin to eat, and am almost enjoying it, when in strides uncle T—, with a heavy but courageous step, all ready to face the problems of a new day. Seeing me eating with something like relish, this crabbed pessimist immediately asks me how I expect to earn good food like that when my parents are no longer supporting me. Fruit and toast turn to gall and wormwood in my mouth. The whole day is utterly ruined.

In the evening, when I am busiest, the whole thing begins all over, in a different way. N— comes in first this time, and drops some epigrammatic remarks which send my aunts and me into hysterics, for different reasons. If I can think of a humorous rejoinder I shout it after his retreating form, but, if my wit fails me, I fall back upon that time-honored retort, "Is zat so?"

The next intruder on my privacy, of which I have the same amount as the filament of a mazda lamp, is B—, who, stepping firmly up behind me, places his hand on my shoulder with all the gentleness of a five ton truck, shoves me half way across the room, and parts my hair with a deftly aimed sofa pillow. I have no desire to scuffle with a man of his proportions, but I bow down to the inevitable and come to grips. Careless of damage to human life and property he flings me about the room until he is tired, and then departs, leaving me a poor, bleeding piece of clay, lying like a bundle of old rags in a corner. Of course, if he hurts me badly, he is genuinely sorry, but not half so sorry as I; and, if I lose my temper and attempt to take advantage of the weapons with which civilization has provided me, he tells me I am "no sport" to lose my temper over a friendly scuffle.

The main ordeal of the evening however, is yet to come. As I said, I am usually busy about this time, and therefore absent-minded, so that I am apt to use the wrong personality on one of the terrible trio. When I do this the problem is shown in its most serious, I may say its ghastliest phase.

Let us suppose, for instance, that I say something witty in the dread presence of my uncle T—. Immediately and without fail I am given a lecture on my future, my cussedness, and my chances of dying a pauper or in a felon's cell; together with a word-picture of the horrible, brutalizing toil which makes up most of life. A few minutes of this being all I can bear, I soon lose all my self control, and tell him he is a pessimist, a "pestimist," and a thorn in my flesh, and that it is men like him who cause most of the adolescent suicide which is alarming the world today. Cooler heads usually prevail upon my uncle to desist, and, when quiet is restored, he begins his lecture all over again with renewed fervor.

"Now look at N— there. People call him a wit."

"Well, they're half right."

"But with all his humor and philosophy, what does he amount to?"

Presto, N— is drawn into the discussion. Then B— enters to pacify and remains to fight. This completes the circle and gets under way what is known as a family quarrel.

Sometimes I can work my way out of these arguments, and referee them, as it were. At such times, in order to cheer up the participants, I make witty remarks, and agree with all of them on every point, saying "My sentiments exactly," every time an opportunity presents itself. This, for some unknown reason seems to have exactly the opposite effect to that desired. Ah, revenge is sweet!

There are times, however, when I am forced, against my will, to participate in these arguments, and then sometimes I lose all patience with my uncles—. Just the other day in fact, I became highly incensed at them during the course of a heated discussion and decided to tell them exactly what I thought of them, I rose and paced the floor, for, as you know, it is always more difficult to hit a moving target than a stationary one. As I did so I became what you might, but probably would not, call inspired, and in a stentorian voice, launched forth into a flow of impassioned eloquence, the beauty of which would have hypnotized a ward caucus, and the very heat from which would have scorched itself into the consciousness of a salamander. My three uncles sat stolidly through it all, as unscorched as Shadrach, Neshac, and Abednegoe in the furnace of Nebachquadnezzar, and when I had finished N— told me not to lose my temper but to keep smiling, B— said that such nervousness was the result of staying cooped up indoors all day, and T— informed me that I could never get anywhere in the business world if I carried on like that over every little thing.

I cried myself to sleep that night.

Perhaps, however, I should not have expected too much from my little display of oratorical pyrotechnics, for the age of oratory, that is, epideictic oratory, is about past. People now seem to want cold facts delivered from the speakers platform. Imagine, facts, in an oration! Eloquence and appeal to the emotion means today about as much as saying "come seven," to a pair of dice, it is a waste of breath.

In grandfather's time, when oratory was at its height, and attention was paid to it, if you had stopped any school boy on the street and asked him what Patrick Henry said at Gettysburg, he could have declaimed the whole speech for you, word for word, whereas now most of us remember him vaguely as the man who said, "Able was I ere I saw Elba." Whither are we drifting? Off the subject.

Conversation, as you might well conjecture, is fast becoming a lost art in our family, for during the long winter evenings, when small talk should be at its height, the uncles all sit in the same room, within easy earshot of each other, and this makes starting a conversation an adventure, carrying on one a science, and stopping one a fine art.

You have probably conceived the idea, from what I have said about my uncles, that life with them is all storm and sadness. This is a mistake. There are some evenings when my happy uncle is too troubled by something or other to compose an epigram, my athletic uncle is too tired to mangle me, and my business-like uncle has just received a raise, or has seen something cheering, such as a week's pay, and is too joyful to incite me to work and prepare for the future. On these evenings, as I climb the stairs to my little bed in the garret (I sleep in a large bed in a downstairs bedroom, but all essays by good boys should end this way) I am as happy as any king could possibly be in this vale of tears, and at peace with every living thing.

Oration

WORLD PEACE AND THE FUTURE

First Place in Oratory by Huston Boyd

My friends, the time is drawing near when you and I shall become the rulers of this nation. Either in the obscure life of the voting citizen or in the legislative bodies of our land, you and I will play our part in the great national and international problems of our time.

Perhaps the greatest problem which shall face the future is the problem of "war." Since time immemorial "war" has been the greatest problem of the universe. Since the beginning of man there has existed a racial hatred between the tribes of the earth. Since Caesar waged his crude conflicts for world supremacy, man has fought with man and destroyed his own civilization, hindered his own progress and kept the world in a turmoil of murder and destruction.

In the time of the dark ages war was a more-or-less simple matter. When men marched against men with only crude spears and stone weapons, war was a physical conflict more comparable to the sports of our day than to warfare as we know it. But, the wheel of time has turned since then and with its turning science has developed the machines of war to heights undreamed of by our fathers.

The laws of Chemistry, the laws of Physics: almost all the rules of nature have been converted into death dealing and destructive weapons to annihilate the works of man and to annihilate man himself.

The late World War, which is within the memory of most of us assembled here, was the most destructive war the world has ever known. Few of us, however, can realize the terrors of that great struggle. Our picture of the war was derived only by our own privations and personal sorrows. We knew that friends and relatives left us to go into the lines to fight for our safety and for our happiness. We knew that prices were raised and we were told that it was to meet the needs of those over there. Then, we knew that after those terrible months of suspense many of those who left us to join the conflict did not return. But picture with me the scene which shrouded the European sufferers of that conflict. Picture a quiet home on the Belgian front before the war. We see a home much like that which you enjoy, a home endowed with the peaceful blessings of the happy family. A young mother singing in her native tongue as she rocks the cradle of her new-born child. A young father happy in his ambitious outlook for the future of his little family.

Then, comes the news that the Germans are coming. That lullaby freezes on the tongue of the young mother perhaps the last happy note which she shall ever sing. The father takes one long look at his gurgling infant, kisses his bride farewell and crosses the threshold to join his kinsmen at the front never again to return.

Six months later let us return to the scene of this sad parting. There we find only a jagged shell hole to mark the spot where once flourished the beginning of a happy home. The young mother and her babe have long since been ground beneath the heel of the thunderous war god. Now look at your own home and imagine it the scene of just such a tragedy.

Only those who know the terror of war can realize how essential is peace between races. Ask those who know; ask Washington; ask Lincoln; ask Pershing and above all ask those who lived through the hells of the World War; ask them if world peace is essential!

Recently, our city has built a beautiful structure to the memory of those who gave their lives in the World War. That structure is a marvelous feat of architecture. It is built to stand for centuries to commemorate in the minds of future generations those who died that we might enjoy the luxuries of democracy. Yet, if those whose names are carved in bronze at the base of that shaft could speak they would tell us that that structure should commemorate, not the victory for which they fought, not the supremacy of a nation, but the beginning of a new era in the history of the world, an era of brotherly love.

I grant that no one nation can bring about world peace. Before world peace becomes a reality the peoples of every race must unite in a spirit of love and tolerance of their fellow human neighbors.

It remains to you and to me, as members of the next generation, first to make America a peace loving nation, then to instill in the hearts of the entire world, a realization of the absolute necessity of that feeling of racial tolerance and brotherly love.

It should remain to America, as the foremost nation of the world, to be the first to adopt the policy of "Peace on earth, Good will to men."

Poem

VISIONS OF THE NIGHT

(From the top of the Federal Reserve Bank)
First Place in Poem by Hazelle Douglas

Over all the city hangs a golden mist, flung from a myriad of lights,
But the stars, not to be outrivaled, still twinkle on
In undiminished splendor, proclaiming
The triumph of nature over all man's artificialities.
From the mighty depths of a man-created canyon,
Comes a muffled but continuous roar
Which disturbs not the remote solitude of our aerie.
Till through the night a resonant humming sounds,
Strengthening 'till the universe is a maelstrom
Of roaring, rending, sound; reverberating back and forth among the canyons
Till the very earth trembles,
With a swoop, a winged creature flashes past,
And disappears into the outer darkness whence it came,
Leaving only its echo subsiding in undulating waves of sound.
At the bottom of the canyon, a long file
Of cars, like lightning bugs, or illuminated beetles, glide by,
But they too are remote, and pass like shadows of a dream,
Again our solitude is profaned.
A whining, shrieking cry fitfully rising and falling,
Is born to the outermost star,
And its awful warning strikes dread into the bosom of the earth,
And all is tense and silent waiting
While a red monster clangs and shrieks its way down the canyon
To a spot where an ominous red glare
Lights up the horizon.
Still uttering its defiant war cry,
The monster roars on,
Till reaching its destination, it spews forth crystal columns
Which in the red glare, by the magic alchemy of flame,
Are turned to blood-red rubies, the symbol of destruction.
But the monster still undaunted, sends forth pure crystal
In defiance of the fiery alchemist.
The tide of battle changes,
And while the red grows less and less, the white grows more and more,
Till at last only a tiny red glow here and there
Remains, while a white column of steam
Ascends triumphantly heavenward to proclaim
A victory for man!

Short Story

JOYEUX NOEL

First Place in Short Story by Virginia Potter

The Christmas chimes rang out clear and silver-tongued upon the crisp, snow-filled, night air. They were vaguely heard in the brightly lighted palaces of the rich, but they echoed and re-echoed through the thin walls to the pauper, crouching, blue with cold, in his garret.

But the sound seemed sweetest, and echoed longest, in the attic studio of the struggling artist, Andre Gistal. There, two cheap, tallow candles burned feverishly in their burnished copper holders, vying vainly with the merry flames that danced a Bacchanale on the hearth. The windows on one side of the room framed a pleasing spectacle: the white roofed houses of Paris, the tiny, twinkling lights, and the picturesque array of dolls in the holiday decorated windows of the toy shop directly across the street. All was merry and bright and noisy outside; while all was happy and mellow-lighted and quiet within.

Around the room were numerous canvasses; well done, beautiful, but with practically no sales value; because the artist was unknown. But Andre would rather have starved than sold his beloved paintings for a few, paltry centimes. Aye, he would have starved, and kept them, and let them rot, had it not been for one reason.

That particular reason was lying quietly on the little, white cot before the fire; listening, enchanted, to the Christmas chimes; her slim figure stretched out to catch the warmth of the merry blaze. The heavily fringed, blue eyes sparkled hopefully and courageously, her white face, faintly flushed with Yuletide excitement, glowed wistfully in the firelight, framed by the soft tendrils of her golden curls, which her father fondly called his "angel daughter's halo."

Andre sat beside the cot, holding her hand in his, discussing what the "Petit Noel" would bring. If only he would leave two thousand francs, then Jeanne might be taken to a summer cottage in Versailles and made well and strong, so that she might walk again. During all her eleven years she had been noticeably frail and delicate, but only the hardships of the past two years had brought about the necessity of immediate treatment. Country air and good food were required and these could not be had under the present circumstances.

Jeanne's eyes brightened as Andre took a recently completed portrait of her from the easel and gently covered it and put it under his arm. He would try very hard to sell it, for his little girl's life and happiness depended on its sale.

As he wrapped his worn muffler tighter around his throat and ventured out into the street, his heart was full of hope and pleasant plans; while back in the attic studio Jeanne smiled contentedly into the fire.

A light rap came at the door and a bushy head, black and shiny as jet, bobbed around the casing.

"Hello, Pierre," cried Jeanne gleefully, "guess what has happened?"

Pierre blinked his solemn, black eyes.

"Your rich uncle died and left you a town house, a delicatessen and a country estate."

Then they burst into peals of merry laughter, for both knew well that Jeanne had no rich uncle; in fact she had no one but her father and "le bon Dieu," that unseen and mysterious personage, to whom she and her father prayed every night.

"No," Jeanne replied, shaking her head, "Daddy is going to sell that portrait of me that he completed yesterday."

"If it would please you, Monsieur," said Andre timidly, "I have something quite beautiful to show you; I am certain that you will be pleased with it."

"Eh bien! eh bien!" replied the merchant, fingering his waxed black mustache: "I am in the mood to be pleased this evening, unwrap it, Monsieur."

Lovingly, Andre removed the paper from his daughter's portrait and placed the canvas on a chair. The merchant's eyes sparkled, he stepped back and eyed it, he stepped closer and inspected it. "A gem," he murmured, "where did you get it?"

"I painted it, Monsieur."

"Painted it? You did? Parblieu, it looks real; I am expecting any moment to hear a merry burst of laughter from those lips. And where did you get the idea, fellow?"

"It isn't an idea, at all, Monsieur; it's my daughter," Andre replied.

The subject of discussion smiled appealingly from the canvas. Her cheeks were fair as roses, her eyes beamed with the blueness of Heaven and the holiness of saint's, and the golden mist of ringlets, that encircled her head, seemed not unlike a sunny halo.

"Ah, would you paint me one such as this?"

"I'll sell you this, Monsieur," Andre hung his shaggy head, "You see, I need the money badly."

"If you really painted this, I have a position for you. Come back after Noel, I need an artist, such as you, in my new art gallery. I will pay you now, for this "Golden Halo." He drew forth his pinseal billfold, and counted five thousand francs into the trembling hands of the astonished Andre, who fervently wished him a Joyeux Noel and departed.

On the way home, he stopped at the toy shop and purchased a doll. Surely he was guided by "le bon Dieu," for it was the very doll that Jeanne's animated, azure eyes had rested fondly upon for days. He spent lavishly on gifts and holiday viands; and, to be sure, Pierre was not forgotten.

Loaded with packages and covered with snow, he stumbled blindly up the stairs to his attic; his French heart brimming with the joy he was so unaccustomed to. His lustrous, brown eyes sparkled, as he thought of Jeanne's happiness, his new position, a cottage of their own, in the country where he could find peace and solitude with the work he loved, unhampered by poverty. And best of all, Jeanne would be well and strong, flitting about, her golden curls flying; not unlike a butterfly recently released from its cocoon.

Perhaps, Pierre might go along—Jeanne would miss this cheerful, faithful playmate. Besides, city life, such as this, would never give him the inspiration to paint beautiful things, as the country scenery would. Although a child, Pierre had the heart and soul of a master painter. He needed environment and to the best of Andre's ability, he would have it.

Then in all his happiness, a vision rose before him, standing on the landing up above him in flowing, phosphorescent robes; a cascade of golden sunlight falling around the dim outline of her shoulders, her face transparently white, her deep set, blue eyes smiling at him.

"Marie," Andre gasped, "Marie!" Then to his horror, he thought he saw something gauzy white, and golden haired, clinging to her hand. Confusedly, he passed his hand over his eyes; when he opened them again the two heavenly figures had gone.

Then he chided himself for letting his imagination influence his sight, and so deceive him into believing that he had seen the spirit of his wife, the sweet and beautiful American girl, who had made their attic the brightest and happiest spot in the

"You mean he's going to try to," corrected Pierre, who knew well the luck of striving, unrecognized artists; for had not his father been one?

"No, I meant that he was going to sell it, my father needs the money, and "le bon Dieu" will help him, because I prayed. And you see, with that money, Daddy and I can go to the country and live happily ever after. Just think, we'll have a little cottage with lime-washed walls, and thatched roof and lots of windows with frilly curtains, and a great, big fireplace with a rug on the hearth for Mouchie to doze on. Oh, and of course there'll be great oak trees to cast inviting shade, and a lovely flower garden full of gay colored posies—"

"And, maybe," added Pierre, who had become intensely interested, "maybe there'll be a big rope swing—you know there usually is at places like that. Oh, and do you suppose that I could come and see you?"

"Why, yes, of course: you see we'll have plenty of money then."

The two prattled on, building castles in the air and blowing fantastic bubbles.

"You know," mused Pierre, "our dream castles remind me of a song Madelon sung in the ballerina."

Then he began singing, in a soft, low, childish voice, part of "Broken Dreams:"

"You've been here always, bringing me gladness:
And now that you're gone, life holds but sadness.
Friends we were then. Pals we might have been.
Only you went away, I could not recall you,
And you are gone to stay, I can but dream of you.
We built castles fair

In the cool, night air,

But one by one they

Only crumbled away

Leaving memories and broken dreams of you."

When Pierre finished there were tears in his eyes, and two sparkling drops were in Jeanne's.

"Jeanne," he asked, his voice breaking, "Jeanne, do you suppose that you could go to the country and forget all about me, Pierre Duvant, your playmate since the time when you could break my Noel toys; and leave only crumbled castles and shattered dreams for me to be content with?"

"Oh, no! Goodness no!" exclaimed Jeanne in horror at the idea. "Why, Pierre, dear, I could never forget you and all that you have meant to me." Bashfully she pressed his hand in assurance of her sincerity.

Just then the brass-lunged, grandfather clock struck eight hours and reminded them that the "Petit Noel" would be there soon.

"I wonder what he will bring you and me," meditated Pierre.

"I know what I want. Help me over to the window and I will show you," responded Jeanne. Very carefully Pierre wrapped his little playmate in a warm comfort and gently lifted her into a chair by the window. "I bet it won't be so easy to lift me when you come out to the country to see me," laughed Jeanne. "Now, see right over there in the window with the long curls and the pretty, ruffled dress? Well, that's what I want for Noel, and I know "le bon Dieu" will whisper it to the "Petit Noel," because He loves me and wants me to be happy. I am one of His many children, and you're one too—that's what father says."

In the meantime Andre wended his way through the snow to the house of a rich merchant, who was greatly interested in pictures of children. Andre was ushered into the warm parlor and welcomed heartily by the little French merchant, who was fairly bubbling over with Yuletide cheer.

world. But when Jeanne was born, Marie had drifted smilingly and quietly into that brighter, kinder realm, where poverty, hunger and pain do not dwell.

Andre assumed a gay smile and staggered on upstairs. Quietly he opened the door to his studio; just in time to be reminded by the grandfather clock that it was twelve hours and Noel Matin. Before the striking clock had ceased the Christmas chimes began; wishing everyone in Paris, in France, in all the world a Joyeux Noel. Andre paused to listen, then he stepped softly across the floor to Jeanne's bed.

The two tallow candles, weary of burning flickered out, and the fire burned slowly; sending rosy shadows over the room, and drawing forth the glistening gold from Jeanne's curls. Andre stacked the packages by her bedside, tenderly patted a stray thread of gold into place, and took hold of the shapely hand outside of the coverlid. The happy smile on his visage wavered, faded; the slim white fingers could have been so many icicles.

"Jeanne," he whispered. The sweet smile on her placid, white face never wavered, the faintly purple-veined eyelids did not flicker. "Jeanne," he called plaintively, and dropped down on his knees beside the bed, his head in his hands.

The fire on the hearth burned slower and dropped through the grate, stirring the ashes beneath into a finely powdered cloud, that resembled a freed soul wandering Heavenward.

The chimes pealed silver-tongued—their mellow notes drifting over the city covered with virgin snow:

"Noel, Noel, le bon Dieu est grand,
Noel, Noel, a tous les mondes, Joyeux Noel."

Had Jeanne gone with her sainted mother to meet "le bon Dieu" on the birthday of His beloved Son? The chimes pealed clear and sweet, "Joyeux Noel" and subsided into silence.

* * * * *

The dawn came cold and gray as the ashes on the hearth. Pierre who had been outside, had missed Jeanne's joyful face and tap at the window, and had come up to find what the matter might be.

"Joyeux Noel," he greeted them, but the little figure on the cot remained silent, and the hunched over artist was sleeping the deep sleep of exhaustion, into which he had fallen shortly after returning home. Pierre grinned broadly and stole up close to the bedside of his little friend. Impulsively, he planted a firm, boyish kiss on her smooth forehead. "Joyeux Noel, I said, don't play asleep on me."—The golden head stirred, the drowsy eyes opened wide, and Jeanne promptly sat up in bed.

"Oh, Pierre," she exclaimed, "I had the loveliest dream. I dreamed that I was floating over Paris with a beautiful, white lady. Little snowflakes were drifting idly about us, and one very bold one kissed me, oh, every so softly on the forehead, and, why—then I woke up."

BOOK PLATES

It is gratifying that the North-easter Annual is able to continue the Book-Plate section as one of its distinctive, artistic features.

Northeast's Book-Plate...

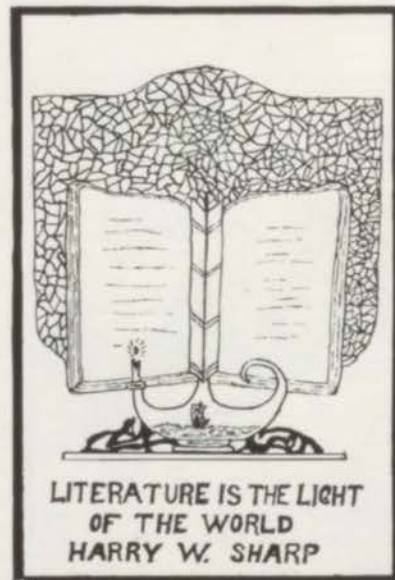

The original and persistent motive of this charming characteristic of our Annual —is, not only to furnish a decorative quality to our year book, but to encourage our students to cultivate their artistic talents along utilitarian lines,—such as the making of posters, cartoons, and the illustrations for books.

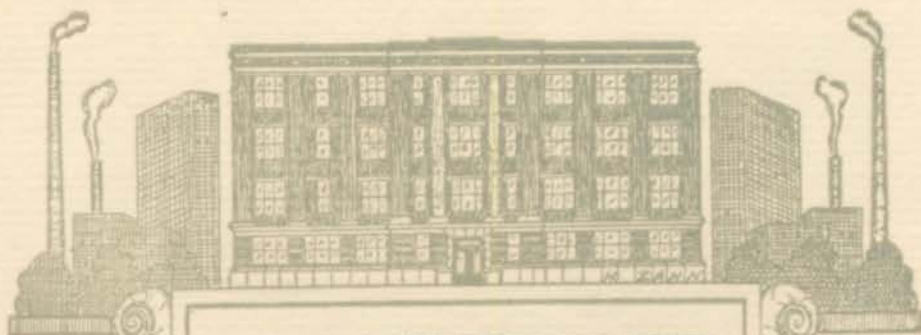

While Prof. E. D. Phillips originated this pictorial practice among his Senior English Literature classes, his desire is to see it engaged in by any other students who would like to develop their aesthetic ability in designing book-plates, as expressions of appreciation of books by book lovers.

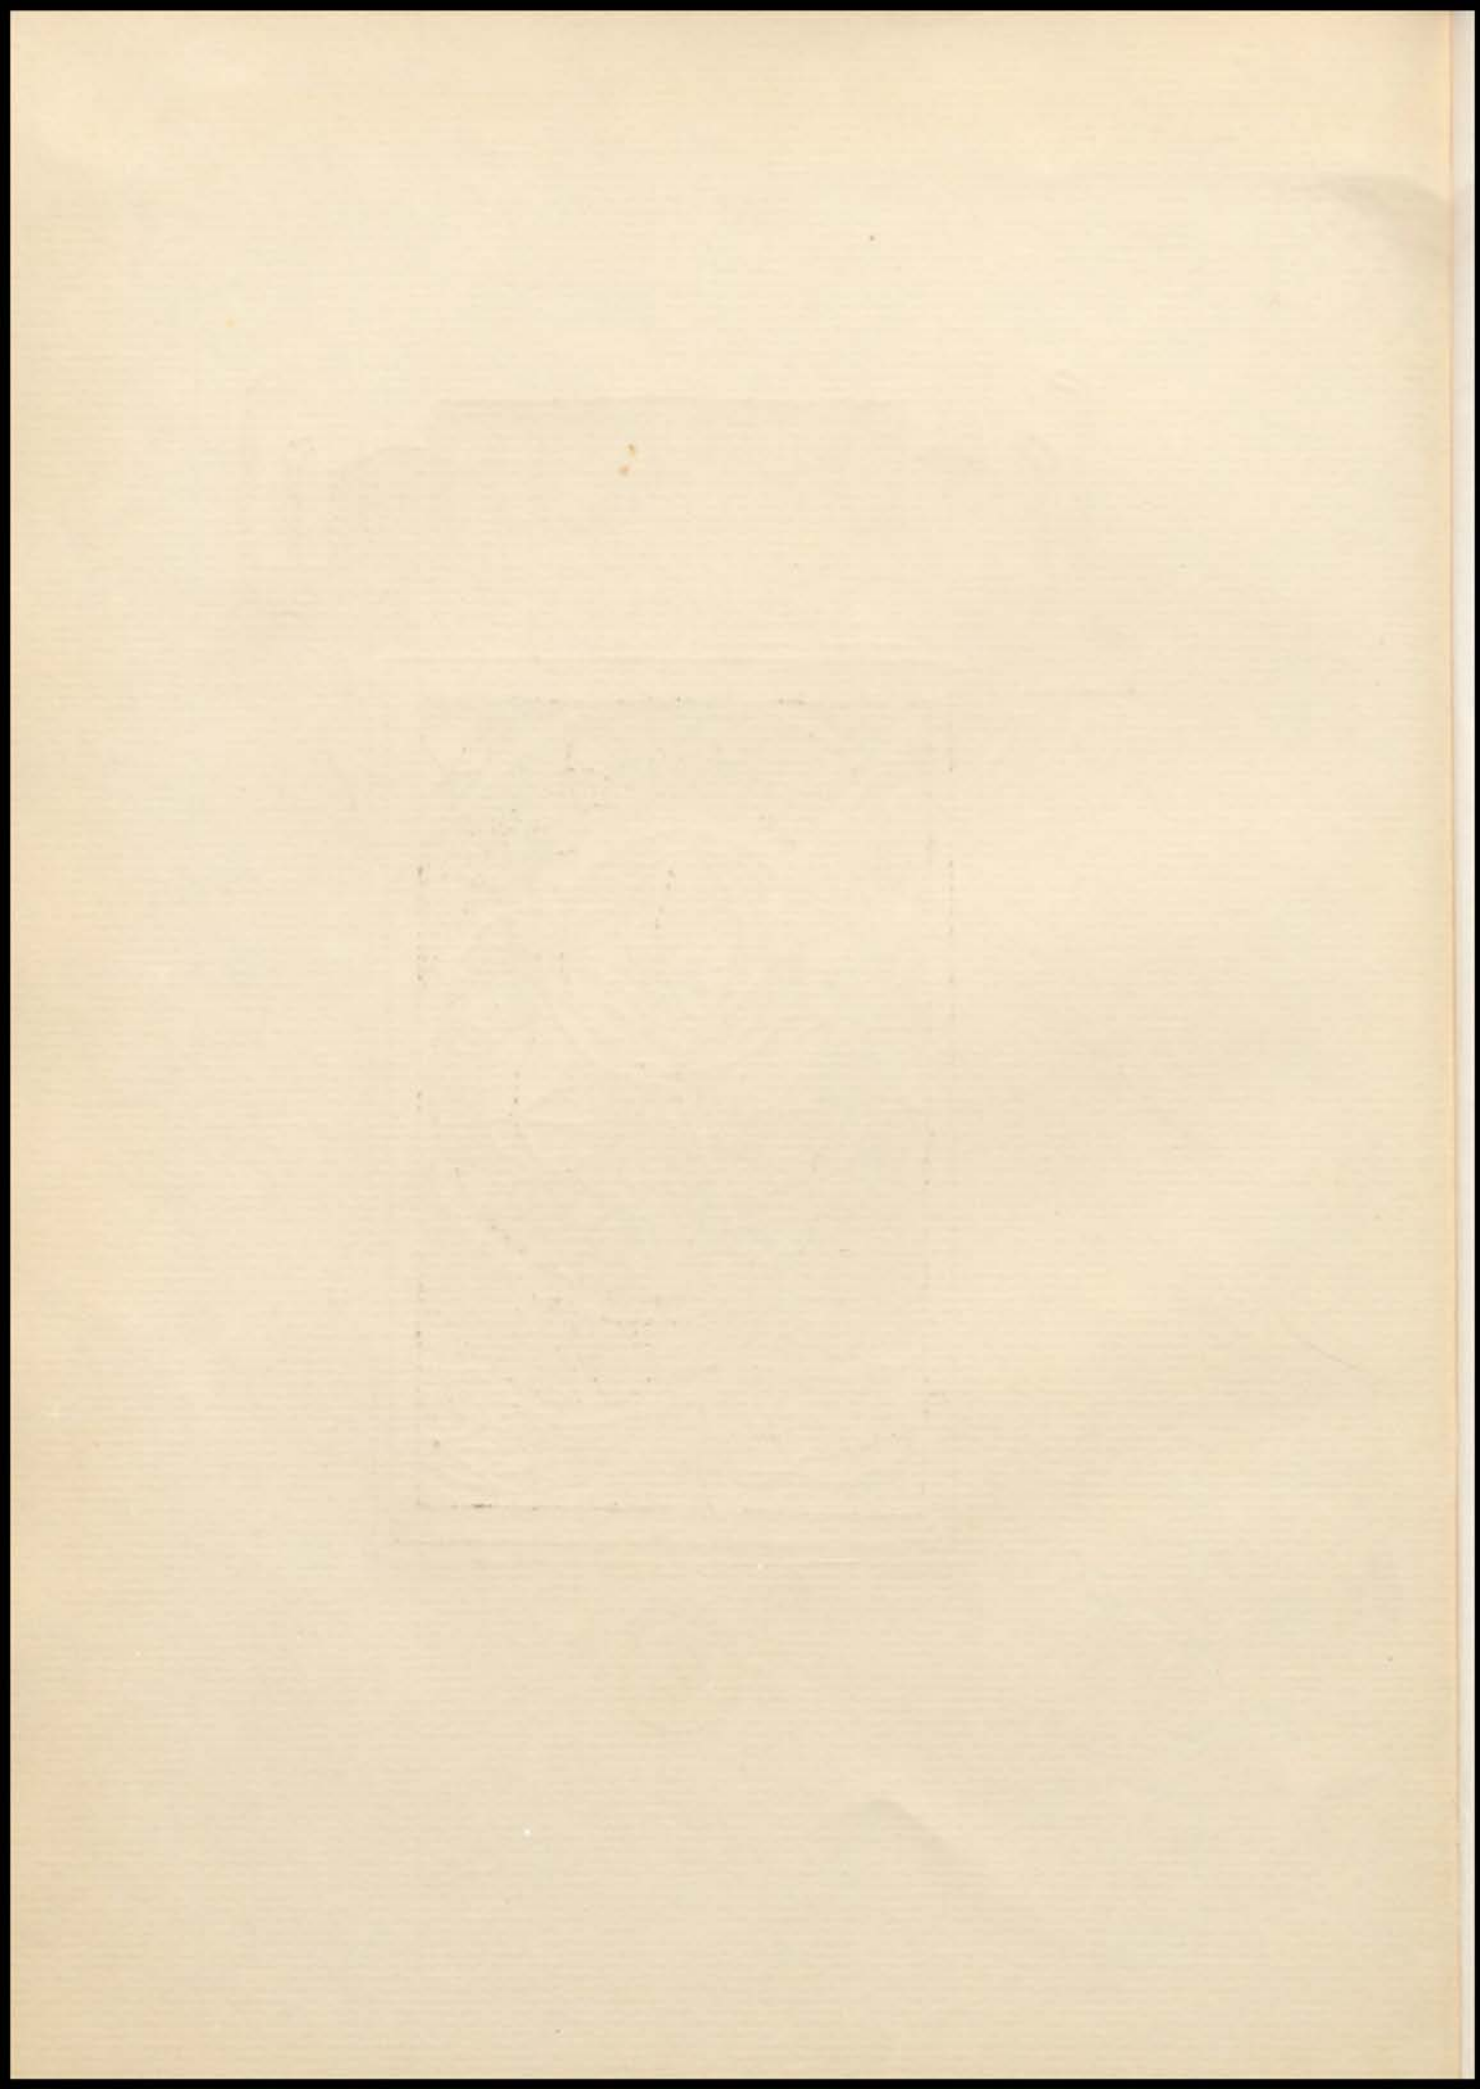

This presentation of this year's contribution of book plates would be incomplete without thanking Miss Harriette Cocks, the head of the department of Arts and Designs, for her generous assistance to the pupils in designing and producing their book plates.

Mr. M. E. Davis

Another successful year in the realm of athletics has been recorded in North-east's history. Much of the success of the teams has been due to the splendid work of the athletic officers.

Mr. Reeves Peters, coach, has indeed made an enviable record. Again this year he has continued his consistent policy of rounding out at least one championship team from one of the major sports.

The arduous duties connected with managing of the sports have again rested upon the capable shoulders of Mr. G. W. Davis.

Mr. M. E. Davis, assistant coach, is doing his share in coaching the second teams and developing material for next year.

Mr. Pickens assists with spring and football training.

When the football season of 1927 had come to a close Northeast was found to be third in a field of especially strong high school elevens. The ranking of the team is hardly representative of their calibre and strength. For from the first game to the last the "wearers of the purple" were in the championship fight. Four of the six inter-scholastic games were well-earned victories. The two defeats administered to them by Central and Paseo were hard fought and closely contested.

When the season opened, Mr. Peters had seven lettermen around which to build a formidable team. Prospects were indeed bright and became even brighter as the season progressed.

In a game with Higginsville, Missouri, on the latter's field, the team uncovered a strong offense and tight defense to romp over their opponents in an easy 18-0 victory.

Careful grooming had rounded a formidable team into shape by the time the inter-scholastic league season opened. Manual High School was the first local team to test the metal of the Viking squad. They found an impenetrable wall before them when they had the ball. And when they didn't have the ball, which was the state of affairs most of the time, they were vainly trying to stop an orgy of passing, line-plunging and end running carried on so successfully by the Nor'easter squad. The game ended in Northeast's favor by a 25-0 score.

The next encounter, with Westport, resulted in a 26-13 victory for Northeast.

Football

The team was somewhat delayed in its drive, due to the late arrival of Everett Moore, the regular quarterback. The story of how he overslept is history—but back to the game. The passing combination, Moore to "Hub" Reed, was an important factor in the victory.

Then the Central game. What a game that was! Thrill after thrill kept the spectators on their feet from the beginning until the end. Central won. The score was 19-7. Northeast's pennant hopes were crushed by that defeat. But never did an aggregation of high school players put up a more splendid fight than the Van Brunt warriors. Every yard was contested. Every minute of play was a battle in itself. In the final quarter they staged a thrilling march to their opponent's goal line that brought forth cheers from both Central and Northeast boosters.

In the next game, Northeast easily romped over the East High "Ducks" to the merry tune of 32-0.

Displaying even increased strength against the Southwest eleven, the team registered a 39-2 triumph. They were passing and kicking like demons and like very good football players, too. It was all in Northeast's favor from whistle to gun.

The final game found Northeast opposing Paseo. It was another hard fought contest. After a late start, Northeast began a series of assaults that Paseo was unable to halt. But that drive was too long delayed and when the inter-scholastic league series was ended by the crack of the final gun, Paseo was ahead by a score of 19-13. Northeast outplayed their opponents in every phase of the game—but Old Man Fate played an important part in the outcome.

Perhaps these few statistics may serve to illustrate the potency of the 1927 eleven. Northeast made 128 first downs to their opponents' 28. The greatest number of first downs made by any team against them was the six gained by Central, and Northeast made ten to offset those.

Three Northeasters made the inter-scholastic all-star team of Kansas City. They are: Everett Moore, quarterback; Ernest Fritchie, right end, and Wilson Simmons, center. Everett Moore was selected to be the signal caller for the team for his outstanding running, passing and punting ability. As a triple threat man he was not surpassed by any in the league. Fritchie's work on end for the last two games put him ahead of his opponents. His regular position was fullback. Simmons' sturdy play at center proved him to be the star of the league in that position.

"Hub" Reed was selected captain of the second all-star team. Other Northeast players placing on the second team are: Frank Baughman and Millard Hill, ends; Ernest Terry, tackle, and Robert Munro, guard. Woodruff Fox, tackle, was given honorable mention.

Northeast is especially proud of the fine set of cheer leaders who have so efficiently led the Northeast rooters in football, basket ball, and track gatherings. They are the pick of the talent of the school, having been chosen from a large group of fellow competitors.

Charles Gilbert has been longest in the service of the four "Hoarsemen" pictured above. Four years he has led the cheers of Northeast rooters—his Freshman, Sophomore, Junior and now Senior year. His pep is almost as well-known in athletic circles as is his cheery countenance.

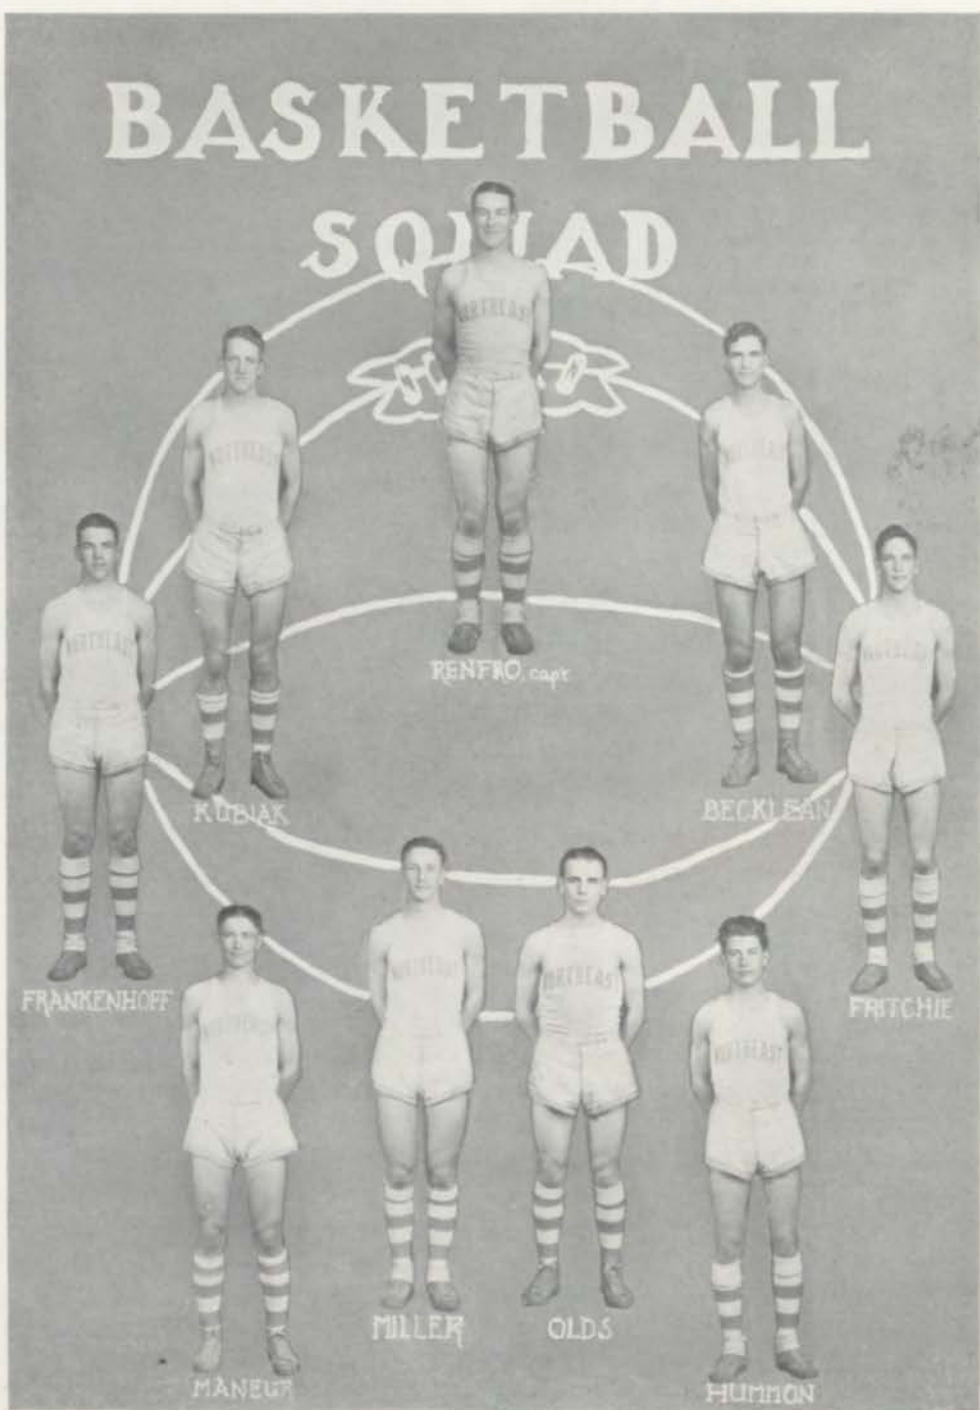

Bill Harris, a Senior, is the second of the regular triumvirate.

Frank Rogers, a Junior, has made a fine record in his year of service—and much is expected of him next year.

Arthur Young, alternate cheer leader, and a Sophomore, has distinguished himself for his ability to fill in the position of any absent cheer leader.

The basket ball team of 1928 has added another basket ball championship to Northeast's impressive record. It won decisive victories over the six other high schools now composing the Kansas City Inter-scholastic League and annexed the title of city champions.

On March 17th, in Rothwell gymnasium, Columbia, Missouri, Northeast was defeated by Oregon High School by the score of 26-21. The winner of that semi-final contest in the state tournament became Missouri champions. That event calls to mind last year's record when a Northeast team, finishing second in its city league, began a series of brilliant victories that carried it to a state and finally National Consolation Championship.

Northeast, with five letter men of National Consolation Cup winners in uniform at the first of the season, may well have visualized another championship quintet equalling that of last year. However, a new state ruling, declaring all players ineligible who have been in school nine semesters, removed four dependable athletes from competition. They are Ernest Fritchie, Wilson Simmons, Everett Moore and Lloyd Young. The ruling did not go into effect until after three league games had been played, but Mr. Peters faced a real task in rebuilding the team. His success is well illustrated in his development of another championship team.

Earl Renfro, captain and forward, and Chester Olds, guard, formed the nucleus for the new team. Anthony Frankenhoff, Floyd Miller, Roy Becklean, Stanley Kubiak and Byron Hummon, composed the remainder of the squad.

Next year's basket ball chances are again promising. The following lettermen will return: Earl Renfro, Stanley Kubiak, Roy Becklean, Tony Mancur, Byron Hummon and Chester Olds.

The second team, which, under the coaching of Mr. M. E. Davis, finished in a tie for first place in the reserve tournament, will provide several players of first team material.

As the result of winning the city championship, Northeast was presented a cup dedicated to the memory of Walter Brewer, a former Central athlete. The cup will be passed on to each year's title holder.

The scores of Northeast's inter-scholastic league games:

Northeast	30	Manual	17
Northeast	22	Westport	20
Northeast	34	Central	25
Northeast	15	East	10
Northeast	29	Southwest	14
Northeast	23	Paseo	18

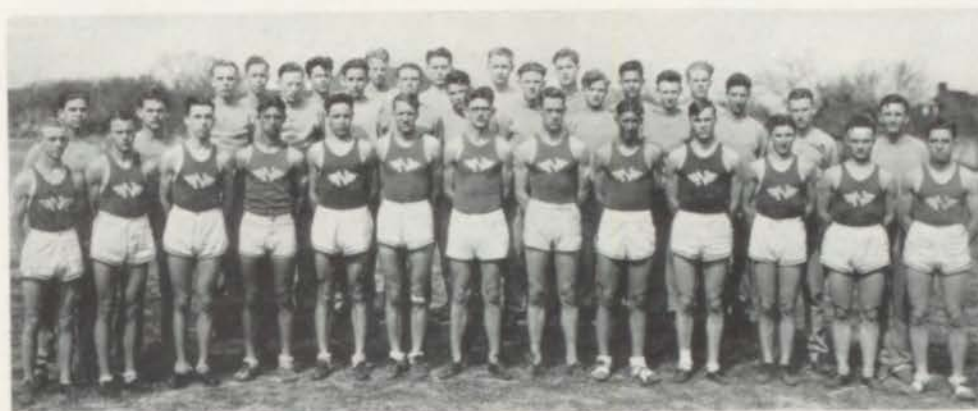

Northeast's most formidable opponent, Central, was beaten in a fast, well contested game that not only proved the calibre of the Viking five, but, as later events revealed, assured them the championship.

The first three league games with Fritchie, Moore and Simmons in the line-up were impressive victories. Central, the most formidable opponent, was subdued handily. But the real test came with the remainder of the games. The new regulars filled the vacancies in commendable fashion—and increased in efficiency as the season progressed. In playing ability and sportsmanship, the basket ball representation of 1928 ranks with the best of Northeast's teams.

Northeast entered the state tournament at Columbia, and went to the semi-finals. After defeating Kirksville and Sarcoxie, they were beaten by Oregon, and eliminated from championship competition. Northeast did not win the championship—but, like the team of past years, they upheld the fine standards of fair play that have always characterized Northeast's representatives. Therein is recorded their most worthy accomplishment.

Chester Olds, guard, was given the captaincy of the Kansas City all-star team and was ranked with the ten best players in the state tournament. Earl Renfro was placed as forward in the city all-stars and also was awarded the ranking on the state all-star squad. Floyd Miller, who has played both forward and guard positions, received honorable mention.

Front Row: Henderson, Jourgens, Kelne, Bunton, Blucher, Kubiak, Tauber, Abbott, Maneur, McClure, Springer, Greeson, Harris.

Track prospects for 1928 are none too bright. Special state rulings will eliminate several lettermen. The fact that they stayed in Junior High two years gives them only two years of Senior High competition.

Regardless of prospects—Northeast always will have a track team that will make a creditable showing, and will command the respect of their opponents. The excellent training that is given them will round a team into shape that will do credit to Northeast. Such has always been the case.

Captain Albert Dorsett, Jack Auld and Frank Baughmen, sure point winners, will be unable to compete, but the following boys are showing promise and are depended upon to carry Northeast to victories: Lores McClures, Robert Henderson, Wilbur Blucher, Isadore Kelne, George Abbott, Stanley Kubick, Vestus Greeson.

The “N” Club was organized to arouse student interest in athletics and to promote better sportsmanship.

Composed only of men who have won their “letter” in inter-scholastic athletics, the “N” Club differs from other school organizations in that it holds no regular meetings nor social events, but deals solely with matters in which the athletic department is concerned.

“N” men are not elected to the club, but automatically become members when each victor gets his “letter”. Football and basket ball “letters” are awarded to athletes playing a majority of the quarters in the league games. Track “letters” are given for placing first or second to a team-mate, in a dual meet, or for going to the finals in an indoor, city or state meet.

Tennis Team

Umholtz Frankenburg Young Campbell Farlow
Absent—Rodahaffer

Northeast's tennis team did not win the championship this year—but offered real competition for the other teams of the inter-scholastic league.

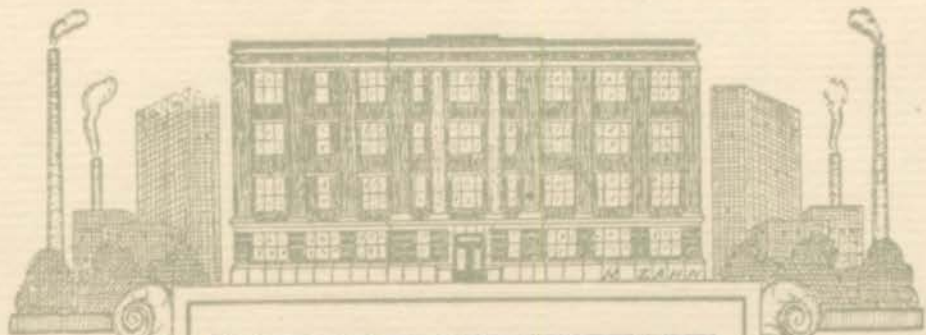

Robert Rodahaffer, captain of the team, advanced to the semi-finals in the singles match. He was victorious over Manual's representative in the first round by the score of 6-1, 6-1. He beat his Central opponent in the next round, 6-1, 6-2, and the Westport representative in the third round 6-2, 6-3. Bob was then defeated by Junior Coen, Southwest, 1-6, 0-6.

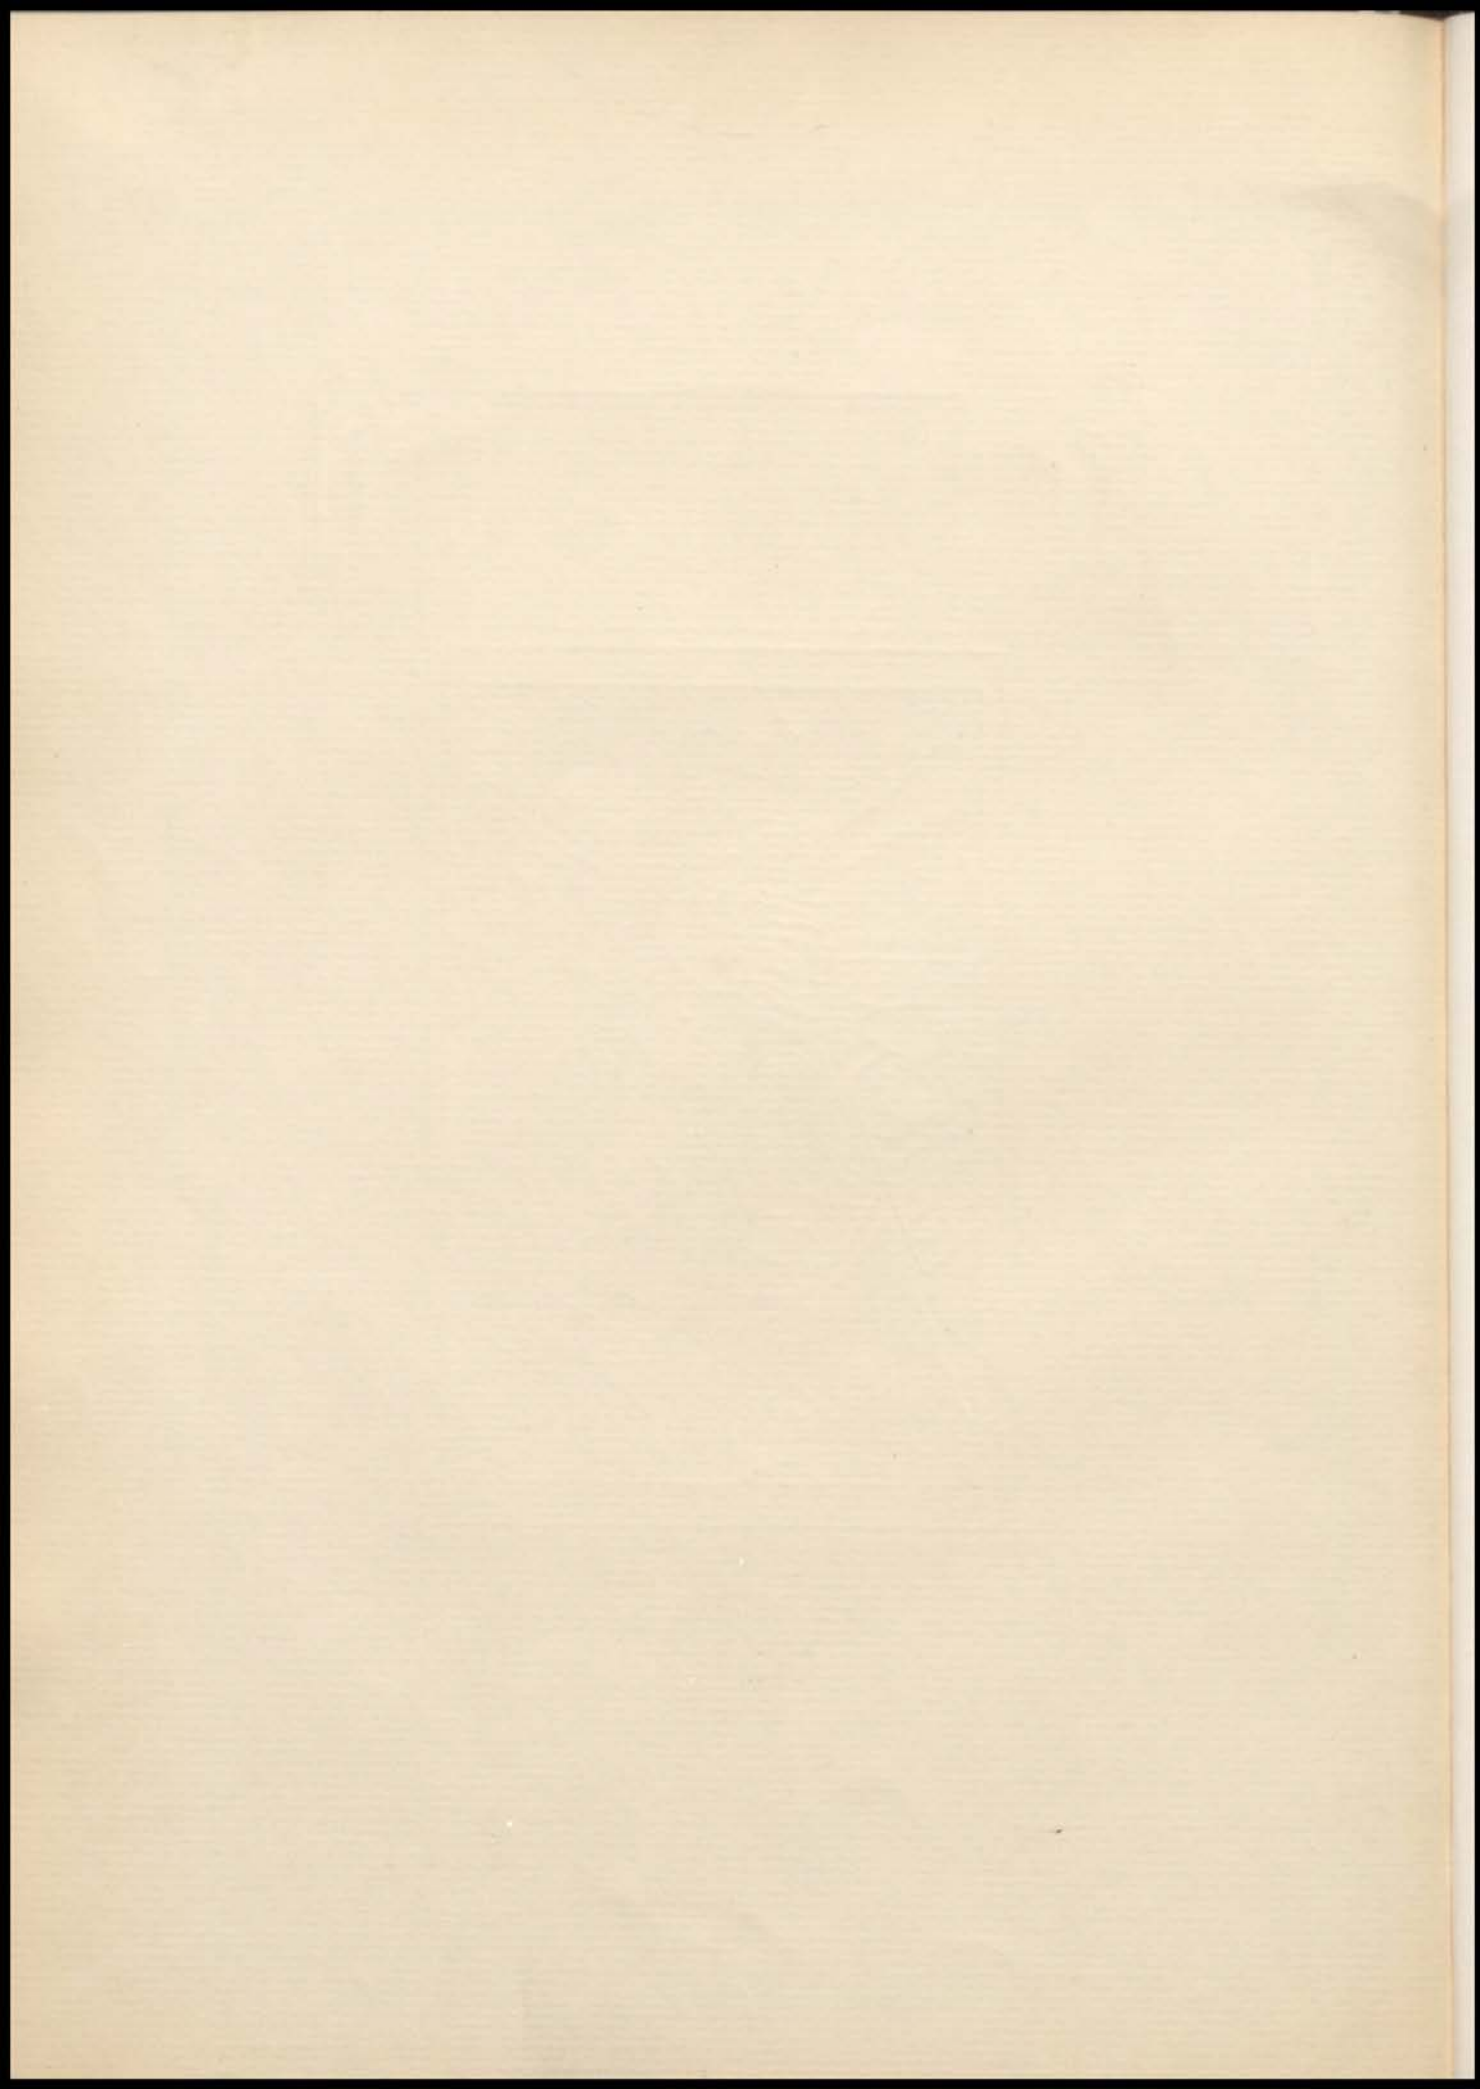

Keith Farlow and Jay Campbell lost to Central, in the doubles tournament, second, 3-6, 4-6. Byron Combs and Carl Frankenburg, also lost to Central, 2-6, 6-3, 1-6.

Next year's tennis hopes are bright with Combs, Farlow, Campbell and Umholtz returning.

The Northeast Olympic Association is an athletic organization for girls in the physical education department who have developed skill in certain lines of athletic endeavor and who have also obtained twenty-five points necessary for membership, provided the applicants for membership have made grades which conform to the standard set by the school. They chose for their colors purple and white.

The following point system is used: Hockey, 10; volley ball, 5; basket ball, 10; baseball, 10; Junior and Senior gym., 10; dancing, 10; track, 10; life saving, 10.

The Olympians always sponsor the all gym girls' party and the parties are looked forward to with interest. When the girls' physical education department gives their fete, it is sponsored by the club and all details are looked after by them. The managers of all sports are elected from the club and in this way the girls who are skilled in a certain sport are able to give expert student coaching.

This organization is one of the most interesting in our school and its work is quite noteworthy. The ideal of the club is to promote an interest in athletics and to create a feeling of good sportsmanship. Miss Stewart is the adviser of the club.

Hockey is the most colorful of all girls' sports. A very few girls make the squads. The games are exciting and attract considerable attention. This sport is the opening sport of the year and all the games are played outside. The teams are picked from the squads and at the close of the season the all-star team is picked. The all-star is a representative team of girls who typify the true sportswoman. The rules of a hockey game are in some respects similar to those of soccer. There are eleven players on a team. This season the Seniors held the undisputed championship, winning all of the six inter-class games played. As usual, this sport caused considerable interest among the gym girls.

The splendid co-operation of the Sophomores and Juniors this year promises an exciting season next year.

Miss Clayton was in charge of the series and refereed all of the games.

SOPHOMORES—First Row: Ridenour, A. Schaeffer, M. Peterson, E. Simpson, McGrath, Thayer, Hansberg.
Second Row: Lowen, Ramel, Bloomer, Stroup, Mercer, Bryant, Sudduth, Barnes.

The enthusiastic response of the girls for the 1928 squads was highly gratifying. Such a large number reported for practice that the task of eliminating the number to six teams was very difficult. The games were intensely interesting and exciting, some of the players doing most noteworthy work. Since the Seniors were the veterans, they were more skilled in teamwork. Despite the fact that the Seniors had the advantage in the way of practice, some excellent playing from the oncoming Juniors and Sophomores is expected. The captains of the three teams deserve praise for their co-operation with Miss Clayton in managing their teams and by having complete squads at the practices and games. In girls' basket ball there are six players on a team, two forwards, two centers and two guards. The games were played on a three division court. Miss Clayton was very pleased at the outcome of this season, and next year—well, that is a different story.

Sr.-Jr.-Soph. Volley Ball

Second Row: Porter, Ebel, Fisher, Wynn, Moran.

Second Row: Mercer, Smith, Kratsky, Thayer, Barnes, Warren, Brackenberg.
Third Row: Schultz, Romine, Schaeffer, Ridenour, Barrow, Hambel, Blodgett.
Fourth Row: Shumway, Ford, Boyer.

Of all girls' sports, volley ball is the sport in which the most girls participate. From sixty to a hundred girls are included on the three squads—Sophomore, Junior and Senior. This sport is one of the most interesting in which girls may take part. A very exciting series was played this season. Three out of the six games played were played before Christmas, and the other three were carried over until the week following the holidays. In the third game, the Seniors and Juniors both put up a good fight, the game thereby proved to be interesting, ending with the score tied. Judging from the Sophomore and Junior teams this year, there will be an exciting struggle next year for the championship, which was held this season by the Juniors. The girls have shown an enthusiastic spirit of interest this year and it is hoped that next year the spirit will carry on.

Sr.-Jr.-Soph. Baseball

Second Row: Terhune, Ebel, Kalanick, Ward, Fisher, Moran, Wynn.

Second Row: Reimensnider, Lester, Easter, Love, Tarwater, L. Love, Anderick.

Third Row: Schuepbach, Wyatt, Elrod, Wilson, Miler, Lanham, Barrow.

SOPHOMORES—First Row: Weis, Jolley, Schaeffer, Boyer, Ford, Pressly, Thayer, Land.

Second Row: Mercer, Ridenour, Bliss, Stroup, Peterson, Bryant, Roshong, Simpson, Shapiro, Hansber.

Third Row: Lowen, Washburn, Kratky, Angermeyer, Gaw, Smart, Kelly, Simpson, Sudduth, Smoot, Gilbert.

Since there are no inter-scholastic events for girls, all their contests must be inter-class competition. Baseball is played according to league rules, and it always is a very popular attraction to the classes. This year Miss Clayton had charge of the tournament. The season was begun with indoor work-outs and practices. As the weather became warmer, the games and practices were held on the athletic field. The girls on the teams, as in other sports, are chosen from the squads according to their ability as players, their skill at the game and their willingness to co-operate. Baseball is often called "The American Sport" and it surely seems to be by the interest shown in it. Girls, as well as boys, are now being taught the rules of the game and especially the great rule of all good sportsmen, play the game square.

Swimming

Third Row: Lester, Davis, Gaw, Gardner, Weis, Frick.
Second Row: Tarwater, Nail, Ford, McGarry, Curtis, Love.
First Row: Boyer, Schaeffer, Skaggs, Readshaw, Blodgett, Sanders, Hamsburg.

Sport is no respecter of age. It places a ban on years and strikes out the most ardent advocate when declining years start to creep on. It's all in the game. All games but one—swimming.

Swimming sets no ban. The age limit may be from six to sixty or a hundred—if one lives that long. It is open to all.

There is no muscle in the body that swimming does not take care of in that tender way it has of building a long, supple muscle that never tires and seems more refreshed and renewed after participating in the exercise. It invigorates, it builds, it renews and leaves one ready to face the battles of life.

One of the ambitions of a good swimmer is to become a life saver. Some of our strongest swimmers have passed the requirements set by the "American Red Cross Life Saving Test", which is the only life saving test recognized by the United States Government. The test consists of breaking death grips, towing struggling persons to safety, giving resuscitation and rendering first aid. In Kansas City those who pass the Junior Life Saving Test are required to swim continuously a quarter mile and those who pass the Senior test must be able to swim one mile.

A large number of girls are preparing to pass these tests this spring.

DANCING

Youth and lightheartedness is always characterized by dancing, and this year when material was wanted to supply the necessary zest and glow for Northeast Night, the classes, under the direction of Miss Stewart, gave a number of beautiful interpretations. Also the dancing classes took part in the R. O. T. C. circus. They did the Highland Fling and the Virginia Reel.

The girls are taught the dances and those who take part in the programs and entertainments are chosen by their ability to interpret their grace, poise, and self-control.

The dancing groups always receive much favorable comment and the programs in which they participate are looked forward to with enthusiasm. These groups add life and color of the most attractive kind.

Track

The track season of 1928 was unusually successful. More interest was created this year than any year previous. Several records were broken and many possibilities discovered for next year. The enthusiasm shown this year by the Sophomores and Juniors who contested was indeed gratifying.

The purpose of track is to develop poise and self-confidence. It is the only sport in which each girl may show her individual skill and ability and rely on herself without the support of a team. The track meet events in which a girl may participate are: High jump, broad jump, hop, step and jump, relay and dash, baseball and basket ball throws. The basket ball throw is, forward, side or back. Thus if a girl is not capable of entering in one event, she has a choice of several others in which to show her skill.

Company "A" upholds high standards in hard work and fine drill. The men started in with the realization that being a well trained cadet would require a large amount of hard work, but they responded splendidly. This company always had a large per cent of its men out for after-school drill and retreat. Their commissioned and non-commissioned officers were splendid examples for the men and set a fast pace in drill and other branches of military training.

Company "B"

The men of Company "B" have displayed a spirit of good will and a desire to acquire the highest ideals of a citizen of the United States. Working and playing together the cadets of this company have developed a unit of well organized men with a single purpose. That purpose has been to uphold the ideals of Northeast High School. Credit for the success of this company in drill must be given to its officers and to Major John Snedaker who served as its captain. This company has formed friendships which will be lasting and uplifting. Company "B" has to its credit the highest ranking in the annual inspection given by Capt. Harry Mitchell. Clean uniforms, clean rifles, and clean cut drills are characteristics of this company.

Company "C"

Company "C," the largest of the three companies, realized at the beginning of the school year that a great deal of discipline would be necessary to control so large a unit. The men responded in a surprising manner. The company officers and non-commissioned officers helped to bring about this desirable condition but without the co-operation of the privates such discipline could not have been attained. The buglers have played every morning and evening at 8:30 a. m. and 3:00 p. m. respectively at reveille and retreat. The corps has played at parades, at the R. O. T. C. circus and had the honor of playing for General Pershing.

It has been the most co-operative of any of the sub-divisions of the Northeast High unit.

The Girls' High School Club is a friendly, Christian organization, the only club to which every girl in school is eligible. Its members, Girl Reserves, are seeking to develop well rounded out characters that they may live four-square lives. Their symbol is a blue triangle, whose sides represent Health, Knowledge, and Spirit. Their activities are those which can best work out the things for which they stand. To Irene Cowan was awarded the honor of being chosen Frances Scarritt Hanley girl of Northeast, the girl who is most outstanding for friendliness and service in the school.

The club was organized in the first year of the school's history. The present advisers are: Miss Rouse, Miss Keating, Miss Sizemore, Miss McElwain and Miss Maddox.

Absent: Cobb, Swearington, Corbey, Voss, Arnold, Gaw.

Organized October 13, 1913, the Alpha Literary Society has succeeded during its fifteen years of existence in carrying out the elevating purposes for which it was formed: namely, to further the best interests of the school, to bring together those girls whose excellent work shows that such a companionship would be beneficial, to gain literary proficiency, and to form lasting friendships.

The year 1926 marked the Alphas' fourth victory in the Literary Contest. The years 1914, 1916, and 1921 were the previous red letter years for the Alphas in this annual combat for literary superiority.

The first semester social events given by the society consisted of a dance, which was given in conjunction with the Thetas and Bentons, the evening of December 23, and a bridge tea, February 18, at the Hotel Bellerive.

The standards of the society are represented by the colors, gold and white. The flower is the jonquil, and the motto "Esse Quam Videre" ("to be rather than to seem"). The society is chaperoned by Miss Julia Guyer.

First Row: E. Smith, Jackson, R. Woodmansee, Sanborn, Mr. Ball, Thomas, Snedaker, K. Tuttle, Metcalf
Absent: Rhoades.

The Northeast Society of Debate was organized in 1913, to exercise the powers of debate, to encourage the study of literature and to form friendships that will last as long as the dear old Alma Mater stands. Its membership is composed of from twenty-five to forty boys.

The purpose of this organization has been to forward an interest in literature and to develop debate. But far higher and worthier has been its ever present desire—to make the individual member display manhood, and support the highest ideals of Northeast High School.

The society has just closed its most successful year. Represented in every phase and branch of school life, the organization has developed leaders who cannot be surpassed.

Mr. R. A. Ball has been adviser of the society for the past two years. Its colors are red and black, and the motto is "Possunt quia posse videntur."

Absent: Pierce, Comaschi, Kenney, Bloomer, Foster, Goff, Crockette, Martin, Gibson.

The Northeast Shakespeare Club, the first mixed organization at Northeast, was founded in February, 1914. The purpose of the society is to promote the study and appreciation of classical literature, particularly that of William Shakespeare, for whom the club was named. The motto of the organization is: "It is not the trappings of knowledge, wisdom itself." The colors are black and gold, and the flower, the violet.

The literary programs consist of readings, and reviews of different Shakespearian plays given by the members of the organization.

The Shakespeares have been prominent in both the curricular and social activities of the school. Their aim has always been to maintain a high standard of scholarship, and to uphold the highest ideals of the school.

In conjunction with the Betas and Deltas, the club gave one of the most successful dances of the school year, the evening of December 9. Miss Lettie Evans has chaperoned the club since 1925.

 Absent: Hill, Davis, Stern, Waite, Ford, Blodgett, Shatto, Lanham, Onofrio.

The Delphian Literary Society was organized in 1916. It is the fourth oldest, and one of the two mixed societies at Northeast. The Delphians were named for the Oracle of Delphi of Ancient Greece. The Keystone and Aster were chosen as the emblems for the society, and purple and gold were adopted as colors. Miss Elizabeth Taylor has been adviser for the organization for four years, before which time, it was sponsored by Miss Thomas, now a teacher at Paseo High School.

The society was organized for the study of English literature, the mutual improvement of its members, and the fostering of higher ideals in the social life of Northeast.

The motto of the society is "Virtute, Non Verbis", which means, "Deeds, Not Words".

For the furthering of their purpose, the Delphians meet every other Friday. In its career, the society has won the Literary Contest twice, the first time in 1919 and again in 1923.

Absent: Garner, Johnson, Schulz, Tanner.

The Clionian Literary Society, the second all-girls' organization at Northeast, received its charter near the eve of the last meeting of societies in the year 1917.

Under the supervision of Miss Sharp, at that time an instructor in History, the name for the organization, Clionian was chosen from Clio, the Muse of History.

"To develop literary ability, and to promote democratic ideas and congenial spirit among the girls," was the purpose established by the charter members of the society.

And it has since been the aim of every Clio to "uphold the highest standards of scholarship and literary and social life."

The colors are red and white, and the motto is "Ta Kta Kte Ete." Miss Jeannette Davis is adviser for the society.

First Row: Slagle, Richardson, Higdon, Boyd, Mr. Holmes, Wells, Wilson, Malone, Farlowe.
Absent: Means, Davis, Schwenck, Campbell, Jolley, Frankenhoff, Adams.

The Benton Literary Society, which is one of the two boys' societies at Northeast, was organized March 11, 1921. It was organized primarily for the purpose of stimulating literary ability, and a better appreciation of art. The colors of this organization are blue and gold, and the motto is "In Hoc Signo Vincemus."

The society was named for Thomas Harte Benton, who distinguished himself during the thirty years in which he served in the capacity of Senator from Missouri in the United States Senate.

The Bentons have distinguished themselves as Northeast Night salesmen, in addition to winning the Literary Contest in 1922.

The society helped sponsor two dances this year. One, given the evening of December 23, in conjunction with the Thetas and the Alphas, and the other, the inter-society dance, April 13.

Mr. Floyd C. Holmes is the present adviser of the society.

The Theta Literary Society, which was organized in 1921, is one of the outstanding girls' societies at Northeast. The colors of the organization, blue and white, stand for true blue loyalty, and purity of girlhood. The purpose of the society is to develop its members along social as well as literary lines. The Theta motto is "Knowledge is Power", and the flower is the iris. The aim of the members is to seek the best in school life and to live up to their ideals of true blue girlhood.

In addition to a dance given in conjunction with the Bentons and the Alphas the evening of December 23, the society had a line party at the Midland theatre for its first semester social events.

Miss Helen Brown has served as adviser for the organization this year. Miss Stella Sizemore sponsored it last year.

The Delta Literary Society is the next to the youngest society for girls at Northeast, having been organized February 25, 1921. Its purpose is to uphold the ideals of Northeast, and to promote the literary and social welfare of its members. The colors are green and white, and the flower is the lily of the valley. The members of the organization are prominent in school affairs, both social and curricular, and ever bear in mind their motto, "Always faithful". Miss Grace Aber has acted as adviser for the society since the second semester, before which time Miss Alsie Tulien had served as faculty adviser for four and one-half years.

The first semester social events given by the society consisted of a group dance, given with the Shakespeares and Betas the evening of December 9, and a line party at the Midland, Friday, December 16.

The Beta Literary Society, the youngest and fifth girls' society to be formed at Northeast, was organized November 7, 1926, with twenty-five charter members. The motto of the society is: "To promote friendship and high ideals, both literary and social." The colors chosen by the organization were pink and green, and its flower is the pink carnation. The pin design is that of an open book, which represents the promoting of high ideals. The letters B. L. S. are engraved on the pin in black.

The society has participated in two Literary Contests, and has sponsored one dance, which was given in conjunction with the Shakespeares and Deltas, December 9, 1927. Approximately thirty-five girls comprise the membership of the organization, which is sponsored by Miss Gladys Gaylord.

La Sociedad Castellana, or The Spanish Club, was the first language club to be organized at Northeast, having been formed in September, 1914. The rules laid down by the seventeen charter members are still enforced today. All conversation and business at the meetings is carried on in Spanish, and each member must make some remark during the meeting. The purpose of the organization is to afford the students of Spanish a greater opportunity to speak and understand the Spanish language than is available in the regular classroom period. The club colors are red and yellow, and the flower, the tulip. The motto is: "El trabajo lo vence todo," which means "Work overcomes all difficulties". Senora Bell has been the faculty adviser of the club since its organization.

The Boys' Glee Club, or Boys' Chorus is a musical organization composed of boys who are interested in singing. Any boy who is approved by the instructor in Music may be admitted to membership. A non-solid credit is given for each semester's work. The club gives several recitals during the year and participates every year in the Annual Inter-High School Music Contest. The year 1924 was the first time in nine years that Northeast lost the Boys' Chorus Cup. 1925 was the tenth year the boys won the cup. Vocal exercises are introduced and individual singing done, also work with individuals to prepare them for the Solo Contest, which takes place three weeks before the Music Contest. A Boys' quartette is formed from the best voices, to sing at functions where the entire club can not be accommodated.

The Treble Clef or Girls' Chorus is a girls' organization corresponding to the Boys' Glee Club or Boys' Chorus. The Treble Clef meets every day as a regular class, and receives instruction similar to that given in the voice classes in addition to the chorus work and individual singing. The requirements for entrance are a good voice, the ability to read easy music at sight and an ear sensitive to the slightest variations in pitch. The entire year's work is focused on the annual music contest, which occurs in the spring. The year 1928 was the twelfth year the combined glee clubs have won the Inter-High School Music Contest, having received first place in both the girls' chorus and mixed chorus, and third place in the boys' glee club. Mr Frank Chaffee has been the adviser of the club since its organization in 1915.

The advanced orchestra is a select group, composed of players of outstanding ability. This orchestra plays in all school assemblies, and furnishes music for Northeast Night, Open House, Commencement, and for all other evening affairs of the school. The orchestra played at the Cantata, "The Legend of Don Munio," given by the combined choruses of all the Kansas City High Schools, March 23, and at the annual R. O. T. C. Circus in Convention Hall, the evening of April 21. The orchestra is directed by Mr. Frank E. Chaffee, who was director this year of the combined Glee Clubs of the seven high schools at the inter-scholastic music contest.

First Row: Stewart, Toliksen, Ruppert, Douglas, Mlle. Hofacker, McNerny, Allen, Arcury, Phipps.
Absent: Davis, Smalley, Showman.

"Les Penseurs," the French Club at Northeast, was founded in 1914, for the purpose of studying the French language, and of gaining a knowledge and appreciation of the classics of France. The French language is used exclusively in conducting the meetings. The name of the club itself indicates its purpose and that of its members: "Les Penseurs," The Thinkers.

The organization also endeavors to give its members a chance to broaden their knowledge of the language, and to give them an opportunity to speak and hear French spoken by others.

During the year, the members of the club have presented three plays at the meetings of the organization.

For the past two years, this department has been well represented in the state contest at Columbia. Both years it won first place in the state in the department of French, having won a gold and two silver medals the first year, and a gold and silver medal last year. Mlle. Olga Hofacker has been adviser for the club since its organization.

The Northeast Mathematics Club was organized in 1916, by a group of students who were interested in mathematics. The object of the club is to further the mathematical knowledge of its members through the discussion and solution of special mathematical problems, which are not usually taken up in the regular classroom work. The club has studied astronomy, and mathematics in relation to scientific problems in some of its meetings. Other programs have consisted of talks on mathematics by members of the faculty, and the study of the biographies of famous mathematicians.

For the past two years the organization has helped sponsor a dance. December 2, 1927, in connection with the Music Appreciation, Commercial, and Art Clubs, it participated in the only inter-club dance of the year.

The club has adopted as its pin the figure used in the geometric proof of the Pythagorean theorem. Mr. White has served as adviser of the club since 1922.

The club of the home economics department was organized May 18, 1921. Orange and white were the colors chosen for the organization, with the California poppy as the flower.

Its existence has been a benefit as well as a source of pleasure to many girls. The purpose of the organization is to interest girls in home economics, and matters pertaining to home making.

The club gave a tea for the new members the first semester. The refreshments were made and served by a committee of old members. A line party was also given at the Midland Theatre. During the second semester, the girls have had a taffy pull, and a picture show on the modern uses of electricity.

Miss Anna Baskin, foods instructor, has acted as adviser of the club since its organization, except during one year, while she was on leave of absence, when Miss Wulfekammer took her place.

The Northeast Commercial Club was organized March 9, 1922, for the purpose of carrying on a successful and interesting study of the business world. Each year the club takes trips to large banks, and other business houses with the view of finding how their enterprises are conducted. The programs consist of interesting and valuable talks and readings along business lines.

The club colors are gold and silver, and its motto, "Efficiency Wins." Mr. Coleman and Miss Janson are the advisers.

The first semester social event given by the organization, consisted of a dance given the evening of December 2, in conjunction with the Music Appreciation, Mathematics, and Art Clubs.

The Northeast Botany Club was organized in September, 1923, to further the study and appreciation of nature and habits of plant life. The officers of the club during its first year were: President, Virginia Whiting; vice-president, Brenda Ritter; secretary, Clarence Brown; treasurer, Otho Mustain; sergeant-at-arms, Harriet Groesbeck. Mr. J. E. Fate is the present adviser of the club.

The club endeavors to better acquaint the members with the plant life of Kansas City by having hikes and outdoor meetings. To further promote this interest, outside speakers, who are also interested in plant life, have given illustrated lectures at meetings of the club. The members are also urged to do individual research work. For several years, the club has collected and classified wild flowers, and arranged an exhibit for the entire school. The club pin, a green and silver acorn, carries out the colors and the emblem of the organization.

 Absent: Bagby, Clark, J. Combs, V. Combs, Fields, Halvey, Jennett, Harris.

The first Music Appreciation Club to be organized in the Kansas City schools was chartered at Northeast in November, 1923. The purpose of the club is to acquaint the members with a better understanding and love of music, both classical and modern. The colors chosen for the organization were rose and silver, and the pin a miniature lyre.

The programs consist, for the most part, of musical selections, either by members of the club, or by a guest artist. Reports of prominent musicians and their work are also given by the members. Outstanding singers and players comprise the membership of the club. Miss Margaret DeForest was the first adviser, and Mr. F. H. Green sponsors the organization now.

The club, together with the Mathematics, Commercial, and Art Clubs, gave a dance the evening of December 2. A line party at the Midland theatre was the second social event of the first semester.

The Art Club of Northeast, under the guardianship of Miss Cocks, may always boast of its efficient originality and leadership among the departmental clubs.

The feature programs, which consist of trips to many interesting places, advantageous for people who are striving for artistic knowledge, build the morale of the club. Also the programs in which talks are made by eminent artists of the city, enliven interest in the meetings.

The clubs' novel idea of selling plaster plaques of the Northeast Emblem, Northeast Night, proved to the school their worth, and because of the prompt and competent dealing in pecuniary matters, the ability and loyalty of its membership is shown. The people of the Art Club, who served on the committees for the Inter-Club dance, upheld a high standard of executive ability. The posters and drawings, the school emblem and art work in the Annual, all done by Art Club members, have done much to make their club a leading club, for wherever one may look in our building, there the Art Club is represented by its works.

The Millikan Club was organized in the spring of 1926, for a more extended study of the application of the principles of science in commerce and industry, especially in the fields of Physics and Chemistry. The members study particularly the branches of science most interesting and valuable to them. At each meeting the members gain more knowledge of the scientific wonders, through interesting talks, lecture demonstrations, outside speakers and discussions. Mr. Pinkney, of the physics department, is the adviser of the club, and it is through his influence that the Millikan Club has stood out during the few years of its existence.

Following the lecture demonstrations and talks, the members of the club are given freedom in asking questions concerning the subject under discussion. The club won the cake offered by the home economics department for the organization taking in the largest number of side-show tickets, Northeast Night.

Absent: Lovan, King, Griffith, Waite, Flynn, Hill, Montgomery, Pressly, Yaple, Smith, White.

The Northeast Latin Club was organized October 7, 1927. Royal purple is the color of the club, and the laurel wreath its flower. The motto is "Per ampliora ad altiora", which means "Through wider fields of experience to higher planes of life". The purpose of the organization is to afford students of Latin an opportunity to become better acquainted with Roman civilization, and to get a broader view of Latin culture. The purpose is carried out by programs dealing with the literature, art, law, religion, education, and daily life of the Romans. Talks by faculty members, who have been to Rome, lantern slides of interesting places, display of pictures dealing with classic subjects, biographies of the authors of great works, translated in class, and the reading of additional works by the same authors, add zest to the programs. The faculty adviser is Miss Imogene Murdock, teacher of Latin. The club membership is composed of about sixty boys and girls, who are now studying Latin.

Absent: Adams, Coxwell, Feiring, Metlino, Sharp, Taylor, Cox, Patton.

The Northeast Dramatic Club, under the direction of Miss Cecile Burton, was organized October 21, 1927. The purpose of the club is to develop the art of drama among the students of Northeast, and to present occasional assembly programs. The club has adopted as its motto, a quotation from Hamlet: "The Play's the Thing." The emblem is a design of the masques of Comedy and Tragedy of the old Greek drama. The club colors are French blue and crimson, and the hyacinth is its flower.

Before the club was two months old, it has presented Harold Brighouse's "The Maid of France" in an assembly program. For Northeast Night, the club presented "Drama A La Carte" in the main show, and conducted a side show, "I Got Jipped," during the evening. The second semester, the club presented "The Rehearsal," by Christopher Moreley and "Two Crooks and a Lady," by Eugene Pillot, before the student body.

The Northeast Seals, the swimming club for girls was organized in October, 1927, with twenty-five charter members. The object of the club is to promote health and physical development through swimming. At each meeting, instruction is given in swimming for form, endurance, speed, diving, water stunts, and American Red Cross Life Saving methods. The club colors are blue and white, and the emblem, a white seal. Miss Ivy Clayton, gymnasium teacher, is the faculty sponsor.

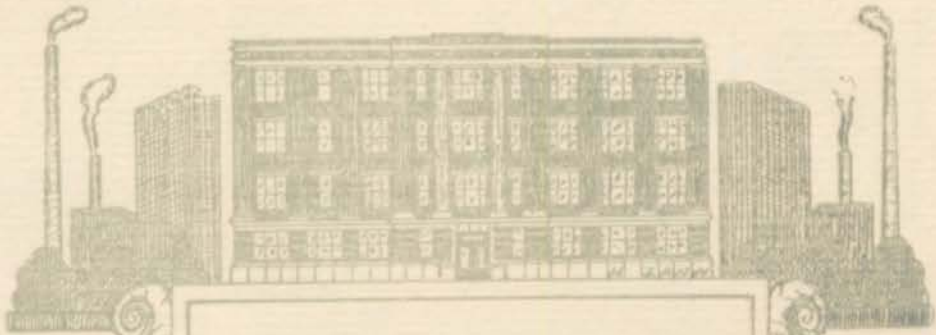

One of the most interesting side shows held Northeast Night was that sponsored by the Seals. Some of the features of the evening were seal diving, porpoising, the sea serpent swim, novelty races, consisting of a jockey race and an apple race, fancy diving, and craw fish swim. The most spectacular event of the evening was the "Vikings in Song." The swimmers were attired in black bathing suits and white caps, over which white oilcloth wings, stitched in purple, were worn. The girls, thus attired as Vikings, entered the water in an "N" formation, and while treading water, sang one verse of the school song.

THE VIKING
for 1927-8

HAROLD CORDRY, JR.

SEPTEMBER 6

I've just become a Viking bold—so I suppose I'll have to keep a log-book of my experiences. I went down to the ship and registered yesterday. They told me what I'd have to take along on my voyage. Of course, none of it was news to me. (I've already had three years of voyaging on the sea of Ed-u-cation). But this is my first year as a Viking. Sure glad I do know a little bit about voyaging and that I'm not among the new crew, the Sophs.

7—I'm equipped with everything now—books, pencils, notebooks, a fountain pen and a slicker. Tomorrow morning all of us Vikings embark on a nine-months voyage. We'll be pretty much at sea most of the time, I imagine.

8—Just my luck. I got on board late and I have to do overtime. Now's a good chance to write more in my log-book.

I never saw such a crowd in all my life—boys, girls (I should say Vikings and Vi-queens) of every size, description and intent.

This is a good ship—they call it the Northeast High School—nor. She's a sturdy vessel, dignified, somber, prettily built and as sturdy as they make them.

18—We were examined. The going was rough. Dark, ominous clouds make the future look dark.

28—We've been on board three weeks now and everything's shipshape. I'd write more, but my chemistry book beckons.

30—We organize! Student Council officers were elected today.

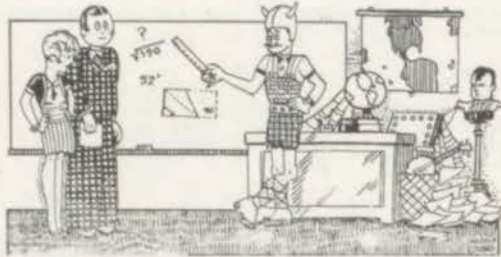

Tomorrow we're examined for what we've learned so far on the voyage. I feel seasick.

OCTOBER 28

Sad news! Our captain, the worthy Admiral Mr. Barbee has just been called back to shore to take an advanced position as Rear-Admiral. But all ends happily, for the mate, Mr. A. T. Chapin, steps into Mr. Barbee's shoes. Then Lieutenant Ellis becomes first mate.

Stern competition aboard ship for the positions on the official year book of the School—ner. But all is settled.

NOVEMBER 23

We dance! We dance! At least we try to. The Debaters, Delphians and Clios are responsible (for what? Ask them?)

24—Neptune save our good ship—(and let him bring Mrs. Harrison along)—something is extremely wrong with the physiological processes of my digestive system. The solution? Thanksgiving. I am not alone in my misery.

DECEMBER 2

Again we dance. Music and Art discuss the project, Math overhears, becomes interested, drags along Commercial, and an Inter-Club Dance results.

9—The grand old Shakespeares, the Deltas and the youthful Betas combine and again the dance floor is trod by care-free feet.

15—We organize some more! The business of the upper classes becomes more and more important—so the Seniors and the Juniors elect officers.

17—"All's well and The Goose Hangs High!" For two nights did the goose hang—and a grand play it was!

23—Christmas is at hand. Today we celebrated in a very appropriate manner—by going to classes as usual, enjoying "The Maid of France" in assembly, and joining in the Theta-Alpha-Benton dance.

25—Christmas.

JANUARY 16-17-18

Sh-h-h. I'm studying. Semester examinations. I'm in deep water.

27—The major and his sponsor are presented to us. Hoo-ray for the R. O. T. C.!

FEBRUARY 27

An assembly is held honoring our victorious Viking basketball squad. They have conquered a hoard of Blue Eagles, Ducks, Tigers, Pirates, Wild Indians and what-not to annex the city championship in basketball.

MARCH 9

Vikings and Vi-Queens joined in celebrating everything in general on Northeast Night.

APRIL 13

Spring is sprung sure enough! I can tell it by "Hey, Hey Fever." We've been out on the seas seven months now. I have just learned there is an Inter-Society Dance, so I'll have to be steppin' some. This is my lucky day, Friday the thirteenth.

27—After much waging of war over uniforms and gathering up the remains of stories, essays, orations, etc., the Lit. Contest is with us.

MAY 17

This is gonna be good! Some Seniors think themselves terribly old. "Seventeen" to be exact, was the play they presented. However—sh-h-h—don't say anything—but I have discovered some older heads were there.

25—The Junior Prom is with us. The Vikings and Vi-Queens are in the height of their glory.

JUNE 8

Behold! Behold! Land is in sight! This is the eventful day when the honorable Seniors take their diplomas and disembark, leaving the rest to cruise around on the educational sea, picking up the remnants of their knowledge.

Work vs. Play

"Play usually wins in this competition—but Work, especially school work, has its good points. Foremost among them are Irving-Pitt student note-books. With covers of such beauty and durability, the notes inside seem easier to take. No wonder the majority of Kansas City students own Irving-Pitt note-books.
