NOR'EASTER

1933

Thou Dear Northeast

Thou, dear Northeast, art the fairest of all,
Peer of all others, never to fall;
Thy royal banners unfurl to our view
Emblems of victory the long years through.

With thee, Northeast, there is none can compare,
Purple and white aloft in the air;
Loyal and true to our colors we'll be,
Crown thee with laurels of victory.

We come and go as the years passing by Add to the glories, dear Northeast High;
May we ere leaving but add just a gem
To shine forever in thy diadem.

Editor's Preface

The editor of this year book is but following a natural spontaneous impulse to be proud and grateful for the career of the staff of the 1933 Nor'easter. It is because of the splendid cooperation we, the staff, have received from the student body and the generous help of the faculty advisors that this Nor'easter of the twentieth year is what it ought to be to represent a school of more than 1800 students, and that it holds its own in the esteem of the Northeast community. In spite of a lengthy period of hard times, we have managed to come through with an annual, which the staff feels sure will be valued highly by each person who owns one. Only through the cooperation of the student body in the sales was it possible to publish such an annual.

We are, therefore, hoping that you will hold the 1933 Nor'easter among one of the treasures of your school days.

The Editor.

Tribute

This 1933 Nor'easter is published in honor of, and offered in tribute to the first graduating class of the New Plan for setting such high standards and fine qualities in education, which have blazed the trail for many college classes to follow.

LOCALS AND ADS

Where youth's faltering footsteps cross the threshold of a happier and fuller life.

To best describe the picture on the opposite page, Longfellow chants
"Nature with folded arms seemed there,
Kneeling at her evening prayer."

“With thee, Northeast,
There is none can compare.”

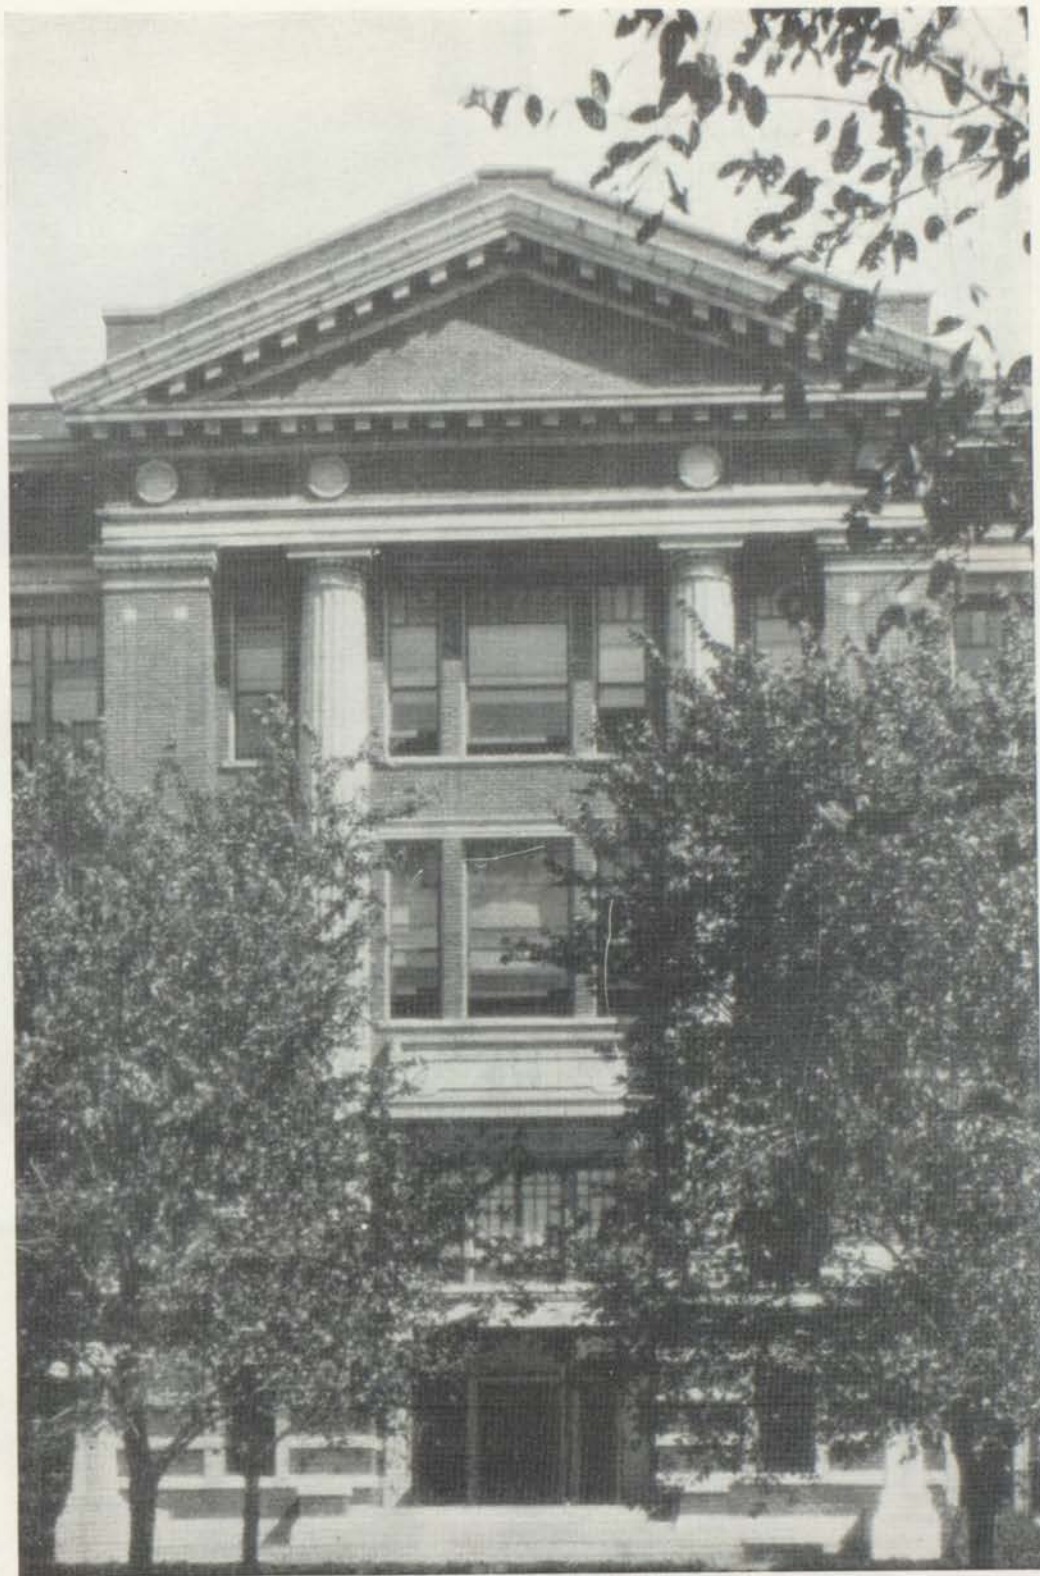

In the opposite picture
“Are books of learning and Books of Pleasure;
Some for your work periods
And some for your leisure.”

The above picture shows the entrance to the Athletic Field dedicated to our first principal, Charles B. Reynolds. It was erected in the summer of 1931 by Harry L. Wagner, 1916 Alumnus, Architect and Contractor.

The opposite picture shows the main entrance, which has served as an opening to a fuller education.

In case the reader has forgotten, the "Staff" thought it wise to publish some reminder of the 20th anniversary of Northeast. In the above picture it is seen that our present Athletic Field was not in existence while in the picture on the opposite page we are reminded of the "good old days" when the Model "T" was all the fashion.

In Memoriam

Too far away
For sight or speech.
But not too far
For thoughts to reach.
Sweet to remember
Those who were here,
And who, though absent,
Are just as dear.

The days of high school and college life are the happiest we experience. We should not forget that during this period we are forming habits and characters that will endure. It is our hope that members of our graduating classes will leave Northeast well equipped both in character and learning to carry on successfully in their chosen fields.

CUSTODIANS

It is the general belief that Mr. A. F. Schies and his assistants are the best and most accommodating custodians in any school in the system. Whether we want the curtains repaired, windows washed, bleachers made for group pictures, doors locked or unlocked, our custodians have always been ready and willing to serve without complaining.

The seniors of 1933, have spent many happy hours in our dear Alma Mater, striving to strengthen our characters and to uphold the high ideals of our school, as well as to acquire a store of academic knowledge. We wish to extend our heartfelt gratitude to those who have prompted and encouraged us for the last three years.

Now, as we leave the portals of Northeast for the last time, we set our faces resolutely in the direction of our ultimate goal, apply our shoulders to the wheel of progress, and fling back a last farewell.

NEW PLAN III CLASS

Row 3—Harold Kratky, Gertrude Tuxson, Clifford Barber.
 Row 2—Mary Eleanor Eels, Tracy Nininger, Helen Smedley.
 Row 1—Mary Virginia Hallett, Kenneth Swain, Hardin Manard.

This year marks the graduation of the first class from the New Plan. Since September, 1930, these graduating students have followed courses designed to eliminate repetition, and thus to complete in three years the course which ordinarily requires four years: the last two years of high school, and the first two years of college.

Studies have been offered in the divisions of Liberal Arts, Engineering, Pre-Medics, and Secretarial Training. The graduating students have acquired credits equal to those attained in any Junior College, and sufficient to admit them to the junior class of any accredited college or university.

The social organization of the New Plan, while experimental, has proved quite satisfactory. The organization of the class includes a Men's and a Women's Council, whose presidents are among the class officers. The executive board consists of the class officers and the council officers, its advisors being Mrs. Bell, Mr. Harman, and Mr. Smith.

The girls have organized a College Club associated with the Y. W. C. A. and they expect its work to be carried on by the succeeding Third Year New Plan classes.

On February 10, the New Plan sponsored a dance which was a real success, and which, it is hoped, will establish a tradition in New Plan social affairs of the future.

Third Year New Plan students have supported all the regular activities of Northeast High School, which are open to them, so they have not estranged themselves completely from the regular school life.

NEW PLAN

The New Plan is a three-year course beginning in the Junior year of high school, and the plan has three divisions: namely, the Secretarial Course, the Engineering Course, and the Liberal Arts Course. We in the New Plan believe it has been very successful, and hope that it will become increasingly favorable and successful.

The new course, the Secretarial, may be entered in the second year of the plan. It provides training in shorthand, typewriting, accounting, commercial law, introduction to business, and English in the first year. The second and last year in the department provides more shorthand and typewriting, business English, office methods and machinery, and social studies. Thus it gives its entrants a thorough foundation for business practice.

The Engineering Course offers in the second year of the plan algebra, trigonometry, and analytic geometry, general chemistry and qualitative analysis, physics, foreign languages, engineering and machine drawing, and descriptive geometry, as well as English. The last year rounds out the three year course with calculus and surveying, logic, engineering physics, quantitative and organic chemistry, materials, analytic mechanics, English, social studies, and foreign languages.

The Liberal Arts Course offers English, mathematics, chemistry, physics, biology, anatomy, social studies, foreign languages, logic, and psychology in the last two years of the plan.

Graduation under this plan requires the satisfactory completion of the first two years of college. Upon the completion of this plan the engineering students and the liberal arts students may enter nearly any college of arts and science or school of engineering as juniors; and the graduates of the Secretarial Department are eligible to begin work with a foundation of high school training and two years of business education.

NEW PLAN DANCE

This dance was the first to be given by the New Plan III. It has made history for the first graduating class of the New Plan. It is necessary for some social functions to be given during the year and there is no better entertainment for the college student than to go to a class dance. The students meet their friends and they forget their work for just one night. There must be some play along with all of the hard work that the New Plan students put forth.

The committees for the dance were as follows: Helen Smedley, Decoration; Gertrude Tuxson, Refreshments; Hardin Manard, Orchestra; Kenneth Swain, Finance; Mary Eleanor Eells and Tracy Ninninger, Programs; Harold Kratky, president of the class, General Manager.

All the students who attended the dance enjoyed themselves. The refreshments served at intermission time were particularly good. The orchestra furnished charming music. The only regret was that another dance could not be given during the year. Wayne McFadden directed the orchestra.

New Plan II

NEW PLAN II CLASS

Row 3—Robert Harman, President; Marie White, Vice-President; Lois Jennings, Giftorian.
Row 2—Jean Frantz, Secretary; Kenneth Simms, Treasurer; Eleanor Starcke, Reporter.
Row 1—Charles Bohrer, Sergt-at-Arms; Miss Evans and Miss Weatherman, Advisers.

We, of the second year of the New Plan, have striven to live up to the standards set by your predecessors, who have now finished the third year of the New Plan. We have established a new Secretarial Department, and have carried on the Engineering and Liberal Arts Courses that were established by the original New Plan group. Each member of the class has been inspired to higher ideals by the splendid class and school spirit that prevails among the New Plan. We are proud to be Vikings, and have hopes of making Northeast a school of higher education and ideals.

 Row 1—Douglas Stone, Reporter; Mary Milam, Sergt.-at-Arms; Mr. Babbitt, Advisor.

We, the New Plan I class of '33, have tried to the best of our ability to maintain and raise the high standard set for us by the former New Plan classes. We have at last reached the goal, founded on high ideals, and we in turn are glad to leave it for the oncoming New Plan I class of '34.

In the Viking ship we intend to sail farther out into the Sea of Success to the Land of Greater Things where we will begin another voyage, not only for a new goal and yet higher ideals, but to try to bring more honor to our dear Northeast in all lines of school endeavor.

NEW PLAN I CLASS

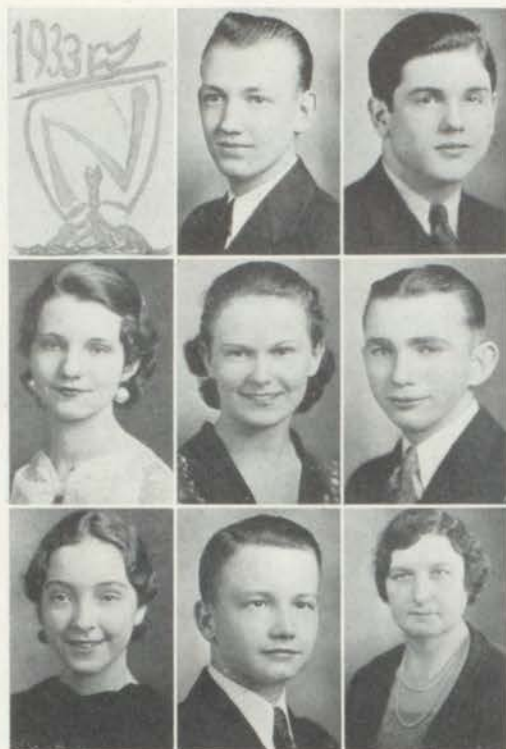

Profiting by the experiences of the two preceding classes in the New Plan our class has a double advantage, that of knowing what to expect in the way of traditions and modes of conduct as well as that of a true appreciation of what the New Plan can mean to those who will do the work. The opportunity here at our school of being in a distinctive group, the only one of its kind, that is pushing forward on the frontier of educational progress is an opportunity to be sought after.

Our group is finishing their first year at the same time the first graduation from the New Plan is being held. We have the chance of preparing ourselves for entrance into any standard junior class of some higher institutions or of taking the secretarial course which gives us some regular college work as well as being the best possible place for training us to take the positions ordinarily filled by the graduates of commercial colleges. The better training for commercial work and the entrance into regular college junior classes are only two of the many advantages we get from this New Plan.

To the graduating class we extend our heartiest congratulations and the warning that we intend to leave, if possible, a stronger challenge to those coming after us.

JUNIOR CLASS

Row 1—Charles Zander, President; Robert Poindexter, Vice-President.
 Row 2—Ruth Perrigo, Giftorian; Helen Heaton, Secretary; Paul Glenn, Treasurer.
 Row 3—Anna Lee Wyatt, Reporter; Robert Smart, Sergt.-at-Arms; Miss Weaver, Adviser.

We, the Juniors of today, the sophomores of yesterday, and the seniors of tomorrow, have felt the strong influence of the graduating class of 1933, and we shall endeavor to exert our utmost efforts to carry on the high tradition of dear Northeast, set by the outgoing seniors.

JUNIOR CLASS

The Junior class of "33" is soon to become the Senior class of "34". We need feel no fear for Northeast's future when such a class as this is to guide Northeast on to victories and glories undreamed of in the past.

The Juniors have supported loyally all the school activities. Various members of the class have distinguished themselves on the athletic field, in the Literary Contest, in school plays, in music, and have furnished outstanding leadership in clubs and societies. We need feel no fear for the future of our school with the class of "34" to guide Northeast toward victories and glories undreamed of in the past.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

You, the Sophomores, are welcomed as the future leaders of Northeast. Already the Sophomores are represented on the highest and general honor rolls, in the R. O. T. C. department, in our societies, clubs, orchestra, band and others of our school activities. Thus the sophomores are beginning preparations to guide Northeast to victories and glories undreamed of; holding always in mind the ideals of scholarship, leadership, and service.

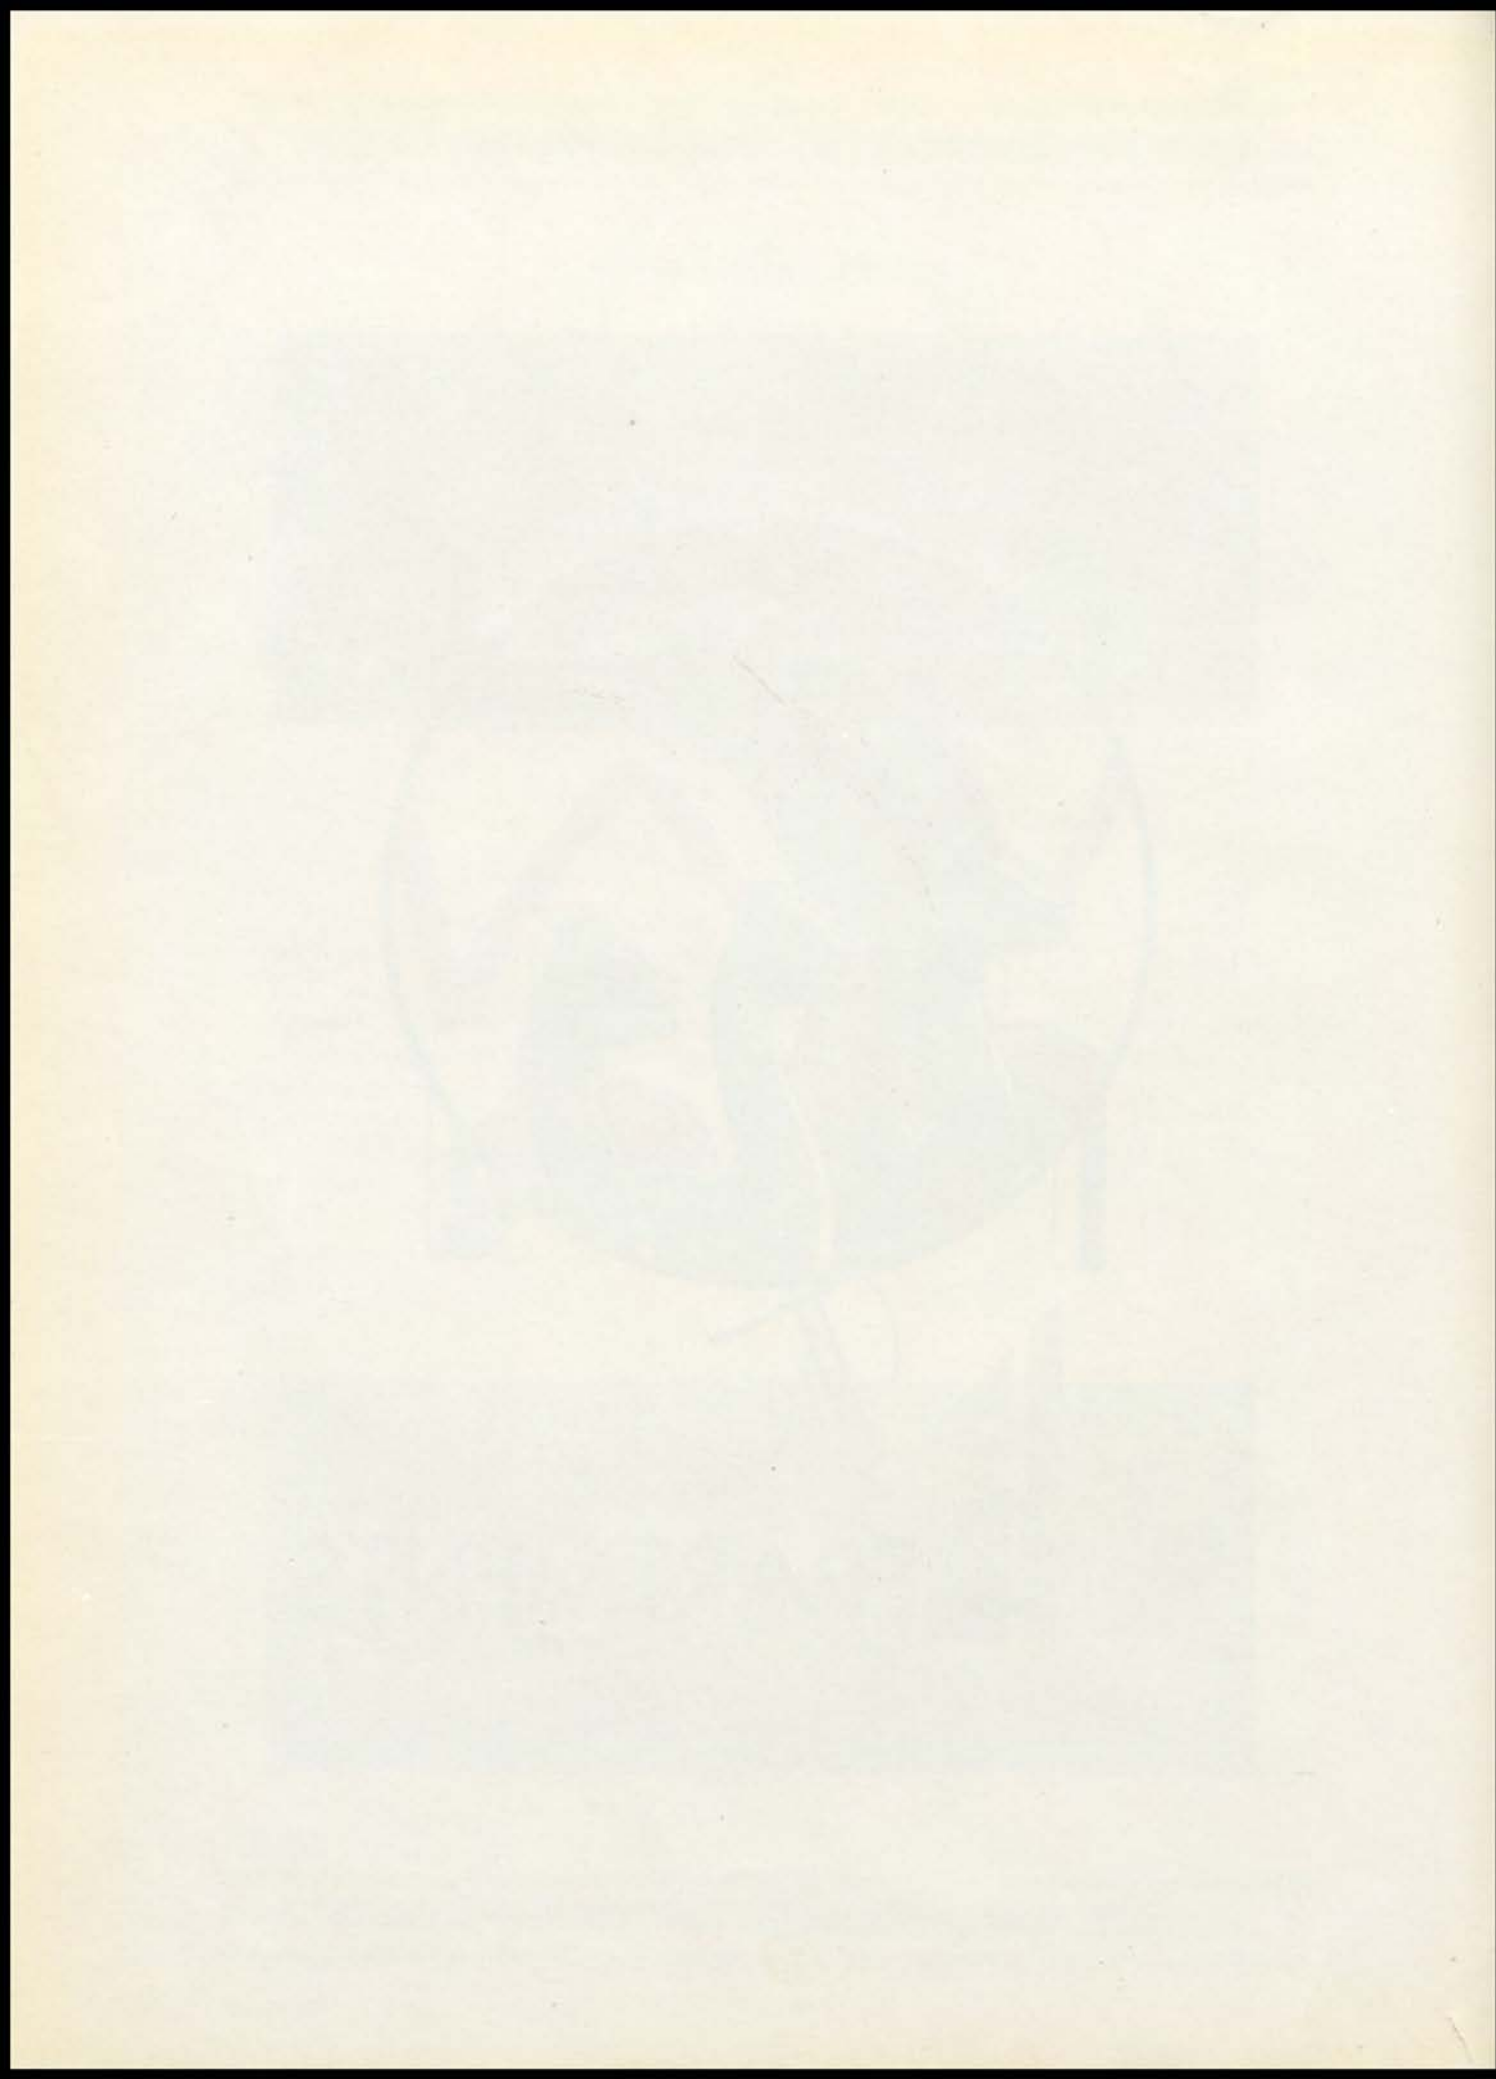

The class of '35 has merely started its journey here and for it we wish the best of success in every activity that brings honor to our dear old alma mater.

NORTHEAST ANNUAL "SKIT"

The Nor'easter staff gave its annual skit in assembly, March 17. The "skit" depicted the regular staff room activities with the added attraction of a new machine, called "technocracy", made to aid the staff in publishing the new and better annual of 1932-1933. The theme of the skit was the desire of the staff to complete the annual before a fire, that had started in the cafeteria, reached the third floor, where the staff room was located. The fact that there was a fire made the staff members work much harder to complete the annual than they did before, and also caused many exciting comments from various editors. At the last call by the firemen, an annual was successfully auctioned off to DeLancy Smith for $1.00. Then the "Nor-easter Subscription Song", written by Prof. E. D. Phillips of the advisors staff of the annual, was sung.

Ursula Harrigan, in behalf of the girls, then challenged the boys to an annual sales contest between the boys and girls, and Robert Harman led the boys in fifteen "Rahs" to show that they accepted the challenge and intended to win the contest. The sad end to the story, as far as the boys were concerned, was that the girls won the contest. Better luck to you next year, boys!

THE NOR'EASTER ANNUAL STAFF

The Nor'easter staff has put forth every effort to give Northeast students the best possible annual. It represents not the work of one editor, but the hearty cooperation of each and every member of the staff along with that of the student body.

This year, besides the regular work of the staff, namely that of the Nor'easter, the staff presented a short skit in an assembly about technocracy.

The Nor'easter, this year, has been somewhat condensed and abbreviated, due to strict financial economy, but still it represents the combined efforts of the staff members to edit a book that would reveal the events of the past year, and that would uphold the spirit and credit of our dear "Northeast."

FIRST SEMESTER COURIER STAFF

The first semester Courier staff endeavored to publish a paper that would please its readers. Its main purpose was to get the news over to the readers in an interesting and accurate manner. More space was devoted to real news than to the usual home room notes and other items that are used to fill up space. The editorials were written about subjects that interested everyone in school. Each department of the school had its place on the Courier make-up.

An attempt was made to enliven the news features. Dead material was cut or left out.

The Courier was published with the idea that it is the students' paper. More time and space were given to the activities and accomplishments of the students than had been the practice.

PRINTING DEPARTMENT

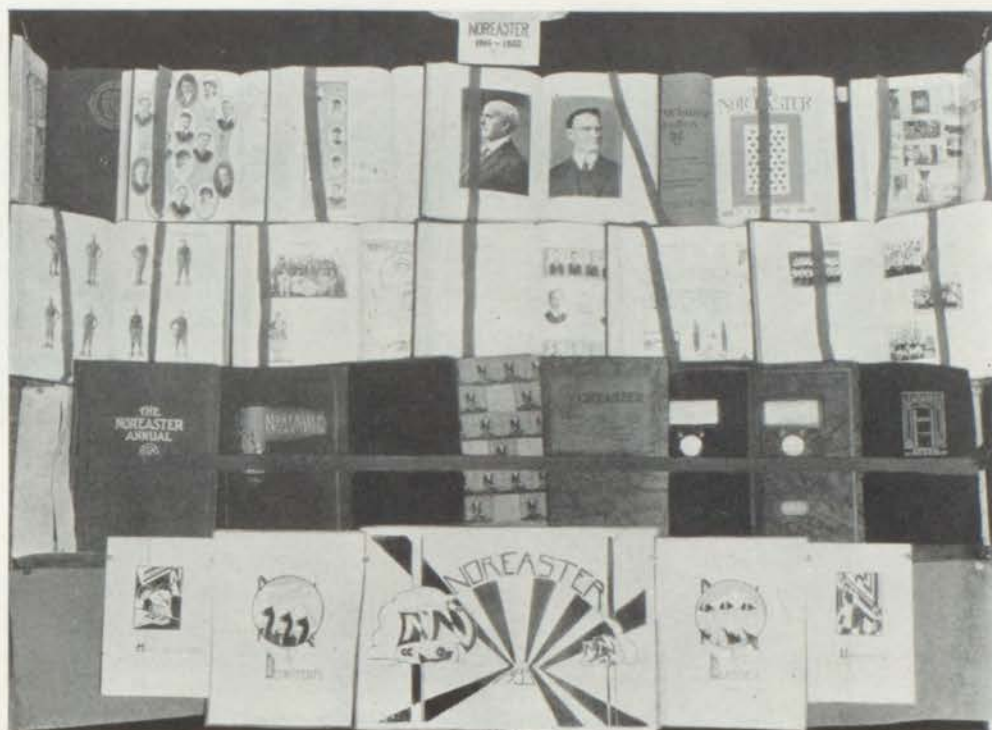

The printing department of the Northeast High School offers its students a practical course which applies the principles taught in the English and Journalism courses, and supplements the art department in the teaching of the principles of balance and proportion. This department presents to the students a constant practice in the correction of the habit of misspelling and incorrect punctuation.

While it is not intended to produce master printers, it does give the student, who is interested in printing as a vocation, a solid foundation upon which he can rapidly progress.

Besides offering a valuable course in printing, this department renders a real service to this school. Office literature, the school paper (The Northeast Courier), the school annual (Nor'easter), are but a few of a group of many that receive this valuable service rendered. The printing done for this school has approximated a saving running annually into hundreds of dollars. Under the direction of Mr. Kunz the printing department has made great progress since its beginning here five years ago.

THE OTHER NINETEEN

The night of the P. T. A. Open House, April 20, 1933, many departments exhibited the results of their year's work. The 1933 Nor'easter Annual Staff, not to be outdone, arranged a compact exhibit of all of the Annuals published during the last twenty years, the length of the life of Northeast High School. The cover design of the first Annual, pictures of Charles B. Reynolds, first principal, and C. H. Nowlin, first vice-principal, and other miscellaneous pages of interest were shown.

The first twelve editors-in-chief were boys; and it is interesting to note that Nathan S. Scarritt, the first editor, and Charles Scarritt, '20, were brothers. The other editors were as follows: Harry Davis, '15; Herbert Chapman, '16; Geo. H. Combs, Jr., '17; Philip F. McGee, '18; Harvey Walker, '19; John M. Moore, '21; Charles Anderson, '22; Harold B. Taylor, '23; Fred Daniel, '24; Charles Luckman, '25. The first girl editor was Foline Eppstein, '26. Following her were: Frances Zang, '27; Lucille Biersmith, '28, and Catherine Busey, '31. The other editors were: Charles Smith, '29; Andrew Sharp, '30, and Robert Harriman, '32.

The staff members have faculty advisors to aid in the work of editing the Nor'easter. E. D. Phillips has been a capable Literary Advisor for every Annual that has been published. Business advisors have been: C. H. Nowlin, '14, '15; Roy I. Johnson, '16; A. B. Parks and R. E. White, '17; and since then Mr. White has aided every business manager, and every other staff member in his work. The Art advisors have varied every year or so, but have all been quite capable. They were: Miss Malcolm Huff, '14; E. A. Huppert, '15, '17, '19; Miss E. M. Hill, '16, '20; Miss K. McNutt, '21, '22; Miss E. Miller, '23; Miss H. Cocks, '24, '28; Miss L. Clark, '29, and Miss M. Newitt, '30, '32. The Annuals of 1915 and 1917 had a Board of Directors comprised of Miss E. Packard, R. I. Johnson, S. B. Apple and A. B. Parks. In 1928, J. E. Fate acted as General advisor; since then Miss A. Pile has filled that position, and has been aided by G. F. Marsh.

CHRISTMAS PLAY

"Applesauce", a comedy of American life, by Barry Connors, was presented to a large audience in the school auditorium, Friday and Saturday nights, December 9th and 10th.

The plot concerns the trials of a young girl, spoiled by an arguing father and mother. The flatteries of Bill McAllister gave the play its name.

Miss Helen Hobbs directed the rehearsals and rendition of the play, which was performed by a well selected cast of characters.

THE SENIOR PLAY

Following the precedent established by former seniors, the senior class of 1933 presented "The Hidden Guest" a three act mystery play, in the school auditorium, the evenings of May 12th and 13th.

There were no leads, and each member of the cast contributed a large part to the successful presentation of the play.

The play was enthusiastically received as usual, playing to favorable audiences both nights.

Miss Helen Hobbs, dramatics, public speaking instructor coached the play.

STAGE CREW

The stage crew was first organized in 1928 under the supervision of Mr. Pinkney. The duty of the crew is to provide the necessary mechanical and electrical stage arrangements necessary for the production of the plays, skits, and assembly programs. This year the crew has only three members instead of the usual four. Donald Kerr operates the switch-board and controls; Raymond Friesz, the picture booth and spotlight; Fendley Smith, the curtain.

The members of the crew will long remember the activities connected with the presentation of the Christmas and Senior plays.

After a brief period of lashing scenery into place and of hurried last minute preparations, the zero hour arrives, the hall is darkened, the footlights flash on, the curtain slowly parts, and the play is on!

THE NORTHEAST DRAMATIC CLUB

The Northeast Dramatic Club was organized in 1927 for the purpose of developing dramatic appreciation and ability among its members. French blue and crimson are the colors and "The Play's the Thing" taken from Shakespeare's Hamlet is the motto. The special problem is the study and presentation of plays. The club had several representatives in the Christmas and Senior plays.

STAR ORATORICAL CONTEST

For several years, The Kansas City Star has sponsored the oratorical contest. Each of the senior high schools choose a representative who speaks at Convention Hall in competition with the representatives of the other high schools. After this contest, representatives from the surrounding territory compete. The winners of this contest, then compete at Washington, D. C., to determine the National champion who competes with others for the world's championship.

This year, Northeast had four competitors. They were Robert Harman, Robert Turner, Dorothy Ferguson, Gertrude Wilkerson. Robert Harman was the winner of this contest and represented Northeast in competition for the city championship held on the night of April 7th.

SONG OF LIFE

MADALYN SMALL, School-at-Large

I walked alone in the morning
Before I came to the day,
And sang a song in the morning
About the beauty of the way;
About the prayer of the sunset,
The song of the sunrise, too,
Of the living souls of flowers,
Of old things ever new;
As the quiet music of rivers,
The stories old trees tell,
Moans of a storm when it's dying,
Dark hollows where brown rabbits dwell.
I sang of white blossoms at even
That close their petals in sleep,
And of the song of the ocean
And the mysteries of the deep.
I lifted my soul in pained rapture
And poured my heart to the winds,
And lamented only the briefness
Of the living-time of men.

SHORT STORY

THE DEFINITION

KATHLEEN O'LAUGHLIN, Theta Literary Society

Jessie was at her grandmother's home for the week-end. These visits were always delightful occasions because grandmother lived in an old-fashioned cottage, surrounded by an equally old-fashioned flower garden. The little girl loved to play among the pretty flowers; therefore it was a great disappointment to awaken to the sound of rain beating on the window pane. That, of course, meant a day indoors. The room in which Jessie and her grandmother were sitting that morning was typically old-fashioned, with funny old cupboards and chests, a large fireplace, and cozy arm-chairs drawn up before the crackling, blazing fire. There were curious, old-fashioned prints and pictures on the walls. Jessie, curled up in one of the chairs, was reading. Her grandmother was sitting by the fire dozing until she was awakened by the child softly calling:

"Grandma, what does 'compunction' mean?"

Here grandmother sat there thinking for a few moments and then said;

"Jessie go over to the cupboard in the corner and get the red box that is on the third shelf."

The little girl obediently did as she was told, but thought it a strange manner in which to answer her question. She brought it to her grandmother and then sat on a stool at her feet. Her grandmother opened the box and unfolded two samplers, identical in size, color, and design.

"Why grandma! They are just alike, but the stitches on this one are so much finer and neater."

"Yes dear, they are," said grandma sighing.

"When I was a little girl," she began, "we made the gifts that we were going to give on Christmas. Everyone took pride in his work and it was not unusual to start on the gifts six months before Christmas. Very much different than now, when we rush the day before to buy our gifts."

"The little girl who worked this sampler," she said, indicating the one with the poorer stitching, "was named Samantha. She lived in the wooded hills of Vermont. The home where she lived was a large, white farm house surrounded by tall, old evergreens. She had one sister, Caroline, who was the baby of the family, and a brother who was married."

"Samantha went to the store in late summer to buy the sampler. While looking through the small array of samplers that the store-keeper had, one immediately attracted her attention. It was a picture of a ship with billowy sails at sea. She had often heard her mother tell of her childhood on the Maine Coast, and she was always thrilled by a picture or a story about it. The old man behind the counter, seeing that Samantha liked the ship picture so well, told her that he had sold one just like it that morning to another little girl. However, Samantha was so busy looking at the other samplers, she paid no attention to what he said."

"The day Samantha bought the sampler she also bought thread with which to work it. The store-keeper had only four different kinds of colored thread; blue, green, black and white. Therefore she had to make the other colors that were needed.

SOCIETIES

For brown she dyed some white thread with walnuts, for yellow, white thread was dyed with saffron tea. Crushed raspberry juice provided the red."

"Samantha worked on it in every leisure moment, intending to give it to her chum for Christmas. Whenever she had finished the daily tasks, she would go to her room and carefully resume the stitching. The bright colored threads held a fascination for her, and she went so far as to make this red border one Sunday afternoon. One day the children had planned a picnic. She was to meet them at the schoolhouse at two o'clock, but became so absorbed in her work and completely forgetting the time, four o'clock came before she realized it. Then, of course, it was too late to go."

"When the sampler was almost finished something happened that nearly ruined it. Samantha was downstairs helping her mother clean house, and her little sister toddled up the stairs to the bedroom. She saw the sampler and immediately set to work, but of course not at all in the right way. By this time her tasks were finished, and hastening upstairs to her room, she opened the door and there was her tiny sister with the thread in one big snarl, which meant several hours of untangling and re-stitching. Little sister was not to blame, for Samantha knew that it was careless to have left the sampler out. She was very careful, after that, to see that the precious treasurer was put away."

"Day by day, as the white thread outlined the sails, the brown thread the mast, and long blue stitches made the waves of the ocean, the sampler grew more beautiful to her and she wanted to keep it for herself."

"On the day before Christmas her mother asked if the sampler was finished, wrapped, and ready to give to Sarah Jane. Samantha was naughty and said that it couldn't be found anywhere, but perhaps her little sister had hidden it. When Caroline was questioned the little girl chuckled gleefully and chattered some unintelligible baby talk. Her mother, seeing that Samantha felt badly about it, said that something else could be found to give Sarah Jane."

"Perhaps Samantha felt sorry for telling the falsehood, but after she had gone upstairs and looked at the sampler in its box, she thought that she felt justified in telling it. The finished piece of needle-work seemed so beautiful to her."

"The next day was snowy and cold, and in the morning all the family bundled into the large sled and drove to the church. The service, though simple was impressive, and Samantha's conscience hurt her greatly as she listened to the old Christmas story. After the services the people exchanged presents and greetings." Grandma ceased speaking and sat gazing into the fire for several moments, until Jessie, impatient for the story to continue asked;

"And what did the girls give each other, Grandma?"

"Well, my dear, Samantha was all aflutter when she received her package from Sarah Jane. The bright ribbon bow was quickly untied, the white tissue paper hastily torn off, and there—in a little red box—was a duplicate of her own beloved sampler, though worked in a finer and neater way."

Grandmother again turned and gazed into the fire, and Jessie, looking at her grandmother's face saw the tears in her eyes. She didn't need to be told who was Samantha, and silently picking up the samplers, she replaced them in their box and took them back to their place in the little old-fashioned cupboard, knowing now full-well the meaning of the word "compunction".

ESSAY

OUR MOVE

ELIZABETH LUTZ, Theta Literary Society

If mother had exploded a bomb in the middle of the floor, we could not have been more surprised. The occasion was mother's return from a month's stay in an eastern city with father, who was still there. We were gathered in mother's sitting room, and although the kisses and greetings were over we were lingering to see what new things mother had in her bags.

When mother began none of us was particularly interested, for she started out as she nearly always does with, "Well, children, your father and I have decided—". But I happened to catch a glimpse of mother's face, and I could tell that whatever she and father had decided promised to be pleasant, or interesting to say the least. In a flash I anticipated that perhaps we were to have our rooms redecorated, for it was spring; or that an especially nice summer outing had been planned for us. But when mother finished her sentence she said, "We have decided that it will be best to move as soon as school is over, because father will be in the East all the time, and he gets so lonely and so hates to live in a hotel."

I looked around at my family and never did I see three more astonished faces. My older sister, who has a provoking habit of liking nearly everything that I dislike, looked surprised but there was a pleased expression there also. My little sister, who had been calmly sleeping in the big leather chair, started up and said in a sleepy voice, "Who's going to move? Not us?" My brother simply stared at mother as if he had not understood. And I must say that I probably opened my mouth and forgot to shut it, because I have an annoying habit of doing that in a time of crisis.

While mother was explaining that we would store the furniture, send the dog to the country, and sell the house, I, usually the most talkative and certainly the most inquisitive of the family, said not a word, no, nor asked a question. I was too stunned even to dash to the telephone and relay the news to my best friend, who usually heard my news about ten seconds after I did. For the first time, I was more foresighted than the older members of my family. For I saw, in the not too far future, the actual departure and the leaving of the chum from whom I had not been separated since perambulator days. But their minds were on the mere mechanics of the moving. Mother was talking about the pads which she intended to put between the pictures when they were packed. My brother was saying that the family car must be thoroughly gone over, as one could hardly drive it to the city limits in its present condition. And my exasperating sister was talking about the East's being so much nearer to everything and offering so many intellectual and social advantages. My little sister had fallen asleep again. Had they no souls!

Our home was not exactly ancestral, but I had lived there all my life and now even the ink stained carpet in the sitting room became suddenly dear to me, although it had been the very bane of my existence up to this time. Full realization of the situation came to me and I stamped my foot angrily on that same carpet and said I thought it pretty selfish of Dad to drag us back there, and that it was better for one person to be lonely than for six to be that way. No one paid much attention to my outburst however, so I dried my tears and decided to listen to what the rest of them had to say. Mother was saying that father had arranged that we should vacate the house by the first of June. That would make of us a family without a home for about two weeks or until the end of the school term. Mother said that each of us might stay with his special friend for those weeks. Of course this concession pleased me very much. * * * * *

Never did time pass so quickly. Before the outward signs of moving became apparent, I noticed that mother had started to sort out the things in the closets. And what a confusion of things those closets were, especially the big one in the upstairs hall. One would not think an ordinary family could collect such millions of useless things in less than twenty years. All I can say to that is that our family is not an ordinary one. My mother is that sort of person who cannot bear to destroy anything because someone might be able to use it sometime. There were old bundles of flannel that she had been waiting for about fifteen years to put around somebody's sore throat. There were piles and piles of soft linen that she had been intending to make into either handkerchiefs or napkins for about ten years, but she had never made up her mind about it. There were old hats which she had worn in the obscure past and which were still perfectly good to her notion. There were little shoes which she could not throw away, because she was so typically a mother. There were baby dresses and petticoats with yards of fine lace made by her mother's hands. There were boxes of Christmas tree ornaments which had grown fuller with each year's addition. There were the decorations which someone had used for a Halloween party. There were about a dozen dolls in various states of disrepair and the numerous doll dresses that three little girls might well accumulate. But mother disposed of all of these things in one way or another, and they disappeared into two incredibly small trunks.

And next we approached that stage of the moving where the pictures were taken from the walls, the rugs from the floors, and the books from every bookshelf. I was assigned the packing of the books, and I think I put about as many signs into the boxes as I put books. I left my own books until last, and tucked my "Little Women", whose more touching pages were stained with my tears, on the very top where it made an unruly bulge. That last week we were continually falling into boxes of silver and barrels of the best chinaware. Mother went about repeating lists of things so constantly that she had the attitude of unceasing prayer. But what she really was saying was, "So and so's cough syrup, needles, black silk, tennis rackets and bathing suits."

The last meal that we ate together was Sunday dinner, usually our most formal meal. But not this time, for we ate about as much packing excelsior as we did roast beef. Somehow we could not behave normally with the piano standing skittishly in the middle of the slick floor and side-stepping a little whenever anyone touched it.

The next day men came to disconnect the telephone, electricity, and water supply. One got no response when one tried the water tap or lifted the telephone, unless some one happened to be lifting the extension upstairs. At the same time I was constantly called to sit on this packing box, or to hold my finger just so on this rope, so that it would not slip. I was in a thousand places at once, receiving some callers who unfortunately choose that morning to say goodbye, fastening tightly the numerous suitcase straps, and tucking away into trunks the little things that someone had left in his drawer.

When the actual moving started, and I saw first the piano, then my favorite leather chair, and then my own white bed on their incongruous ride out of the house on the shoulders of the moving men, I think I was the most unhappy person in the world. As I walked through the empty rooms, I realized that no more would we trim the Christmas tree in this room, or gather about the dinner table in that one, or practice monotonous piano lessons in the other one. All that was passed. Other children would play under the elms in the yard and gather the winged "squirters" of the maple tree in the spring. My brother said that one would think that I was leaving a thousand acre estate on which my family had resided since it stepped from the "Mayflower". But he had moved before and I had not. This first time I ever moved was very exciting for me and I astonished myself by being quite sentimental about it.

An old saying makes three moves equal to fire, but our one was the equivalent of that fire with an earthquake and a hurricane in for good measure.

ORATION

CALVIN COOLIDGE

BETH NOBLES, Clionian Literary Society

"Lives of great men all remind us,
We can make our lives sublime,
And departing, leave behind us,
Footprints, on the sands of time."

It has been predicted "That in years to come the verdict of history will assign to Calvin Coolidge a high place among the great men of the North American Republic. No one will rank him with Washington and Lincoln, yet his quiet modesty, his sterling guidance of the Ship of State into calmer waters, has deservedly won for him a high place in the affection of his country men."

Men remember about Coolidge, not what he did, nor what he said, but the principals by which he lived, the qualities he displayed, and the character that he was. He was the sort of man to leave behind memories, not of words or of deeds, but of personality.

There are three dramatic climaxes that mark the political career of Calvin Coolidge. The first was his sudden action while Governor of Massachusetts in the Boston police strike of 1919. By his thoughtful, orderly action, he thoroughly established the principle that "servants of the people, in any capacity must not, by mass action, endanger public welfare." Thus Coolidge threw himself upon the national stage, a national figure.

The second prominent step was on August 2, 1923, when Calvin Coolidge took the oath of office as President of the United States three hours after the death of the former President, Warren G. Harding.

Coolidge came to the presidency with a clear understanding of the attitude of the administration on all public questions. The only noticeable change made by him, was the thrift and economy platform inaugurated.

After having been elected President in his own name, and having served the normal four-year period in office, Calvin Coolidge was accosted by party leaders as a possible candidate for re-election, and it was then, for the third time, that Calvin Coolidge held the attention and admiration of the world, when in August, 1927, at Black Hills, South Dakota, he announced in ten words that he did not choose to run for president in 1928.

Paul Sheffer, former American correspondent says, "It has often been debated whether Coolidge declined to stand for the re-election, which he would have certainly have gained, because he, almost alone, foresaw that his next period in office would have witnessed the destruction of all the splendor that had arisen during the term he had already served."

Although Calvin Coolidge himself shunned any kind of luxury, he has well been termed the "Prosperity President". Because, as it has been said, "A paradoxical character entered the White House during America's greatest period of economic splendor. The heaven of prosperity seemed to have come to stay, and Coolidge was president."

And so, to the strains of "Nearer My God To Thee" Calvin Coolidge, thirtieth president of the United States went home to rest among his forefathers, in the quiet of the Vermont Hills he loved.

"Let us not mourn his going,
Let us rejoice to know,
That, earthly labors finished,
He was prepared to go.

Let us emulate his virtues,
That men of us may say,
The world is brighter, better,
Because he passed this way."

NATIONAL HONOR SOCIETY

On May 21, 1923, a charter to the National Honor Society was granted to Northeast High School.

A selection of students from the Senior, New Plan II, New Plan I, and Junior classes is made on the basis of who is most outstanding in scholarship, leadership, character, and service. It has been a custom to select 10 per cent of the Seniors and New Plan II's and five Juniors and New Plan I's.

This year 23 Seniors and 17 New Plan II's received bids.
 Mr. Miller is the advisor.

BOOK PLATES

For the twentieth year the "Nor'easter Annual" is able to maintain its Book-Plate Section. While artistic designing is not an organic factor in the department of English, it is an excellent by-product that demonstrates the practical and beautiful result of correlating art with literature; and enabling the pupils to visualize more clearly the sentiments and mental pictures, which authors strive to express in their efforts to depict human nature and the picturesque material world about us.

Mr. E. D. Phillips' motive in originating this attractive feature was, and still is, to cultivate the pupils' artistic talent for beauty's sake, and to develop their original, creative ability in commercial art, for the purpose of making their living as illustrators.

It may be interesting for the reader to learn that this section became such a distinctive feature of our magazine that it aided greatly in our winning first or second place as long as we were allowed to enter it in High School Magazine Contests. The accompanying school's bookplate and the full page print of 24 bookplates are pleasing and permanent results of this venture.

Much credit is due Miss Mabel A. Newitt, our instructor in art and design, for the invaluable aid that she has given our young artists in the production of these bookplates.

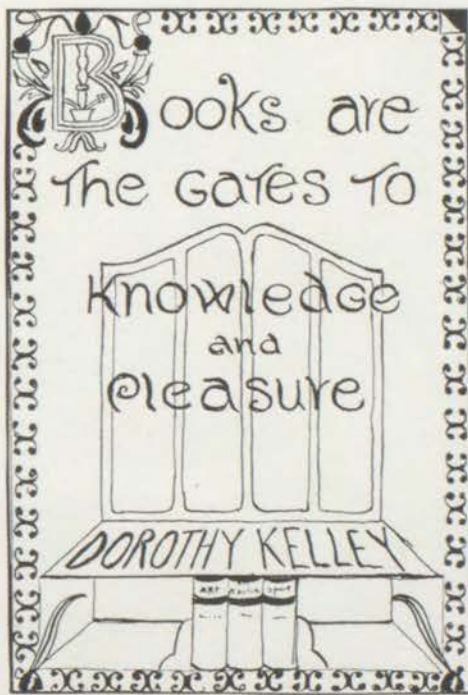

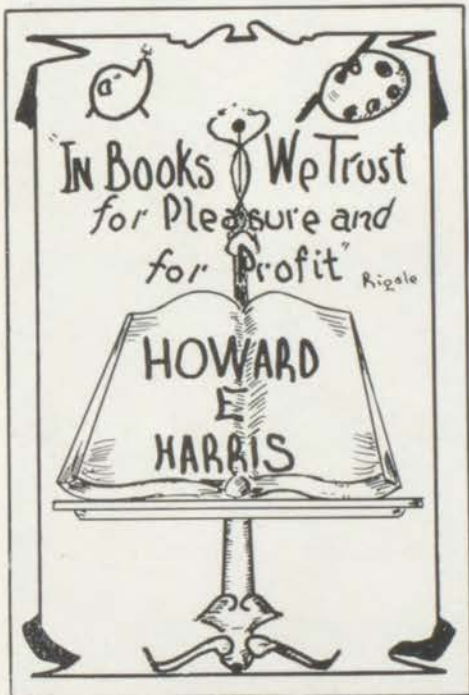

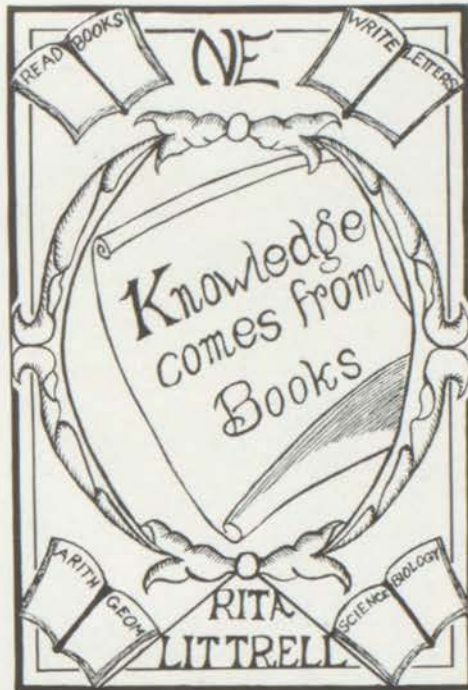

The full-page print of twenty-four book-plates is a copy of the large framed wall poster, which by request of the "National English Teachers' Convention," was exhibited at the meeting of that convention in Kansas City, November, 1929. This print contains samples of book plates designed by our pupils for the first fifteen years of our school.

AN ARTISTIC FEATURE OF BOOKS THE BOOKPLATE

Designed by Senior English Literature Students of Northeast High School, E. D. Phillips-Head of Engl. Dept. Instructor.

For fifteen years, the designing of bookplates by the Senior English Literature classes of the Northeast High School of Kansas City, Mo., has been a distinctive feature under the directions of E. D. Phillips.

Did Phillips's reasons for this innovation are— to correlate art with literature, and to develop the pupil's talent in design, not simply to cultivate a love for the beautiful, but to enable him to use this creative talent industrially in the making of posters, illustrations for books, and various kinds of gift cards as well as bookplates.

Le Cercle Francais, Les Penseurs, etait fonde au mois de septembre en 1914. Le but de cette Societe est d'offrir aux membres un moyen d'augmenter leur connaissance de la langue francaise. Puis, les membres arrivent a connaitre plus intimement les grands chefs-d'œuvre de la litterature francaise, l'architecture de ce beau pays, le caractere du peuple francais, les moeurs, et l'importance de la France, de saccivilisation, de la langue francaise, non seulement au point de vue de la diplomatie, mais aussi de l'art, de la science et de l'industrie.

THE NORTHEAST LATIN CLUB

The Northeast Latin Club was organized in 1927 by a group of students interested in the language, literature, and civilization of the ancient Romans. The club has had two advisors; Miss Murdock who inspired its organization and served for three years, and Miss Miller who took her place in 1930.

The motto of the club is "Per ampliora ad altiora"—"Through wider experiences to higher planes." The color is royal purple, and the floral emblem is the laurel wreath.

La Sociedad Castellana fue organizada en el año 1914 con la Señora Bell como consejera. "El trabajo lo vence todo" fue escogido para el lema, y la flor es el tulysan rojo. Los miembros tienen que pagar multas si hablan inglés durante las reuniones. Cuando hacen los negocios del club y cuando toman parte en el programa tienen que emplear el español todo el tiempo. De este modo pueden obtener más práctica en el uso de la lengua.

GERMAN

German was taught in Northeast for the first time last year. We now have three classes in the language, one in High School and two in New Plan. We hope in the future to be able to offer a complete course, both in High School and New Plan.

NORTHEAST MATHEMATICS CLUB

The Northeast Mathematics Club was organized in 1916 in order to promote more interest in mathematics. The geometrical figure of the Pythagorean theorem is the club's emblem. Last April the club had a mathematics exhibit. The present members hope that their successors will uphold the high standard that the originators have set. Prof. Robert White is the advisor.

This is the first group of engineers to graduate from Northeast High School. Engineering is a subject which may be studied in the New Plan.

MATHEMATICS EXHIBIT

The Mathematics Club staged its annual exhibit the first week in April. The drawings, demonstrations, and models shown were the work of students of mathematics. The committees in charge of the exhibit and publicity were chosen from the members of the club. The exhibit committee was Roy Bredberg, chairman, Marilou Johnston, and Mary Milan, lay members; the publicity committee was Robert Reed, chairman, Helen Heaton, and Roberta McLennan, lay members. Sub-committees were appointed from Mr. White's classes, and pupils from Mr. Smith's, Miss Pile's, and Miss Packard's classes aided the committees in the presentation of the exhibit.

The newest features were as follows: Mr. White's exhibition of "One Million", the novel border design of the Mathematics Club emblem made by Harold Taylor, and the contest for all visitors. This contest was to guess the number of triangles in a large hexagon. The winner, Dwight Emerson, was given a Chinese Jig-Saw Puzzle.

The President of the Club, Dorothy Jane Moore, and the advisor, Mr. White, feel that the exhibit was an unusual success.

Following Mr. Chapin's suggestion, the main exhibits were repeated for Open House the latter part of April. Many complimentary comments were heard from both teachers and parents.

The club is composed of students, greatly interested in the field of science, in both Chemistry and Physics departments.

Through experiments, lectures, and trips there has been brought about a clearer understanding of the principles of science involved in every day discussion.

HYGEIA CLUB

The Hygeia Club was organized in 1928 for the purpose of promoting good mental, moral, and physical health habits. The club does not limit its membership to members of the Physiology Classes, but welcomes any girl who is interested in health projects. The members study particularly the nature of plays and games that are valuable in health training. The Hygeia Club holds as many out-of-door meetings as possible. The advisor is Miss McElwain.

NORTHEAST COMMERCIAL CLUB

The Northeast Commercial Club was organized March 19, 1922, for the purpose of promoting interest in commercial work; to have programs consisting of business talks and readings, and also to look forward to identifying its members with some form of business.

The club's motto is: "Efficiency Wins." The colors are gold and silver, which represent our two principal coins. Mr. Coleman is the advisor.

BOOKKEEPING

It is the purpose of the Bookkeeping Department to teach the first and second year students the mechanics of the accounting world. In a two-year course the average student succeeds in completing five so-called practice sets along with numerous exercises. A superior student will sometimes complete the maximum number of the sets—that is, seven. A system of banking is conducted by a group of select students, who act as cashiers for the others when their work requires such.

From the bookkeeping classes two girls are selected to assist in taking care of the school savings.

Occasionally when assistance is needed, Mr. Coleman, the bookkeeping teacher, will have some student help in keeping the books of the school.

COMMERCE

TYPEWRITING DEPARTMENT

The Typewriting Department, under the supervision of Miss Winnifred Weatherman and Mr. Fred H. Green, has progressed very much this year. New ideas have been introduced through the Secretarial New Plan II, and accuracy has been stressed above speed. Advancement in accuracy and speed is determined by tests given weekly to all typewriting students.

There are two years of typing in high school courses. The first year students learn the keyboard, work on accuracy and speed drills, and type letters. This year these first year typists have also done transcription work, that is, transcribe shorthand notes into English and type. The second year classes learn to type all kinds of office forms, continue their transcription work and accuracy and speed drills.

The New Plan typewriting class has learned the keyboard, typed letters, made carbon copies, addressed envelopes, transcribed, and worked extensively on accuracy.

These girls vied for honors in the second year classes: Lillian Airgood, Sarah Hammer and Louise Holdt; third hour: Margaret Frizent, Irene Heinz, Nesa Miller, and Leona Young, sixth hour. Evelyn Bade lead the New Plan II class with Beatrice Hanline a close second.

OFFICE TRAINING

The office training course was established so as to enable pupils, who are eager to learn, to know more about business and the ethics of it.

Office training is a half-year subject and it is a very worthy one.

Out of the semester, about three weeks is given to the study of filing. There are five ways to file, alphabetical, numerical, geographical, chronological, and by subject. The pupils were drilled quite frequently, and the results were splendid. The majority of the pupils had increased both their accuracy and speed.

Office training is a very beneficial course, and it has proved itself successful.

The Treble Clef has the same advantages as a class in voice culture or the regular chorus.

The club has sung for many occasions during the year, some of which were: at the Union Station, and at Melrose Methodist Church. They have formed an A Capella Chorus with the Boys' Glee Club. They also have several representatives in the Music Contest. For ten consecutive years and other years following the Treble Clef with the Boys' Glee Club have won the Music Contest.

NATIONAL ART EXHIBIT

The Scholastic Magazine of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, sponsors an annual art contest for all art students of high school age. The Northeast Art Department sent fifteen pieces to Pittsburgh to be judged. Three of the fifteen were accepted and hung in the exhibit which is circulated for a year among the cities of the United States. Pieces accepted last year were made by the following students: Jean Peters, Myra Wildish, Arthur Bennett and Madalyn Small. In the contest this year Jane Lee wins an Honorable Mention for a designed and tooled leather portfolio. The prize is five dollars in leather merchandise. The other two pieces accepted are textiles designed and block-printed in color, made by Dorothy Belle Keidel and Dean Buchanan. Dorothy Belle's design is a Japanese dragon and wave pattern printed in four colors on Japanese crepe. Dean's design is a modernistic interpretation of a flower box in two colors on pink silk.

This club has tried to help its school in every possible way. Stage settings was the special problem this year. There are twenty-two members. The club is looking forward to more successful years. Two of the three pieces of work were made by Northeast art students: Dorothy Hinkley's "Madonna" was a black and white study in lithograph crayon; Iris Heillman's charcoal surface design was a modernistic interpretation "Comets".

Crafts

MANUAL ARTS

WOODWORK EXHIBIT

The aim of the woodworking course is to give information and experiences which will interest the student in industrial life and enable him to do effectively the things that most boys and men are called upon to do, regardless of their vocation. It is taught to give experiences, capable of wide application, and to develop in him a habit of orderly procedure and systematic work, which will be of value in any line of endeavor.

The woodworking instruction seeks specifically to set up the following fundamental habits, skills, and attitudes:

1. An interest in industry.
2. How to care for and use properly the things we buy.
3. An appreciation of good workmanship and design.
4. A habit of orderly and methodical procedure in the performing of any task.
5. An attitude of pride and interest in one's ability to do things.
6. The ability to read a working drawing and express one's ideas accurately by means of such drawings.
7. Elementary skills in the use of the more common tools and machines.

MANUAL ARTS

WOODWORK EXHIBIT

DRAFTING

"Drafting is the language of industry." It is the object of the Drafting department to teach those students, who are interested in this course, the language of drafting, by which they can interpret and express themselves.

Through the intensive study offered by the Drafting department, many students are receiving a firm foundation in mechanical and architectural drawing.

Beauty in design, constructive imagination, industry, are but a few of a group of many traits, which are developed in this course of study. Under the supervision of Mr. Roedl, the Drafting department is progressing rapidly.

METAL SHOP

The Metal Shop of Northeast High school presents to its students a complete two-year course, through all the necessary steps, providing them with a firm foundation upon which they can rapidly progress in this line of work.

Welding, machine work, bench work, auto mechanics are but a few of a group of many valuable subjects that are taught in the metal department. Not only do the students enrolled in this course learn to operate the many machines in the shop, but they actually construct power machines such as lathes, drill presses, band saws, jig saws for home bench shops.

Among the many objectives that are set by the Metal Shop, are to familiarize the student with industrial products, to develop his better traits and to cultivate his skill. Under the supervision of Mr. Roedl the metal shop is making great headway.

HOUSEHOLD ARTS

CLOTHING DEPARTMENT

The Clothing Department, under the able direction of Miss Martha Rouse, has done very good work this year. Miss Rouse has six classes of girls ranging from first year to third year students. This year, though silk and wool dresses were still required, if the girls wished they could substitute cotton for either silk or wool.

The first year classes made cotton dresses, jumpers, and blouses. The second year classes made wool, silk, and cotton dresses and suits. The third year students made the same kind of articles as the second year students.

This year the annual sewing exhibit was held May 20 in the evening. There were about 200 exhibits of suits and dresses of many kinds of materials. Twenty-two party and commencement dresses were made by graduating seniors. There were sixteen children exhibiting garments made by their big sisters. This exhibit showed what lovely as well as useful articles the girls made throughout the year.

ATHLETIC STAFF

The school is very proud of its coaching staff this year, being represented by such character builders as Coach Reeves Peters and Coach Mount E. Davis.

Mr. Peters has charge of basketball, and developed a team that reigns with East High as champions of the Interscholastic League. He is also in charge of the track team which we hope will have a successful season.

Coach Davis has charge of football, and shares the job of taking care of the gym classes with Coach Peters.

To Mr. Pickens was given the job of balancing the budget, which he has so successfully done for several years.

"N" CLUB

Although the "N" Club has no social functions or meetings, it stands high in the minds of the students as do other school clubs and societies.

The qualifications for this club are first that the member has represented Northeast on one of its athletical teams and has been awarded a first team letter for his service, and second he has shown that he stands for good clean sportsmanship on and off of the playing field.

We believe Northeast is well represented by this group of young sportsmen who shall long be remembered for their loyalty to the school by performing on their respective teams.

Swain

Northeast was highly complimented upon its uniform cheering this year and much of our success was due to the efforts of these boys.

Although none of these students had ever had experience at cheer leading, before this year, they led the school yells with rhythmic motions that made it easy for the student body to follow.

The positions of cheer leaders were won by these students at tryouts held in the school auditorium at the beginning of the year. The vacancies were open to any boy in school and the winners were chosen by a committee of faculty members and students.

All of the cheerleaders were known about the school for their pep and enthusiasm and may Northeast always be as well represented with yell leaders as it was in 1932 and 1933.

NORTHEAST '32" FOOTBALL SQUAD

Coach Davis had a difficult problem outlined for him last year with few lettermen back and the rest of the squad young and inexperienced. He produced a team that toward the end of the season worked its plays smoothly and effectively, this was proven by the way in which we gained much more yardage from scrimmage than did our opponents. In many of its games Northeast played football that would have been a compliment to any team in the league, and while not winning its share of games, it has uncovered some talent that may be used as the foundation for the building of a winning team in the next year.

This team will long be remembered for its clean sportsmanship, and for having fought its hardest, and to the best of its ability in every contest.

Harold Carson was chosen by his team mates to lead the Purple and White gridsters for the coming football season.

Northeast again had a very successful year at basketball. The first honor of the season was sharing of the Interscholastic League championship with East high and next the consolation championship of the state tournament at Columbia.

Although the team was small in size, they more than made up for it in speed.

The Viking basketeers were victorious in nine of their eleven engagements and they pulled through the stiff competition of the Interscholastic League with only one defeat in six contests.

At the beginning of the season it was thought that the Vikings would not be very strong on the court because of the size of the cagers and the lack of lettermen, but this idea was abandoned after our first outside contest which was with Rockhurst.

THE PLAYERS

Robert Tuxson, Northeast's captain and center, was the "spark plug" of the team and was known for his ability to hit the basket from anywhere on the court. He was chosen captain and center of the Interscholastic League's all stars.

Alfred Gauret was the smallest member of the team but could handle the ball in such a way as to puzzle his larger opponents.

James Haynes, a forward, also quite small was known for his floor work, and his ability to score with either hand.

Gene Bredehoft played the post position and was good at shooting over-head shots which missed their marks very few times. He will be with us for two more years.

Charles Mills held down the position of guard with much ease. Charley was given much credit for fighting the hardest when the going was the toughest.

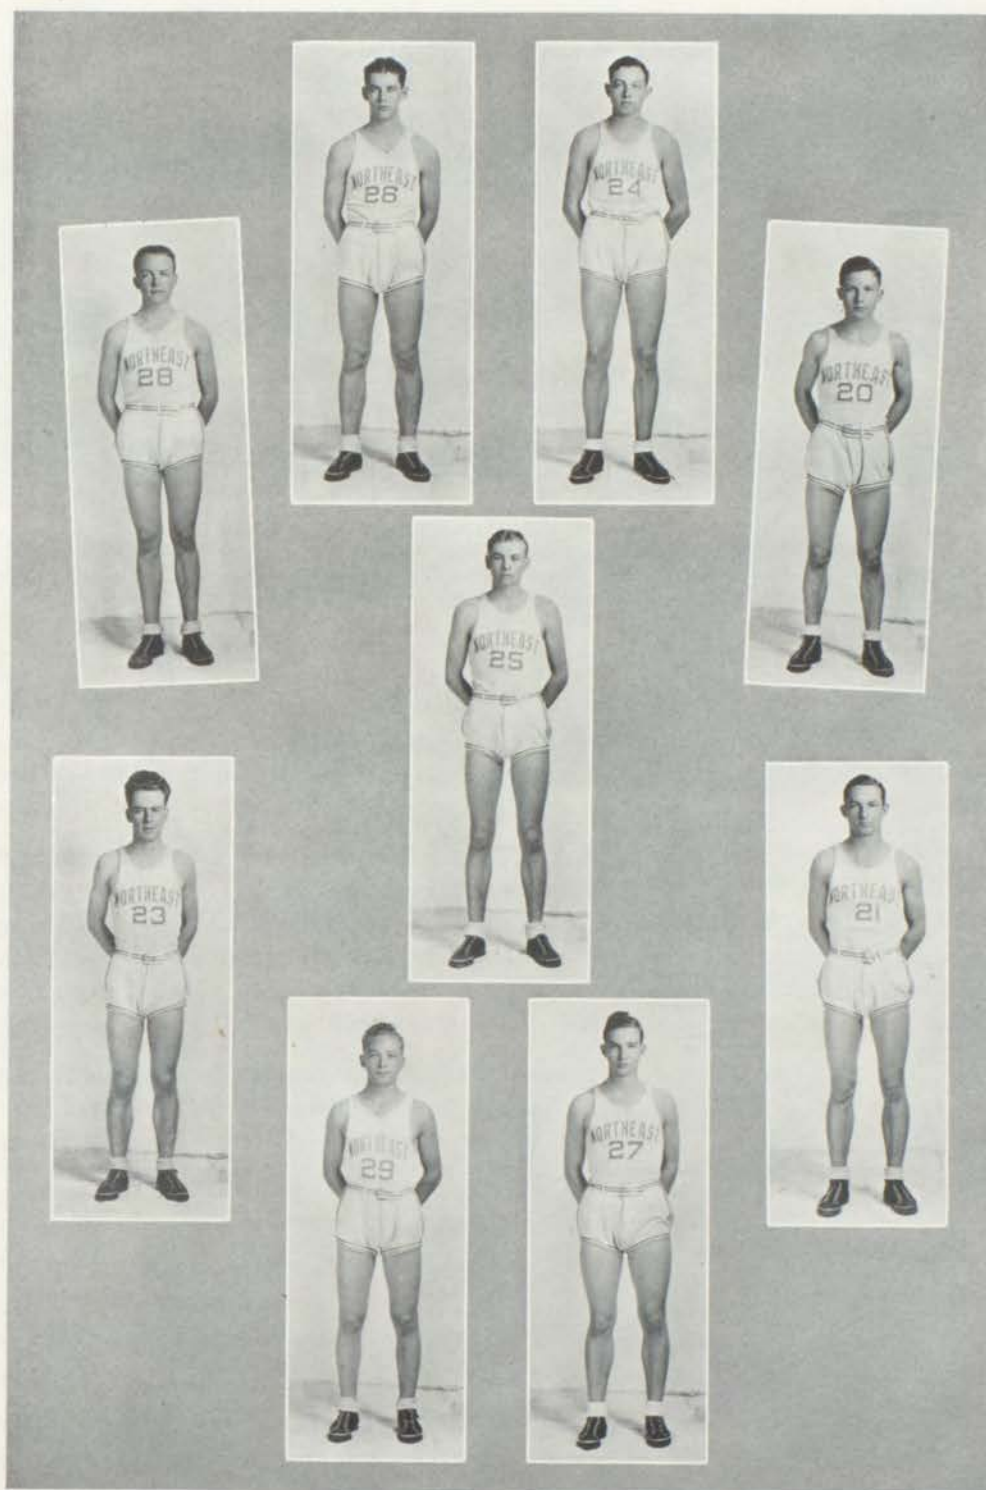

Harold Ditto played forward and could always be counted on to come through in a pinch. He was speedy on his feet and handled the ball well with either hand.

Albert Rozgoa, a sophomore, showed a lot of ability on the court and much will be expected of him in the next two years. "Al" worked well in the team's style of playing.

Although Carl Jeans did not play but the last half of the season, he became well known for his accuracy of one hand shots. Carl will be eligible to play half of next season.

Robert Harman was a reserve man that could be depended upon to do his share of playing when sent in. Robert could handle the ball well and was a good shot.

Row 1—Simmons, Bremer, Poindexter, Phelps, Cordry, Rooks, C. Jones, Davis, Evans, Danello, Fiendel.

Northeast is facing the coming track season with a hopeful look toward the championship. The reason is there are eight lettermen back and a promising squad of new men.

The lettermen are Captain Myron Rooks, who took second in the 880 yard dash in the city meet last year. Myron is also a good broad jumper. James Carr, a shot putter, won first in the city meet last season. Marvin Evans, a high hurdler. Velton Cox, a pole vaulter and a shot putter. Peter Di Givionni, a high jumper and broad jumper. Udell Phelps, a 440 yard dash man who has had two years of experience. Archie Jones, a sprinter, and Clarence Jones, also a dash man.

The other men trying out for positions on the team are: Robert Poindexter, Andrew Schaffer, Kenneth Mulhearn, Kenneth Sawyer, James Haynes, Robert Turner, Earl Farris, Carl Jeanes, Clifford Simmons, Andrew Ianella, Clarence Rogsdale, Robert Turner and Joe Juriack.

If a consistent dash man can be uncovered, Northeast will be hard to defeat. Robert Poindexter is the likely man for this position because of his showing in the Inter-class and Manual track meets.

In the first dual meet of the season Northeast defeated Manual by a score of 81 to 10, Northeast winning all but two of the events.

May 6, Northeast will go to Columbia for the state meet and the following Saturday will compete in the city meet to be held at Southwest for the championship of the Interscholastic League.

GOLF TEAM

Northeast's outlook for the coming Interscholastic League Golf tournament is very bright. The players that will represent us this year are Captain Godfrey Stone, a two-year man; Paul Owens, Maurice States, also two-year men, and James Bolitho, who is playing his first season. Earl McCormick's the reserve golfer.

Last year the team took fourth place with virtually the same players.

The first round will be played Saturday, April 8, and the tournament will be continued for six following Saturdays.

TENNIS TEAM

Northeast was represented by a successful tennis team this year. Placing a player in the final round of the singles tournament of the city meet. The members of the team were Captain Edward Clinard, Paul Owens, Fred Rau, Charles Pettitt, and John Frank Robertson.

Paul Owens reached the final round of the tournament by defeating players from Manual, East, and Central. He was defeated by Frank Miller, state high school singles champion.

The members of the team won their positions by reaching the semi-final round of the school tournament, which was open to every boy in the school that was eligible for competition in the Interscholastic League.

The high school tournament was held at the Rockhill tennis club about the middle of October.

All the members of this year's team will be eligible for competition next season, except Edward Clinard, who graduated in the middle of the year.

This season, the Juniors came out victorious, leaving second place to the Seniors, and the third to Sophomores.

The Sophomores left us some very promising hopes for next year, by the way in which they played and their fine sportsmanship.

After the business transaction the rest of the meeting is spent in playing games of high organization.

DANCING

In review of the girls' physical education program for year, dancing plays an important part. It develops poise and grace both mentally and physically.

Much interest is displayed in the dance for the R. O. T. C. circus. Miss Stewart selects and prepares the appropriate dances.

Dancing is taught in the class periods during certain days of the week. In addition to a change in program it also furnishes a different sort of exercise from which much benefit is derived.

BASEBALL

Baseball, a spring sport, closes the girls' athletic season. This sport gets under way in the spring when particular interest is found in playing out-of-doors. All games are governed by indoor baseball rules.

Most of the girls seem to understand baseball more because of its popularity on the summer playground, therefore they find much keener interests in it. A baseball tournament closes the sports for the year.

TENNIS

Tennis is taught in all the physical education classes during the spring season.

The season is culminated by an elimination tournament. Points are given for the "Runner ups" in both the championship and consolation brackets.

R. O. T. C. CIRCUS

The R. O. T. C. Circus, which has been the annual event of this order for the last eleven years, proved to be the best of any that had been held before in this fashion. The sponsors of the different units gave special exhibits of the various formations and drills. Three schools also sent groups of girls who did special feature dances. Approximately 12,000 people attended these exhibitions.

The Northeast High School unit produced the exhibition of the famous Lentz Cadence Drill, which was performed excellently. The Northeast girls executed a Polish Peasant dance in costume, familiar to the natives of that country.

R. O. T. C. HOP

The annual R. O. T. C. Hop was held on the evening of Friday, the twenty-fourth of March. The presence of the cadets in dress uniform, and the girls in formal dress, combined with the military decorations of the gymnasium, provided a spectacular view. A spotlight operated by one student, spotted the dancing couples. The program of fourteen dances was furnished by Carl Peters and his band, who performed excellently. Approximately sixty-five couples glided over the floor, furnishing a remarkable sight for the onlookers.

Among the guests that were present were: Supt. and Mrs. Melcher, Mr. Chapin, Mr. and Mrs. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Poltere, Mr. and Mrs. Kerr and daughter, Genevieve, Mr. and Mrs. Swaim, Mr. and Mrs. Geiss, Mr. Kunz, Miss Baxter, and Miss Nunnolley.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The Nor'easter Staff of Northeast High School takes this opportunity to acknowledge the fine services offered by those who have had the interest of the Annual at heart. We are indeed grateful to the Fratcher Printing Company and the Teachenor-Bartberger Engraving Company for their valuable suggestions in regard to the publication of the Nor'easter. We wish to thank the Haines Studio for their fine work in the taking of individual, group and faculty pictures. We are deeply indebted to the stage crew for their co-operative work in the taking of the group pictures; the faculty and office staff for their beneficial advice; the Art and English departments for the fine material which they submitted, and the student body for their enthusiastic support of Annual sales. We wish to thank each of the advertisers for their loyal support. To all these and to any others who in any way contributed to the success of the 1933 Nor'easter we extend our thanks.

Only through the valuable assistance of those mentioned have we been able to place the 1933 Nor'easter in your hands.

Dear Editors:

Why is it that Ursula Harrigan has so many bids to the basket ball games from boys at Northeast and yet she prefers an outsider?—Inquirer.

Dear Inquirer:

The editors can't say, for sure, why Ursula prefers the outsider, but, perhaps, the outsider gets his bid in first. You know, some Northeast boys are terribly slow in asking for dates, and the early bird gets the worm.—Editors.

Charles Zander, Junior. The Viking 1933 Basketball team, whose captain was that well-known blond, Bob Tuxson, opened the season by playing a game with the alumni. Then came those welcome Xmas holidays.

JANUARY

Back to school from the holidays and we are greeted by the mid-year examinations. Thus far our cagers have been successful in their efforts to recapture the Interscholastic Crown which they lost last year to Paseo.

FEBRUARY

Sponsor officers were elected who were Sponsor Major, Magdalene Poltere; sponsor captains, Frances Ferguson and Lois Jennings; sponsor lieutenants, Ursula Harrigan and Ruby Craig. New Plan Dance was held Friday, February 10. Music was furnished by Wayne McFadden's orchestra. New Student Council members were elected and new officers installed who were Donald Kerr, President; Robert Harman, First Vice-President; Frances Ferguson, Second Vice-President; Eleanor Starke, Secretary, and Kenneth Simms, Reporter. A special test was given to the graduating seniors. The test was given in order to find the students' rating in the fundamentals of composition.

MARCH

The good old St. Patrick's day was recognized by many of the girls wearing green dresses and boys wearing green shirts. Those McCarty girls sang several selections in assembly. The Nor'easter staff presented their skit and started the sales of Nor'easters. The girls won the contest for the greatest number of sales.

APRIL

The Star's Oratorical Contest was held at Convention Hall the seventh. John Phillips of Southwest won first place. On the twentieth, the spring open house was held. The annual R. O. T. C. Circus was held in Convention Hall the twenty-first. It was a very interesting and colorful event. Northeast boys presented the Lentz Cadence drill, and the girls of the gym classes gave a Polish Peasant dance. Students from Baker University were guests of Northeast the eleventh. The Male quartet sang several selections, a number of readings were given by Miss Geraldine Johnson, all of which were very entertaining. The Music Contest held within the school was won by: Vincent Wright, Opal Coffman, Charles Zander, Gertrude Wilkerson, Pat Shamrell and Mildred Miranville.

MAY

The Northeast R. O. T. C. inspection occurred the fifth. The boys had their uniforms cleaned and pressed, and had their buttons polished to such a bright shine that they hurt one's eyes. Senior Play was presented the twelfth and thirteenth. The members of the cast of "The Hidden Guest" were all very well chosen and performed their parts well. The National Honor Society assembly was held the seventeenth. Robert Harman was elected President, assisted by Jean Frantz. The annual P. T. A. Picnic was held May 18. Because of the bright sunshine, there were several sunburns and suntans acquired. That great day that the Juniors bravely fought the Seniors was known as the Combat. The following day was Class Day. The Juniors—pardon me, what I meant to say was—the underclassmen were made fun of in a big way on that grand and glorious day. The last day of school for the seniors was the thirty-first. The Sophomores and other under-classmen were very sad and sorry to see the Seniors leave "Thou Dear Northeast," but here's to you that you may be doing the same next year as the upper classmen are doing this year.

JUNE

The Senior commencement was held two nights because of the large number of graduates. The commencement nights were the sixth and seventh. The New Plan III commencement was the eighth.

Dear Editor:

I would like to know why the waiters are so slow at Northeast. I waited all lunch period the other day and no one came to serve me.—Martha Gay (a Sophomore).

Dear Sophomore:

We must confess that Northeast is a very progressive school, we have adopted the cafeteria plan, and you must learn to wait on yourself, Martha.—Editor.

THINGS I NEVER KNEW 'TIL NOW THAT:

Beth Nobles drinks muddy water so we can't see through her.

Jack Lee looks like George Raft.

Velton doesn't blush when talking to boys.

Mary Sequist is wearing a diamond ring on a certain left finger!

Harold Kratky makes a date at seven o'clock and arrives at eight.

Mr. Gustafson: What's the formula for water?

Frank Morris: H I J K L M N O.

Mr. Gustafson: What's that? Who gave you that idea?

Frank: You. Yesterday you told us that it was H to O.

HOW I BECAME HANDSOME

Just published, although been under consideration for several years.

I am known as the most handsome man to the unlimited EGO. Free to those unsophisticated enough to take my advice. Those desiring copies, address RICHARD LEE, Kansas City, Mo.

Beth Nobles: I'm going to marry a dietitian, so I can be slim for nothing.

Mary Virginia Hallett: I'm going to marry a doctor, so I can be well for nothing.

Peggy DeHardt: Well, I'm going to marry a preacher, so I can be good for nothing.

Helen Smedley: I'm going to marry a banker so that I can be rich for nothing.

Louise Nordberg: I'm going to marry a movie director, so I can be an actress for nothing.

Jane Reynolds and Ruth Alice Perrigo appear in white sport oxfords, and the next day one-half the girls in school are wearing them! . . . One word description of Magdalene Poltere—lovable . . . Martha Swaim won a scholarship to Central College . . . Jimmy Blake manicures his finger nails . . . Joe Palermo has taken up aviation. . . Carl Altergott brings Ruth Hibbs to school every morning. . . Dorothy Nelms calls Bob Tuxon "Snootsy" and he calls her "Snitzzy". . . Vera Laughlin wears size one shoe. . . . Betty Hitchcock never starts dressing for a date until ten minutes before time for him to arrive.

Editor:

I would like to know whether or not it would be considered a breach of etiquette for me, a senior girl, to attend a basket ball game with a junior boy.—Senior in Doubt.

Dear Senior in Doubt:

By all means not a breach of etiquette! It seems to be quite a fad at the present. For further advice, consult Frances Ferguson.—Editor.
