The Nor'easter

HAMPERED because we had less money than almost any other Nor'easter Staff, the present editors have striven to produce the best Northeast High School yearbook of the twenty-one which have been published. And if the subscribers who judge it, feel that we have fallen short of our goal, we hope they at least find Northeast fairly represented in the fruit of our labors. Only through much work on the part of many who are not members of the staff—artists, engravers, and others,—has it been possible to publish an annual. To these people, we extend our thanks.

IN MEMORIAM

R. A. LONG
The R. A. Long Building
KANSAS CITY, MO.
February 6th, 1938

My dear Miss Engle:

During recent days I have been receiving an unusually large amount of mail. I find on my desk the Northeast Courier of January 28th with an article entitled "Kansas City's Prince of Civic Promoters", having to do with myself.

A very splendidly worded article, and, of course, speaking high in my praise, for which I thank you and am glad to extend congratulations for the talent you possess as expressed in this article.

I am also pleased to extend this word of congratulation for the reason that we all need encouragement - from the youngest to the oldest - from the highest to the lowest. We human beings love to know that our efforts are appreciated, and I assure you I appreciate your effort not only as contained in this poem, but the kindly words you have had to say pertaining to myself.

Thanking you most truly and with best wishes, I am,

Yours very sincerely,

R. A. Long

TO R. A. LONG

He is a man of vision and of might,
Who scorns the wrong and loves the right;
A man of courage and of force,
Helps others on their upward course,
With an outstretched hand and sunny smile.
To meet this man makes life worthwhile.
Generous to others with what God gave him.
To all mankind he is a friend.

To do things honorable he sought.
A civic leadership he wrought;
A grateful city sings his praise
For kindness and his helpful ways.
God bless him in his later years,
Protect him from cares and fears,
And when his final call does come,
May his Creator say, "Well done!"

MARGARET ENGLE

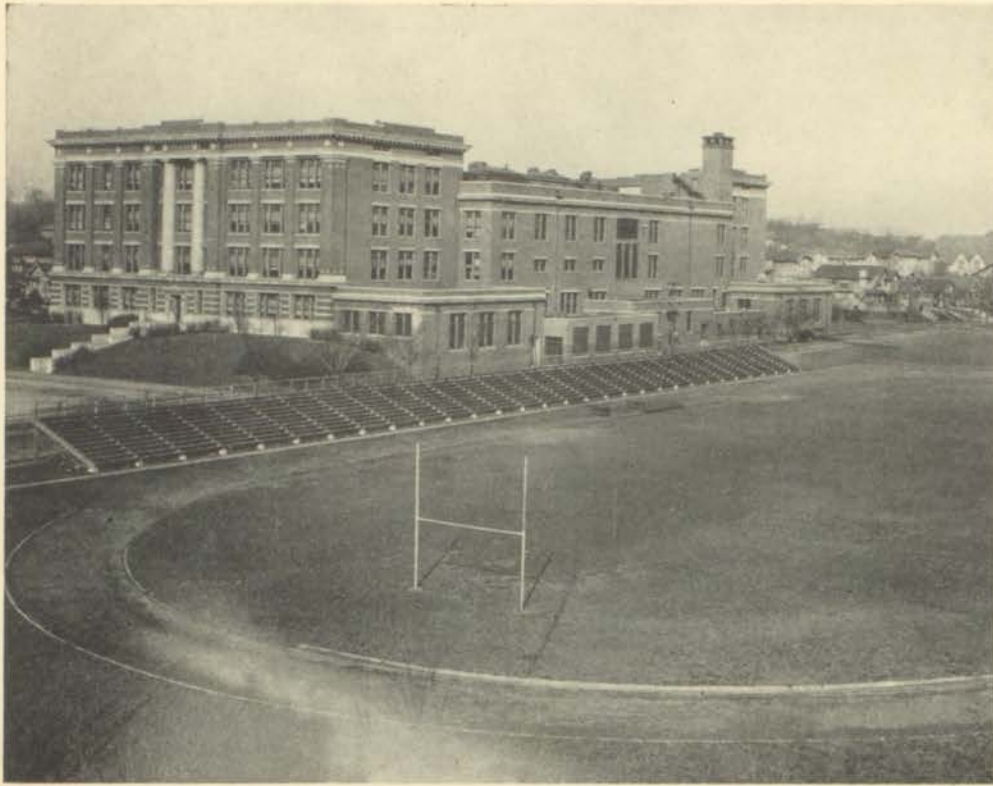

This poetic tribute to Kansas City's distinguished citizen and benefactor was written by Miss Margaret Engle in her sophomore year, when her class in English was requested by their teacher, E. D. Phillips, to write a poem on one of the many familiar topics that were suggested by the instructor.

The accompanying letter of appreciation was written by Mr. Long to Miss Engle.

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States and to the Republic for which it stands.
One nation indivisible with Liberty and Justice for all.

No profit grows where is no pleasure taken;—
In brief, sir, study what you most affect.

OLD AND NEW BOARD MEMBERS

NOR'EASTER'S RECOGNITION OF THE RETIRING AND THE NEW MEMBERS OF OUR SCHOOL BOARD

The following interviews were made by Mr. Dick Mindlin and Miss Dorothy Jane Moore of the Nor'easter Staff.

Starting in 1914, as President of the "P. T. A." of Horace Mann School, Mrs. Frank E. Dorsey has progressed in child welfare and educational work until now she is the third woman elected to the Board of Education.

MRS. FRANK E. DORSEY

Former President of the "K. C. Council of Parents and Teachers," and of the "Mary Harmon Weeks Scholarship Foundation," assures us of Mrs. Frank E. Dorsey's intense interest in child welfare.

"The P. T. A. has brought the home and the school together," says Mrs. Dorsey. "It has helped the parents to understand the school program, and has given the teachers an opportunity to become better acquainted with the child's home life. This cooperation is bound to yield better results."

"I believe that even during these times of depression, Kansas City will not let the schools go backward. The greatest burden has fallen on the teachers with a twenty-five per cent reduction in salary, but they have continued to give Kansas City children the best of education.

"Although this depression has been a hardship to the young men and women graduating from high school, it has greatly benefited them. Students now realize the necessity of an education to succeed in life; therefore, more students are continuing their education after graduation from high school."

Because of Mrs. Dorsey's wonderful and helpful work in the "P. T. A.," students have an understanding and appreciative new friend on the School Board.

"The child is the pivot of our educational system," declared Mrs. Caroline F. Fuller, who retired from the Board of Education this year. Mrs. Fuller, the first woman elected to the Board, served two consecutive terms.

"All students should be informed of civic and social problems in order to make themselves better citizens," says Mrs. Fuller. "I believe that education should be so designed to better fit the younger people for their later life, and that persons in authority should discuss all problems which concern the public good."

Previous to becoming a member of the Board, Mrs. Fuller was for eight years at the head of the Music Department at old Central High School.

"The school system is a corporation with the Board of Education as the Directing Board," Mrs. Fuller said. "There are six members of this Board who define the policies, ideas, and activities of the school system."

During her terms as a member of the Board, Mrs. Fuller served as Chairman of the Library and Vocational Committees, was a member of the Finance and Textbook Committees, and served in many other positions.

"Students should have the opportunity to discuss, with a high-minded individual, personal problems which confront them. A person who has a well-rounded education is the one who will succeed in life. The opportunity to enhance their education is being appreciated by the large majority of the young people attending the public schools today," concluded Mrs. Fuller.

Mr. Wallace Sutherland is a lawyer, but also a father, and therefore has a rich experience for his work on the Board. Incidentally, his father and grandfather were both school teachers, and he has taught for a few years. We feel sure that such a background will enable him to do much good for our schools. The following are some of the ideals that he has conceived for the benefit of our schools.

MR. WALLACE SUTHERLAND

"In the beginning of my term as a member of the Kansas City, Mo., Board of Education, it is my most sincere desire to contribute my share in maintaining the high standing of the Kansas City schools; and, if possible, to improve the same. The efforts of the School Board in this regard would be unavailing unless it were for the high standing and unselfishness of the teachers. Also the sincerity and faithful work of the students themselves will contribute largely to the improvement of our school system.

"Limiting this discussion to the question of the high schools particularly, the following may be properly included in the objectives of a high school course:

1. The learning of those basic subjects which long experience has sanctioned as proper post-elementary subjects.
2. The development of the mental processes of the student so that it may be truly said of him that 'he has learned to study.'
3. The learning of those subjects which will fit the student for a vocation, particularly where it is desirable from the standpoint of the student.
4. The learning of those subjects which will fit the student for advanced education.
5. In all cases, to assist the student in developing himself mentally, so that he will continue to learn and investigate, and to find pleasure in such learning and investigation.
6. The development of character.

"If any high school succeeds in a large measure in these objectives," remarked Mr. Sutherland, "its influence will be great in the community. The citizens of Kansas City may well be proud of its school system."

Mr. James LeRoy Smith, the retiring member of the Board of Education, is not expecting any metamorphosis just because he is now on the outside looking in, because during his entire term he never lost the viewpoint of the outsider. He is a lawyer by profession, and is quite interested in the system of education used today as compared with that of yesterday. He feels that in spite of the many improvements which have been made, education is yet in the making. He is a graduate of old Central High School,—class of 1890.

"We have not yet reached the place in our plans of education where hands can be folded, and be complacently cast into the clouds," says Mr. Smith. "We are educating some too much and others not enough; an overdose is sometimes as bad as an underdose. Some children can assimilate only so much education to their material advantage; while others, planning more of an intellectual life, and being able to assimilate, need more education to work out their own salvation in life."

Mr. Smith thinks that all education must in time be so given as to make each individual fit readily into his own scheme, or into some scheme of life without having

The faculty for the year 1933-34 consists of 32 men and 32 women, all of whom are graduates of various universities and special colleges throughout the United States.

Mr. Samuel T. Clashman is the exchange teacher from McKinley High School, Honolulu, Hawaii. Miss Mary L. Latshaw of East High School is taking his place. He has proved himself a worthy representative.

This exchange was made in the interests of the advancement of the teachers, the furthering of world brotherhood, and for the improvement of the individual school systems through contributions made by the separate school departments.

At no period in the school life of a boy or girl is there a greater need of cooperation between the home and the school than that of the high school period. It is the purpose of the Parent-Teacher Association to meet this need through its varied programs and study groups. Many of the difficulties arising between parent and child, and teacher and pupil, might be solved through a better understanding within these groups. It is the aim of this association to bring into closer relation the home to the school.

It is the purpose and aim of the Student Council to create and develop a zeal for scholarship in our school, to co-operate with the faculty in making the high school the best possible place for cultural development, and to foster a spirit of loyalty and co-operation throughout the school.

Miss Packard, the sponsor of the council, has been working with this group ever since its origin. For twelve years she has untiringly given her time and effort toward the betterment of the organization.

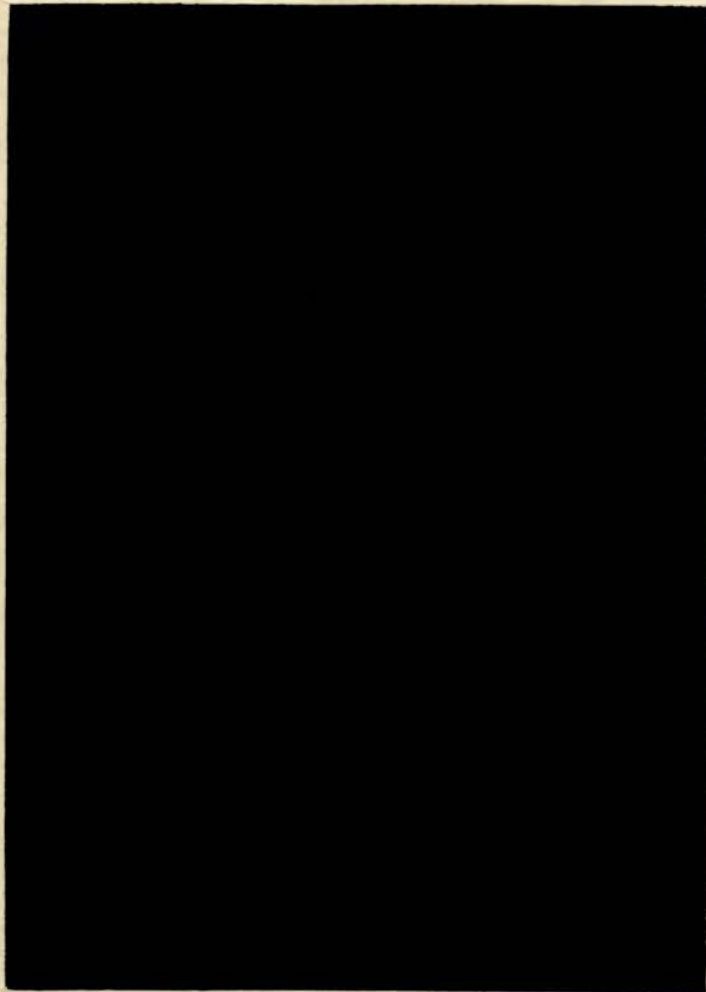

It has been and always will be the policy of the Student Council to help any organization of Northeast High School in any project that will benefit the school.

We, the graduating class of 1934, wish to extend our gratitude to those who have prompted and encouraged us for the past three years. Those have been wonderful years and will long be remembered.

We have striven to uphold the morals, traditions, and spirit of our school, and we have sincerely tried to make the best of the opportunity offered us to show others what we can do.

We wish to pass on the torch to the Seniors of tomorrow with the hearty wish that they will strive, even as we have striven to uphold the spirit of our dear old Alma Mater. We leave this parting word of advice—Make the best of your opportunities to make Northeast proud of you.

NORTHEAST ALUMNI

An unusual meeting of the Northeast High School Alumni was held Friday, November 3, 1933, in the auditorium. Mr. Lester Warren, an alumnus of '16, who is supervisor of physical education in the Kansas City Schools, was chairman. The program of the evening was presented almost exclusively by former graduates. At several intervals during the program, telegrams from alumni were received by the master of ceremonies, who in turn read them to the audience. The telegrams came from all parts of the United States and from other countries.

There was an attendance of about 1600. The concluding number of the program consisted of singing the school song by the entire audience. A dance followed the program in the gymnasium. Music for the dance was furnished by the orchestra of Mr. Edward A. Wolberg, '21. Refreshments were served during intermission.

The National Constitution provides that selections shall be from the upper quartile of the Senior Class. The Committee has interpreted this provision to include the New Plan II group. The number selected each year approximates 10% of these groups.

THE GIRL RESERVES

The Girl Reserves is a friendly Christian Organization to which every girl is eligible. Its members strive to be true to the purpose of the club, which is—"To find and give the best." Its symbol is a blue triangle, the sides of which represent health, knowledge and spirit. Their activities are those which best help in the carrying out of their ideals.

HI-Y CLUB

The Northeast chapter of the Hi-Y Club was organized in 1920, by Harry Harlan. This is the only organization in the school which holds its regular meetings outside of the school building. Each member endeavors to uphold the splendid purpose of creating, maintaining, and extending throughout the school and community high standards of Christian character.

New Plan 3

NEW PLAN III CLASS

Robert Harman, President; Charles Bohrer, Vice-President.
 Kenneth Simms, Giftorian; Jean Frantz, Secretary; Marie
 White, Treasurer.
 Eleanor Starcke, Sergeant-at-Arms; Lois Jennings, Reporter; Mr. Harman, Adviser.

The end of this school year brings the members of this class to the close of their student days at Northeast. They constitute the second class to graduate from the New Plan—the second class to complete courses designed to eliminate unnecessary repetition in the last two years of high school and the first two years of college, thus completing four years of work in three.

Instruction and lectures have been offered in four courses: Liberal Arts, Engineering, Pre-Medics, and Secretarial Training. The credit received from these courses is equal to that attained in any junior college or business college. Though this is the first year for "full-fledged" secretaries to graduate, we feel sure that they will do their best to make as good records as those who graduated from the other courses last year and those who graduate this year.

The social life of the belles and lions has been very gay. The New Plan Dance, held March 9, was a great success—a fine floor show, new type of refreshments, a good orchestra, and a fair crowd made it that way. The Senior-New Plan III Plays were well-given and thoroughly enjoyed by both audiences. We hope that both of these functions will become traditions of the school. The Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. meetings, both gay and serious, were for all junior college students and aided in making the social life of the class more merry. The finishing touch was given by the students' willing participation in the activities of the Northeast High School.

We pass on into other institutions, leaving our best wishes with the future New Plan graduating classes.

THE SECRETARIAL COURSE

The latest addition to the New Plan is the Secretarial Course. The first group of students to finish this course is graduating this spring. In the two years' secretarial course many machines are introduced. During the second year of the New Plan the machines pictured above are learned. They are the Woodstock Typewriters, and the Dictaphone Transcribing Machines. Typing is taught by the Dictaphone Method. To supplement the typing course, the Standard Rotary Duplicator, the Mimeograph, and the Mimeoscope are learned.

In the second semester of the last year in the New Plan, the office machinery course offers training in the mechanics and application of the Burroughs Calculating Machine, the Monroe Adding Calculator, the Sundstrand, the Burroughs Bookkeeping Machine, the Ediphone, and Dictaphone Transcribing Machines. All these machines are used extensively throughout the city. Thus the training offered is of material value in obtaining a position after graduation.

During the year, the students in the course have acted as secretaries to the teachers and aided in the office. This experience is counted as actual office experience in filling out an application for a job.

NEW PLAN

The New Plan is a three-year course beginning in the Junior year of high school. The plan has three divisions: the Engineering, the Liberal Arts, and the Secretarial. A fourth division, as yet not wholly separated from the Liberal Arts, is the Pre-Medics course.

The Engineering Course offers in the second year of the plan, algebra, trigonometry, and analytic geometry, general chemistry and qualitative analysis, physics, foreign languages, engineering and machine drawing, and descriptive geometry, as well as English. The last year of the plan rounds out the course with calculus and surveying, logic, engineering physics, quantitative and organic chemistry, materials, analytic mechanics, English, social studies, and foreign languages.

The Liberal Arts Course offers English, mathematics, chemistry, physics, biology, anatomy, social studies, foreign languages, logic, and psychology in the last two years of the plan.

The Secretarial Course, which is just completing its second year of existence, may be entered in the second year of the plan. It provides training in shorthand, typewriting, accounting, commercial law, introduction to business, and English in the first year of the course. The second and last year in the course provides more shorthand and typewriting, salesmanship, office practice and machinery, and social studies.

Graduation under this plan requires the satisfactory completion of the first two years of college. Upon the completion of this plan, the engineering students and the liberal arts students may enter as juniors any college of arts and science or school of engineering; and the graduates of the secretarial course are eligible to begin work with a foundation of high school training and two years of business education. The first graduates of the course are ready to start their business careers this summer.

Only twenty-four of the seventy-eight graduates of last year were able to continue college work this year; however, some of the others are working to earn enough to finish their college education in future years. Of the twenty-four in college, reports from the colleges they are attending indicate that fourteen of them made a better average the first semester of this year than the average made in their junior college work with us. They are enrolled in these institutions:

University of Kansas	Warrensburg State Teachers College
University of Missouri	Lindenwood College
Baker University	Central College
Park College	Pittsburg (Kansas) Teachers College
William Jewell	Kansas City Teachers College

NEW PLAN III Y. M. C. A.

This club, organized just this year, was begun by a group of boys in the third year of the New Plan course, who were members of the Hi-Y during high school days; but it has grown to include nearly all the boys in the class. Having found the influence of that organization, the Hi-Y, helpful, they desired that such a fellowship should continue in their last year at Northeast. This club has succeeded in doing this. The adviser is Harry Harlan.

NEW PLAN I CLASS

Paul Masoner, President; William De Jarnette, Vice-President.

Eleanor Charleton, Giftorian; Max Hibbs, Secretary; Ella Louise Miller, Treasurer.

Elinor Shoemaker, Reporter; Anna Margaret Railey, Sergeant-at-Arms; Miss Spencer, Adviser.

Oh, come, listen to my tale of woe—I indeed need sympathy! Do you know what it means to be a youngest child? Perhaps you have been one, if so you will understand my sufferings. I have three older sisters, the New Plan One classes of 1931, 1932, 1933. I am sure they love me, but they treat me as something very undesirable. They believe that I should be as wonderfully energetic and intelligent as they, while at the same time they are continually frightening me by telling me how supremely difficult a certain subject will be and what a “stiff grader” such and such a teacher is. They began intimidating me when I was a Sophomore. Many of the Sophomores were intimidated not to enlist with me in the first year of the New Plan course, and some of the few who did venture with me have been told of the horrors of the coming year and are seriously considering leaving me after this year, and sometimes I can hardly blame them.

NEW PLAN I CLASS

It has become so bad that if I make some unavoidable mistake, my older sisters are horrified and cry out in their disgustingly hurt way—"Why child, to think that you would do a thing like that to us—pray think of our good name!"

My oldest sister was more fortunate than I. She was a "pioneer." She was to undertake the great experiment which would, in time, revolutionize high school education. She was fondled and coddled because she was the "first born." No one was shocked when she had the run of the school for she was everybody's favorite and was coddled by all. She was small and pale and no one was sure whether or not she would live. And—most important of all she had no good name to blacken. Oh how lucky, how fortunate was she.

I am told a dozen times a day, "Why, New Plan One, why is it you can't learn to arrange your work, why I remember when your sister was in my class. She was a perfect wonder, always so well prepared. Why can't you be like your sister!"

Ah! you have no idea what I am forced to endure merely because my three sisters were "perfect," just because they were the chosen ones and I am merely the 1934 New Plan One class. But you wait and see, I shall outdo them for all their majesty and glory. I shall make my way out in the world. I shall command respect even from my eldest sister, because you know and I know and all the world knows that the youngest child is the real prodigy in every family.

JUNIOR CLASS OFFICERS

Kenneth Hawthorne, President; Eugene Bredehoeft, Vice-President.

Anna Maxine Chanal, Gift Receiver; Marjorie Bybee, Secretary; Betty Thompson, Treasurer.

Harold Bochmer, Sergeant-at-Arms; Jack Kilroy, Reporter; Miss Weaver, Adviser.

JUNIOR CLASS

We, the Juniors of '34, need not bow our heads or lower our eyes to anyone, but instead should feel proud to stand, chin up, facing the world, for we have succeeded in establishing a splendid record. The sophomores of so short a time ago, entering Senior High, wide-eyed and wondering; the Seniors of a year not far distant, experienced in the ways and high standards of Northeast, we shall be guiding the school to more victories in scholarship and athletics.

Northeast need have no fear, for the Junior Class of '34 which has shown itself thoroughly capable in all fields of school activities, will carry on with glory and self-confidence.

JUNIOR CLASS

GROUP A

Responsibility comes to every one sometime in his life, when he must occupy the place left by others. We, the Junior Class of 1934, are prepared to accept our responsibility and feel worthy of the task given us. Northeast has sincere faith in our future. We have proven ourselves loyally helpful in aiding the Seniors of 1935. We have been more creditably represented in athletics than the Junior Class has been for many years past. Likewise the academic departments have received our fullest cooperation, in both leadership and loyalty.

Having profited by the example set by the courage and fearlessness of the Seniors of 1934, the Juniors will "carry on" and guide the school toward fame, unsurpassed in former times. We shall take the helm of our Viking ship and endeavor to steer it safely to the port of success in 1935.

GROUP B

SOPHOMORE CLASS

GROUP A

The latest group to seek romance in the alcove, and fulfillment of dreams in the old halls of Northeast, is the class of '36. In this class, which is seeking romance in daily life, some see elves and fairies in the dark corners, and they may contribute to the future happiness of the world by constructing new tales for old fairy tales.

The Sophomore class of this year has shown enthusiasm and dependability, and we welcome them as the future (possible) leaders of our school.

"Dulcy," a three act hilarious comedy by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly was presented as our Christmas play the nights of December 15 and 16, 1933.

It was a clever play and ably cast.

The plot was about a wife who wouldn't let her husband handle his own business affairs. She arranged a week-end party and invited a house full of "freaks" for guests.

Barbara Ketchum as Dulcy carried off the acting honors with Marvin Bingham and Harry Thompson running a close second.

The success of this play depended wholly on Miss Hobbs' patience and understanding.

SENIOR NEW PLAN III PLAYS

The Senior and New Plan III classes combined in giving several interesting short plays, May 11 and 12. The dancing and music departments assisted both nights. The plays were: "The Romancers," "Tony, a Sick Boy," "And the Villain Still Pursued Her," "All on a Summer's Day," "Happiness," and a scene from "Mid-Summer Night's Dream."

MERCIFUL ATROPOS

LAWRENCE SAUNDERS, Benton Literary Society

A morgue,
 Dead bodies,
 No names, no friends;
 Just dead bodies
 On a cold slab.
 One here is slimy.
 He was tired of life;
 He chose the river.
 Another, mangled horribly.
 A street car, a shriek;
 Grinding wheels spelled his Nemesis.
 A woman calm in death.
 Deserted and alone she cringed,
 Taking her own life with gas
 Rather than face this irony
 Which we call life.
 Another, an old man,
 Just another body now.
 Frozen he was
 On a down-town street,
 With food and warmth nearby.
 Dead bodies, despair, misery;
 Dead bodies, dismay, poverty;
 Dead bodies,—
 Why must I look?
 Perhaps you or I—
 No! No! It cannot be! Oh, God!
 We cherish life!—
 We'll join the ranks
 On some near day
 Of just—
 Dead bodies.

THE AMERICAN IDEALIST

"I have fought a good fight—I have kept the faith." These words fittingly describe the American Idealist, Woodrow Wilson. In a world of bitterness and greed, strangling amid war and revolution, his ideals have sprung forth and grown strong in the hearts of humanity. Men may forget that he was a great executive. Men may never know that he was a great writer or a great educator. Men are forgetting what he stood for. Though in the darkness of time his name vanish, never shall that for which he stood depart from civilization. Rather it is inseparably a part of civilization. It is the mercy and love of one man for his fellow; it is the spirit of humanity.

Woodrow Wilson's whole life was a preparation for the finest expression of this spirit. The strict Presbyterian atmosphere of his childhood home developed his character of firmness, decision, and integrity, and filled him with a warmth of love. He was a student of law and a planner of a governmental system to benefit humanity.

Perhaps he was a dreamer imagining a theoretical state beyond attainment. Perhaps he was overestimating his fellowmen. Nevertheless, when he first gained an opportunity to practice the theory he had expounded in the classroom, he went at the task briskly. He became, after a period in the president's chair at Princeton, an independent, progressive governor of machine-bound New Jersey. He loosed the strangling grasp of trusts and wealth; he fought privilege; and he broke the state machine. He brought to the people of New Jersey a clean, intellectual administration, free of political chicanery.

Then Wilson came to the White House—with a complete knowledge of government, with a clarity of purpose, and with an eloquence in expressing that knowledge and purpose. In addition to these qualities, Wilson possessed a background of progressiveness. Reactionists had felt his strength. Tammany Hall had met him in open conflict and had slunk away from the Baltimore Convention defeated. His policy was to serve the people, and to place patriotism above party.

His faith was a "golden rule democracy." Though bitterly criticized by moneyed interests and called a coward, he sought no aggressive war with Mexico. He sought no war in Europe. Rather he feared war. He could see the crumbling ruins, the bloody battle-fields, the weeping of orphaned children, and the dry-eyed sorrow of mothers.

But entry into the struggle seemed inevitable. His efforts for peace ultimately failed. It was not, however, the President's purpose to enter the conflict to gain territory, or to oppress the conquered. Under his flaming sword, the victory must be a "peace without victory." He became a warring crusader with an ideal plan to end all war.

That was idealism—a world where disagreements might be settled without recourse to bloodshed; where children might never have their lives blasted and young men their bodies maimed; where the spirit of love and peace might reign where, after centuries of wartime destruction, at last might be realized a Christian world in fact.

But the idealist counted not upon the nationalist and the politician. In a post-war world, where yet burned vigorously the fires of hate, idealism such as this slipped at the point of practicality. The pervading spirits of nationalism and political advantage fought point after point of the illustrious Fourteen. Idealistic plans met defeat. So, in the smoke of selfishness and the fog of near-sighted statesmanship, was dimmed into a shadow the lofty conception of Woodrow Wilson. Battered by bitter partisanship—as had been his ideals—his administration gave up the field where so gloriously it had waged humanity's battle.

Like the great Teacher of Palestine, Wilson had spread his message of love and peace over the nation. Militaristic nationalism stilled him and doomed his hopes. But he is not defeated. He is not even dead. Pacifism such as his cannot be cast away. Humanitarianism such as his cannot be pushed aside. Idealism such as his cannot die!

Woodrow Wilson, the keeper of the faith with mankind—Woodrow Wilson, the Idealist, lives on!

SHORT STORY

TOMBOY

ROLENA HAYS, Delphian Literary Society

"Oh Janet, come on out and skate with me!"

Janet yelled back enthusiastically, "Okay, Allen." Dropping a book her mother had asked her to read, she caught up her skates and was down stairs in a twinkling. "Be back in a little bit, Mom," she said, as she paused to fasten her skates.

Mrs. Jenkins sighed as her eyes followed her boisterous daughter gliding gracefully away after Allen. "It would seem that she would be giving up her boyish ways now that she is in Junior High," she mused. "Well, I shan't bother her," she said resolutely, "She will grow out of it soon enough." She turned to her work with a far away look in her eyes as if she recalled some far distant day of her own.

That evening after dinner, Lucy came over to see Janet. Lucy was Janet's next door neighbor, and after Allen, was her best friend. Lucy was lovely and sweet and dimply, but Janet wished she liked to play baseball and other boyish games. Lucy had long, lustrous golden curls, but Janet liked her own black bob better. Lucy was always immaculate in starched and frilled dresses, which Janet thought were a nuisance and uncomfortable. But for all that, they had known each other since they were tiny tots, and had always been in the same grade at school.

That night when Janet was in bed, she thought of the day's events, and turned them over in her mind. She thought of the sweltering heat of the school room, of the anxiety, nervousness and impatience of the students. All day had been spent in examinations. Every student had been given the same examinations, and the outcome of these examinations was to be of the utmost interest to every student in Junior High! For the one with the highest average of points was to receive a gold medal! Janet could see it lying on its plush cushion in the show case in the main hall. She knew every spot where the medal gleamed, and every word of inscription on it. She had worked so hard for that medal! The name of the winner would be announced in a special program the following evening. Oh, the glory of wearing that medal! All the parents would be there, and Mr. West, the principal, would give a speech. Afterwards, all the students would flock around her and say, "She's my very special friend you know," and beg to see her medal.

But suddenly a doubt crept into her mind as she thought of Allen, who had always been her playmate, and often her superior in school work. She had gone to bed evenings too tired to sleep, surely too tired to study after her strenuous play. But Allen had stayed up late at his studies for she had seen his light from her window. As she thought of Allen she remembered with a triumphant smile the many happy times they had had together. He had always liked to play with her best. She could nearly outrun him, and she could hit a baseball almost as far as he could.

So she dropped off to sleep, to dream of enormous gold medals riding horses of black plush, and being chased by Allen and herself.

All the next day Janet floated through the air. Her thoughts kept wandering to the plush cushion in the show case and a curly haired boy with a breath taking smile. She was radiantly happy. She felt as if she wanted to shout for the joy of living. It seemed as if she had reached the climax of her whole life.

She went to her room that evening and unlocked her trunk. In it she had kept all her treasured possessions of childhood. It was her very secret place. She took her ledger of notes that she had kept so carefully through the year to study for the scholastic contest, and read them over again. They had done their duty, and as she locked them back in the trunk, she wondered if they would succeed.

The time finally arrived when Janet found herself being carried away in the family car. She felt queer and stiff in her pink organdie dress and new shoes. What would this evening bring? Would it be joy and happiness, or sorrow and disillusionment? A few more hours would tell.

The band had not yet started when Janet took her seat with the rest of her class. Lucy, radiant in a beautiful new blue dress, was talking to the girl seated next to her, and everywhere Janet could feel the excitement of the occasion.

"I'll bet Janet gets the medal," she overheard, and "Oh no, Allen is sure to get it," the quick reply.

Janet was too excited to talk; could scarcely reply when spoken to. Suddenly a hush came over the audience; the band started playing and the program began. Janet sat as if she were turned to stone during the speeches. Her mouth was dry, and she twisted her handkerchief into ribbons. She was grateful for an occasional breeze which came through the window. She had to win! She had counted on it so much!

Then a voice came from the stage. "Ladies and gentlemen: I am greatly honored this evening to announce the winner of the scholastic contest. This has been the first time in our school history that the race has been so close that our judges have had difficulty in announcing a decision. Between Allen Dornay and Janet Jenkins the judges have decided the prize shall go to Allen Dornay. Will Mr. Dornay please come to the stage?"

Janet's heart sank. She hadn't won! She fought back the tears as she saw Allen go to the stage for his medal. Everyone clapped and cheered and Allen was beaming. But Janet was heart-broken. The whole bottom had fallen out of her universe. Well, she could take it! She would show Allen that she was no sissy. She wouldn't cry in public.

"I'm awfully glad you won," she said. "Your medal is beautiful," and she gently stroked its shining surface.

"You really deserved it, Janet," he said, apologetically.

"Oh, no, I didn't. You worked lots harder than I." And she smiled bravely. "I—I guess I had better go, I see mother looking for me."

She managed to escape the rest of her chums with a cheery, "Be back pretty soon." She ran out the rear door and started around the school house. Then—could it be? Yes! It was Allen and Lucy! They were slowly walking down the sidewalk, oblivious to everything but themselves. Then Janet smothered a scream. Lucy was proudly wearing upon her shoulder, the scholastic Medal! Janet turned white as a sheet and started running. She didn't wait for her parents. She was sobbing wildly when she reached her home. She threw herself on her bed and cried until she could cry no more. She managed to get herself undressed, and then she stopped short. She got up, took her skates, baseball and bat, nervously placed them in her trunk, and put the key on the highest shelf in her closet.

Her tomboy days were over.

COMIC STRIP ADDICTS

ANNA MAXINE CHANAL, Clionian Literary Society

Situated in a substantial home, wielding no great authority in the community, yet protected, respected—they are a family of addicts—addicts to that habit more gripping, more easily contracted than any other, the addiction to the comic strip. They are a family of six of whom only one member has an undisputed right to be so very fervently attached to the “funnies,” this being Joe (fondly called Joedie by his family) Joedie the seven year old, the baby of the group. Figuratively, it is a family of seven year olds: They are, “Pop,” the fond provider, the big business man; “Mom,” the comfortably modern mother; Irene, the elder daughter, commanding so long as her weekly salary lasts, not above wheedling when it is gone; “Sis,” whose occupation is getting through high school, and who though undoubtedly possessing a name answers to none but “Sis”; and Uncle Ernie, sporty, breezy Uncle Ernie, the politician—at present without a job, not because he couldn't have one you understand, but because he's particular, he has scruples he'd have you know.

Each feeling guilty and sheepish over his passion for “that utter nonsense,” as he verbally libels the comics, tries in his own way to prevent the others in the household from learning of his weakness. It is in just such a state of eager watchfulness that the whole group may now be perceived.

The evening meal is finished; all are enjoying the lazy bliss that follows the consumption of appetizing foods. Conversation is carried on spasmodically for a time. Suddenly, during an interval of silence Joedie abruptly states he's “gotta see what Herby's doin'” and jumping impatiently from his chair he dashes into the living room. Having made a successful “dive” under the armchair, he is stretched on his stomach following Herby in a game of “Follow-the-Leader” when “Sis” bounds into the room. For a moment she stands contemplating the utter contentment of Joedie, then, shrugging indifferently she ruthlessly forces him to listen to her. He'll have to give her the paper right now as she's going to the show and she has to see where the best picture is—then he can have it back at once. The startled Joedie looking up beseechingly pleads that he'll be through in a short while, can't “Sis” please wait? With indignation and impatience blazing from her eyes “Sis” scathingly retorts she wants the paper immediately. Feeling certain there are no further arguments suitable to present a Senior in high school (Joedie's at the age where high school students seem the most learned persons in the world), he reluctantly hands over the newspaper.

Elaborately turning to the theater column “Sis” begins a slow scrutinizing of the neighborhood houses, retreating to the far end of the room as she does so. After awhile she begins turning the pages; the anxiously waiting Joe hears her murmur something about reading the rest of the paper while she has a chance, and sighing he subsides for a prolonged wait. Hidden behind the paper “Sis's” whole countenance becomes animated; she's found Winnie Winkle. Her dreams of doing the exciting things Winnie does are interrupted by Joedie's announcement she'll be late for the show if she doesn't go on. With a haughty laugh “Sis” tosses aside the paper and flounces from the room.

For the second time Joedie loses himself in the land of make-believe, this time sympathizing with Skeeex in his attempts to escape a bath. From a distance he hears his name being called and focusing his attention once more upon his surroundings he finds Irene gazing at him. With a casual "hello" (he is still wounded from the abuse suffered in the hands of "Sis") he tries to turn once more to Skeezix, but this is not to be. Again he listens to the smooth, unquestionable logic of a grown-up! Irene simply must have the paper, she has to get some work out for her boss but she wants to read the story first as it ends tonight. Poor Joedie! Again he hesitates. Why should he always have to give up the paper? Just because the crafty Irene has convinced "Pop" that he, Joedie, is too young to glean anything worthwhile from the news he must wait till "Sis" and Irene are through reading before he can see the "funnies." Seeing his indecision Irene sharply asks if it's necessary to call "Pop"—Irene walks triumphantly off with the article in dispute tucked neatly under her arm.

Desiring solitude she drapes herself comfortably on the hall lounge. With an indifferent look for the front page and a scorned glance for the editorial page Irene hurries on to Tillie the Toiler. M-m-m! How she'd like to have a boss who wouldn't get too mad if she were late and to have all the clothes she wants and handsome escorts, any number of them. Footsteps! Someone is coming down the hall—Irene becomes engrossed in the story. It's "Mom"! After all if Irene has work to do, doesn't she think she'd better do it, and she'd better give "Mom" the paper so she can see what's on sale tomorrow?

Sinking into her favorite chair "Mom" turns to The Bungles, her favorites. They seem so real with their troubles and quarrels with their neighbors. Yes indeed "Mom" can sympathize with The Bungles. But what is it Joedie wants? Can't that child stay quiet even a few minutes? May he have the paper? Why he's had it practically all evening, he mustn't be selfish, let someone else see it a few minutes. "Pop" joins the two. He thinks one should be unselfish too, so let him look at the paper. After all he works hard all day and he would like to scan the paper so he can remain abreast with the times, and besides, it's his duty as a citizen to be informed of the momentous happenings and accomplishments of the nation. The latter argument convinces "Mom" for she's of the patriotic type. Thus we find "Pop" the possessor of the now slightly tattered paper.

Scanning the headlines he diligently works his way on to the back of the paper. Ah, Moon Mullins! "Pop" always did like that fellow; Moon's such a likeable person he enjoys reading him. Yes, Joedie can have the paper if he'll wait awhile. The disheartened Joe begins another interminable wait. "Pop's" taking off his glasses! That means he's through and now—now Joedie can read his beloved Tarzan. Reaching joyfully for the crumbled mass he is arrested by Uncle Ernie's breezing into the room. Where's the paper? He's been looking all over for it; he must see the election returns. Catching his breath with a half-sob, Joedie flees from the room.

Uncle Ernie's easy flowing laugh gushes spontaneously from his impetuous mouth. That Popeye is certainly one tremendous person. He is a reminder of the men of "the good old days." In this fashion are Uncle Ernie's thoughts turned to his youth and with delight he recalls again the daring and the valor of men who were men. What?—Yes, Joedie may have the paper now.

Clutching it in an almost desperate fashion, Joedie rushes into the only remaining refuge, his room.

That night "Mom" tells "Pop" how she found the wide-eyed Joedie in his room completely oblivious to all else reading Tarzan. "Pop" snorts at this and before dropping to sleep declares he can't understand what the boy sees in "that utter nonsense."

BOOK PLATES

Nineteen years ago Mr. E. D. Phillips conceived the idea of having his Senior English literature pupils test their skill in designing bookplates as literary crests for book-lovers.

So permanent and popular became this custom, that Mr. Phillips invited the pupils in the design classes of the Art Department to co-operate with the literature classes in contributing to the beauty of this section of our Annual.

The constant motives of this undertaking are to cultivate the pupil's artistic talent for beauty's sake, and to develop his original creative ability in commercial art.

It is doubtless pleasing to the student body and faculty to learn that we now have a special bookplate for our school, which is being used to identify the books belonging to the Northeast High School.

Northeast's Book-Plate

The full-page print of 24 bookplates is a copy of the large framed wall poster, which by request of the National English Teachers' Convention, was exhibited at the meeting of that Convention in Kansas City, November, 1929. This print contains samples of bookplates designed by our pupils for the first fifteen years of our school.

Too much credit cannot be paid Miss Mabel A. Newitt, the instructor in the department of Art and design, for the generous and invaluable aid that she gives these young artists in the production of their bookplates.

AN ARTISTIC FEATURE OF BOOKS THE BOOKPLATE

Designed by Senior English Literature Students of Northeast High School, E. D. Phillips - Head of Engl. Dept. Instructor

For fifteen years, the designing of bookplates by the Senior English Literature classes of the Northeast High School of Kansas City, Mo. has been a distinctive feature under the directions of E. D. Phillips.

Del. Phillips's reasons for this innovation are - to correlate art with literature, and to develop the pupil's talent in design, not simply to cultivate a love for the beautiful, but to enable him to use this creative talent industrially in the making of posters, illustrations for books, and various kinds of gift cards as well as bookplates.

The German Club was organized this year by a group of about twenty-five students who felt a desire and need of a place to acquaint themselves further with the songs, manners, customs, cities and countries of the Germans and Germany.

Friends from outside of school have talked on trips they had taken in Germany or on the time which they had spent in Germany as children. Various members have contributed their share to make the programs worth while.

NORTHEAST LATIN CLUB

The Northeast Latin Club was organized in 1927 by a group of students interested in the language, literature, and civilization of the ancient Romans. The club has had two advisers; Miss Murdock, who inspired its organization and served for several years, and Miss Miller, who took her place in 1930.

The motto of the club is "Per ampliora ad altiora"—"Through wider experiences to higher planes." The color is royal purple, and the floral emblem is the laurel wreath.

LA SOCIEDAD CASTELLANA

La Sociedad Castellana fue el primer club en la escuela Nordeste, habiendose organizado en septiembre del año 1914. La senora Bell es la consejera y hace 20 años que sirve en esta capacidad. Siempre la sociedad usa el castellano para tratar de los negocios y para la conversacion y si una persona habla ingles tiene que pagar una multa por cada palabra. El lema es, "El trabajo lo vence todo" y procuramos recordarlo. El objeto es ofrecer la oportunidad de hablar y oír el idioma mas de lo que se ofrece en la clase. Para cada funcion hay un programa preparado por los miembros, o cuando es posible un orador español, juegos y otras formas de diversion.

CLUBS

Clubs are among the most valuable organizations of Northeast. They not only encourage study in the various subjects but they also promote the interest of the student along certain lines. A membership in a club is, indeed, something to be proud of.

Many of the clubs have had a special exhibition to show what they have accomplished during the year, such as the Mathematics Club's exhibit and the assembly program on liquid air, sponsored by the Millikan Club.

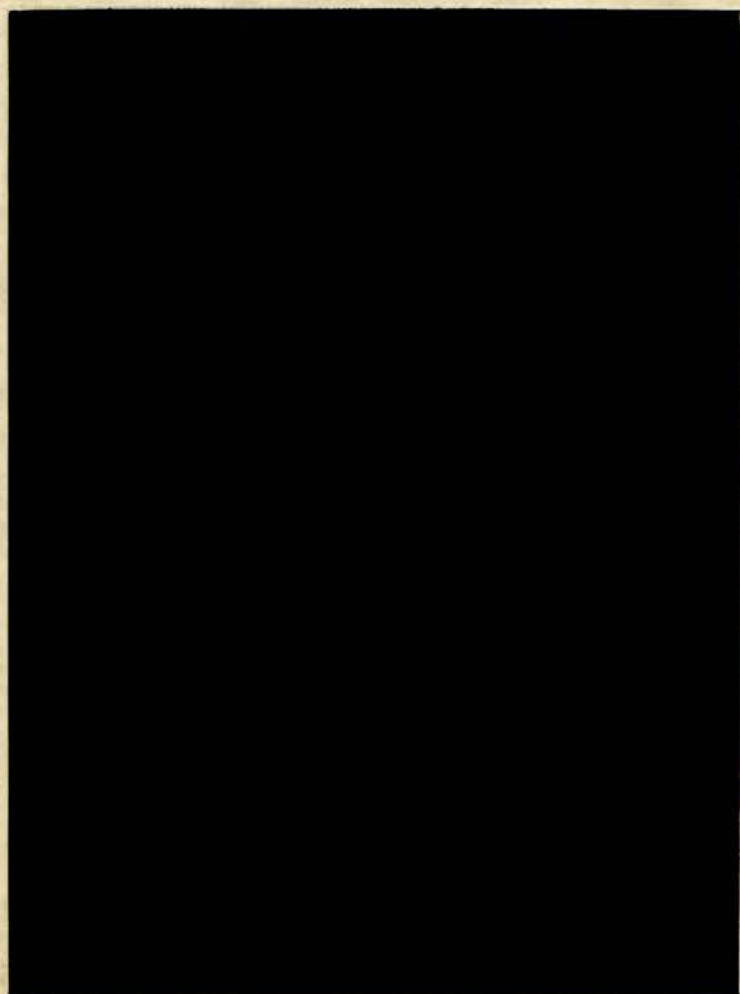

Certainly the advisers of these numerous clubs are to be thanked for the time and efforts which they have, so unselfishly given for the development of the clubs and they are to be congratulated for that which they have accomplished.

May the clubs of Northeast continue their good work and may they do even greater things in the future.

NINETEEN THIRTY-FOUR

ATHLETICS SUMMARY

The 1933-34 school year has seen some very fine athletics at Northeast. The most exciting football games were ties. In the homecoming game with East on our own field, eight touchdowns were made, and eight attempted points after the touchdowns were lost. The final gun ended with a 24-24 tie, and with Northeast on a crushing drive toward the enemy's goal. The Northeast-Southwest game was as remarkable for its strong defensive playing as the East game was for its offensive. Again the gun sounded with a tie, and with the Vikings near the Southwest goal. The final score was 0-0. Southwest and East were two of the strongest teams in the league. During the entire season Northeast lost only two games in the Interscholastic league and several Northeast gridsters won places on the Kansas City All-Star Second Team.

When we beat William Chrisman on our own floor in one of the fastest games ever staged in Kansas City, we felt sure of victory, because William Chrisman had beaten Southwest, our most dangerous Interscholastic league foe. However, during an off night, the Northeast five lost to the East's Bears in what was probably the most unusual and exciting game in the history of basketball. The gun announcing the end of the game came with the scoreboard favoring East by two points. However, the officials thought that Jeffers, a Viking, had been fouled just as the gun sounded. After about 15 minutes of hot debate among the officials, Northeast was given one free throw and two seconds of play. Jeffers wisely missed, and Rozgay recovered the ball and shot from the field. The ball hovered in the air, and dropped through the hoop to tie the score! Then came an overtime period. Northeast scored early and felt assured of success, but an East man shot just as the gun was fired again, and the ball went through. After considerable discussion, the officials said the last East field goal was good, and again the score was tied! After a rest period, the second overtime period was called, and the boys went on the floor tired but happy. Both sides scored, but at the end there was no miracle this time to tie the score, and East was victorious. This one loss left us tied with Southwest in the race for the championship. The game which decided the championship also went into an overtime period, as had the William Chrisman and East games.

Northeast has been more successful in track than she had expected to be. After crushing Manual with ease, Northeast beat East 51½ to 39½ and lost to Paseo 50 to 41. In a triangular meet with Westport and Central, Northeast was ahead until the last event, the relay, which made the final score Central 37½, Northeast 35½, and Westport 25. Stolberg in the high hurdles and pole vault, Noon in the low hurdles, Juricak in the shot put, and Turner in the high jump are our outstanding stars who will go to the state meet.

Prospects are good for a championship track team next year, because the juniors won the inter-class track meet. The score was juniors 52, seniors 29, and sophomores 17.

The athletic trophies, which are pictured on the adjoining page, were won on a field that was fair. These trophies were not won for the sake of filling the cases in the hall of our school, but they were won by our heroes of the past, so that the youth of the future would be induced to enter the strife for perfection of body and mind. They typify the courage of boys in the past years of this school who strove and dared for the purple and white. These trophies were won under the code of a true sportsman by Vikings of the past, with their faith and honor held high. When our teams met their superiors, they stood by the road and cheered as the winners went by.

ATHLETIC STAFF

By determining the athletic policy of the school, the Athletic Staff is instrumental in the sports program of Northeast. These three men who compose this staff, Mr. Peters, Mr. Davis, and Mr. Pickens will always be remembered for their untiring effort to build true American citizens of boys.

Mr. Peters has charge of the track and basketball teams and has always developed commendable teams.

The destiny of the football team has been, for the past four years, under the able charge of Mr. Davis.

The selling of tickets and the duties of balancing the budget of the Sports department is in the hands of Mr. Pickens.

STUDENT CAPTAINS

Students of Northeast this year should, indeed, be proud of their courageous captains. Wherever these boys went with their teams, as representatives of our school, they proved to be a most able group in executing their duties. They generally saw to it that our opponents received royal treatment from our teams.

Harold Carson, football captain, helped Coach Davis in developing one of the most impressive football teams Northeast has ever had.

Gene Bredehoeft and Al Rozgay, co-captains, performed admirably in Convention Hall as captains of the basketball team.

Flashing "Bob Poindexter" has proved himself an able captain of this season's track team.

CHEER LEADERS

Upon the cheer leader's tact, performances, understanding of crowd and player psychology, largely depends the reputation of the school, for true sportsmanship is manifested in the reaction of the spectators, individually and as a whole.

Too much praise cannot be given our able quartet of cheer leaders, and to Walter Slagle, Frank Hunter, Charles Jones, and C. G. Woodring we give due credit. Northeast has enjoyed a successful athletic year, and not a small part of the success may be charged to the cheer leaders. Their handling of the large rooting sections at games of basketball in Convention Hall is especially worthy of praise.

"N" CLUB

The "N" Club is one of the most unique organizations at Northeast. It holds no meetings and has no social functions at any time during the year. The central aim of this club is for the boys, who have fought for Northeast on some athletic team and have won a first team letter, so they may be recognized as a member of this traditional athletic group of sportsmen.

This year's representatives of the club form an impressive group. It is the hope of this year's members that more boys will aspire to belong to this worthy club. As alumni they mean to encourage the best type of boys to enter athletics at Northeast in the future.

Coach Mount Davis's 1933 football team had a very successful season, in spite of the fact that it finished fourth in the league. The team's fourth place standing was no indication of the strength that this squad possessed. This fact was proved as the team progressed through the season with constant and effective improvement in its play. Its real ability was shown when the team held the two reputedly best teams in the city, Southwest and East, to tie scores.

The clean sportsmanship shown by this team won admiration from the entire city. The high ideals that these boys upheld was clearly noticed wherever they went. The manner in which the players fought with heart and soul will be remembered long by this student body.

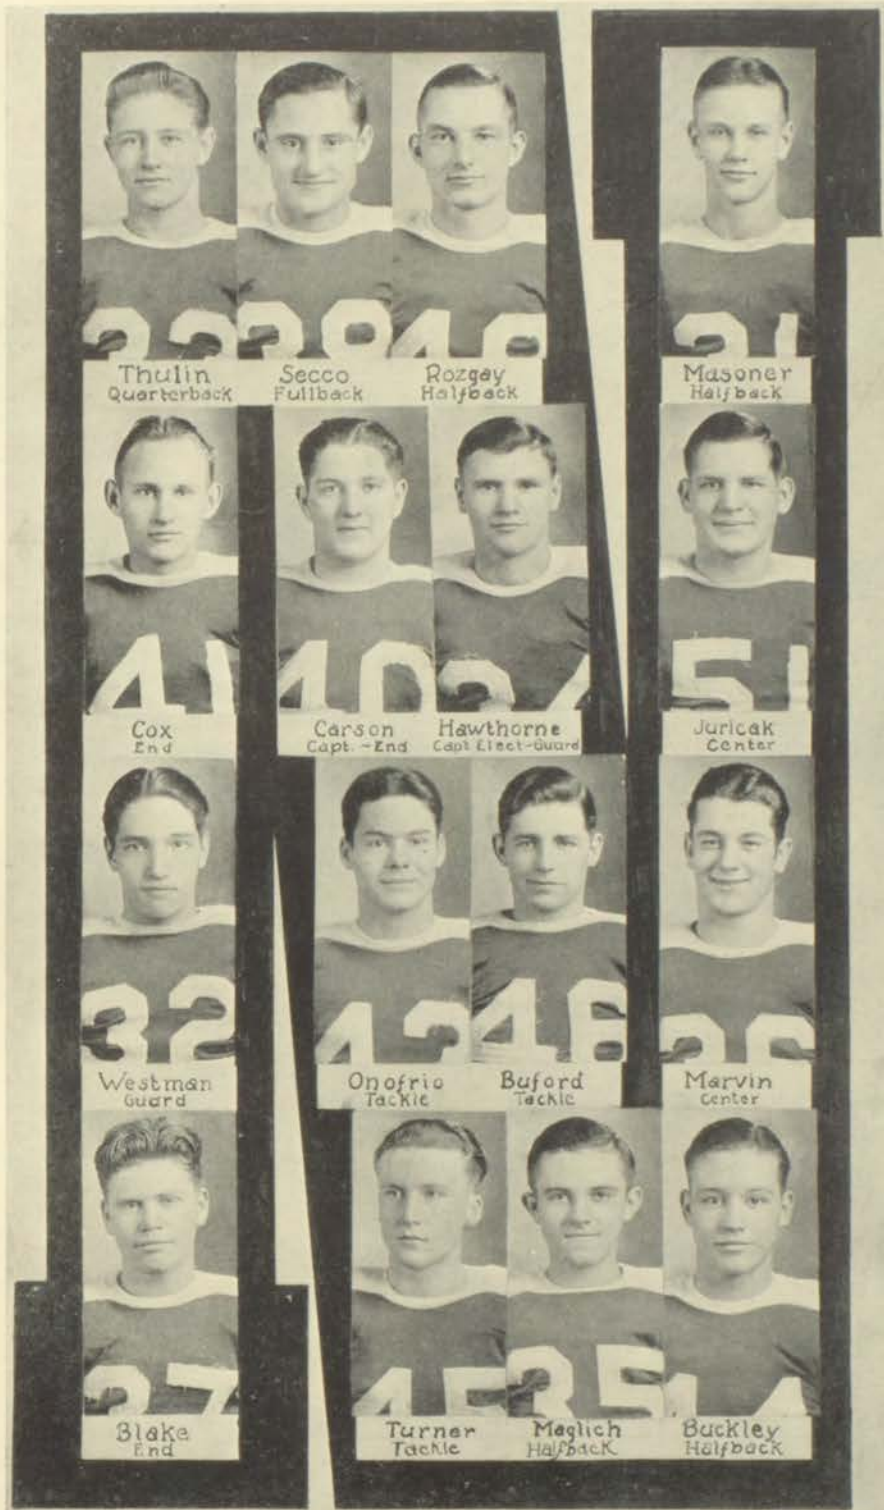

The co-operation on the part of Mr. Troy Smith, as assistant football coach in helping Coach Davis, was extremely helpful in developing a good supply of reserves. Mr. Smith gave his valuable time and services as a personal sacrifice that he might help the football squad.

The team chose as the successor of Captain Harold Carson, "Red" Hawthorne, whose congenial manner is well liked.

Coach Reeves Peters skillfully piloted another of his high-powered basketball teams through an exceedingly difficult schedule during the 1933-34 season, and further entrenched himself as one of the best basketball coaches in Kansas City. Year in and year out Coach Peters has developed the habit of turning out winning basketball teams and the Viking fives have gained the reputation of being "hard to beat."

Probably no team in Kansas City develops as fast as the Peters coached Viking fives. The wily Northeast Coach calls his men out in November, drills them well in fundamentals, and then engages several non-league teams in practice games. When the opening date of the Interscholastic League Season rolls around, the Viking squads are always playing in top form, and usually have little difficulty in bowling over opposition. Such has been the case during the past thirteen seasons.

A TRIBUTE

Dear Lord, in the battle that goes through life,
I ask but a field that is fair,
A chance that is equal with all in the strife,
A courage to strive and to dare;
And if I should win, let it be by the code
With my faith and my honor held high;
And if I should lose, let me stand by the road
And cheer as the winners go by.

The above stanza is taken from "Prayer of a Sportsman" by Berton Braley.

GENE BREDEHOEFT

Gene Bredehoeft was Co-Captain of the 1934 basketball team, a typical product of Coach Peters' development, and he performed for Northeast with the skill of a veteran. The fighting spirit of this light-haired, congenial athlete brought him recognition from the entire city as a player of great ability and enthusiasm for this sport, basketball.

This determined nature secured for him the admiration of the school as a player that could be depended upon to do his best for Northeast in basketball. His individual style of basketball made him a distinct performer at Convention Hall during the basketball season. After the season was over and the All-Star Team was picked by the seven coaches in the city, Gene Bredehoeft held the All-Star position of center.

Bredehoeft is a player who gives his best at all times and can always be counted on to come through in pinches when only a point or two is needed for victory. He is a hard but clean sportsman and fighter, and is well-liked by his teammates.

AL ROZGAY

Co-Captain "Al" Rozgay, who helped lead the 1933-34 Northeast Varsity Basketball team into a tie with the Bears from East for second place, completed his second year of brilliant playing on the teams of the purple and white.

Rozgay is well known to sports followers of Northeast as a player of extraordinary ability, consistency and determination, which make him a very valuable addition to any team. In the games with League teams, "Al" Rozgay proved to all that he was the equal of any player in the league, and his presence will be keenly felt when the Vikings enter another season in '35. Rozgay, a forward, is a swift, clever dribbler and a smooth, accurate shooter and has always been a vital cog in the scoring activities of the Viking five. As an all-around gentleman, Rozgay will be remembered by his teammates and fellow students for his personal qualities of courtesy and good sportsmanship, long after his spectacular playing record is dimmed by the passage of time. Rozgay will be remembered as a worthy holder of a position on the Interscholastic All-Star Team.

To all outward appearances, Coach Reeves Peters, who guides the Viking track destiny, started the 1934 season with the weakest track squad in recent years. However, he began the track season with as much pep and courage as if a number of letter men were returning for training. This attitude is what has kept this sport at Northeast in winning form.

With only one letterman back from the 1933's championship contender team, the outlook was not at all promising. The hundred-yard dash, represented by Captain "Bob" Poindexter, was the only event in which a man was returning. With this one man as a starter for a track team, Coach Peters sent word out early in March for enthusiastic track aspirants to report for training. After this call, the usual large number of boys reported for track instruction.

The team in its first dual meet gave the students of Northeast enlightened hopes for the success of the track season, when this squad defeated the Manual track team by the decisive score of 83½ to 7½.

The men that were trying out for positions of the team were: Poindexter, Schone-

TENNIS

The 1934 Tennis team led by John Robertson, Captain, had a very successful season. The doubles team, composed of Thompson and Smith, went to the quarter-finals. John Robertson, boy singles player, went to the semi-finals. Robertson defeated Gibbens in order to play in the semi-finals.

The boys who composed the Northeast team were John Robertson, Harry Thompson, Roy Smith, Floyd Gibbens, Jack Kilroy, and Max Hibbs. The last three were unable to earn their letters in the matches in the early season, therefore dual matches were planned to make them eligible for a letter.

GOLF

Golf, the game that made Scotland famous, is gaining more recognition at Northeast each year. The team, last year, won second place with two first-year men. This year, with two experienced players, the Northeast squad made a commendable showing.

The Northeast Golf Team for 1934 was composed of Captain Paul Owens, a three-year man; James Bolitho, a two-year man, and Cromwell, Canton, and Carpenter, who played their first season.

April 7 opened the 1934 Interscholastic League Golf Tournament, which continued for the six following weeks.

REQUIREMENT OF AMERICAN RED CROSS

The interest in Life Saving seems to grow from year to year. Girls between the ages of twelve to seventeen after having had adequate instruction and practice in life saving, become eligible to take the Junior Life Saving examination, which is given by members of the American Red Cross Life Saving Examiner's Board. The applicants are required to disrobe in deep water and swim one hundred yards, recover an object three times and a ten pound weight once from deep water. A swimmer must be able to do correctly all the required approaches, carries, and breaks. The approaches are: back, front, surface and underwater. The four carries are: Cross chest, head, hair, and tired swimmers. The breaks consist of a front and back strangle hold, and a double grip on the wrists. The applicant is also required to make one and a half minute demonstration of resuscitation. She must also swim one-quarter mile. After passing this test, the swimmer becomes a member of the American Red Cross Corps, and is entitled to wear a Junior Life Saving Emblem.

When a girl is a senior or is seventeen years old, she may try out for a Senior Life Saving Emblem. This is a greater honor as it requires more skill and endurance to pass the requirements.

The above tests are harder and longer and in addition the Senior Life Savers must master two people locked in a front strangle hold and proceed to carry each separate victim the required distance. They must be able to float motionless one minute, tread water thirty seconds and with a subject fully dressed perform a one minute carry. As a mental test, an essay on "Prone Pressure Method of Resuscitation" and a short examination on life saving is given.

GIRLS' ATHLETICS

FIELD HOCKEY

The girls in our department started the year with a bang by entering wholeheartedly into the first major sport of the season. Although hockey caused the girls many bumps, bruises, and sore shins, it has still held its time-honored place in the heart of the sport enthusiasts.

The hockey season closed with a smart resounding crack of a stick against the horse hide ball, a wild yell from the Seniors, and a groan from the Juniors as the final whistle proclaimed the Seniors the undefeated hockey champions of 1933.

	Won	Tied	Lost	Played
Senior	4	1	0	5
Junior	2	2	1	5
Sophomore	0	1	5	6

The all star team selected by Miss Bland, the hockey manager Margaret Luther, and Captains, Martha Ward, Opal Pilgrim, Deveta Marshall, are as follows: First team, Bernadine Beebe, Glennee Elam, Dorothea Love, Margaret Luther (captain), Etta Markus, Susie Bell Martin, Ann Merlino, Opal Pilgrim, Alice Preston, Jean Saint, Virginia Worrell. Second team, Rosalie Bodenhamer, Erma Church, Freda Derr, Deveta Marshall, Gladys Moss, Dorothy Nicolai, Ethel Pilgrim, Roma Rosewall (captain), Gloria Vaughn, Martha Ward, Ruth Williams.

BASKETBALL

Basketball is the old time favorite with the girls. This year two hundred and eighty-one girls participated in a preliminary round robin inter-class tournament. From each class eighteen individuals were selected to uphold their class honors in the tournament. The teams clashed in a hard fought battle and the (Senior, Jr., Soph.) team emerged victorious. The basketball manager this year is Jean Saint.

Miss Bland is the instructor.

GIANT VOLLEYBALL

This year for the first time we played Giant Volleyball. A squad of two hundred and seventy-five girls was chosen from the three classes and fifteen games were played. Each girl played at least two games and received her numerals and five athletic points. The manager of Giant Volleyball is Roma Rosewall.

REGULAR VOLLEYBALL

At the present time we are engaged in a regular volleyball tournament. Approximately, the same amount of girls participated in regular volleyball as did in Giant Volleyball, however, more enthusiasm was aroused among the girls in the latter tournament, for more skill in handling the ball is required. Bernice Gorman is volleyball manager.

TRACK

When the Annual goes to press in the spring of 1934 the Track Meet will not have yet been held. However, the girls declare they are going to break some records, which is not at all improbable, considering the ability of the girls. The purpose of track is to develop poise and self-confidence. The track meet events in which a girl may participate are: High jump, hop step jump, and relay and dash, baseball and basketball throws.

In track if a girl is not capable of entering in one event, she has a choice of several others in which to show her skill.

REVIEW OF THE YEAR'S WORK

The first of the major field sports is hockey. From the beginning of school in September to Thanksgiving, six hundred girls of the gym department learn the principles of the game; that is, the rules that must be followed, the proper handling of the stick and ball, the different methods of passing and advancing, and above all, cooperation with the members of the team. After school the girls were given a chance for active competition with a hockey tournament. There were two hundred and thirty-three girls out, divided into thirty teams. Thirty-two games were played. This outdoor playing is optional and up to the girl herself. Also during the fall season, the girls played soccer two days each week, each girl spending two days each week on the field.

With the beginning of winter, which forced the girls to come inside, giant volleyball and basketball were started. In January giant volleyball ended in a tournament, wherein three hundred girls participated. Each girl played two games. Following giant volleyball there was a tournament of regular volleyball. Practically as many girls entered as were entered in giant volleyball. At the same time there was basketball practice. Here, as in hockey, the girls were first introduced to the fundamentals of the game. They were taught good and bad methods of basketball. Those girls who had played basketball before brushed up their playing and tried to improve on their bad form at the first after school practice games, two hundred and eighty-five teams, which played sixty-nine games. Each girl played at least two games in order that she might be eligible for the All Star class team.

When volleyball season ended, track practice began. In this sport every girl took part. In class periods the girls learned the proper way to do each event to obtain the best results. The girls always had to be wide awake, if they intended to get results from their efforts. The events are somewhat similar to the boys' events, while some parts are taken out and others added. The events are: high jump, hop step and jump, basketball throw for distance (including forward and backward throws), fifty yard dash, seventy-five yard dash, and the relay.

Swimming is an important item of the year's work, as each girl has an opportunity to enter the swimming pool once every week. Swimming extends from early fall till the end of the school year. Girls who are non-swimmers are taught to float, and eventually they are able to swim as well as the good swimmers. The more advanced girls improve their speed, add new strokes to their scope of swimming, learn diving and those most advanced take up fancy diving. Along with this, there are certain stunts which they try prior to the swimming meet. Also those girls who are interested and have the endurance take life saving. In life saving there are carries, holds, breaks and resuscitation. At the end of each year, tests are given to pass these events. In every case where a girl passes the test she is awarded a badge. Most of the girls end the swimming year by an inter-class swimming meet.

One day out of every week is health inspection. At each meeting there is a lecture given pertaining to such subjects as diet, cleanliness, sleep, rest, the proper care of the hair and skin. Special emphasis is placed on the care of the nails and teeth. At this time, 98 per cent of all the girls enrolled have been to the dentist for prophylaxia and needed repairs. The few girls remaining will have their work done by the time school is out.

Clean, well kept nails are an asset to any girl, but when she bites them, they are not apt to be well kept. It is also a medium for taking diseases. In the above discussions, all these matters are put before the girl, and she is implored to refrain from nail biting.

Also each week the girls take dancing. It is largely folk and national dancing. In this way they become more graceful, and have more ease in their walk. It helps give a girl poise. She becomes natural in her movements and not stiff and artificial.

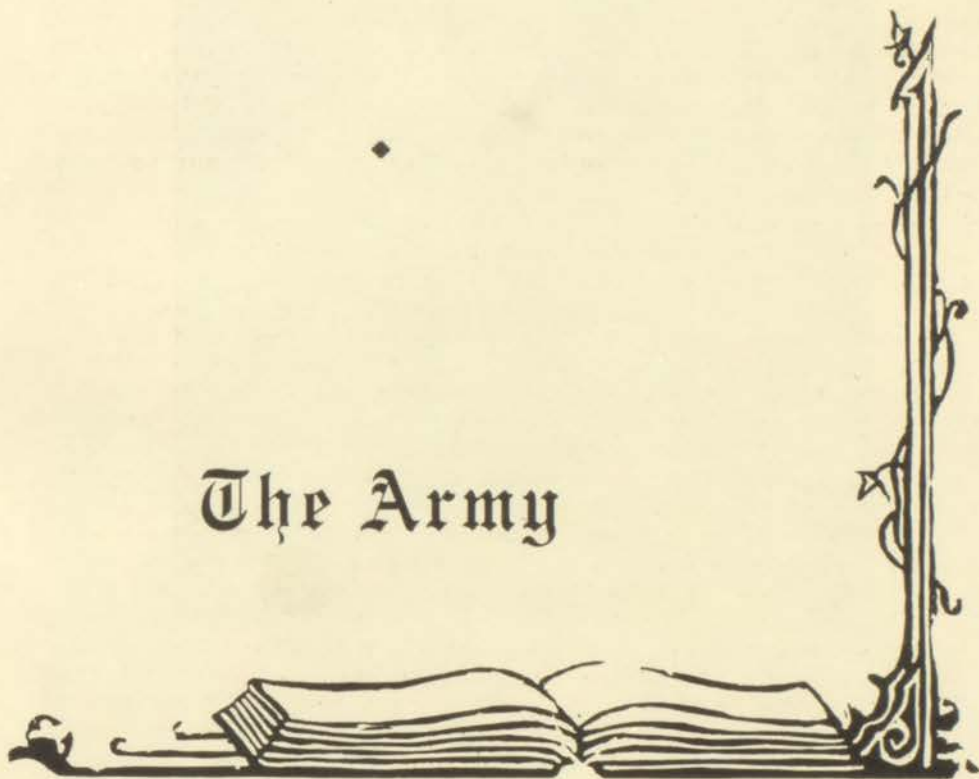

The last sports of the year are baseball and tennis. After practicing in classes, the baseball tournament starts. This is not prolonged, as most girls have some knowledge of the game.

Some time in May of each year is devoted to learning the fundamentals of the game of tennis so each girl will know something of the game and can enjoy it.

OFFICERS

Sgt. Healy was very well satisfied with the officers this year. The Battalion Staff was formed with Major Shoemaker commanding. Captain Walker is Plans and Training Officer. Lieutenant Emerson is Battalion Adjutant. The Intelligence Officer is Lieutenant Thomson; Ordnance Officer, Lieutenant Hunter; and Supply Officer, Captain Swaim. All the officers, whether holding special positions on the Staff or not, are in command of units.

SPONSORS

The Sponsor Officers were elected this year by a new method. Instead of having the faculty choose the Captains and the Senior girls choose the Major, the whole selection was left to the R. O. T. C. cadets. The Sponsors were presented with fitting ceremony in an assembly.

Lieut. Helen Heaton, Captain Ruth Alice Perrigo, Major Barbara Ketchum, Lieut. Helen Burns, Captain Belva Jo Moore.

THE RIFLE TEAM

Standing—Captain Walker, Lieutenant Hunter, Lieutenant Emerson
Kneeling—Cadet Wilson, Cadet Hall.

The Rifle Team had a good season considering the fact that three members were new men who had never fired in competition before, the only veterans being Lieutenant Hunter and Captain Walker. In taking third place in the City Championship Match, the team was not just lucky but due to the excellent work done by all five members, was able to win this mark of distinction, each man receiving a bronze medal. In firing in the different matches the scores on the average were good enough for the squad to be considered one of the best in the city. The men may attribute much of their success to Sergeant Healy and his tireless efforts in training the squad. Lieutenant Hunter was selected to lead the team this year because of his excellent record. Due to his knowledge of the rules and regulations of rifle firing Captain Walker was chosen as Range Officer. These two men were selected from Northeast to fire in the Corps Area Match and for the first time in its history the R. O. T. C. Unit of Kansas City won this Match. The scores in the City Championship Match were, out of a possible 200:

DeElbert Walker	176
Jack Wilson	172
Frank Hunter	169
Dwight Emerson	158
Lowell Hall	154

R. O. T. C.

The Reserve Officers Training Corps was established by an Act of Congress for the purpose of preparing students who wish to become Reserve Officers. It is not a part of the Army, and no obligation to render further military service is imposed by it. The organization develops those high mental and moral qualities which are requisite to leadership. Cadets showing especial aptitude in the subject and whose grades average "M" or above are eligible for promotion.

Organized since 1916, the Northeast units have always been outstanding in the city. For many years our school has won the distinction of being rated as an Honor School. Last year the Northeast Battalion was placed first in the Annual Government Inspection, in which all the schools in the city compete.

R. O. T. C. HOP

The annual R. O. T. C. Hop occurred this year on the evening of Saturday, March the thirty-first. To the music of Carl Peters' Band the dances were enjoyed by all. The gymnasium, decorated with crossed rifles at each end and Company guidons at the sides, was very military in appearance, providing a fitting background for the uniformed cadets and girls in formal dresses. During the intermission Sgt. Healy presented commissions to the sponsors and officers. About sixty couples attended the affair, which was pronounced a notable success.

All parents of the officers and members of the faculty were invited to the function. Among the guests were Major and Mrs. Grant, Captain and Mrs. Westfall, Sgt. and Mrs. Morris, Sgt. and Mrs. Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. Geiss, Mr. and Mrs. Fate, Mr. and Mrs. Harman, Mrs. Ketchum, Mr. and Mrs. Swaim, Mr. and Mrs. Hahn, Mr. and Mrs. Browne, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn, and Mr. and Mrs. Chisholm.

R. O. T. C. CIRCUS

The R. O. T. C. Circus, which has been an annual event for twelve years, was presented on the evening of Friday, the thirteenth of April. After musical selections were played by the Northeast High School Band, the whole Kansas City Regiment passed before the reviewing stand in the Grand Entry. After that, one thrilling event followed another. Each school in the city made a special contribution to the program. To the music of our band, Northeast put on the spectacular ceremony of Battalion Parade, for which we were complimented by many. The DeMolay Drill Team and units from Missouri and Iowa Universities, St. Joseph High School, and Kemper and Wentworth Military Schools also performed, with Shattuck Military Academy of Faribault, Minnesota, exhibiting a fancy drill. Everyone there left convinced that the Circus was one of the best performances of the year in all Kansas City.

The Viking Rifle Club was organized as a branch of the National Rifle Association, received its Charter January, 1934, and is now one of the largest Clubs of its kind in the city. Because of his activity in forming the club Captain DeElbert Walker was selected to preside over the organization. Sgt. Healy is the instructor. The club has two objectives—first, to teach every member the safe and accurate handling of the rifle; second, to have every member qualified at least as a Pro-Marksman. The club owes much of its success to Sgt. Healy and the cooperation of the officers. The ten best shots in the club are entered in the National Interscholastic Rifle Match, sponsored by the N. R. A., for the High School Championship of the United States. By firing in these different postal matches the members are given a chance to fire in competition against some of the best shots in the nation and this should prove very valuable to them in their tryouts for the rifle team next year.

Vice-President—Dwight Emerson

Executive Officer—Frank Hunter

In the national competition for the N. R. A. Interscholastic High School Championship the Viking Rifle Club placed third. This is an outstanding award since high school teams from every state in the country were entered. The four men with the highest scores will receive percentage medals for their excellent work. Those who fired in the match, and their scores, were: Dwight Emerson, 564; Jack Wilson, 560; De-Elbert Walker, 555; Frank Hunter, 553; Lowell Hall, 533; Ferdie Olsen, 521; Richard Ruth, 518; Louis Taylor, 501; Roger Williams, 501; and Herbert Stiver, 500. These scores were made out of a possible 600 and were fired in each of the four positions.

Mr. French took over the Northeast Band nine years ago, when it was comprised of only sixteen players. The band began to grow in numbers, under the baton of its worthy and able director, and at the beginning of the school year of 1933, over a hundred persons were enrolled in the Northeast Band. This number is increased every year, making it one of the largest bands in Kansas City. It also has a large and high class repertoire which consists of standard marches, standard overtures, operatic selections, standard waltzes and numbers that are pleasing to the student body.

For its uniform, the band chose a regular R. O. T. C. outfit with a purple and white cord around the left shoulder.

The band cooperates with the R. O. T. C. department, inasmuch as they have a marching program and participate in many R. O. T. C. events. This year the Northeast Band has paraded in the Armistice Day Parade, the Santa Claus Parade, twice at the American Royal Stock Show, the R. O. T. C. Circus at the Convention Hall, and for all battalion parades at school.

Football and basketball games have been pepped up by the lively tunes which the band has played. Concerts of many kinds have been played throughout the year so by this we see that our Northeast Band has had a full program this year. Every performance that it has made has been very commendable.

The drum major the past two years has been Bob Poindexter who along with Sgt. Healy drills the band. Their efforts have been rewarded by a good marching, well sounding band.

The orchestra under the direction of Mr. Walter French has had a most successful year. Each member seemed to have put his whole soul in his music. Northeast, like all Kansas City, has taken a decided stand toward good music.

The first appearance of the orchestra was at the Flower Show. It has supplied the music in most of the second semester assemblies and at the Christmas and Senior plays. Mr. French is planning to have the orchestra play at the graduation exercises.

Several members of this organization have played solos on the assembly programs.

The selections played are standard pieces. Mr. French has tried to select at each assembly the numbers that would be the most appropriate. The object for next year will be "better music and better players."

The Treble Clef or Girls' Chorus is a girls' organization corresponding to the Boys' Glee Club. The Treble Clef meets every day as two regular classes, second and sixth hour, and receives instructions similar to that given in the voice classes in addition to the chorus work and individual singing. The requirements for entrance are a good voice, the ability to read easy music at sight and an ear sensitive to the slightest variation in pitch. The entire year's work is focused on the annual music contest, which occurs in the spring. Mr. Frank E. Chaffee has been the adviser of the club since its organization in 1913.

This year the Treble Clef combined with the A Cappella Chorus and Boys' Glee Club gave a concert at the Independence Avenue Methodist Church and the First Presbyterian Church. The most difficult numbers on the program were: "The Heavens Are Telling,"—Hayden, "The Glory of the Lord," and "Hallelujah Chorus"—Handel.

Practice for the Solo Contest began before the Christmas Holidays. Each person wishing to enter the contest chose a solo of her own selection. The winners will compete with other winners of the High Schools of Kansas City.

Those who complete the Music Course are eligible to work in quartet, church choruses, and concert work.

Northeast's Music Department has turned out many people who have taken up music as their life's work. Such people are Louise DeLouis, Helen Taylor, Mrs. Elsie Frisbie Norman, Mrs. Margaret McMinnis Byrnes, and Lois Swaney.

The club has sung at the Union Station, Independence Boulevard Methodist Church, First Presbyterian Church, Parent Teacher meetings, and school assemblies. With the Treble Clef they have formed an A Cappella Chorus which meets before school. Several representatives are in the Music Contest. Mr. Chaffee is the Club adviser and teacher.

THE MUSIC CONTEST

The date of the annual Music Contest, held in the spring of each year, is set this year for May 19. Any student of a Kansas City high school is eligible, provided that he has not won or participated in a winning group any year before. This year's meet is to be considered more a "festival" than a contest as the choice of the selection is left to the contestant. It is usually held at Westport Junior High School, as it is to be this year. Any one contestant may sing in any foreign language, as well as English, with or without accompaniment. There are nine important events; the one counting the most points being the A Cappella Choir, composed of forty-five to sixty voices. The remaining events are: Boys' Double Quartet, Girls' Triple Trio, Boys' High Solos, Boys' Medium Solos, Boys' Low Solos, Girls' High Solos, Girls' Medium Solos, and Girls' Low Solos. Diligent practicing may be heard any time from Christmas to the City-wide contest in room 405.

THE NORTHEAST ART CLUB

The Northeast Art Club was organized eleven years ago for developing the appreciation of art among Northeast pupils. The adviser is Miss Newitt.

The club, this year, worked on crafts the first semester. The second semester was taken up in study and appreciation of the William Rockhill Nelson Art Gallery.

NATIONAL ART EXHIBIT

The tenth annual National Art Exhibit was held this year for art students of high school age. Aside from the encouragement it gives cultural education, the contest stimulates originality and ambition in the students. In the pictorial arts section there were seven entries: Pauline Stevenin, Marguerite Walker, Kathleen O'Laughlin, Norman Estes, Jeanne Altergott, Ruth Wilks, Nora May Closson. Nine students entered work in the decorative design group: Grant Holcomb, Pauline Stevenin, Laila Morgan, Josephine Henry, Frances Messenger, Dorothy Hauser, Joe Metscham, Betty Thompson, Carmeleita Hurst, and June Vance. Darleen Trost, Pauline Stevenin, June Fall, and Genevieve Hoyt entered textile projects. June Fall and Vernon Shaff submitted sculpture pieces. Cash, scholarships, merchandise, and national honors to a total of $10,000 were offered in the various groups.

Eight pieces of work were passed by the jury of awards, two receiving honorable mention. Iris Heillman's design received a fourth place with a prize of $2.50. Pauline Stevenin's block print on textile received a fourth place, winning a box of tempera paints as an award. Pauline also had a piece of work accepted for the pictorial section of the exhibition. Other pieces accepted and hung in the exhibition were made by Thelma Landon, Frances Messenger, Nora May Closson, Marguerite Walker and Ruth Wilks. These art students will receive certificates of merit from the Scholastic Magazine.

COMMERCIAL CLUB

The Northeast Commercial Club was organized March 19, 1922, for the purpose of promoting interest in commercial work, to have programs consisting of business talks and reading, and also, to look forward to identifying its members with some form of business.

The slogan of the club is "Efficiency Wins." The colors are gold and silver, which represent our two principal coins. Mr. Coleman is the adviser.

THE MILLIKAN CLUB

The Millikan Club was organized in the spring of 1916 for a more extended study of the principles of science, especially in the fields of Physics and Chemistry. The members study the branches of science which appeal to them most. At each of the meetings the members gain more knowledge of scientific wonders through interesting talks, lectures, outside speakers, and discussions. Mr. Pinkney is the adviser of this club.

THE NORTHEAST MATHEMATICS CLUB

The Northeast Mathematics Club was organized in 1916 by Mr. White, the present supervisor. Every year a mathematics exhibit is held to create more interest in mathematics. This year a new thirteen month calendar was worked out. The club emblem is the geometrical figure of the Pythagorean Theorem. The membership of thirty-one is about average. The club work enables the members to study special problems which are not ordinarily studied in the regular course.

HYGEIA CLUB

The Hygeia Club was organized in 1928 for the purpose of promoting good mental, moral and physical health habits. The membership is not limited to members of the physiology classes, but every girl who is interested in health projects is welcome. The Hygeia Club holds as many out-of-door meetings as possible, and studies ways of improving the health. The adviser is Miss McElwain.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

The industrial arts in high schools are not the same as the industrial arts of the ward schools. There are four courses in the Industrial Arts Department, each having its special room and equipment. The work studied in these courses gives the student a thorough foundation for any future work along the same line. Girls as well as boys are in many of the classes.

The aim of the drafting course is to teach those who are interested in it the language of drafting. This course offers the students a firm foundation in mechanical and architectural drawing.

One of the newest and most useful courses in Northeast is the printing course, usually known as "the print shop." The shop trains students in the art of printing as a vocation. Besides being very interesting and helpful to the students, it is also useful to the school, having saved the school several hundred dollars in the past five years. All the office literature, the school papers, and many other things are printed in the shop.

The course in metals aims to teach the students the use of machines, tools, and the forging of metals. The course is divided into five parts, welding, power machine work, bench work, automobile, and forging.

Woodwork is the oldest and one of the most popular courses in the industrial arts. The course seeks to develop a maximum amount of handy-man abilities, supply the maximum of general information, and afford training of vocational value to those who will enter the industry.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE

The Domestic Science or Home Economics Department is one of the most important in the school. Success in life depends somewhat on one's ability to manage a home.

The clothing course has a larger enrollment this year than it has had for many years. The annual dress review will be held in the auditorium on the night of May 26. The display will consist of children's dresses, dresses, suits, and spring coats. A large percentage of the senior girls who are taking "Clothing" will exhibit commencement dresses.

The foods classes this year have done much to develop an interest in the minds of the girls and boys for the welfare of their future homes. Not only are foods prepared, but the quality of foods are discussed. The first year classes prepared a breakfast for a selected group of students, and the second year classes prepared a dinner. The department aids in serving at the school dances and other night programs.

The third essential is the training in child care that is given in both the foods classes and sewing classes, to supplement the regular courses. Very valuable information is given to the girls during the class periods given over to this subject.

COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT

There are many subjects taught in the Commercial Department, but the most important are shorthand, typewriting, office training, and bookkeeping.

The shorthand course enables the student and future secretary to take dictation faster and more efficiently than if he took it in longhand. Gregg's Shorthand is the type of shorthand taught.

The typewriting course has made a change this past year. Dictaphone Transcribing Machines have been installed and are used by some of the classes, the other classes are taught typewriting in the way it has been taught heretofore. This training will not only aid them in obtaining good positions, but will prove valuable for personal use.

The office training course enables students to learn more about business ethics and relations than is given in any other commercial course offered. To supplement this course, actual training in the school office is given to all who wish it.

The bookkeeping course furnishes training in the mechanics of accounting in the business world. A system of banking is conducted by a selected group of pupils who act as "cashiers" for the classes. From the bookkeeping classes two students are selected to take care of the school savings, and one to act as bookkeeper for the Nor'easter.

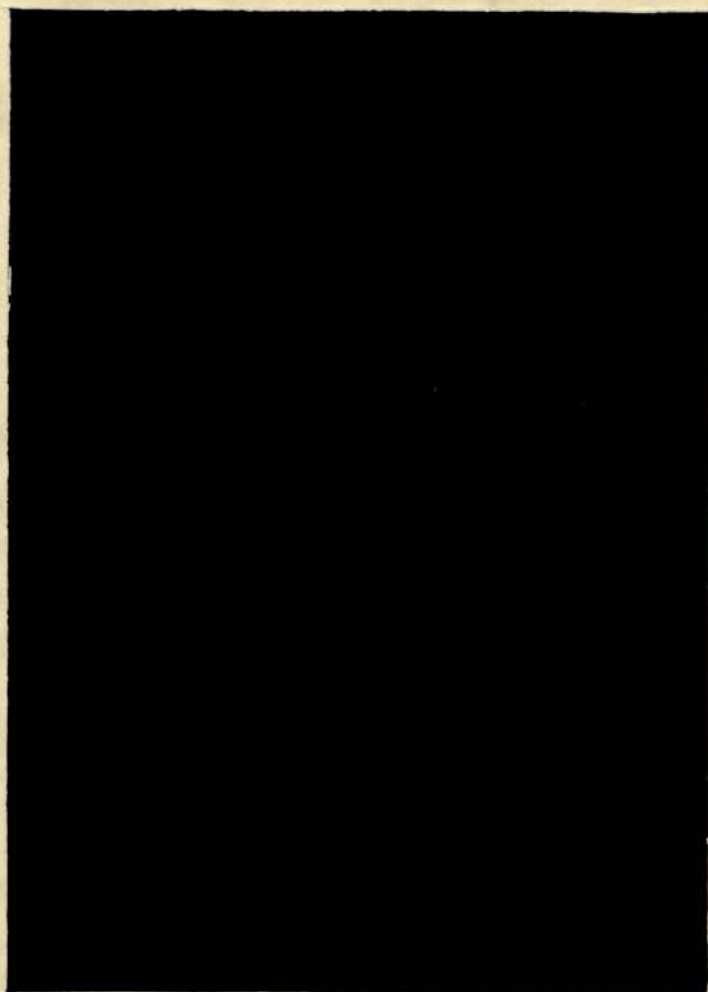

All other courses pertaining to commerce are important to the final success of the office worker. Two subjects that are not in the Commercial Department but are a great help to the future office worker are English and social science.

SENIOR PHOPHECY

In the years to come as we have the crystal gazer look into her globe what do we see but:

RUTH PERRIGO—Not stuck up, just conservative with her friendliness which is a good thing for Ruth Alice, and will keep her out of a lot of trouble. Her domestic and home-loving nature predicts that the years to come will find her in a home of her own, sewing dainty little frills on dainty little dresses for living little fashion plates who will look just like their mother.

WALTER SLAGLE—He specializes not in anything in particular, but rather in mediocracy,—just an all around man whom all the ladies like. The future shows him playing the gigolo to many beautiful women—while the wee hours of the morning find him yelling "Rah! hah! hah!" in his sleep.

DICK MINDLIN—His ambition and personality predict that the future will find him, not only at the head of some established firm in the business world, but also the master of his home, which is rare now days.

UBERT PHILIPS—Just plain, indifferent. The future shows him being babied by a motherly little wife, who will always consider him a child because of his dimples.

KARL STOLBERG—Good ole' "Snozzles." Well, there isn't a whole lot to say, for we all know Karl, but Jimmy Durante better watch out, for he certainly has competition.

DOROTHY MINDLIN—Just a jolly, good girl, who will always get along well in the world, because she can take anything with a grain of salt and make a sugar-coated pill out of it.

MIRIAM SPILLMAN—An ambitious blues singer. The crystal gazer sees her in a hair pulling battle with Kate Smith. We won't tell you how it comes out, but who would have a chance with a determined, ambitious red-head?

GLENNIE ELAM—A real flatterer with a sugar-coated tongue and what's more, that clinging-vine type—and as we all know "clinging vines are born—not made,"—so she must have come by it honestly. Is there any need to predict the future of one having such characteristics?

GLEN COX—Fred Astaire is going to have some heavy competition in the future. We can easily see that. Why? Glen Cox is taking dancing lessons—and some people think he has amazingly wonderful possibilities.

ROBERT TUXSON—History repeats itself, and those who have been heroes in the past will, according to the saying, be heroes in the future. We see Bob yelling as he dashes down the court for a final basket to save the game for his school,—and still he's a lady's man.

JOHNNY POLTERE—In the crystal ball what do we see but a tall stalwart young man with blond curly hair, the center of feminine attraction. The gazer sees that he has made his millions in aviation and is now a man of leisure. More power to you, Johnny!

JOHN GOELLNER—Tall and handsome is this young man; and Bing Crosby better watch out as John thinks he is an up-and-coming second Bing.

CHUCK JONES—If his tongue doesn't get him into trouble, his gangster instincts will. He kidnapped many a heart by his wit and pep, and the crystal gazer sees him a great success in the athletic world (head of a cheer leaders group).

POEM

Dedicated the the New Plan III's of 1933-1934.

New Plan I

We were Freshies, and the freshest
 Lot of jays you ever saw;
 We entered the course for the purpose
 Of saving money for our "Pa."

New Plan II

We were Juniors, yes, were Juniors
 But that wasn't saying very much,
 We were Freshies deep down in our hearts
 But Juniors in our touch.

So we blew the hayseed out our hair,
 The green from in our eyes,
 Made the Freshies look like thirty cents
 Much to their surprise.

New Plan III

Mr. Harman, he has told us
 That we don't know very much;
 But we'll show him in the future
 That we, at least, can keep in touch.

Before us stands the great wide world
 And face it now we must.
 Farewell, kind friends and classmates, dear
 A hearty hand-shake, a sigh, a tear.

to spend dreary years in re-learning and re-adjustment. Unnecessary duplications must be done away with, and above all, those necessary fundamentals of any education must be firmly fixed in the child, before the elaboration of education begins.

"The school must also do what it can toward the social and relational education of the individual; however, in this endeavor the parents and guardians must assume the major responsibility," says Mr. Smith. "More power to the home!"

Thus we find that Mr. Smith, though leaving active service in the school system, is still thinking in terms of it and is ready to offer ideas for its betterment.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

The staff of the 1934 Nor'easter has worked to its full capacity in preparing this yearbook, but we owe much of the success of the finished book to many people who are not on the staff. Mr. Lowell Sr., of the Lowell Press, Mr. Cooksey, of the Teachenor-Bartberger Engraving Company, and Mr. Haines, of the Haines Studio, have worked with us many extra hours voluntarily to enhance the contents and makeup of our Annual.

Our activities have done much toward helping to pay for a book which costs twice as much as is charged the purchasers.

We regret that we are forbidden to thank the student body for their unprecedentedly large subscription list of subscribers, especially since the future existence of our beloved Annual is at stake.
