An abstract graphic design featuring several overlapping, semi-transparent planes and a bright, circular spot. The planes are arranged in a way that creates a sense of depth and perspective, with some appearing to recede into the background while others come forward. The overall composition is clean and modern, with a focus on geometric shapes and light effects.

FIRST "IMAGES"

The first thing I notice are the lockers. They are cranberry red, and I like them. The brightness is a refreshing change from the drab shade of brown of my lockers at home. I am in the process of being recruited. However, when I do enroll, it will take two days to get a locker.

Northeast seems like a good school. For me, however, it is so different that I don't quite know what to do with it. I am on sensory overload, my emotions are jumbled. I come from a town with a population of less than 3000; in my high school there are less than 150. Everyone has their own place, and role. Going from that to Northeast, home of nearly 1200 nameless faces, has been a bit of a change.

The size has been hard to adjust to, but the hardest thing for me is the culture shock. I don't know what is acceptable and what isn't. I don't know what is socially important, I don't know if I have those things, and I don't know if I want to have them. I don't know the significance of many things that people say and do. Worse, I don't know how to find any of these things out. If certain people hadn't have been so friendly, it would have been really bad.

Academically, I think this school is good. All my teachers are helpful, and knowledgeable. I was lucky-- one of the things that is bad about big schools is that you don't know which teachers will fulfill your educational needs. I was lucky. However, the administration has been a bit less helpful. Not only did it take me two days to get a locker, no one told me any of the rules, any of the policies, or how to find anything. Also, no one told me that the school wasn't open before 7:20, and on my second day I spent five minutes standing outside in the pouring rain with no explanation why.

The best thing I can say about this school is that each day it has seemed a little better. You can't hope for much more than that. I think that eventually, once I put everything into perspective, I'll like it a lot more.

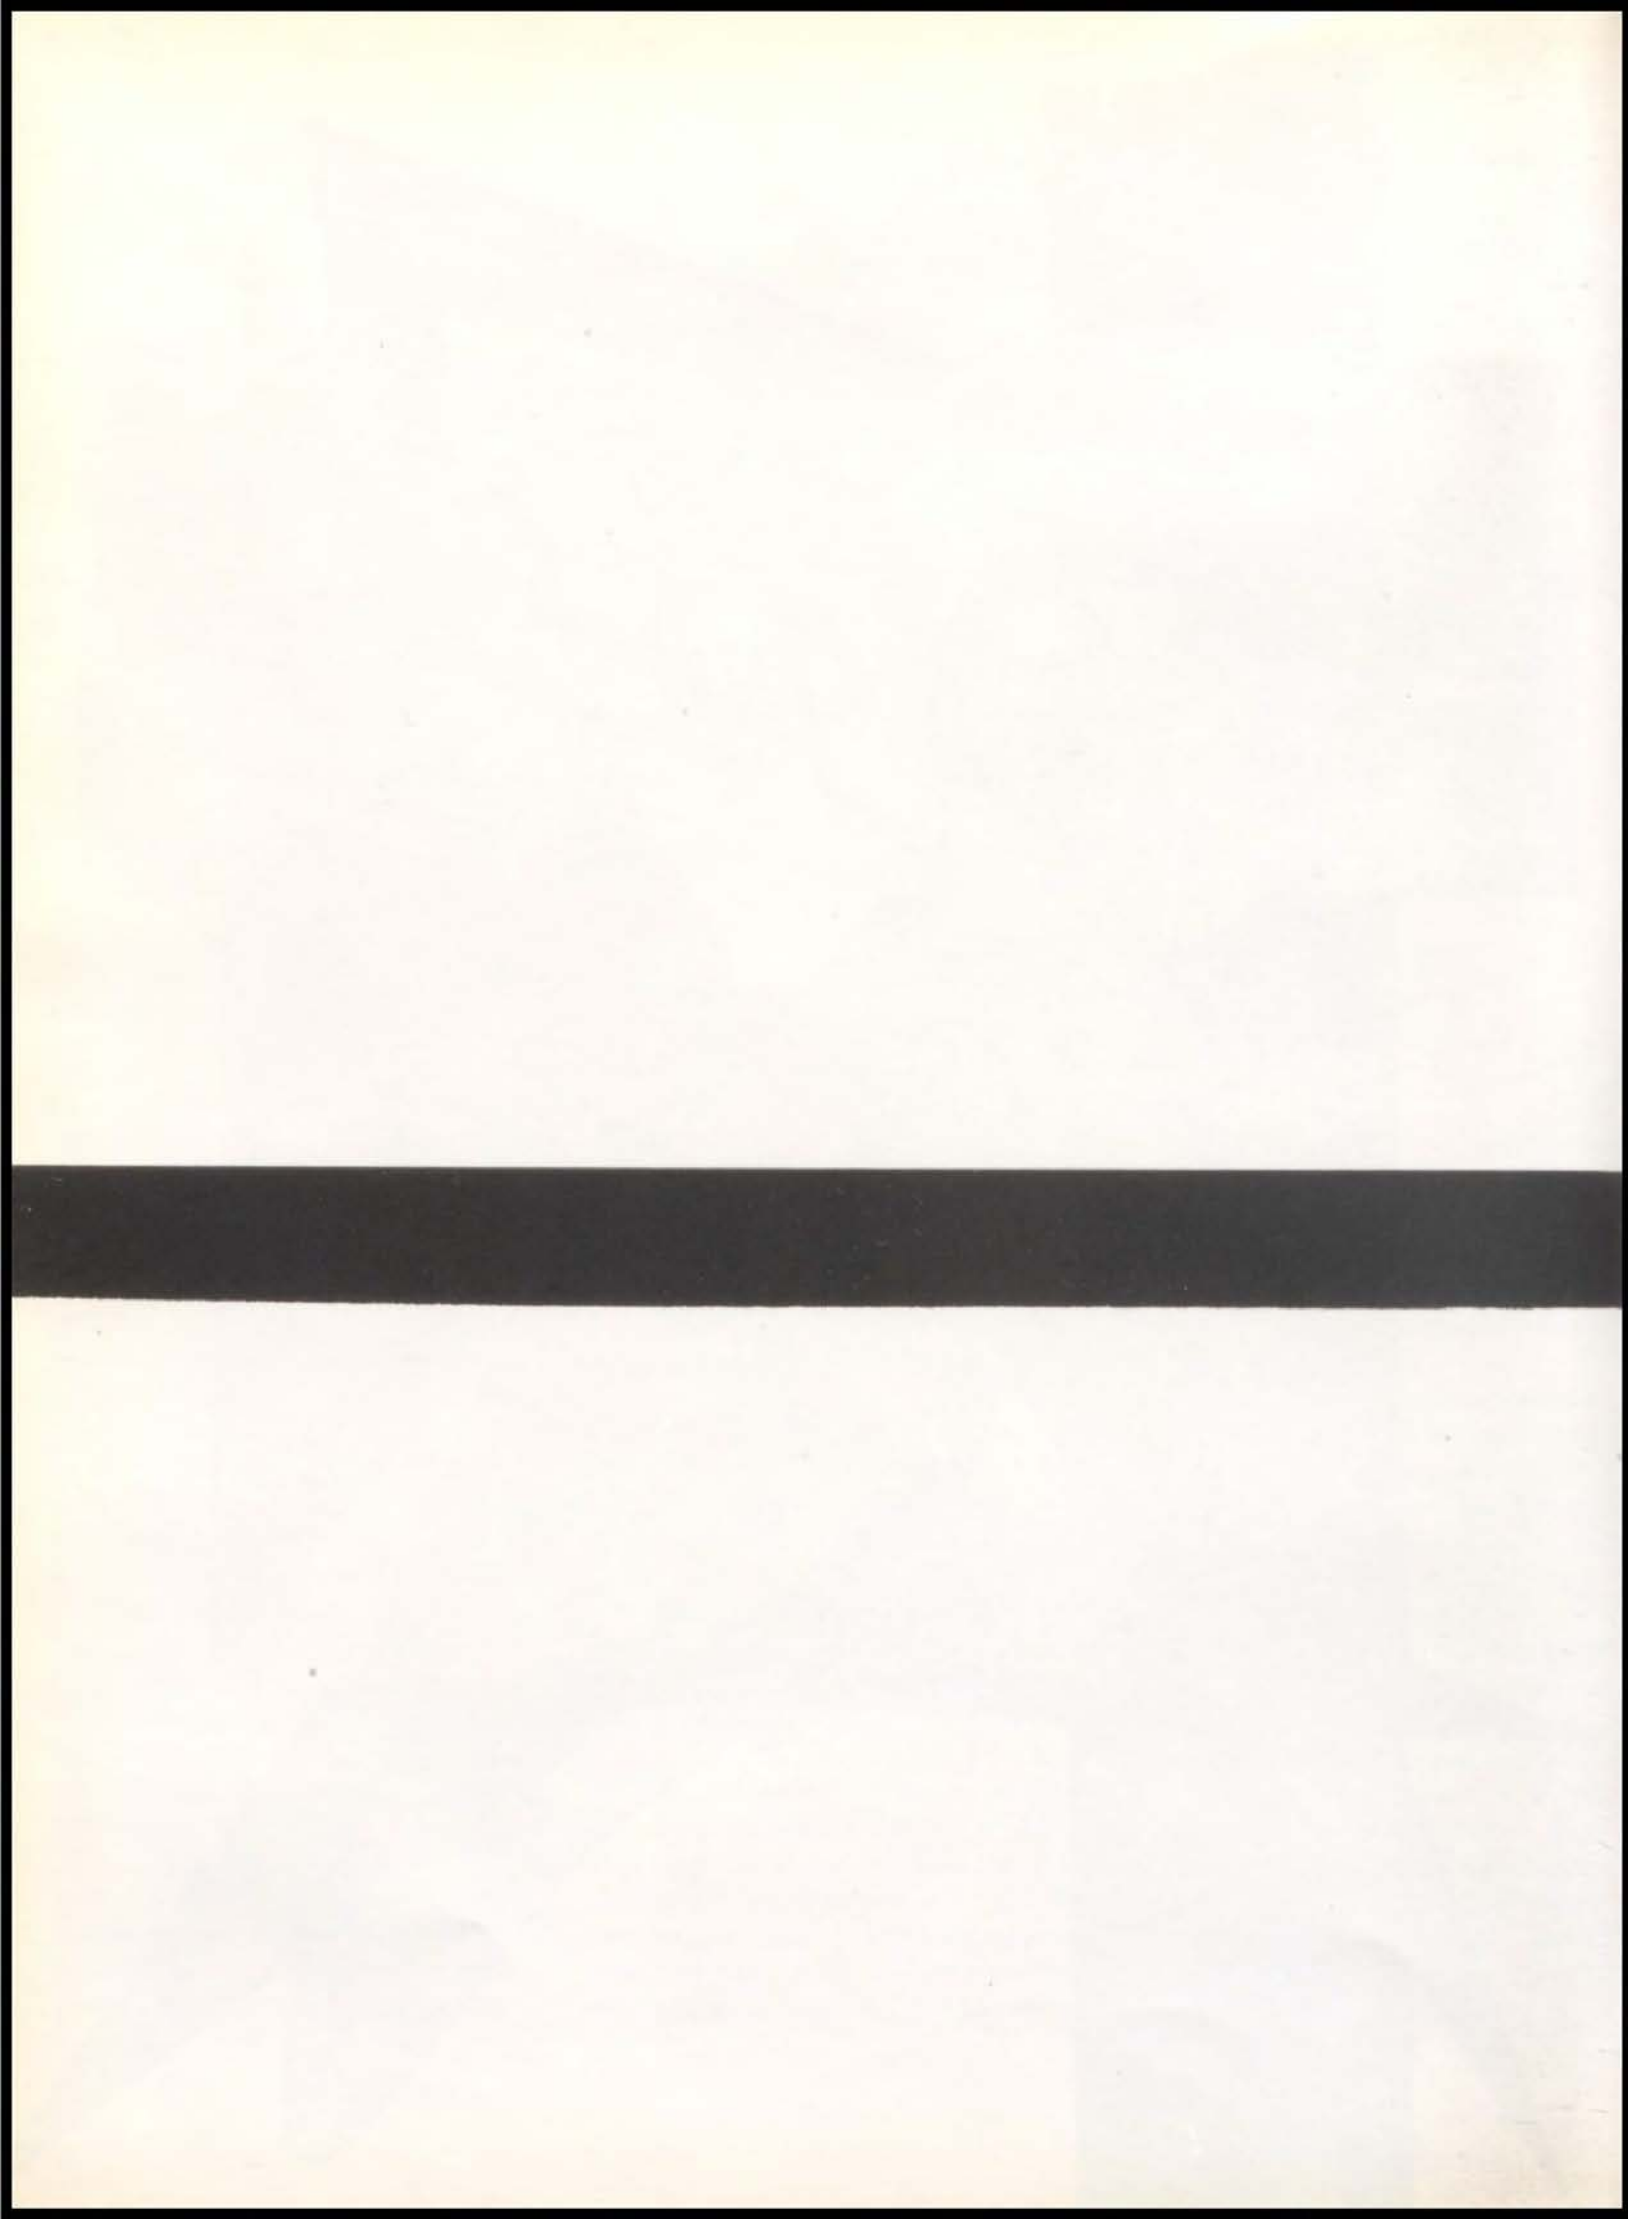

I suppose it is always hard to start a new school. It's interesting, exciting, and expanding, but it's still hard. It's hard to adjust. You are put into a thousand awkward positions that you don't know how to cope with. Also, with all its opportunities, a big school can be as limiting as a small one. But, you can find your place in both places, if you put your mind to it. And any place you can say that about is worth going to.

With this, the Nor'Easter staff would like to introduce you to the 1992 edition of the Nor'Easter entitled "Images".

FASHION IN

N.E. Fashion

Northeast students have always been on the cutting edge of fashion. This year has not been an exception and students have kept up with the latest image in vogue.

This past winter and fall, the "classic look" has had a major impact. Skirts have been fuller and not as tight fitting as in years past. Plaids decided to make a strong return to gibe that "school girl" impression. Chiffon blouses were seen in abundance this year, and in a wide assortment. Boots, thigh-high and knee-high, in particular, were the newest sensation at Northeast this year.

Accessories were the things to have. Hats! Hats! And more Hats! Hats were worn by many students outside of school, but not in school (because they are a violation of the dress code). Large colorful earrings were a hot item also.

Many items were neutral, and both genders wore some of the same styles of clothing: such as jeans with leather and ethnic prints. The fashion images the guys portrayed were statements of "All American" with rayon printed shirts, baggy pleated pants, and loafers.

In summary, chiffon blouses and accessories are the "in thing" and a must have. No matter what the students at Northeast wear, they are uniquely and always in fashion.

Creative Image

Don't you hate it when you buy an outfit that you think no one else will have, and as soon as you wear it somewhere, "BAM!" you see yourself coming and going all over the place?

There is a young lady here at Northeast who solves that problem. Her name is Dana Watson and she makes nearly all of her own clothes, and some of her little sisters, just to be original.

Dana learned to sew in the seventh grade, and thought it was fun, so from then on, she began to make her clothes. Her mother has agreed to pay for the things Dana needs, such as fabric, thread, buttons, etc. Other than using uncommon fabrics with unusual prints, she further diversifies her designs by changing the patterns that she sees in stores to suit her.

Dana has increased her sewing ability so much that she has decided to make her own prom dress. If you like, she will even make clothes for people outside her family (but for a small fee of course). She will charge you for the materials, which are usually inexpensive, and for the labor. This spring she is entering some of her clothes in a fashion show at Penn Valley. The grand prize is a partial scholarship. Miss Watson said that she is happy she learned to sew because if she doesn't do well in another career, "I'll always have something to fall back on."

Football Homecoming 1991-92 was kicked off with a dance, sponsored by student council. High spirited vikings filled the Holiday Inn Sports Complex to show their favorite dance moves.

Spirit week began on Monday with dress up day, followed by College Day, Twin Day, Whisper Day and the week was closed out with Spirit Day which allowed all the student to show their purple and white pride.

The big game took place on Saturday. It was the Northeast Viking vs. East Bears. Once again the Viking came out on top with a score of 32 to 26. Pushing halftime the band performed their "First Place Show" and the Homecoming Court was presented. Jamishia Johnson was crowned Queen, and the princesses were Senior Anna Butler, Junior DeShana Mitchell, sophomore Tina Compos, and freshmen Aisha Jones. " I felt like I've been here before was the feeling that filled the halls of Northeast. The Vikings once again live up to their image " the best getting better".

When walking down the hall, you may see two people walking together that look just alike. Could you be seeing double? Probably not, but you could be seeing identical twins. Twins may not have to look just alike. Many images of twins include dressing alike and looking alike. For example, they could be fraternal twins like Billy and Christy Cramer. They were born just minutes apart, yet they look totally different. "Being identical, you lose part of your identity. But being fraternal, you can have separate identities and still have a twin." On the other hand, we have one case of triplets: Dedra and Dwon Littlejohn are here at Northeast but their sister, Decean goes to East High. Dwon says, "It makes no difference to me, I don't care that I have two people that look just like me."

There are advantages and disadvantages to being an identical twin. Being mistaken for the other is a disadvantage that happens over and over. However, being able to fool people is definitely an advantage.

The most important factor of being a twin is having your own identity

COURTWARMING '92

This year's courtwarming dance was held at the Holiday Inn across from the Sports Complex. Since the dance was on Valentine's Day, the decorations made the room seem very romantic, along with the slow songs which set the mood.

To some of you this may seem a little sleepy and boring, but the room was later electrified when a large group of students began to do the electric slide which really livened the crowd.

Overall, the dance was a success, and the students and teachers of Northeast enjoyed themselves.

Glen Holmes and Anna Butler were the King and Queen of the courtwarming. The princes and princesses were as follows: seniors--Timothy Harden and Athena Eaton, Juniors--David Jackson and Stacia Sinsheuser, Sophomores--Chad Harrington and Dana Watson, and Freshmen--Geguiieffa Williams and Raquel Raya.

IMAGE OF "A JOCK", BY A JOCK

Jock is a symbol. A symbol of completion, of fulfilling every aspect in any young person's heart, a symbol of pride for what they are doing, gratitude in their superior physical condition, and the ability to do what any "jock" should do.

A "jock" does a lot of things in their day of glory. It makes everyone feel good to be in the spotlight! But with all of the beating and bruising the body takes in football, how do they have fun?

Well, let me tell ya! Before the game they get so psyched up they puke! Still with the butterflies, they charge out on the field with no feeling for others or their body, and ready to prove that they are the strongest, the craziest on the field. The line is smelly and people are growling, and yelling, "I'm gonna beat your ass, make you feel like you have been run over!!"

Still growling, the snot running down your face, from the intense coldness, then tackling a man for the first time is exhilarating! It makes you feel manly!! Now you are ready for anyone.

As a team, each one of the players in the game and on the sidelines cheer you on, make you

VIKING VOLLEYBALL

The 1991-92 volleyball season has come and gone but the Viking girls have definitely left their mark upon our school. Starting the season with new girls as well as a new coach, there was a dim outlook for the season, but with all the hard work and dedication they proved that anything can happen.

These ladies had a lot to learn about the proper technique and skills before defeating their opponents. The season outcome was a 7-1 win/loss record after tying with Lincoln Prep. for 1st place in the Interscholastic League. Although there were a couple injuries throughout the season, there wasn't anything these Vikings couldn't overcome. There were perfect passes, superb sets, and spectacular spikes, all which made the winning combination for the team. Towards the end of the season they started falling into a pit but managed to climb back up and earn the respect they deserved. One of the Senior players, Lanise Fry, held a high honor for Northeast by being named the MVP for the 91-92 volleyball season in the Interscholastic League. Through team work and the driving force of Coach Will Swoffer, the Viking girls had a tremendous season.

This years Viking team made a great impact on the volleyball season. With next years returning girls there is bound to be another winning season. For those who are leaving, it's another great achievement in the many things to come in their lives.

SEASON WRAP-UP : BASKETBALL

Unity, teamwork, togetherness, motivation, and support from the staff and students are the key factors that make up a winning team. "If everyone on the team participates and does their part, then we should have a winning team," says Tim Hall, one of the four seniors on the boy's varsity team.

"The team is okay now, but we need a lot of work to really get where we want to be," explains freshman Cornelius Hampton, who plays junior varsity and varsity. Each member on the team has a certain special performance that contributed to the team, except for Aaron Byrd, who was a bench warmer. His reply to his performance was "what performance?!?!?" None-the-less, every member contributes to the team, even if they don't get to play very often.

The team thinks their major problems were selfishness, hogging the ball, and disorganization. The players believe that these skills will improve for next year. The four freshmen on the varsity team are very confident in the years that lay ahead for the team. Mark Buchanan states, "as long as they give me the ball!" (referring to the outcome of their victories.) "I was the All-Star," asserts William Parker.

The senior players leave this advice to the remainder of the team: "work together, play as a team, and form a good defense."

Coach's View

The 1991-92 Varsity Girls Basketball season was very successful. The team showed a lot of determination and experience lead by Anna Butler and Lanise Fry.

They were third in the league and second in district. For the first time the girls came away with a winning season. Their record was 15-12.

Senior Lanise Fry lead all scores averaging 18pts per game, she also was an "All-Star". Senior Anna Butler lead the team in rebounding averaging 11 per game and was second in scoring averaging 15pts per game. She also was an "All-Star".

We are looking forward to next's year season which will be lead by Aisha Thornton and Tiffany Osborn.

WHAT IS TRACK?

Track is an activity that takes time, dedication, energy and of course a strong body and legs! The boys that have gone out for track, practice everyday and work especially hard in the events they would like to participate in. These events include anything from running hurdles to mile runs or even the long jump.

These boys are giving everything they've got: Antwoine Steele and Tim Harden have done a remarkable job in proving their ability. Antwoine's performance set a new school record of 39.34 sec. in the 300 m hurdles. Tim also set a new record with a time of 6.43 sec. in the 60 y. dash. These two returning seniors participated in the meet at Kansas University before the 1992 track season was in full swing.

TRACK

Inexperienced, young, and uncommitted runners are just a few of the reasons this year's girls' track team is having a hard time. Track is sport that calls for either natural talent or committed athletes. It is hard to excel when you lack either.

"This year's team was inexperienced, but willing to compete," says Coach Small. Coach Small also feels the team has not yet begun to fight. Carmen Morgan, a first year runner, says, "Track is a fun sport, but it takes hard work and dedication to excel!"

With only one Senior returning and young runners making major decisions, this season's outcome can be attributed to the practices and the inexperienced runners.

The team only had one experienced Senior returning, but despite that fact the group was interested in learning and competing. This track season was not all fun and games for the girls. But, since the team is so young there is room for growth.

GET INVOLVED

Is getting involved in extra curricular activities important to your high school years, and after graduation? You better believe it! It's important to get good grades and do well academically, and also to have the ability to work with people for a cause. Getting involved with Clubs and Organizations is a good way to learn how to deal with different ideas and feelings in such away that will be present in the world after high school.

Colleges are looking for a well rounded student who is involved in school and who is ready and willing to make a contribution to their college. Also, out in the work force they look for responsible individuals who are able to work with others to get the job done.

Many of the students who are interested in clubs and organizations do get involved with them. These people are responsible and work well individually as well as in a group.

Anyone can get involved in an activity. You just need self-respect and be able to respect others and their ideas. You also have to keep your grades up. Think about it, It's not that hard to get involved in clubs and organizations. Just go for it, What do you have to lose?

S.A.D.D. (Students Against Drunk Driving) is an organization of Northeast students who are dedicated to stop drinking and driving with messages year 'round in the school about the effects of alcohol abuse. S.A.D.D. hosts some activities like the Mini-Teen Institute and the "Day of the Living Dead" to help get the message across.

The best way to stop the abuse of alcohol is to get people informed, and this is done through the Hi-Step program. Hi-Step is a program in which high school students go to elementary schools and teach fifth graders about the abuse of alcohol, because fifth graders are at an age that is young enough to be receptive to the message and old enough to be able to understand it.

Hi-Step volunteers go into their school one day every other week and teach the students about peer pressure, negative feelings, low self-confidence and how to deal with it. These are the things that sometimes lead to depression and alcohol abuse.

Hi-Step makes a difference by showing that there are positive things about life and growing up. Once an elementary student told us that she had been depressed but felt better after the Hi-Step session.

After four visits, it is time to say good-bye. Our fifth visit is a wrap-up and farewell party organized by the Hi-Steppers.

Teaching them that there is an alternative to alcohol abuse, and hoping that they will spread the message for others will have made Hi-Step a success.

STUDENT RESPONSE TEAM

For several years now, there has been a Student Response Team at N.E. It is a team made up of about 45 students that mediate conflicts between peers.

The Young Lawyers Association sends a team of lawyers to Northeast to train the students and familiarize them with the mediation process. The students receive "hands-on" training, or rather, they use mock mediation to practice their skills, and to better understand them.

There are many advantages to having a Student Response Team at Northeast. Most importantly, mediation is offered as an alternative to suspension.

The reduced number of suspensions permit the students to remain in school and continue receiving their education.

Students involved in conflicts feel that SRT is more fair because their conflict is aired in front of their peers, who may have experienced the same problem or differences. (the usual way a conflict is dealt with is only to make matters worse) Frequently, the problem does get solved. Students also think the mediators are more sensitive.

The sponsors feel that the SRT members are sensitive to the needs of the Northeast students and are genuinely interested in helping them. Through the SRT, members exhibit excellence in school spirit. They uphold a high image for the school and respond to the needs of students by mediating conflicts and helping reduce suspensions.

BUSINESS MINDED INDIVIDUALS

FBLA (Future Business Leaders of America) has been very active this school year. To start the school year off, FBLA participated in a district meeting in which the officers discussed plans for the district contest. Also, during the year FBLA held a food drive, adopted a homeless family, visited a nursing home, helped with "liter control," sold keychains and Christmas wishes.

The biggest event for FBLA however, is the district contest--which was held at Rockhurst College on March 11, 1992. At the district contest, the members of FBLA competed in different events--such as job interview, impromptu, prepared speech, business English, business math and keyboarding.

Those students who won first place in a particular event received a trophy and went on to state contest.

Ms. Reichart--who has been sponsoring FBLA for the past four years--says "I believe strongly in what FBLA stands for--therefore I want to share my beliefs with outstanding business minded students at Northeast."

STUDENT COUNCIL

STUDENT COUNCIL

This year Student Council has accomplished many things, but not as they had hoped. They have organized events such as the Mayor's Christmas Fund which helped the needy, as well as sponsored the Homecoming and Courtwarming dances and activities.

Every school needs the students voice in what goes on, and this is the object of Student Council, they are the voice of the entire student body. This year the officers were elected in a very high tech way - they were videotaped and then aired on Channel One. These images are making our Student Council one of the best in the city.

Student council is one of the largest clubs in the school. The officers of Student Council are as follows: Irene Downs-President, Christy Cramer-Vice President, Diana Dang-Corresponding Secretary, Asha Sadarangani-Reporting secretary, and Radona Rowland-Treasurer.

Mr. Huehnergath and Mrs. Love are the two sponsors, according to them they think the Student Council officers "have done a good job." Even though the majority of the students in the club are females, we would like to see the males of Northeast show off their intellectual minds and be an integral part of the Student Council.

COMPUTER CLUB

When walking down the hall, you may see two people walking together that look just alike. Could you be seeing double? Probably not, but you could be seeing identical twins. Twins may not have to look just alike. Many images of twins include dressing alike and looking alike. For example, they could be fraternal twins like Billy and Christy Cramer. They were born just minutes apart, yet they look totally different. "Being identical, you lose part of your identity. But being fraternal, you can have separate identities and still have a twin." On the other hand, we have one case of triplets: Dedra and Dwon Littlejohn are here at Northeast but their sister, Decean goes to East High. Dwon says, "It makes no difference to me, I don't care that I have two people that look just like me."

There are advantages and disadvantages to being an identical twin. Being mistaken for the other is a disadvantage that happens over and over. However, being able to fool people is definitely an advantage.

The most important factor of being a twin is having your own identity

The Northeast Computer Club, under the sponsorship of Mrs. V.L. Young and Mrs. A. Ford, has had another interesting year. The club officers for 1991-1992 are: President, Kimberly Jones; Vice-President, Yolanda Clemoens; Secretary, Lanika Brown; Ass't. Secretary, Karla Valencia; and Treasurer, LaChandra Norton.

The club is composed mostly of students who are presently enrolled in, or who have previously been enrolled in Information Processing Classes. The members are usually identified around campus and at other school activities wearing black and white T-shirts with the Northeast Computer Club written on them. These identical shirts represent Unity and Dedication in providing Public Service to deserving individuals and institutions.

The club is committed to performing at least two Public Service projects each semester. Upon the completion of each project, the general consensus is: "We did a great job and we feel better for having done so." Our club motto is: "A good deed is the gift that keeps on giving."

From March 5 to March 7, Northeast students and Ms. Alyce Love, went to Jefferson City to help take over the state capitol. They succeeded. In 3 days, Northeast took home 3 awards. Charmaine Burns was awarded "Best Witness for the Plaintiff" and Irene Downs won "Best Witness for the Defendant", in the Judiciary Program. Then, in the Print Press section, Lori Hainen was awarded "Honorable Mention for Most Outstanding Reporter." In the three days we were there we made a lot of new friends, a little history, and the record for little to no sleep!.

DRAMA TECH

If someone told you that they were in Drama Tech, would you know what that was? Just because you don't know what it was, or what they do, that doesn't mean that it's not very important. In fact, Drama Tech is a very important club that doesn't receive enough recognition. Drama Tech is a club that deals with the organizing of anything that has to do with dramatic stage productions, or just the stage in general. When the drama class puts on a play, who do you think helps with the lights and sometimes even the curtains? It's the Drama Tech Crew. They also help set up the stage props and the microphones. If it weren't for the people behind the scenes, no one would ever see the actual scene itself. There are approximately 10 students in Drama Tech, and along with their sponsor Mrs. Gillyard, they try to make all stage productions a success.

Success should be the word to describe the Northeast high school band. Devotion, pride, dedication, leadership and commitment are the things it takes to be successful. Being consistent, and obtaining a positive public image are two things that have improved since Mr. May (the band director) has been here at Northeast.

The most unique thing about the band is their versatility. During marching band season, they portray a corp image and play contemporary music. In December of every year, the band switches to a more challenging area, switching to concert music to prepare for district competition.

The only thing Mr. May would like to improve is for his students to be as excited in all of their classes as they are in band. Mr. May states that the 1990 District contest in winning the IL for the third year in a row are the two performances he is most proud of.

LEAGUE CHAMPIONS

SPOTLIGHTING OUTSTANDING DRUM MAJORS

Senior Athena Eaton has been a member of the Northeast Marching band for five years now, starting in her eighth grade year at Northeast Jr. Athena says "Band is fun, I enjoy playing, and I also enjoy the trips we go on." Athena has received many awards in: Section Leader, 4 years; Drum Major, 1 year; Best Freshman, Sophomore, Junior; Best Section leader of 1990 and '91; Band Director's Award '90, at Florida A&M University; Band Director's Award, 1991; Most Spirited Award '90 at Florida A&M University.; Two scholarships received from camp at Florida A&M University, '90; National Bandsman Award '91; Districts: Honor Rating II, Freshman Year; Honor Rating I, Sophomore year; State Honor Rating II, Sophomore year; and Honor Rating II Junior year.

After high school, Athena plans to attend Florida A&M University to study medicine. She hopes to become an Anesthesiologist. Athena says while in band she has learned to be responsible, to be a good leader, and to be patient with people.

DRUM MAJORS: Athena Eaton and Abdul Abdelnassar.

Abdul Abdelnassar, a member of the Northeast Marching Band for four years, says that he heard good things about the band, and he wanted to be around people who were musically inclined. He knew he could find that here at Northeast where his greatest accomplishment has been as the Drum Major.

Abdul plans to attend Morehouse College and would like to study aeronautical/aerospace engineering. He would also like to continue his music studies.

Abdul thinks that the band has improved a great deal since his freshmen year. He hopes that the band will continue to succeed after he leaves.

CHEERLEADERS

CHEERING FOR SUCCESS

As far as cheerleading goes, "pulling together through tough times is one of our greatest strengths as a squad," is what Olivia Raya, captain of the varsity squad, says as she looks back upon this school year. "When bad things kept coming our way, I didn't know how the squad would handle it."

Jamishia Johnson, Renee Madison, DeShana Mitchell, Danielle Fry, Jennifer Moss, Rea Rivera, Shonett Wigfall, Amanda Bruemmer, Olivia Raya, and Sherry Cloe make up the varsity squad, the biggest squad at Northeast in a long time. "With a bigger squad comes bigger problems. I think that this year our squad had had a lot of misfortunes," explains Renee, a cheerleader for two years.

Last summer, the squad consisted of 12 girls and two alternates. There were three freshmen, five sophomores, five juniors, and one senior, but because of a decision that came from down town, the freshmen were kicked off of the squad, with only two weeks before camp. "A tremendous amount of stress was put on the remainder of the squad," Renee replies.

After football season, because of disagreements within the squad, and between the sponsors and a few administrators, Linda Verburg and Linda Harris were relieved of their duties as cheer sponsors. They were replaced by Marla Tolett-Ross. "A lot of stress fell upon members of the squad because of all the time it took to solve the problem. It took about a month, Olivia says, "For a while it seemed like we were left hanging, suspended in air, because we had no sponsor."

Bad experiences also bring good ones. Jamishia Johnson was chosen as a representative of the Northeast cheer squad, to participate in the New Year's Day Parade in London where she meet cheerleaders from across the United States and share cheerleading experiences with them. "Everybody really loved being there, but couldn't wait to go home," Jamishia says. Now, she spends her time teaching the squad a dance that she learned and performed in the parade.

With the coming of the new sponsor, the cheerleaders say that a lot of problems have been solved and a tremendous weight has been lifted off of their shoulders. "Everything seemed to fall into place. She fit in perfectly," says Danielle, with a sign of relief on her face. No major changes have occurred with the way the squad functions. "We didn't think that we would get a sponsor that everyone would agree on, but we were wrong," Shonett says.

The junior varsity squad was a new addition to the cheerleading program this year. There are four freshmen girls on the junior varsity squad. They are Yolanda Neale, Raquel Raya, Karistina Kunellis, and Lori Nickell. "It was kind of hard but all varsity girls put in time and a lot of practice to train the new squad," says Olivia.

This cheer squad values their ability to work together and plan to use it to help them succeed to their fullest.

POM PONS

This year the fall tryouts led to a new promising squad. Starting off with only two returning Poms from last year's squad, and no summer camp experience, we were lucky to find the talented people who now make up the squad.

We made it through. The girls are very enthusiastic, and their performance is the best in recent years. Most of them have a very positive outlook on what is going on, they practice dances on their own, and they teach the others steps that are neat.

Working together and forming a positive image is what makes this year special. We may have started out kind of rough in some areas such as pom techniques, but improvement is evident every time we practice.

SOUNDS OF.....

Do you ever wonder what it would be like to be in the military? If so go to the gym during the advisement hour. Upon entering, two things are noticeable: the loud and clear instruction also the smell of rubber from the people's shoes sliding along the floor. All around the gym the students in their company are getting instructions for the next day inspection.

After receiving the information the students are dismissed expect for the male and female drill teams also the color guard. They stay behind to practice their routines for future performances. The drill teams march in a line of threes around the gym so does the color guard but in a single line. Soon the drill teams add a chant to go along with their marching. The students are serious about their routines people will drop and do push-ups if they are not doing something correctly.

To add to the confusion there are not only military students but the volleyball team is taking their pictures at the other side of the gym. The pictures being taking are team pictures and individual players with the awards from their achievements this year. While this is going on the military students been marching and chanting till the bell rings, ignoring everything but their own routine.

By Sayam Chaiyote

Sgt. Monroe has spent the past 9 years here at N.E. and all of this time he has been dedicated to motivating the cadets of the military department.

Sarge has helped all of the teams succeed in their competitions and in the military classes. He has earned a very respectful reputation and we hope he will continue to be part of our military family for years to come.

SPOTLIGHT OF OUTSTANDING MILITARY IMAGES

C/ Lt. Col. James Hamp

James Hamp, highly disciplined, well mannered, extremely demanding, dependable, is just one of the popular faces seen by military cadets today. James, who is one of Northeast's Battalion Commanders this year portrays an image of no emotion who rarely shows any facial expression. He stuts the halls and quietly does what needs to be done. James, has succeeded in many aspects of the military, he has in the past commanded the male drill team. He also holds the current rank of cadet Lt. Col. "Getting it done" is James motto and what he does because everyone that when James Hamp is on the job, the job gets done.

James has many goals and dreams that he wishes he could fulfill in the future, he has already has gotten a jump on some of them. Currently, James is scheduled to enter the Army and receive money for college, one of his many aspirations. James Hamp, witty, friendly, intelligent, inquisitive, and an inspiring young man who is on his way to becoming just what he wants. So, at graduation we will all say goodbye to an excellent student and a great friend wishing him the best as he leaves these halls and enters the real world.

C/2nd Lt. Michelle Woolfolk

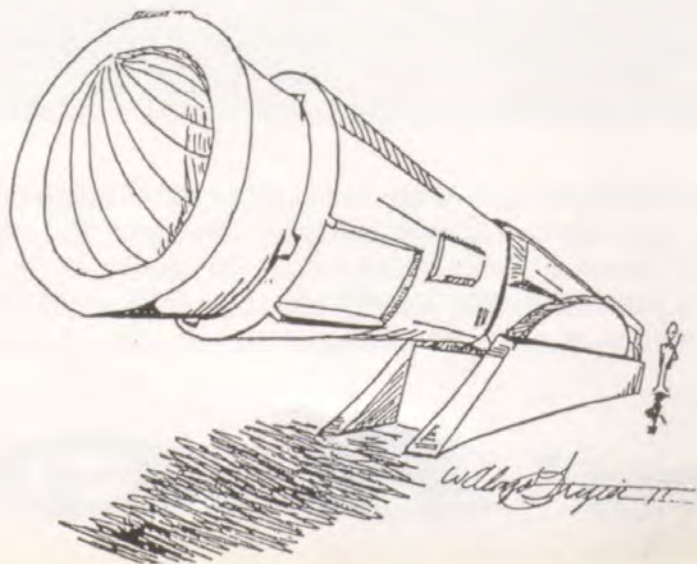

When you see cadet 2nd Lt. Michelle Woolfolk the image you get is not that of a weightlifter. Well, she is and each time she competes her weight total gets higher. "I started weight lifting because I didn't like people thinking I was too small and weak," stated Michelle, "so I'm out to prove them wrong!"

Miss Woolfolk is state champion in both Missouri and Kansas in her weight class. Everytime she has a competition she has gotten 1st place gold medals except for once last year when she got 2nd place. Michelle plans to continue weightlifting next year and even in college. While in college, she plans to get a four year degree in accounting. She is taking an accounting class, now as a junior, that will be very helpful in fulfilling her future plans.

C/Cpt. Kati Keim

When you first walk in to the cadet staff office (S-I office) you see a familiar face. The face is of Cadet Captain Kati Keim. Kati is a Lit 3, which means simply she has been in R.O.T.C. for three years. In the three years she has been in R.O.T.C. she has participated in the female color guard for two years. Last year she was on company staff as the S-I, and this year is the Brigade S-I. The image Kati has about her future is rather simple "to attend Missouri University" is what she stated. To top off her years here at Northeast she was nominated and won the queen of the ball last year. As she walks across the stage and starts the first leg of life she will be greatly missed by the teachers and cadets in Military Science.

SHOOTERS

Sight, breath, squeeze. Just a few of the things that makes one good. It takes long hours of practice and improvement every day to do what we do. Some know us as "those shooting people." What we really are is the Northeast Viking Brigade Rifle Team.

Some think the talents we have, we were born with but, it takes drive, determination, and the will to be the best shooter. It also takes more than picking up a rifle, aiming it at black circles and shooting. Concentration, the competitive edge, and a solid team effort contribute to every success.

CLASSROOM

When you first take a glimpse of one of the military classes you would see some familiar images of people standing together with a few cadets whispering amongst each other. As the commander in charge yells "Attention" then there a complete silence as everyone who was talking is now is quiet, there is absolutely no movement. Then the commander yells, "Dismissed" the high ranking cadets run out make sure the let one's and let two's get to their class rooms. The let one's learn the basic information about ROTC, map reading, oral communication, and rifle training. The let two's have refresher courses over the previous year. Then they learn about first aid, with a special emphasis on Drug and Alcohol abuse. They watch video's on these subjects. The cadets are watching and learning quietly as they are ingesting everything they see and hear.

R.O.T.C. BALL

The ROTC Ball was hopping as every school was entering the Arrowhead club. The schools that attended were Northeast, Metro, East, Central, and VanHorn. The dinner dance was nice as females went roaming around with their dates and giggle amongst each other. As the ball progressed on the male cadets strutted their stuff as they presented the candidates for the ball queen and court of their school, NE presented the following girls: as queen it was c/Csgm Diana Dang, 1st princess was c/2Lt. Tiffany Henderson, 2nd princess was c/Sgt. Erica Williams, and 3rd princess honored that night was c/2Lt. Suzanne Smith. As the ball wound down people scurried on to the dance floor for the the last dance of the night. The instructors wave good-bye as the chimes ring out at 12:00 and the night is done.

The Veterans Day Parade, "we stood out from the rest."

Major Waller (from the Air Force) is here to help us, in our studies and to help us become better citizens. At first, we were just an Army JROTC unit. Then we became a military magnet, with instructors from the Air Force and Army. Since we have changed we have accomplished a lot and have become very proud of all we have accomplished.

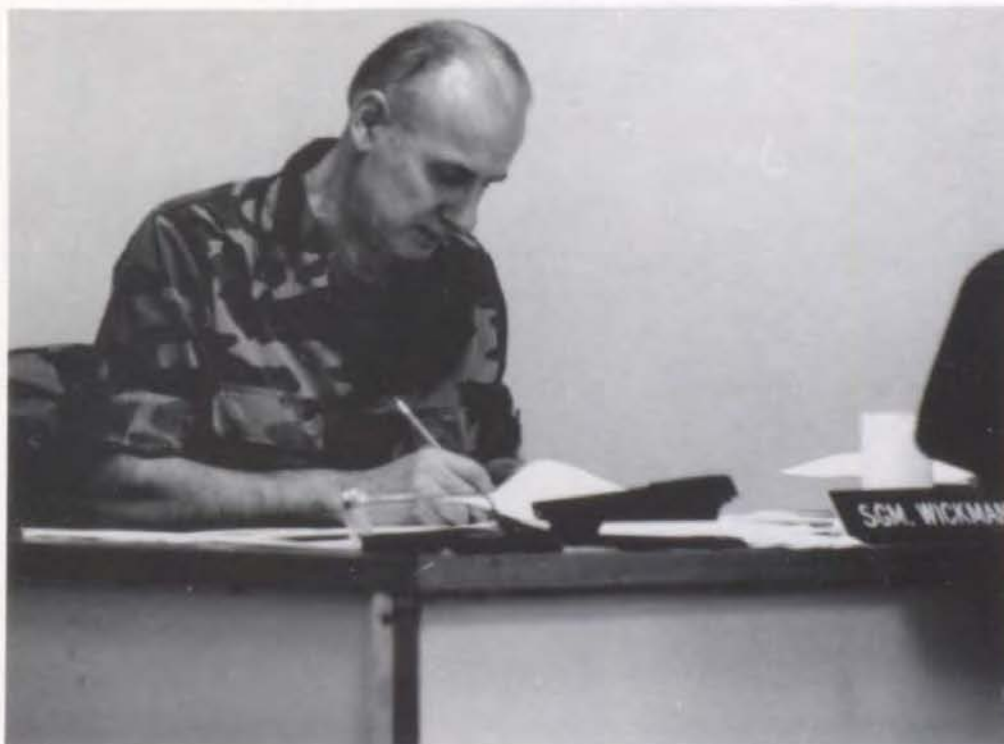

The Northeast Military is the ROTC everyone has thier eye on; They try to become better than us; They try to beat us at competition, too. We've come a looonnng way. We're always the best getting better. No matter what anyone says we will always follow the creed not the Army Air Borne Units. We will always "Lead the way!"

The "Winds of Change" have sent a tornado through the Northeast Military. Today, Northeast has made quite a name for themselves as becoming the true team to beat from meet to meet!

The cadets on the Drill Team and the Color Guard work long and hard for the meets. Winning the trophies and becoming the team that causes everyone to hold their breath when the teams hit the floor.

MAKING THE GRADE

For some students, making the grade is hard, while for others, it comes naturally. During your high school years, academics is one of the most important elements. Without making the grade, you can't be in football, basketball, volleyball, track, computer club, or any other extra curricular activities or sports. Plus, you won't be able to pass your classes or graduate. So, making the grades is very important for both now and the future.

military, and so on). Plus, making good grades and giving high G.P.A. makes it easier to get scholarships for college. Not only that, but, making the grades and being involved in extra curricular activities and sports looks good on a resume.

So, "making the grade," has an effect on everyone's future, and, as you look throughout this section, you will see what it is like for students who are academically involved by "making the grade," and

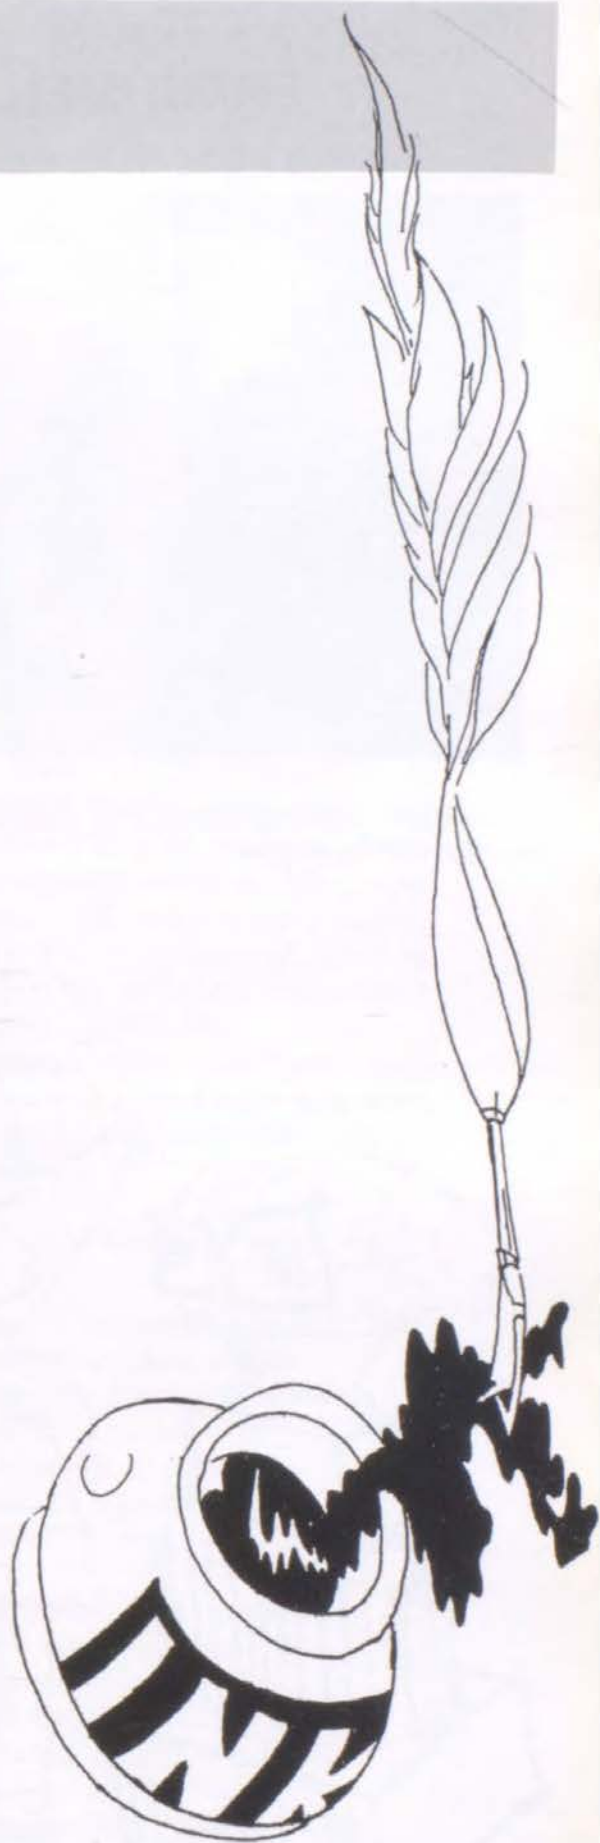

Being involved academically is a major part of students' school years. Passing and failing classes and participating in extra curricular activities and sports has a major effect on a student's future. Passing and failing classes will determine whether or not students will graduate and therefore will have an effect on a students' decisions for their future (decisions such as whether or not to go to college, which college to go to, what to major in, how to pay for college, where to work at, whether or not to go into the

you will see how it effects them, their decisions, and their future.

And remember, "GO FOR THE GRADE!" it could change your future!

TOP 5% FRESHMEN

Every year a new class of freshmen arrive at Northeast. The attitudes of the upper-classmen toward the freshmen are dumb and don't know anything, but there are always a few exceptions.

"I think all freshmen should do well because it determines what we are going to do in our future life," says Jammie Afrisio, who is one of the top five of the freshmen class.

"Being in the top five shows that we are good students, and it is important that we are," she says.

These freshmen didn't use the common excuse of being in a new environment or that they are intimidated by the upperclassmen. So, what are their secrets?

"I stay up late to do homework and study for tests, if I need to," says Michael Dang, who participates in other activities in and outside of school. "I try to do most of my work at school," replies Katrina Bridge, also involved in other activities.

Minh Phan can't speak English very well, but she can read it. She states, "I listen to the teachers, and if I don't understand something, I get a dictionary."

These freshmen plan to continue their success in their academics and encourage their fellow freshmen to do the same. Though Coa's advice to his classmates is, "Study and do your best. Don't ditch or skip school."

TOP 5% SOPHOMORES

On the top of the sophomore class are Hour Meng, Thanh Nguyen, Rea Rivera, Phongz Nguyen, and Teresa Tran. These five sophomores have committed themselves to academic excellence.

These top sophomores plan to attend college. Hour and Thanh want to attend UMKC, Rea plans to go to Harvard or to an Ivy League school. Phong desires to attend Yale, and Teresa wants to go to Notre Dame. After college, Hour, Thanh, and Phong want to become engineers. Teresa and Rea wish to become lawyers but Rea also has interest in being a doctor.

What is their advice on studying? Hour says people should take more time to read and think. Rea suggested taking studying more seriously and find a relaxing way to study. Phong advises to listen to music while studying. Teresa said memorizing helps her.

These sophomores know where they want to go and what they want to do. Undoubtedly, they will be successful in life.

Hour Meng is the number one ranking student in his class, it's no wonder why he's on the top of his class-his role model is Albert Einstein. For Hour to continue his academic success, he takes his books home and studies? He said " It feels great."

Hour is enrolled in dynamic classes but say"s his classes are not hard. His favorite subject is math, after high school Hour wants to go to UMKC, in the future he wants to be an electric engineer.

Even through Hour has two more years of high school ,he is on the right track to becoming successful in the world.

Alisha Gambino has a 3.964 GPA which places her first over all other juniors. IT should certainly feel good to be known as having the best grades over all your class.

Alisha is involved in a number of extra-curricular activities. Some of which are band, where she plays the clarinet, National Honor Society, and LULAC (Hispanic Leadership Opportunities Program.) The reason that Alisha strives to do well in school. Not very many teenagers seem to be that focused. She also enjoys school, which could be the reason she does so well. After she graduates from high school, she plans to further her education, and improve her drawing ability by attending the Art Institute, she wants to have a career as a commercial artist.

Just a hair behind Alisha is Tonya Hankins with a 3.928 GPA. Tonya said that being ranked so highly in her class makes her "feel great!" When we asked her if she liked school, she said the reason she comes every day is to be around boys because they make school more exciting. After graduation, she wants to go to MU and study law. She hopes to be a corporate lawyer.

Deundara Sysavath is a shy and quiet junior who is will focused and ranked third in her class. She likes school, and after graduation plans to go to either MU or KU. After she gets her four year degree she wants to go to medical school and become a doctor.

Amanda Bruemmer is ranked fourth in her class with a grade point average of 3.875. She said she enjoys school a lot and is involved in many after school activities. Her parents have influenced her to do well in school. Amanda plans to go to South Carolina State at Myrtle Beach or MU, and after graduation she hopes to be a lawyer or a doctor.

The person ranked fifth in the class is 1993 is different from all the others because he is the only male. Sayam Chaiyote doesn't have any favorite classes, and basically likes school. He said he is going to apply for Yale "just to see if I can get in!" He wants to have a career in business, or something like business management or a corporate lawyer.

TOP 5% of the SENIOR CLASS

After four long years of tough academics, athletics, and work, the top five seniors are ready for graduation. Currently all five are taking some college courses, a full or partial class schedule, and/or work. That's a lot to do in only 24 hours. For some students it would be easy to do, but for others it could be very stressing.

Take the Valedictorian for instance. Chheng Ly Meng is currently taking four college courses and also has a full eight hours at N.E. She also works and attends extracurricular activities. Then there is the Salutatorian, Melissa Smith. She takes a college course, works on the media staff, and has seven classes. She also is President of the National Honor Society, is manager for the volleyball team and is a track member.

Third ranked Dang Dang also is taking college courses and works over 40 hours a week. Then there is fourth ranked Anna Butler, who has an even larger load. Anna takes four college courses, has a full eight classes, has double position on the media staff, and is an athletic star in both basketball and track. Last but not least, fifth ranked Veronica Hooker works part time, takes three college courses, and participates in after school activities. Wow!

So, what are their plans after high school? Well, three of the senior five plan to attend college for their medical fields, while the others have their own goals. Chheng and Anna both plan on majoring in pre-medicine, where Melissa plans to major in nursing. Dang is undecided, while Veronica has set her sights on being an accountant. One had better be pretty tough to challenge any of these young people.

1992 VALEDICTORIAN

Coming from a small providence in Cambodia, one of Northeast's seniors has worked her way to the top. Chheng Ly Meng, the 1992 Valedictorian, was born in Battambang, Cambodia, and lived there for nearly seven years. She and her family--consisting of her parents and six siblings--lived in the small community in which Chheng's parents owned their own store.

In the late 1970's, Chheng's family decided to make the move to universal freedom. So in 1979, the Mengs started for the United States. With stays like three and a half years in Thailand, and seven months in the Philippines, some problems were sure to arise, but none like the tragedy that hit. In May of 1984, Mr. Meng (Chheng's Father) died in the Philippines. But by one month later, the remaining Meng family finished the journey and made it to the California coast, and later settled in Kansas City. The Meng family flourished and grew.

And today, Chheng looks forward to graduation.

ACADEMIC ACHIEVERS

National Honor Society--which is sponsored by Mrs. Rosanna Don Carlos--has been formed to recognize students who excel in scholarship, leadership, service, and character. In order to be in National Honor Society, you must have at least a 3.5 accumulative grade average and approval of the faculty.

The National Honor Society held an assembly in March to take in new members. Plus, they have meeting regularly to discuss their plans, have money making activities-- such as sales from brochures--and have at least one service project a year. For instance, last year, National Honor Society ran an essay contest for senior high schools throughout our district and awarded prizes for first, second, and third places.

The officers of National Honor Society are: Melissa Smith--president, Deuandara Sysavath--vice-president, Ramisha Givham--secretary, RaDona Roland--treasurer, and Latania Cage-- Sgt.-at-Arms, Melissa Smith (president) says, "The National Honor Society is good for the academic achievers because it gives us the chance to sit back and laugh. For once we're just the kid next door and not the "nerd".

Mrs. DonCarlos says, "I enjoy working with students in extra curricular activities and I've always been interested in National Honor Society--especially because I was a member in High school."

When you think of academic what images come to mind? Smart, bookworms, maybe someone who knows their goals in life. One who plans and follows through on responsibilities. Someone who has knowledge and knows how to use it.

Academics mean certain things. Such as books, tests, awards, scholarships, and fellowships. There are many images of academics.

Some people who have achieved academic images are Melissa Smith, Sayam Chaiyote, Alisha Gambino, and Tónya Hankins. These are just a few of the any academic students in the school. Many others possess an academic image. Look around and think about who you feel has an academic image. Could it be you?

Close-up Washington

On December 12 through the 18, a group of students went to Washinton D.C. too get a hands on experience in playing a role in our government. The sponsors were Mrs. Phillips and Mr. Schimdt.

Throughout the week we went to several seminars. We also got the chance to see various different monuments throughout the city such as the Vietnam Veterans Memorial and the Lincoln Memorial. For fun and entertainment they took us to the Hard Rock Cafe and to see a Christmas play at Fords Theater.

Students attended from different states around the U.S. such as Arizona, Texas, Rhode Island, Missouri and Puerto Rico. There was quite a language barrier the first few days but as the week went on, we were communicating very well. A lot of friendships were made that week and some will probably last a lifetime! For our last day we had a free day and our school visited the Arlington Cemetary, the Smithsonian and the Pentagon City Mall. For the finale that night we had a banquet dinner, a talent show (which Northeast participated in and sang "Rudolph the Red Nose Reindeer") and a dance. In the end it was hard to say goodbye, but our memories will last forever.

COLLEGE COURSES

Outragous college costs have prompted many students to steer away from college. Fortunately, students at Northeast have been given the opportunity to defer some of the cost by taking college courses like English 110/204 and American History 101/102.

English 110/204 offers students the chance to enhance both their writing and reading comprehension skills while, at the same time allowing them to obtain college credit from the University of Missouri Kansas City (UMKC.) Each course is a semester in length and offers the students the opportunity to obtain three credit hours in English 110 (writing course) and 1 credit hour for English 204 (reading comp. course). The price of these courses range in price from $35-$20 respectively. Samara Molix, a student currently enrolled in the English course says, "I like the idea of being able to take college courses at a cheaper price and the fact that the teacher works with you on a one to one basis."

Another course offered is American History 101/102. The course costs students $75 compared to $267 per semester that college students pay. This allows high school students to get the same amount of experience for one-third of the actual cost.

According to Ms. Hunt, the American History 101/102 instructor, there are quite a few advantages to taking the course in high school. It gives Juniors and Seniors a headstart on college credits. When the student goes to college they are free to take other classes, besides the first year history course. This class also helps you to improve writing and thinking skills which will have to be used a lot in college. Students that take college courses are granted library passes at U.M.K.C., which has helped out the students in writing reports that are currently enrolled in the course.

Ms. Hunt is quoted as saying, "I would recommend this class to any student planning to attend college." If you take this course and try, and stick with it, you'll not lose anything. As a result you will gain experience that will benefit you in college.

Math & Physics

Institute

MPI stands for Mathematics and Physics Institute. This program gives high school seniors a chance to experience college-level courses at no cost. This program benefits students not only in math and physics, but in all subjects by learning valuable study skills

This program was established in September 1984 with high school seniors in mind. It gives a more in depth look into these two subjects. to take this course you need to be determined to work hard. It's not an easy course to take. But if you give it all you have in the long run it will be worth it.

There's many benefits to the MPI program you earn college credit up to 12 hours) interact with other students from other schools, be eligible for one of five UMKC Chancellor's Tuition Award scholarships available only to MPI students, and feel the shock of college before getting in full time.

This program starts after Labor Day and continues to mid May. MPI classes start at 7a.m. and you return to school at 8:45 a.m. The courses now taught are calculus I, Calculus II, and General Physics I. These are offered for both college and high school credit. Some of the things the MPI students get involved in are lectures, problem solving, field trip, enrichment sessions, laboratory, and special projects. There are three participating school districts. They are Fort Osage, Independence, and Kansas city, Mo.

There are 10 seniors who are involved in the MPI program. They are Anna Butler, Dung Dang, Veronica Hooker, Rorn Im, Desmond McGuire, Nha Truc Nguyen, Latonya Slaughter, Thuy Tran, Kim Loan Thi Vo. These seniors give it there all at this program. They learned not to give up but to stick with it through everything. They deserve a pat on the back.

SUMMER MEDIA WORKSHOP

Over the summer, several students visited the University of Missouri in Columbia for five days of intensive classes. During this period of time, these students learned how to write simple and difficult papers, while others learned the way to produce a yearbook.

Staying in dorms and seeing how college life really is, getting up early enough that the rooster was still sleeping, and staying up late enough that even the stoplights were off, was not all that bad. Working on what was due the next day or trying to figure out what was learned in that nine hours of class time proved difficult at times, but fun at others.

At the end of the week, everyone was tired and worn out, but had enough energy to go to the dance and to the awards ceremony, where Northeast was represented by Dwon Littlejohn, who was elected President of M.I.P.A. (Missouri Interscholastic Press Association and Asha Sadarangani and John Bray won the best cover and theme design in the yearbook division.

Everyone had a blast along with a very educational experience, meeting unique people, and having fun while they worked. But, we learned most importantly, that writing can be fun.

Ahh!!! It's Russia Time!!!!

David Jackson and Mrs. Smith Take Russia

For two weeks in December, Mrs. Alma Smith experienced the changing Soviet Union (Now called the Commonwealth of Independent States") first hand.

While there, they visited such places as Moscow, St. Petersburg, Magnitogorsk, Red Square, four Soviet schools and a Soviet department store called "Gum". They even got the opportunity to eat dinner at the Kremlin.

The trip, sponsored by Junior Achievement, was made for the purpose of explaining capitalism to the Soviet people. There were many more people from other schools all over the country with them.

"Move over Russia, Here We Come", says Ms. Alma Smith and David Jackson,

RUSSIA/AMERICA DIFFERENCE

They've been here for less than two years but, have adjusted well.

When Oleg Murudyan,16, Natalya Murudyan,18, and Ruslan Kasporav,18, came to the U.S. from what is now called "The Common Wealth ", they weren't expecting so many changes and differences.

In the Soviet Union, if you were under 18 years of age, you couldn't work, but when they arrived in the U.S., the first thing they had to do was find a job. They then had to adjust to a drinking age, speed limit, and no smoking in schools. Although it did take time, they adjusted.

They summed up America in one word..."Smile". Because,"American's smile too much !" says Ruslan.

MIRROR IMAGES

Mr. Nelson and Mr. Middleton

The first image one sees in a classroom is a teacher. In the combined 46 years, two of Northeast's teachers have built a foundation of education for their students. One is a science teacher who dreamed of being a farmer, while the other raced his way through school and mathematics. Mr. Calvin Nelson and Mr. Reynold Middleton have joined the same team to educate young minds.

Coming from a family of teachers, Mr. Nelson also chose teaching and has an accumulation of 40 years (36 here at Northeast and 4 at Norway county, Missouri). In his experience Mr. Nelson has an impressive resume: a Bachelors degree in mathematics, and minors in agribusiness, physics, and general science. To top off his achievements, he also has a certificate in school administration.

But why? Well, Mr. Nelson just simply said, "Cause I liked it," and he loves to teach. But his counterpart, Mr. Middleton, credits Mr. Nelson as a role model and mentor.

After graduating from Northeast in 1981, Mr. Middleton pursued a math degree at Northwest Missouri State University. He began teaching at Excelsior Springs High School, but after two years, he returned to his Alma Mater, Northeast. He is currently in his fourth year of teaching. When asked why he came back to Northeast, Mr. Middleton replied he wanted to give something back to his high school.

In reference to his teaching, Mr. Middleton believes he has a special bond with his students. He thinks this is because he is the youngest faculty member and he has a "good repore with the students." As his biggest goal for his students, Mr. Middleton hopes in "some way positively influence (his) students," whether that be in math or achieving higher success in life.

Both men see themselves as educators and ten years down the line, well that's another story. Mr. Nelson hopes to retire to his rocking chair, while Mr. Middleton hopes to run wild through the Pacific Northwest, but still teach somewhere.

Look at Me!

Hot Shot

When you think of academics, who comes to mind? One who may come to mind is junior, Deuandara Sysavath. Deuandara has been in the top five of her class since her freshmen year. She has determination to succeed in whatever she does. She is an academic achiever in all areas of education and extra-curricular activities. Her first semester of her junior year, she received a 4.0 which is nothing for her, since she has received that grade point average many other times in her years at Northeast. On top of her achievements in the classroom, she was inducted into the National Honor Society in her sophomore year. She is Vice-President of the National Honor Society now and loves it. She wants to become a doctor because she has a great interest in medicine.

SENIORS

AT THEIR BEST

"I swear, it wasn't me officer!"

"Lorie, did you know you were on candid camera?"

"These American dances are wild!"

"I've fallen and I can't get up."

REMEMBER

Remembering back on the good old days, starting from the bottom heading towards the top. Reaching for those high goals one on one going from class to class barely hanging on.

Remember....Seniors?

Trying to build a relationship, slipping and sliding, friends letting us down, not to mention uninvited. Rumors spreading every which way we went, wondering what to do or how to make it.

Remember....Seniors?

Teachers driving us nuts, so that we can be the best, taking those big heavy books home working toward success. Running toward those big heavy doors trying to escape, although those heavy large guys are blocking our way.

Remember....Seniors?

Wrestling against one another, tugging and struggling, nasty words foaming at the mouth, shouting and screaming all about. He said, she said always gets us in trouble, leaving us angry and puzzled.

Remember....Seniors?

SENIORS

Brains hurting from taking such hard tests, cheating and copying just to beat that old pest. Scared half to death, time for grade cards, then we start praying to the good graces of the Lord.

Remember....Seniors?

Hall freeze after hall freeze being caught in, still roaming the halls until we are caught again, suspension comes around we are fussing and cussing, they find us again but this time we get ten.

Remember....Seniors?

Going on those boring field trips just to get out of class, walking out the door, thinking we are free at last. Bundling up on the big yellow bus, shouting "keep us forever", but instead we happen to get back an hour earlier.

Remember....Seniors?

Comes the big time to go home, everyone rushing, out the doors, scrambling all over each other. Home sweet home is really no better, we still have to wake up to school again, from now until the end.

Senior Blues

Becoming a senior is a joy that is celebrated every year, but with that joy comes the blues. Each year the blues among seniors becomes more and more noticeable. An aura of stress and anxiety slowly fills the faces and minds of the seniors halfway into the first quarter. But, by the end of the first quarter it all turns to worry.

One worry is leaving your friends and family behind. "There are some juniors I'm going to miss and I'll miss being on the drill team," says Tracey Smallwood solemnly. "Leaving your friends is really hard."

Another issue that the seniors have to decide is what college to attend and what career to aim for. "I'm having trouble figuring out what college to go to," admits Tracey. Then, after deciding what college to attend, there is an issue of money. "There are scholarships out there, but they make it seem like a contest to get a scholarship," explains Katie Keim who is working and saving up for college.

Anna Butler and Melissa Smith are two of the top students in the class of 1992. Not only do these young ladies excel in academics, but in extra-curricular activities.

Anna, secretary of the senior class, is also in media publications, plays basketball, runs track, and participates in Student Council and SRT. Outside of school she is the assistant sports editor for Teens Today and participates in the Chosen Ones.

Anna says she has made her mark at Northeast by proving you can be an athlete and at the top of the class. She hopes to attend the University of Kansas where she will study to be a Pediatrician. "After graduation, I'll miss my friends the most," says Anna.

Melissa would like to be a registered nurse, specializing in pediatrics. She hopes to attend Penn Valley and go on to St. Luke's School of Nursing.

Her extra curricular activities include being the manager of the Viking Volleyball team, Media Publications, assists with Cross Country, and helps the youth at her church. "I've received a lot out of the school and I hope someone has been able to get something from me

SENIOR CLASS OFFICERS

Irene Downs is the president of the Senior Class. She did not want to let just anyone be class president--she wanted to get the job done. Irene plans to attend Talladega College in Alabama and major in Political Science.

Chara Plumb, Senior Class Vice-President, ran because "I wanted to be somebody, Senior Class Vice-President!" Chara's future plans are to attend college and open her own office in psychiatry.

Cecilia Buchanan ran for Senior Class Secretary because she felt the class needed a good secretary. Her future plans are to attend college and major in education.

Anna Butler is the treasurer of the Senior Class. She ran for her office because she is responsible and wanted to get the job done. Anna plans to attend the University of Kansas and eventually become a pediatrician.

"SENIORS ROCK THE HOUSE"

Every year the senior, junior, sophomore, and freshman classes at Northeast High School compete against one another to claim the crown of most spirited class. But, every year there fails to be a clear cut winner. It's virtually impossible to determine what class possesses and effectively uses its spirit, to both further their class and represent the school in the most efficient manner.

By using the simple task of elimination it's relevant that the senior class possesses the greatest amount of spirit. This, conclusion was reached by asking, " what has had the greatest amount of time to develop spirit? "The senior class undoubtedly leads the way with, four years of growth and maturity related to the school and themselves. Many, students throughout the years have taken the words, " school spirit" out of its context. School spirit isn't a characteristic that every individual derives from birth but, instead school spirit is like that of a seed. Needing both nourishment and growth, two elements that are possessed by the seniors class of 1992.

A SENIOR

A senior is a person wishing, and hoping that they will graduate. A person that is worried that they will go through their whole senior year, and then find out that they are not going to graduate.

A senior is also a person that does not want to keep going to school because they think they are so close to getting out that it does not matter. This person quits on school and thinks they have so many privileges that they can do what ever they want.

When graduation comes, a senior has rattling teeth, shaky legs, and they break out in a cold sweat. They almost look sick even though they are really happy.

To me this is what a senior is.

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR

Dear Juniors,

For four months straight, I have worked hard on this section for you. I have done my very best to show this school what the class of 1993 is all about—and in so doing, I have learned a lot about the class of 1993.

When I was first assigned editor of the junior section back at the end of September, I realized that I had a lot of work cut out for me. In order to do this section, I had to see the junior class from a whole new perspective. I had to stop seeing the class of 1993 as inferiors to me, and see them for who—and what—they really are.

During the four months that I have worked on this section, my viewpoint of the class of 1993 changed dramatically. When I was through with this section, I no longer saw a group of inferiors, but instead, I saw a group of hard working, dedicated individuals.

I can only hope that as our fellow classmates look throughout this section, that they can see in you what I see and that they can learn some of the things that I have learned about you.

Yours truly,
Rhonda Wiesner
(Junior Editor)

Over the years, the class of 1993 did not uphold a very strong image. So this year, four very strong minded young ladies decided it was time to change that image. They are Diana Dang, (President) Carman Morgan (Vice President) Asha Sadarangani, (Secretary) and Latania Cage (Treasurer).

The officers all agreed that their reason for running for office was: 1) they wanted to be involved in their class; 2) they wanted to help make decisions that would affect the entire Northeast student body. This school year, the officers strived, despite the confusion and setbacks, to plan "the best prom Northeast has ever had" minus the complications that usually arise!

According to some of the junior class students, they think that "the junior class officers are doing a great job," says Jessica Santoli: "So far we have no complaints. We couldn't ask for better." Mr. Fernandez thinks, "that they could do better on their activities. Also, there could be more offered to their junior class." Shonette Wigfall says, "The junior class has been doing a wonderful job since my freshman year here at Northeast."

These four students have stepped into office hoping that everyone would be pleased with their job as an officer, and hopefully they will have left with that same feeling.

THE JUNIOR - AN INDIVIDUAL

This year's Northeast juniors are more individualistic than those of past junior classes. They are different because they represent themselves for themselves.

Most classes have one person or a group of people who represent them, and when you hear someone mention "Senior Class," "Sophomore Class," or "Freshman Class," you think of certain people. This class has avoided this by proving that they represent themselves by saying what they feel and showing it.

In this way, the class of '93 has more than just a few voices here and their, they're everywhere.

Juniors don't like the thought of not being heard or not being able to speak their minds. They are not going to let one person hog all the spotlight. Are they? NO WAY! They are going to take the spotlight in their own way.

So, why are juniors more individualistic and not so willing follow the crowd? Because they know you can't just follow the crowd and be successful at the same time. They know that in order to be successful, you have to speak up for yourself and let your thoughts and opinions be heard. Just like they know that those thoughts and opinions can take you far if you let them.

So, the junior class isn't perfect. SO WHAT! They don't really care. Why should they? They're individuals!

SPIRITED JUNIORS

Freshman year we were shy, and afraid to show our school spirit, because everyone looked down on us. No one wants to be like a freshman. Sophomore year we began to come out of the closet, coming in the third place with class competition. This school year was off to a bad start, but after a few food drives, and extra-curricular activities that turned around pretty quick. Another reason that our spirit may have changed is because now we know who, we are. We have now formed our own image, instead of trying to fit into someone else's. This year, the juniors also sponsored a talent show in the efforts creating growth in spirit among Northeast students.

With next year being our final year, all the under classmen will looking up to us, trying to follow in our footsteps, and build their senior year around our image. Next year we will be leading in school spirit, and helping the Vikings to be "the best getting better."

LIFE IN THE EYES OF A JUNIOR

This year, being a junior has been an experience we, the Junior Class, will never forget.

We've had our ups and downs, good times and our bad times, but we've stuck together and always come out on top.

The one thing juniors have to look forward to are those wonderful ACT's or SAT's! (NOT!) Unfortunately, we've got to take them because it's the only way to get into college. But, we're fortunate enough that we don't have the problems of the current seniors, who have to decide which college to attend and their area of study.

One of the other ups is getting to choose a class ring. Well, it's good for us but, not for our parents pocket books! Class rings are special so parents purchase them for us.

Another up is all the friends you make during your junior year. These are the friends who stick with you in the good and bad times. You never forget them, and they never forget you. These are relationships that were built to last a lifetime. Some people like Debbie Smith say their junior year has been, "more fun than any other year. The class of '93 Kicks." Nikki Wilkins says, "my junior year has been spectacular and exhilarating. It's one of the best years I've had since beginning high school. Class of '93 is the best and if you're down with '93, then you know me!" These are just a few of the many people who love being a junior.

But, there are some people who dislike their junior year, such as Rachel Hood who says, "it's boring. I can't wait for it to be over!" And it's totally understandable because the down side of being a junior is taking all those tests, hard classes, and wanting to take the teacher that you dislike and throw them out the window! Followed by their books and anything else that isn't nailed down!

It's hard to be a junior--not as hard as being a brand new freshman or a serious decision making senior--but it's still tough. You have to do a lot in one year or risk being left behind. To be a junior requires maturity.

Although juniors have lots of fun and laughs, we have to watch our grades. We have to excel academically in order to become seniors.

The class of 1993 is a class consisting of individualistic, intelligent and fun individuals. We work hard but, we play as hard as we work! We know when we're wrong and when we're right

These images of this years' junior class will become part of N.E. history and, to ensure this, the Nor'Easter staff has compiled images of our class; years from now, we will look upon this edition of the Nor'Easter and recapture the feelings shown throughout this junior class year.

JUNIOR SPONSORS

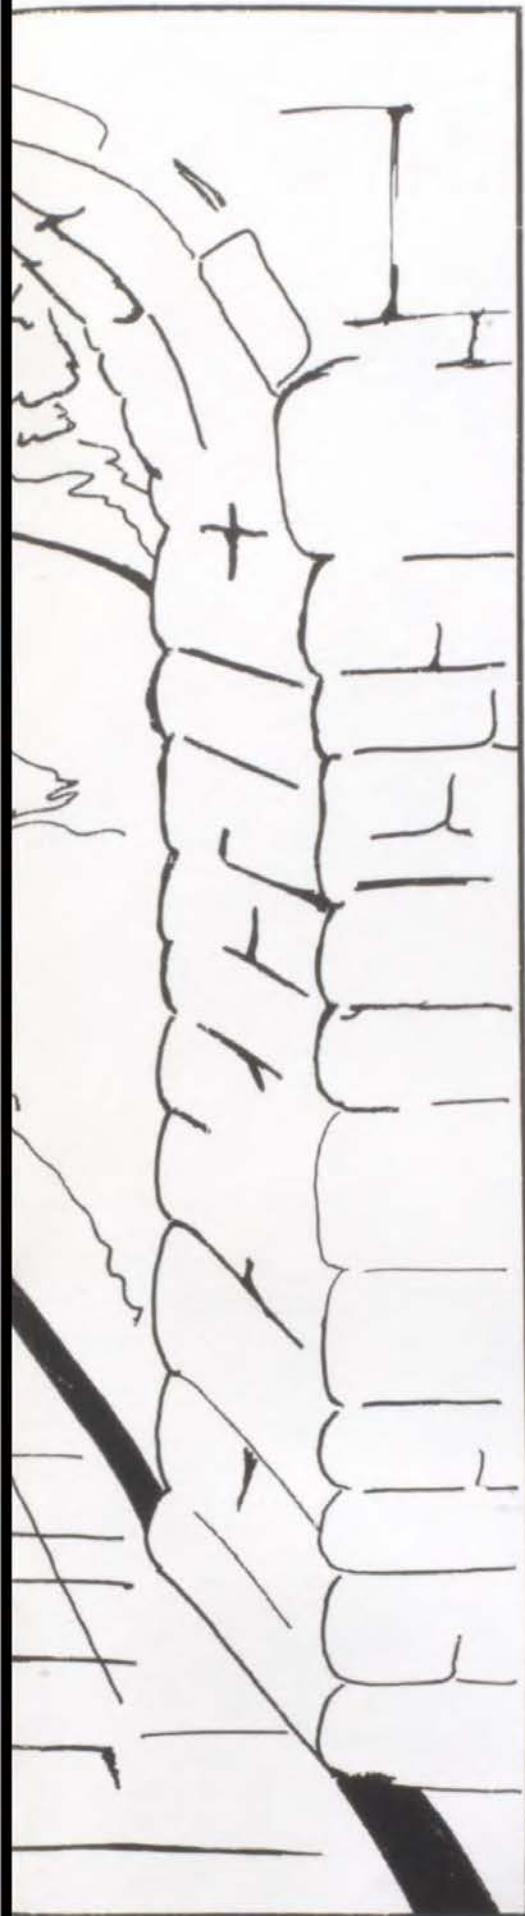

According to Mr. Premer, the Junior class is "a great bunch of guys and gals", that is one of the many reasons why he and Mr. Huenergarth became the Junior class sponsors. Mr. Huenergarth and Mr. Premer became Junior class sponsors do in part to the uniquely different images held by both sponsors. Mr. Premer's image early in the year was that the Junior class was the "class, class at Northeast" and he thinks it is even more so now that he has worked with the Junior class officers and Junior class members. But, Mr. Huenergarth says the c/o '93 is and always will be his favorite class at Northeast.

WISE FOOLS...

A wise fool is a common description used with the word sophomore. It's mainly used because they are said to be inexperienced. But, not so much as freshmen. A sophomore knows right from wrong, but doesn't really want to make the right decisions. It's not because he doesn't want to truthfully, he just doesn't know how. A sophomore is described as becoming an adult, but still referring to his/her childish ways. A sophomore can be easily led by others to do something that really is not in his/her best interest. Sophomores may always be described as wise fools, but they won't be sophomores forever. They will eventually become a mature and responsible adult later in life.

SOPHOMORE QUOTES

Favorite teacher and why?

"Mrs. Phillips. She not only cares about work, she cares about the students, too."

What do you think of the 90 minute classes?

"You can't listen to a teacher for 90 minutes without getting bored!"

"Class should be shorter!"

"90 minute classes are great, you get more done and learn more. Depending on the teacher."

What's it like being a sophomore?

"It's the next best thing to school lunches!"

"Getting involved helps when your a sophomore, but that goes for any grade level for that matter!"

"Being a sophomore is being caught in the middle. You're not praised or cut down."

What class would you get rid of if you could?

"Geometry! Because if you only have half a brain, it's to difficult to accomplish."

SOPHOMORE
OFFICERS

When the Sophomore class of 1994 got together on September 30, 1991, they were ready to vote. Voting for their representatives "was a tough decision", says Richard Zarate, "because all who were running are very dedicated, hard working, and are always on the ball." The most important thing that was asked from each Sophomore student was for them to vote for the person they had the most confidence in and who they knew would do a great job.

On the next day as they started counting the votes, they noticed there was a lot of competition. As we got to the end they finally got their winners and were happy with the decisions. They were Dwon Littlejohn (President), Charmain Burns (Vice-President), and Suzanne Cedras (Treasurer). Your class counts on you, so lets show them they didn't make any mistakes.

ATHLETIC SOPHOMORES

After the bell rings and everyone's in a hurry to leave, four students will be seen in the hall. They are Bernis Jackson, Phong Nguyen, Richard Zarate, and Suzanne Cedras. Bernis and Richard play football. Phong and Suzanne run cross country.

Bernis has played junior varsity and varsity fullback and middle linebacker for two years because he likes the contact in the sport. His most memorable game was against Harmon when he broke his finger; ending the season for him.

Phong is running cross country for his first year because most of his friends do. Phong's role model in track is Mr. Middleton because he has been a champion. The track meet that sticks in his mind is the Interscholastic Championship.

Richard is a junior varsity football player who not only was the kicker, but he also played as a backup linebacker. Richard's role model is Dino Hackett because when he was young Dino wasn't good but he never gave up and now he plays for the Chiefs.

Suzanne is very much involved in school activities and does a great job. As a member of track and cross country, she likes to run a lot and compete against others. Suzanne thinks, "Running is great and a fun thing to do in order to keep in shape, but it's hard work."

SOPHOMORE BLAHS

The definition of a blah is that sort of dead lifeless feeling that some people have. Compared to freshman year, which was exciting and confusing, this year may be moving kind of slow for some sophomores. We call this feeling a blah.

Remember your freshman year? Do you remember how everything was so new to you? You had to memorize your schedule, learn the locations of your classes in a much bigger school, and not to mention remembering the names of all the new people you met everyday! In most cases you went from being the oldest in your school to being the youngest. What a transition!

But now that year is over and you are a sophomore! You now begin to realize that high school can be boring. Maybe not all of you, but enough of you. You begin to get tired of seeing the same old teachers and students, the same old dreary walls and halls, and the same stomach-turning smell in the cafeteria day after day after day. The days seem to drag on forever. The seven hours you spend in this building seem to get longer and longer every day. You can't help but to have that "blah" feeling.

You've got two long years left in this building, so you might as well make the best of them. Don't "blah" your high school years away! Shake off that dead feeling and wake up! Have fun, and dowatchalike! Do whatever it takes to make your years in high school your most enjoyable. If you don't you may as well just become a part of the dull walls of Northeast magnet.

by Carmen Morgan

Sophomore Best Friends

Olivia Raya and Renee Madison have been best friends for two years. They knew each other from the Northeast Junior building in the eighth grade but, they really didn't talk to one another.

They formally met at cheer-leading practice one day after school. Now, they're best friends, and when they're not cheering or going to school, they're dancing, shopping going to the movies, or out with their boyfriends.

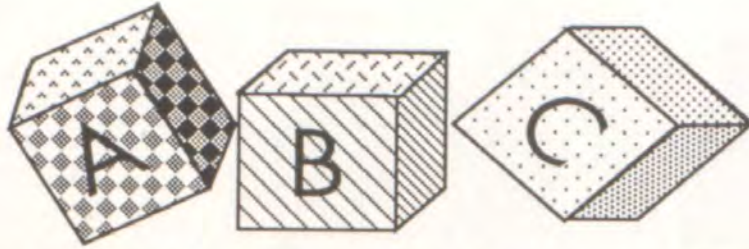

Aside from their relationships with their boyfriends, they still find time to spend with one another doing their favorite activities.

So, what's so special about sophomore best friends? Renee says, "Because you spend your whole freshman year together. That's when you meet everybody. We learned together and we still are learning."

These are only two of the best friends of the Sophomore class. There are still many more friendships to be made. The Sophomore class of 1994 has represented the image of the future friendships that are to come....

With Nykia Littlejohn, President, and Mrs. Perkins as class sponsor, the freshman class is headed in the right direction

Other class officers include vice-president, Catrice Johnson; secretary, Dawn Depasquale; and treasurer, Martinus Sayles.

Mrs. Perkins says that working as a class sponsor with the freshman class is, "Very unique, you have to have a lot of endurance and a lot of patience."

The images of this year's freshman class will be memorable. The freshman class officers, despite the fact they've been limited in what they could do, have tried to disprove the usual image of a freshman--geeky, immature, and that they all have braces. (Which they don't) They've succeeded! This year's freshmen appear to be mature and intelligent with a focus on where they are going in the future. To the top!

FRESHMEN SPIRIT

Who says Freshmen can't be proud of their class? Not the class of 1995! This year our freshmen came to Northeast with all kinds of spirit. Every year the tradition is that the freshmen stay quiet at assemblies, and if the mention their class they get laughed at. The freshmen were not ashamed! They surprised everyone at our first few assemblies with their remarkable enthusiasm. I think Northeast has a lot to look forward to in the next couple of years. Hopefully these students will become role models for future Northeast students, and their spirit and enthusiasm will follow.

FRESHMEN BALLOT

The freshmen ballot is a way for the class of 1995 to express their opinions on what they think about their class. For example, best dressed and most popular, and so on. The responses were added up and the results were compiled. For most popular--Nykia Littlejohn and Barry Boyd, best dressed--Delon Canady and Dameka Mason, class clown--Lajuan Pennington and Lashonda Bailey.

After the ballot was distributed, a few freshmen were asked what makes a person most popular. A variety of different ideas and some of the images such as being active in sports, personality, and getting along with everyone were given.

"The image of being best dressed is dressing in all the in-style clothes," says freshman Miyaka Green. "Being the center of attention," says Tosha Reed, "is how you achieve the title of class clown." Many of the freshmen said they enjoyed taking the ballot and thought it was a good idea. As a freshman it is hard to decide who's popular when you are just getting to know everyone. Will the results be the same in 1995? We'll wait and see.

FRESHMEN IMAGES

Looking around helplessly on the first day of school, a freshman goes to a teacher and politely asks, "Excuse me can you tell me where this class is?"

The image of the first day of school is usually the most confusing for a freshman. Putting up with the teasing and making fun is hard. But, of course, you can get away with a lot too. Like breaking the rules and saying you did not know about them, and acting like a fool with an excuse.

The first few weeks are the hardest, but in the end your freshmen year will probably end up being your favorite year. You meet friends from all the middle schools, and will make memories for life. Your freshmen year has its ups and downs, but there is no other experience quite like it, and you will never be able to repeat it. So enjoy and remember!

Dear Freshmen Class:

Congratulations
 You have now completed your first year in high school! "Big Deal!" That is probably what a lot of you are saying. But it is really a great accomplishment and you are on your way to a high school career filled with many important memories.

We just want to say thanks for being such a unique class and don't ever forget to have fun!

EDUCATING IMAGES

No one is perfect, but teachers fall very close. Other than teachers, very few people can change the future so much. The amount of people that can influence so many lives, touch hearts, give advice, and help mold children into productive citizens is very limited. Teachers spend almost as much time with a child as the parent does, so they should have nothing less than parental qualities. Teachers often say, "I'm not here to baby you, I'm here to teach you", but in some cases, that may be what it takes.

When people think of teachers, they sometimes envision an unattractive adult in their mid to late forties that is slowly beginning to gray, with glasses. Some may see a woman with shoulder-length hair, or a man with a receding hairline, a mustache, beard, and goatee, or in some cases all of the above. You may see some with executive brief cases, and others with just a plain canvas totebag.

In any case, the person on the inside is what really counts. This person can either make or break a child, and open or slam their door to success. In the eyes of a student a teacher can either be a hero or a zero.

WHAT A YEAR

What a year! Not just for students but also the administration. What was the administration's viewpoint of the year?

This year was a major experiment with the eight hour day. They hoped it would raise attendance and grades. They also hoped it would also lower the stress level on both the staff and the students, and it would help students improve academically.

The new eight hour day corresponds to the changing world in the 21st century. It makes a change from the traditional system of education to a more modern program. Mr. Brown is in favor of change. He comments "To make it more effective to the students nowadays ". Up until this year the education system was the same as 30 years ago when Mr. Brown graduated. He believes that the change is a move forward in the education process.

In San Francisco, they adopted the same eight hour day periods as we presently have. They have the 90 minute classes, an advisement period, and an extensive volunteer program. One difference between us and San Francisco is, San Francisco's students are required to have 125 volunteer hours completed upon graduation. While our requirements are much lower. Mr. Brown said he would like to see our volunteer program expand.

"All in all, this year has been good," comments Mr. Brown. The development committee will decide on the schedule for next year. Until that decision is made, we will have to wait and see what happens. But this year has been a unique experience for the students, the staff, and administration.

A LEGACY

From behind the closed door of room 328, one teacher lurked. Some of his students feared him, others held him in wonder. Yet others just simply did not know what to make of him. He taught to make his students learn. He was the image of the old school master with a ruler in hand ready to swipe your knuckles.

Some may wonder who the dangerous teacher was, but others may know. He was Mr. David Day.

Unfortunately, Mr. Day died on September 9, 1991, leaving his legacy to carry on. He died doing his favorite thing; waiting for his students to appear for their lesson.

He ruled his room with a justice known to many. He knew when to play and when to work. He was the image of a teacher in all his professional glory.

For these reasons, the Nor'Easter staff has dedicated the 1992 yearbook to Mr. David Day. This is in appreciation for his courage to teach nearly three decades.

THIS LIBRARY WORKS

It takes a lot of hard work in order to be a school librarian. To even qualify as a school librarian, you must have a college degree, a teaching degree, and librarian degree. But that's not all it takes. You must be dedicated, hard-working, caring, and easy to get along with. This is exactly how our four school librarians--Mrs. Knight, Mrs. Smith, Ms. Sheeley, and Ms. Shonkwiler--are.

Anyone can go into the library at any time of the day and see the librarians hard at work. Either shelving books, checking books in and out, ordering and processing books, or, most importantly, assisting the students and teachers who come into the library.

Ms. Shonkwiler says, "I enjoy working with students and teachers on a one-to-one basis and I like what the LMC (library media center) offers me."

The library is a good place to be when you want to study or read and you can always count on one of the four librarians to help you in any way they can.

Life in the Eyes of the Security Officers

Being a security officer here at Northeast is what our four officers-- Miquel Fernandez, Diane Phillips, Robert Gaiser, and Lem Harris-- take a lot of pride in doing. "I like the challenge that being a security guard offers me. I have the opportunity to take just one student and turn them around, motivate them, and show them that they are somebody!", says Mr. Harris.

All the security officers agree that even though working here at NE can be rough at times, for the most part it's pretty great. Ms. Phillips says, "The students of Northeast are great to a certain extent. Most students don't know who they are or where they're going and I want to help them get to a positive future."

Even though being a security officer has its trouble areas, our four officers don't let that stop them from taking pride in their jobs and Northeast.

Over the past seven years, the staff of the Quality Care Clinic has provided basic medical care at an affordable cost- just five dollars. The clinic provides complete physicals with eye examinations, lab work, and an actual body exam. It also provides for female patients needs with prescription birth control, pre and post natal care.

The clinic is open 5 days a week from 7:30 to 3:30. The staff would like to encourage everyone to become a member of the clinic.
