Open to

"Our ideal is the well-rounded person who is intellectually competent, open to growth, religious, loving and committed to doing justice in generous service to the people of God." Within this, we can get to the heart of the Rockhurst community: the Graduate at Graduation. After the completion of our four years here, it is hoped for us that these five virtues are virtues that have been instilled in us. When we look around the halls every year, we can see these traits growing in all of us, at our own pace. Perhaps the most important of the five, acting as a gateway for the others, is Open to Growth. Being open to growth means that a student possesses many different qualities. He is responsible for his own independent growth, he pursues integrity, commitment, and excellence in all things, and he is conscious of his feelings and is able to communicate them. He is not afraid to search out new experiences in the course of his growth, though he may fail just as he may succeed. He is not satisfied with the status quo, but instead remains receptive to new ideas as he pursues a better world.

"Try not to become a man of success but rather try to become a man of values." -Albert Einstein

Intellectually

The next virtue of the Grad-at-Grad is Intellectual Competence. A student who is Intellectually Competent is developing many important life skills. He is developing his logical skills, precision in his communicative as well as artistic talents, curiosity for new things, and his ability to use knowledge in practical applications. He recognizes the importance of honesty and integrity, and his rights and responsibilities in the overall world community. He does not let all of these lessons go by the wayside, but uses them in his everyday life in service to others. He learns to solve problems using creative strategies and making decisions. He has developed his own unique talents and shares them with the school community and the greater community. He has mastered the basic disciplines required for graduation and college entrance, and has obtained a general knowledge of central ideas in a variety of intellectual disciplines.

The most important part in all of this development, though, is the idea that with all this learning comes the responsibility of the Grad-at-Grad to use these talents for the benefit of others.

Seniors Joe Price and Paul McGannon stand vigilant after the Holy Thursday Prayer Service. Matt O'Laughlin is commissioned by Mr. Richard Sullivan for his senior service project. Mr. David Laughlin gives junior Brian Flanagan the Eucharist at a Junior Liturgy. Mr. Thomas Norman discusses the Gospel of John with Fr. Thomas Pesci, S.J., after a mass in the Chapel of the Sacred Heart. Senior Daniel Asikainen leads seniors Tom Schario, Mike McIntyre, Pat Klug, Matt Schwenke, Greg Bass, and Mitch Paone in song at the Senior Commissioning Mass.

The Religious component of the Grad-at-Grad complements Intellectual Competence as part of the teachings students receive at Rockhurst. While the main teachings of Rockhurst stem from the Catholic faith, the hope for the religious student is not primarily to become a Catholic, but to develop a relationship with God which should equal their human and spiritual development. He should have encountered Jesus through reading the Gospels and have a basic understanding of the Church's teachings about Him and the Church's role in Christ's redeeming mission. He should have at least moral value system and be able to evaluate moral choices with increasing clarity. He has had exposure to other world religions and is taking responsibility for developing his faith. Like the other attributes of the Grad-at-Grad, being religious suggests that the student has become more independent and has begun to take a more active approach in deciding what is right for himself. And as with other things that students learn at RHS, it is hoped that they can use the benefits of this knowledge in service to others.

Religious

"Therefore, do not continue in ignorance, but try to understand what is the will of the Lord." -Ephesians. 5:17

Loving is at the heart of every Grad-at-Grad. It comes in many different forms - love of who he is, love of others, and love of God. He is beginning to move away from feelings of only self-interest and moving toward being able to risk deeper levels of commitment in relationships. He is learning to trust the steadfastness of his family, friends, and adults not only at Rockhurst but in other communities. He has hopefully taken advantage of opportunities to experience God's love, and has come to accept himself as lovable and that God and others love him. He has also come to understand and deal with personal prejudices and stereotypes and can communicate more easily with others regardless of race, religion, nationality, or socioeconomic background. Empathy comes more easily to him and in service to others his life becomes more enriched as he discovers the satisfaction of giving. The compassionate response to forms of suffering and need are developing in him. He has become more caring and sensitive in all areas of his being than before he entered the halls of Rockhurst, leaving with a greater sense and understanding of compassion.

"So faith, hope, love remain, these three; but the greatest of these is love." -1 Corinthians 13:13

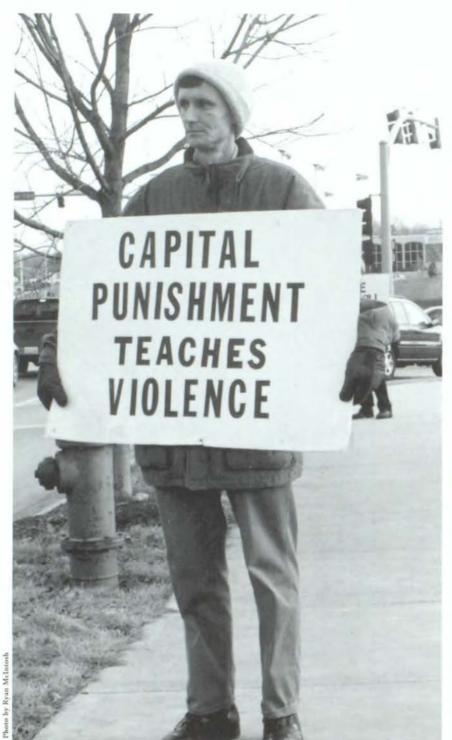

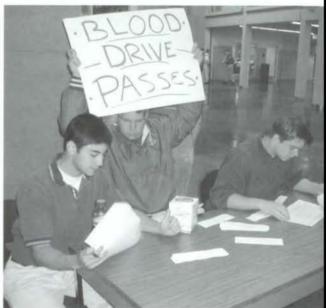

Clockwise from top left. Mr. Brad Grabs braves the cold weather for a death penalty vigil on the Country Club Plaza. Senior Andy Tiehen assists a student with algebra during his senior service project. Juniors David Ono, Pat Kies, and Pat Coughlin work in the commons before school to get sign-ups for the SGA blood drive. Sudanese refugees discuss their lives and the hardships of escaping the Sudan with Ms. Peggy Mulvihill's Morality classes. Juniors Rich Whitney and Andy Janish work restoring a house during Christmas in October as Fr. Thomas Pesci, S.J., looks on. The Barry Commons filled up with food during SGA's Harvest Food Drive.

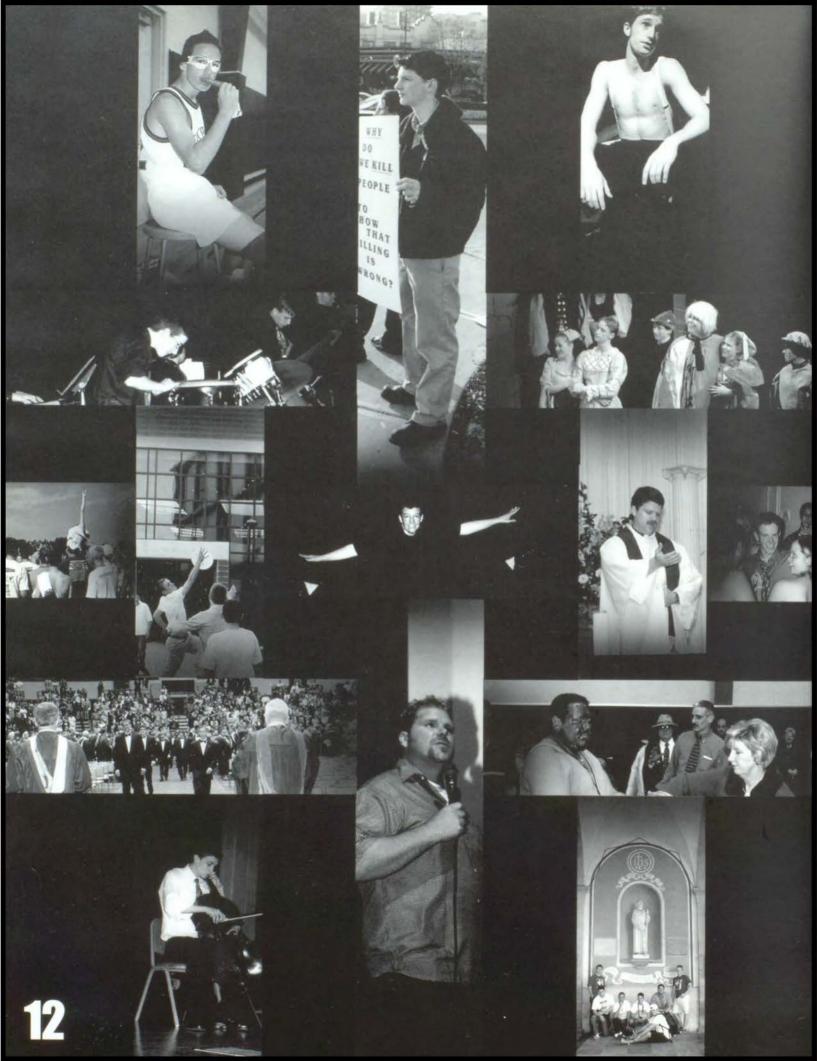

Committed to doing

Being Committed to Justice is an integral of part of the Grad-at-Grad, driving Rockhurst graduates and students to doing what is right, even when it is very difficult. This aspect really asks the student to be focused outward, to become more selfless and caring for the needs of others who are less fortunate or are being oppressed, whether by poverty, hunger, sickness, or some human force. He is more aware of his own selfish attitudes and consciously seeks to change to be more understanding and compassionate toward others. His awareness of the effects of various global social problems is increasing, as well as his understanding of their complexities and of his Christian obligation to work to ameliorate these problems as best as he can. He is familiar with the Church's teachings on social justice and has begun to confront the moral conflicts imbedded in the values Western culture often promotes. By committing himself to justice, the Grad-at-Grad truly becomes a man for others, dedicating himself to making a better world.

"Whoever fights, whoever falls, justice conquers evermore."
-Ralph Waldo Emerson

Student Life

Where Rockhurst fits into

The Big Picture

St. Ignatius would have been astounded to see that he inspired 46 schools in the New World. Or would he?

ockhurst High School students and faculty are proud of their Jesuit heritage. The standards established by the founders of Jesuit education have made RHS what it is today. Nationally, its 45 Jesuit high school counterparts have incorporated the same tradition.

"Rockhurst is becoming more and more like our nation's Jesuit schools," said Fr. Thomas Pesci, S.J., RHS President. "We are improving in the areas of the arts and music, while at the same time becoming pacesetters in spiritual formation for faculty and students."

All 46 Jesuit secondary schools have the same grad-at-grad model-that each graduate be loving, religious, intellectually competent, open to growth, and committed to doing justice.

On average in the United States, a Jesuit high school's enrollment numbers 906. RHS stands above the average at 1004, ranking sixteenth in the country. Loyola Academy of Wilmette, IL leads with 2010 students, while the recently founded Loyola High School in Detroit has only 134 students and 23 seniors.

In addition, RHS has grown at a rate much higher than the national average. A two-year increase of 72 students was second only to the University of Detroit Jesuit High School.

While Rockhurst's $6300 tuition may seem steep to some, it is right at the national average, and 21 Jesuit schools exceed that mark. Georgetown Preparatory of North Bethesda, MD, and Red Cloud High School of Pine Ridge, SD, are the two extremes at $16,000 and $100 respectively. RHS has the highest tuition cost of the four Missouri Province high schools.

It is clear that RHS takes athletics seriously as do all of the Jesuit schools nationally. With 11 sports, three State Championships, and two top-three state finishes in 1999-2000, RHS is worthy of respect. Eleven sports, though, pales in comparison to the 25 of San Francisco's Saint Ignatius College Preparatory.

A number of Jesuit institutions possess sporting teams not found at Rockhurst. Water polo, field hockey, and indoor track are just a few of these "foreign" sports. Crew is an integrated part of the East and West Coast sporting programs. DeSmet High School competes in a large St. Louis roller hockey field. Boston College High School even fields a state champion sailing team. Overall, 32 state championships were earned by the elite Jesuit sporting programs last year.

The trademarks of Jesuit education are its Society of Jesus priests and scholastics found in the faculty and administration, but the numbers are dwindling nationally at an alarming rate.

RHS has four Jesuits who symbolize and propagate the precepts of St. Ignatius. Some schools have only a single Jesuit on staff, like Xavier High School in New York City, while others such as St. Peter's Prep in Jersey City, NJ, staff 15.

"Jesuits keep us in touch with our Ignation heritage and mission," stated Fr. Pesci. "Even with the decreasing number, I am confident that Ignation education will be carried on through our faculty and administration."

One feature that RHS lacks is Jesuit Brothers, common in the Society of Jesus as well as in five Jesuit high schools.

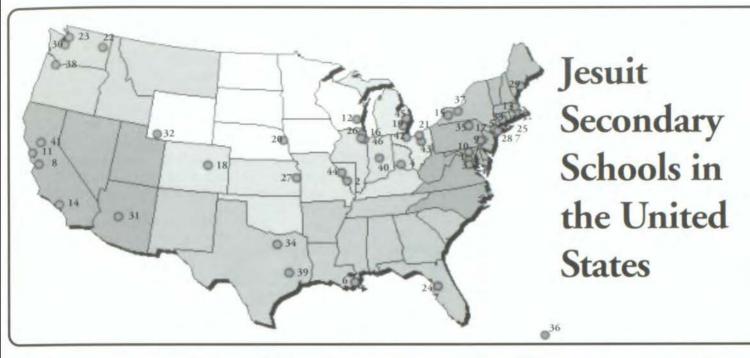

In 1789, Jesuit high school education in America began with Georgetown Preparatory. The second, St. Louis University High School, was not founded until 1818, and Rockhurst High School became the 28th in 1914. Most recently established was Cristo Rey Jesuit High School of Chicago in 1996.

Until the 1970's, all of the Jesuit institutions in the United States were limited to males. In 1971, Scranton Preparatory School in Scranton, PA, became the first to shift to a co-educational setting. Since then, 12 other schools have chosen co-education, including four in the 1990's.

Some Jesuit high schools manifest certain unique features. Georgetown Preparatory offers boarding for students. Xavier High School maintains a junior ROTC program. Gonzaga College High School in Washington, D.C., has established a homeless center in the basement of its church. Cristo Rey Jesuit High School is the first bilingual Jesuit high school. Red Cloud School was established by the "black robes" (the Lakota tribe's name for the Jesuits) at the request of Chief Red Cloud, and is made up entirely of Native Americans.

While these 46 schools may differ, all find one common alliance in St. Ignatius of Loyola. There is no exception to the common goal of academic excellence and service to others.

KANSAS CITY, MO/KS — Down by the Riverside, I saw my old buddy Lawrence, his wife Merriam, and their kids, Stanley and Bucyrus. I hadn't seen Lawrence since we were in the army together. We spent a lot of time on Liberty while we were fighting for Independence. I asked Lawrence how he was doing.

REA

"Chaaanute! I'm Stilwell, if that's what you mean." Oh yeah, I forgot to tell you, Larry was from the Countryside.

"Larry, did you see I've still got that Belt-on you gave me twenty years ago?"

"Heck, that's nothin'. This belt is thirty years old. You know they aren't Free-man!" Lawrence then quickly changed the subject.

"Did you hear that Stanley was in that blockbuster movie Mission: Hills II last year?"

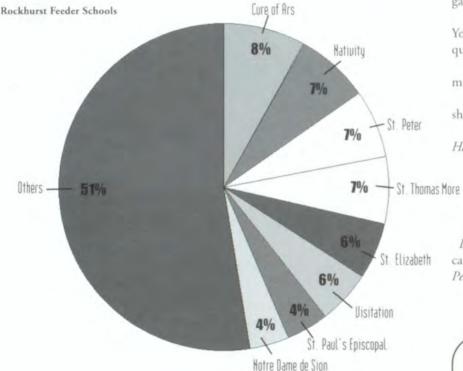

"Oh yeah, isn't that the one they called M:HII for short?"

"It sure was. Hey, do you know how far it is to Harrisonville? I hear that it is a pretty Fair-way."

"I don't really know but I bet Lea-wood."

Surprisingly, Bucyrus piped up, "Hey dad, I went there last week. I didn't particularly watch the miles though since there was a really Grand-view."

Later that night, I had some questions. Does Lee mind everyone living on his Summit? And how can you be both a Prairie and a Village? Isn't that Peculiar!

Without a doubt, Rockhurst is the most geographically diverse school in the Kansas City area. Since its students aren't drawn from one school district, like most, they come from very nearby to the far-flung edges of the metropolitan area. Almost half of the students reside in Kansas City, MO (47%), but the other half is pretty well spread over the rest of the region. One of the most unique qualities of the student body is that it is drawn from both sides of the state line. 59% of the student body is from Missouri, while the remaining 41% live on the Kansas side.

what a great school Rockhurst was.

"I went to the Open House and I really liked it a lot," he said. "Out by my house, there really weren't any schools that I liked, or wanted to go to all that much, so it seemed like the best choice."

Sophomore John Hackman makes his home in Lawrence, KS, about a 45 minute drive. Finally, seven students live in Parkville, MO, approximately forty minutes from RHS. Story by Matthew Harris.

Zip Code 64113 in Missouri, bordered by Gregory, 55th Street, State Line, and Oak, is the most heavily populated zip code in the school with about 12% of the student body living within its boundaries. Coming in a close second is 66209 in Kansas, with just over 10 percent of students. It lies between State Line, 119th Street, Metcalf, and 135th Street. Finally, 64114, just south of 64113 in Missouri (and containing Rockhurst) is bordered by 119th Street, Gregory, and State Line, and is inhabited by about nine percent of the students.

Over the last few years, RHS has drawn consistently from several grade/middle schools. For the Classes of 2002 and 2003, Cure of Ars Grade School in Leawood had the top number of incoming students--25 in the Junior Class and 23 in the Sophomore Class, but dropped to fifth for the Class of 2004. The freshmen from Nativity Grade School, also in Leawood, took top honless Summitors with 23 students.

Many RHS students travel great distances every day to get to school. The student who lives farthest from school is freshman Joseph Lindgren who lives in Leavenworth, KS. It takes him roughly an hour to get to school each morning. Joe and his dad leave their house at 6:30 a.m. every day, but he said that the trip really isn't that bad because in the morning he sleeps the entire way and on the drive home listens to the radio.

The story of how he decided to come to RHS is interesting. Joe's father works next door to RHS at the Burns and McDonnell building and told Joe about popularity of Rockhurst High School, the Office of Admissions and Financial Aid assumed the burden of the increased enrollment before, during, and after the 2000-2001 school year. Headed by Mr. Jack Reichmeier, and assisted by Ms. Amanda Pierce, the office experienced its busiest year ever.

The office is responsible for enrolling all incoming freshmen. This includes marketing RHS through grade school visits, the Open House, and the Shadow Program. Open House, held in October, had a record 438 families attending.

"The things that make Open House are the new facilities and the tour guides," Mr. Reichmeier said. "The guides are very impressive, showing what an RHS man is."

The Shadow Program, coordinated by Ms. Pierce also grew to a near-record year. The 315 shadows, seventh and eighth graders thinking of coming to RHS, toured one day of classes with a guide.

"We have many freshman who gladly volunteer to guide incoming students like they were the year before," Ms. Pierce said.

Once a perspective applicant pool is built, Admissions must make decisions on who will attend RHS the following year. This process includes receiving applications, administering the placement test, and conducting freshman interviews. The eventual graduating class of 2005 had 431 students take the placement test, and over 395 actually apply for the 270 available openings.

The Admissions Office, with the help of the National Honor Society, administered the placement test in January. The perspective freshman interviews were held at the beginning of March when 282 families were interviewed in less than two weeks.

Once the freshman class is decided upon, summer school, financial aid, class selection, and orientation are next on the calendar. The summer school program has recently become a function of the Admissions Office, as the staff either recommends or requires summer schooling for some incoming freshman. It works closely with Mr. Scott Duschen, Summer School Director, to determine the final composition of the class.

The 2000-2001 school year also brought Work Grant into the domain of the Admissions office. With 32% of all receiving aid, Admissions manages $680,000 budgeted to students who need tuition assistance.

"Financial Aid gives families who might not be able to afford the entire tuition an opportunity to bridge the difference between what they can pay and what is required," said Mr. Reichmeier.

Most of this money is distributed through the Work Grant Program. This enables students to work off their tuition around school in the athletic, maintenance, theater, special events, and other departments.

"Our jobs are memorable when families are so happy and appreciative of a chance to attend RHS." said Ms. Pierce.

"We choose what each class of students will look like," commented Mr. Reichmeier. "It's important to choose the right guys." Story by Matt Neenan Admissions

Open House

Prospects and parents shop for place to best achieve life's goal

n the last Saturday in October for the past 10 years Rockhurst High School's Admission Department has hosted its annual Open House, providing an opportunity for families of prospective students throughout the metropolitan area to visit RHS.

"Over 430 families visited RHS, most leaving with a positive experience that hopefully will bring them to apply at RHS," said Mr. Jack Reichmeier, Senior John Harbison performs a Chemistry experiment for visitors and their parents.

Director of Admission and Finan-

The Open House was made successful by a collective effort from over 150 student volunteers, about 30 parents, and all of the members of the faculty. For the first time, student volunteers included freshmen.

"The freshman did an excellent job giving tours," Mr. Reichmeier said. "Though they may not have had the experience of the upperclassmen, their enthusiasm was evident and made a great addition to the Open House."

Tour guides, dressed in coats and ties, led prospective students and their families through the halls and rooms of RHS. The tour began with a 10 minute talk from either Fr. Thomas Pesci, S.J., RHS President, or Mr. David Laughlin, Principal, who addressed the families, talking about the goals that RHS has for each and every one of its students.

The tour continued through the halls, where every department had a display of the courses offered. Not only was the educational aspect of RHS displayed, but the extracurricular activities were also showcased. Play practice took place in the Rose Theater, music students played instruments throughout the building, athletics had a table as did the Student Government, and the Mothers and Fathers Clubs showcased their involvement.

"We displayed school spirit to prospective students," junior tour guide Joe Huffman, said. "Seeing all the interest in Rockhurst was amazing." Story & Photos by Drew Switzer Moving on out!

Placement Office provides invaluable assistance in rigorous college selection, admissions process ollege Placement is one of the more interesting and challenging positions at Rockhurst. Counseling over 250 seniors as to their best choices for college is a task of Herculean proportions. Add to this the fact that there are only three people in the college placement office and the possible stress is not difficult to imag-

Mr. Rob Herald serves as Director of College Counseling, Mrs. Missy Hubert is the Assistant College Counselor, and Mrs. Cindy Scherer coordinates everything as secretary. The duties of counseling each senior are split evenly between Mr. Herald and Mrs. Hubert, who both perform administrative tasks and help plan financial aid. Mr. Herald and Mrs. Hubert hold Masters Degrees in Counseling and possess several years of experience within the college admissions system. Mrs. Scherer is also a trained professional with experience in law offices.

"Being new here, it is a completely different atmosphere from where I came from," said Mrs. Scherer. "It's very enjoyable working with the students, watching them decide their future plans."

The college placement atmosphere is quite demanding and the both counselors put applicants through a rigorous process.

"College admissions is now very competitive, said Mrs. Hubert.

"You are having more students applying for the same spots, students who are better prepared."

"Demographics are pretty clear that it is more difficult to get into college than it was even two or three years ago," added Mr. Herald.

In the past, where a student would typically apply to two or three colleges, applications are being filled out for four to five colleges. "[College] is becoming very expensive," said Mrs. Hubert. "So, not only do you have the competition of whether they can get in, but now you have to make it affordable."

The process for college placement begins with the experience and knowledge of the student himself. A self-evaluation is the vital first step, so a student can identify his possibilities and begin to realize what is the best fitting college and what he desires from the college for his life, according to Mr. Herald. This entails questions such as "What do I want to do?"

Researching colleges, narrowing them down, and visiting the colleges are the steps at which some students hesitate,

"Not all the kids are as motivated," according to Mrs. Hubert. "It takes time and they need to have been doing the process."

Some other challenges faced in this stage are unrealistic expectations.

"I don't want to crush those dreams," said Mrs. Hubert. "I'm not going to tell them, 'You can't apply to this school.' Go ahead, apply!" The final steps of the process entail visiting the campuses that the student has selected and writing applications for them. This leads to an anxious period of waiting and final decisions.

College placement has become a more interesting area because of advances in technology. Almost every university has its own website now and many schools have moved to a virtual reality tour of campuses. Application processes have moved on-line for many colleges and even the federal government allows electronic filing for financial aid.

"The financial aid stuff will eventually be paperless," said Mrs. Hubert. Students can communicate with college students through chat rooms and e-mail to find out the truth about a university. One of the achievements of the RHS office is the College Placement page that is featured on its website.

ince the death last year of Rockhurst Principal Tho mas Murphy, a new leader has joined the Rockhurst community, one who hopes to uphold the values of a Jesuit education while helping RHS continue to prosper.

Mr. David Laughlin says that he is honored to have the chance to serve as RHS Principal. After pondering his decision to come to RHS from his home in Omaha, NE, Mr. Laughlin says contentedly, "Rockhurst is a terrific Catholic and Jesuit high school, and I hope to continue building upon the foundation that Mr. Murphy worked so hard to build."

Mr. Laughlin first heard about the job opening last March when Fr. Thomas Pesci, S.J., RHS President, contacted him and requested that he interview for the position. Mr. Laughlin was flattered by Fr. Pesci's invitation. He had heard RHS described on several occasions as a very fine educational institution that truly lived out Jesuit teachings and philosophy.

"It was very difficult to make the decision to leave my previous school, vet my decision became much easier as I noticed the similarities in the two Catholic schools," Mr. Laughlin said. When he decided to leave his Assistant Principal position at Creighton Prep in Omaha, NE, and to come to RHS, Mr. Laughlin was immediately drawn to the very unique atmosphere and dynamic sense of camaraderie that fills the RHS' halls, a distinctly different environment from his own high school.

" Fortunately, Creighton Prep prepared me for the drastic change from my high school experience," Mr. Laughlin replied. Mr. Laughlin attended Mt. Michael High School, a small and very structured Benedictine boarding school outside of Omaha. Recalling his own high school days, Mr. Laughlin laughed about being forced to wear a Mickey Mouse beanie to school during his freshman year.

Luckily, his high school experience improved and Mr. Laughlin became quite the Renaissance man. He played both tennis and basketball, and attempted football but decided that the sport was too painful. Additionally, Mr. Laughlin was a member of the National Honors Society and was awarded District Outstanding Thespian his senior year. After graduating from Mt. Michaels, Mr. Laughlin attended Creighton University, where he received degrees in both German and Theology and later earned his Masters in Educational Administration.

These days, with his RHS career ahead of him, Mr. Laughlin is looking forward to enjoying theater productions, working with RHS' "terrific faculty and students," spending time with his wife, Kelly, and his four young children, and catching as many college basketball games on television as time per-was a momentus and historic year for Coach Tony Severino and Rockhurst. While winning RHS's fifth State Football Championship ever, Coach Severino overtook legendary Coach Al Davis for first place in RHS football victories, and won the High School Football Coach of the Year Award given by USA Today.

LEGENDS

The RHS storied football program can be attributed to basically two men, Coach Davis and Coach Severino, who together have coached in 55% of all games played and have recorded 57% of all wins at RHS. Coach Severino passed Coach Davis on September 1, with his 155th win, a victory over Oak Park.

"It's a real honor to break someone's record for whom I have so much love and respect." Coach Severino said. "He coached in a time of 8-11game seasons while I coach in a time of 10-14 games."

"Once in a conversation with Coach Davis I told him, 'No matter what I do, you'll be Number One and I'll be 1A.' He then immediately had a jacket made for me with a

'Rockhurst Football: Number 1A Coach' sewn into it."

These two men come from interesting and different backgrounds. Coach Davis, born in Abilene, KS, was an All-State athlete junior and senior year in basketball, pole vault, and football. His promising athletic career was only put on hold when he entered the army in World War II where he fought in Europe for 22 months, earning two battle stars while fighting for General George Patton in the Battle of the Bulge. He resumed his athletic career when he was picked for the football team representing American forces in Europe.

"The USFET All-Stars got to be the color guard for General Patton's funeral," remembered Coach Davis. "I was only one of three on the team who was not playing college Division-1 or professional football. With all of the talent and knowledge on that team, I learned a lot about football I would use coaching," he said.

After finally getting back to Abilene, marrying his high school sweetheart, Arlene, and playing on the Kansas State Football Team, Coach Davis began his storied coaching career at age 25, in Peabody, KS.

"In such a small town, we needed every boy possible to play football, so I visited each one individually and got 46 out of 49 boys to play."

In 1952, Coach Davis heard of the job opening at Rockhurst and interviewed for it in Kansas City.

Driving back across Kansas following his meeting, Coach Davis made his now famous quote about his love affair with Rockhurst, when he exclaimed to his wife, "Arlene, I'm home." From 1952-1975 Coach Davis was Hawklet Head Football Coach, compiling a record of 154-66-13. Following his retirement from football coaching, Coach Davis served as Athletic Director from 1976-1990.

As an assistant for Coach Davis for many years, Coach Jerry Culver took over as head coach for seven years, retiring in 1982. Since then, Coach Severino has led the Hawklets. With 24 and 18 years of service respectively, Coaches Davis and Severino have coached for 48 percent of all the years of RHS football.

Coach Severino was born in Cleveland, OH, where he went to an all-boys preparatory high school like Rockhurst. His football background included being a high school star and a starter at Kansas State University. His first coaching jobs were as assistants at an inner city school in Cleveland, and at Shawnee Mission West. In 1977, he became the Head Coach for Shawnee Mission Northwest, where he won a Kansas State Football Title in 1979.

"From the time I first came to Kansas City, I knew Rockhurst would be a natural fit," Coach Severino said of his early years spent coaching. "I would drive down State Line and know that I wanted to send my boys there. I told all of my friends that once the Rockhurst job opened, I would seek "Coach Severino would always call me at Rockhurst (while at SMNW) and try to schedule us," Coach Davis said about his early relationship with Coach Severino. "He always has and still wants to play the best." Appropriately, Coach Severino was hired two days after the position at RHS opened in 1983.

coach can receive.

In early January of 2001 Coach Severino learned that he was the recipient of the 2000 National High School Football Coach of the Year Award given by USA Today. To receive the award, the coach's team must have had an undefeated season and finish in the top 25 in the USA poll. Other intangibles include longevity and notoriety across the country. This award is considered by many to be the highest honor a high school

"It's very rare, so I didn't even think about it. I was in shock!" he exclaimed.

Besides being known for their connection with RHS football, Coach Severino and Coach Davis share many similarities. Both were heavily involved in other sports. Coach Davis, most notably, started the track and soccer programs at RHS while Coach Severino started the baseball team at SM West. Coach Davis coached golf at Rockhurst for 13 years and Coach Severino's first head coaching job was as a baseball coach at SM West. Both men also played football for Kansas State.

Both men also are considered family men. Coach Davis has seven children while Coach Severino and his wife Marilyn have three sons who all played for him at RHS.

"Football gave me a way to provide for my family by doing something I love," Coach Davis said. "My family means more than anything to me."

Like their coaching styles, Coaches Davis and Severino have similar views on what RHS is all about.

Coach Severino displays his USA Today "Coach of the Year" award to the school at a pep rally, thanking everyone for their support, and the players for their tireless efforts. Coach Davis congratulates Coach Severino for winning the prestigious award.

"RHS is a place of reverence with the Jesuit emphasis on Catholic faith. We demand excellence, honesty and integrity," Coach Davis said. "The closeness and camaraderie makes RHS and Jesuit schools the biggest fraternity in the world."

"The atmosphere during the day shows what RHS is about," Coach Severino said. "I've seen every type of school from inner city to public to private, and the discipline is what makes RHS different. The people and the way the school runs makes me want to come to school everyday. It's one big family. I don't see myself leaving anytime soon." Story by Matt Neenan the Bridging the Gap Concert Series was once again a success, as three events raised roughly $30,000 and registered an attendance of over 2,000. That, and the gifts of generous underwriters, helped bridge the annual $1,500 deficit between the tuition an average Rockhurst student pays and what it actually costs to educate him.

The series began in September with a new addition to the schedule, The Bridging the Gap Jazz Concert. The show featured St. Elizabeth School eighth grade piano prodigy Eldar Djangirov.

Since moving to Kansas City from his native Russia, Eldar has appeared on the 2000 Grammy Awards and CBS This Morning. The night of the concert, Craig Akin, David Basse, and the RHS Jazz Ensemble accompanied him.

The second and most attended concert of the three was the winter "Maye in December." Renowned singer Marilyn Maye joined the RHS Men's Choir in presenting a Christmas choral concert. Miss Maye's career has spanned almost five decades, appearing in performances at Starlight Theater, singing with numerous orchestras, and appearing on The Tonight Show with Johnny Carson a record 76 times.

The highlight of her career may have been in having the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, DC, choose her recording of "Too Late Now," to be placed in its collection of the 112 best American compositions.

For the concert, Miss Maye wrote lyrics describing RHS sports, their coaches, and athletes. As she sang them, members of the teams joined her in full uniforms and equipment on stage.

"Every part of the concerts where the students were a part of the show turned out to be the fan favorite," said Mrs. Judie Scanlon, RHS Special Activities Coordinator, who organized all three concerts.

The finale of the year was the "For the Love of the Irish..." concert in early March. Headlining the show was RHS Theology teacher Mr. John Morris and his singing partner, Ireland native Mr. Eddie Delahunt. Other performers included the RHS Orchestra, the O'Riada Irish Step Dancers, Irish storyteller Greg Duncan, '03, bagpiper Ms. Dorothy May, and leprechaun Brogeen Malarky.

Tropical theme sets tone for Homecoming Week

"The theme provided for many challenges, but after lots of hard work I thought the week overall was enjoyed by all," said Student Government Association President Blaine

For the annual dance, the gym and the Barry Commons were transformed into a tropical setting with decorations of island mystique, including a color-changing fountain, steel drum band, and even a bridge to enter the paradise. The colorful announcements of island natives "The Haitian Sensation" and Doctor Taracido and "island treats" handed out to all students captured the spirit of the theme.

"We wanted to focus on putting the 'coming home' aspect back into Homecoming," said Mr. Michael Heringer, Vice-Principal for Student Affairs.

The week began with an assembly featuring Rockhurst graduates to do just that. Speakers Pat McInerney, Class of '82, Kenyon Rasheed, Class of '88, and John O'Herron, Class of '95 addressed the entire student body. Each talked of his love for Rockhurst and the way his high school experiences are helping him today.

"The assembly provided a great chance for students to see what tradition RHS really has," said Barnard.

The Homecoming pep rally boosted the football team to an exciting 24-8 win over the reigning Kansas State Champion Garden Cityteam boosting the Hawklets record to 6-0.

At the Homecoming 2000 "Paradise Island" dance, Alexis Parsons of Notre Dame de Sion, escorted by Brian Quarnstrom, was crowned queen of the event. Queen candidates and escorts had lunch in the McGee Hall following the traditional Homecoming Mass.

"Homecoming was well planned by the right people," said Mr. Heringer. "Nothing could have gone better. We had the right people in the right places."

"Overall, Homecoming 2000 was a definite success," said Barnard. Story by Matt Neenan

Six-hour epic drama covering 200 years unfolds over two evenings in the Rose Theater

The Rose Theater at Rockhurst High School was transformed into a corner of Appala chia for the performances of The Kentucky Cycle, where the saga of three eastern Kentucky families unfolded over the course of two nights.

The drama is unique in that it is composed of nine short plays running almost six hours. It was divided into two parts, the first consisting of the first five plays and performed on a Wednesday and a Friday, and the second consisting of the last four plays and performed on a Thursday and a Saturday including a Sunday dinner theater performance.

For director Mr. Rodger Cilley, this was perhaps the highlight of the entire show when it was run in its entirety from two o'clock until eleven with a break in the middle for dinner.

"It was one of the most satisfying, thrilling experiences I've ever had as a director, and it was an amazing experience for all," Mr. Cilley said.

The length of the show posed difficulties for the actors because they had to do twice as much work in the same amount of time as a regular show.

For junior Patrick Coughlin the difficulty laid in the extra lines and the physical drain rehearsal

"It definitely made it more difficult because there were more lines to memorize, and rehearsals were much more physically draining," he said.

"The hardest parts were the long hours of rehearsal and the late nights," said sophomore Jacob

But, as senior Ian Merrigan pointed out, "Evervone was more than willing to buckle down and work for it. There was always at least two practices going on at a time, and everyone was working to make the show great."

Even Mr. Cilley had to make extra efforts.

"I had to learn how to direct differently, making corrections on the fly and really directing from the seat of my pants," he said.

The drama follows the interactions of the Rowen, Talbert, and Biggs families and their dealings with each other on a particular piece of land, from 1775 through 1975.

It starts with a greedy killer named Michael Rowen (Merrigan) who purchases land from a group of Cherokee Indians and then kills them by trading pox-infested blankets to them. Rowen kidnaps a Cherokee wife, Morning Star (Lauren Schwartze, Notre Dame de Sion) and begins his family with a son, Patrick (Coughlin).

The story follows the rise and fall of the Rowens, the introduction of the Biggs through the slavery of Sallie Mosbey (Bryonha Parham, Sion) to Michael Rowen, and the vengeance of the Talberts through Jeremiah (sophomore Johnny Francoviglia) for the murder of his father by Patrick Rowen, and the eventual fall and return of the Talberts.

"It is a cycle of violence and death over the generations of three families," Mr. Cilley said.

The cycle terminates at the end of the story with the great-great grandson of Michael Rowen, Joshua (Merrigan), who ultimately learns the lessons the show aims to teach the audience and attempts to end the cycle together with Franklin Biggs (junior Devin Carr) and James Talbert Winston (senior Matthew Schwenke).

Mr. Cilley said that the play tried to show people that human lives, no matter how long or short, make a difference somewhere. That difference can be positive or negative, it is completely up to people individually to decide, and people need to live up to this responsibility to each other and the earth by working together peacefully.

Mr. Cilley chose the play for what people would take away from it. This story excited him and moved him, because he felt it was extraordinarily well written, and seemed challenging and full of opportunities for the actors. As he does with every show, Mr. Cilley questioned its integrity and whether it fit with the mission of the school and decided it did. And after his experience last spring with Children of Eden, Mr. Cilley had the courage to be assured he could do this show. In the end, it really paid off for him.

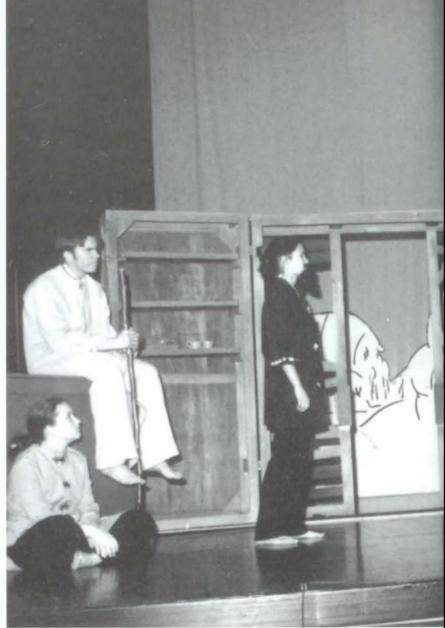

"I will remember this piece personally as one of the greatest artistic achievements we've ever done at Rockhurst," he said.

Players examine results of choices, and existence of good and evil in all inter saw the performance of Cabaret in the Black Box, but on the main stage Mr. Bill Murphy was directing Bertolt Brecht's The Good Person of Setzuan. The show, which ran four days, was cast with relatively inexperienced actors, but for senior lead Travis Levitt that was one of the highlights.

"Getting a bunch of new people involved and watching the show develop and helping develop it first hand, in a lead role, was really exciting for me," said Levitt.

But the inexperience of the cast did not cause many serious problems for the show or for Mr. Murphy.

"I just did a lot of teaching and didn't get as far in terms of polishing the presentation, but we made up for that by making sure we communicated clearly the intent of the scene and the show."

The inexperienced cast did well presenting the weighty themes in Good Person. For Mr. Murphy the object of the play was to get across to the audience the idea that all share in the human experience of making choices and that those choices not only affect us, but also the people around us. Levitt, who played a lead character named Wong, saw the themes in terms of questions with which audience should walk away.

"I think the major themes of the show were 'who is good?' and 'what is goodness?'" he said.

The story opens with Wong, a water seller in Setzuan, and his interaction with some gods who are searching to see if the world still has good people in it. They find their good person in Shen Ti (Annmarie Vilkens, Sion), and the story takes off from there. As the story twists and turns, Shen Ti struggles with her want to do good and her need to keep her head above water, while all the while the gods (sophomores Jacob Kruger and Jimmy Utley, senior Matt Schwenke, junior Matt Laird, Elizabeth Braud, Sion, and Hillary Hoover, Shawnee Mission East) press her to continue be> ing a good person. In the end, Shen Ti discovers that it is very difficult to be a good person to everyone at all times, and that she must make hard choices every day about how she will live her

To help work with the inexperienced cast and communicate the difficult themes, Mr. Murphy had student assistant directors in seniors Ryan McIntosh and Ian Merrigan. Merrigan approached Mr. Murphy and asked to help direct, and his assistance turned out to be a hidden blessing. according to Mr. Murphy.

"Ian showed a real zeal and knack for coaching the actors," he said. "And he was able to spend a lot of individual time with the young actors that they needed but that I did not have time to give."

And for his part, not only was McIntosh instrumental in the development of the play and the martial arts choreography involved, he was actually an inspiration for the choice of the play.

Brecht, and I was really into the eclectic minimalist style," said Mr. Murphy. "I just thought Ryan's art would work very well in the backdrop of such a minimalist set.'

Bianca (Laurie Gardner) performs "Tom, Dick, or Harry" with Lucentio (Francoviglia), Hortensio (Vince Wagner), and Gremio (Roy Lightner).

he Rockhurst Theater De partment chose Kiss Me Kate for its annual spring musical because of its fa miliarity. Being a well-known Broadway play, it was the direct opposite of the lesser-known Children of Eden performed last spring, a change Mr. Rodger Cilley, director, intended.

"We wanted a play that would attract a large audience," stated Mr. Cilley. "With the great singing and dancing, it was sure to be a success."

Kiss Me Kate is the story of two former lovers, played by senior Thomas Schario and Mallory Hawks, a senior at Notre Dame de Sion, who are reunited as the lead actors in the play The Taming of the Shrew. There they encounter such characters as Bill Calhoun and Lois Lane (sophomore Johnny Francoviglia and Sion senior Laurie Gardner), an unstable couple, as well as two comical gangsters (senior Ian Merrigan and sophomore Joe Hager).

For seniors such as Schario and Merrigan, Kiss Me Kate was their final RHS performance. "I felt it was a great way to cap off my four years in the theater department," said Schario. "I had a blast."

Auditions were held in January for the 58-member cast, some of whom had never participated in a Rockhurst play. They were joined by 19 orchestra and approximately 20 tech crew members who all dedicated three hours for practice every day after school, to be expected for such an intricate performance.

Mr. Bill Murphy supervised the construction of the set as well as the technical aspect of the theater, Mr. Mike Kern conducted the orchestra, Mr. Scott Farthing helped with vocals, and Mrs. Ann McGroskey served as choreographer.

Mr. Cilley had high praises for the efforts of the performers.

"The level of difficulty was much more than I anticipated. Because of the dance and technical requirements, it was an extraordinary piece of theater," he said. "I believe it was the most complete play we have ever offered."

Retreat!

An integral part of the Rockhurst experience are the annual retreats, designed to provide the individual classes with meaningful opportunities for growth.

"The goal of the Rockhurst retreat program," according to Fr. Gary Menard, S.J., Pastoral Director "is three-fold, to learn about yourself, classmates, and God."

The freshman experience, organized by Mr. Corey Quinn, includes spending a day at RHS with senior leaders where, in collaboration with the faculty, they hopefully gain not only a better grip on where they are with God, but a new view of the school and what it stands for.

"Understanding the inner workings of RHS is key to success and learning from seniors is one of the best ways to gain that knowledge," senior Andrew Mallow said.

Sophomores have a more physical retreat at Adventure Woods where they work together as a group to get to know and trust each other.

About 10 sophomores were placed under the control of a group leader, who took them around the woods and helped them complete each activity confidently as a team.

"I enjoyed working with friends as well as some sophomores who I did not know that well," John-Paul Nigro said.

Juniors go on arguably one of the most acclaimed retreats, as they journey to either Conception Abbey or Savior Pastoral Center. There they spend time on self examination while also getting to know the members of their class in the small groups.

"After coming home from the retreat I realized that I had strengthened relationships with old friends, while learning new things about people I had known for years," Brad Martin said. Along with small group meetings, and self examination, juniors experienced reconciliation and mass on the final night.

Seniors have an optional retreat, the auspicious Kairos, which completes the Rockhurst retreat experience. Kairos is the perfect way to end the RHS retreats, because it further strengthens the bonds between students, and creates an untouchable relationship among those who go on the retreat.

"Junior retreat is like going to the concert, whereas Kairos is being in the band," Mr. Tom Norman said.

Service gives seniors practical experience of Jesuit philosophy

In the 29th year of the Senior Service Program, seniors at RHS had an opportunity to put the Rockhurst ideal of "Men for Others" into action. Started by Fr. Pedro Arrupe, S.J., in 1972, the program has served over 100 agencies and compiled more than 490,000 service hours.

Headed by Mr. Frank Griffin and Mr. William Munninghoff, the program allows seniors to spend three weeks following Christmas break working in the community.

"It's a way for the students not only say they are men for others but be men for others," said Mr. Munninghoff.

The 209 seniors worked at over 70 agencies and totaled almost 1900 hours of service. Seniors were given a large list of agencies to choose from, but, with approval, could go out and set up the program at their own agency.

The seniors valued the program in different ways, but each took something special from it.

"My time at W.C. Bryant really opened up my eyes to how lucky I am. Seeing the things kids deal with made me understand that I can't take what I have for granted," said Corbin Keech who tutored third graders.

In the program, the seniors aided many different people. Their time spent working outside the RHS community allowed them to work for those who would most benefit.

"Our seniors made a difference at their service agency, whether they were helping the elderly, the severely handicapped, or kids with learning disabilities," said Mr. Griffin.

Mitch Kelly served the St. James Parish by working at food pantries and thriftstores throughout the area.

"Senior Service projects was a rewarding experience. You only get out of it what you put in," said Kelly.

The experiences of the Senior Service Projects have given promise to the future of RHS students giving back to the community.

"They learn something about themselves--patience, compassion, humility, and the value to appreciate what they have," said Mr. Griffin. Story by Peter Giangreco Excited students crowd around Dr. Fred Campisano's craps table to place their bets during Casino Night.

Through the hard work of the Student Government Association and the generosity of the Rockhurst students and faculty, Mission Week 2001 was considered by all to be a great success. Over $30,000 was raised for the Red Cloud Indian Mission in Pine Ridge, SD, and the lesuit Mission in Honduras.

"Every year more and more students get involved," said Mr. Mike Heringer, SGA moderator. "The students worked hard to make Mission Week a success."

There were many different events throughout the week to raise money including the Mission Madness board game, Casino Night, Battle of the Bands, the sale of dress down buttons and raffle tickets, and the hunger lunch which consisted of only rice, beans, and water. In addition, Father Kevin Schneider, S.J., came and spoke about the people of the Red Cloud Indian Mission to help give students a greater understanding of the people who are in need of help.

"We are trying to put a greater emphasis on the education component of Mission Week," remarked Mr. Heringer. "We want to create a greater awareness of those in need."

The Freshman class raised the most money with $43.95 per person, followed by the Seniors with $23.59 per person. The Sophomores came next with $21.94 per person, and the Junior class added $20.63 each.

Mission Week, however, is not just about how much money is raised.

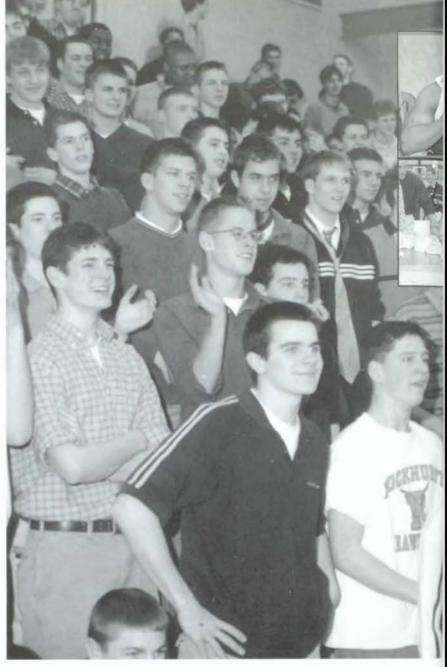

"We never set a monetary goal or judge the success of Mission Week by just how much money is raised," commented Mr. Heringer. "There are four objectives to a successful Mission Week: it should be an act of faith, it should raise awareness, it should be fun, and it should raise funds for those less-fortunate than we are."

he 14th Annual Carlito's Battle of the Bands capped off Mission Week, grossing more than $5000 for "All battles are unique, yet spectacular," said Mr. Tom Norman, long time event sponsor.

The bands were diverse, playing styles as varied as funk/ jazz fusion, progressive groove rock, Christian rock, easy listening, "stank rock", ska/punk, and punk rock.

Starting off the action, though, was Johnny Mac and the Acid Flashbacks, featuring teacher Mr. John McEniry. who played a variety of styles of music. This has become a tradition at each Battle.

One of bands, The Controlled, showcased their aggressive brand of punk rock, while, in comparison, the rest of the bands were somewhat laid back, according to many in attendance. They played a style of punk rock not seen at a Battle for quite some time.

"It was exciting because that was the biggest audience we'd ever played for," said sophomore Ben Summers, frontman for The Controlled. "Most of the kids weren't familiar with our music."

Rounding it out were the Evan Dease Band, Fuse, Commissioned to Truth, led by senior Mike McIntyre, the Biff Squad, the Sloppy Popsicles, and Soma.

The Sloppy Popsicles, fronted by Junior Richie Restivo, were another band unique to the Battle, playing their interesting mix of punk rock and ska.

A new addition to the event was an Amnesty International display promoting the club along with social justice issues such as sweatshop labor and the death penalty.

"Playing in the Battle was a lot of fun and it was great to see so many people having a blast," said Doug Croy of the Biff Squad. "All the work that Mr. Norman and Jamie Burkart did made it just that much better."

Of the bands, the Evan Dease Band took first place, the Sloppy Popsicles won second, and Fuse took third.

"I thought it was a great time," said senior Mitch Paone, who won best keyboard in the Evan Dease Band. "I was in a lot of pain with a broken back and wrist, but other than that it was pure enjoyment."

The other awards given out included best vocals to Andrew Zender of Soma; best drummer, Alex Smith, also of Soma; best guitar, John Mitchell of Fuse; best bassist, Joe Johnson of Evan Dease, and best horn section, the Sloppy Popsicles. Story by Matt Cavlovich Ms. Annie Otto married Mr. Matt Riggs on June 16. Fr. Frank Reale, S.J., Provincial for the Missouri Province, gives communion to Fr. Mark Daues, S.J., during the ceremony where he professed his final vows as a Jesuit priest. Far right: Ms. Amanda Pierce and Mr. Corey Quinn were married on August 11.

inal vows are taken when an individual wants to show a commitment to God, the Church, and to the people he loves. Five members of the Rockhurst family took their final vows during the 2000-2001 school year. Father Mark Daues, S.J., Mr. Corey Quinn, Ms. Amanda Pierce, Mr. Matt Nolen, and Ms. Anne Otto took the final steps of a life-long commitment.

Fr. Daues professed his sacred vows in November, committing his life permanently to the Society of Jesus and to his faith in Catholicism. As with every other member of the Jesuits, Fr. Daues vowed to live a life of poverty, chastity and obedience, never seeking to be honored or held above others.

"It's the complete and total commitment to myself, to the Society of Jesus, and to the priesthood," Fr. Daues said. "It also shows the commitment the Jesuit community has given to me as well."

The process to become a Jesuit is a long and arduous ordeal according to Fr. Daues who first realized he wanted to live this way when he was a junior at the University of Missouri at Rolla. In his fourth year at RHS, Fr. Daues is still doing what he loves, teaching math.

Mr. Corey Quinn and Ms. Amanda Pierce pledged their love for each other on August 11, in front of their family and friends at St. Peter's Church in Kansas City.

"The covenant is of the utmost importance, to declare our love to each other in front of God and our church," Mr. Quinn said.

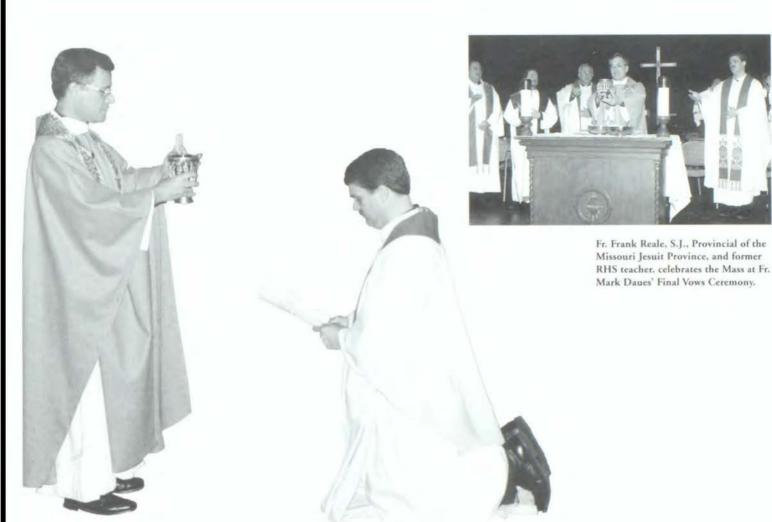

Both are in their third year at Rockhurst, Ms. Pierce as the Assistant Admissions Director, while Mr. Quinn teaches Freshman Theology.

The couple met at RHS during the summer of 1998 and became engaged in August of 2000.

"Everything fell into place," Ms. Pierce said. "I've always felt comfortable with him and we've been able to share a connection."

Mr. Nolen professed his vows of marriage with Ms. Jodie Kisner June 2 at Redemptorist Church in Kansas City.

"It shows the commitment of love with the person you want to spend the rest of your life with," Mr. Nolen said.

The new Mrs. Nolen works at the American Academy of Family Physicians, while Mr. Nolen is in his second year as a physical education teacher. Ms. Kisner is the sister of Ryan Kisner, a 2000 graduate of RHS.

Ms. Annie Otto and Mr. Matt Riggs shared their finals vows on June 16 and received the sacrament of marriage at St. Francis Xavier Church.

"My family was and still is supportive of what I do," the new Mrs. Riggs said. "I want to have the same kind of environment and be able to share my life with someone I love."

Mrs. Riggs has been a Spanish and English teacher at RHS for four years while Mr. Riggs is an environmentalist for a corporation called MARC. He's also a musician and plays in several area bands. The two met at Rock 'n Bowl in 1998 and became engaged in May of 2000.

Mr. Riggs visited RHS in 2000 while combining his love for the earth and his love for music, portraying "Green Elvis" and helping kick off Recycling Week.

"It was a special Mass to bless the school year and start it in the right state of mind," commented Fr. Gary Menard, S.J., RHS Director of Pastoral Ministry.

As there was a Mass to mark the beginning of the school year, there was a liturgy to celebrate the final vows of Fr. Mark Daues, S.J., as he renewed his commitment to the Society of Jesus and became a fully incorporated Jesuit. Fr. Frank Reale, S.J., Provincial for the Jesuits of the Missouri Province and former Rockhurst teacher, presided at the Mass where Fr. Daues pronounced the four solemn vows of poverty, chastity, obedience, and special obedience to the Pope for missions, a vow taken only by lesuits.

In April, the Liturgy and Worship class organized the Holy Thursday prayer service under the direction of Mr. Tom Norman and Mr. Mike Kern. The Liturgy and Worship class found experiences that students at RHS would face that could be compared to the events during the Stations of the Cross, helping students to relate to Jesus' death and resurrection.

We try to make Masses more relevant to the students," said Mr. Norman.

The Liturgy and Worship class also organized the Baccalaureate Mass at graduation, which had three concelebrants Fr. Thomas A. Pesci, S.J., RHS President, Fr. Daues, and Fr. Menard. This Mass, held in the Municipal Auditorium, had over 1,500 people in attendance with the men's chorus and the orchestra providing music.

The Rockhurst community prays together frequently, not just at special events. Throughout the year Fr. Menard organized class Masses almost every Friday.

"We can't really plan Masses; we can only prepare for them," stated Fr. Menard. "It is up to God whether the students will have a valuable spiritual experience." Story by Jamie Burkart he annual Spectacular 2001 Auction, with its New Orleans theme, proved some naysayers wrong as it netted nearly $500,000 for Rockhurst's Annual Fund.

Members of the RHS "Dixie-Land Band" parade into the Barry Student Commons to signal the start of the Spectacular Auction.

"We wanted it to be a fun event, and a 'Let The Good Times Roll' theme provided a happy, fun, and generous atmosphere," said Co-Chair Mrs. Susan Hoefer.

There had been concern that the auction would not do as well as in past years because of poor stock market performance during the weeks proceeding the event. Still, the RHS community pulled together yet again for the cause.

"This year we had more instances of 25 people spending $1,000 each instead of the one person contributing $25,000 which has been more common in past years," said Mrs. Debbie Schloegel, the other Co-chair of the event.

The evening's most emotional moment was the naming of "Tyler's Way" in memory of Tyler Hansen, Class of 2002, who passed away freshman year.

"It was amazing," gasped Mrs. Scanlon, Special Activities Coordinator. "It was a great thing to see."

"'Tyler's Way' was a standout because of the emotional impact it had on everyone," said Mrs. Schloegel. "What was also astounding was the numbers of people who contributed to the auction."

At least 300 volunteers worked for 11 months to decorate, organize, and collect donations from nearly 600 businesses and individuals.

"It was amazing to see working moms and dads come in their free time to help," said Mrs. Scanlon. "The volunteers do have fun, though."

To keep things from getting too overwhelming, those in charge of the auction felt free to enjoy themselves from time to time.

"Sometimes when it would get really tedious we would put on music and dance on the tables and chairs in the auction office!" Mrs. Schloegel recalled. "During the months of planning there were so many practical jokes played that if somebody was talking to you, you had no idea whether or not they were telling the truth!"

"The chairpeople were an extraordinarily fun group of people to work with," said the Rev. Thomas Pesci, S.J., RHS President. "They were very generous with their hard work."

"The student volunteers were a huge help," said Mrs. Hoefer. "Mike McShane, Michael Nigro and all the performers really brought out the New Orleans theme with all of the great performances."

"The Auction is the major fundraiser that bridges the gap between the actual cost of a student's education and the tuition," explained Fr. Pesci.

The Annual Fund supplies the money needed to pay salaries, compensate for the operational budget, and it contributes to the $700,000 awarded to students for financial aid.

"This year's Spectacular auction was fun and colorful!" exclaimed Mrs. Scanlon "We could not operate the school without the ."

In 1968, Mr. Ed Reardon, his wife Shirley, and his son Jay and daughter Janet travelled to Iowa City, IA, to watch sons Kerry and Jerry play for the University of Iowa.

Ed Reardon, front row, far left, was elected Captain of the 1931 Rockhurst High School Football Team. Three of his sons, Kerry, Jerry, and Jay, later starred for the Hawklets.

Fr. Tom Pesci,S.J., RHS President faithful family that has consistently responded to Rockhurst's most basic of urgent needs," is the way former RHS teacher and president, Fr. Thomas W. Cummings S.J., referred to the Edward Reardon family in 1987.

Since his graduation in 1933, Mr. Edward Reardon has been a stalwart benefactor for the RHS community, with a devotion of time, talent, and resources. His legacy includes three sons, who, in their own right, have contributed enormously to their alma mater.

In 1932, the RHS Varsity Basketball Team, with Mr. Reardon playing guard, put its first ever State Championship banner on the wall, a feat not duplicated until 50 years later. Here is a man who was voted as captain of the football and basketball team in 1933 even though he was unable to play due to a kidney ailment.

and Jay (Class of 1976) attended RHS, Mr. Reardon stayed involved as Father's Club President.

He was the Co-chairman for the Capital Fund Drive along with Mr. Robert Reintjes which resulted in the addition of the Rose Theater, and he was a member of the Board of Directors of the McGee Foundation for whom McGee Hall was named.

In 1987, Fr. Cummings asked Mr. Reardon "to become the first-ever alumnus to serve with Virginia Greenlease as an 'Honorary Director' for life" and was the recipient of the "Ignatian Award of Excellence" for distinguished "Respect-

Hope-Service.

His relationship with RHS continued with the arrival in 1992 of Fr. Thomas Pesci, S.J. Fr. Pesci, while contemplating whether to come from the east coast Maryland Province, met informally with Mr. Reardon. This was Fr. Pesci's first encounter with a member of the RHS family and one he would never forget.

Fr. Pesci was sitting in a restaurant when Mr. Reardon came up and introduced himself and said something that stuck with Fr. Pesci.

"If you come to Kansas City, we will love you," said Mr. Reardon to Fr. Pesci.

"He just knew I would be president," recalled Fr. Pesci. The three sons of Mr. Reardon have also made and important impact on the RHS community.

The eldest of the three, Kerry, continued the tradition of excellence with his contributions. During his senior year in 1967, he set the school long jump record of 23'1". He also played football for the Hawklets receiving the James J.

Muehlbauch Award voted on by letterman and given to the player who exemplified loyalty and perseverance. He took it to the next level when he played wide receiver and defensive back at the University of Iowa. Kerry received All-American Honors his last two years at Iowa before he was drafted by the Kansas City Chiefs in 1971 where he played until 1976, starting three years in a row as a safety. After his football career ended, Kerry decided to devote his time to his insurance agency which provided him more opportunities to work with the RHS community.

While Kerry's only son, Mike (Class of 1996), was attending RHS, Kerry held the position of Father's Club President like his father before him. He received the "Ignatian Award of Excellence" in 1998 and the "Thomas Murphy Award" in 2000 for his substantial work as project manager of Phase

One of the Capital Campaign.

In 1969, Jerry, the second of Mr. Reardon's sons, graduated from RHS, where he played a key role for the football team and also went to the University of Iowa on a football scholarship. Following his college career, he was drafted by the Minnesota Vikings where he played for two seasons until he broke his leg and decided to follow other aspirations.

Since then, Jerry has been instrumental in the financial aspects of Phase One Capital Campaign and is a representative for the Class of 1969 Alumni participation. Jerry has sent two of his sons, Brian (Class of 1996) and Tim (Class of 2001) to RHS. His youngest son, Jeremiah, begins his RHS career in the Fall of 2001.

Jay Reardon left his mark athletically, excelling at Track and Field, breaking his brother Kerry's long jump record in 1976 by two feet with a leap of 25'1". He also broke two other records that same day at the State Championship at Cater High School setting a new high jump record of 7'3/and a new triple jump record of 50' 10 3/4" while winning the State Championships in 1975 and 1976. Three of Jay's records still stand unbroken today.

Because Jay was leaping past the confines of the long jump pit, it had to be increased by three feet so he would be able to land and be measured properly. He was named All-American and ranked nationally his junior and senior year, and was the first high school athlete in the nation to jump seven feet in the high jump. After his high school track career was finished, Jay competed in a National All-Star Track Meet in Chicago where he placed first in high jump, second in long jump, and fourth in triple jump.

"He basically was the best jumper I've ever coached," said former Track and Field Coach Mr. Steve Ryan. He actually had his own training program and was his own coach.

Jay also played basketball where he received Honorable Mention All-Metro his senior year while still managing to achieve First Honors.

Jay received a track scholarship to Kansas University where he went on to win the KU Relays in the long jump his freshmen year and win the Big Eight long jump his senior year. He was also named Captain of the Track and Field team his junior and senior year.

The Reardon family has gone far beyond the ideals of the "tradition of excellence" at RHS. Mr. Edward Reardon begins his 73rd year associated with RHS in good health. He celebrated his 56th wedding anniversary with his wife Shirley on May 29. Kerry continues to be Project Manager of Phase II of the Capital Campaign, and Jerry stays involved in his own class, as well as his youngest son's future career at RHS.

"The Reardons epitomize, over three generations, the best example of involvement and commitment that anyone would seek from an alumnus," said Fr. Pesci.

he Mom Prom is a very special event because it makes memories that mothers and their sons will share for years to come," exclaimed Mrs. Debbie Lightner, Co-Chair of the annual Mother and Son Dance held in March at the Ritz Charles.

The evening began with mothers and sons dressed in their evening's best, socializing in the lobby of the Overland Park venue. At the end of the "social hour," mothers and sons sat down to a three-course meal. Mothers who decided to have dessert had no need to feel guilty because it was worked off on the energy-filled dance floor, which seemed to be packed with smiling mothers and their wild sons all evening long-

"This was definitely the best party I have played music at all year," commented Phil Jay, disc jockey for the event.

"With a record number of 1,380 people, the Mom Prom was more successful than in previous years," said Mrs. Barb McLaughlin, who also helped chair the event, whose success could be attributed to the changes from previous years.

"Instead of having the Mom Prom at Bartle Hall downtown as we have had in the past, Mrs. Lightner and I decided to 'glam up' the dance a little and have it at the Ritz Charles in the heart of Johnson County," said Mrs. McLaughlin.

With doormen, coat checkers, two photographers, and 70 servers, Mom Prom has evolved into a hugely popular event.

Another change from previous years was the emphasis on the Senior Rose Ceremony.

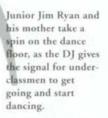

"The Rose Ceremony is a very sentimental event because it signifies the end of our four years at RHS and reminds us that soon we will be moving on," said senior Eddie Bessenbacher.

"Since it would be the senior's last Mom Prom, we wanted to make the Rose Ceremony more significant," commented Mrs. McLaughlin. "So, we decided to clear all of the tables from the dance floor early so that mothers and sons could enter hand-in-hand, and the sons could give their mothers the traditional rose and a hug."

One memorable moment of the evening was the poem read during the Rose Ceremony by Senior Class President Patrick Jakopchek.

"After Patrick read the poem about the connection between a mother and her son, I do not think there was a mother in the whole place without tears in her eyes," Mrs. Lightner said.

"I think the moms really appreciated all the hard work that went into this year's Mother and Son Dance," said senior Zach Ramirez. Story By R.E. Wolfe II

Varsity squad wins 1st State crown since 1987

The 2000 Varsity Football Team will go down in history as one of the best ever at Rockhurst. Their "never say die" attitude helped them overcome extreme heat, bitter cold, and a tough schedule to become the first team with 14 wins in RHS history and the fourth to win a championship under Head Coach Tony

"It was a magical year!" said Coach Severino. "Going 14-0 was low on our list of goals because its just so hard to accomplish, but we did it."

RHS set the tempo early in the season with victories over Oak Park and longtime rival Blue Springs. From there the squad beat White Bear Lake, MN, 36-30, and traveled to Las Vegas where they blew out Henderson Basic High School, 44-0.

The biggest highlight of the season, however, was the Rock's overtime victory over Liberty in the State Sectional. Senior Quarterback Geoff Brown ran in the winning touchdown to slingshot the Hawklets past the Blue Jays. The momentum and Brown's continued fine play carried the Hawklets through the playoffs to the State Championship victory over Pattonville.

"Geoff Brown was huge in the playoffs," said Coach Severino. "He came up with a number of big plays for our team.'

Outstanding contributors included Scott Edmonds, Jason Dunsworth, Ryan Anderson, and Kevin Kane on defense. while freshman running back Tony Temple ignited the offense with electri-

"It was somebody different every week making the big play to help us win," remarked Coach Severino.

In 1998 the team fell a game short of the championship, in 1999 they fell a win short, but in 2000 they took it all the way to the house. Nobody can describe the team's overall attitude about the season better than senior lineman Brian Quarnstrom.

"We remembered what it felt like to lose the championship last year," said Quarnstrom. "No one on the team wanted that feeling again this year. That was the driving force that made us the great team we became."

The JV Football Team went 6-0 and beat Jefferson City, its biggest rival, at Jeff City in the rain. Coaches Eric Berg and John Morris agreed that the victory showed how well the team played together and overcame adversity.

The only disappointment was that the team couldn't play a full schedule. "Due to playing teams from Minnesota and Las Vegas, it just wasn't possible for us to play a full season," Coach Berg said. " It didn't help that North Kansas City also canceled our

"We never stopped working," said Johnson. "Every time we faced a problem everybody stepped up and played hard."

'They looked good on the field and if they continue to do what they have been doing they will be good varsity players," said Coach Morris.

Por the second consecutive year, the Sophomore Football team went undefeated with an 8-0 record, extending its winning streak to 16-0, the longest undefeated string in Sophomore history.

Besides the perfect record, the camaraderie and work ethic of the team were exceptional, according to Head Coach Bernie Kreikemeier. Highlights included wins over two of Rockhurst's biggest rivals, Blue Springs and St. Thomas Aquinas.

Led by Marcus Perry, Trey Sabates, and Anthony Quirarte, the team's only disappointment was that North Kansas City canceled, which would have been the last game of the season.

The team's closest game, came against

St. Thomas Aquinas, with Rockhurst winning, 28-20.

"We had some new lineman who played B Team freshman year who really stepped up and blocked like heck," said Perry. "We were down seven against Aquinas and we fought back and won."

Frosh A team improves as they learn to play all four quarters he Freshman A team, coached by Mr. Frank Griffin and Mr. Mike Sullivan, finished the season with a solid 4-3-1 record against top quality opponents.

"They played hard every game, never giving up," stated Coach Griffin. "They were successful when they competed for four quarters."

The A team struggled through the beginning of the season, losing to Shawnee Mission South (in overtime) and Oak Park, followed by a hard fought, 6-6, overtime tie to Blue Springs South.

The fourth game of the season was huge. The Hawklets faced Liberty, a traditional powerhouse in the Kansas City area, and blew them away, 21-0. This game led to a string of four straight victories beating teams such as St. Pius X, St. Thomas Aquinas, and Blue Springs.

The final game, although it ended up in a loss, was the climax of the season. The team competed for four quarters in a hard hitting physical football game against Jefferson City, losing, 13-12.

Throughout the year many players stepped up to lead the team, including guarterback Sean Cummings, tailback Jeff Koons, linemen Brian Trowman and Bryan Murphy, linebacker Steve Welsh, and defensive end Michael Feierabend.

"We started off not playing as a team for the first three games," said Welsh. "But after the Liberty game we came together and had two consecutive shutouts."

On the Ball

Varsity squad advances to State Semifinals after losing 10 seniors from last years team o one believed that the Rockhurst Hawklets could make it back to the State Final Four in St. Louis after losing 10 seniors starters last year.

According to Head Coach Chris Lawson the team overcame doubters through solid character and resilience to post a 21-5-2 record and had an opportunity to win the team's third straight State Championship.

The Hawklets started their season slowly, posting a 1-1-1 record after three games, but they never strayed from their goals and expectations.

With seniors Jarret Devereaux, Brendan Matthews, and Ryan Raybould providing leadership, the season changed for the better. The team beat Marquette Prep, 3-2, in overtime in Milwaukee. They also beat cross-state rival St. Thomas Aquinas in penalty kicks after three overtime periods left the game tied at 1-1. The Hawklets also won the Ray-South and the Top Dawg Tournament, playing Blue Valley Northwest, Olathe East, Blue Springs, and Aquinas.

"The seniors led the team where we wanted to go," Matthews said. "And we proved all the doubters in the city and in the state wrong."

Junior Charlie Peters, who tied Raybould for the most goals this season, also led the Hawklets, as did junior Matt Ferguson who, according to Coach Lawson, improved with every practice and game and will be a force in the future.

Junior goalkeeper Cameron Nordholm had 10 shutouts and stepped up in key situations. Sophomores Alex Nordholm and Mike Comiskey, along with freshman Robbie Borchardt, also contributed to the team's Final Four berth.

"The young guys and the seniors came together well," Devereaux said. "We overcame the separation we had at the beginning of the season."

The Hawklets ended the season with losses to Francis Howell North, 2-0, and Christian Brothers College, 3-0.

"The only disappointment of the year was that we didn't score in the Final Four," Coach Lawson said.

"Our goal is to be the best and to compete at a level where we can live up to our expectation that teams have to go through Rockhurst to earn a State Championship," Coach Lawson said.

Sophomore Soccer achieves winning record under the guidance of first year coaches Tirst year Head Coach Jeremy Sean Angiel, led the Sophomore Soccer Team to a 16-4-1 season record.

"The highlight of our season was placing first in the Raytown JV Tournament," Coach McElduff said. The Hawklets, the only sophomore team in the JV tournament, registered wins over Raytown and Blue Springs on their way to the championship.

The Hawklets were lead by a core of sophomores including Mark Keleher, Kevin Lenihan, and Tom Dougherty, but freshman Robby Borchart, Jimmy Chalmers, and Seamus McLaughlin also played key roles.

"We had a great time this year," said Chalmers. "We worked together and overall played well."

As first year teachers, Mr. McElduff and Mr. Angiel did not know what they were in for in coaching high school sports.

"I've coached soccer for six years, but never at the high school level," Coach McElduff said. "I was pretty lucky to get such an outstanding group of kids. It helped the transition a lot.'

Both coaches stated the sophomore players have bright futures with the soccer program at higher levels.

Favorable weather enabled the Hawklets to play a full schedule. The game versus Aquinas was postponed due to rain, but was later rescheduled.

In spite of their winning record, the freshmen suffered disappointment as well, including being the first team to lose the RHS Freshman Tournament.

"Win or lose, it is always enjoyable watching talented kids play together for RHS," Head Coach Phil Baker proclaimed.

When eight players were lost to the Sophomore, JV and Varsity teams throughout the season, other players stepped up. In fact, more than half the team scored at least one goal..

team that runs after the impossible dream and catches it, the 2000 Rockhurst High School Cross Country Team is arguably one of the best in RHS history. The Hawklets qualified as a team for the first time in 16 years and accomplished more at the state meet than any team in recent history, finishing 8th out of 16 teams in the Missouri 4A division.

Senior Sean O'Donnell, a first year cross country runner, finished in 14th place with a blazing 16 minutes 29 seconds, making him the fastest RHS cross country runner in a state meet on the current state course in the school's history, and earning him All-State recognition.

Senior Chris Winger finished his four-year RHS cross-country career by running one of the best races of his life, coming in 35th out of 158 competitors.

This year's varsity team had the depth that past teams lacked, making it possible to compete at the state level. Senior Charles Bush, junior Patrick Ishmael, junior John Dollerschell, sophomore Brennan Metzler, and sophomore Brian Graham each played a vital role on the road to state, helping achieve what was thought to be out of reach.

Freshman Patrick Tweedy surprised everyone at his first meet when he came in second in the freshman race, breaking the course record at the Truman Invitational. He continued to succeed at the State Meet where he finished 3rd among freshma competitors.

The road to State was a difficult one. In order to qualify as a team, RHS needed to place among the top four teams in both the districts and sectionals meets.

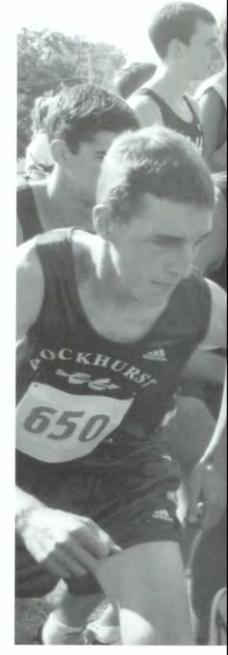

It was an ambitious dream for a team that hadn't qualified for State since 1984, but the Hawklets made a conscious decision to put everything on the line and give all that they had to, in the words of Coach Michael Dierks, "[be] courageous enough to keep putting one foot in front of the other."

Coach Dierks summed up the Cross Country season by stating that "heart, and believing in yourself, are the keys that can bring about great things. Never forget that."

"Many of the individuals on our team set new PR's (Personal Records) and greatly improved their times from last season," said Coach Sullivan.

Throughout the year, the Freshman ran about 250 miles and the JV ran up to 400 miles, or roughly the distance from Kansas City to Minneapolis.

"The JV pushed the Varsity during practice and certainly contributed to the program's success this season," said Coach Sullivan.

The highlight of the year was the Kansas City All-Metro Championships, where all of the training came together, and 24 of the 41 runners ran their best race of the season. The JV placed sixth of 15 teams and the freshmen were second out of 10 teams.

Two new races were added to the schedule, the Park Hill Invitational and the Blue Springs Invitational, where the Iunior Varsity team placed second and the Freshmen took first place.

Newcomers to the team were critical to its success. According to Coach Sullivan, they would not have been as successful without juniors John Dollerschell and Brendon Toohey, and sophomore Alex DiCarlo. Those runners, as well as juniors Jim Becker and lack Trotter are among those expected to move up to the varsity level for the 2001 season according to Coach Sullivan.

"This was the JV's best season ever, and we have the potential to improve even more next year on the foundation we built this season," said Trotter.

"We had a great year," Coach Sullivan said. "Individuals improved a lot and I am really looking forward to seeing what we can accomplish next season."

Rock Solid!

Eight Seniors carry a talented squad to the state playoffs he Varsity Basketball Team, led by eight seniors, turned in a stellar season with 24 wins and five losses. The squad advanced to the State Quarterfinals before bowing out to Liberty, a team they had defeated earlier in the year.

"It hurt worse because we knew we had beaten them before, and should have beaten them again," said Head Coach Mark Nusbaum. "We just didn't quite get the job done."

Despite the disappointing loss to Liberty, the Hawklets still had impressive victories over tough opponents including Raytown South, Creighton Prep, Central (twice), and three wins in the William Jewell Tournament.

"The seniors really provided great leadership for the younger players," remarked junior forward John Mayberry. "Their experience carried us throughout the season."

Seniors Tom Komoroski and Brian Carson, along with Mayberry, formed a formidable frontcourt, while seniors Mike Day and Alex Staab, along with junior Noah Strozier made Rockhurst difficult to defend from the outside. With eight different leading scorers throughout the year, the Hawklets' balanced attack was hard to stop.

"The opposing defense couldn't just concentrate on one person," remarked Coach Nusbaum.

Through the Hawklets' impressive teamwork several players received individual honors. Komoroski was named 1st team All-District, 2nd team All-State, a Coaches Association All-Star, and Honorable Mention All-Metro by Metro Sports and the Kansas City Star. In addition, Mike Day was named to the Coaches Association All-Academic Team, while he and Noah Strozier received 2nd team All-District honors.

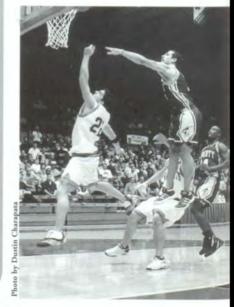

With the seniors accumulating 45 wins in just two years, the expectations for future squads have now risen. Next year's squad will again be experienced with nine players with at least one game of Varsity experience and, according to Coach Nusbaum, they "could be really good!"

hen the Rockhurst Junior Varsity Basketball left the court, two things were for certain, that they had won, and that they had won by a sizeable margin. The Hawklets posted a record of 16-0 and won each game by an average of almost 25 points.

"They played the highest quality of IV Basketball that I've seen," Head Coach John Morris stated.

During its season-long winning streak the JV Team captured the Rockhurst Tournament title by defeating St. Thomas Aquinas, exacting revenge on a team they lost to twice last year..

"It was great to walk into Aquinas' gym and avenge the two losses from last year," junior Matt Ferguson said.

"The team was an outstanding group of young men who played outstanding basketball," Coach Morris proclaimed.

The combination for success was headed by Ferguson and the team leader in assists, Adam Sheridan. Sophomore contributors included leading scorer Adrian Carson, as well as Kevin Sears and Eric

"The team played very well together," Ferguson said. "Our teamwork made us the great team we became."

Sheridan attributes the team's success to heart and desire.

"I knew they wanted to win each game as badly as I did," he said.

"The best part of the season was not that we beat all of our opponents, but that we crushed them!" Ferguson exclaimed.

This year the Sophomore basketball team, coached by Mr. Ryan Nicholson, ended the season with a sparkling 19-1 record, despite obstacles it had to overcome, including the overtime-loss of the first game of the season to Blue Springs.

"Most of the problem was a lack of player confidence," said Coach Nicholson. "I just tried to convince them that they were good."

The next game the team went on to beat St. Thomas Aquinas, which greatly boosted its confidence. The third game was a blowout over Blue Valley Northwest, and from then on the team cruised.

"We started off low and it motivated us," said T.J. Kratofil. "Coach Nicholson told us after the first loss that he hates losing, and that we were much better than that, and we never lost again."

The pinnacle of the season, according to many, was a win over Raytown South, one of the most talented teams in the area.

"Coming into the season I knew the team was overloaded with talent, it was just proving to the players that they could win," said Mr. Nicholson.

"Coach Nicholson teaches players how to play the right way, and we learned a lot from him," said James Griffin.

Frosh A team uses teamwork and spirited defense as their formula for success

s with any freshman team, there is a cohesiveness and unity which must be developed with each player in order to achieve success. This year's Freshman A Basketball Team lost its first game to Blue Springs, 59-44, in its search for success.

"After that first loss we needed to come together and develop some team leaders," stated Head Coach Scott Duschen.

The Hawklets used their defense to post a 16-3 record, beating Blue Springs and other notable area teams including St. Thomas Aquinas, Bishop Miege, and Shawnee Mission East twice.

"Everyone contributed to the defense, and that's what we built the team on," said Coach Duschen.

The team's success was led by point guards David Franklin and John Parsons, Derrick McKinney, who averaged 10 points a game, and Bryan Murphy who led the ream in rebounds.

"We were a very talented and athletic team that played well together," said Parsons.

The success that developed this season peaked at the Rockhurst Tournament championship game where Steve Welsh made the game-tying basket, sending the game into overtime where they eventually beat Archbishop O'Hara.

"These guys learned never to give up in any situation," said Coach Duschen. "As they grow, their skills and intensity must grow with them. If they do that their potential looks good."

ith teamwork, selflessness, and dedication as its main objective, the Freshman B Basketball Team showed that Rockhurst basketball is a force to be reckoned with.

"Once again the boys had a successful season, bringing home two first place tournament trophies," commented Head Coach Matt Nolen. "Hopefully, they have learned valuable fundamentals that will assist them in the future."

With a 15-4 record, the season had a rocky start when the Hawklets lost their first game to Shawnee Mission South in part because Coach Nolen was unable to attend the first two weeks of practices because he also coached Varsity Football.

The season improved with the leadership of Jeff Owsley and Jimmy Chalmers, who helped the Hawklets beat both Aquinas and Miege twice each during the season.

"Our team had great chemistry, which helped us to work together really well," said Owsley. "Also, Coach Nolen was able to help us focus and loosen up during a tough game by cracking some jokes. It helped a lot!"

"The most gratifying part of the season had to be winning both the Blue Springs and the Shawnee Mission South Tournaments," Coach Nolen said. "It demonstrated how hard work really pays off!"

Shaving Time

Aqua Hawks finish 8th in State Meet, the highest finish in school history he Aquahawks rocked State, placing eighth overall and fin ishing higher than any other team outside the St. Louis area.

"We had a very, very special team this year that was able to achieve everything together as a team," said Head Coach Paul Winkeler. "They were perfect in the sense that they did everything asked of them and conquered every challenge."

Coach Winkeler's statement rings true as the team took first place in five of six major meets and conquered its biggest rival, Columbia Hickman, at the Ozark Invitational by snatching first place by only one point.

"That was definitely one highlight of the season," said team co-captain and junior George Robinson. "That was our first victory ever at that meet, and we won it by one point."

The accomplishments of many of the swimmers contributed to the overall success of the team.

Senior Zacc Gansert wasranked as the top swimmer in the city in the individual medley after his 6th place finish at State. He was recognized by the KC Star as one of the best area swimmers, and was the team's only double medal winner after competing in four events at state.

Senior Sean McLaughlin was a Team Captain and state qualifier in butterfly. He was also a member of the 200 Medley Relay Team, which placed 7th at state.

Junior Matt Neenan swam the difficult anchor leg on two of the three relays at State and swam anchor on all three for most of the year. He pulled out many relays for the team and qualified in three individual events at State, although he was only allowed to swim in two of them in addition to the two relays.

Junior Danny Laughlin qualified in the 100 backstroke, was part of the 200 Medley Relay Team, and was one of the top backstrokers in the city as he placed at state.

Sophomore Andrew Clement swam on both the 200 Medley Relay Team and the 200 Relay Team, both placing at state.

Sophomore diver Nick Carr placed in the top five in every meet and placed 8th at State in diving.

Freshman Alex Zasadny qualified for State in the 500 Freestyle and swam in the 400 Relay.

In the 200 medley relay Laughlin, Gansert, McLaughlin, and Clement were in the top seven in State and were the best in the city. The 200 Free Relay Team with Drew Huerter, George Robinson, Neenan, and Clement placed 10th at State. And the 400 Free Relay team with Zasadny, Gansert, Robinson, and Neenan dropped three seconds from its time to win the consolation heat and take 9th in state, securing the team's 8th place finish.

The night before the state championship was special for Coach Winkeler.

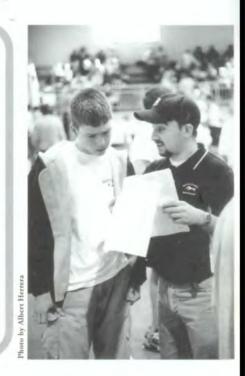

"The night before I told the guys that they had done a great job but nothing was set in stone yet," he said. "I challenged them to be the best that Rockhurst ever had and to finish better than the top ten, in the top eight or higher, and they did it! Having that eighth place finish and being the best team ever was just an incredible experience."

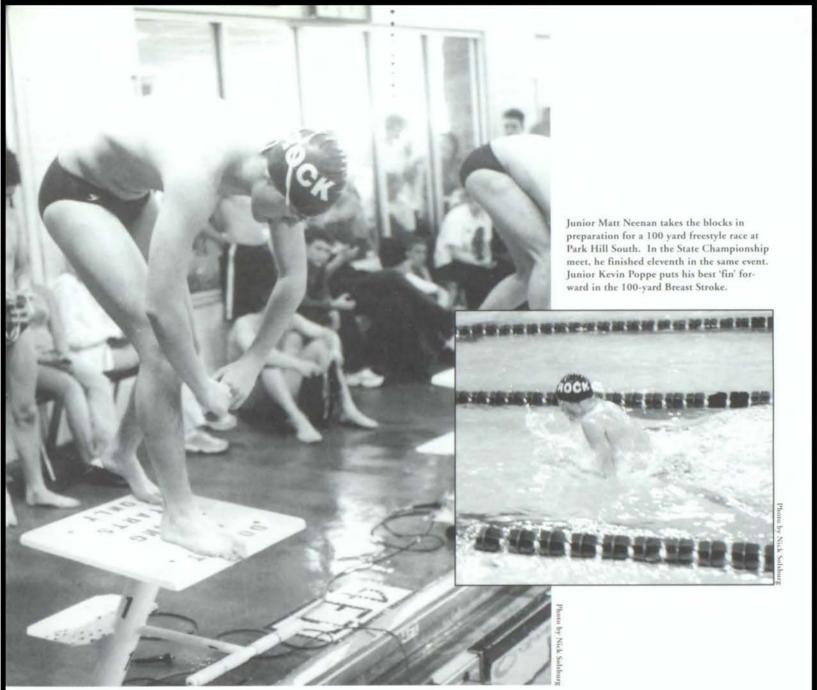

"My hope for next year is to finish in the top three and put a banner on the wall," said Robinson.

Young squad makes strides towards success despite tough competition ossibly the hardest working team at Rockhurst, the Varsity Wrestling squad, coached by Head Coach Rich Wikiera and assistants Tony Hill, Carlo Gimmarro, and Robert Webb, had an up and down season.

The team, represented by all four grade levels, posted a 2-7 overall record at duels. They also competed in five tournaments throughout the season, earning 4th, 5th, 6th, 8th, and 9th place finishes.

"All season we felt like we were on a rollercoaster," said Coach Wikiera. "We very easily, and probably should have ended up 6-3 on the season."

Matt Myers, the team captain, was the only senior on the team. He posted 29 wins on the season, including a trip

"We were very young this year, and Matt really stepped up and led the team," said Coach Wikiera.

Freshman Greg Ford had the most successful season, posting a 31-8 overall record including a trip to the State meet where he went 1-2 in his three matches.

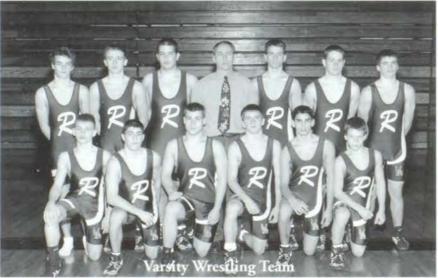

Along with these two team leaders, Nathan Crowe, Loren Peters, Kevin Barth, Brady O'Hallaron, and Pat Rosenthal contributed at the Varsity level.

"We were a very young team this year, I am feeling really optimistic about the talent we will have for next year," Coach Wikiera said. "If our wrestlers work hard in freestyle and in the weight room in the off season we should have an excellent squad."

he Junior Varsity Wrestling Team, led by first year wrestler and captain Lon Lane, finished the season with an 8-7 record.

"Open matches really hurt us this year, but these guys gave it their all and came away with a good season," Head Coach Tony Hill said.

The team had several standouts, such as freshman Nathan Brown, Ryan Bennett and John Adrian, who had 46 takedowns and 16 pins.

Lane went 10-2, and fellow junior Daniel Coonfield went 12-8 in the 140 pound weight class.

The season started off rocky with a tough loss to Lee's Summit, 50-34, but the Hawklets came right back and beat St. Thomas Aquinas, 45-18.

"The win against Aquinas was big, it got the team confident going into the Turner meet," Coach Hill said.

The Hawklets beat Turner High School, 24-18, one of the closest matches of the year.

The team won two straight after beating Aquinas and Turner, but its four- meet win streak was ended by a hard fought loss to Bonner Springs

"It seemed that we would always have them in position to win, but couldn't quite finish, and that is when they took advantage," said freshman Loren Peters.

RHS bounced back after losing to Bonner Springs, with a win against Truman, only to have a heartbreak against Raymore-Peculiar.

"We only needed one more pin or a couple more takedowns to win it," Coonfield said. "It was tough to lose such a close battle, 21-16."

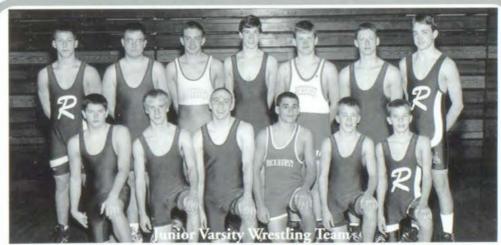

The next meet showed the true colors of the team as it completely dominated Hickman Mills, 40-6. However, the team suffered two loses in a row after being defeated by Plattsburg, 60-45, but then won two of its last four to finish above .500 for the year.

"This team was unusually young and inexperienced, with five freshman members, only one of whom had previous wrestling experience," Coach Hill said.

Hawklet's offense explodes for 30 home runs and a team batting average topping .390

Beating both Saint Thomas Aquinas and Bishop Miege twice each and defeating Jefferson City at its own tournament made for a successful season for the Rockhurst Varsity Baseball Team, despite losing in the District Championship game.

"Winning the Jeff City tournament was the best thing to happen in my four years of Rockhurst baseball," said senior Ryan Anderson.

If the playoffs were arranged differently the finale for the season may have been far more rewarding.

"We didn't go as far we wanted to, but we did have a lot of fun," said junior Adam Pummill, who hit homers both left and right handed this year.

"John Mayberry hit one home run this year that came out so fast that I was surprised that it didn't go through the scoreboard!" exclaimed Coach DeGraw.

The varsity squad took its game to a new offensive level with a team batting average of .391, an average of 11.2 runs scored per game, and had five players hitting over .400. Senior John Linhoff may have had the only homer more powerful than Mayberry's, but it counted more for its significance. He hit a two-run blast that tied the District Championship game against Truman.

Proving to be a well rounded team, the Hawklets' defensive skills were something special.

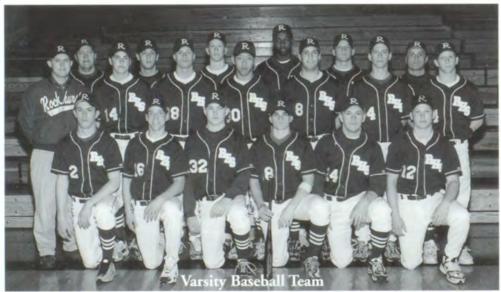

"We were so sound defensively that we expected people to make great plays," stated Coach DeGraw.

Senior leaders included Raymond Chang, a defensive stand-out, Stephen Hiatt, the team's "go-to" man, and David Manning, Ryan Anderson, Justin Quick, and Geoff Brown who have signed to play for Rockhurst University. The juniors were led by Pummill, Matt Weglarz, who batted .519 for the year, John Mayberry, and Terry Anderson.

Despite disappointment and lots of hard work the team had a lot of fun.

"We've always had guys keep things loose on the team. John Mayberry is a guy who can, surprisingly, keep things very loose," chuckled Coach DeGraw.

Hit & Run

A spirited, never-say-die attitude propelled the 2001 Junior Varsity Baseball Squad through a strenuous 16-game season. Led by Head Coach Pete Campbell, the Hawklets finished their roller coaster season with a 9-7 mark.

"This was a great team to be a part of," said junior third baseman Paul Damon. "No one ever gave up in any game all year and we were rewarded with some big wins."

The team had several victories in which it came from behind in the last inning to win the game. The Hawklets first accomplished this feat in a game against Blue Valley Northwest, when they found themselves down, 6-3, in the bottom of the seventh and managed to score four runs to win the game, 7-6.

Weeks later the team again found itself down, 7-2, heading into the final frame against Grandview, before exploding for 15 runs to win the game by 10.

The team also suffered some hard losses, including a double header loss to Aquinas.

"We should have won both those games that day," said sophomore catcher/first baseman, Kevin Sears. "We just played bad while Aquinas played good."

The Hawklets were a young team led by sophomore pitcher Tim Allen, who had the ability to hit big home runs. Sears provided solid catching, hitting, and put in some good innings at first base. Sophomore Nate Ney, the leadoff batter all year, ended up being hit by 13 pitches.

"I was very pleased with the team and how it represented the school," stated Coach Campbell. "It really says something about Rockhurst when a JV team can compete in a Varsity tournament and win some games."

Freshman team posts 12-1 record and wins Blue Springs Tourney for the 2nd year in a row Freshman Baseball Team in Rockhurst history used teamwork, talented players, and a competitive attitude to achieve a stellar 12-1 record.

"With that many players it wasn't always easy finding guys playing time," said Head Coach Jim Bascom. "But the players handled it real well, and there was never any complaining."

For the second year in a row the Hawklets won the Blue Springs Tournament by beating Blue Springs South, and avenging their only loss of the season against Blue Springs in the championship game. In addition, the squad swept longtime rivals St. Thomas Aquinas and Bishop Miege.

"We really came together as a team, and finished the season on a good note," said outfielder Derrick McKinney.

"We worked hard, got better, and fortunately had more than our share of success," remarked Coach Bascom, "It was really fun to be with such a talented group of players,"

Several players had outstanding seasons, including third baseman Jeff Koons, shortstop Ryan Bennett, and outfielder/pitcher Derrick McKinney, but Coach Bascom insists that everyone contributed to the team's success.

"This is a solid group of players," said Coach Bascom. "If they continue to develop, they'll really contribute to the program over the next three years."

Hawklets advance to State Finals under first year Head Coach Jay Coleman

Inishing second in the state and first in its conference, the Var sity Lacrosse team established itself as more than just a powerhouse. On the way to the State Championship game the Hawklets amassed a 10-4 record, outscoring their opponents, 118 to 56.

Success came early in the season, especially against Shawnee Mission South and the Blue Valley District teams.

"Those two games were fun," said first year Head Coach Jay Coleman. "They were big for the kids and improved their confidence."

The team made a trip to Sante Fe, New Mexico, for a tournament during spring break. It provided an opportunity to compare itself to other teams across the country.

"Sante Fe brought us to the next level," said junior Tim Reidy.

The Hawklets were successful because of a full-team effort on both offense and defense.

"The defense played really well and kept us in all the close games this year, especially Jon Lecuyer, Pete Jokisch, and Pat Lobb," said senior Co-Captain Kevin Cotter.

"On offense, Pat Amey and Andrew Elmer really pushed us through the playoffs," stated junior and starting goalie Jokisch.

The most satisfying part of the season for most was the state semi-final victory against defending State Champions, Mary Institute Country Day, who had beaten the Hawklets only 20 days before.

"Finally winning the state semi-final game was great. We wanted to prove something." said Jokish.

Disappointment came all too quickly in the State Championship game against a powerful DeSmet team.

"We made a really good run at the State Tournament," said Cotter.. "In the last game we didn't click, but we still came together as a team."

Finally reaching the championship after four years of semi-final defeats, this may mark a new era in Rockhurst Lacrosse.

"From now on the program won't be the same. We won't be rebuilding; we will be reloading," Coach Coleman predicted.

In his fifth year as JV Head Coach, Mr. Tom Laughlin, along with other volunteer coaches Mr. Frank Simpson, Mr. Greg Simpson, Mr. Chris Berter, and Mr. Tim Hannon, led the team to a 12-1 season.

"Without the leadership and coaching, we wouldn't have gone as far as we did," said sophomore defenseman Sal Marsalla.

With a very aggressive defense and attack, the team scored on 27% of its shots and won 56% of the face offs at the beginning of the game. Each game the team averaged a win by 5.5 goals and held six of 13 opponents to one goal or less.

"We were very aggressive man-up team that was able to develop skills to become one of [RHS'] best [V teams," said Coach Laughlin.

The team defeated St. Louis rivals CBC and SLUH, but lost to DeSmet midway through the season. In the single elimination JV Tournament, the team played four games on one Sunday afternoon, avenging its loss to DeSmet in overtime in the finals.

With strong young players such as freshmen goalie Brian Hanrahan and Stephen Weiss, sophomores Marsalla, Cory and Ryan VanDyke, and juniors Greg Laughlin and Nick Peeples, the teams looks forward to filling the shoes of departing seniors.

"There's a phenomenal development of skills combining to make a IV team that could compete successfully anywhere throughout the midwest," said Coach Laughlin.

he 2001 Freshman Lacrosse team, consisting of 46 players, and led by Head Coach Paul Muller, first-year assistant Mrs. Jennifer Olson and assistant Mr. Corey Quinn, played a five-month season, capped off by taking second place in the Freshman State Tournament.

Since Lacrosse is not widely played across the Kansas City area, the majority of the team was playing for the first time ever. When winter practices began in early January, so did the learning process..

The regular season began with the Hawklets competing against some varsity opponents from the Kansas City area. The team then moved on to play other freshman teams, where they were able to get some big wins, including a close, hard fought victory over arch rival DeSmet in late April.

"That DeSmet game was the best game of they year," said midfielder Jamie Maggard. "We were clicking on all cylinders and came out on top."

Even the Freshman Team was forced to make a cross state trip to St. Louis to play some games. As they arrived at CBC for their first game they were welcomed by some pre-game taunting, but this only fired up the team and it went out and beat CBC handily, 10-5.

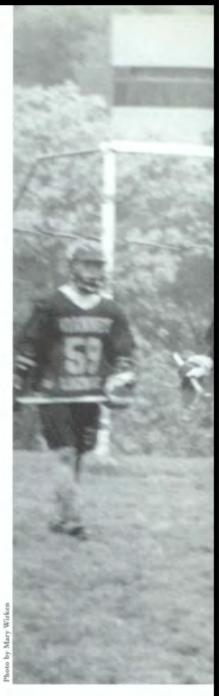

There were a few freshmen who really stood out throughout the year, including Trey Thomas, Marc Eskew, Ted Capoccia, Tim Herbers, Jamie Maggard, Joe Calhoun, and Anthony Trakas according to Coach Olson. They were not only good players but they stood out as good leaders who would always push their teammates to work and be better players.

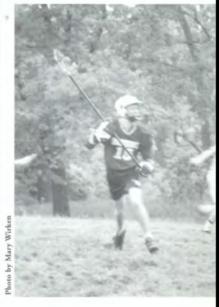

"This was just a great year in which we achieved our goals of learning the game, getting better every day, and having lots of fun," she said.

he end of an era; the continuation of a legacy. Rockhurst High School Track and Field Head Coach Doctor Jorge Taracido has retired after 14 seasons of guidance to those who sacrificed themselves on the track.

"I served when I was called upon, and I must leave when I have done my job," stated Coach Taracido.

The torch has been passed to Assistant Coach Mike Dierks who ran for Coach Taracido as an athlete 10 years ago.

At Coach Taracido's last Rockhurst Relays he knelt down to kiss the track and, as he did, he paused and scooped up some of the dirt to preserve the moment. Coach Taracido walked away in tears holding the first place trophy high.

The track was fading along with the legacy. Construction on a new track is to begin in November and will hopefully be completed for the 2002 track season.

"There will be a new legacy established with the new track," said Coach Taracido.

The team was led by senior captains Sean O'Donnell, Andy Tiehen, Steven O'Connor, and Tim Reardon. Senior team members included Chris Winger and Jonathan Adriano. The team was also aided by juniors Pat Kies, Daniel McDonough, Patrick Ishmael, and Colin Charbonneau, sophomores Jack Jones, Brennan Metzler, and Steve Baugh, and freshmen Patrick Tweedy, Tony Temple, and David Franklin.

To share in Coach Taracido's final season Coach Eric Berg returned from retirement to serve as the jumpers coach.

"It is fitting to end my coaching career with Mr. Berg," said Coach Taracido. "He was the one who gave me this job."

Coach Taracido also ends his career with another former athlete on his staff, Coach Casey Murray, RHS class of '95 who assisted the middle and long distance team. Coach Mark Kramer, S.J., was also new to the scene, serving as coach to the hurdlers.

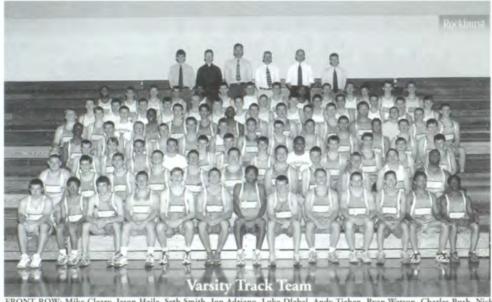

"The highlight of the season was watching four long-standing records fall," stated Coach Taracido.

O'Donnell broke two of these records, one in the 1600-meter run in 4:19, and the other in the 800-meter run, in 1:56.29. O'Donnell, along with Winger and Bush and Metzler broke the 4x1600-meter record in 18:37. McDonough set the last record in the 400-meter run in a time of 49.65 while running on a stress fracture.

At the state meet the team had its best finish in over 15 years, placing 29th overall. The team sent the 4x400-meter relay team, the 4x100-meter relay team, and individuals O'Donnell and McDonough to compete. O'Donnell placed 6th in the 1600-meter run and 6th in the 800-meter run. McDonough placed 14th overall, and the 4x100-meter relay team placed 7th.

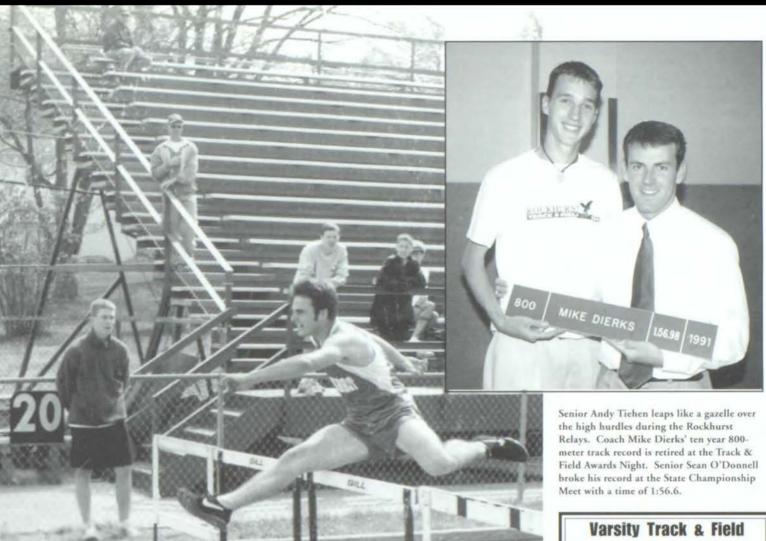

"As Coach Dierks inherits the team, it should do excellent things in the future," said Coach Taracido. "I will be the team's biggest fan."

The IV team often filled the void when Varsity runners were needed. On some occasions, two varsity meets were scheduled on the same day, so JV and even Freshmen runners were called upon to race at the higher levels of competition. The team took third at the Miege Relays, a varsity event, as well as second at the difficult Raytown South JV relays.

The Freshman team recorded consistent top-five finishes. Five freshmen, Patrick Tweedy, Mike Wiggins, Tony Temple, Steve Redmond, and David Franklin, all received Varsity letters and will be key to the team's success in the future.

Not all went as well as possible. The 4x800-Meter Relay Team, which included Tweedy, did not qualify for the state competition in Jefferson City, despite finishing only four seconds off the school record.

"The 4x800 team was a true heartbreak, considering their time at sectionals would have placed them fourth or fifth place at state," said Head Coach Dr. Jorge Taracido.

Dr. Taracido was assisted by Mr. Michael Dierks, sprints coach, and Mr. Sam Allred, pole vault coach. New to the staff were Mr. Mark Kramer, S.J., in charge of hurdlers: Mr. Eric Berg, jumpers coach; Mr. Mike Sullivan, throwers coach, and Mr. Casey Murray, who helped with hurdles and long distance.

The future appears to be bright for the teams. Construction on a new track is hoped to begin by November of 2001 and finished by the 2001-2002 season.

This season was the last for Dr. Taracido as Head Coach. After 14 seasons, he will step down and Coach Dierks will assume the head coaching responsibilities.

"Coach Dierks as head coach will take the team a step farther," commented Dr. Taracido. "It was a great 14 years."

The Varsity Tennis Team kept its amazing streak alive, winning its sixth straight Missouri 4A State Championship, sweeping all three divisions at State. Senior Sam Davidson won the Singles competition, junior Brad Martin and Sophomore Ryan Reid won the Doubles trophy, and the Hawklets won the overall Team Championship.

The team rolled through its playoff competition beating Liberty, 5-2, in sectionals. They defeated St. Joe Central in the quarterfinals, 5-0, and beat Parkway Central (St. Louis), 5-0, in the semifinals. In the championship, the Hawklets defeated Ladue Horton Watkins (St. Louis), 5-1, capturing their sixth straight title.

"The key to winning our sixth straight championship is all of the hard work the kids put in through the off season," Coach Ron Geldhof said. "They play Missouri Valley matches and other tournaments to improve their skills."

According to Davidson, the highlight of the season, besides winning State, was taking first place in the Tournament of Champions in St. Louis. The team beat Pembroke Hill in the championship, gaining revenge from an earlier defeat in the regular season.

The season ended in storybook fashion, but the team did have some early downfalls.

"The biggest disappointment was losing to Shawnee Mission East," Martin said.

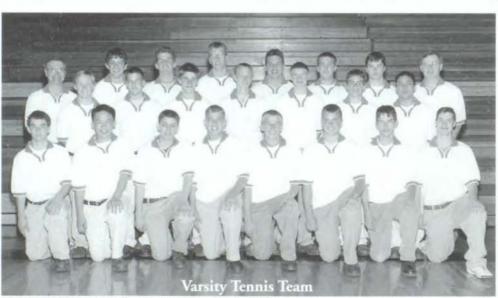

According to Davidson the team's biggest rival was St. Joe Central, the team they had to beat in the quarterfinals to advance to the State Championship.

"They were one of the best teams we faced in Missouri 4A competition," Davidson commented.

According to sophomore Ryan Ried there is no reason why they can't win a seventh straight State Championship next spring.

"This team may not have been as talented as the previous championship teams," Martin said. "But when it comes to heart, this team has more than many others that have been through Rockhurst."

Making a acquet

laying against rivals such as Shawnee Mission East, and Pembroke Hill, the Junior Varsity Tennis Team had an outstanding year, losing only one tournament.

"[Those schools] give us the most competition," said JV Coach Bill Munninghoff.

The Hawklets relied mostly on younger players to win seven times.

"We were a fairly young team. Half the team were freshman and they did a really nice job of blending in with the few sophomores and juniors," said Coach Munninghoff.

Members of the team usually had three to five years of tennis experience, one of the main reasons the IV Tennis Team is considered one of the best in the area. Coach Munninghoff also pushes players to practice during the summer, and to compete at the area's many tournaments.

"They need to keep working on their sport, their game," he said.

Individual players progressed during the year. Freshman David Ward, considered the best all-around player on JV, was a model of consistency, with second place finishes at the Lee's Summit Tournament and the Pembroke Hill tournament. Junior Matt Rada is also considered a top-notch player.

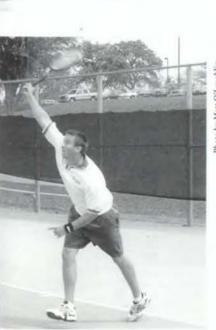

Two players, Tommy Wiedeman and Anthony Dayrit, "improved tremendously throughout the season," according to Coach Munninghoff. These two, playing doubles, not only won the Pembroke Hill Tournament, but did not lose a match all year.

Some of Coach Munninghoff's main concerns are the progression of his players into Varsity.

"Varsity is so strong that it is hard to crack that line-up," he said. "JV tennis is an opportunity for the guys to improve their tennis, have fun and get ready."

Varsity team goes 21-3, surpassing expectations and making a trip to the conference finals A t the end of the 2000 hockey season Coach Corey Quinn said, "This year was a rebuilding year," but at the beginning of the 2001 season year he considered the team rebuilt.

Much improved from last year's record of 10-8-1, this year's Ice Hawklets developed both as individuals and as a team, making it to the conference finals and achieving a record of 21-3-0.

One reason for the Ice Hawklet's success this season was strong defense. Lead by junior goalie Rich Prendergast, the Ice Hawklets gave up very few points.

"Rich often faced 50 shots on the goal and saved 48 which is quite a feat," commented Coach Quinn. "Rich is the most focused goalie in the Kansas City area."

Other defenders, such as senior Kyle Vrabac, junior Jess Mooney, sophomore Alex DiCarlo, sophomore Mike Kincaid, freshman Matt Kincaid, and freshman David Ward all worked well together as a team to stop the puck.

Once the Ice Hawklets got the puck, their strong offense was able to work together to lead the team to victory after victory. Mike Kincaid led the league in points with 14 goals and 17 assists totaling to 31 points.

"Mike has good hands, a good shot, and is a good size," said Coach Quinn.

The other players, including junior Ryan Davis and sophomore Colin Groves all worked together to form what Mr. Quinn called, "the most potent offense in the high school league because we know how to score, have a strong power play, and are one of the fastest teams in the league."

But the team couldn't have done so well without the creative suppport from the crowd.

"The support from RHS students was awesome," commented DiCarlo. "Someone even let live mice loose on the ice!"

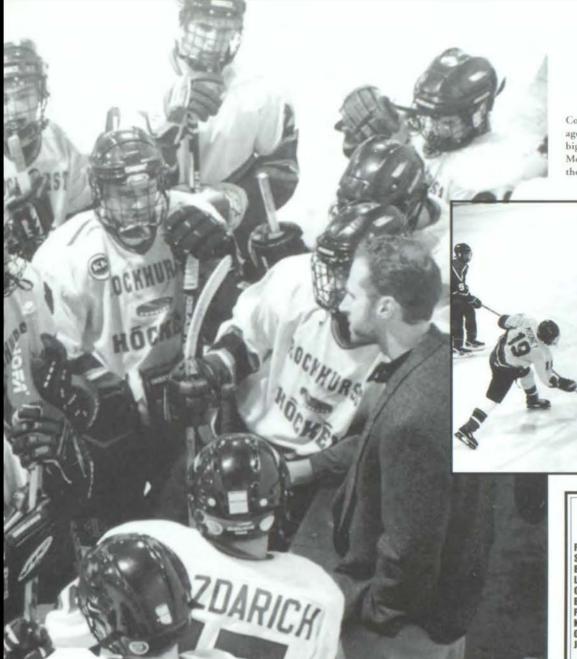

Mr. Quinn was selected to coach the Kansas City Metro Area All-Star Team. This honor allowed him to spend time with hockey players throughout the Kansas City area. "I realized that I coach the most coachable group in the city," said Mr. Quinn. Story by Jamie Burkart

The team also competed in Mayfest, a local college tournament.

Before competing in tournaments, the players first had to develop their skills with practice and effort.

The Intramural program at Rockhurst is still going strong, as students meet during activity period to participate in the sports of football, basketball, and volleyball. Grade levels compete in their own divisions to get into and possibly win the end-of-season championships.

With 54 teams made up of around 320 participants, basketball, played in the winter, is the most popular, culminating with the school wide championship held in March. Organizations student leaders rise above expectations

The Student Government served the student body well with a new-found enthusiasm to not only put on events, but to listen to student problems.

"The SGA was the voice of the students and tried to solve problems that affected their daily lives," SGA sponsor Mr. Mike Heringer said.

With President Blaine Barnard and Vice President Michael Nigro in charge, SGA was often put on the spot, and it came through in the clutch.

The Student Government proved itself early on when faced with complaints about lunches as well as inappropriate cheering.

"We fielded complaints from many students about certain aspects of the lunch program," Barnard said. "A committee comprised of both SGA officers and regular students then met and discussed solutions."

Further meetings took place with Barnard and acting Academic/Student Life Chairman Pat Wank, to finalize changes with Ms. Jean Barnhart that would improve the lunch program.

SGA faced problems with inappropriate cheering at sporting events, which reflected poorly on the RHS community.

"School spirit is a major part of the Rockhurst experience, and the SGA, working with the Traditions Committee, succeeded in distinguishing what, in fact, were appropriate cheers," Mr. Heringer said.

The SGA organized and supervised several events, such as Homecoming Week and the Harvest Food Drive.

During Homecoming Week, SGA arranged to have notable alumni return to reinforce RHS traditions, including Kenyon Rashed, Class of 1988, Pat McInerney, Class of 1982, and John O'Herron, Class of 1995.

"During the Harvest Food Drive, a special committee within the SGA worked extremely hard to raise more money and cans than all other participating schools combined," Barnard said.

Mission Week, which took place in February, was once again a success, raising a record and exceeding $30,000 in donations. The freshman class led the way with over $12,000, an average of $43.95 per student. Story by David Paul club creates excitement and unity

ith the strenuous work schedule of most Rockhurst students, from schoolwork, sports, and other ex tracurricular activities, it is important for students to take a break every once in awhile and have some fun. The Spirit Club's 20 members, under the guidance of Coach Tony Severino, hope to help students temporarily escape their stressful daily lives and at the same time raise school spirit.

"The Spirit Club is unique in that the members are not only creative but very dedicated to our organization," said senior Wade Muller, club president.

The creativity harnessed by the members was exemplified by the Sumo Wrestling competition during the first Pep Rally of the year. Representatives from each grade level dressed in inflatable sumo-wrestling suits stomped around, making various posturing motions and attempted to shove opponents out of the circle, Science teacher Mr. Rich Wikiera and Mr. David Alvey, Dean of Students, also competed, much to the delight of the audience.

Meeting just two weeks prior to a specific event, the Spirit Club gets a large amount of work accomplished in the short time allotted to it. Not only does the Spirit Club organize six pep rallies a year, three per semester, but it also helps to organize Rockfest, a three-on-three basketball tournament that raises funds for scholarships.

"In the Spirit Club, we like our kids to have a hand in creating and organizing the pep rallies," Coach Severino remarked. "I am just simply a liaison between the students and the administration.'

"It feels great to be out there cheering the Hawklets," junior John-Mike D'Agostino said. "Especially since we didn't have a lot of experience losing this year."

The yell leaders are the ones who, game in and game out, were able to generate the crowd's enthusiasm even when the Hawklets were down.

"When we were losing to Liberty and to Blue Springs in the State Playoffs we knew we had to get the student section rowdy to pump up our players," junior Nick Paradise said. "We didn't give up on them and they didn't give up on us and it was just a great feeling."

The squad's biggest highlight was leading cheers for the football team at the Trans World Dome as the Hawklets beat Pattonville for the Missouri 5A State Championship.

students protest injustices in society

The members of Amnesty International continued their struggle for human rights with their regular activities and built upon it, most notably with a major project with a school-wide focus. In an early Friday Forum about sweatshops in Mexico the members were presented with a problem that faces all people on a fairly regular basis, creation and consumption of sweat-made items. The members did deeper research into the problem and created a packet for distribution to club moderators and anyone else who buys t-shirts. The members' hope was to inform these groups of the sweat-free alternatives they have in buying their shirts.

"I really think that the highlight of our year was this sweatshop project, going from the Forum to all the research and the final implementation," club moderator Mr. Brad Grabs said.

In addition to this major project, Amnesty also continued letter writing campaigns on such topics as the death penalty, the sanctions on Iraq, and sweatshop labor. The letters are written to people directly connected with the issues, and asked the people involved to take the appropriate action to right the injustice, and to write back with some response or stance on the issue. This allowed the students to become more directly involved in the issues they were concerned about.

"That's really why I'm involved in Amnesty. It gives me an outlet to express my interest in human rights issues," said Death Penalty Coordinator sophomore Ben Summers.

Amnesty members also showed their support for issues such as the death penalty by participating in protests, like the frequent ones in Mill Creek Park. Members present signs to people driving by to help make them more aware of the things that are happening in their own state and country.

"Amnesty is not just a group of tree-hugging whiners, but a practical, inexpensive, and educational way to work towards social justice and increase people's awareness of social injustices," senior President Zach Ramirez remarked.

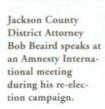

Another way Amnesty tried to help raise awareness in the Rockhurst community was with its Friday Forums. Guest speakers would come and speak from their own first-hand experience and field questions on such topics as the Iraqi sanctions, Mexican sweatshops, and the conflicts in Israel.

"The Friday Forums were a great way to get information about human rights issues that I was not so well versed on before," remarked Summers. Story by Alex Gamble "SPA gives students the opportunity not to just talk about and watch their government, but to learn about and experience it first hand," said junior Vice President James Johnson.

With the 2000 Presidential Election the focus of their efforts in the fall, SPA organized a Voter Registration Drive which netted 30 to 40 new voters from the student ranks.

In addition, SPA sponsored an allschool assembly featuring Kansas House Representative Tim Carmody, who spoke to the students about why it was important to vote for their leaders. His speech was followed by a mock debate between seniors Brian Schroeder, who represented President George W. Bush, and Pat Jakopchek, who represented former Vice President Al Gore.

After the election was resolved (a month later), the SPA shifted its focus to its three Model United Nations competitions. Over President's Day Weekend, RHS took part in its 11th SPA participated for their second time at the Johnson County Community College Model UN in March. Representing the countries of Israel, Japan, the Netherlands, and the USA, the students earned a number of awards. First place recognition went to juniors Paul Camacho and Patrick Ishmael and sophomore E.E. Keenan.

Finally, for the first time ever, RHS and the SPA sent a delegation of members to New York City over Spring Break to participate in a Model UN at the actual United Nations building.

SADD also sponsored a talk in the spring by Barbara Babb, a life flight nurse, to stress the serious injuries that incur during fatal crashes of drunk driving.

The club introduced a new program, the Open Forum, which let students discuss any topic interesting to them. The purpose was to help other students with problems and issues they might be having in their life. SADD hopes to continue the open forum to encourage students to look at their options in making decisions.

"The thing we tried to focus on the most this year was trying to get students to consider the things they do," said President Alex Gamble.

St. Ignatius once said, "Go and set the world on fire." The Regis Club, under the guidance of Sophomore Theology teacher Ms. Peggy Mulvihill, has set out to do just that.

"Our organization gives young men the opportunity for personal growth by working for the benefit of those in need," commented Ms. Mulvihill.

The Regis Club has participated in a wide spectrum of community service projects throughout the Kansas City area, through which Regis Club teaches students how to be "Men for Others." Among them are the Christmas in October Toy Drive, the Harvest Food Drive, and Habitat for Humanity

"The Regis Club gives students at Rockhurst the opportunity to serve and minister to the Kansas City and RHS community," according to club President Chris Constant, who believes that the most unique quality about the club is the diversity of its 300 members who are bound together for the common good.

For instance, the club, which also serves in crisis intervention, has helped in the past to raise money for families who have lost homes in fires. In addition, the club serves as an honor guard for funerals.

With members meeting once a month, officers twice a month, and completing one to four service projects each month, the club accomplishes a great deal of work in the small amount of time allotted. For instance, members participated in a fundraiser at Starlight Theater that helped to renovate the Upper Room of St. Louis Parish.

Ms. Mulvihill commented: "We do extraordinary service for Rockhurst and our extending communities. Simply put, I get to work with the most awesome young men at Rockhurst."

Students sacrifice for less fortunate

otal Ignation Experience, better known as TIE, is a selective organization based on the premise of allowing students to walk in the shoes of the less fortunate.

TIE expanded this year to two teams of eight, traveling to two separate places, St. Louis Parish, in Kansas City, and a community center in Carbondale, CO.

According to Mr. Chris Elmore, one of four faculty sponsors of TIE, it was a week-long immersion program in the inner city that was a combination of a service project, educational experience, and religious retreat.

Other faculty sponsors include Mr. Paul Winkeler, Mrs. Jennifer Olson, and Ms. Peg Mulvihill, the founder of TIE.

Students helped install air conditioners for low income houses, worked at the Upper Room of the St. Louis Parish, and served (as well as ate) in soup kitchens. From the educational standpoint they listen to guest speakers, and learned from first hand experience why people were in the situation that they were in and how to help them. They also prayed and reflected as a group each day so they could better understand their mission and take from it as much as possible.

"It was a great feeling knowing that we were making a difference in those people's lives," senior Nick Shuler said. "We were making these people happy by just being there and doing the little things."

The members who traveled to Colorado spent their nights sleeping on the floor of that parishes' pastor's basement.

"It was a little strange at first, sleeping on the floor," Shuler said. "But then I realized that some people live like this all the time."

The highlight of the trip, according to senior P.T. McGannon, was the time he got to spend with the children. Every day he and the rest of his team helped them with their school work, along with taking them on field trips or to the pool.

"It gave me a great deal of insight on how people live in the inner city," senior Philip Conway said. "It provided a great experience that left me feeling positive about what I had done."

"TIE is a fantastic program," Mr. Elmore said. "I just wish everyone who wanted to go on it could."

Club integrates faith into students daily lives lacing an emphasis on not just sports and not just religion, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes strives to develop a well-rounded student within its membership. Under the direction of co-moderators Mr. Eric Berg, Mr. Mark Nusbaum, and Mr. Dave Francis, and senior co-presidents Adam Balentine and Kyle Francis, FCA kept very busy trying to fulfill this goal.

"We try to encourage the guys to incorporate their faith in Jesus Christ in their daily lives and activities," said Mr. Berg.

The FCA accomplished this in two ways. The first was through group meetings twice a month before school to talk about the issues affecting high school students. According to Mr. Berg, this was a "devotional time" for the members where different, relevant topics were

The other way FCA encouraged this incorporation of faith and daily life was with several opportunities to hear from others how they were successful and how they failed to achieve the same things with which the students were faced. In the fall, FCA sponsored the visit of former Kansas City Chiefs Quarterback Elvis Grbac who spoke to the student body at an all-school assembly. He was asked to share experiences from his own life and how religion and faith kept him positive and on the right path.

Later in the spring, the FCA sponsored a 3-on-3 basketball tournament following a talk by Rockhurst High and Rockhurst University alum John Hungerford (RHS '83). He told the students that even with his success on the soccer field, including the 1987 National Championship, he still sunk into a deep depression and had a serious drug and alcohol problem. Mr. Hungerford said that his only way out of it was his faith in God. He summarized his life with a bible passage from 2 Timothy which states: "I have fought the good fight and I have kept the faith."

Throughout the year, the FCA sponsored several Open Gym Nights where all students were welcome to come back to school in the evening and participate in any of several planned activities.

Once again, FCA hosted the third annual Dog Day on the first day of final exams in May. Students were treated to a lunch of three hot dogs and a soft drink for only a dollar. They sold 300 hot dogs in just 25 minutes.

ed by counselor Mrs. Carol Dougherty, the Multi-Ethnic ■ Enrichment Team was successful in its basic goal of increasing multi-cultural awareness. MEET was led by senior President Iason Haile, and senior Vice President Jarrett Devereaux. Underclassmen leaders were juniors Tony Gant and Ray Pierce along with sophomore Bryce McKinney.

The most important time of year for MEET was in February, which is national Black History Month. The organization had announcements to the homeroom classes to personalize presentations about famous African-Americans, such as Marian Washington and Madame C.J. Walker.

"We wanted every one of our 30 members to get involved in their heritage by individually going out to classrooms," said Mrs. Dougherty.

The February Sweetheart Dance raised money for the annual MEET trip. The group traveled to Atlanta along with students from Notre Dame de Sion, where they visited historical sites, including the Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. museum.

"It was an awesome and educational experience," said junior Eric Lowe.

"Our emphasis has always been Black History, but we are trying to expand to study Hispanic and possibly Asian roots," said Mrs. Dougherty. "We want students to be active in their heritage and spread information about it to others." Story by Matt Neenan team finds success on local and national level

The Rockhurst Debate and Forensics team offers students of any grade level the opportunity to enhance their critical thinking and performance skills through interscholastic competitions.

'Speech and debate is a great program in which every aspect of Rockhurst's Grad at Grad can be enhanced," said Mr. Don Ramsev.

The 2000-2001 Varsity team, coached by Mr. Ramsey, Mrs. Betsy Sexton, Interp Coach, and Mr. Chris Elmore, who coaches Debate and Extemp, competed in invitational tournaments throughout the year, two district tournaments, the Missouri State Tournament, National Catholic Forensics League and National Forensics League national tournaments.

Over Memorial day weekend, the team competed in the NCFL National Tournament. Senior Joel Blevins finished 19th our of 222 entries in Dramatic Interpretation. Sophomore E.E. Keenan competed in Congress where he was elected President of one session. Brian Schroeder competed in the Lincoln Douglas Debate category, and Sophomore Greg Duncan also competed in the Prose Poetry Interp category.

Senior Ian Merrigan had an outstanding senior year as he was crowned the Missouri State Champion in Storytelling, and also made a trip to the NFL National Tournament with Sophomore Roy Lightner to compete in Duo Interpretation.

Juniors Chris and Jamie Lee competed for the first time this year. Blevins had an outstanding year competing in the Lincoln Douglas Debate category. Other varsity performers include seniors Schroeder and Nick Migliazzo, and sophomores Mike McShane, Jim Utley, E.E. Keenan, Tim Hanna, and Greg Duncan.

Eleven individuals also competed in the Student Congress where participants competed in a legislative type debate. Of the Rockhurst competitors, three made it to the super session, with Keenan finishing in sixth place overall.

The Freshman team members had one of the best seasons ever. Competing in numerous tournaments throughout the area, they brought home a total of three first place team trophies. Contributors included Brian Cotroneo, Justin Rethmeyer, Joe Knackstedt, Nate Everly and Cullen Roberts.

Honors students make a difference at RHS ne of the largest and busiest organizations was once again the National Honor Society under the guidance of senior President Sean O'Donnell and moderator Mr. Tom Norman. In addition to their morning doughnut sales and annual Battle of the Bands benefit concert, the group helped at the Open House, Parent/Teacher Conferences, Placement Test, and many other functions.

"We may not always be in charge, but we tend to be involved in all major events at Rockhurst," said Mr. Norman

Members of the elite group were required to meet stringent entrance requirements including 30 service hours over and above what RHS requires, plus a leadership project organizing a school event, a contributing reason for the group's constant presence around RHS.

One of the most important responsibilities of NHS was to run the Student Success Center. Members frequently volunteered to stay after school for about an hour and a half to help any students who would come in needing assistance with a specific assignment or an entire concept.

NHS again sponsored the 14th annual Carlitos Battle of the Bands to cap off Mission Week. The event was a tremendous accomplishment, raising about $5,000 for the Honduran Missions.

"Everyone in the National Honor Society worked very hard to make the battle a success this year," said senior Vice President Elliott Nickell. "The seven bands we had were very talented and a hit with the crowd."

Another way NHS worked to save lives in Honduras was through its daily morning doughnut sales. Members took turns coming to school around 7 a.m. and selling doughnuts, juice and milk to their classmates. This year alone the effort raised over $10,000 for the missions.

"Our goal is to foster the qualities of leadership, character, scholarship, and service among members and with whom they interact," said Mr. Norman. "Hopefully, we are accomplishing that goal." Story by Matthew Harris school newspaper named All-State n only his second year as The Prep News staff Adviser Mr. Michael Dierks has received back-to-back All State awards for the school paper.

"The paper is a good reflection of the school and the students," Mr. Dierks said. "The newspaper members show dedication to the school, which in turn allows them the freedom to promote RHS in a positive light," he said.

Published at least once monthly, the newspaper has received an All-Missouri rating for the 15th consecutive year from the Missouri Scholastic Press Associa-

Such honors do not come without sacrifice as newspaper staff members work 25-35 hours outside of class for the final week before production.

"All the hard work put into the paper only makes its success that much more rewarding," Co-Editor-In-Chief Sam Davidson said.

The newspaper for the 2000-2001 school year went through many changes and added new features.

The Prep News appeared online again at the rockhursths.edu website, with junior Rama Gottumukkala doing the internet production.

"This new feature is an added bonus for students and the outside community trying to get to understand what Rockhurst is all about," Feature Copy Editor Tim Riedy said.

The newspaper added several new and beneficial technological advances this year, including a negative scanner and digital photography. With a new Mac G-4, designing and graphics reached a new level.

"The new equipment has allowed more creativity and will ideally make production faster and more efficient, while at the same time saving the school money," Mr. Dierks said.

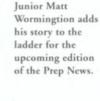

The Newspaper I and Newspaper II classes were combined as one class, comprised of junior and senior members.

The Journalism I paper which was published when seniors were away on projects was also a success.

"The J-I paper provides the first year journalism students with an opportunity to have their stories published, and provided experience in the Mac lab," Advertising-Editor Ray Pierce said.

staff triumphs over trials and technology aintaining its tradition of using juniors as editors, the Quarry Yearbook staff entered the digital age big time, as almost half of the photos in the book were shot and manipulated digitally, thanks to the talent of Production Editor Jamie Burkart.

Led by Co-editors Alex Gamble and Matthew Harris, the staff worked eight hours a day for three weeks following the end of the school year to produce 304 pages, the largest ever.

As an unexpected bonus, two seniors earned battlefield promotions, and a member of the Prep. News staff came on board to help until the June 12 deadline for submission of pages.

James Johnson provided many hours of volunteer work, using his newspaper experience to assist Sports Editor Brandon Hill and others.

"I'm interested in the journalistic process, and found that working on the yearbook increased my computer layout skills," he said.

Peter Giangreco and R.E. Wolfe proved the exception to 'senior slide', as they stepped forward and produced the entire Senior Section of the book.

Usually seniors are loath to spend time working on the yearbook following graduation," said Mr. loe Fleming, adviser to the Quarry staff. "Peter and R.E. showed an unusual dedication to the school.'

With the purchase of a high quality digital camera, all but fast action sports photos could be shot and downloaded onto Power Macs G-3's and G-4's where they were edited and placed on actual pages.

Most of the staff considered work on the publication to one of the most grueling experiences of their Rockhurst careers.

'It was a tremendous opportunity, but once will certainly be enough for me," said Harris.

All editors were chosen in November from the Yearbook Class. Others contributed with stories, photo cropping and proofreading. Overall, hundreds of man hours went into the production.

"We have had more outstanding staffs every year, and 2000-2001 was no exception," Mr. Fleming said. "I have the greatest respect for the determination and ability of these guys! This book will be a lasting tribute to their hard work.

students continue literary tradition

The Rock Collection, with the financial assistance of Andrews-McMeel Universal, is Rockhurst's literary magazine, full of photos, artwork and writings from students. Moderator Mrs. Annie Riggs, who was involved in clubs similar to this in high school and college, so brings a few years of experience and advice to the club.

"I am there to guide the students and to give help and advice, but they have the freedom and responsibilty to create a magazine they can be proud of," explained Mrs. Riggs.

The club usually meets after school or activity period to work on the 32page book. The group also meets with Andrews-McMeel to decide what software programs to work with on the computer. The staff of eight, led by senior co-editors Andrew Hansbrough and Dan Herver, decided on the art and writings that went into the book. A rating sheet was passed out to the group which rated the entries. Although they had some computer trouble with fonts on Quark Express, they were still able to get it put together using Pagemaker and met the publisher's deadline.

"It was fun to show all of the stuff that we put together," said senior Ryan McIntosh.

The best part of the year was the end when all the work was finished, the book was put together, and was distributed to the school to showcase the talents of the students, according to Ms. Otto.

"It is so exciting when the book comes out," she said.

Thespians hone skills to perfection

B oth by supporting and promoting the exploration of educational theater, the Drama Club, under the watchful eye of Mr. Rodger Cilley, hopes to not only bring the arts to the Rockhurst community, but also to include any student who would like to participate in the organization.

"What I love about the Drama Club is that it is all-inclusive and helps students learn more about themselves as individuals," Mr. Cilley remarked.

Managed by a six-member Studio Council, the club is a predominantly student-driven organization.

"For the past two years, students have been allowed to explore their talents by producing some of their own productions, and we have had great success and ample support from the Rockhurst community," commented club Treasurer senior Chris Winger. The Drama Club's many talents were best showcased in the Drama Department's production of The Kentucky Cycle, in November.

Produced by junior Jamie Poskin, Cabaret, which ran in the black box theater in January, is a musical based on the inhumane treatment of Jews in Nazi Germany prior to World War II, and was well received by audiences.

From the Rose Theater to Broadway, the Drama Club not only demonstrated their endless abilities by putting on various productions throughout the year, but also found time to take its annual trip to New York City to watch and learn from more experienced actors and productions.

In all, by helping students to develop their talents and at the same time explore their unique individuality, Mr. Cilley feels he has "the most fulfilling job at RHS."

council makes a hit out of student productions

In its second year, the Studio Theater Council has continued to give students an opportunity to express themselves artistically by producing their own shows in the studio theater. What began in 2000 with Andy Gilchrist's Young Conformists continued on through even more productions, such as the Moonlit Days Cafe poetry nights, and several different student productions, including Cabaret.

The Council acts as a board of directors for the theater, and provides support for the directors and artists whose projects are approved. The director or artist submits his proposal which is then reviewed by the six-member council as well as Mr. Rodger Cilley and Mr. Bill Murphy. If approved, the council provides funds for the production.

"In the future, the space may be used for more experimental avant-garde stuff than upstairs, using maybe a smaller, different cast to tell a stronger story than we could on the main stage," senior council Secretary Matt Schwenke said.

The council hosted several sessions of the Moonlit Days Cafe, a venue for anyone to come in and read their own poetry or a pre-written piece.

"It's a place to gather for students and faculty," said senior council Treasurer Chris Winger. "It's a very cool and intimate place, more so than the Rose because of its size."

The Council also produced several shows, including Cabaret, directed by junior council member Jamie Poskin, Full Circle directed by Schwenke, and the student production, The Life and Times of the American Dream, written and directed by senior council president Ian Merrigan was workshopped throughout the year.

Cabaret, which ran from January 25-28, was well received, selling out every performance.

Audiences seemed to enjoy Full Circle, as it nearly sold out every night of its performances from May 3-5.

The main goal of the Council is to make sure that all the artists and directors who get the opportunity to perform in the space often called the "Black Box" have a great experience and learn more about the theater.

Sophomore member Andy Beisser wants the artists, "to feel that they've had a chance to get out and say what they wanted to say. In no way should they feel gypped about their Black Box experience."

The French Club, led by President Graham Long and second year moderator Mrs. Sabina Mills, tries to meet at least once a month to experience the French culture and ideas.

The club schedules activities with the Notre Dame de Sion French Club, including meeting several mornings to have breakfast with them.

"It gives us more exposure to the French environment and opportunities to meet other French clubs in the area," said junior Michael Lancey.

The members of the club have a distinct advantage over other French clubs because Mrs. Mills, who is from Jargeau, France, went to school in Paris, and lived about 20 years in France before moving to the United States. She brings authenticity to the club for others to learn about. One activity the group participated in was selling doughnuts to assist the Jesuit Mission in Honduras.

"I want for the French Club to improve a little each year, and would like the members to learn and get ideas from it," said Mrs. Mills. Story by Geoffrey Martin.

I ic, haec, hoc, Latin at the Rock! Led by modera tor Dr. Michael Cusick, the Classics Club, a combination of Greek and Latin students, strove for success in its main competition of the year.

Each April, the club enters the State Latin Convention held in Columbia to compete with other Latin clubs of the state. RHS took three teams from each level of Latin along with other individual competitors. After taking five individual gold medals the previous year in addition to advancing to the second round in the team competition, the club expected and achieved even better results this year. According to junior Jamie Lee, co-consul (president) of the Latin club, the convention is not all work.

"The state convention in Columbia is a great chance to have fun and do a little Latin at the same time," he said.

This year's success could be credited in part to the new certamen machine purchased for the club. This device aids the club members in practicing "buzzing in" in order to answer a question, similar to the conditions at the convention.

"By getting the certamen machine we have made progress toward improving at the state convention and drawing interest in the club," said Dr. Cusick.

Besides Jamie Lee and his co-consul brother Christopher Lee, both juniors, the club was led by junior George Robinson, praetor; sophomore Ben Stueve, censor; and sophomore Jeff Nagy, quaestor. These officers assisted Dr. Cusick in achieving the club's ultimate goal.

"We hope to give club members experience in areas related to the Latin and Greek languages, including culture, mythology, and history," stated Dr. Cusick.

club draws greater interest in science

The Rockhurst Science Club has become respected and successful in the short years under the leadership of Mr. Michael O'Leary. The club offers a group geared towards the scientifically minded students of RHS, and offers activities such as Science Knowledge Bowl and Science Olympiad.

At the Science Knowledge Bowl in February, RHS's Team A achieved a fourth place finish while Team B placed in the top 15 out of 100 teams. The event was a grueling trivia contest where the quick-draw reflexes and innate rudeness (that Assistant Coaches Mr. Steve Ryan and Mr. Ron Geldhof tried to imbue the team with) were of the utmost importance. The questions ranged from nuclear physics to buckminsterfullerenes and the event attracted contestants from as far away as Topeka.

The State Science Olympiad at Rockhurst University drew a large crowd as the area's finest science students were challenged in different tests of expertise. Events such as Can't Judge a Powder, Road Scholars, Mission Possible, Write It Do It. Disease Detectives, Reach for the Stars, Cell Biology and Science Clue gave students valuable opportunities to show off their science knowledge outside of the academic circle. The winners in the Science Olympiad have helped to maintain the tradition of excellence and dedication shown by seniors such as Ion Adriano, Andy Womack, and Hieu Pham.

Science Club members recalled some of the more interesting moments in the Science Club in detail:

The appearance of Ricky "Flying Monkey o' Doom" White and his incessant "D) A Jar of Almonds" battle cry drove opponents insane, both in practice and at the real event. Mr. O'Leary's constant "I'm gonna sic the Irish Mafia on you," caused students to burst into laughter at the thought of a violent Irishman.

The Science Club's purpose is "to allow scientifically inclined students to compete and have fun in science events," according to Mr. O'Leary. The sarcasm in the Science Club is extremely competitive. Competition within the Science Knowledge Bowl competitors has increased this year. We needed some activities for young men interested in Science."

Led by President Scott Gosoroski, Vice President Diego Bustamante and Secretary Nick Solsburg, the Science Club is sure to fulfill its intellectual mission and make RHS a lot more interesting for those involved.

Sophomore Jeff Nagy and seniors Andy Womack and Adam Henderson team together at the KC Area Teachers of Math Competition. Their efforts helped the team achieve first place.

hard work adds up to success

The Math Club, led by senior Andy Womack along with 14 other Hawklets, was similar to any other sports team comprised of a Junior Varsity and Varsity team. The difference is that they use their minds to compete and not their bodies while representing Rockhurst.

"The Math Club has given students the ability to represent RHS, while competing in various math competitions around the Kansas City area," said Club Advisor Mr. Scott

The team competed throughout the year as individuals and as a team at three competitions: the Great Plains Math League, the UMKC Teams competition, and at its main meet, the KC Area Teachers of Mathematics competition.

"We struggled early on in the season by not placing at the UMKC Teams competition" said Womack.

The highlight of the season came at the KC Area Mathematics competition where the team won the small school title, beating the competition by 92 points. In the individuals competition, six out of 12 members placed in the top three of their class; including Sean Plott, who placed 2nd overall in the freshman division, sophomores Jeff Nagy and Duo Yang who placed 1st and 2nd, junior Matt Laird 1st, and Andy Womack, and Adam Henderson, 2nd and 3rd in overall senior competition.

"I think our strong performance at the KC Area Mathematics shows that we have a great Math Department at Rockhurst," according to Laird.

young team finds victory in local competition

The Rockhurst Chess Club de pended on its youngest mem bers for the first time ever as the newest members of the team led the way at all the tournaments.

"Three out of every four of our top players in each tournament were freshmen," according to Dr. Michael Cusick, Chess Club Moderator. Following smashing finishes at Wichita, LaCyne, the Prarie View Tournament, Shawnee Mission East, Paola, Onega, Lawrence, North Kansas City, Jefferson City and the Kansas City Cup, the Chess Club looked forward to its home advantage during the United States Chess Nationals, which was held in March at Bartle Hall. After a difficult set of four rounds per contestant, Rockhurst emerged as the fifth place team out of 1,000.

In addition to competitions in exotic locales such as South Dakota, Washington, Los Angeles and others, the Chess Club organized its own tournaments this year. The Top Hawk Tournament and the RHS Chess Tournament served as outlets for many chess team members who find little exposure at RHS. The Top Hawk Tournament is open to any RHS faculty member or student who wants to compete in a ladder system for the grand prize and bragging rights.

"The Top Hawk Tournament was not as well organized this year, because we set it up using a different format, a ladder bracket."

The RHS Chess Tournament was a much larger success, and was organized in conjunction with the RHS Mother's Club. The Tournament was open to any K-12 player in the Greater Kansas City area. Jeff Nagy emerged as the winner in a field of 250.

Participating in these tournaments took dedication and practice. Most RHS Chess Club members practice for about an hour and a half each day where they enjoy a quick "battle of the mind" or two, as Dr. Cusick puts it, during activity period and after school. What he truly enjoys about chess at RHS is that "I can pick up a game whenever I want."

According to Dr. Cusick and Mr. Dan Gerth, players such as Jeff Nagy, Eamon Duede, and Clayton Dunsworth will lead the way to a stronger Chess Club in 2002.

band peps up sports and rallies hether it was a football or basketball game or a pep rally, the Rockhurst Pep Band always had the ability to raise the excitement level and make the event more fun for everyone.

The main focus of the Pep Band was on in-school events. Directed by Mr. Mike Kern, and Giuliano Mingucci, RHS Class of 2000, the band played at all of the Football Team's home games.

"We are allowed to play until the teams set up on the line," said junior base guitarist Dan Martin.

They also played the majority of the home basketball games before the game and during halftime.

"[The Pep Band] helped get the crowd pumped up and cheering, and all that excitement helped us out," commented junior football player Mike Burke.

The Pep Band's repertoire consisted mostly of classic rock.

"We play old favorites that everybody recognizes," commented Martin. "25 or 6 to 4 by Chicago and Smoke on the Water are our favorites."

The group's 30 members practiced most Tuesdays and Thursdays in the Band Room under the Rose Theater.

"We worked on pieces for the games and had a lot of fun," said sophomore keyboardist Adam Wesley.

Musicians lettered in pep band by accumulating 1000 pep points.

"Each event and practice was worth points and if you went to everything you could have earned 200-300 pep points a quarter," said Martin.

One event that the Pep Band played away from RHS was the 2001 Trolley Run in April. The band played in Waldo for runners as they warmed up and stretched at the starting line.

"At 6:00 in the morning those people needed a lot of pepping," said Mr. Kern.

club utilizes skills outside the classroom ith the talents of Mrs. Connie Greany and the accommodating facilities of Rockhurst, the Visual Arts Club does not only provide a way for students to hone their skills and have a good time, but also puts its priority on serving the community through a number of events and projects.

"The club is fun for its members as it serves those less fortunate in the area.' said President Geoff Ponnath.

The club's first activity of the year was creating bowls that were sold to make money for the Harcmart AIDS Association. Another project was making eight masks for the Mattie Rhodes Auction Art Center which provides free art for disadvantaged students.

The 14-member club also made sets for the student production of Cabaret, provided airbrushed and silhouette background paintings for the Mardi Gras theme of the 2001 Spectacular Auction, and helped with production of the annual spring Fine Arts Day.

"It's hard to keep track of all of the projects our club has going on," said Mrs. Greany. "At one time we could have three or four different going." The club also gave members a way to learn about art in many different areas.

For all of their hard work, the members of the Visual Arts Club also got rewarded during the Art Awards ceremony and party held in May.

students educate school on environmental issues

The Eilert Ecology Club succeeded in making Rockhurst and the city a little cleaner place to be, according to Mr. Chris lensen, who served as the club's moderator. It did this by collecting paper from recycling bins every Tuesday and Thursday. On Wednesdays the club went to Case Park in Kansas City to pick up trash. This trash was in turn picked up by a recycling company who reused it so that less trees had to be cut down.

The members met Tuesdays during activity period where they brainstormed new ideas to help the environment and to make the school a better place to be.

"We strived to improve the Rockhurst environment by taking steps in recycling, education, and community service," said senior Dan Herver, club president.

Rounding out the leadership for the first semester were John Mitchell, Pat Jakopchek, Sean Hughes, and Ryan McIntosh, who served as committee leaders.

Taking charge in the second semester were Ian Correa, Jamie Burkart, James Johnson, Matt Haake, Alex Fontana, and Andre Newsome, while Heryer remained the club president throughout the year.

"My first reaction was I was impressed at how hard working the students were," said Mr. Jensen. "They didn't just sit around and talk, but inspired others through action."

The club is beneficial to Rockhurst by maintaining its reputation for service and beneficial to both the school and the city by making it less polluted. It was able to provide leadership, training, and experience for members so that they can lead future communities toward similar goals, according to Mr. Jensen.

"It felt really good helping around the school by cleaning it up," said first semester member, freshman Andre McIntosh.

The club accomplished many things including a trash inventory, a workshop with students from around the city in October, and a summit with these same students in late April. It was able to recycle over 14 tons of paper, saving trees, energy, and water, and it involved the whole school in a significant environmental project.

"Doing Ecology Club and recycling is an investment in the school I'm willing to make because it makes me feel more a part of the school," said Burkart.

club gains skills that will last a lifetime

th new faces and new places, the Racquetball Club swung into its third year of existence, with a large number of new members contributing to the already solid basis of the club.

"This has been a great year for the Racquetball Club," said junior Jeremy Allen, club president. "The veterans had a great time teaching the new guys how to play."

Formed three years ago by former RHS faculty member Mr. Geoff Miller, the club helps students gain a basic understanding of the game of racquetball. The more recent joiners learn the rules and techniques of the sport while upperclassmen continue to improve upon their skills. The goal for the future, according to Mr. Jack Reichmeier, club moderator, is to compete in the annual racquetball state tournament.

"We were disappointed we could not find competition from other schools," said Mr. Reichmeier. "Still, we had a successful ith new faces and new places, year competing against one another."

The Racquetball Club proved itself unique. The nearly 25 members met solely on weekends at the YMCA of Prairie Village, which gave them an opportunity to challenge other racquetball players of all ages. In addition, the club welcomed both students and faculty members. Mr. Rodger Cilley, Mr. Bill Munninghoff, and Mr. Rich Wikiera all joined in on the club's activities.

The club intended to complete the year with a tournament to determine the top athlete. Though it was never scheduled, the tournament is already planned for 2001-02.

In addition to fun, the Racquetball Club gives students an introduction to a sport that can be played for a lifetime.

golf is an activity period hit

The Golf Club at Rockhurst allows students to participate in golf, learn the traditions and rules of the game and have fun.

Senior President and Captain Kevin Weiss led the group with Secretary Chris Able, Historian Brad Long, and other members of the club. The club hosted two golf outings a year, the first of which was held in the fall and another in the spring. The club also hosted the first annual Arctic Open which gave students 10 putts for a $1 and a chance to win a t-shirt, with all proceeds going to charity.

The club was initiated by Mr. Rob Herald, Director of College Placement, so students could learn about golfing techniques, etiquette, traditions and enjoy the game without having to be on an organized team. Students who compete on an interscholastic level are not eligible to participate.

group members gain love for reptiles hen most people think of things that creep and crawl, they shiver. These are the exact things that delight the members of the Herpetology Club. Now in its third year of existence, the club's main focus is to teach more about reptiles and how to take care of them.

Highlights of the year included several herpetological expositions in the fall and spring at the KC Hilton Airport, where many reptiles were displayed for sale.

The most enjoyable experience was said to be the purchase of two Corn Snakes and a Kenyan Sand Boa by Mr. Rich Wikiera, club sponsor, which he and the group care for. It also cares for a chameleon which Mr. Wikiera proudly displays in room 205, his physiology classroom.

"I see the club as a gathering of people of a common interest," said Mr. Wikiera. "It gives them a chance to learn about the care and husbandry of reptiles."

The President of the club was Pete Schloegel; Vice-president, Mike Euston; Secretary, Ryan Fagan, and Treasurer, Matt Dunham. The seniors showed their dedication after senior service projects by recruiting underclassmen members so that the club could continue to thrive.

"I think that it's both educational and fun," said Schloegel. "Reptiles are nothing to be afraid of, but should be enjoyed."

The club has approximately 30 members, but many more students are gaining an interest as time goes on. In the future, Mr. Wikiera hopes to be able to raise more money so that the club's menagerie will grow even larger, increasing the amount of interaction the members can have with reptiles. Story by Matt Cavlovich

Senior Ryan Fagan demonstrates how to properly handle an amphibian. The 30 club members were composed primarily of seniors although many underclassmen joined during the year.

Senior Derek Dibben tries the new Kenyan Sand Boa purchased by the club on for size. The club added the boa as well as two other snakes maintained by club members.

Senior Matt Dunham and Mr. Rich Wikiera are invaded by lizards and snakes. The club members learn how to properly care for the reptiles.

future film producers get their start

For the past few years, the Film and Video Club has talked about many things they've wanted to do, but this year the club worked hard to bring video to the Rockhurst community.

Also, Ms. Peg Mulvihill approached the club to make a film to show the faculty what TIE was all about, and a video was put together.

"For that three minute video, we probably worked for six to seven hours on editing, adding the music, and producing it," said senior co-president John Mossie.

With only seven members, the club worked to show RHS that there is an opportunity for anyone to get involved in film.

"The whole purpose of the organization is to create an environment to make films at RHS," said club moderator Mr. Jay Coleman.

The club was more than willing to help with any projects at RHS, but they also worked on films in their freetime. Mossie and Murray created a movie that was a parody of the video game "Counterstrike."

hen you build something you design it to be around for a long time, and the Engineering Club has made it four years. The club was started after former Principal, the late Thomas Murphy, approach Mr. Paul Ptasnik with the idea for the club.

"I had experience from the Engineering Corps in the army, so I accepted," Mr. Ptasnik said.

Since then, the club has flourished in its main activity, bridge building. The club has participated in eight bridge building competitions and has had members place as high as in the top 20 percent. This year's competitors, have exceeded past years' performances with senior Hieu Pham placing 11th and junior Neil Griggs placing 3rd out of 157 competitors winning him a $50 prize at the 19th Annual Model Bridge Building competition at the Independence Shopping Center during February.

"You can only win money if you live in the state, so the Missouri competition was my main focus," said Griggs.

A lot of work goes into preparing for a competition. Rockhurst students design and build bridges outside of school and test them during activity period. Mr. Ptasnik advises them on technique but students design and build their own bridges.

n its 11th year as an official club at Rockhurst High School, the Flying Club was once again well received, as students learned about aviation and gained flying experience.

"When in the air you have a tremendous sense of freedom, and as long as you use common sense, the plane takes care of you," Mr. Ryan said.

The flights ranged from one hour long to cross-country trips over Kansas and Missouri. Students were also able to choose from day and night flights. The flying club meetings focused on learning more about the rules and regulations that go along with the freedom of flying.

The meetings also gave the club a chance to exchange flying experiences and stories from the sky. Story By David Paul Rockhurst welcomes principal Mr. David Laughlin

President Administration Academics ean of Students

The 12-member Administrative Staff is the backbone of Rockhurst High School, making important decisions about student affairs and alumni and growth for the future.

The staff is comprised of Rev. Thomas Pesci, S.J., President; Mr. David Laughlin, Principal; Mr. Larry Ruby, Assistant Principal for Academic Affairs; Mr. Michael Heringer, Assistant Principal for Student Affairs; Mr. lack Reichmeier, Director of Admissions and Financial Aid; Mr. Doug Bruce, Athletic Director; Mr. Larry Freeman, Executive Director of Alumni Affairs and Assistant to the President; Mr. David Alvey, Dean of Students; Mr. Rob Herald, Director of College Counseling; Rev. Gary Menard, S.J., Director of Pastoral Ministry: Mr. Randall Hallett, Development Director; and Mrs. Annie Riggs, Faculty Liaison to the Administrative Staff.

The Administrative Staff works with the Board of Trustees, headed by Mr. Ray D. Evans (RHS, 1978), to ensure that the school is living up to its mission.

"Whether it was part of the Capital Campaign or drawing new families into our Rockhurst community, with everyone's help we have made incredible strides this year in everything we've done," Fr. Pesci said.

According to Mr. Freeman, RHS is looking toward the future with new plans to help students attain the ideal of the "Graduate at Graduation".

"With the work we've put in this year, visible changes should be seen in the near future especially through the facilities renovation and more networking with our alumni," Mr. Freeman said. "We've also made a number of improvements that students and parents usually don't see, changes that effect the system in which we work."

Along with helping students become better men, the administration tries to let the alumni know how much they mean to the RHS community.

"We're trying to expand for the future and get new families involved into our community as well as getting our alumni back into it," Mr. Freeman said. "With 'watch parties' and 'friend raisers' we're hoping to get to the next level and cultivate relationships with other schools and people."

The year has had few major problems, and the minor problems the Board has faced has given it a good sense of teamwork and camaraderie.

"We've been very consistent this year," Mr. Laughlin said. "We have an excellent team and have handled everything handed to us smoothly."

"We're looking up and out toward the horizon to make sure Rockhurst remains as fine of an institution as it has been for over 90 years," Fr. Pesci said.

Administrative Staff Registration Organization

Behind the scenes work enlivenes
Rockhurst atmosphere

Through many long hours of hard work, oftentimes done by people unknown to the Rockhurst student body, many staff members have helped make Rockhurst the organized place it is today.

"They organize, answer questions, and seem to have a knack for anticipating and solving problems," remarked Principal David Laughlin. "They're an extremely important part of this school."

New to the staff this year are Mrs. Theresa Fessler who assumed the job of Registrar/Academic Coordinator, and Mrs. Cindy Scherer who became the new College Counseling Secretary.

"Rockhurst has been an incredibly nice place to work," said Mrs. Fessler. "It has a great work atmosphere."

In addition to the two newcomers, the veterans of the Administrative offices have continued to contribute. Mr. Randall Hallet (Director of Development), Ms. Nancy Wormington (Associate Director of Development and Director of Annual Giving), Mr. Laurence Freeman (Executive Director of Alumni Affairs and Assistant to the President), Mrs. Sarah Anne Peckham (Capital Campaign Coordinator), Mrs. Kathi Johansen (Assistant to the Principal), Mrs. Kelly Siercks (Administrative Supports Services Assistant), Mrs. Deloris Weist (Receptionist), and Mrs. Jeanne-Marie Siva (Business and Finance Assistant) are the people behind the scenes that help to make Rockhurst functional.

"Some of the staff are more known to the students than others, but all do a great job and contribute to the school's success," Mr. Laughlin said. "We wouldn't be able to run the school without them." Story by Brandon Hill

Counselers help students in many aspects of their lives

Study-Skills

The Counseling Department is known and respected for being there in good times and bad. Students feel free to go to counselors whenever they have questions, need something changed, or just want to talk to someone.

The counseling department added Biology teacher Mrs. Cathy Geisel as a part-time counselor. Mrs. Geisel has taken 20-30 students from all the grade levels to counsel, and soon will become full time after earning her Masters in Counsel-

A new Study Skills Program was implemented to help freshmen and sophomore students develop adequate study habits so that they can cope with the more rigorous classes of junior and senior year.

The Student Success Center is an after school program that utilizes upperclassmen and teachers to help students with questions and homework.

The counselors are also responsible for designing and keeping the students schedules in order. If a student needs to switch a class or has a question about the course, he can ask his counselor for help. Department Chairman Mr. Bill Munninghoff makes sure everything is in order and that students are helped in every way.

"Every year is a good year at Rockhurst. The students are wonderful. Working with a student over four years involves all five characteristics of the graduate at graduation," said Mr. Munninghoff. "By discussing the various issues a students deals with in his high school experience, we assist him in his journey to be the ideal 'grad-at-grad'." Story by Andrew Ward Department geared toward preparing for college and life beyond RHS

everal changes to the curriculum highlighted the English Department's year, as a new slate of classes were introduced to the current junior class.

For the sophomore, junior, and senior years, a dual focus is offered, concentrating on the development of the student's writing skills. Each grade also has a singular literary focus that for the sophomores is short stories; for juniors, drama, and for seniors (in the 2001-2002 school year), poetry. Advanced Placement Literature and Composition classes, once split between the junior and senior courses, were offered exclusively

According to Mr. Andy Hagedorn, Department Chairman, by the time a student graduates he will have read 20 to 30 novels in addition to many short stories, plays, and poems. Students in regular English classes will have written 45 to 50 essays, and Honors/Advanced Placement students will have written 70 or

"The teachers are reporting that the reading is challenging, but that they are impressed by the level and depth of understanding by the students," said Mr. Hagedorn.

New to the department were two first-year teachers. Mr. Casey Murray, RHS Class of '95, came back to his alma mater after a one-year stint in sports writing for a Chicago-area publication. He taught freshmen and juniors. Mr. Mike Wickenhauser, a member of the Alumni Service Corp, joins the staff as a sophomore teacher. Following his graduation from Northwestern University, he worked several years at a literary magazine. He always wanted to teach, but was not eager to stay in school, where he eventually earned his teaching certificate.

Second-year teachers Ms. Laurie Prater and Mr. Chris Jensen taught juniors, and Mr. Jensen also taught the sophomore honors course. Mr. Dan Gerth taught regular sophomore classes in addition to his three World History classes. In her third year at RHS, Mrs. Jennifer Olson continued to teach freshman.

Senior instructors included Mr. Frank Griffin and Mrs. Anne Riggs, who rejoined the department after teaching Spanish classes exclusively last year. Mr. Jim Bascom assumed the senior Advanced Placement classes from Mr. Hagedorn, who taught the freshman and junior honors courses.

The English classes are geared toward preparing the Rockhurst student for college and his life beyond school according to Mr. Hagedorn.

"In many of the things students read and write, values and ethics questions are raised and discussed," he said. "A graduate will have had experience reading and analyzing his beliefs and the beliefs of others." Story by Matthew Harris

Mathematics welcomes two new faces and the return of Fr. Daues from India

The Math Department welcomed two new faces and the return of one all too familiar. With the loss of three teachers, the replacements for freshmen and sophomore Algebra were needed, and according to Mr. Paul Ptasnik, Department Chairman, the newcomers complemented the veterans.

"Our new teachers bring a great deal of knowledge and experience while adding a new perspective to the department," he said.

The two new replacements were Mrs. Peg Ehrhardt and Mrs. Peggy Martin. Mrs. Ehrhardt instructed Algebra II/ Geometry and Algebra/Trigonometry. Mrs. Martin also taught Algebra II/Geometry as well as Algebra I.

Returning was Fr. Mark Daues, S.J., after a one-year absence while he completed his tentionship in India. In addition to the usual headlocks and "Are you causing trouble?" inquiries, Fr. Daues taught Algebra I and II.

This department utilized the 2000-2001 school year as a year of change. New Algebra I, Algebra II, and Applied Calculus text as well as an AP Calculus course were introduced. These new additions have produced a positive reaction.

"I'm proud of the changes we made last year," said Mr. Ptasnik. "They have had significant results."

The new books were intended to better enable students to use their math skills in the real world. For example, the freshmen and sophomore classes were given the test of measuring the cell phone tower on campus. The task gave students the opportunity to apply their math skills away from the classroom in an enjoyable competition.

Proposed changes for next year's curriculum include a new pre-calculus course, which hopes to help seniors prepare for college Calculus.

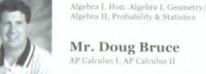

With two Jesuit priests, two retired army officers, several coaches, and an array of personalities, the department is unique, but still shares the RHS common mission.

"We want to challenge the students," stated Mr. Ptasnik. "Each of our teachers has a genuine concern to set standards that will improve intellectual competence." Story by Nick Herold

Opportunities provided for scientific minded students

The science faculty at RHS provides an atmosphere of "opportunities for students to get involved in science," according to Mr. Ron Geldhof, Department Chairman.

New additions to the department include both people and technology. Mr. Mike Sullivan, a first year teacher, has joined the department as a Chemistry teacher.

Veterans also include Mr. Michael O'Leary, Mr. Steve Ryan, Dr. Fred Campisano, Mr. Michael Sullivan, Mr. Paul Winkeler. Mrs. Cathy Geisel, and Mr. Rich Wikiera.

New additions to the department include both people and technology. Mr. Sullivan, a first year teacher, has joined the department as a Chemistry teacher.

Three IBM Thinkpad laptop computers were added to the department's resources and divided evenly among the chemistry, biology and physics departments. Mr. Wikiera has begun training the entire science department on their use. Next year's innovations will include a new course titled Environmental Science. Mr. Geldhof defines the new offering as, "a study of man's interaction with the environment." These innovations have already begun to make their mark on the science department, as evidenced by the sight of Mr. Geldhof typing away happily on his new toy.

Extracurriculars, including Science Club, field trips, labs and help for students, allow the department to function as more than just lecturers and test givers. Field trips included those to Science City at Union Station and the Stowers Institute. Mr. O'Leary is well known for working in conjunction with the Science Knowledge Bowl and Science Olympiad to allow aspiring scientists an opportunity to exercise their grey matter.

Mr. Ryan and Mr. O'Leary also coach the Golf Team. Mr. Geldhof trains the RHS tennis phenoms. Mr. Wikiera is everpresent as the RHS Wrestling Coach and Herpetology Club moderator. Mr. Winkeler instructs the Aquahawks swimming and diving teams.

The Science department focuses on its changing nature and traditions. "I've always been impressed with the way Rockhurst backs up scientific teaching," said Mr. Ryan. "It allows us to do a lot of the things in the lab that a lot of high schools do not get the chance to do." Story by Diego Bustamante Theology helps students grow towards goal of being "Men for Others"

Theology at Rockhurst gives students the chance to better learn about not only the Catholic religion. but the religion of others as well. Theology is a time to share moments, questions, and concerns about today's life in religion. Students participate all four years in theology to grow toward being "Men for Others."

The department, consisting of a faculty of 12 including three new teachers, requires both freshmen and sophomores to take morality classes. The new faith/morality teachers are Mrs. Valerie Davis, who has taught for six years, and Mr. Mark Kramer, S.J., and Mr. Sean Angiel, both with one year of teaching experience.

The students experience retreats each year, as well as field trips. The juniors walk down Ward Parkway to the Beth Shalom Jewish Temple on a annual basis to learn more about the Jewish heritage.

"It is a fun way to learn the faith of someone else while getting a first hand experience," says junior Ben Nachbar.

"It has been a great year. Students are beginning to link their classes together," said Mr. Jay Coleman, Department Chairman. Story by Andrew Ward with nine teachers, the Foreign Language Department has expanded to its largest number ever. According to Department Chairman Dr. Jorge Taracido, the additions were necessary.

"Our department has seen a good deal of growth due to the rising number of students," Dr. Taracido said. "We were in need of additional help."

The aid was found in Mr. Jeremy McElduff. In his first year of teaching after graduating from the University of Missouri, Mr. McElduff taught both Spanish I and II.

In addition, Mr. Rick Staihr, Mr. Bert Roney, Ms. Annie Otto, Mrs. Kristen Anderson, and Mr. Michael Dierks taught Spanish classes. Mrs. Sabina Mills, in her second year at RHS, instructed all French courses. Bearing the load of Latin and Greek classes again was Dr. Michael Cusick, whose task became even more challenging after suffering a mid-year cardiac event. Still, Dr. Cusick soon returned to teaching with the same enthusiasm as ever before.

The Spanish classes again sponsored a trip to Spain during spring break, where they experienced the Spanish culture and heritage. For the first time, Dr. Cusick accompanied his Latin and Greek students to Italy and Greece, where they toured such destinations as Rome, Athens, and Florence.

"We hope to learn more about the classics world," said Dr. Cusick. "I promised my students that when I completed my doctoral dissertation, we would go to Europe."

In addition to its own numerical growth, the department intends to help its students grow intellectually as well.

"We hope that through the studies of language that they gain a sense of openness and acceptance to other cultures." said Dr. Taracido. Story by Nick Herold

Social Studies shows students the world and its everchanging problems

American History Social Studies

Ith courses ranging from the humanities to contemporary world problems, the Social Studies Department, headed by Dr. Jerry Goben, aims to expand students horizons by exposing them to the everchanging world around them.

"In the Social Studies Department, we teach the mistakes of mankind," Dr. Goben remarked. "Hopefully, students will use others' past mistakes to grow as individuals and improve themselves in the process.'

The department consists of ten hard-working and dedicated teachers who, with the addition of such courses as A.P. European History, and Humanities, seem to be working longer and harder than ever before.

Just like you kids, we keep pretty busy grading papers and making up quizzes. You're not the only ones with a lot of food on your plates," exclaimed Dr. Goben.

Always embracing the ideals of improvement and change, the department welcomed Mr. Steven Charbonneau to the staff.

Mr. Charbonneau, who has been teaching for 11 years, came to Rockhurst after teaching at DeSmet High School in St. Louis, and has proven to be an asset to the evolving department.

"I would like to help bring technology into the classroom through the use of PowerPoint and by giving students and teachers more access to computers," said Mr. Charbonneau.

With his help, the Social Studies Department will move into the technological age with the proposed addition of the PowerPoint presentation program for all department members next year. Story by R.E. Wolfe II

"With all the new renovations and equipment, we can do things we've never been able to do before," said Mr. Rodger Cilley, Department Chairman. "The brand new light board in the Rose Theater is terrific!"

In addition to new equipment, new faculty members have joined the department including Mr. Corin Overland, an assistant vocal instructor and Music Appreciation teacher, and Mrs. Laurie Prater, now teaching Acting in addition to English.

"They've been a great addition to our staff," said Mr. Cilley. n the new age of technology, computers have led the world into greater advancements, and the future leaders of those advancements are the students who occupy the halls of Rockhurst every day. Teaching those entrepreneurs are veteran instructors Mr. Bernie Kreikemeier and Mr. John McEniry, and newcomer Mr. Kevin E. Miller, who has taught 17 years of mathematics but now teaches Computer Applications I and II.

"My goal is to bring my seven years of corporate experience to show the students what's needed to be known out there," said Mr. Miller.

Microsoft Internet Explorer has been hooked up to rooms 316 and 317 giving access to up to 65 computers. Visual Basic has been added to the curriculum as an elective while the older Pascal is slowly being phased out.

"Visual Basics is more modern than Pascal because it allows you design Windows-type software while Pascal is more writing code," said Mr. McEniry.

For the 2001-2002 school year, the Computer Applications I class will be adding two new sections using the internet and introducing Windows PowerPoint to freshmen instead of waiting until Computer Applications II.

Visual Basics II will be added to the curriculum while Automated Accounting will be shortened to a semester class.

"Because students have such few choices in electives, we felt it was important enough so they have at least one semester of accounting," said Mr. Kreikemeier.

The faculty hopes that the third lab will get new equipment and be fully functional for any teacher to bring his or her class in to use the computers as a method of teaching. They are also trying to use mobile computers so the students can hook it up to their classroom television and give presentations.

"We've come a long way, and we have two virtually new labs. We're in the best shape we've ever been in," said Mr. McEniry. Story by Peter Giangreco

The Physical Education Department aides in the formation of students by requiring students to complete one semester of either Physical Education or Physical Fitness. For seniors, there is the opportunity to choose Lifetime Sports as an elective.

"It gives students the opportunity to diversify in a one hour break from daily academic life," said Department Chairman Coach Tony Severino.

The Physical Education class, taught by second-year teacher Mr. Matt Nolen, provides the student with the beginning knowledge of weight training and team sports. The emphasis of the class is team development. Favorite sports among the students included basketball and volleyball.

The Physical Fitness class offers the student a chance to continue physical activities with the emphasis placed on advanced weight lifting. Team sports becomes their secondary activity.

"Both courses, Physical Education and Physical Fitness, are designed to provide a student with a weight lifting opportunity two to three times a week," Mr. Nolen said. "And a chance to experience each sport according to the season."

Lifetime Sports is a popular elective for Seniors. According to Coach Severino, almost half of the class chooses the elective which focuses on sports that can be played after the students competitive career has ended. The class offers the students a chance to leave the Rockhurst campus and experience sports like tennis, golf, and bowling.

"It teaches the student the rules and etiquette of games that can be played for the rest of his life," stated Coach Severino. Story by John Dollerschell

r. John McEniry is one of Rockhurst's links to the tumultuous times of the Vietnam War, John F. Kennedy, and civil rights. A unique individual, he is part of the generation that began the rebellion against "conformity", and yet he is by no means a man who lives in the past, since he teaches the most future-driven courses at this school: computer programming. But he retains several remnants of his wilder days. He plays the drums in a '60s rock band called Johnny Mac and the Acid Flashbacks, he listens frequently to the bands of the '60s, and he has drawn some comparisons between the current day and the period he grew up in.

Mr. McEniry wears a fabled earring as a reminder of the special relationship he had with his wife, who passed away suddenly in 1997. He describes her as, "the only one I ever loved." One of two earrings given to him as a souvenir from their trip to Ireland, the Celtic cross earring, is worn on his left lobe. The other earring was buried with his wife and now he retains her gift as a testimonial to their love, which was best summarized by Mr. McEniry's sister-in-law. "They weren't only married, they were soul-mates.'

Mr. McEnity grew up a mile from where he currently resides. After elementary school at St. Francis Xavier, he found his way to Rockhurst where he played drums and was very involved in music. He described his high school experience as, "going to Rockhurst and graduating". After doing just that in 1968, he began to notice the draft taking his classmates off to battle, possibly to die.

"My brother enlisted," he said "and I went to school on deferment. If it had been the other way around, I might be living in Canada right now."

During this confusing time, Mr. McEniry attended UMKC for two years before spending four years in the corporate world. As it did not agree with him, he returned to UMKC and earned his Bachelor of Arts Degree in Education and a Master of Arts Degree in Math. He found a job teaching at Oak Park

High School but three years later was drawn back to his alma mater. He took a job as Junior Algebra II/Trigonometry teacher and has since moved on to computers, where he teaches Pascal I & II, C++, and Visual Basic.

Over the years, Mr. McEniry has experienced both the good and the bad in teaching. His fondest memory was being nominated for Who's Who of American Teachers by an African-American student who was having a very rough time at Rockhurst. By taking some extra time in class with the student and encouraging him, Mr. McEniry helped convince him to remain in high school, unlike the student's mother, who because of teasing, had been forced to quit her high school and move. His worst moment as a teacher came when one of his students was killed in an accident over a weekend and he did not find out until his return on Monday. When he tried to teach the remaining members of the student's class, he found he could

Mr. McEniry believes that students today lack a unifying issue, unlike his generation, which had a common concern.

"It was a scary prospect we all had to face, the prospect of going off to a pretty ugly war. In Mr. McEniry's high school career, everyone worried about being drafted after high school, and that anxiety permeated his gen-

The only thing that is that much of a concern, would have to be the AIDS issue," said Mr. McEniry.

"You have diversity in the student body. You have these cliques or these interest groups you belong to. Which is the same thing as when I went to school."

Mr. McEniry learned in March that his persistent raspy voice was a symptom of a larger problem. He was diagnosed with a malignant squamous cell carcinoma, a cancer of the larynx. He underwent radiation treatments for 7 1/2 weeks at St. Joseph Hospital.

"I feel very positive about the radiation treatment and the eventual outcome. I will beat this!" he said. Story by Diego Bustamante

Born in a small town in Poland "Coming To America" was a turning point to the future...

r. Rich Wikiera has come a long way to get to Rock hurst. Born in Poland, he lived in a small town called Grodzisko Dolne until he was six, when his family sent him to live with his cousins in America for a better life. He can still remember the shock of coming to a new land.

"The first time I saw a car I was really surprised," Mr. Wikiera said. "No one owned a car in my town in Poland. I couldn't believe all the rich people living here in America."

Coming from a one room, grass roof house with five people living in it, America created a drastic change in his lifestyle.

After leaving Poland, Mr. Wikiera lived in Clifton, NJ, where he attended Clifton High School and participated in an array of activities including football, wrestling, baseball, and hockey. His only regret was that he never got to be in a school play.

"They were always musicals," Mr. Wikiera said with a smile, "and I can't carry a tune to save my life!"

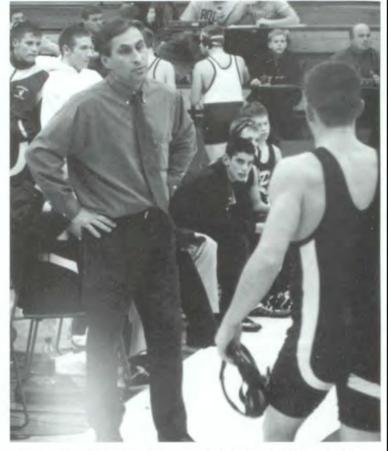

After high school he attended Rockhurst College where he met his future wife, Denise. After finishing college he taught at St. Mary's High School in Independence for three years where he taught biology and physical science while coaching football, wrestling, and baseball.

In 1981, Mr. Wikiera came to RHS. He soon left to teach one year at Center High School before returning. He has taught many sciences including Biology, Honors Biology, and Human Physiology. He has coached soccer, football, and is currently the Varsity Wrestling Coach. Mr. Wikiera has not only taught 19 years at RHS, but two of his sons have or are currently attending RHS. His son Rich graduated in 1998, and his son Drew is in the class of 2002. For Mr. Wikiera it is not a distraction.

"It is more convenient for rides," stated Mr. Wikiera, "but it really doesn't create any problems or add any benefits. I've only seen Drew in the halls twice in three years."

Mr. Wikiera stands with his family in front of the old house he grew up in Poland.

Head Wrestling Coach Rich Wikiera questions the intensity of one of his seniors during a meet against St. Thomas Aquinas.

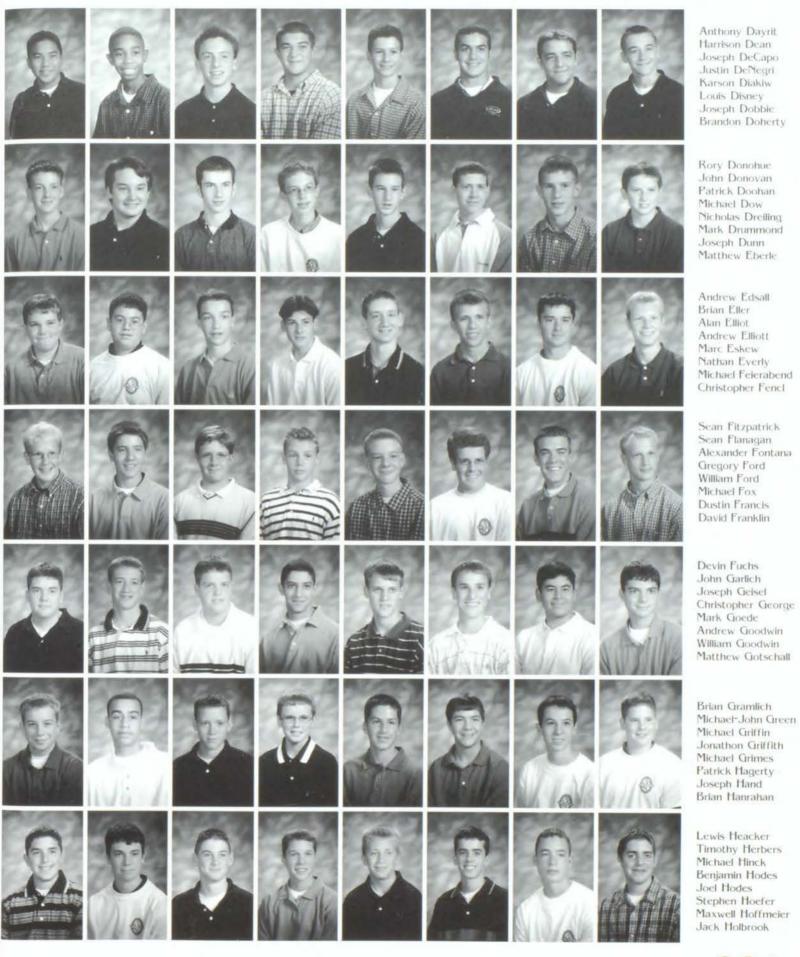

Outside of RHS Mr. Wikiera enjoys racquetball, building furniture, landscaping, and doing an occasional oil painting. Most importantly, however, he enjoys participating in his kids' activities. In spite of the busy life Mr. Wikiera leads, he still finds time for his children.

Recently Mr. Wikiera returned to his homeland with his wife. He went back to find his parents, siblings, and relatives whom he hadn't seen for 40 years. Everything went great except for the fact that Mr. Wikiera had forgotten his native language, and communicating with one another became somewhat of an obstacle. But it was still a reunion he'll cherish forever.

"It brought back many memories of my childhood," commented Mr. Wikeria. "I remember the fun I had climbing cheery trees and eating their sweet fruit."

Mr. Wikiera has come a long way to get to Rockhurst, but it is safe to say that RHS has become a home away from home for him and his family.

Born in Flint, MI, and raised in Raytown, Mr. Lyngar also spent time in Terrytown, NY, where his father was an Automotive Plant Engineer. Working for Chevrolet, Mr. Lyngar's father was provided with access to top projects, such as the car his son pushed speed to its limits, a 1969 blue Chevel Super Sport.

In spite of Mr. Lyngar's history of great speed, he is also a very meticulous and determined person, which is attested to by his studies at Raytown High School, and at Missouri Valley University, where he majored in Mathematics and minored in Physics. After completing his education, he remained in the area and taught for 10 years at Grain Valley High School.

Mr. Lyngar could have been known as Mr. Sports or Mr. Math in his time at Grain Valley. He served as the centerpiece for the Math Department, teaching every class in the curriculum at one time or another. Mr. Lyngar also coached track, basketball, volleyball, and football.

Since 1984, however, RHS has served as home for Mr. Lyngar. Once again having taught every course in the curriculum, he has become one of the defining features of mathematics at RHS. He has also made contributions to the football tradition by lending his services as a Defensive Line Coach for the past

In his limited time away from the classroom, the football field, and the weight room, Mr. Lyngar enjoys his favorite hobby of landscaping.

"Not that foo-foo gardening stuff, the real thing, landscaping," he eagerly points out. Additionally, he enjoys watching his favorite television program, Law & Order, when his schedule will allow for it. His favorite movies are Close Encounters of the Third Kind and October Skies. Food and music are on pretty much the same level with Mr. Lyngar, as long as there's enough. He's satisfied, just as long as there are no hard-boiled

The 16 years that he has spent thus far at RHS are alone enough to tell that he enjoys his time here. His favorite aspect of the job is the opportunity to interact with developing young adults.

"My favorite part of the Jesuit education system that we have at Rockhurst would have to be the opportunity to talk with young men, one-on-one, at a spiritual level and in depth," he added. Going to the Football State Championship game in 1999 and winning it all in 2000 are examples of his favorite memories of coaching at RHS, along with coaching the first Sophomore Football Team to go undefeated in RHS history in 1994.

In the academic realm is where Mr. Lyngar's daily triumphs come while working with the students and the subiect matter that he teaches. The students also agree, and acclaim his teaching gift.

'Mr. Lyngar is a machine! He makes everything so simple and easy," junior Jack Curran commented. "He's just an all around great guy and a great teacher."

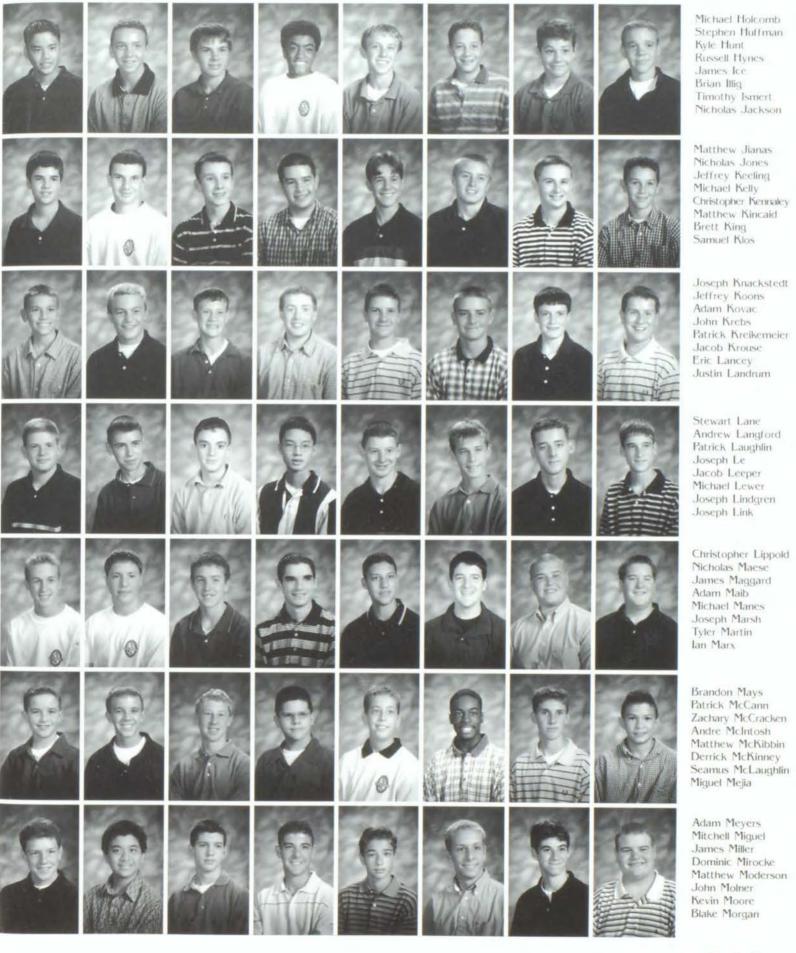

"My goal when teaching is to instill a life long love of learning, whether it is math, physics, computers, whatever."

riginally from Westpointe, a small town of about 4,000 in northeast Nebraska, Mr. Bernie Kreikemeier has spent most of his Rockhurst career not only coaching sports, but coaching life.

In high school, Mr. Kreikemeier played football and basketball, and was the lead in the school play his senior year. His freshman year, he started coaching basketball on a Knights of Columbus team and they won the city championship.

Mr. Kreikemeier describes himself in high school by saying, "I would not consider myself an athletic or academic stallion but as someone who tried to learn as much as he could about everything."

In his 12th year at Rockhurst, Mr. Kreikemeier teaches accounting, is the assistant Varsity Baseball Coach, and is the Head Sophomore Football Coach.

"It's a great feeling working together with others to accomplish one goal," says Mr. Kreikemeier, who in his 25 years of coaching can recount only one losing season. For the last two years, the Sophomore Football Team has recorded two straight unbeaten seasons, compiling a total of 16 straight wins.

Mr. Kreikemeier hasn't spent all of his life teaching, though. He has been a man of versatility, ranging from working in the cooler of a meat processing plant, to a bank teller, to refereeing basketball, softball, and football for ten years.

"When refereeing, every night's game is different. I observe how people handle losing and winning, how teams handle pressure, how teams get along, selfish players, team players."

He also has worked part-time at a 7-Eleven, as a communication correspondent for DST systems, and a teacher at St. Mary's High School in Independence.

He and his wife of 21 years, Mary, have five children, two daughters and three sons, ranging in age from 4 to 20. His oldest son Patrick is a member of the Class of 2004.

A native of Parsons, a small town in southern Kansas, Mr. Ramsey taught at three other high schools and worked for the editorial department at Hallmark before he came to Rockhurst in 1975. When asked why he has stayed at RHS for such a long time, he replied, "I have found a home."

Mr. Ramsey grew up in a Catholic family with three brothers and one sister. The Church played a large part in his youth and he was introduced to the Jesuits at a very early age. The Jesuits at his grade school and high school ran a program called Sodality, which he participated in. In college he was a member of the Alpha Gamma Omega, through the National Catholic Theatre Confer-

He then continued his education at Pittsburg State University, where he earned his Masters in Speech.

Throughout his school days, he participated in speech and acting. He was a participant in the Diocesan Oratories Contests and participated in theater throughout high school and college. He was cast in plays such as My Fair Lady, Harvey, and The Glass Menagerie.

From an early age it was apparent what he wanted to do with his life involved speaking and performing.

Immediately following college Mr. Ramsey decided to be a teacher because, "It is the most satisfying commitment that I can make, in terms of seeing the impact on the world around you," he

During his years at RHS he has taught, at one time or another, English, mass media, and logic, and he has always been the Speech and Debate Coach. S tudents who regularly walk through the commons are bound to see a friendly, smiling face that seems to stand out from the others. This face is that of Mr. Eric Berg, a committed counselor and assistant Varsity Football coach. During his 20th year at Rockhurst, Mr. Berg has exemplified what it means to be a man for others, according to those who know him.

"Mr. Berg is the epitome of a Christian gentleman," said fellow counselor Mr. Heringer.

Mr. Mike Berg grew up in the small town of Rolla, in central Missouri, and attended Rolla High School. He later went on to graduate from the University of Missouri, Columbia, with a degree in Education and secondary school Counseling.

He has coached basketball, taught psychology, and was Rockhurst High School's Head Track Coach for seven years. He is also a committed family man who, along with Deb, his wife of 15 years, has four children—ranging in ages from 6 to 13.

How does Mr. Berg balance work and family?

"It is difficult during the football season, but my family members are all avid Rockhurst fans and attend many of the games, so each game is turned into a family event," he said.

He says that he came to RHS for several reasons. He wanted to coach football, be a counselor, and teach, all at the high school level. After applying to several places he learned RHS needed someone to do all of these things and it created a perfect opportunity. He knew about Rockhurst's good reputation and knew Dennis Bullard, a college classmate, who was teaching at Rockhurst at the time.

What Mr. Berg enjoys most about being at Rockhurst is working with motivated young men who realize that there is more to life than education.

"It is important for the students to also see that there is also a spiritual side of life, and Rockhurst students are gaining an understanding of this," said Mr. Berg.

He continues to enjoy gaining insight into teenagers and constantly learning new aspects about things he thought he already knew about. He says he also enjoys working with a dedicated faculty and staff who care a lot about the students and are willing to put in extra time for the good of the school. He claims that this has been a lot of the reason he has been able to get through some of the tougher times at Rockhurst when he and many were left with the question of 'why did this happen?'

"Last year was especially tough with the deaths of [Mr.] Buddy Worth and [Mr.] Tom Murphy," he said.

Freshmen experience first game and mixer as brand new Hawklets

The Blue/White Mixer is held every year primarily for freshmen to meet girls from local schools but it is also open to all classes.

eaturing music, dancing, and an air band contest, the Blue/White Mixer in August marked the traditional first social event of the school year.

"The Blue/White Mixer is the first opportunity for freshmen to experience a Rockhurst dance," said Mr. Mike Heringer, Assistant Principal for Students Affairs.

"There has been talk of limiting this event to exclusively freshmen," he said. "but we do not want to take away this activity from the upperclassmen."

"I thought the Blue/White Mixer was a great experience," said freshmen Patrick Tweedy. "It was a good way to come back from summer break."

This evening begins with the annual Blue/White football game, which introduces the new football squads in a competitive scrimmage. Afterward, students can join their fellow classmates and girls from area high schools in the over 20-year tradition.

The event continues to grow each year with over 900 people filling the gym to capacity, according to Mr. Heringer.

"Next year, the dance may need to be extended into the courtyard to accomodate the large number of people," he said.

In addition, this event acts as a fundraiser for the Student Government Association.

"People can have a good time while benefiting their school and the SGA Student Scholarship Program," said Mr. Heringer, Story by Nick Herold man who's anything but the norm, Mr. Tom Norman is a dedicated teacher who developed his unique teaching style from an eclectic background.

As a Rockhurst High School student in the late 50's, Mr. Norman participated in Student Council, the Prep News, and was a State Dramatist. After high school, Mr. Norman continued his education at Saint Louis University where he majored in Philosophy.

Once out of college Mr. Norman moved to Phoenix, AZ, where he worked with his father putting on seminars for managers and salesmen. The seminars were meant to make people better at what they did by giving them self-confidence. He uses what he taught in seminars in his classroom at RHS saying, 'Whether you think you can or whether you think you can't, you're right."

Mr. Norman went on to serve as a realestate consultant and stayed in that profession for 10 years. While in Phoenix, he met and married his wife Robin, and had two children, but in 1981 it had become difficult to make a living in the realestate market. Since Mr. Norman was a certified English teacher, the family decided to move back to Missouri to look for a teaching position.

Mr. Norman could have taught at DeSmet or Saint Louis University High, but he decided to come back to his alma mater, RHS. Mr. Norman had hoped to find a place in the English Department, but the only opening was as a Theology teacher. He decided to try it out and has been teaching theology ever since.

"A person teaches," explained Mr. Norman, "because he wants to see people succeed." Mr. Norman does more than just teach at RHS. He is involved in the lives of both the students and the faculty. He has been the moderator of the National Honor Society for 18 years, and has been in charge of Ignatian Evenings for six years.

As moderator of NHS, Mr. Norman does a variety of things from peddling doughnuts, to advertising meetings by carrying signs through the lunchroom, to organizing the annual Battle of the Bands.

The Ignatian Evenings are a series of five mini retreats that are designed to give the faculty a chance to relax, to learn about how St. Ignatius of Lovola looked at life, to use Ignatius' way of looking at life to grow closer to God, and to strengthen a sense of community among the faculty. The faculty is divided into five retreat groups, each attending a separate night, meaning that Mr. Norman, with the help of Mr. Brad Grabs and members of the Mother's Club, puts on twenty five dinners throughout the year.

Mr. Norman thinks it's important to be involved with the people around

"[Teaching at RHS] isn't about money; it's about relationships."

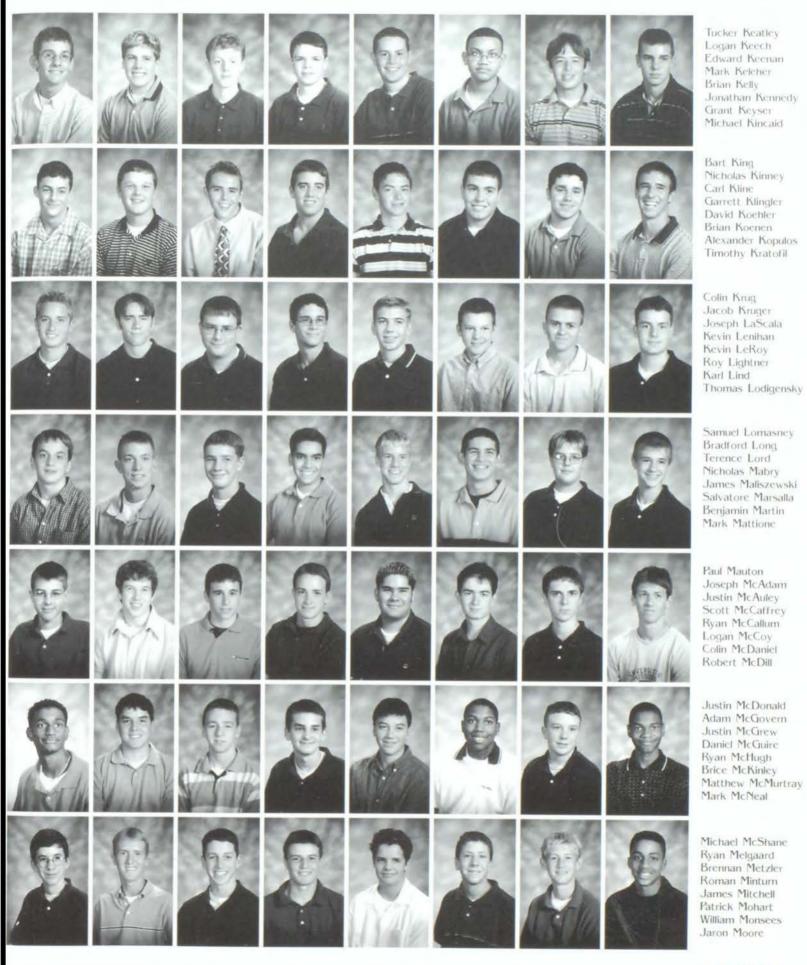

While Mr. Norman is very involved with RHS, he also keeps busy at home. He has three children and has been a foster parent for 16 years during which time he has had upwards of 35 foster children. When he's at not busy with all of his other activities Mr. Norman likes to study the wisdom of the cultures of the world by reading Hebrew and Islamic stories, or by exploring the Story by Jamie Burkart Internet.

Mr. Tom Norman let Mr. Artie Vielhauer, assisted by Mr. J.W. DeCamp, shave his beard in an effort to raise money for Mission Week.

This year the student-run event raised more than $20,000 with a record 100 teams participating in three divisions: 8-9 grades, 10-11 grades, 12alumni. Each team was guaranteed at least 2 games and received T-shirts.

With help from six Executive committee members, seniors Pete Schloegel and Chris Clarkson, juniors Stephen Reintjes and Mike Illig, and sophomores Scott Ferguson and Matt Sweeney, along with an 80-member Rockfest committee, Coach Tony Severino and Mr. Michael Dierks were able to stage a successful and exciting tournament.

"It was a success because of the generosity of the Rockhurst community, especially the Executive and Rockfest committees," Schloegel.

The winners of the divisions were: The Playas, Big Dick, Two B's and a Keves, and Severino's Team.

The success of Rockfest will go towards scholarships for freshmen to attend Rockhurst. Not only does Rockfest benefit enrolled eighth graders, but it also "creates camaraderie between RHS students," said Mr. Dierks, who, after six years, has decided to turn over the reins to concentrate on other activities.

"It's creating a tradition, $140,000 over the years, the legacy, kids' enthusiasm about helping, and working with the guys has always been great," Mr. Dierks said. Story by Geoffrey Martin.

Rockhurst students and athletes competed all over the globe to represent RHS, as the Rugby team traveled to the sport's homeland, Ireland, the Varsity Football Team looked to Las Vegas for competition, the Varsity Soccer Team to Wisconsin, the Varsity Baseball Team to Arkansas, and the Speech and Debate Team to New York.

The Rugby Team's 31 players journeyed to Dublin over spring break to compete and to learn about the passion and desire that is shared in the hearts of young Irish men. The team played five games against three teams, Railway Union, Gonzaga College, a Jesuit high school, and Clongowes Wood, a Jesuit boarding school that won the Irish National Championship. The more experienced A-side, similar to a varsity squad, beat Railway Union and lost to Clongowes Wood and Gonzaga. The B-side lost two close games to Railway Union and Clongowes Wood.

"The boys learned more about rugby and the desire to win than we could have ever taught them," said Coach Brian O'Laughlin, father of senior Matt O'Laughlin.

In Ireland, the team was welcomed with a reception at the government building and met with Dr. Jim McDade, Minster of Sports, Tourism, and Recreation.

"Dr. Jim McDade taught these young men about the importance of international politics," Mr. O'Laughlin said.

The Football team traveled to Las Vegas in October in search of competition. The team left Kansas City and returned in less than 25 hours with a 44-0 win against Basic High School and a whirlwind tour down the Las Vegas Strip.

"The trip was an overall success," Head Coach Mr. Tony Severino said. "It taught them how to compete in a different environment and prepared them for the State Championship."

In April, the Varsity Baseball Team traveled to Fayetteville, AR, planning to play two games against the Benton and Sheridan High Schools. The team embarrassed Benton, beating them by more than 15 runs, but its second game, scheduled against Sheridan, had to be forfeited due to the Mom Prom. Besides playing games, the team watched the University of Arkansas Baseball Team beat Ole Miss.

"The trip helped the team to grow together for the playoffs," stated junior Chris Bachkora.

The Varsity Soccer Team flew to Milwaukee where it played two games, one against Brookfield East High School, winning 3-2, and the other against Marquette, a Jesuit High school. In the game against Marquette the team came back from a 2-1 deficit to win, 3-2, setting the tone for the rest of the season.

"Going into the Milwaukee trip, the team was not sure of its goals," stated junior Adam Sinovic. "After the trip we knew we could overcome anything."

After the Marquette game players from both teams attended a brunch where they exchanged shirts. That evening the players went to a mixer and stayed with families of the opposing team.

The Speech and Debate Team competed in NCFL Nationals in May held at Regis High School in New York City.

"We were all overwhelmed by the night life," stated senior Brian Schroeder.

The team toured historic sites and monuments, such as the Statue of Liberty, the New York Stock Exchange, and The World Trade Center. On Saturday the team started competition, and Joel Blevins placed 19th in Dramatic Interpretation in Sunday's competition

"It was good exposure to different styles of debate," said Schroeder.

Other RHS groups experienced cities around the country, as MEET toured Memphis and the Dr. Martin Luther King historic sites. The Lacrosse Team made several trips to St. Louis, as well as a trip to New Mexico. The Cross Country Team went to St. Louis for the first annual All-Jesuit Meet as did the Track and Field Team.

Iron Man consists of four events, volleyball, basketball, darts, and Trivial Pursuit, which gave everyone a chance to participate. Mr. Andy Hagedorn's first period, calling themselves "Haggie's White Hogs" took first, with Mr. Ryan Nicholson's "White Rhinos" coming in a close second.

"Even when our basketball team lost Eric Vossman, Adam Sheridan and Chris Schaefer, we still won all of our games!" exclaimed Tim Thedinger of the White Rhinos.

"Junior Iron Man gives the boys a chance to have fun and for individual classes to merge together to really get to know each other as they approach their senior year." Mr. Nicholson said.

The $2 entry fee was considered by all, well worth the chance at the BBQ, as almost all the juniors participated.

How do divisions in Rockhurst Affect the student body?

clique is a group, a division, a collection of guys with similar ideas, tastes, and likes. In the past few years at Rockhurst, many things have changed, but one thing has remained static: cliques.

Ask most guys at RHS and they will tell you pretty much the same thing as far as what cliques there are. Sophomore Jacob Kruger, who sees himself as a punk, defines the groups as most students would.

"Cliques at RHS include punks, jocks, actors, hippies, and preps."

How these cliques are defined is clear, although affiliation with one may not always be. For the most part, what makes someone part of a group is a sharing in the mentality of that group. Jocks are typically the athletes, given to sports; preps pursue academics; actors spend their time almost exclusively working on their art; punks are often seen with an anti-everything mentality, the rebels; and hippies are defined by a kind of easy-going, laid-back demeanor, the guys who don't seem to care that much. Although someone may or may not be part of a certain clique, by just projecting even a few of these traits they may be easily categorized as a member of any of these groups.

Junior Greg Laughlin pointed out that it really is not so simple to decide what group a student is affiliated with.

"It isn't quite so neatly divided. For example, I think that I fit in as a hippy jock prep," he

The problem with cliques is, the name usually comes with a negative connotation. But having formed these cliques can be both a positive and a negative thing, as many would point out. By being in groups with others who share a common interest, it provides a stable set of friends who will always be there as a positive support group, and can give a valuable sense of identity and belonging.

Although junior Matt Weglarz happens to agree with this idea, he also points out that, "it is bad because it divides the school, and could create prejudice and animosity between people based on stereotypes, rather than giving the actual people a chance."

So, while developing cliques can be a valuable source of support, it can also be a divisive

In a poll of over 10% of the student body, students projected what they thought were the percentages for each group, and reported the groups they felt they belonged in. For example, those polled thought that 41% of the students were jocks, but only 28% reported themselves as such. The results show that for the most part, students aren't in one clique, but that there is a lot more overlapping. Top Left: One of the best times to see groups coming together is at lunch, where most eat with basically the same group daily. One way students separate themselves from the rest of the student body is by pressing the limits of the dress code, as these juniors did at the Ring Dance.

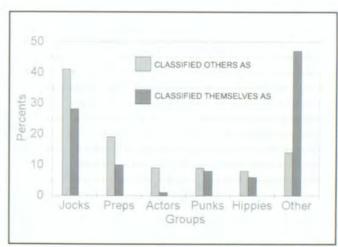

and problematic event, promoting elitism and stereotypes, something that has been fought hard against at RHS in recent years.

The way that students view the cliques is for the most part the same as they really are, with a few exceptions. In a poll of approximately 10% of the student body, students assessed the percentages of each clique in the student body. as well as reporting their own affiliations, and where they thought problems lay among the groups.

The students polled thought that the jocks made up 41% of the student body, preps 19%, Actors and punks 9% each, hippies were 6%, and the remaining 14% either belonged to a different group or were some mix of the five. Based on their own assessments of where they fit in, though, the students showed the real statistics to be slightly different, with the jocks at only 28%, actors at a dismal 1%, and the mixed category at 47%.

As far as problems go, the freshman polled said the biggest problems came from the jocks and were directed at most everyone, the sophomores and the juniors reported the conflict between the jocks and the punks, and the seniors said the problems lay between the jocks and the hippies.

Despite these reports, however, some students and faculty do not see the cliques as a problem such as Mr. Mike Heringer who remarked, "The fact that we call ourselves a community hints that we aren't clique people or perceive ourselves as such." Story by Alex Gamble Rockhurst High School's mission is to support academics across the curriculum, and to give personalized instruction to students who need clarification for homework and concepts covered in the classroom.

There is a minimum of ten hours of training for those working in the Center. The tutors not only give assistance to those in need, they also train others to be on the same level.

s the seniors finished the last of their finals and cleaned out their lockers ready to go out into the world and live what they learned through their Rockhurst experiences, all eyes turned to the junior class to step up and fill their place as leaders and role models in the Rockhurst community.

To officially mark the transition of the Class of 2002 from a junior class to the senior class, a special Iunior Leadership Mass was held. With parents in attendance and Fr. Gary Menard, S.J., presiding, the homily of this Mass was a slide show of pictures of the entire original Class of 2002 as they looked freshman year, set to contemporary music.

"Before we look into the future it is good to look into the past and see how much the Junior Class has grown and changed in three years," commented Fr. Menard.

Later in the Mass Fr. Thomas Pesci, S.J., blessed and distributed class rings and pins.

"[The blessing was to] pray that these rings and pins will always remind the seniors of their leadership role at RHS and in the Greater Kansas City area," said Fr. Menard. "RHS is counting on

The next evening, the seniors continued the celebration of their new responsibility at the Junior Ring Dance, at the Arcadian in Overland Park.

Prom gives opportunity to perform class actions

The last official social gathering for the class of 2001 was Prom held at the Rose Theater and at the Double Tree Hotel of Overland Park.

At Pre-Prom, the seniors and their dates gathered in the Rose Theater for formal portraits and to be introduced in front of the crowd of parents and friends. After that, nearly 200 couples headed off to the DoubleTree for dinner and dancing.

According to Andrew Mallow, senior class vice president, and Mr. Mike Heringer, the SGA faculty moderator, the Prom was a great success and it was the perfect ending to the senior classes' four years.

"It was an awesome experience," senior Benton Keatley said. "Everybody looked great and had a good time."

The ballroom was decorated in traditional RHS blue and white, with flowers and balloons as well as ice sculptures of the school crest and of a Hawklet.

"The ballroom looked awesome," senior Mike Knopke said. "It must have taken an incredible amount of time and effort. It couldn't have looked better."

"It cost $100 to go and that covered dinner, dancing, decorations, and the entertainment," senior Chris Anton said. "It might have been a little expensive, but it was a great time and well worth the money. It put a great end to my career at the Rock."

New title of 'Alumni' bestowed upon class of 209 seniors wo hundred and nine Rockhurst seniors crossed the stage at the 85th annual Commencement Exercises held in Municipal Auditorium on May 20, taking the last step of their journey through RHS.

Michael Nigro, the 2001 recipient of the Carl G. Kloster, S.J., Special "R" Award, delivered the Commencement Address. He reminisced about the four years the seniors had completed together, and called on them not to look upon the day as an end of their Rockhurst careers, but as the beginning of an opportunity to put to use the skills that they learned at RHS.

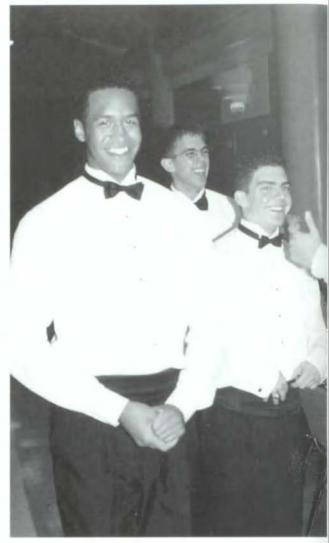

At the Baccalaureate Mass prior to the Commencement Ceremony, The Rev. Thomas A. Pesci, S.J., RHS President, delivered a homily about the old adage, "to whom much is given, more is expected," to encourage the seniors to use the things they learned at Rockhurst to benefit others as they venture out into the world.

At the end of the mass, Nick Taylor, Brian Schroeder, Jeff Newby, and Ian Merrigan each discussed one of the four years that they had completed, remembering important events and the feelings of those times.

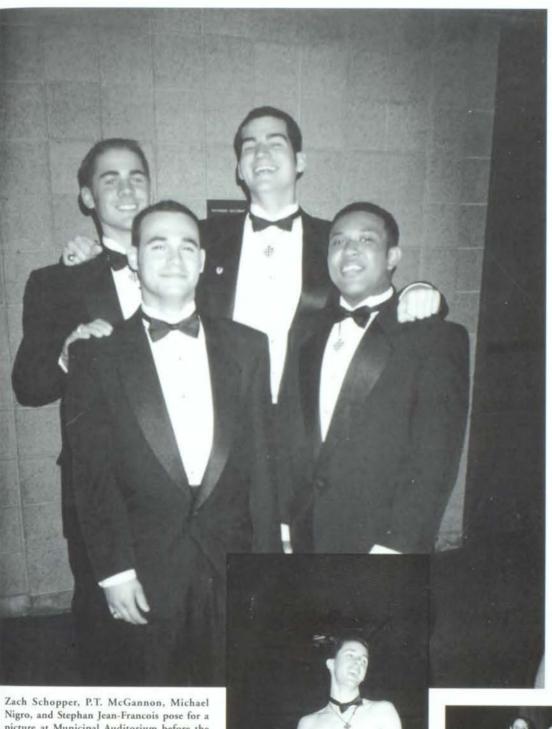

After mass, the seniors traveled to the Grand Ballroom in Bartle Hall to enjoy a brunch with their families and friends, before returning to Municipal Auditorium, ending their time as Rockhurst students, and beginning their lifelong tenure as Rockhurst alumni.

Mr. Mike Kern and Mr. Joe Delehunt prepare to send Mike Knopke and Tom Komoroski on stage to accept their diplomas. Mitch Paone and Matt Hoefer joke around with Fr. Mark Daues as the seniors gathered before mass.

Samuel S. Davidson

Congratulation, Sammy D!!

Being a part of your growth has truly been one of God's greatest gifts. We are so proud! Believe in God....believe in your family...believe in yourself. We are always here for you.

Love From Mom and Sara

We remember when you were our little boy, an extension of our very being! Our every waking moment belonged to you. One evening when we called you to dinner you came to the table all grown up. Where did all the time in-between go? Suddenly we were to let you go! Now we shall always call you our son, but in our hearts you will always be our little boy. Congratulations! Colophon

The 2001 Edition of the Quarry Yearbook was published entirely by a first year Yearbook class with the help of a first year photography class. Editorial positions were filled from the yearbook class after an application and selection process. All layout and design was accomplished on six Power Mac G-3s and one Power Mac G-4 using Adobe Pagemaker 6.5. Approximately 40% of the photos were taken digitally with an Olympus Camedia C-3030 Digital Camera with 3.3 megapixal resolution. Many other photos taken with conventional 35-mm totally adjustable cameras were digitized with a Polaroid Sprintscan 4000 negative scanner. Adobe Photoshop 6.0 was used to manipulate all digital photos. 1050 books with 304 pages were printed and bound at the Herff Jones Company, 6015 Travis Lane, Shawnee Mission, KS. Assistance was provided by Mrs. Nancy Hall and Julie Bogart. The book was completed on June 12 for delivery on or about September 10, so that the entire academic year is included.

Eric Noblet

Eric, we are all very proud of you. Congratulations. As you continue to succeed in life, know that those who love you will always be there for you. Follow your dreams.

Love, Mom, Dad and Stephanie t the completion of another cycle, more young men are turned out into the world with the hopes that they have become something better than what they were at their entrance into these halls. And while their journey is still not yet complete, they are well on their way to becoming real men for others with hearts filled with compassion and kindness. It is hoped that they are taking what they've learned here and using it in practical ways to help make others' lives better, richer, and more joyful. They are filled with hopes to go and set the world on fire.
