*“A brave Southeast Knight Loveth
Chivalry, Truth, Honor, Freedom, and fair Courtesy”*

For twenty-seven years, Mr. Harry McMillan instilled the meaning and tradition of these words into the lives of countless Knights and Ladies. He was constantly devoted to keeping Southeast on top, and his first interest was always for her welfare. He gloried in her triumphs and defended her honor against any opposition. In return, the Castle gave Mr. McMillan all its happiness, victories and devotion. Mr. McMillan is Southeast, and Southeast is Mr. McMillan. Thus, we honor the greatest Knight of all.

Nobility

Officials Lead Castle Endeavors

Last fall Castle doors opened to Mr. William D. Evans as he began his first year here as acting principal.

Before coming to Southeast, Mr. Evans was a family relations teacher at Northeast, counselor, vice-principal and principal at Westport.

Always admiring the Castle and its impressive surroundings, he began at Southeast with the highest respect for her. After a year he has come to value her traditions and spirit, her Knights and Ladies.

Mr. George R. Powell has served Southeast for more years than any other administrator. During his first few years here, Mr. Powell taught physics and aeronautics while serving as vice-principal. Through the years he has been closely connected with each senior class, while playing a vital part in Castle life.

Mr. Berle Adams, vice-principal, has been well known to Southeast students for many years. Except for four years in the Air Force, Mr. Adams has been here since 1940 as a math teacher, basketball coach and, since 1963, vice-principal. His main duty is to serve as advisor of sophomores and juniors.

As assistant to the principal this year, Mr. William Herron advised freshmen and oversaw building security. Before this he was the football coach at Manual and, in 1963, was honored here as Coach of the Year. His favorable impression of the students then has been reinforced after a year at Southeast.

One of the thousands of student records brings a smile to registrar Ruth Robinson's face.

Handling endless collections keeps Dorothy Cox, school accountant, constantly occupied.

Assistants Provide

A capable office staff is essential to a well-organized school. Here at Southeast two secretaries and a registrar keep attendance, record grades, write letters and prepare transcripts. In addition to this staff, the school accountant has charge of all collections.

The school nurse has perhaps the most versatile job in the school. Although daily filing and paper work take up a good deal of her time, she often has to cope with students' fevers, headaches, sprains and an occasional broken bone.

Although the library staff isn't part of the faculty, it does serve a vital part in the academic life at Southeast. While keeping track of 17,000 books, these ladies assist students in everything from finding the origin of an unusual word to securing precise information for a research paper.

Librarians Margaret Hart and Adele Toller enjoy a free moment before the 3:15 rush.

Mrs. Eleanor Taylor, counselors' secretary, must keep the student files in order.

Giving physical examinations to members of the gym classes is part of the job of Mrs. Eugenie Beaulieu, school nurse.

Vital Services

Miss Isabella Pattison and student office worker Anne Birch look over the absentee slips.

As attendance clerk, Mrs. Evelyn Hill must use the telephone often.

Counseling Service Aids Students, Community

Mrs. Margaret Morgan transfers a sophomore's scholarship points to his permanent record.

Preparing students for graduation and college are primary concerns of Mr. Vern Sinclair, senior counselor.

Assisting students in problems affecting school life is the duty of the counselors. Each of our four counselors advises one class from the time it enters Southeast until it graduates. One of the major responsibilities is to assist each student in making realistic plans for his future.

Junior counselor, Mrs. Thelma Watson, busily reduces a stack of necessary written work.

As freshman counselor, Mrs. Rose McMaster helps students plan their courses for the first year at Southeast.

Mrs. Eleanor Taylor serves in a double role as IBM and counselors' secretary. The combined duties of these positions include all paper work and correspondence required in the counseling office.

Mr. Nathan Roitman holds a unique position here. As community agent, he acts as an advisory element in the operation of Southeast. One of his goals for this year was the establishment of an advisory council of elected students. The purpose of this group was to discuss personal and group differences.

In the opinion of some, the employees on the fourth floor of Southeast perform the most important task of all. These twenty-two cafeteria workers, headed by cafeteria manager Mrs. Thelma Ward, arrive long before the school opens to students in the morning. From that time, they prepare and serve hundreds of meals and wash thousands of dishes before they leave seventh hour.

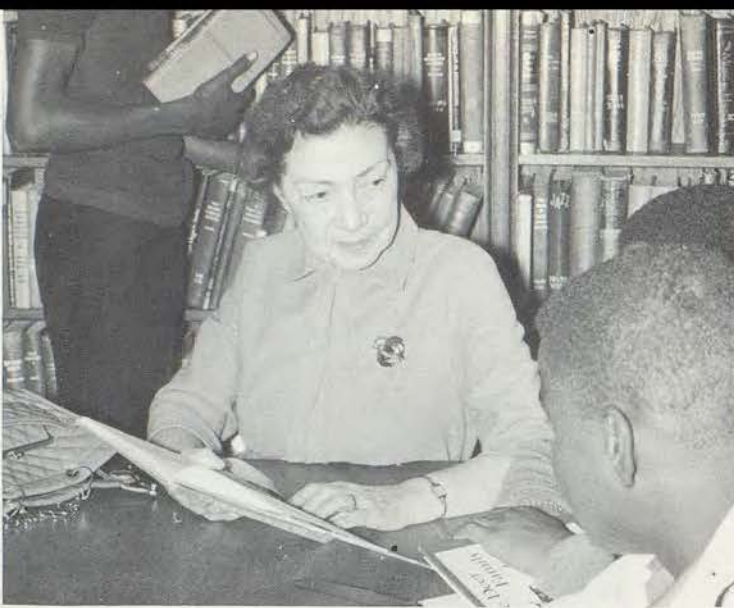

Mr. Nathan Roitman pauses in his work as community agent.

Gladys Peck, Mrs. Leona Carlson, Mrs. Thelma Ward; Row three: Mrs. Ocella Taylor, Mrs. Mary Ruth Hall, Mrs. F. Hamilton, Mrs. Evelyn Keith, Mrs. Ferne Thompson, Mrs. Dorothy Wyly, Mrs. Barbara Summers, Mrs. Nora Becker.

Miss Vestal Maze reviews books for good reading with some of her English students.

Mrs. Carol Spady, Crusader advisor, questions her junior English class over Giants in the Earth.

Miss Anna Mae Gates explains points of grammar to her English class.

Miss Mary Margaret Johnson listens as one of her English students answers a question.

Courses Encompass All Aspects of English

Miss Rebecca Birkhead strives to instill basic grammar concepts in her students.

English classes study a broad scope of subjects including the basic concepts of English grammar through an understanding of Shakespeare's plays. Teachers hope that by enrolling in English, students will learn how to communicate and express themselves better both orally and in composition.

Freshmen deal mainly in composition and read selections from a variety of authors for a general English background. Julius Caesar and books like Silas Marner occupy most of the sophomores' time when they aren't busy writing and comprehending essays and poems. Junior English courses are a survey of American literature. The classes study short stories, plays and poems of such authors as Mark Twain, Robert Frost and Thornton Wilder. Primarily interested in literature, seniors extensively study Hamlet, early English literature and at the end of the year prepare a research paper.

Listening to pupil response is one of Mr. Jeffrey Harryman's functions as an English teacher.

Totaling grade points with several students, Mrs. Cecilia Roberts finishes another grade period.

Mrs. Joyce DeLoney prepares to discuss a grammar point with her freshman English class.

Mrs. Linda Buckle discusses essays written by members of the new humanities course.

As the Tower advisor, Mrs. Joy Clumsky must spend a great deal of time conferring with the staff.

Mrs. Anita Berkowitz supervises individual recitation in Spanish.

Mrs. Patty Zschoche gives a student help with a German novel.

Mrs. Mary Roll explains to her Latin students the operation of the seiging tower used by invading armies.

Pronunciation, a vital part of speaking French, occupies much of Mrs. Elizabeth Coulter's time.

Modern Labs Assist Students in Language Comprehension

Four foreign languages are offered at Southeast to students who have an adequate knowledge of English and wish to accept the rewarding challenge of Latin, Spanish, French or German.

Latin is a cultural course as well as a language course. Through the translation of classical literature and the study of ancient Roman society, students develop a basic understanding of man's history.

Spanish and French, as well as German, are taught as conversational languages. With an extensive language lab and coordinated tapes and books, students achieve a mastery of the language itself through usage. This method of study is based on the ALM program in which conversation is the stressed phase of a language.

Biologists Experiment, Observe, Conclude

Mr. Richard Witte prepares to show a film on sea life to his biology class.

Biology and human science deal with life in all its forms. BSCS biology, taught in all classes, stresses advanced experimentation. Classification and dissection play an important role and are facilitated by precision equipment such as microscopes and slides.

Human science deals primarily with health and hygiene and provides a thorough understanding of the body as a complex machine.

Composing a reply to a student's question is Mr. Phillip Truby, human science teacher.

Using a model of a flower, Mrs. Dorothy Holloway explains the process of pollination.

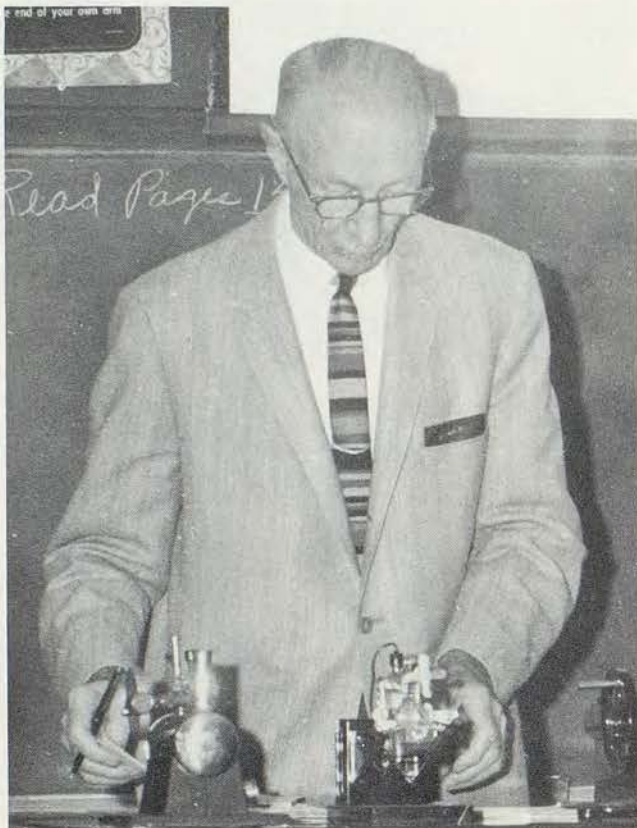

Mrs. Ruth Whiteside explains the merits of good personal hygiene.

Mrs. Marion Cornelius directs the dissection of a frog in her first year biology class.

Physics, Chemistry, Math Challenge Scholars

Physics teacher Mr. Leonard Rice checks papers behind a fortress of steam engines.

Mr. Roy Becklean shows the lighter side of math while explaining an arithmetic problem.

Mrs. Theresa Bauman explains molar equations to a chemistry class.

Mr. Leo Lazzo patiently explains an algebra problem for a first-year algebra student.

Checking attendance, Mr. John Reid prepares the next lesson for his geometry class.

Chemistry and physics — the physical sciences — and mathematics are closely related. In the math department, students develop the ability to reason deductively and to organize ideas effectively. In this way, the student is able to analyze a scientific problem and come to a logical conclusion.

The most recent additions to the departments are CHEM Study and modern math. CHEM Study, an honor course last year, was taught in all chemistry classes this year. Both innovations train the student to discover the "why" and to interpret relationships for himself. CHEM Study uses laboratory work to gain these ends.

Math classes range from general math to college freshman math and encompass arithmetic, algebra, geometry, trigonometry and calculus. General science opens windows on all areas of the sciences in an attempt to give the student a broad understanding before specialization.

In the privacy of his deserted classroom Mr. Vernon Griggs looks over a test for the next day.

Amused by an overheard comment, Mr. Richard Ritterhaler pauses in the grading of algebra papers.

Miss Mary Ballinger smiles at a remark from a baffled trigonometry student.

With a world history book propped against his briefcase, Mr. Robert Sweeney assigns reports.

Mr. E. Allen Smith explains a detail of the text to his senior social studies class.

History and Modern Problems Concern Social Studies Classes

The goal of social studies teachers is to teach students the value of respecting an individual's rights, living with others peacefully and knowing and fulfilling their responsibilities.

Besides the traditional history courses, Southeast offers two social studies classes which study modern problems and means of expression.

Under Mrs. Linda Buckle's direction, the humanities class — initiated this year — examined subjects such as art, music and anthropology. Frequent group discussion was accentuated by films, lectures and field trips.

Family relations is designed to help students understand their parental home better as well as plan for their future family. Other topics include etiquette, insurance and child psychology.

Miss Elizabeth Pugh explains some terms to her world history class.

Holding a soap carving, Mr. Cecil Patterson discusses careers in art with a citizenship class.

Mr. Clifford Carpenter listens to a student's explanation of the causes of erosion.

On the effects of geography on a country's development, Miss Willa Williams leads a discussion in her international relations class.

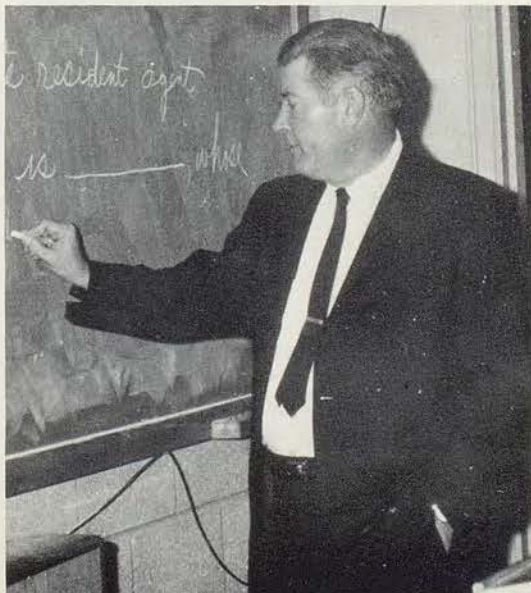

Mr. Cecil Coombe plans future activities for his C.O.E. class.

Mrs. Eva Bergstrom, family relations teacher, ponders the validity of a student's response.

Citizenship students in Mr. Ruell Reddoch's classes study city and local government officials.

Miss Mildred Campbell explains her grading of a citizenship test.

Using examples of student work, Miss Sherryl Knox explains a concept of art.

Mr. Paul Hester evaluates a drawing by one of his students.

Fine Arts Department Develops Personal Talents, Creativity

Through classes in the fine arts, students learn to express themselves and to discover basic characteristics of personality.

Speech classes offer experiences in all phases of speech-making and the theatre. They give students necessary confidence and poise in addressing a group in addition to a knowledge of stage drama.

Art students strive to achieve creativity by expressing themselves through the varied media of the visual arts. These cover the wide range from charcoal and paints to wax and glass.

The presentations of the music department are important parts in many Southeast productions. The band and orchestra are often featured; they also provide accompaniments. The concert choir and the various choruses perform in civic activities as well as at Southeast festivals.

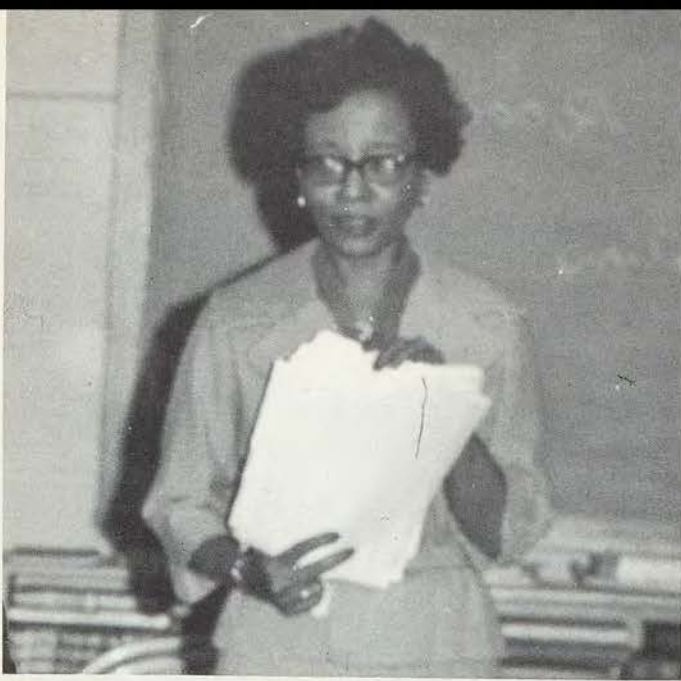

Mr. Ronald Brink demonstrates the use of good gestures to his speech students.

Mrs. Eleanor Brown smiles at a student's original monologue presentation.

Mrs. Wilma Johnson returns test papers to her speech class.

Mrs. Veva Koenig, accompanist, prepares to play the school song during assembly.

Interpreting musical selections is part of the job of Mr. LaVern Cable, our choral director.

Pleased with the result of weeks of practice, Mr. Ben Markley directs the orchestra.

Mr. Barry Biddle develops his students' artistic talents.

Specialization Furthers Manual Skills,

Mr. Laurence Maupin describes the proper way to execute a left turn.

Drafting, wood, metal, art metal and electricity classes compose the industrial arts department. By providing an opportunity to develop manual skills, these courses are often responsible for future jobs and hobbies.

In wood, metal and electricity, students produce numerous projects ranging from common household articles to furniture of commercial quality. Modern workshops are furnished with the most recent machinery.

Unlike the other industrial arts classes, art metal is often taken by girls. In this class they create rings, lavaliers and charms by using their skills in cutting, soldering and buffing.

After learning the fundamentals of drafting, students can enroll in technical, mechanical or architectural drafting, where they learn more specialized skills. Some of the advanced skills learned include drawing house plans and machinery assembly.

Driver's education teaches students to consider driving a privilege rather than a right. To be safe and responsible drivers, they must have a knowledge of Missouri laws and the ability to think quickly.

Mr. Guy Burton explains the vital parts of an engine.

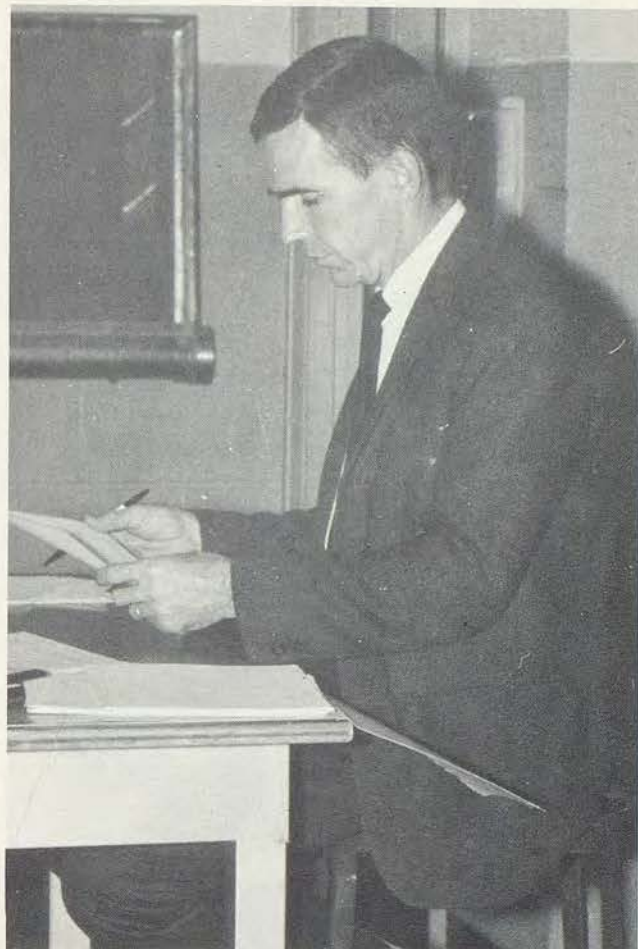

Mr. Everett Hanan points out different shapes in traffic signs.

Interest in Hobbies Fostered

Mr. Bernard Barisas assists a student in the use of a spray gun.

Mr. Thomas Montgomery checks over some papers from his Electricity I class.

Mr. Paul Blair, metal teacher, instructs pupils in the use of the lathe.

Mr. Curtis Fritchman, Crusader photography advisor, points out an error during his drafting class.

Home Economics and Commerce

Classes Stress Practicality

Mrs. Jeanne Finter explains the parts of a cookie press to her homemaking class.

Miss Eileen Anderson supervises the preparation of a model luncheon.

Mrs. Dorothy Holmes instructs a student in one of the finer points of sewing.

Home economics and commerce provide students with practical skills which aid them in their homes and businesses.

Within the home economics department foods, clothing, senior home economics, child development and home decoration are taught. In foods girls learn sanitary and safe work habits in the kitchen and how to plan inexpensive yet nutritional meals. Clothing classes provide the opportunity for girls to have an attractive yet inexpensive wardrobe; they teach sewing skills ranging from making a simple skirt to tailoring lightweight coats and suits. Senior home economics gives a girl with no previous homemaking experience a glimpse of many different fields of home economics. The areas studied include foods, clothing, home decoration, home nursing, personality, figure and diet.

Business, accounting, stenography, typing and clerical practice comprise the commerce department. Besides teaching students the basic skills required in business, these courses provide an insight into the role of the business administrator.

Mr. Arnold Caviar emphasizes a point to his commerce students.

Dictating a business letter, Miss Louise Mosman tests her shorthand class.

Applying what she teaches everyday, Mrs. Hazel Turnbow transcribes a letter.

Mrs. Mary Jones gives individual help to a student in typing.

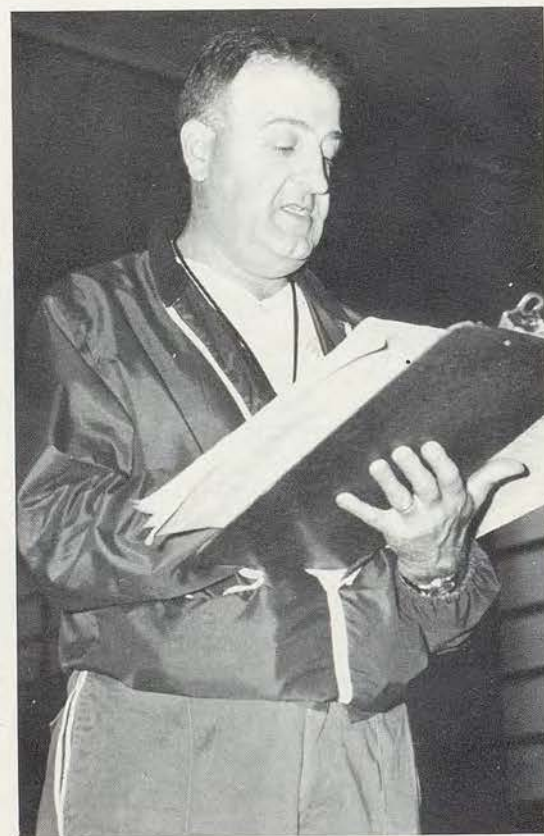

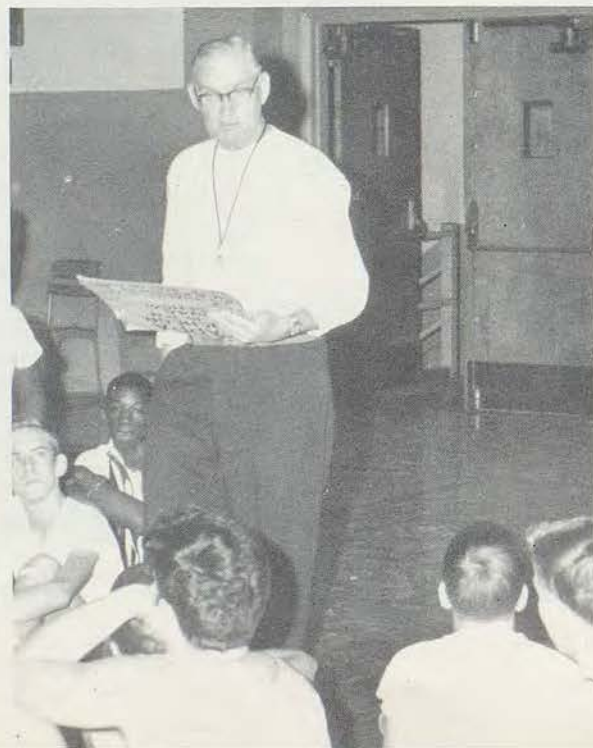

Mr. Nicholas Gerhardt emphasizes a fundamental of football to his gym class.

Sgt. Major Kenneth Storms pauses as he writes a letter of recommendation for a cadet.

Physical Education and Promote Cooperation,

Mr. Jesse Cross records scores between games of a basketball tournament.

Mr. Clifford Cornelius assigns teams during a physical education class.

Miss Sara Gaggens explains the fundamentals of girls' basketball.

ROTC Develop Skills, Character, Citizenship

Through classes in ROTC and physical education, students develop physical as well as intellectual talents.

In both the boys' and girls' physical education departments, basic skills and techniques of game play are mastered. Both girls' and boys' classes play such sports as basketball, softball and swimming. However, while the boys are playing football or rugby and running track, the girls develop the grace and poise of the balance beam and floor exercise.

The Reserve Officer's Training Corps provides boys with physical training and a study of subjects as varied as first aid, map reading and weapon operation. The goals of this course include the development of character and citizenship within the student and the ability to both lead and follow others.

Mrs. Brenda Holbrook reaches to complete a volleyball set-up.

Mrs. Vicki Scott demonstrates a step in a floor exercise routine.

Pageantry

Induction Reveals

"In the name of Southeast, I dub you Knight. Be loyal, brave and true." These words mark the climax of the annual Induction ceremony as an outstanding senior boy is knighted. "The Making of a Knight" is a unique way of introducing freshmen and other new students to life at the Castle. Cast in a setting of medieval splendor and pageantry, the traditions and standards of Southeast are displayed throughout the program.

As the story unfolds, two freshman students wish to enter the Castle as Pages. They view, during an evening in the King's court, tableaux of all facets of school life. A guildmaster explains that in their four years at Southeast, they will develop independence and wisdom — the ability to think and choose for themselves. They are encouraged to be loyal to the school, devoted to its purpose and faithful to its rules.

This year the Induction was presented October 5 in two programs: a morning assembly for freshmen and an evening performance for upperclassmen and parents.

Kathy Whan and Danny Porterfield reign as King and Queen.

In a skit presented for the King's court, elevator operator Odies Wright informs Lord Ronald where "silken ribbons may be found."

Lord Ronald, Mike Triplett, scatters ribbons as salesgirls Sharon Solomon and Susie Junod look on in anguish.

Medieval Background

Janet Bell and Daryl Alnutt represent the entering freshman class.

Knight Bruce Eston receives the helmet, representing scholarship, from Donna Newton.

The traditional freedom speech is delivered by Miss Liberty, Linda Winemiller.

Kathy Butler, Diane Shelley and La Fern Washington depict a crisis in class in the home economics tableau.

Laurie Holland dances to modern jazz for the King's delight.

Will Clark, an American astronaut, converses with Mary Feeley of Knockgenik.

Doug Berry and Terry Hipsher, Knockgenian hippies, view the ages through a time machine.

Knockgenians Entangle Bizarre

When the Astro-Knights lost contact with Earth they were sure their adventures had come to a tragic end — but they had only begun. This year's Knightlites production, "A Knight In Space", brought to life the ship-wrecked Astro-Knights and their newly acquired companions, the inhabitants of Knockgenik.

Several traditional segments of the program, with unique touches added, provided a variety of entertainment. Beta Club presented a satire on government, and Senior Couples depicted periods of history from pre-historic to the future. The Knightlites Stage Band performed as in years past and also accompanied dance and vocal solos.

Portraying Gremlins, Meteorites and Falling Stars, numerous dancers and vocalists accented the theme. Comical dialogues developed the strange characters of Knockgenik, including a henpecked king and a mechanical astronomer, complete with his time machine. With the aid of eerie lighting effects and glowing costumes, the cast of the production captivated each night's audience.

Pat Conner and Jerry Whalen portray a Stone Age couple during senior couples.

Having just landed, astronauts Jim Fusso, Dan Porterfield and Doug Berry make plans.

Astro-Knights In Adventures

Mercury's Magic Feet, the senior boys' dance line, performs in perfect unison.

Dr. Fields, principal of Central Junior High School, speaks during Negro History Week.

Area AFS students discuss their countries' customs on AFS day.

Assemblies, Projects, Athletic

Besides classwork and books, assemblies, dances and athletic events accented Castle life.

Assemblies included a foreign exchange student question and answer period, Round Table installations and music productions. As well as these general assemblies, a melodrama was presented for the art and drama classes. English and speech classes heard several special speakers.

Projects sponsored by various groups provided many after-school activities. Mixers, plays or club meetings kept the building occupied nearly every afternoon.

Pep assemblies and athletic events held a major position as every year. Throughout the various sports seasons, attendance at events occupied many students' time.

Faculty cheerleaders lead fans at the Joster-Faculty basketball game.

Newly-installed Round Table officers relax after an assembly.

Extra Crusader pictures are sorted by interested students.

Events Occupy Knights

A hero and his sister dominate a melodramatic presentation by the Karnes Theater in a special assembly.

After a long series of routines, a cheerleader pauses for a glass of water.

*Christmas Spirit,
Festivities Evident
As Holidays Approach*

Santa makes festivities complete with a generous, "Merry Christmas to all!"

The girls' octet sings an appropriate selection for the annual Christmas assembly.

Members of the concert choir give a rousing performance of Handel's "Messiah".

With the winter chill come plans of Christmas, and this year holiday festivities were abundant at Southeast. A week before the big day, a seasonal pep assembly was complete with a visit by Santa. For the first time, carols were sung on the front steps of the building one evening before the holiday vacations. The following day began traditionally with carols sung in the rotunda before school. During a double assembly later in the morning, choirs, choruses and instrumental groups filled the auditorium with Christmas music. With individually decorated classrooms and showcases, the Castle presented a holiday atmosphere to all.

Braving the cold weather, brass players provide accompaniment to an evening of caroling.

Solemn chords are intoned by the brass ensemble during the Christmas assembly.

Cheerleader Pat Conner thinks carefully before reciting her Christmas list to Santa (Jerry Whalen).

On election day, posters cover Castle walls and ceilings.

Johnson, DeHart Capture Election Returns

Jim Kanally and Sally Birch futilely attempt to persuade Mr. Floyd Wright to vote for their candidate.

For the first time, anyone who obtained fifty signatures could compete in mid-year Round Table primaries. The top five were then chosen to run for president and vice-president. After a day of speech-making and excitement, Bill DeHart and Glenwood Johnson were chosen vice-president and president, respectively.

Home room election results are deposited by Larry Scott.

Mike Jones succeeds in obtaining the fiftieth signature for his petition from Ginger Young.

Glenwood Johnson thanks the student body for its support in the election.

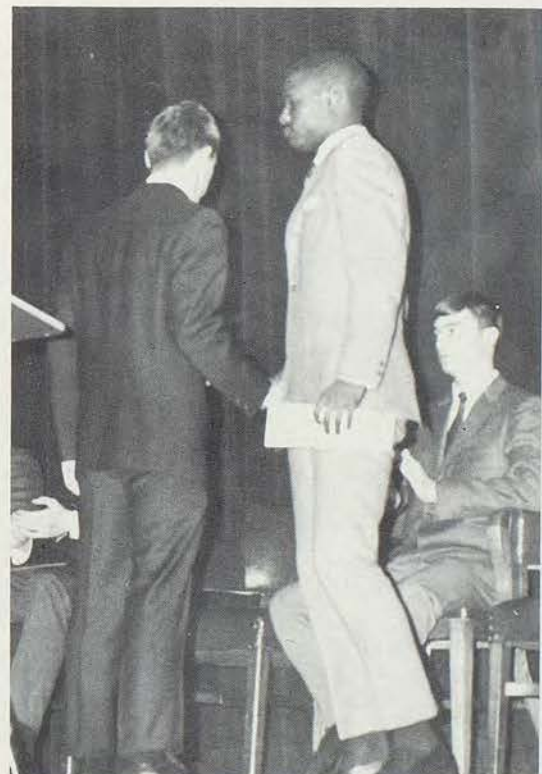

A desire to unite the student body is expressed by Bill DeHart.

Campaign manager Gary Charde greets his candidate, "Comrade" Paul Cowing.

Bruce Eston prepares to speak after an introduction by Carter Beck.

"David and Lisa" Cast Presents Modern Psychological Drama

"David and Lisa," this year's Spring Play, depicted the life of two mentally disturbed students and their slow, painful recovery from their emotional problems.

David, who cannot tolerate physical contact, meets Lisa, a schizophrenic. At Berkeley, where they meet, they receive psychiatric help. When Lisa is herself, she talks in childish rhymes; but when she is Muriel, her other self, she writes everything and will not talk to anyone. After several complications, David and Lisa finally overcome their emotional problems.

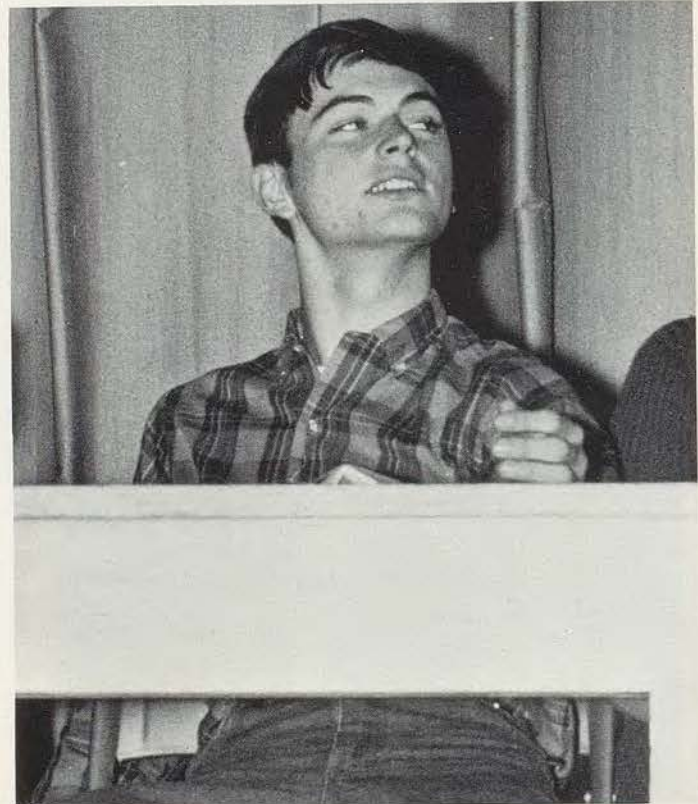

Abstract scenery of black and white silhouettes complemented the play's modern realism.

In an English class Carlos, a hoodlum, relates a story of a rumble.

Lisa questions David in her childish rhymes.

John, an instructor in the school, teaches the uncommunicative Muriel.

Two mentally disturbed students at Berkeley play a game of chess.

At a group therapy session, students discuss their mental disorders.

Penthouse Play

Challenges Wits

The Penthouse Play this year was Norman Williams' Chinese comedy, "A Battle of Wits."

The play begins as Silver Lotus returns home for the first time after her wedding. She is very discontented with her fat and brutal husband, whom she did not meet until her wedding day. From an old childhood friend, Sun Chu, Silver Lotus learns of her husband's unusual demise: he was killed by a man falling from a tree. In the remainder of the play, a battle of wits occurs as Silver Lotus and Sun Chu try to arrange their marriage.

Odies Wright, student director, gives advice to the principal characters.

Patty Breitag, narrator, relates the action of the play.

Lotus' parents, Donna Valenzuela and Sam Geolas, have an emotion-packed argument.

The Categories Team is composed of five students who compete for this honor in preliminary contests. Under the leadership of Miss Mary Ballinger, these people spent many hours practicing to compete on the television show "Categories." They met weekly after school to question each other and have spontaneous response sessions. Participation on the team requires a ready knowledge of a variety of subjects. This year the categories team defeated Southwest by a score of 20-18.

Categories Team Defeats Southwest; Boys' State Offers Government Participation

Missouri Boys' State is an annual conference held at Central Missouri State College. It is sponsored by the American Legion to teach Missouri boys the responsibilities and functions of city, state and federal government. The boys are chosen by their school records and interviews with local representatives. While there, the boys are divided into two political parties to compete in elections at all levels of government. They attend classes in either executive, legislative or judicial branches.

Enthusiasm Sparks

Often this year the auditorium and boys' gym vibrated with cheers as the cheerleaders led pep assemblies.

Besides teaching new cheers and leading old ones, the cheerleaders presented appropriate skits. During these skits, the student body saw such strange things as Mr. Evans crying over the death of the Indians and a crucial operation on Southeast Spirit. At Halloween, a smoking witch's brew did wonders for some strange-looking football players, and at Christmas Santa paid a visit to the basketball team. At one assembly, unique touches were added to familiar cheers when boys substituted as cheerleaders.

Speakers were another highlight. Coaches, faculty members, players and guests from other schools helped to make the assemblies organized programs.

All these things combined in the pep assemblies to develop Southeast loyalty and respect as well as spirit.

Overcome with grief, Mr. William Evans mourns the death of the Southwest Indians.

Cheerleaders perform an operation on Southeast Spirit.

In the excitement of a cheer, students jump to their feet.

Cadets Honor ROTC

Queen Vickie Ellis

The ROTC queen candidates were nominated and voted on by Companies A and B and were presented in assembly with their escorts. During February the queen and her two princesses reigned over the city-wide Military Ball, along with the queens from other area units. Later in the year, the girls were present at Field Day and observed the cadets in drill.

Orchestra Provides Overtures,

The Castle was well represented in two outstanding musical organizations in the Kansas City area, the Youth Symphony and the Honors Band.

Joining Concert mistress Anita Hancks in the violin section of the Youth Symphony were Ruth Ann Breitag, Michelle Frohock and Muriel Frohock. Linda Large, Patty Breitag, Jim Booth, and John Sandgren played flute, clarinet, cornet and trombone respectively.

Taking part in the Honors Band this year were the following: Patty Breitag, Kathy Feeley, Ronald Hayes and Robert Simmons, clarinets; Pam Linwood, flute; Jim Booth, trumpet; John Sandgren, trombone; Jim Swaney, baritone; Earline Popek and Edwina Popek, alto clarinets; Curtis Ray, percussion; and Dan Shipley and Woody Austin, tuba.

During the year, they performed in the fall, Christmas and winter concerts and the Music Festival. They also presented overtures for Induction, Knightlites and the Spring Play.

This year the Truman High School orchestra participated with the Southeast orchestra in a clinic to improve their understanding of music. The orchestra also performed in a city orchestra contest and in the district contest at Warrensburg.

Under the guidance of Mr. Ben Markley, director, and Jeff Moore, drum major, the band spent long hours of marching practice before school. They worked diligently to prepare for autumn activities such as the American Royal Parade and KU Band Day.

Spirit was added to many football games by the performance of the band at the sidelines as well as their marching display on the field at half-time. Rain, cold and mud did not stop the band from presenting their traditional Homecoming presentation of "Let Me Call You Sweetheart".

In addition to their outside activities, the band performed in the Winter Concert, Music Festival, city and district contests as well as concerts at open house and at Southeast Junior.

In his second year as drum major, Jeff Moore again led the marching band.

The concert choir is a select group composed of students who possess musical ability and singing experience. Under the direction of Mr. LaVerne Cable, the choir performed at many school functions. During the fall and winter, the choir provided the finale for Knightlites and performed at the winter concert and the Christmas assembly. Spring activities included participating in the spring music festival and providing music at commencement.

Eight girls chosen from the concert choir comprise the girls octet. This year they performed at community functions as well as in many school activities.

Music Groups Benefit Through Performances

The stage band, under the direction of Jeff Moore, performs at an assembly.

The freshman and mixed choruses and the girls choir give students the fundamental skills necessary for singing in the advanced groups. All three groups performed in school musical programs during the year. In addition, the girls choir, a performing group, sang at various concerts throughout the year and participated in an all-city girls choir festival in the spring.

The stage band performed in several school programs during the year and participated in an all-city festival and a contest in Columbia. This was the first year the stage band has been organized to perform for the entire year.

The Round Table, Southeast's student governing body, is patterned after the Round Table of King Arthur's day. This organization strives to maintain the ideals and principles of a democracy. To allow each student a hand in the government of school activities, each home room elects a representative to voice the ideas and opinions of that home room at the meetings.

Each semester, the president and vice-president are elected by the entire student body, and other officers are elected among the representatives. They are installed in an impressive ceremony at the start of each semester.

This year, guided by co-sponsors Miss Louise Mosman, Mrs. Wilma Johnson and Mr. Clifford Carpenter, the Round Table sponsored many worthwhile activities. Among its accomplishments were placing suggestion boxes in home rooms, Christmas caroling and painting the aluminum trash cans. It was also the duty of the Round Table to find a home for next year's foreign exchange student.

Mr. Evans presents Dana Lerenberg the symbol of her office during the installation of officers.

Beta Activities Stress

"Let us lead by serving others." This is the motto of the Beta Club, Southeast's honor society. The club is open to students who have maintained a 3.0 grade average and a worthy citizenship record for five semesters.

Under the leadership of Mr. E. Allen Smith, the Betas serve the school and community in many ways. Their activities and projects this year included revising the Knight's handbook to be sold to freshmen and new students, tutoring students who needed help in academic subjects, decorating the showcase and ushering at commencement.

The highlight of this year's activities was the annual state convention held in St. Louis. Paul Cowing, elected last spring, presided. Clubs from all over Missouri exchanged ideas and learned from speeches concerning high ideals, leadership and service.

This year two assistant advisors, Mr. Jeffrey Harryman and Miss Anna Gates, were initiated into the club.

Outstanding achievement is rewarded at Southeast by membership in several honor societies.

Quill and Scroll consists of journalism students who have succeeded in having 200 lines of copy printed in their school newspaper. High school dramatists may gain membership in Thespians by earning points from participating in plays or on production committees. Each year the American Association of University Women forms its One Hundred Girls Club from the top five girls in each junior and senior class of the ten Kansas City public schools. Membership in the National Art Honor Society is based on an individual's submitted art work and must be renewed each year.

Feelings of excitement and determination dwelt within room 9 again this year as members of the Crusader staff strove to produce a bigger and better yearbook.

Work started on the 1968 Crusader before the school year began. A meeting of the staff was called last summer under the supervision of our new sponsor, Mrs. Carol Spady, at which the co-editors were selected. By September the general format of the book was planned, enabling the staff to begin work immediately.

Editors, business managers and photographers worked diligently the entire year to provide Southeast with an impressive Crusader preserving memories of Castle life as it was in 1968.

AFS Committee Welcomes Werner, Sponsors

As member-at-large on the Round Table, Werner receives a Knights' handbook from Mr. William Evans, principal.

Werner examines the traditions of chivalry as carved on the Round Table.

Dear Southeast,

As an American Field Service student I was able to spend this most eventful year in the United States. I thank the Southeast Knights and Ladies that they made this possible by inviting me to stay at their Castle.

This stay in the United States helped me to learn and understand many new things. I found out that people in America have many customs and habits different from those in my home country, Germany. But besides that, I also learned that people all over the world are basically alike. Despite differences in language and way of life, they all have similar problems, hopes and expectations. With this in mind, we should try to understand others—and to help this kind of understanding among nations is the purpose of the AFS.

I will never forget Southeast, its friendly people and all its activities, and I hope the Southeast school spirit in the future will be as great as it was this year.

Sincerely,

Werner Weck

An American's attempt to pronounce German words provides a moment of amusement for Werner.

Contests And Dances

Raising money for next year's foreign exchange student and creating a friendly atmosphere for Werner were the primary concerns of the American Field Service Committee. The Festival of Nations, assemblies, meetings and dances were some of the inter-school activities planned in cooperation with other schools. It also sponsored AFS Day, in which foreign exchange students visited Southeast and spoke in an assembly. Under the leadership of Mr. Clifford Carpenter, sponsor, and Donna Newton, student chairman, many money-making projects to finance next year's foreign exchange student were introduced. The committee held "Mr. Irresistible" and "Baby Doll" contests, in which Jerry Whalen and John Vento respectively were announced winners. The AFS Committee also sold mums for the football homecoming game and dance.

Donna Newton, chairman, discusses plans for a future dance.

Lectures, Films Describe Foreign Customs

The goal of the four foreign language clubs is to learn the customs and languages of the countries they study. Lectures, films and native songs and foods helped provide a realistic atmosphere.

Roman togas and eating habits were displayed by Dracone members who attended the annual Junior Classical League banquet. The French, German and Spanish clubs participated in Christmas activities. Pinatas, as well as German and French carols, were a part of the celebration. In addition to this, the members of Las Centinelas, the Spanish club, observed Pan-American Day with a banquet; the French club had its yearly spring dinner.

After a year in the club, students hope to have a better understanding of other cultures.

Penthouse, the drama club, increases appreciation of drama, while giving students experience in producing, directing, and acting. To become a member, students must earn points through participation in school productions.

To attain membership in Dorians, the art club, students must submit a display of their artwork. This year's activities included trips through Hall's and the Kaleidoscope Shop.

FTA, FHA Provide Vocational Experience

FHA— Front row: Wilda Williams, Algy Giles, Mary Kennedy, Farlin Thomas, Karen Shafer; Row two: Mrs. Dorothy Holmes, Carolyn Dillon, Penny Honsinger, Donna Rock, Donna Schnekanbery, Cindy Davis; Row three: Kyna Perkins, Ardenia Whitehead, Christie Seigler, Marla Spaco, Pam Brown.

Vocational backgrounds in homemaking and teaching are introduced to members of FHA and FTA. FHA is designed to help not only those who plan to be professional homemakers, but also those who will be housewives. Members of FTA learn different teaching techniques by helping teachers with routine tasks. Teachers often speak to the club about teaching situations at the elementary and secondary school levels.

BIOLOGY CLUB—Front row: Mack Spencer, Marian Goodding, Vessie Jones, Teresa Acton, Delores Ashlock, Hitomi Ineyard; Row two:

Jerry Thomas, Eddie Law, Kathy Butler, Kathy Rathbun, Colleen Brenner, Judy Camp, Algy Giles.

Projects, Field Trips Attract Biologists

A microscope reveals fascinating secrets to Hitomi Ineyard, Anton Monroe and Kathy Butler.

The biology club is composed of any students who are interested in biology. Through participation in this group, they are able to develop projects and further their scientific knowledge to a greater extent than when limited to their daily class periods.

Primary activities of the club are its speakers and unusual field trips. Among their past meetings were a planned program on bats and an outing to view cadavers at the College of Osteopathy.

Anton Monroe and Donna Valenzuela perform an experiment with a volumeter.

COE Combines Classroom Knowledge With Business Opportunities

Under the supervision of Mr. Cecil Coombe, students enrolled in COE combine classroom knowledge with business skills developed on the job. In the classroom, students learn about personalities, consumer education and various business organizations. The student's personality and interests determine the job he will get. COE jobs vary from nurse's aids and grocery stockers to key punch operators. Besides earning extra money, invaluable business experience is gained from these jobs.

Rex Butler attempts to sell shoes and a matching handbag during his afternoon job as a COE employee.

Row three: Gloria Lindenman, Rick Empson, Hartzell Gray, Ken Pepperdine, Cindy Thompson.

Marsha Walker, Dianne Dillon and Alma Taylor prepare toys which will be sent to Vietnam and various hospitals.

Sponsored by Mrs. Ruth Whiteside, Mrs. Dorothy Holloway, Mrs. Eugenie Beaulieu and Mr. Jesse Cross, the Junior Red Cross served the community and school by working on worthwhile projects. One main project was the filling of Christmas stockings. Home rooms contributed the items to the Red Cross, who then delivered the filled stockings to the Veteran's Hospital.

A newly organized group at Southeast this year is the Southeast Advisory Council for Human Relations. The council is composed of twenty students whose aim it is to discuss and confront problems relating to Southeast as an integrated school. Through discussions and meetings they attempted to promote an understanding of intergroup and interpersonal relations. Members of the council presented panel discussions for many civic, youth and church organizations throughout the year.

The Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps at Southeast is an outstanding group. Besides meeting the requirements of this type of course in class work, weapon manipulation, and physical education, the two companies and the individual exhibition groups contend for city-wide honors.

Throughout the year, ROTC units are inspected and rated according to their mastery of military skills and facts. The school rated highest for the entire year receives the Kansas City Star Award, which has been awarded to Southeast for the past six years.

In addition to bringing honor to Southeast, the individual service groups serve the school and community in a worthwhile manner.

Jousters Encourage Athletic Interests

Girls who have earned an "M" average in school, an "S" average in gym and an intramural award qualify for Jousters. The club hopes to promote better sportsmanship, an appreciation of athletics, and more interest in the girls' physical education department. During the year they sponsored a cook-out, an overnight and the Jousters-Faculty Volleyball Game in which a coed faculty team fought against members of Jousters.

Pep Club Stimulates

Pep Club, sponsored by Miss Sara Gagens, played an important part in Southeast spirit again this year. Football season began with a record membership, and enthusiasm reached great heights as the Knights' ratings climbed.

An added incentive, the Spirit Stick, was awarded each week to the class with the most spirit at the preceding game. Pep Club members were also responsible for victory ribbons, game and hall posters and goal post decoration. The newly organized pom-pom girls worked closely with the Pep Club and performed at both football and basketball games.

Jumping, screaming, laughing, crying—these are the expressions of a cheerleader. This year's squads led Southeast in a year of pep assemblies, games and spirit.

During an exhausting week at Missouri Valley Cheerleading Clinic, the varsity six captured a Grand Champs Division Second Place and the Spirit Stick. They returned to a student body that was filled with enthusiasm for Southeast. With such backing, it was not hard for the three squads to build spirit to new heights this year. They provided the leadership that changed individual enthusiasm into unified school spirit.

Nine Players Chosen All-Stars in City

Loop Nominations

Mike Jones and Brad Carr find the mud to be only one of the many problems they faced against Westport.

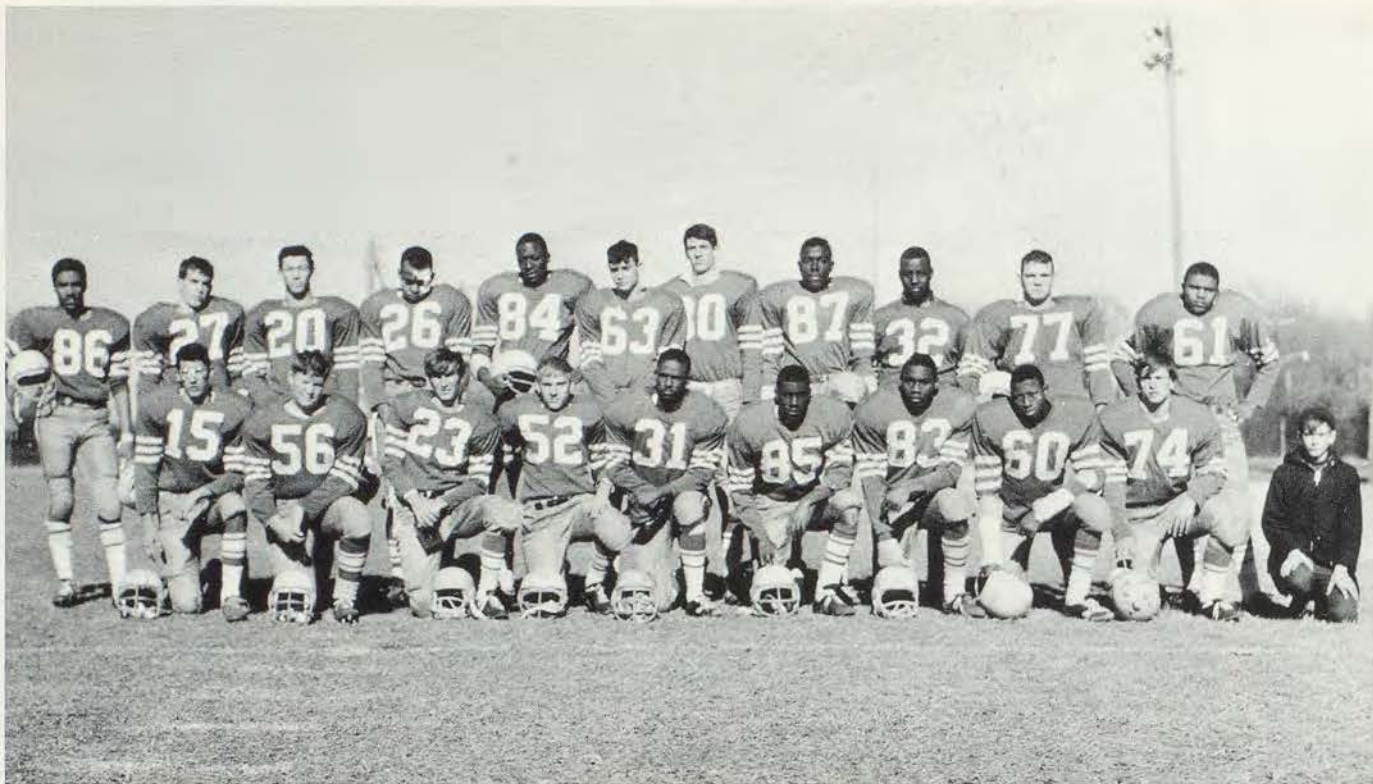

The Southeast Knights returned once again to their winning form of past years. Compiling a 7-3 record, the Knights finished third in the Interscholastic League.

Carrying a 4-0 league record into the Westport game, the Knight's hopes of an undisputed championship were shattered by the underdog Tigers. The highlight of every football season, the Southwest game, came the following week. As the game ended, the Knights were victorious, 19-14, and the Southside trophy returned once more to the Castle's trophy case.

Never out of competition for the championship until the final game, the Knights maintained their spirit and enthusiasm throughout the year. Defeat at the hands of Van Horn on a chilly November morning made a first place finish impossible.

The third-place finish was supplemented by nine Southeast Knights winning berths on all-star squads. Three gridders, Mike Jones, Dale Green and Ottie DePriest were placed on first team city as representatives of Southeast gridiron abilities.

Future varsity championships are in store for Southeast, if this year's B-team record is any indication. In their final year of preparation before varsity competition, the junior Knights finished second in the league with a 6-1 record. Significantly, the B-team scored 223 points to the opposition's 90. Four shut-out victories over East, Central, Northeast and Westport showed the Knights' dominance with an explosive offense and a tenacious defense. The coaching of Nicholas Gerhardt and Clifford Carpenter proved an inspiration to the young Knights as they finished the season with a 7-2 overall record.

Although they receive little notice, the freshman football team is still a significant part of the Castle sports program. By learning the fundamentals of football, the freshmen progressed towards eventual varsity play. In their first year of coaching, Mr. Richard Sabbath and Mr. James Gurley attempted not only to develop a winning team, but also to instill a winning spirit. The freshman squad opened practice late in August with an emphasis on blocking and tackling drills.

In their initial season, the freshmen have shown the ability and the determination to win. However, in learning the difficult single-wing offense, the young team managed only a 3-4 season and fourth-place finish in the league.

Forced out of bounds, a Southeast ball carrier comes out just short of a first down.

Knights' basketball, 1968, is the story of a team whose spirit and hustle reached a late peak and nearly carried them into the finals of the state tournament. Coach Arnold Caviar, in his first year as head mentor, pushed the team to a final record of 18-9. Playing a better than average season, the Knights finished fourth behind Paseo, Central and Lincoln. A victory over Westport in the first round of the regional carried no great significance. However, in successive games, the team defeated Central 49-46, Paseo 56-51 for the regional championship, and Truman 76-64 for the district title. Finally, against DeLaSalle, also a surprise victor in previous games and the owner of a 15-15 record, the Knights were sidetracked, and a trip to St. Louis was lost.

Youree Myers uses a screen set by Ned Stephens as Bob Wheeler awaits a possible rebound.

Junior Knights

Place Fourth

Southeast's B-team was made up this year of one freshman, nine sophomores and two juniors. Compiling a 12-6 overall record and a 6-3 league record, the junior knights showed a talent for winning. Coach Phillip Truby initiated a spirit of hustle in the squad, and the combined abilities of coach and team resulted in a fourth place league finish.

Experience Gained In Losing Season

The most valuable possession gained from a team's first year together is experience. The freshmen, under Coach Jim Gurley, finished the season with a 3-7 record and a desire to improve in future years.

Junior Curtis Washington and senior Youree Myers move into rebound position in varsity competition against Paseo.

Young Track Squad Begins Successful Season

Knight shot-putter Tom Fritz attempts to place in a dual meet against Northeast.

Dash-man Theo McGary nears the tape in the 100-yard dash.

Reggie James stretches for those few extra inches that may break a broad-jump record.

Distance runners gain endurance in after-school workouts on the cinder track.

The freshman record holder in the shotput, Floyd Davis, shows the importance of the follow-through.

Appearing to have the aid of a third leg, hurdler Larry Flowers gets a big jump on opponents in the 120-yard low hurdles.

Arms raised, anchor man Robert Johnson breaks the tape first for another Knight victory.

The bar almost cleared, Leon Hill prepares for entry into the foam rubber cushion of the high jump pit.

Competitive Spirit

Team Unity

Once the bar is cleared, it is up to the vaulter to release the pole and enter the pit safely.

Attempts at low heights help prepare a high-jumper for the more difficult tests to follow.

A cross-country meet tests the initiative and endurance in a race against the clock, opponents and the course.

Cross Country, Track Provide Opportunity For Individual Achievement

Theo McGary gets a quick start from the blocks in the 220 yard dash.

Cross country in the fall, indoor track in winter and outdoor track in spring provide ample opportunities for boys proficient in the individual events offered by these sports. Coach Arnold Caviar headed the cross country team in fall meets held on the Swope Park course. Coach Nicholas Gerhardt and his indoor track team returned from the state meet in Columbia with a seventh place finish. With a young but experienced outdoor team returning, the Knights' track hopes look promising for the 1968 season.

Daryl Williams prepares for an upcoming meet by practice attempts in the long jump.

Freshmen coach Richard Sabbath, B-team coach Clifford Carpenter and varsity coach Nicholas Gerhardt watch a workout on Bryan Field.

Adding to the spring sports schedule of athletic competition are the tennis and golf teams. The tennis team was coached by Mr. Jeffrey Harryman, while the duties of the golf team were handled by Mr. Roy Becklean. Although minor sports, the tennis and golf teams provide a chance for participation by those capable and willing to compete.

Golf, Tennis Add Spring Excitement

TENNIS TEAM—Front row: Allan Schmidt, Tom Levin, Randy Miller, Eppie Shields, Robert Clayton. Row two: Mr. Jeffrey Harryman, Odies Wright, Byron Schmidt, David Bevans, John Lobdell, Terry Amor.

Swim Team Displays Hustle, Determination

Eleven returning lettermen were the basis for the Knights' '67-'68 swimming team. They maintained their spirit throughout the season as coach Mr. Richard Witte inspired the team through its victories and defeats. With only five seniors on the squad, Southeast will have talent and depth returning next season.

A racing dive is essential to the success of the relay team, as shown by Brock Eddy.

Ricky Douglas demonstrates the proper form for turns as he begins the final length.

Intramural Competition

Gym classes participate in soccer, fast becoming a popular sport.

Forced inside by weather, intramurals concentrate on basketball.

Indoor broad jumping is a vital part of the winter gym program.

Sparks Rivalry

The ball may touch any part of the body in a soccer game and still be in play.

Applying the fundamentals of sportsmanship and athletic skills acquired in physical education classes, students compete in soccer, softball, volleyball, basketball and football intramurals. Competition is keen inside the classes themselves as teams are selected and rivalry begins. The more proficient participants in each sport are chosen as class representatives in the after-school events. In the elimination tournament, freshmen and upperclass champions are determined.

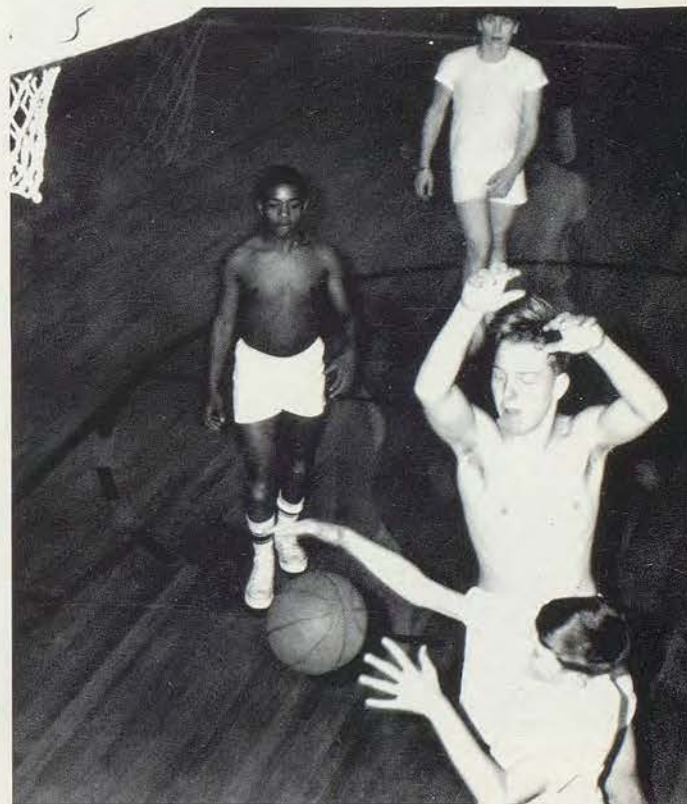

Under the supervision of teachers Nicholas Gerhardt, Clifford Cornelius and Jess Cross, boys are taught the value of physical activity. In addition to soccer, volleyball, softball, basketball and football, the students also participate in track, swimming, tumbling, calisthenics and "rainy-day" games.

Boys who have not won varsity letters are awarded patches if they are members of a winning team.

Action is fast and continuous as players move the ball toward their opponents' goal.

Rugged competition is provided as basketball teams vie for championships.

Opponents square off to gain possession of the ball during a hockey game.

With a jump ball, another class basketball game commences.

Representing the girls' physical education department, the hockey and volleyball sportsday teams participated in the annual sports events. The girls spent many hours in after-school practice sessions. They discovered the joy of victory and the sting of defeat while developing sportsmanship, skill and co-ordination. Competition with other schools taught the girls the values of physical accomplishment. Sponsored by Miss Sarah Gaggens, Mrs. Vickie Scott, and Mrs. Brenda Holbrook, the teams brought honors to Southeast again.

Laurie Holland finds that volleyball has its embarrassing moments as she fails to return the serve.

Girls Achieve Sportsmanship, Coordination through Team Competition

Freshman Class Accepts Challenges of High School

The freshmen entered Southeast in September with anticipation and bewilderment. After overcoming their initial confusion, freshmen found that high school offered them many challenging experiences. They had many opportunities to take part in Castle life through participation in the Round Table, in athletic events and in clubs. Having finished their first year of high school, Pages look forward to three more years of learning and accomplishment.

Sophomores Await

Arriving at the halfway mark in their high school career, sophomores have participated in school activities and have seen various aspects of Castle life. Through their two years of observance, sophomores have learned the principles of chivalry and the accompanying traditions and have become adjusted to their academic schedules.

The first of the standardized tests, the ITED test, was taken by sophomores this year.

Awaiting sophomores are the challenges and responsibilities of juniors. As upperclassmen, they will join the seniors in leading Southeast through another successful year.

Leadership Duties

During this year the members of the class of '69 became leaders. In preparation for next year, the juniors accepted much of the responsibility of Castle life. They took an active part—especially second semester—in the Round Table elections, and they were the hosts at the Junior-Senior Prom. While the Squires participated in these and other activities, thoughts of the future took definite shape. PSAT, SCAT and National Merit tests challenged those with plans for college. After three years of accomplishment, this year's juniors look forward optimistically to their senior year.

Seniors End Year With Mixed Emotions

This year's 340 seniors spent their last two semesters at Southeast working for honors and final grades and leading the school in many activities. They exemplified the meaning of being Knights and Ladies to underclassmen. While paying senior dues, planning commencement and senior party, presenting their senior gift and attending their last Prom, the seniors made plans for the future. Some will attend college, some will begin their careers, but all will start a new phase of their lives. The '68 seniors are now part of the alumni of Southeast.

Awards Distinguish Students For Outstanding Achievement, Service

Debra Pickering

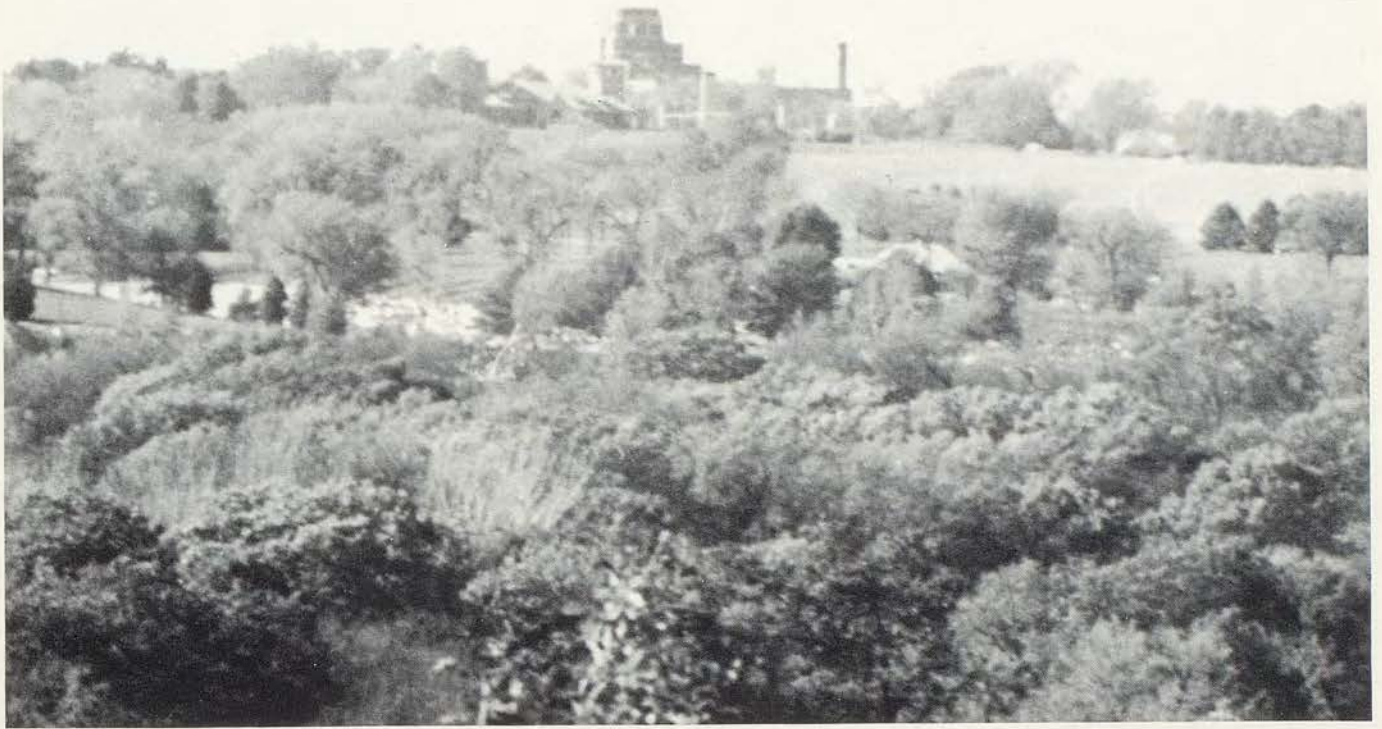

David Patterson

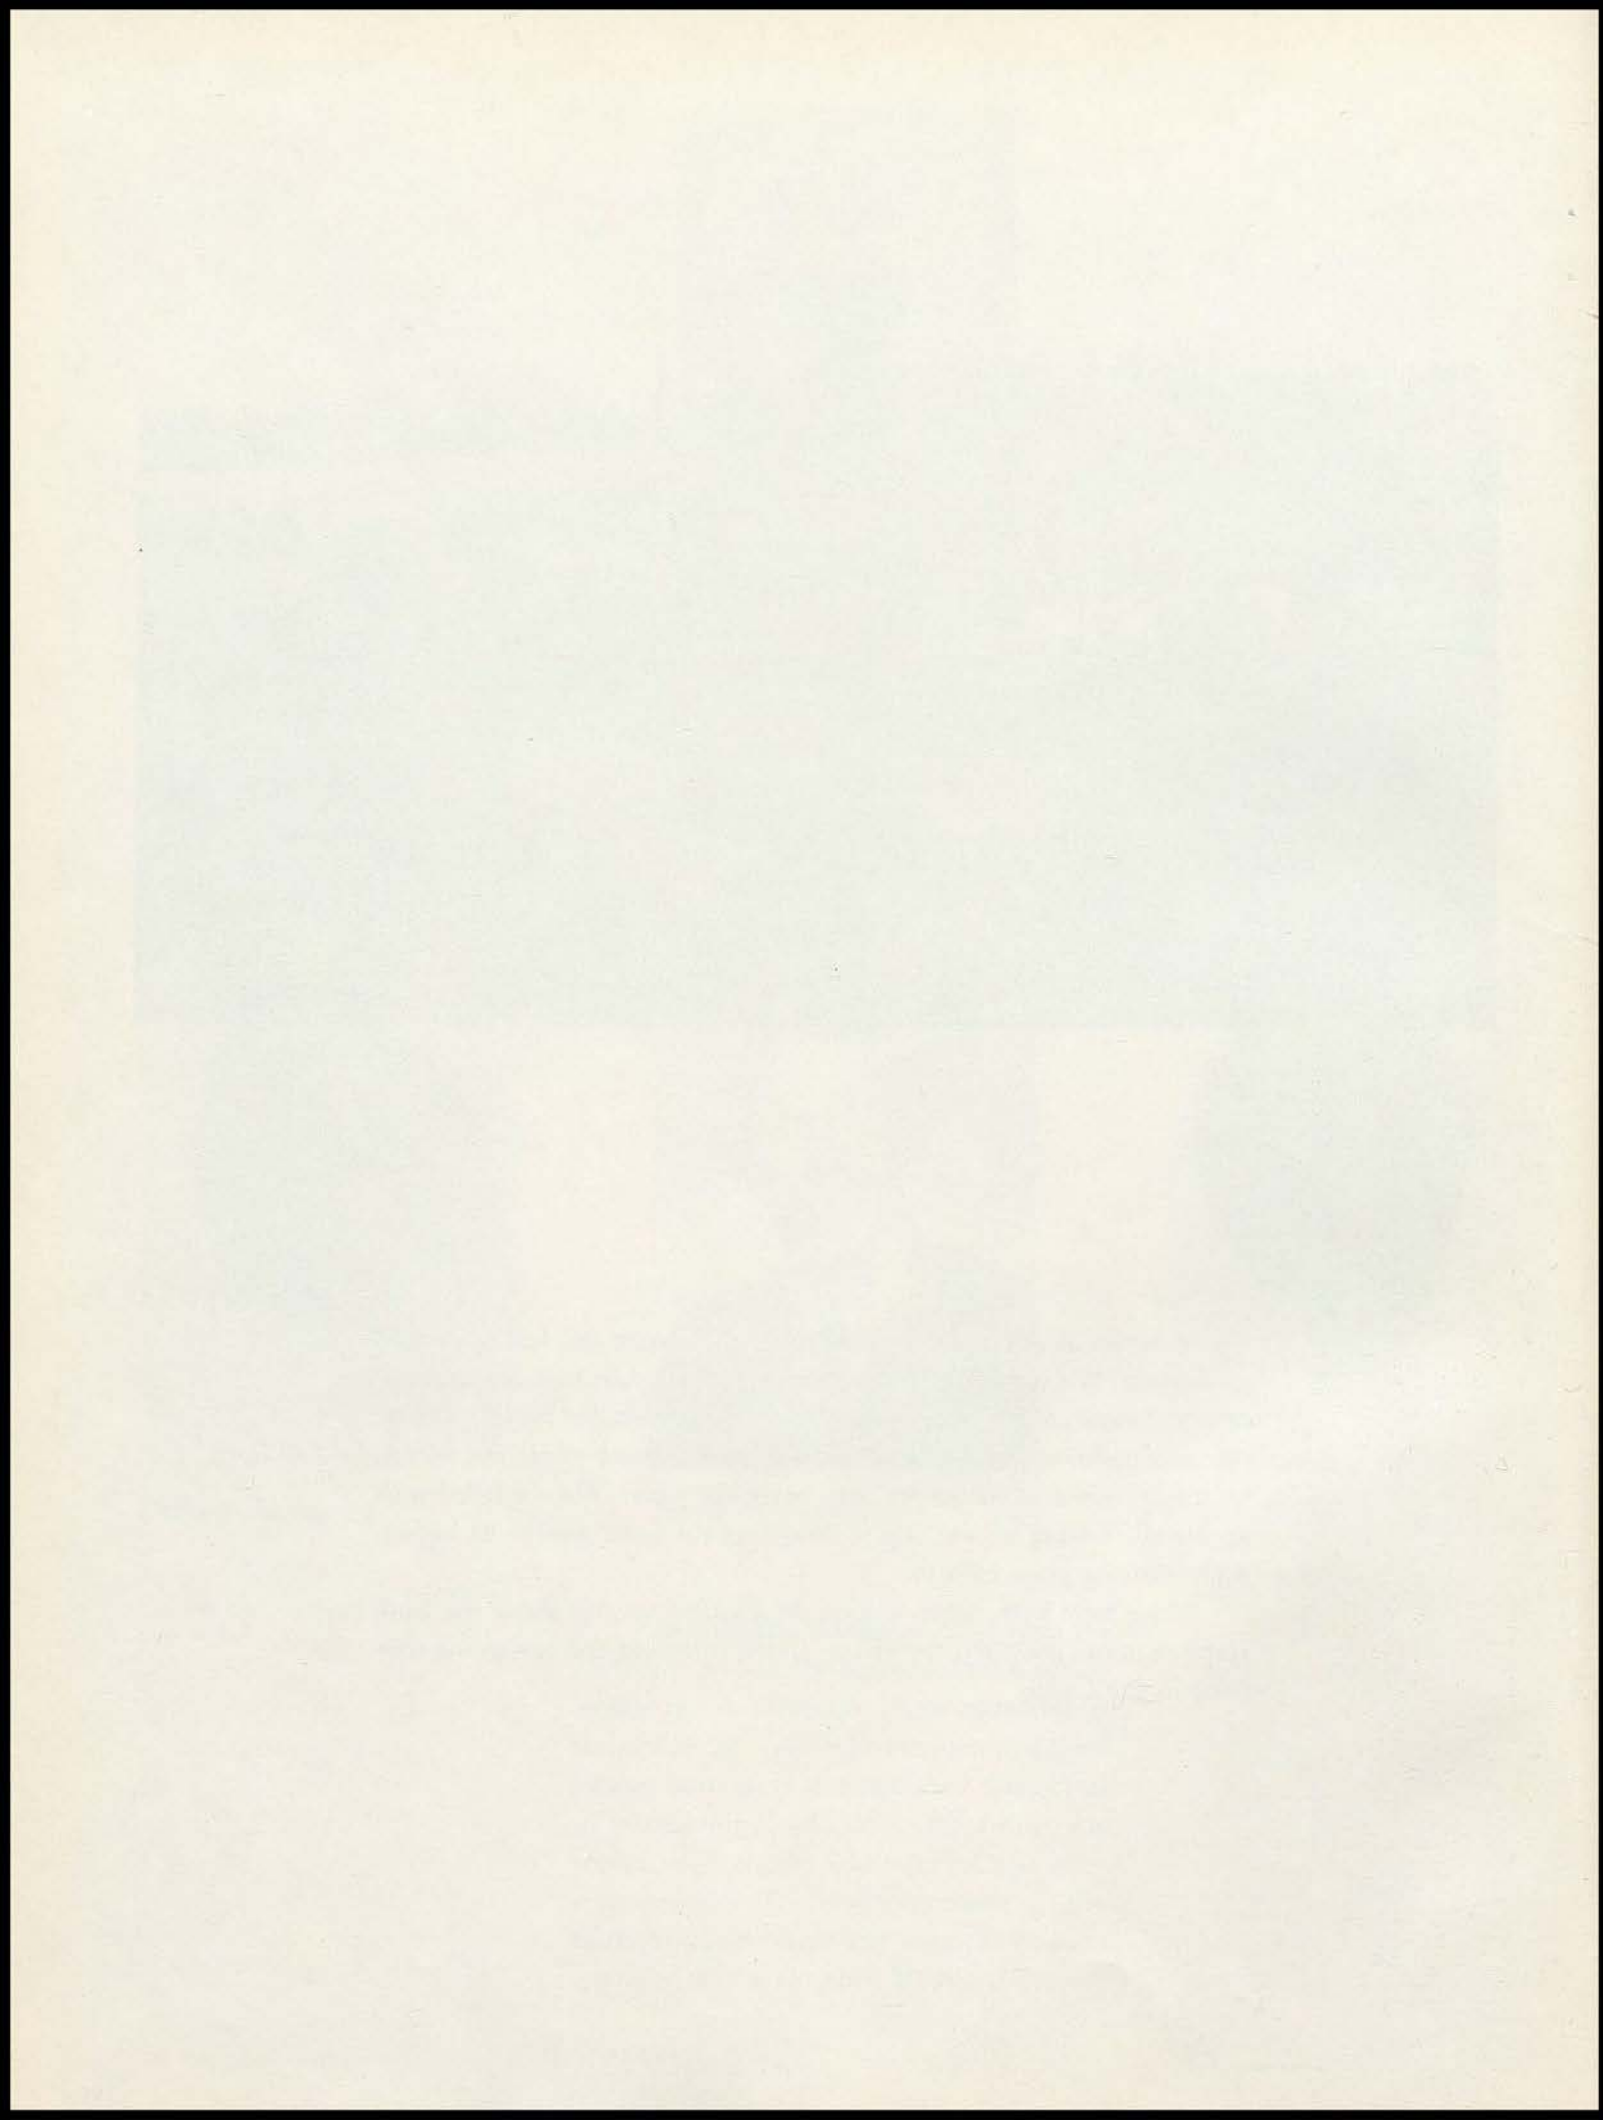

Patricia Burks

The Knight's Memorial Award and the Ladyship Award are presented each spring in the senior assembly to an outstanding senior boy and girl. The recipients of these awards must have distinguished themselves in scholarship, leadership, citizenship, and service, with the Knight's Award also stressing athletics. The winners receive a certificate of achievement and have their names engraved on the Knight's Memorial Trophy.

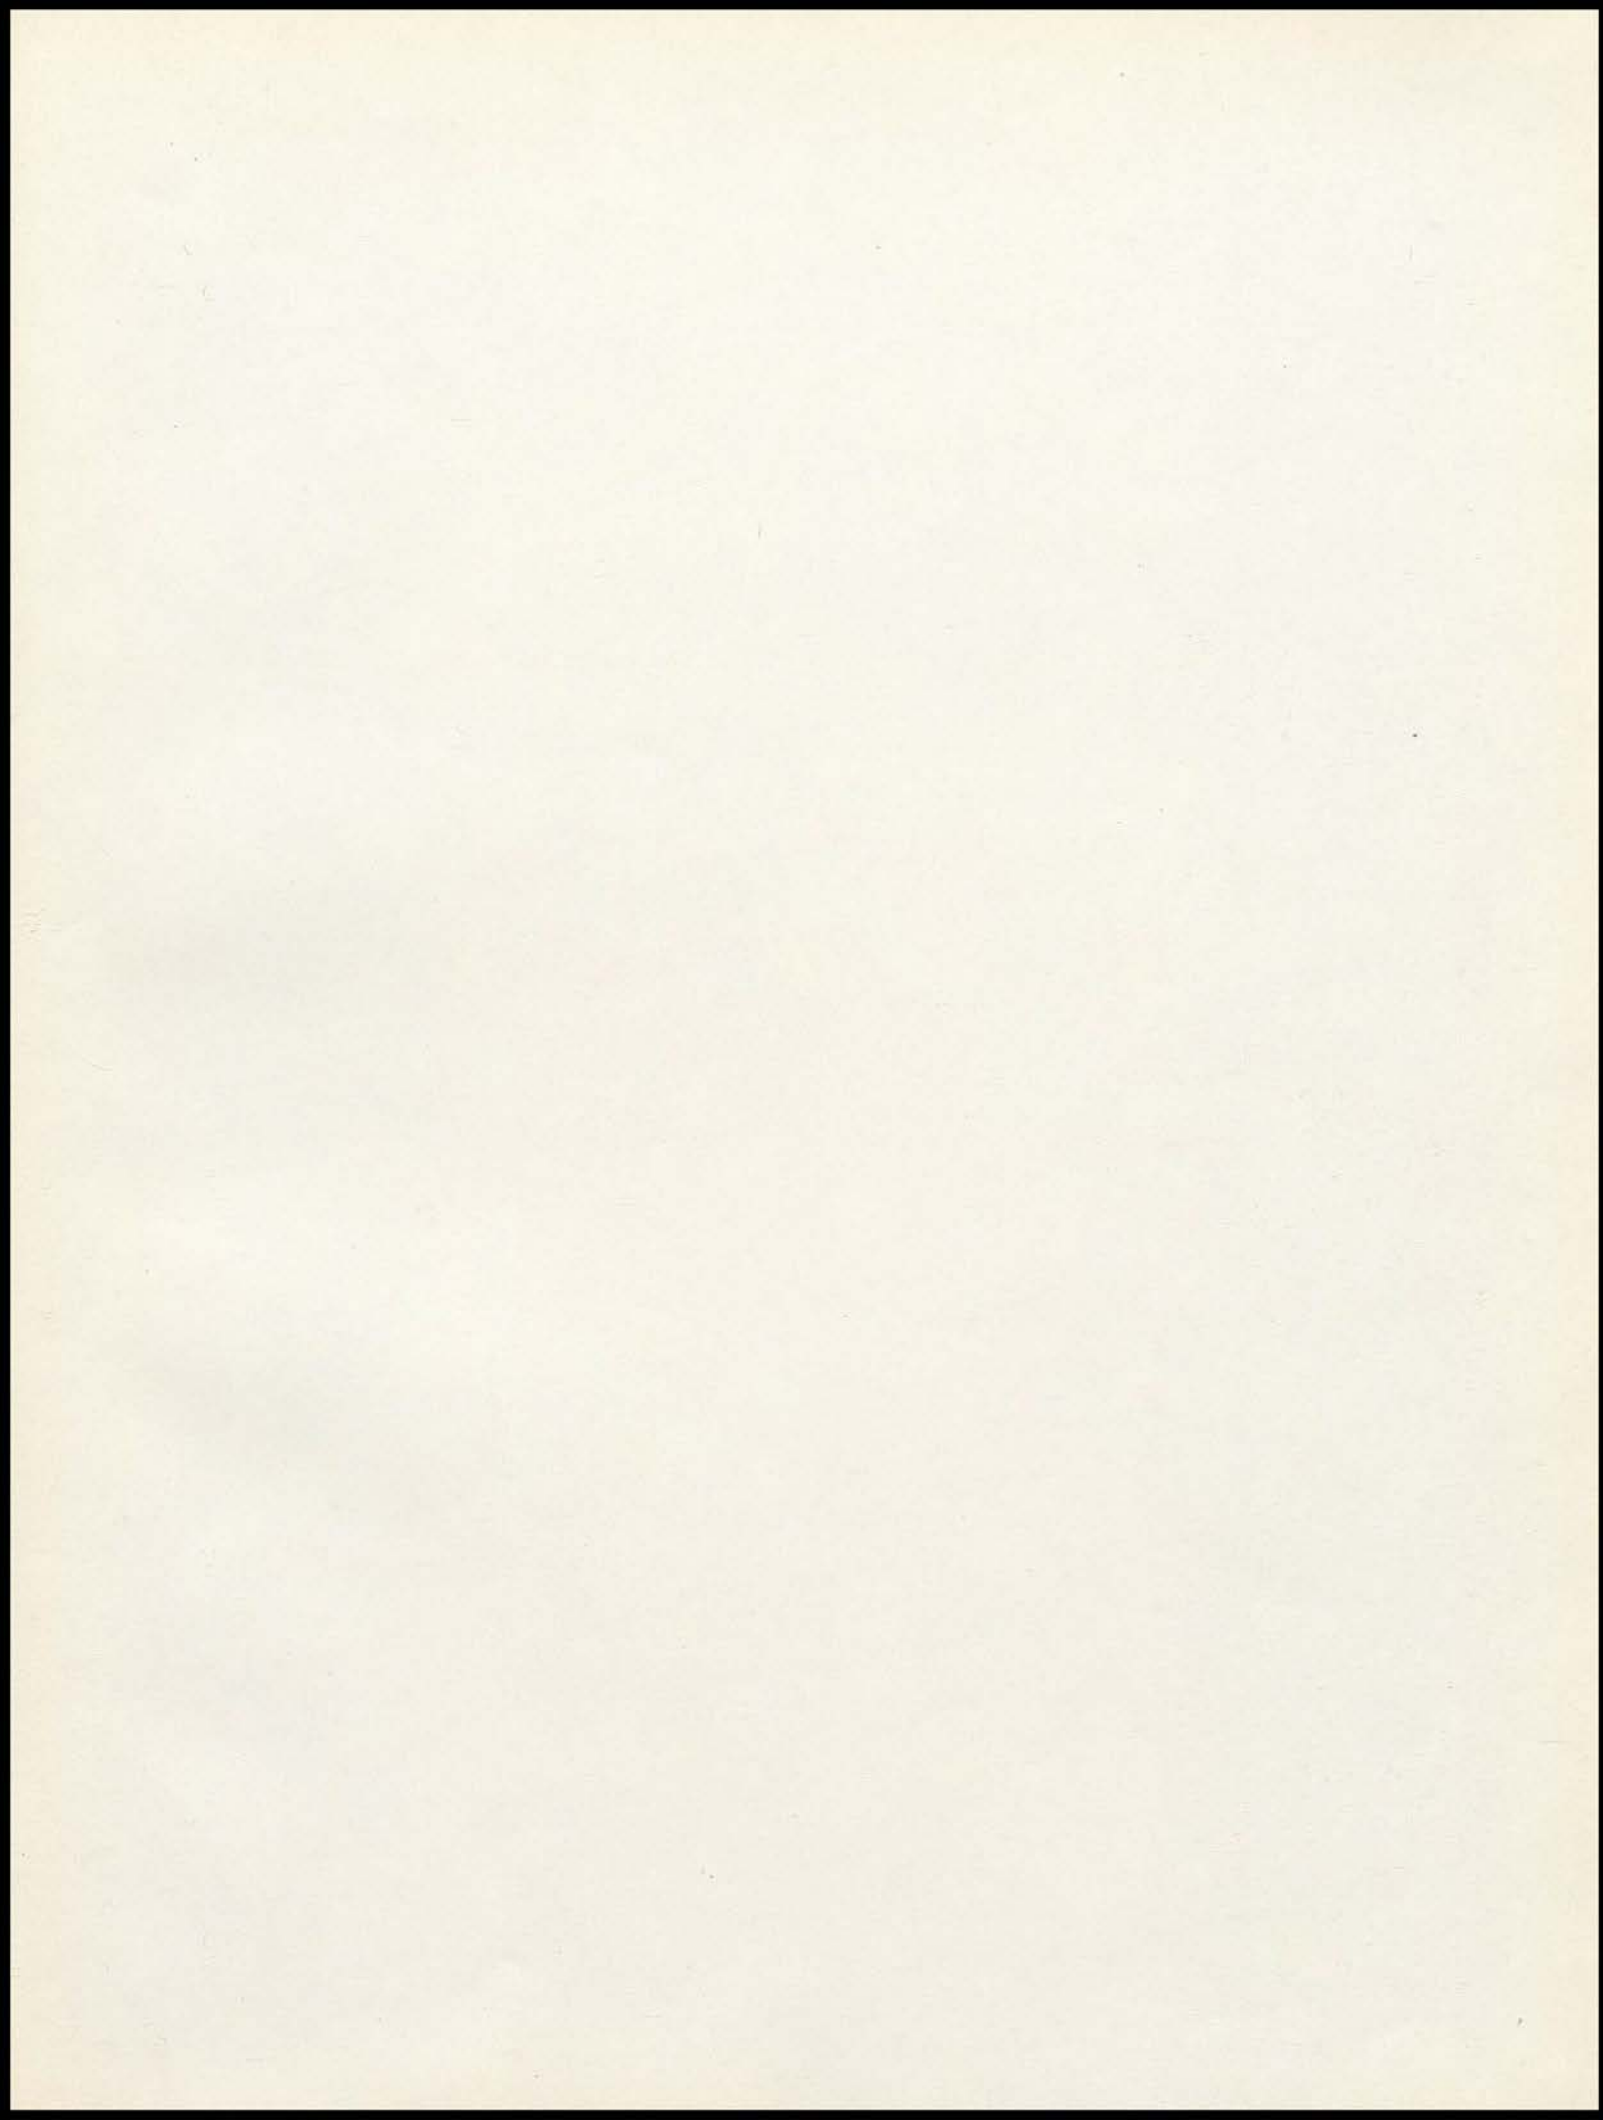

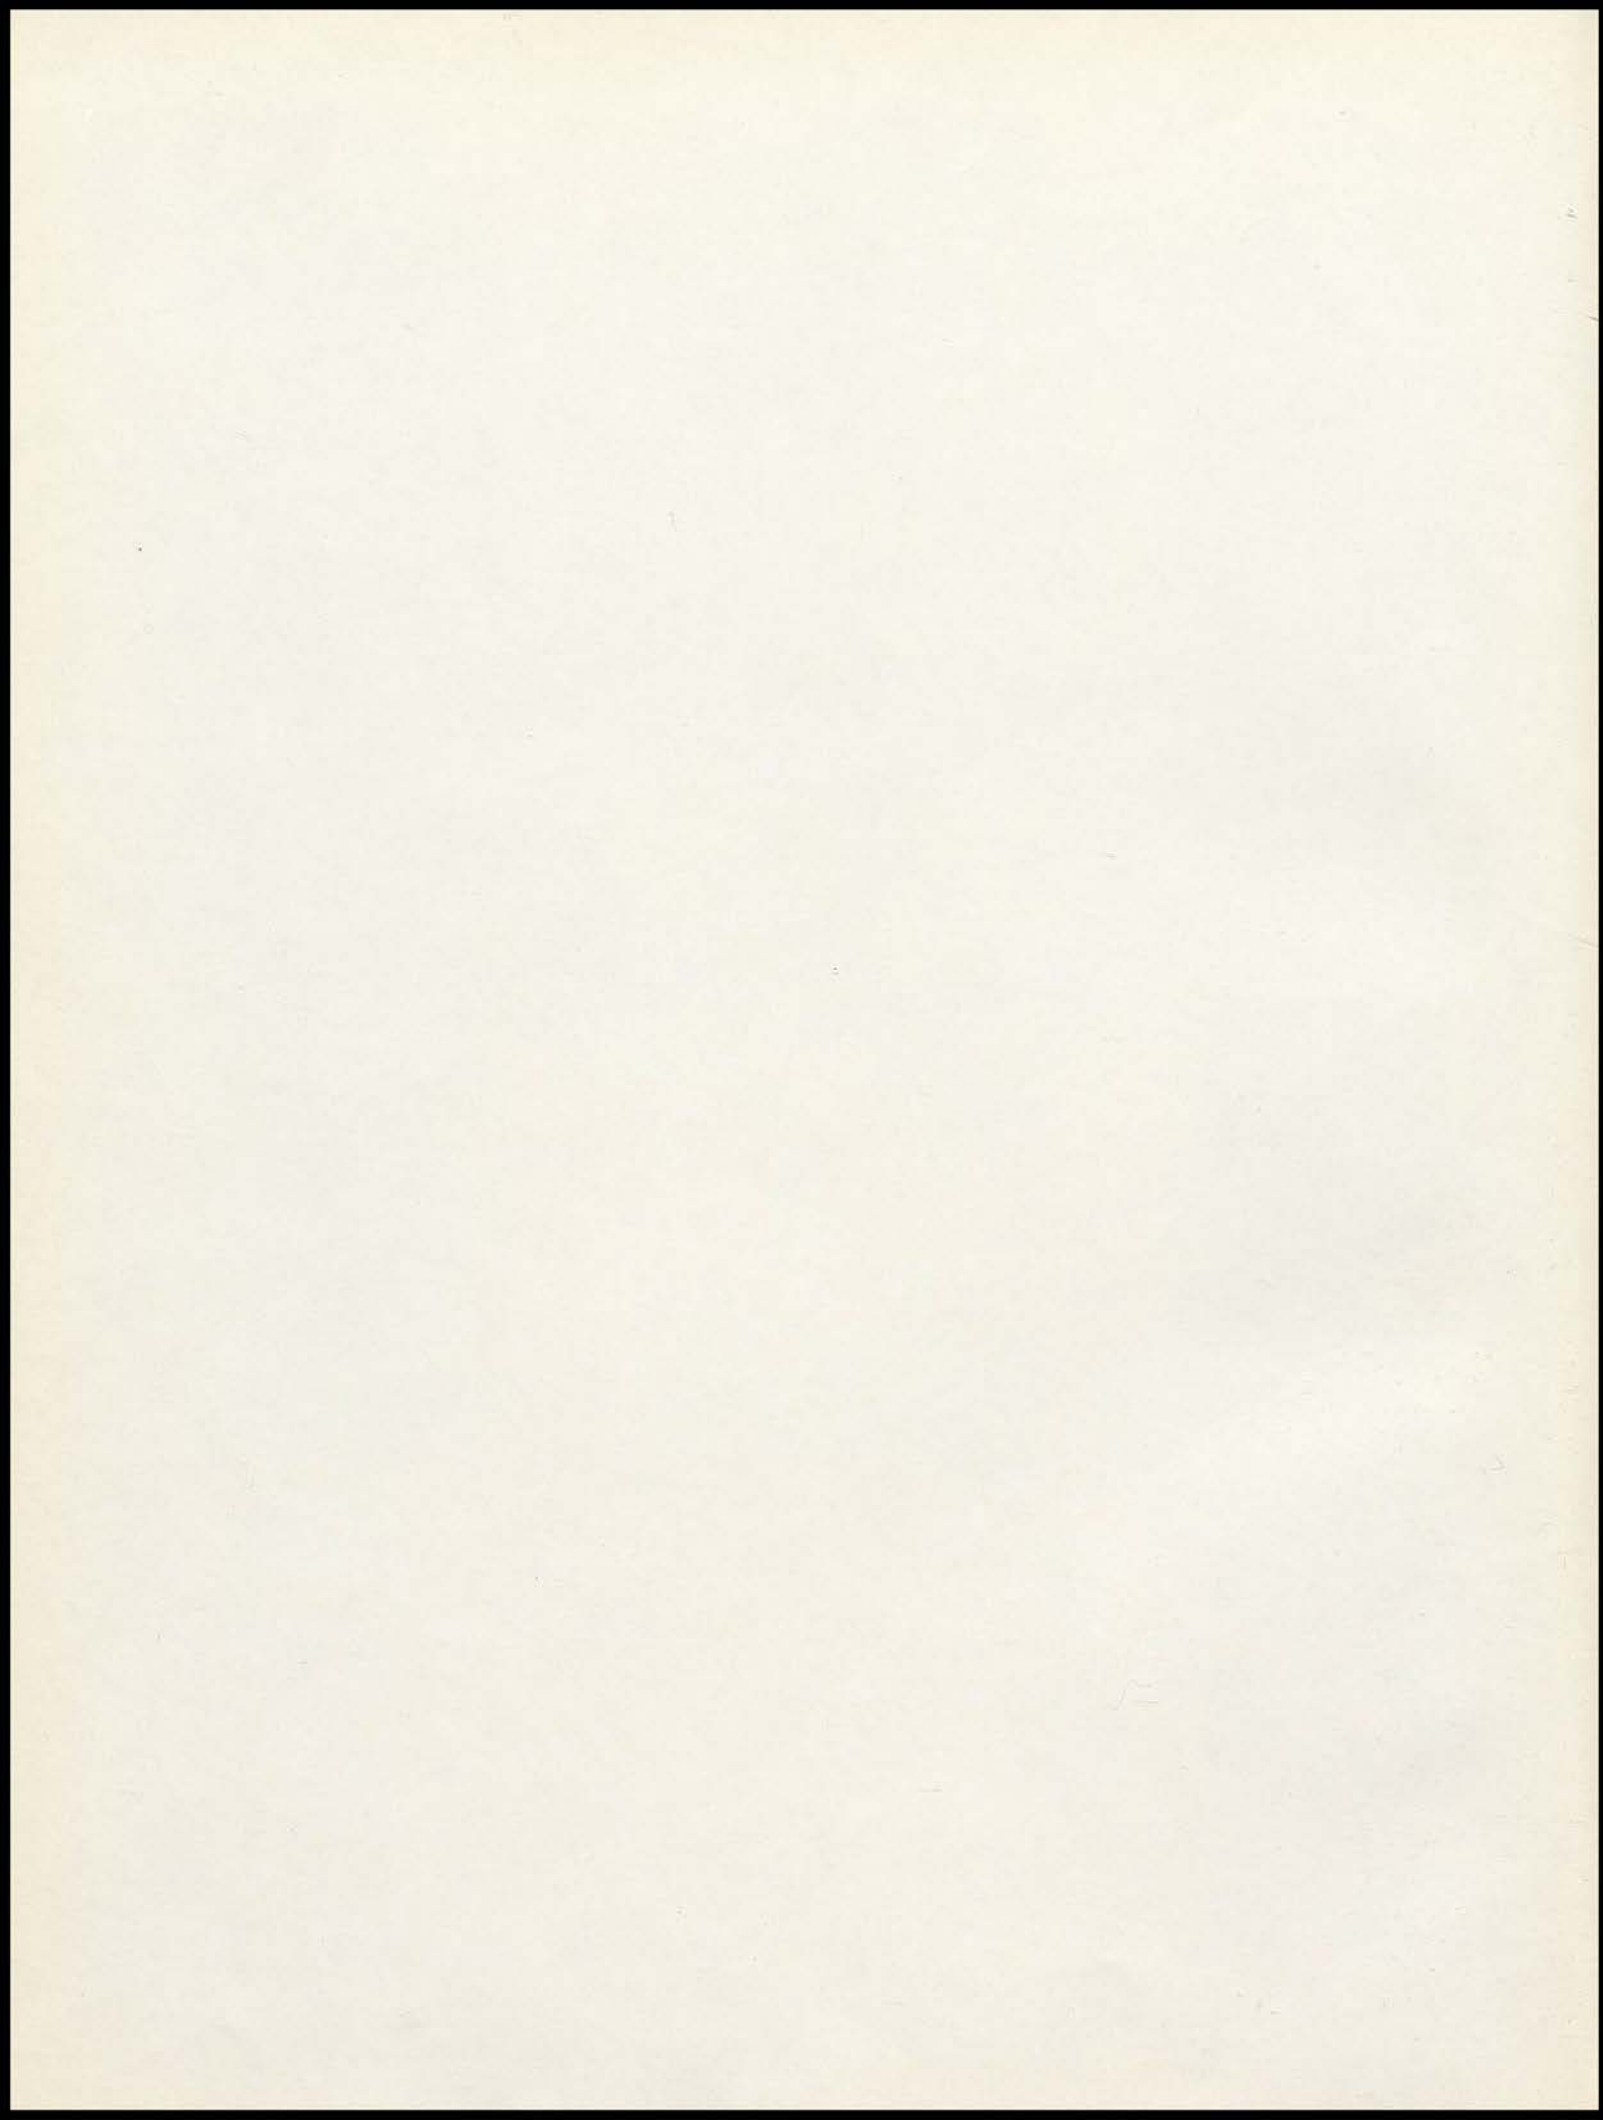

A sense of sadness overtakes us as we realize the full import of graduation. We remember the important things—our first day as freshmen and how confused we were, the first Induction and Knightlites we saw, the traditions we honored and upheld, and most of all, the friends we made—some of whom we may never see again. We are filled with an uneasy feeling of wanting to stay; yet the anticipation of higher, more exciting goals calls us.

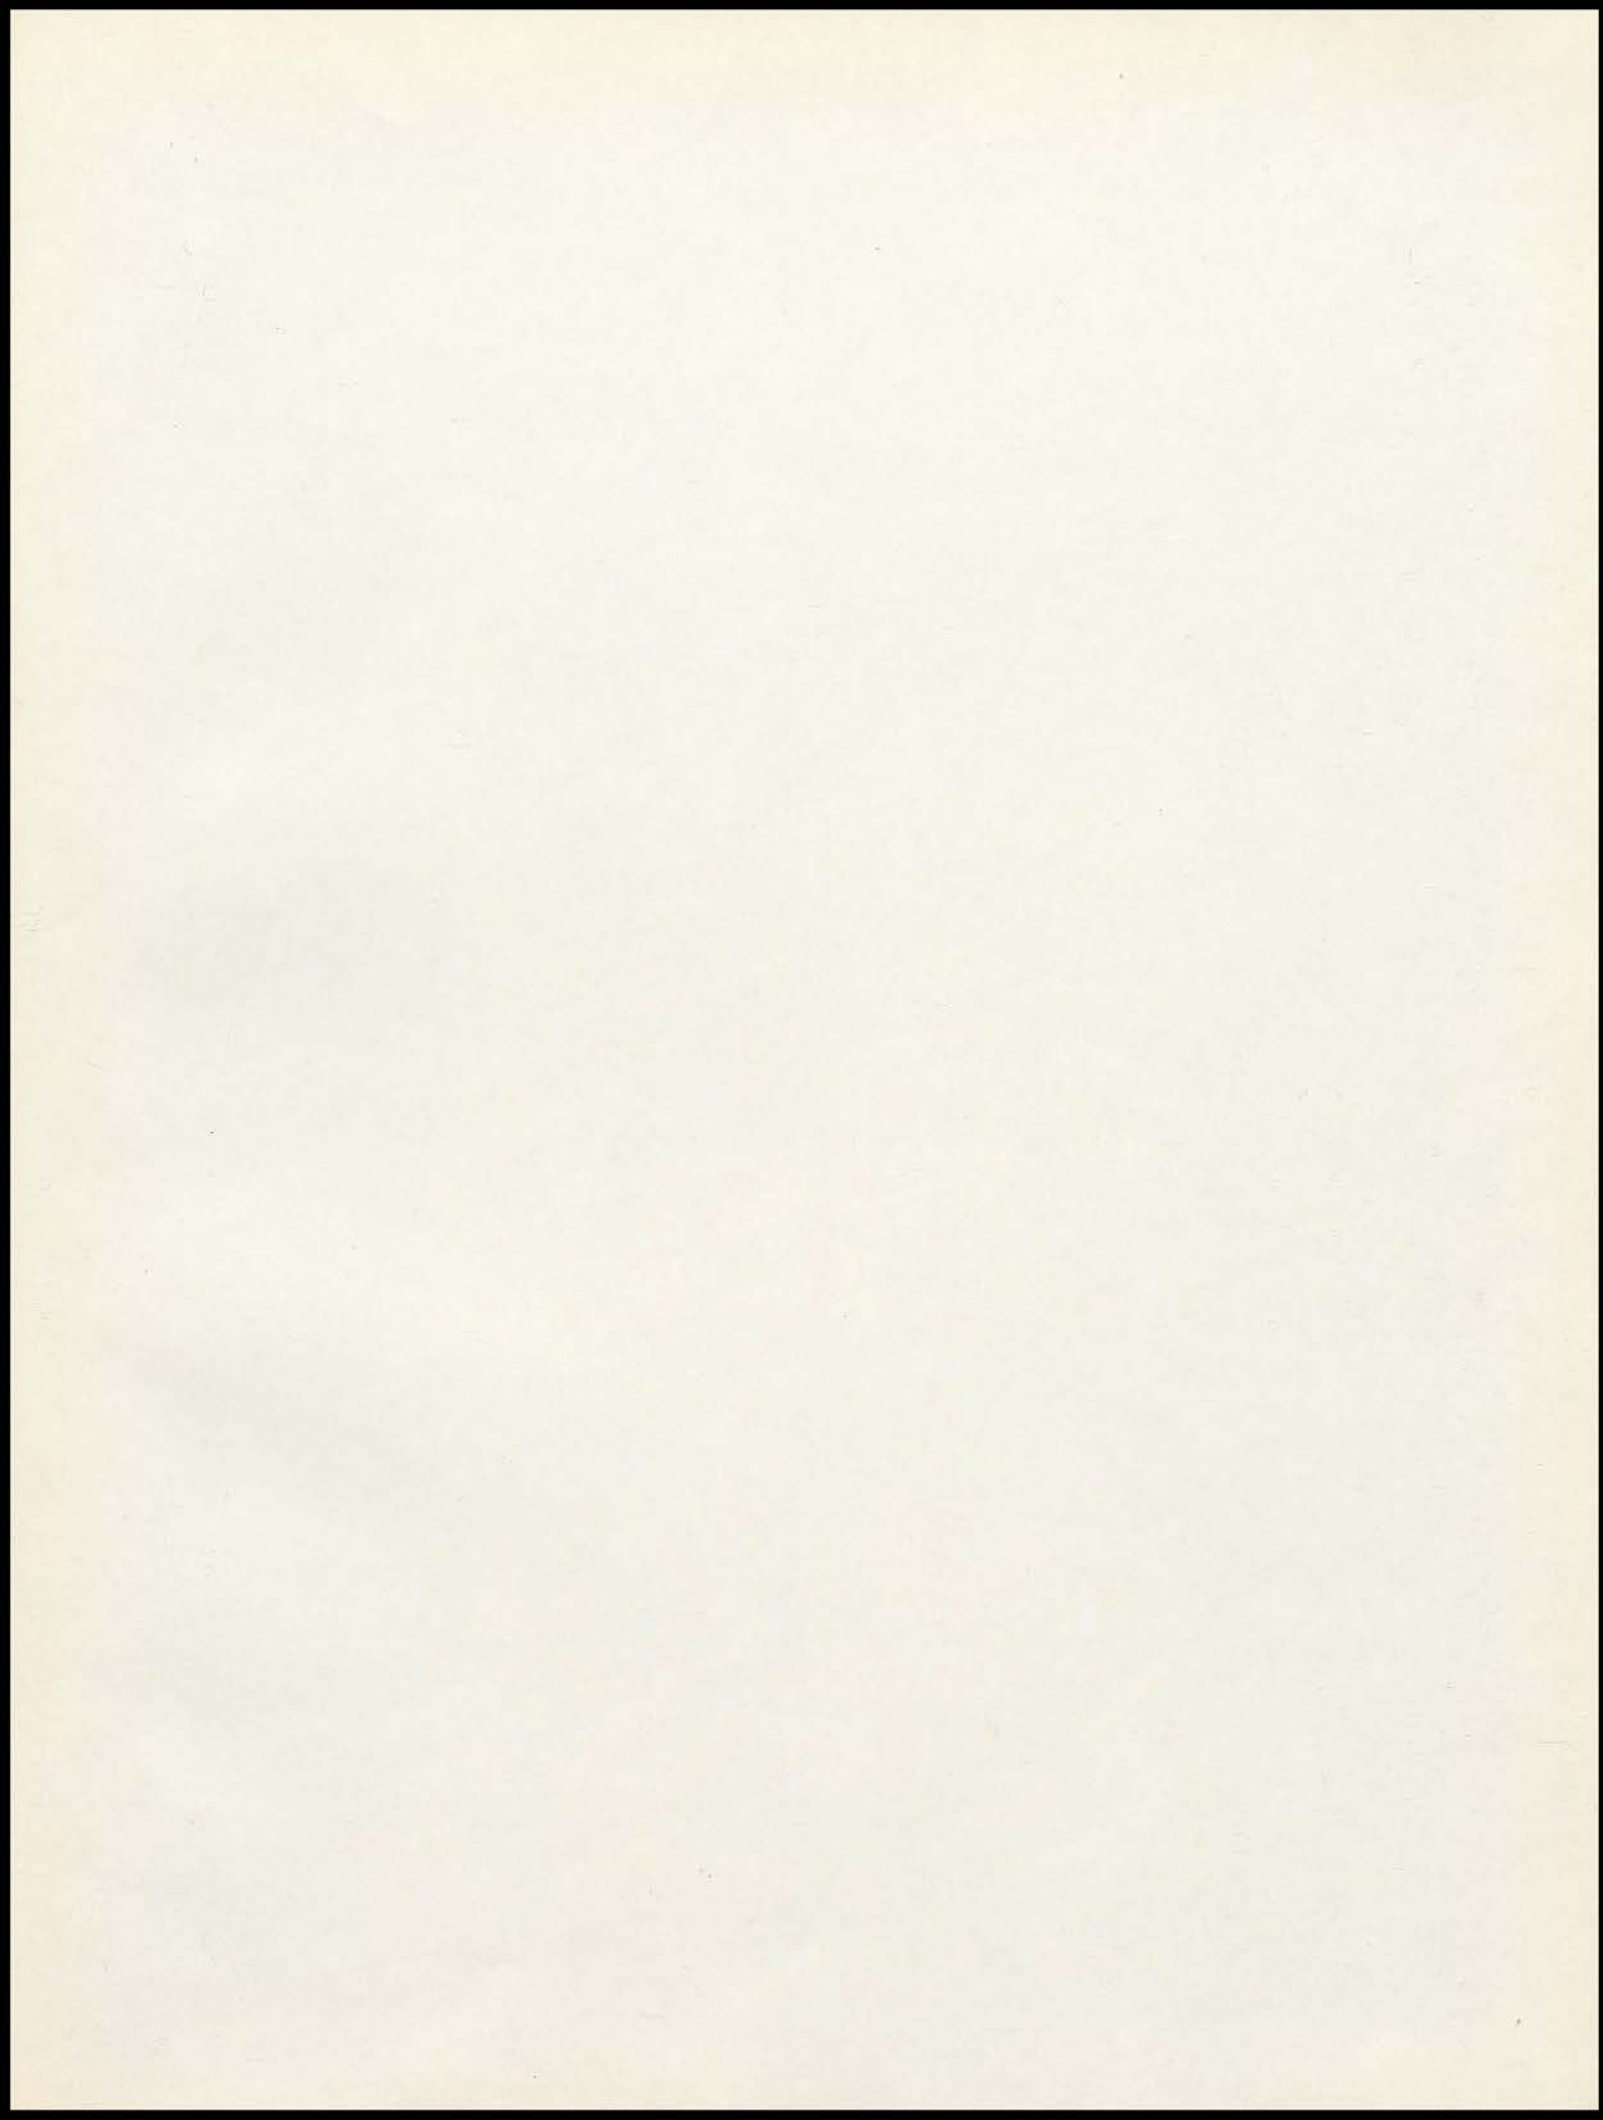

Years from now, when we see the Castle towering above the landscape or in our memory, we will recall the fulfilling and rewarding days lived in the Castle.
