To Southeast Knights:

At the beginning of the year I took on a new task to lead the Southeast yearbook staff in making the 1998 Crusader.

I made a pledge to myself that it would be not only the best Crusader ever, it would be inclusive and representative of all the students and their activities at Southeast.

The staff was the best possible and together we have created what I believe is a truly fine publication to represent 1998. Enjoy!

WHAT WE DO...5

FIRST DAY AT SOUTHEAST

September 2, 1997, 7:10 a.m.
The school bus door opens.
The sun is out and it is already hot.
It's your first day at Southeast.
How would you describe it?

"Boring, loud, hot,"

Gregory Gahagans, junior.

"Scary, weird, nice,"

LaShonda West, junior.

"I was lost and tired,"

"On my first day at Southeast, I went to gym all day,"

"It was big,"

Ebony Elston, freshman

"I felt powerful,"

Ngan Tran, senior.

NEW KIDS ON THE BLOCK

Students coming to Southeast as ninth graders enter a world much different from the school environments they have known. What they said: "...fun, exciting, and crazy!"

Rozeta Harvey--grade 9.

"It was alright,"

Akicia Williams--grade 9.

"...hot and nervous,"

Edward Thomas--grade 9.

"Weird, quiet, different,"

Quentin Qualls--grade 9.

"Fun, kinda hard."

Michael Pickens--grade 9.

"Boring, hard, complicated,"

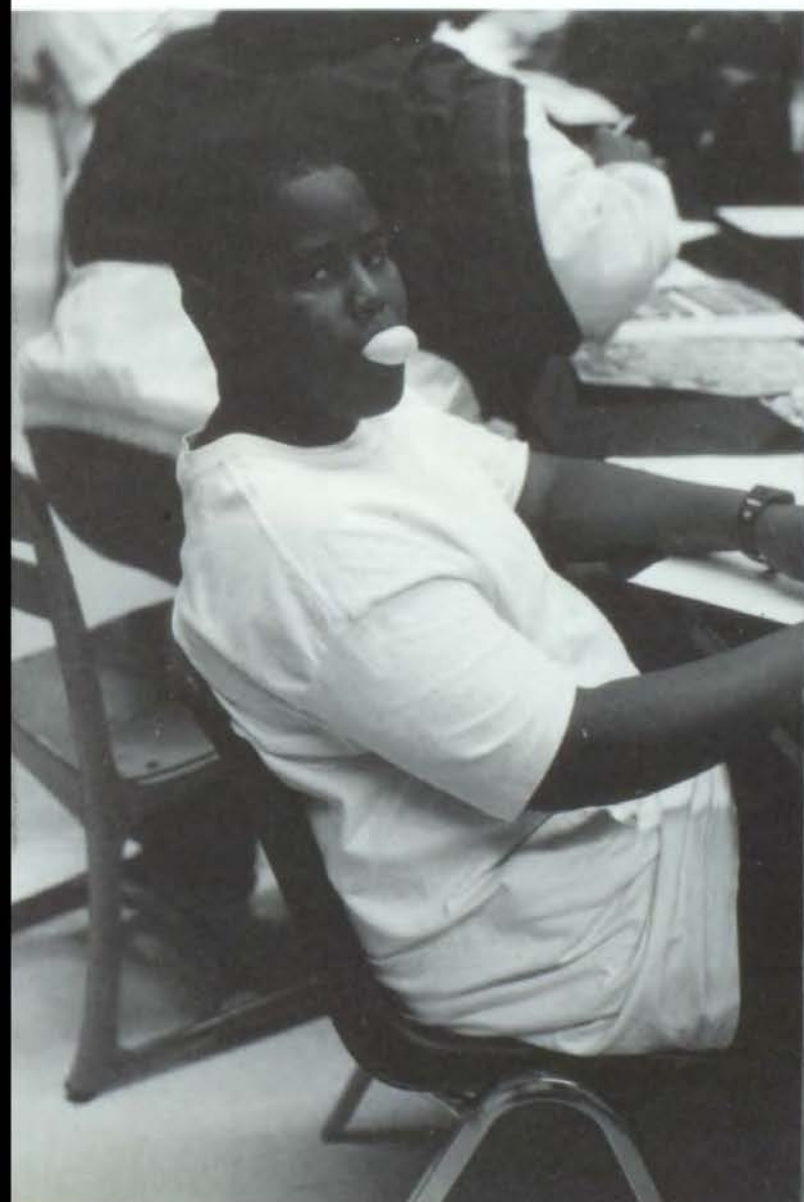

Michael Strickland--grade 9.

"I liked my classes,"

Dewane Williams--grade 9.

"I couldn't sleep the night before,"

Wilshawnda Robinson--grade 9.

PARENTS DAY OUT

Parent-teacher Conferences
October 16, 1997

Southeast moms came to meet teachers.

So why do we have Parent-Teacher conferences, anyway?

Mary Love, vice-principal, emphasized the importance of keeping an open communication between parents and teachers.

"After all," she said, "students learn at school as well as home.

With teachers and parents working together students will learn not only in the classroom, but also develop into responsible young adults."

Don't give me that look.

Next subject please.

I'd rather go shopping.

HAIR TODAY

Bianca Hunter, freshman, likes curls.

Shelton Stewart, junior, favors "corn rows"

Have you ever had a bad-hair day?

"My worst hair day was yesterday. Hair was everywhere. I kept trying to comb it, but it just would not stay down," Kenya Franklin, junior.

"A bad hair day to me is when someone's hair is slicked down, and it is still flying everywhere," Martine Simmons, junior.

"My worst hair day was the day before the fashion show. I couldn't get my hair done until that day, so I had to come to school with it a mess."
Christyn Smith, junior

"My worst hair day was last Easter when I could not find any dressing, so I just stayed home until my auntie helped me and I could go to church. Thank the Lord," Angie Escoe, senior.

"...when I did not have any hair supplies and my hair was dry and nappy," Terilyn Dickerson, senior.

"My worst hair day was when I did not spritz it, and I woke up and it was all over my head," Yolanda Shurn, junior.

Kimberly Beasley goes for a smooth look.

FASHIONABLE KNIGHTS

FASHIONABLE LADIES

"Its time to Present"

"Representing 98"

"Did we win?"

"I hope I don't fall"

MORE FASHION

Aren't I cute?

Edward Thomas knows how to have a good time.

I'm not nervous.

This is fun!

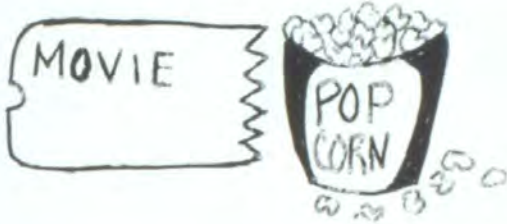

Cute couple!
