It's crowded

With 2240 people packed into fifty-seven classrooms, one auditorium, two gyms, one cafeteria, and one swimming pool, Southwest was a bit crowded this year. However, because of the new junior high, next year's opening day crowd will have approximately three hundred fewer happy faces.

IT'S A TIME AND A PLACE

. . . . but not always

Homecoming, the Semester Dance, the School Spirit Dance, the Junior-Senior Prom, and several other social events prove that Southwest, though primarily concerned with academic pursuits, is not "all work and no play."

. . . . but not for long

A two-million dollar project, the George Caleb Bingham Junior High School, will fill a large gap in the educational facilities of our neighborhood. The new school, which will educate seventh, eighth, and ninth graders, promises relief from the cramped conditions at Southwest and at the several grade schools in this area.

WE WILL ALWAYS REMEMBER.

Ambassadors of Good Will

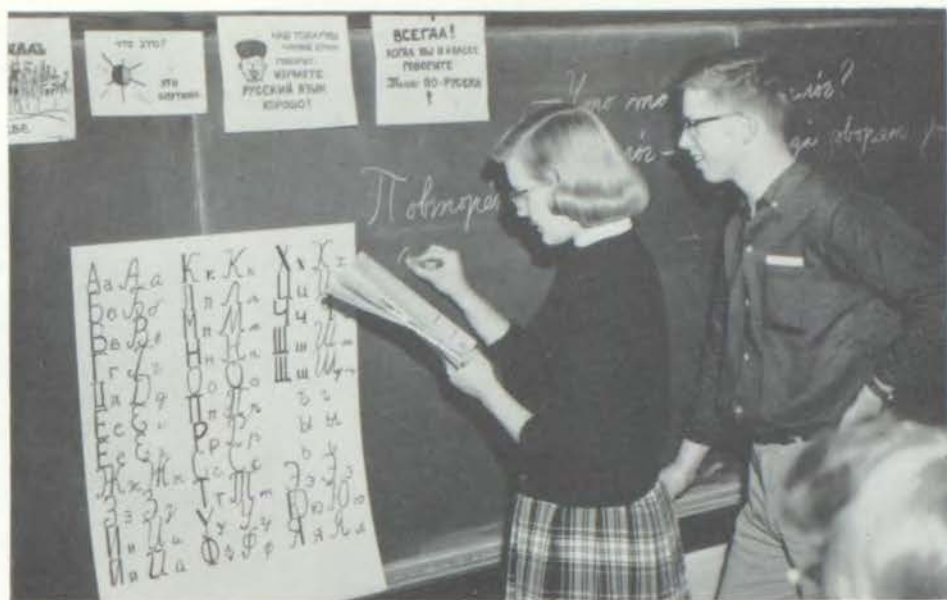

Participating for Southwest in the American Field Service program this year were two students from different countries. Georges Ertzer of Strasbourg, France, spent a year with Mr. and Mrs. Washburn and their son Kit. Highlights of his stay were his activities as President of the French Club and the experiences gained while on the Student Council Executive Board. Dave Foster enjoyed last summer in Heidelberg, Germany, with Dr. and Mrs. Krug and their son Monnie. His visit was climaxed by a Senate reception at Bremen for all the students visiting Germany. The boys not only carried back many pleasant memories of their trips, but also served as good will ambassadors for their countries.

For several years Southwest has been proud, and justly so, of its outstanding foreign language department. Offering a wider and more comprehensive selection of courses than any other Kansas City high school, our language department this year introduced into its curriculum a course in Russian. Even though the study of the difficult tongue proved hard work for twenty-seven Indians, the enthusiasm inspired by this rather unusual innovation remained undimmed. A new aid to learning German, as shown below, was the practice of recording passages and then replaying them to detect the mistakes in pronunciation and inflection. As usual, Caesar's campaigns and Cicero's oratory offered a challenge to the Latin classes, while contemporary literature captured the interest of French and Spanish students. Surely every Southwest student should take pride in the outstanding advances of our excellent language department.

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever."

The newly renovated art room is indeed a thing of beauty as well as a carefully planned work room. New floors, an acoustical ceiling, modernistic lights, Venetian blinds, and peach-colored walls are both practical and decorative. The new desks of blond wood, designed by Miss Ruth Beck, have adjustable tops and handy supply drawers. Bulletin boards have replaced blackboards and give ample room for display of art work. These completely new features of decoration provide a most attractive studio for young artists.

"Early to bed and early to rise
Makes a man healthy, wealthy, and wise."

If this old saying is true, several students at Southwest should benefit by their rising early enough to attend 7:30 classes in chemistry, drafting, and art. It may be difficult to arrive at school almost before dawn, but it is pleasant to be dismissed an hour early in the afternoon. Next year the new junior high will relieve the overcrowded conditions which make such early classes necessary this year.

Oh, how I hate to get up in the morning!

A panel discussion on the American Revolution allows students to air their views.

Several of Miss Guyer's American history students will have a decided advantage over other college freshmen next fall. The fortunate seniors who participated in Southwest's first Advanced Placement class may receive up to five hours of college credit for successful completion of the enriched course. Wide reading, frequent discussion, and individual research into varied topics give the students in this class a more thorough understanding of the subject than they would receive in a regular high school course.

This challenging type of work has proved to be not overly difficult; on the contrary, every student has thoroughly enjoyed a stimulating course taught by an excellent teacher. Doing college work in high school is indeed a rare privilege; it is hoped that in the future the program will be expanded at Southwest in order to give this valuable educational opportunity to a greater number of students.

Indians Scalp Mission!!

The tom-toms resounded wildly as the Southwest Indians held the final powwow before the battle with the Shawnee-Mission braves. Cheered on by the tribe, the proud warriors danced around the fire. In the Shawnee village, the champions listened complacently to their opponents' war cries as they sharpened their tomahawks for another conquest.

It was a cold, dark night when the tribes met in mortal combat. The Shawnee Indians successfully attacked first, but the valiant Southwest braves struck back with two swift blows. Rallying, the Kansans almost turned the tide of battle; but when the dust had cleared, Southwest emerged triumphant. With whoops of exultation, the conquerors returned to their teepees, leaving a bewildered and crest-fallen foe.

"Throw away your peace pipe!"

Though hampered by a lack of experienced players, the 1958 Southwest gridders, nevertheless, gained three victories and a tie. Their most thrilling achievement was licking a twelve year jinx by beating Shawnee-Mission, 13-12. Subsequent matches held much disappointment as the Indians faced and lost to the top four teams in the city. Against Lincoln the squad again found the winning way and followed up with a victory over Van Horn. Then, in the final game of the season, the warriors fought powerful Paseo to a tie. Next year our football prospects are brighter since many of the lettermen will be returning after a year of varsity experience.

The social whirl started off in full swing with the Homecoming Dance. Transformed into an autumn wonderland, the gymnasium was crowded with loyal Indians. The dance was climaxed by the crowning of the lovely queen, Marsha Arni, who was attended by Carol Coon, Dottie Dunlap, Sharrie Farrar, Andie Williams, Mary Jo Williams, and Lucinda Young. It was agreed by all who were present that the 1958 Homecoming Dance was the greatest ever.

Debby Young ROTC Queen

Valentine's Day lent its traditional atmosphere to this year's ROTC Ball. The dance, preceded by a delicious dinner at the Golden Ox, was held at the Temple B'nai Jehudah, where Miss Debby Young, Southwest's queen, and the queens of the other high schools marched with their escorts beneath crossed sabres. Serving as attendants to the queen were Marcia Bordman, Jane Bushfield, Linda Myers, Judy Sackin, Julie Shepherd, and Andie Williams. All who attended the ball felt that it was indeed one of the social highlights of this school year.

The ROTC unit of 1958-59 has excelled in many ways. Southwest's rifle team placed second in the city meet. In the Redskin Revels the Honor Guard was commended for its precision drill. Later in the year, at the ROTC circus, the drill team performed and the cadets presented an exciting wall-climbing act. With the emphasis on individual participation and physical prowess, the Annual Field Day was held at Southwest.

Individual members of the battalion also received honors. Allen Wyly was appointed head of Division G-4 on the All-City Division Staff, and Kit Washburn won first place in the City Rifle Meet. Southwest has every reason to be proud of its ROTC unit.

Art students play a vital part in the production of the Revels.

With the 1958 Redskin Revels our versatile students once again proved their worth. Taking as its theme "Your Land and My Land," the show built its story around the French exchange student, Jacques Bardot. The efforts of the performers, backed by the spirited direction and tireless work of the production staff, made for a pleasant evening's entertainment.

One of the high spots in the Revels is provided by the Male Octet.

From the first note of the overture the 1958 Revels gave promise of another great show. On his first day at Southwest, Jacques was greeted by a bevy of beautiful Indian maidens, our peppy cheerleaders, and the hard-practicing football team. With the Girls' Choir demonstrating, he noted the difference between American and French classes. As he progressed to the driver's education and instrumental music classes, Jacques learned about such things as notices from the office and the difficulties involved in learning to drive. From a grand ballroom in Paris to an old-fashioned country hoedown, the show sparkled with variety. At last, with the entire cast singing the stirring finale, another Redskin Revels was successfully ended.

The Girls' Choir and Girls' Glee Club make a striking scene as French schoolgirls.

Following an undistinguished league season, the basketball squad suddenly came to life in the State Regionals to win second place. In league play the Indians just missed a spot in the first division by dropping their last game to Manual. The team led the league in scoring, but unfortunately they were weak in defense.

Two players, Charles Hess and Dan Schmelzinger, won berths on the All-City Squad. With several lettermen returning, we can expect a better season next year.

Seen Around School

The year of the Sputniks and the Vanguard's witnessed some striking changes in the American scene. We finally beat Shawnee-Mission in football! Chemises and trapezes were going out of style (thank heaven), but ivy league seemed here to stay. On the academic side, accelerated math classes, working closely with the science department, hailed a new approach to science education. In addition, Southwest became the first school in the city to offer Russian and college credit in American History. Those people we saw wandering sleepily in our crowded halls were the chosen few who were privileged to attend 7:30 classes. With the new junior high rapidly going up, less crowded conditions were in sight for next year.

While this school year was definitely one of progress and change, not everything was radically different. We still had the good old Southwest routine. Assignments and tests competed with dances and dates for our valuable time. Seniors, after struggling through College Boards and entrance applications and research essays, looked back longingly on the carefree underclass years. Underclassmen, on the other hand, looked forward to the pampered life of seniors. High school years are all too short; and, true to form, the pleasant experiences of this one came to an abrupt close. Wherever we go and whatever we do, Southwest in '58 and '59 will be a time and a place we will always remember.

After a gay and very sociable dinner at the Country Club Christian Church, the members of ten literary societies gathered in the school auditorium to listen to the declamations and orations of their representatives. Summus attempted a clever entrance by marching in backwards. After the oral events were completed, a feeling of suspense and excitement mounted while the decisions of the judges were being tallied. Club songs were rendered until Mr. Cannon announced the winners of both oral and written events. Amid cheers and tears, Excelsior emerged triumphant for the second consecutive year with nine points while Z-A and Sesame tied for second place with seven points each. After congratulating the winners, members and sponsors returned home to recuperate and to plan their strategy for next year's contest.

The Southwest cindermen of 1957 were tagged by many as the "finest track team in the history of the school," but the speedsters of 1958 were no less than fabulous. The returning lettermen, bolstered by a group of great new stars, streaked through the season undefeated. They came in far ahead of the field in both the State Indoor and Outdoor meets. Then, for diversion, the thin-clads turned in winning performances at the St. Joseph Relays and the City Meet.

Coach Ewing, voted "Coach of the Year" by local sports writers, deserves special praise for guiding the Indians to their third state championship in four years. In the State Outdoor competition, the squad scored forty-two points, which gave them a twenty-two point margin over second place Ladue High School of St. Louis. The fleet-footed 880 relay team, timed third in the nation, easily broke the state record in that event. In the final triumph of the undefeated season, the Indians were tremendous, scoring 115 points at the City Meet. Without a doubt the '58 tracksters were the finest team in the history of the Southwest.

"Jarrin'" Jack Jackson puts it "way out there."

Here are 27 reasons why Coach Ewing was chosen "Coach of the Year."

Southwest Romps Through Track Season

It is impossible to speak of the 1958 track team except in superlatives. By the season's end, they were known as the best team in the region, possibly the best in the nation. The key to such a reputation lies in the excellent team balance.

First, the Indians had an invincible strength in track events. The dash men, led by Stu Paterson, were consistent winners. Jim Baker and John Laing garnered points in the 440 yard dash, an event in which Baker holds the state record. Throughout the season Southwest's teams broke record after record in the relays. The Indians excelled not only on the track, but also in the field. Paterson and Jack Prather in the broad jump usually placed high, often first and second, while in the pole vault and shot-put, the Indians won still more points. Even with such talent, a great coach is necessary to produce a championship team. Southwest was fortunate to have Coach Ewing, who ably brought the team together. Hence, it was inevitable that the 1958 track champions should reach the pinnacle of success and renown.

Council Voices Indians' Opinions

The Student Council has played an active and important role in school life. The many activities of this year's busy council included managing the school's first activity ticket plan, joining the Missouri Association of Student Councils, tabulating activity points, planning assemblies, supervising the foreign exchange campaign, and inaugurating a semester dance. An increased amount of the council's work has been channeled into committees, which have gained a new importance under the revised constitution.

Our Junior Red Cross Council has devoted another year to working for others. Mindful of the many traditions and worthy projects that have long been a part of the activities at Southwest, the chapter has continued to further such causes as the sending of chests of school supplies, toys, books, and various other useful articles to disaster areas of foreign countries. Members also sponsored the annual fund-raising drive and initiated the new disaster program and first aid course, designed to promote safety in the home and community. Southwest takes pride in the work of the Junior Red Cross.

The National Honor Society has the two-fold purpose of honoring outstanding seniors and of inspiring underclassmen to emulate their achievements. Scholastic rank in class is only one of the determining criteria used in selecting the candidates. Leadership, character, and service throughout all their high school years are given equal consideration. Election to the National Honor Society symbolizes noteworthy and memorable accomplishment in the four most valuable fields of endeavor. The moving initiation ceremony, held at a special assembly early in May, leaves a deep and lasting impression on the minds of all who are present.

Membership in Quill and Scroll, a national organization honoring high school journalists, is awarded to students in the upper third of their class who have made valuable contributions to the publication of the TRAIL and the SACHEM. This honor is given not only to the editorial staffs but also to business managers, photographers, and artists. Each year the Southwest chapter of the Quill and Scroll holds a ceremony at which the initiates receive their membership pins and are introduced to the purposes and aims of the organization.

Athena

*"S-U-C-C-E-S-S is the way you spell it—
here's the way you yell it!
Athena! Athena! Yes, yes, yes!"*

Athena is undoubtedly one of the few literary clubs at Southwest that has fashion shows during its meetings. It is not only usual but imperative that one or two Athenians model the newest spring fashions in Room 209. Instead of debating the literary merits of their essays and poems, the girls argue about outfits for the inter-literary contest with much zeal and enthusiasm, quite frequently having heated discussions as to style, price, or practicability. However, the members do become literary-minded once in a while, and their entries in the contest give the other clubs tough competition.

Delphi

Every other Wednesday afternoon, the merry voices of the enthusiastic Delphis can be heard trilling forth from their haven of intellectual pursuit, Room 400. One of the more exciting events for Miss Linn's girls this year was receiving their plaques from last year. Also, the members hope that their delightful Christmas party will become a tradition for future Yuletide celebrations. Amid the gay, mad rush of the social whirl, however, the girls found a few stray minutes in which to compose their scintillating entries for the contest. As the time drew near, the Delphis stood firmly united and highly optimistic in the hope of wresting the cup from the doughty Excelsiors.

"Delphi is the very best society!"

Excelsior

"We are Excelsiors—Best society on earth!"

This year the Excelsiors again strove to fulfill their name through "higher" accomplishments. Installing three presidents would have been highly irregular in any other club, but with the Excelsiors it may be written off as merely another attempt to outdo everyone else. Having been awarded the cup last year, the boys, although slightly bewildered, nevertheless were determined to retain its possession. To the amazement of their sponsor, the Excelsiors buckled down, worked, and actually demonstrated creditable ability with the pen. It seems they were just awaiting a suitable occasion to exhibit literary prowess; the contest on April 17 showed the remarkable results of their efforts.

Omega, which could facetiously be called the poets' club, really worked hard for the contest this year. Twenty-four of the thirty members wrote poems. Of course, it couldn't possibly be that during second semester the schoolwork piled up so high that a twelve-line poem was the result of the members' limited time. Oh no, Omega members, typical of all lit. clubs, just happen to be poetically inclined and especially proficient at verse containing the least possible number of lines. As well as being poets, the Omegas proved to be hearty eaters at their initiation dinner. Since the food arrived late, there was a brief period of frantic anxiety for its safe arrival.

Sappho

*"S-A-P-P-H-O—that's the way you spell Sappho!
And we're the club that's going to win!"*

The Sapphos of the green and gold spent another year working diligently toward their goal—the 1959 Lit. Cup. They began early in the year by asking various speakers to give them pointers on poetry, essay, short story writing, and oral compositions as well. The girls seemed particularly interested in Mr. Wilson's talk . . . hmmm. . . . Later, when all the preliminaries had been attended to, the members even got down to the real business of the literary contest—deciding what to wear. After several spirited and sometimes quite violent harangues, the costume was finally chosen. Although they began their last-minute contest preparations in a state of utter chaos, the Sapphos were ready to "win the cup of '59."

Best known for their verbosity and spirit, the Sesames are most likely to be found discussing the three big C's: Contest, Cup, and Costume. The members are united and agreeable on the first two issues; but in a group of some forty individualistic feminine minds, conflict always arises on the final item. Through the efforts of a calm and gentle referee, a compromise is effected, and all is soon running smoothly among the pink-and-white clad lasses in 311. So complete is their harmony that passers-by often hear the faint, angelic voices of descants, sopranos, and a few indispensable monotones as they rehearse in their own inimitable style their contest songs and—optimistically—their victory song.

Summus

*"Summus—We are the "very Best"!
Summus—We always meet the test!"*

The Summus meeting is mildly called to order by the highest officer who happens to wander into 402 by the merest accident. The group consists of an unusual assemblage of people who will argue over anything from the choosing of a song committee to the purchase of a king-sized historian's book. Activities and discussion of matters literary seem to be purely coincidental, and yet these quiet, unassuming lads may surprise their peers by capturing a few medals in the contest. After a typical meeting there are, of course, no refreshments at all. So the most important item of business is "I move we adjourn."

A drastic reformation took place this year in the Thalian spirit. Instead of spending several meetings discussing the length of the strand of pearls each girl should wear for the plaque portrait, the members dispensed with this vital matter by not having plaques. Someone discovered that Thalian had come in second in the '49 Literary Contest and had won medals in every event. Deciding to come out of hibernation, the protégés of Thalia settled down to writing, revising, and criticizing their magna opera. Whether the results are successful remains to be seen, but, at least, they deserve an E for effort.

Veda

"Rah! rah! rah! rah! Vedas, fall in line, We're going to win that contest sure this time!"

The Vedas had a gay time this year! Though they bade their beloved, enthusiastic, wise, delightful Mrs. Flory goodbye, they made certain she'd stay as a lifetime member-sponsor. Meanwhile, the girls welcomed Mrs. Dolson with an astounding variety of tribulations, showing the limitlessness of vicissitudes which can befall one—or several—the whole club, in fact. And youthful ebullience triumphed. They wrote this year, too: essays, songs, drafts, one, two, and three. And if they didn't contribute anything immortal to world literature—though who knows, for some of their bits were gems—they became closer friends than they might have in a year and more ascetically dedicated to creativity.

When you see cases of coke and boxes of candy bars being taken into room 203 on Wednesday afternoon, you may be sure that the Z-A's are about to have a session. The boys simply can't concentrate on ways and means of winning back the cup from Excelsior without nourishment. Food for thought, shall we say? And if you hear weird sounds coming up through the ventilators, you will know the members are practicing their songs, which they still will not know by the night of the contest. Cheer up, boys! Though singing may not be your forte, winning medals and cups is.

The work of the stage crew is a vital part of every school production. These unsung heroes often devote long hours outside of school to such thankless tasks as scenery construction, operation of stage lights, and maintenance of microphones. Although they are always behind the scene, the stage crew members are indispensable to the technical workings of all Southwest presentations.

And Arguments

This year the Southwest Debate Team, under the direction of Miss Grace Breen, again participated actively in city-wide competition. Chosen from the top students of the speech classes, the members made creditable showings in interscholastic debate tournaments at William Chrisman and Rockhurst high schools. Debating problems in American education, the team gained valuable experience in presentation of material and quick thinking.

Le Tricolore

Tout homme a deux pays, le sien et suis la France.

The pièce de résistance of Le Tricolore's activities is a superb French dinner held each spring. The food committee consults the finest French cookbooks to select delicacies originated by a people famous for their skill in the culinary arts. Such tantalizing and mouth-watering dishes as soupe à l'oignon, poulet au cloître, profiteroles au chocolat were served at the dinner held at Ann Houston's home. It is rumored that Antoine has sent a special messenger to room 302 for the purpose of acquiring some new recipes for his well-known restaurant. The entertainment at the party, also of Gallic flavor, consisted of songs, a sketch of the life of Jeanne d'Arc by several members, and an amusing playlet. Vive le Tricolore!

Socii Latini

Labor omnia vincit.

Just as Gaius Julius Caesar marched victoriously into the Helvetian campaign, so the charter members of Socii Latini, toga-clad, drove their three-hundred horsepower chariots on March 7 to the annual Junior Classical League Convention, held this year at Raytown High School. Under the sponsorship of Miss Anderson, the Socii Latini represented Southwest brilliantly, and its members had a highly enjoyable day of feasting and entertainment. The seniors evidently absorbed a bit of Caesar's dauntless courage and determination; for, after the banquet, still toga-clad and in high spirits, they pervaded the downtown library to find material for their research essays.

If you should hear strange, unintelligible mutterings as you amble through the halls, fear not; for it is only Russian students practicing their vocabulary. Or if you should cross paths with folk dancers or hear the deep, penetrating chords of Rachmaninoff, you will know the Russian Club is enjoying native culture. The feminine members even tried their hand at Russian cooking, and judging by the enthusiasm of the boys who sampled the delectable morsels, the cookies and pastries were a definite success.

Organized to develop and promote active interest and participation in the various engineering fields, the Engineers' Club offers a wealth of information and ideas to its members. At the bi-monthly meetings the program includes films on some phase of engineering, discussions of pertinent questions, or perhaps a guest speaker. In addition, the members often can be found on field trips, wandering through a Kansas City plant or places of scientific interest. The climax of each year is the annual spring picnic, where prospective initiates meet the club members and all enjoy games and refreshments.

Projects ranging in subject matter from the psychology of rats to the uses of nuclear energy were exhibited March 21 at the Southwest Science Fair. Imagination, initiative, and perseverance were strong factors in the development of the winning projects; and, of course, the all important "elbow grease" was used heavily by the winners. Bill De Atley received the Grand Award trophy for his study of antibiotics, and four other Southwest students won first place in their respective divisions: Dave Foster, Senior Physical; Sally Peck, Junior Physiographical; David Cohn, Junior Biological; and Dale Taylor, Junior Physical. Southwest takes much pride in the excellent work of these young scientists.

The Hestians enjoyed varied and numerous activities throughout the year. Besides their annual service project, which this year included collecting toys and books for the Guadalupe Center, the girls had many purely recreational activities. The senior picnic and roller skating party were delightful except for the poison ivy and the usual bumps and bruises. Chili and Italian pizza were two of the specialties served at their initiation dinner by these future homemakers. Two of the most enjoyable programs were presented by guest speakers from Audrey's Modeling School and the Easterling Sterling Company.

It has been stated that the purpose of the Chess Club is learning to play chess. This is the only organization in our school whose aim is wholly recreational. Its motto is "All play and no work." There are no field trips, no educational movies, no papers to write, no speeches to deliver. The members assemble simply to relax, to escape from the daily grind, and to give their undivided attention to a fascinating and time-honored game: namely, chess.

The newly reorganized Art Club began its year with a fascinating trip through the Hallmark Card Company. After the trip many members had dreams of working in that delightful, modern building, designing cards for the famous crown. Preceding the Redskin Revels and Carousel, many of the club's members put in extra and hectic hours working on scenery. Often the painters seemed to leave school looking more like scenery than the scenery itself. At one special meeting members had a chance to learn the technique needed for expert painting, as Mr. Blair deftly demonstrated how to apply oils to canvas. Several hard-working Rembrandts later entered masterpieces in the Scholastic Art Show and won well-earned gold keys and merits.

At last! A plan to help the teachers at Southwest has finally been put into operation. During their study hall periods, FTA members have made their services available to the faculty by grading papers, doing clerical work, and running errands. The club's work has helped our busy faculty immensely, and the young careerists have enjoyed every minute of it. Such practical experience should prove invaluable to them both now and in later years. Judging from a talk given by the personable Mr. "Ken" Wilson, the girls have concluded that the life of a teacher is highly eventful, often amusing, never dull.

Scherzo was off to a roaring start—or should we say crescendo?—under the auspices of a new constitution. Many activities were added to an already extensive list, such as talks on summer experiences at music camps, lectures on hi-fi and other topics of interest to musicians, a painless dose of musical history via a comical sketch, a trip through a pipe organ factory, and a moonlit hayride. The only regrets were that three skating parties had to be cancelled. The reason: no ice.

"All the world's a stage," according to our friend Shakespeare, and perhaps no group is in more hearty agreement than the Spotlighters. There is something about the smell of grease paint, the glare of footlights, and the applause of the audience that gets into the blood, so to speak. With the help of twenty-one initiates, the members presented a riotous one-act play, "How to Propose," for an assembly program. Of course, the senior play was the highlight of the year, and what could be more enjoyable than rehearsing for "The Man Who Came to Dinner"? Altogether, this is an active, enthusiastic, and sociable group that flourishes best in the spotlight.

How would Southwest function as smoothly and efficiently as it does now, without our service committees? Many of our students spend at least one hour a day helping the office force, the school treasurer, the audio-visual department, or the cafeteria. The contribution of time and effort on the part of these students is certainly most deserving of our appreciation and commendation.

Male Chorus Rises And Shines

The Southwest Concert Choir has in past years enjoyed a position of esteem, not only here at school but even throughout the state. The outstanding performances of this select group in such school-sponsored events as the Redskin Revels, Christmas Vespers, operetta, various assemblies, and the inspiring Baccalaureate and Commencement services are always received with praise. This year the fame of the Concert Choir spread through the Midwest as it was chosen to represent Missouri and six other Midwestern states at the Music Educators National Conference, held in Wichita, Kansas. The engagement presented to the Choir a challenge met with the usual skill and enthusiasm which this excellent group always exhibits.

Contributing fine performances to a variety of school programs and outside engagements, the Girls' Choir consistently proved itself an active and hard-working organization. In the Redskin Revels, the girls captivated the audience by their portrayals of French schoolgirls. Performances in the Christmas Vesper Service, Carousel, and the All-City Glee Club Festival were other activities of the group. In addition to using their vocal talents, several of the members participated in various kinds of production work. The Girls' Choir is just one of the many organizations that contribute to the fame of the Southwest music department.

For those who are more seriously interested in vocal music, Southwest offers membership in three small groups. The Southwest Singers, a mixed ensemble chosen from the Concert Choir, won praise for performances in the Redskin Revels, Christmas Vespers, and Spring Concert. Also directed by Mr. Bishop, the Male Octet provided real enjoyment for its listeners. The Indian Belles, under the direction of Miss Davidson, not only performed in school activities, but sang at several outside functions. As shown by their high ratings at the state music contest, these three accomplished groups possess evident talent and ability.

One of the less-recognized and more praise-worthy organizations in our school is the orchestra. Few Southwest students realize the great amount of outside work and practice that goes into its final performances. This year the orchestra participated in the Redskin Revels, Christmas Musicales, Carousel, and the All-City Orchestra Festival. Perhaps the most important activity for the members themselves is the state music contest, which is held at the University of Missouri every spring. Here the usual high ratings received by the performers gained statewide recognition for Southwest.

Band Builds Spirit

The hardest organization in the music department is our band. On almost any morning of the fall or spring the band members can be seen practicing on the track. Even in chill weather, the band faithfully appeared at the football games, giving that added pep and spirit whenever they were needed. When not braving the outdoors, the group found time to perform in the Spring Concert, All-City Band Festival, and state music contest. Southwest is indeed fortunate to possess such a lively and enthusiastic organization.

A successful homecoming dance, appropriately using "Autumn Harvest" as the theme, was one of the many projects that made 1958-1959 an active Pep Club year. Wearing new black sweaters, one hundred and fifty senior girls, bolstered by three hundred and fifty underclass girls, attended every sports event and boosted the morale of our teams. Decals, designed by art students and sold by the Pep Club, became popular at once and are now seen ubiquitously on Southwest cars. The members of this lively organization spent an eventful year and really worked hard to maintain our fine school spirit.

B-Teams Have Successful Year

In both football and basketball the Southwest B-teams fared well. After a slow start, the football team took four straight games. Excelling in size and speed, the young Indians progressed rapidly through the season. The all-sophomore basketball B-team ended the season with five victories and only two losses in league play. Strong on offense, the cagers were sometimes troubled by a weak defense. Recognition should be given to Coach Harryman for his fine job in guiding both teams. Next year, Southwest can look forward to strong varsity teams bolstered by this year's B-team stars.

Any student who happened to pass by Room 303A during second hour would be amazed to hear such queries as "Does that cut bleed?" or "Do you think this panel should run to the gutter?" This, however, was not the nurse's office or a woodworking class, but the Sachem room. This terminology peculiar to year-book production became an integral part of the staff's vocabulary as they diligently worked to prepare a Sachem that would include a comprehensive and interesting record of the events and the people at Southwest this year.

Underclass representatives Sandi Logan, Sherry Ruskin, and Betsy Jackson scan previous Sachems.

ALBERT H. MONSEES

Principal 1925-1950

“A teacher affects eternity; he can never tell where his influence stops.”
—Henry Brooks Adams

Always devoted to the interests and welfare of students and faculty, Mr. A. H. Monsees, who died on May 13, 1958, will long be remembered not only as the first principal of Southwest but also as a friend and counselor. In his capacity as an educational administrator, he touched the lives of thousands of young people. Southwest's nation-wide recognition as a school of high scholastic attainment may be attributed, in a large degree, to the man who established and directed its policies for twenty-five years. He was a man of high ideals and integrity of character, dedicated to his profession, esteemed by all who knew him.

The photograph above is a reproduction of the oil portrait, painted by Mr. Dwight Roberts, which was given to the school by alumni and faculty as a memorial to Mr. Monsees.

W. LAWRENCE CANNON

Principal

As the future unfolds, you will remember Southwest for many reasons because school is a strong, influencing factor in the life of each of us. Certainly, in later years, you will recall many vivid scenes from your high school years—friendships and accomplishments, happy moments and serious ones. The book you are now reading will call to mind a wealth of these memories; but neither the Sachem nor any other book can represent that intangible growth through experience, the most important benefit any school is able to bestow. In the future, you will look back with nostalgia upon the years of work and play at Southwest as an important and stimulating phase of your life—a time and a place you will always remember.

His keen interest in high school pupils and his understanding of their educational needs and problems; his sympathy, and counsel given to teachers; his zeal and enthusiasm for education—have found a broader scope now that Mr. Gordon E. Leonard J. Western
Speech

Miss Florence Wray, a teacher of English at Southwest for many years, died on October 28, 1958. She was known for her interest in literature.

"And is he dead, whose glorious mind
Lifts thine on high?—
To live in the hearts we leave behind
Is not to die."

In geometry we learn that the whole is equal to the sum of all its parts. Likewise, the student body here at Southwest is the aggregate of five classes, from the eighth grade through the senior year, each with its own characteristics and interests. The confusion of the eighth graders is soon dispelled by their orientation into high school life through the helpful guidance of their common learnings teachers. Feeling still somewhat unsure of themselves, the freshmen add electives to their required subjects and explore the advantages of literary societies and departmental clubs. Sophomores go through that stage when they know it all—or think they do. Juniors begin to realize that graduation is not far off and that it might be a good idea to investigate college entrance requirements. At long last, the senior year arrives, a full, busy, exciting, and unforgettable year that passes much too swiftly and soon becomes a series of memories that will be treasured for a lifetime. Yes, these five years are a period of change and growth, of work and play—a time and a place we will always remember.

Junior Business Committee

Chairman	Bob Waldo
Secretary-Treasurer	Barry Altman
Sponsor	Mr. Robert B. Armour

Four years ago the Student Council created the Junior Business Committee. In the ensuing years this committee has become an integral part of the school. Serving as an advisory board in all junior class activities, it gives considerable time and assistance to the Senior Business Committee in the planning of the Junior-Senior Prom, its major project of the year. The following members were appointed to serve on the Prom committees: theme and decoration, Barry Cox, Carolyn Steele, Sally Williams; publicity, Dianne Turner, Jane Bushfield, Barry Altman; refreshments, Jack Ross, Debbie Young, Bob Waldo; entertainment, Gary Altman, Marcia Bordman, Harvey Kaplan. Through their work on the committee, these twelve juniors gain valuable experience in leadership.

The class of 1959 has more than lived up to the traditions and standards set by previous senior classes at Southwest. This year it had fourteen National Merit Scholarship Finalists, a higher number than in any former year. One of our cadets was selected for the city-wide ROTC division staff. Several Southwest lettermen made All-City and All-District athletic teams. Our seniors received high ratings at the state music contests and in the Regional Scholastic Art Exhibition. Southwest students were elected to high offices on the All-City Red Cross Council and Student Council. The seniors this year have added a great deal to Southwest's outstanding reputation and, in turn, have benefited from their education in one of the finest high schools in the United States.

The Senior Business Committee

Early each year the seniors elect twenty representatives to the Senior Business Committee. This committee is then subdivided into eight smaller groups whose duties are these: selecting class officer candidates, planning the gift, and arranging commencement exercises and the Junior-Senior Prom. Election to the committee signifies all-around leadership and capability.

Someday—perhaps ten or twenty years hence—the 1959 graduates may glance back at the pictures of the out-standing members of their class chosen by their own ballot. The recognition received in the senior ballot points up such intangible qualities as personality, the ability to get along well with others, and the aptitude for making friends. Although the results of the balloting in some divisions were very close, the seniors pictured on these pages have been voted the most representative of this year's class.
