This was the year that was . . . Southwest's enrollment swelled to 2200 . . . We moved into the new addition and used the new labs and classroom facilities . . . Our football team was one of four to share in the league championship . . . The daily bulletin replaced the homeroom bulletin. This was the year of the cafeteria conveyor belt, the intercom system, and wooden hall passes. In the field of scholastic achievement, this was the year that Southwest had twelve National Merit Finalists . . . Ten per cent of the seniors had at least a 4.0 grade average. The graduating class had five hundred members . . . Commencement exercises were held in Municipal Auditorium. This was the year that the death of our President made all of us aware of our personal responsibilities for dedicating ourselves to the ideals of personal freedom and world peace that he stood for . . . To these ideals that were his and to this year that was ours, this 1964 Sachem is dedicated.

W. LAWRENCE CANNON

Principal

Another year has passed and seniors will leave the familiar halls of our beloved school to start a new epoch in their lives. In a true sense this Sachem is dedicated to the graduates because they have lived most of the experiences recorded on the pages of this book. We are certain that in the years to come we will look through our 1964 school annual many times to recall the memorable events preserved herein. This could well be your most wonderful year with achievements and acquaintances you have made richly contributing to your future happiness and successes.

The highest honor Southwest can bestow upon its students is membership in the National Honor Society. Each member in this selective group has demonstrated his excellence in scholarship, character, leadership, and service. To be eligible, the candidate must rank scholastically in the top fifteen per cent of the senior class or in the top three per cent of the junior class. Early in May, the new members were initiated in an inspiring assembly conducted by students who had been selected as juniors the previous year.

Before school began in September, the Summer Activities Council worked diligently to prepare for the fall semester. The Path, orientation day, the book exchange, and the new numbers for all the classrooms were projects of the group. In November the newly-elected Council sponsored the magazine sale, the proceeds of which will pay the way for next year's foreign exchange students. The annual Christmas card exchange was operated out of the new Student Council office. A Hootenanny was sponsored as a money-raising project following the semester break. In the spring the Council sent six representatives to the M.A.S.C. Convention in Columbia, Missouri, to learn about the workings of other student councils. As an innovation this year, the Back-To-School, Christmas, and Spring Dances were held in the new cafeteria. For City Hall Day, Cecil Phillips was selected as City Manager, acting as a fine representative for Southwest High School.

The first activity of the Red Cross, the Baby Doll Dance, had a new twist this year—a king, Mr. Ben Turec. After the dance the Council concentrated on filling the Veterans Hospital stockings and the overseas chests, adopting ten Christmas families for the entire school, and sending representatives to various conventions. Ten delegates went to Unity Village for a weekend to meet all the area foreign exchange students. Members were also sent to the district safety conference at Shawnee-Mission North High School and the state safety conference at Jefferson City. There, Southwest was elected president school of the Missouri Youth Traffic Safety Congress. The Red Cross, following in its usual tradition, led various money-raising drives, including the March of Dimes, the United Campaign, and the Red Cross Membership Drive. In the spring the Council and the Trail co-sponsored Safety Week. During this period a safety slogan was selected, driver education equipment was displayed in the Little Theater, and the Drive-O-Rater was obtained from the police department for demonstrations. In May the Red Cross sponsored the refreshment stand at the Carnival as it has in past years.

Pep Club, Southwest's largest club, acts as the nucleus for school spirit. All students, including boys, are urged to join this popular group. The standard uniform for girls is a black skirt and sweater or crop-top with the Indian symbol.

The officers revised the constitution last summer so that the majority of the business is now conducted by the executive board instead of by the entire club. The executive board consists of the officers, the cheerleaders, and the class captains and representatives. This division leaves the meetings for group activities.

Also reorganized this year was the drill team. From the 150 girls who tried out in the fall, thirty-two regulars and eight alternates were chosen. Their new uniforms are black skirt and white sweater with an orange S. The group has performed at more games—football and basketball—than ever before.

Other activities of the Pep Club have been the Homecoming Dance, the Basketball Dance, several pep assemblies, the selection of Varsity and B-Team cheerleaders, and a flash card performance at one football game.

Literary Societies

Revising the organization of the literary society activity has been one of the main tasks this year. Winning the contest was still the prime goal of each club, but the process was changed.

In the fall it was decided that the ten existing clubs were not enough to accommodate all the prospective members. As a result, two new clubs were formed; they were named Alethea and Aurora. Since the traditional Sunday tea was deemed impractical for such a large group, a coke party after school in the new cafeteria was held instead. After the new members were initiated, a rash of breakfasts, barbecues, pizza parties and Italian dinners ensued.

Later in the year the increased size and number of societies demanded other changes. Scarcity of judges made it necessary to reduce the number of entries of each club to five, one in each division. Also, the contest itself was becoming longer and longer as an oration and a declamation were added for each new society. To solve this problem, the orations were given the Wednesday before the contest night, thus shortening the actual final contest time by approximately an hour and a half.

As there are more than five hundred literary society members, finding a place to hold the annual pre-contest dinner was difficult. In the end, the banquet was held in the new cafeteria; caterers and table decorations disguised the familiar setting.

The auditorium, transformed with crepe paper and flowers in a rainbow of colors, was the scene of the contest. Each club marched in singing its own praises. The declamations were heard and a tense half-hour followed as the judges made their final decision. Amid exclamations of joy and sorrow, the 1964 cup was awarded to Delphi, Sesame and Zend-Avesta.

The Law Club this year continued its policy of obtaining outstanding speakers to further their knowledge of the legal profession. Not content with the status quo of social events, the members had two dinners and held a dance at Lake Lotawana. As an innovation, the club challenged other clubs and their own alumni to a game of football.

Although artistic interest is the most important requirement for membership in the Southwest Art Club, members must also be taking or have taken art and received at least an S. To further their interests, enjoyable and informative programs were held at the bi-weekly meetings. Set design and interior decorating were topics for guest speakers during the year. In addition, the group attended the Thomas Hart Benton art exhibit at the Nelson Gallery, and in October went to the American Royal to sketch scenes there. During the Christmas season decorations were made for the tree in the cafeteria. Members of this club have entered and won in many Scholastic Art Contests, proving themselves fine representatives of Southwest.

Science Club

The main activity of the Science Club is their fair held each spring. During the fall semester, programs were planned which helped to furnish ideas for projects that would be entered. In this year's fair nearly forty entries were displayed in Mr. Stark's room on March 13th and 14th. The grand award this year went to Harold Greenbaum's project—"The Overwintering Arthropoda in The Staghorn Sumac". Those judged best were entered in the annual Greater Kansas City Science Fair held in the Municipal Auditorium.

Scherzo

The programs and activities of Scherzo are based on the musical interest of its members. They listened to recordings of Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto and the Russian Easter Overture; members presented a program of jazz; and Mrs. Diane Berlind, second violinist of the Mid-America String Quartet, gave a demonstration of various musical styles to the club. Certainly they have run the gamut of musical variety. In service to others, Scherzo was in charge of the Philharmonic assembly here at school and went Christmas caroling at St. Mary's Hospital.

The prime activity of the Synchronized Swim Club is the show they present every spring in the school swimming pool. This event has become so popular that three performances are necessary. "Colors" was the theme of this year's show. Each girl, either in a solo or in a group, presented a routine, related to some aspect of the theme. As a finale the entire club swam to "Over The Rainbow". It was obvious that many long hours of diligent practice went into this show. As a break from their hard work the club had a pot luck dinner before Christmas.

The French Club was very lucky this year in that some of its members had gone to France last summer. These travelers presented a program for the club, showing slides of their tours and relating their experiences. Planned for other meetings were speakers and films about Europe. The two annual projects of the French Club—the Christmas party and the spring dinner—were both great successes this year. To augment this schedule the club co-sponsored a Christmas family and a carnival booth.

The Latin Club was one group which tried to apply its language actively this year. For programs, they played "Categories" and "paper bag" dramatics on classical subjects, and also celebrated Virgil's birthday. Just before the Christmas holidays the club held its annual Saturnalia dinner. This year the jovial Romans invaded Jane Williams' home for their feast. In April the members attended the regional convention of the Junior Classical League. Here they presented a skit, written for the occasion by Larry Millman.

To broaden their knowledge of Spanish culture, the members of the Spanish Club have participated in various exciting activities. A delicious dinner at the Our Lady of Mercy Convent was especially enjoyed. Christmas festivities included the club's annual fiesta for other school clubs, complete with pinata. The group also co-sponsored a Christmas family. To strengthen their fluency in the language, the members of the Spanish Club presented one-act comedies at the meetings. The final activity of the group was an interesting and informative visit to Guadalupe Center.

At the beginning of the fall semester the German Club sent a tape of greetings to Einhard-Gymnasium in Aachen, Germany. Dieter Bischoff, our I.C.Y.E. student this year, had attended school there. After this the club divided into groups responsible for presenting programs at the meetings. In February they attended the Kansas City Philharmonic performance of Beethoven's "Choral" Symphony. As a spring project, the group made a trip to Hermann, Missouri, a town famous for its traditional German culture.

The Lettermen's Club takes in members throughout the year—lettermen in every sport. Their activities covered a wide range this season, mostly for the benefit of the entire student body. They sponsored a dance in the fall and the Flush-O-Throw again at the Spring Carnival. The boys also sold orange and black pens with the basketball schedule on them to boost their treasury. On several spring Saturday afternoons, these muscular fellows could be seen in the alley behind the school washing cars. The proceeds were used to purchase a whirlpool bath, which is, supposedly, excellent for relaxing tense athletes. These boys have shown the ability to apply themselves for the good of their sport, and above all, the good of Southwest.

The International Club, organized only last year, has been active in developing contacts with other schools throughout the world. Through its affiliation with the People-to-People program, the club acquired three sister schools, one each in Ghana, Sweden, and the Philippines. The members sent a scrapbook about Southwest to these schools; it included prize-winning entries from literary contests and from science, art, and math exhibits. The group also participated in activities of the American Field Service. They joined with the Student Council in sponsoring an A.F.S. day to allow all the area foreign exchange students to visit Southwest. Many of the meetings during the year featured guests who spoke on international problems.

SPORTS

Football

After completing last year's schedule in second place in the Interscholastic League, the Southwest football team went on to capture a share of the 1963 season championship. Every student at Southwest should be proud of the Tribe's excellent showing, and we should give credit to the team and the coaches for their good work.

Southwest began the season with a 31 to 7 victory over Center in a non-league game. This game, however, proved more costly than was realized at first; many of the more experienced members of the squad were injured in the game. Despite their bad luck the Indians managed to make a close contest of the first league encounter.

With nearly the entire team in sound condition again, the Tribe began one of its most impressive string of victories in many years. In three successive shutouts over Lincoln, East, and Van Horn, and after allowing Northeast only one score, the Tribe had out-scored its opponents by 133 points.

One of the most exciting moments of the year came in the Southeast game, actually the deciding contest of the season. Southwest went into the game tied with Southeast and closely followed by Manual and Central in league standings. The final quarter started with the Knights in possession of the ball and leading 19 to 12; hopes were fading for the 2500 Southwest fans. Under the severest pressure the Indians scored the touchdown and the extra point to tie the score. Had the team lost the game it would have dropped to fourth place.

The Indians defeated Westport in the last league game of the season to clinch a first place tie. Although the Tribe lost to Rockhurst by one touchdown in its final game, Southwest finished a most successful season with a rank of fifth in the city standings. With 14 points in the right places Southwest would have been undefeated and probably first in the Kansas City area.

This year's squad had many players selected for positions on the various city all-star teams. Alan Potter and Dennis Rains were selected for the first team on the Interscholastic League All-Star team; Randy Stiles and Bill Waldo were chosen for the second team; Mike Briggs, Mike Callahan, Harry Coe, Chuck Falkenberg, George Hansen, John Minturn, and Dan Throckmorton were given honorable mention. On the All-District All-Star team, John Minturn, Alan Potter, and Dennis Rains were selected for the first team; Bill Waldo, for the second team; and Randy Stiles was given an honorable mention. Dennis Rains was chosen for the second team on the Missouri All-State All-Star team, while John Minturn and Alan Potter received honorable mention.

Roger Kreuter and Randy Stiles lead the team out.

Basketball

The 1964 basketball squad's record is one of marked improvement over that of the last two years. The team had a winning record in both league and non-league games, compared with losing finishes the last two years. The team's fine performance represented Southwest's winning spirit in all activities this year.

The Indians started the season with a second place finish in the Pem-Day Tournament; by the time the league games began they had some valuable experience behind them. Southwest started with two straight victories in league competition over Northeast and Lincoln, and went on to compile a 5 and 4 record for a fourth place tie in the Interscholastic League. Over-all, the Tribe's record was 12 wins and 10 losses.

Coach Kipp's team had many fine individual performances throughout the season, and a few boys were honored through their selections to the various all-star teams in the area. Fritz Ziegler was selected to the second team All-League All-Star Squad; and Harry Coe, Bill Griesel, and Randy Stiles were given honorable mention. Randy Stiles and Fritz Ziegler were accorded honorable mention on the All-District All-Star Team.

Harry Coe releases a jump shot for 2 points.

Basketball Dance

This year's Basketball Dance was set to the theme of the Mardi Gras; the music was provided by Andy Ashbridge's Band. The highlight of the evening came at eleven o'clock when Mr. Greenstreet crowned Anna Lee Irwin the new Basketball Queen. After the ceremony all students took part in tearing down the decorations; the party continued until twelve o'clock.

Track

Southwest's 1964 track squad brought much pleasure to its loyal fans and another successful season to an Indian team. In pre-season competition Southwest did better than expected, and in Interscholastic League meets made a respectable showing. This year's team rounded out a winning showing for all Southwest teams.

They were led by many people in the different events. John McBain could usually be counted on for a victory in the 440-yard dash, and the relay teams could be expected to win at least one event. Harry Coe normally placed in the hurdles events, while Scott Curry did well in the pole vault. Throughout the year the squad provided much excitement with its upset-minded team.

OKLAHOMA!

The days when Oklahoma was still a territory were recreated on the Southwest stage March 6 and 7 when the combined talents of the music, art, and drama departments and the work of the stage crew produced this year's operetta, Oklahoma! The story of Curly and Laurey provides a backdrop for the favorite songs of this musical. Both possessing the pride and independence characteristic of "Territory Folk," they refuse to admit the love they have for each other. Even when Curly hires a "Surrey With the Fringe on Top," Laurey refuses to go to the party with him. Curly's boasting had made her accept an unwanted invitation from the sinister hired hand, Jud Fry. The dejected spirit this decision brings to them is broken when Ali Hakim, the Persian peddler, comes to the Williams' place. Aunt Eller, the matronly guardian, seizes this opportunity to tell Mr. Hakim just what she thinks of a man who would sell her an eggbeater which performed none of the wondrous tasks for which it was guaranteed. Comedy prevails when smooth-talking Ali makes a peace offering of red garters.

In another part of the Williams' farm, tension is brewing. Unwilling to allow Jud to continue to bother Laurey, Curly pays a call on him to make it clear he will not get Laurey. Again the tension is relieved by Ali Hakim who has a problem of his own. It seems that Ado Annie, by her scheming, has forced Ali to make a very reluctant proposal of marriage. This development makes two men very unhappy: Ali Hakim, who feels that he has been "Trapped," and Will Parker, the promising young cowboy who has just returned from Kansas City where he earned, and immediately lost, the fifty dollars needed to win Ado Annie's hand. Accustomed to making deals, the peddler seizes the opportunity to return Will to the favor of Annie's pa by purchasing the gifts Will had bought for Annie. Will is now sure to get the flighty Annie's hand, and tells her that she must stop running around; with him "It's All or Nothin'." While these two are working out their difficulties, Curly and Laurey find each other. At the party which Laurey attends with Jud, she is frightened by Jud's threats. Running to Curly for help, she finally admits just how much she needs him. Curly at last has courage to ask her to marry him—a proposal which is immediately accepted. When the neighbors gather to celebrate the marriage, they are surprised with the announcement of another union. Gertie Cummings appears with the peddler's ring on her finger. Will decides to kiss Ali's bride, and Ado Annie then engages Gertie in a hair-pulling battle. This minor incident is overshadowed by another more serious encounter. Curly kills Jud when the embittered man pulls a knife on him. Not willing to let Curly be taken to jail, Aunt Eller insists that with the judge and witnesses present, the trial can be held on the spot. Curly's action is ruled self-defense, and he and his new wife are free to start life together in what will soon be the new state of Oklahoma.

The Concert Choir, perhaps the most active organization at Southwest, has again demonstrated its artistry and excellence. The carefully selected 129 members began the year with a series of performances that included the traditional Thanksgiving and Christmas assemblies and, of course, Redskin Revels. This year's Choir will be long remembered for its stirring rendition of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic". In the spring a record was made of highlights from the Choir's many performances, not only during the fall but also at Easter, baccalaureate, and graduation. In April four buses took the entire choir to the District Music Contest in Warrensburg to compete successfully for an Honor Rating of I. Chosen from the Choir are the Male Octet, Indian Belles, and Trio. Each of these ensembles has performed for several outside groups and has been lauded for its excellent and unusual quality, skill, and versatility.

Music groups at Southwest come in many sizes and assortments. One of the most active is the eighty-nine voice Girls' Choir who, in their vibrant red dresses, performed innumerable programs for various audiences. Besides their extensive schedule of Redskin Revels rehearsals, Christmas and Easter Vespers, assemblies, District Contest, and City Glee Club Festival, this group also shared a side of the vocal music department's annual record. Highlights of their musical endeavors for 1963-64 were the learning of Handel's "Hallelujah Chorus" for the combined orchestra-chorus presentation and the well-deserved Honor Rating of I at the Warrensburg Contest. A sextet was chosen from the Girls' Choir to perform at District Contest. They put in much extra rehearsal time and were also rewarded with a high rating.

"We are the greatest!" claims the Southwest band and the student body readily agrees. An invitation to the band to play at the N.A.I.A. basketball tournament quarter finals, as well as the high rating this group received at the All-City Band Festival, easily support the band's slogan. Along with the honors, the band made other contributions to the school such as performing at assemblies and providing entertaining half-time shows at the football games. This year they extended their athletic events activities by forming a pep band for the basketball games. Also included on the band's busy schedule for 1963-64 were the Winter and Spring Concerts; the Thanksgiving, Christmas, and Easter Vespers; and the Westport and American Royal Parades. But the true test of the endurance of our musicians came at the end of the year when the band filled the spot traditionally held by the orchestra and furnished thirty non-stop rounds of "Pomp and Circumstance" as Southwest graduated the Class of 1964.

Early in the fall the orchestra members loaded themselves and their instruments on buses for Warrensburg where they presented a program for the Central Missouri District Teachers Association. Immediately after this performance, the orchestra focused attention on Redskin Revels. Next came the Christmas Vespers, Music Assembly, and the Winter Concert. Second semester meant a continuation of this heavy schedule as the orchestra members found themselves attending evening and Saturday rehearsals for Oklahoma! at the same time that they were practicing for the All-City Orchestra Festival and the City, District, and State Music Contests for solos and ensembles. But no one pushed the panic button and the orchestra came out with a straight "A" rating at the festival and seventeen "1" ratings at the District Contest. An erasing party after the final performance of Oklahoma! made short work of the tedious job of removing the many directions scribbled on each page of music to remind an instrumentalist of an approaching cut or other hazard and also added fun to the year. Finishing 1963-64 as tradition dictated, the orchestra participated in the Spring Concert and the National Honor Society initiation.

REDSKIN REVELS

Reminiscing of the days of real entertainment—the "good old days" of vaudeville—Grandpa, played by Jim Hebenstreit, stubbornly refuses when his teenage granddaughter Maybelle, portrayed by Marilyn Belove, begs him to go with her to the rock'n'roll show coming to town. Maybelle, determined that Grandpa should see just how good today's entertainment really is, insists that he go, but Grandpa has other ideas. Declaring that he "doesn't know what this younger generation is coming to," Grandpa tells Maybelle of the times when he managed the Lowell Theater which hosted the acts playing the Orpheum Circuit. The acts, through the talents of Southwest students, come alive on stage. The curtain goes up and Janette and Jeanine Brown step out in the costume of the Ziegfield Dancers to introduce the big name entertainers who frequented the Lowell. Such eminent people as Al Jolson were part of the program, and Frank Lang recalls the unique style of that renowned performer. Comedy also was a part of the theater in those days. Jill Ronai and Bennie Turec humorously dramatize the difficulties a redhead can cause when she comes between a high school boy and his girl. Taking love in a more serious vein, Cathie Alden and Dick Duncan perform one of the highly romanticized songs of that era. Grandpa proudly tells his granddaughter that he did not limit the acts in the Lowell Theater to those well established in the show business world. Many new faces found their way into the big time through this theater. This other side of his program he shows to Maybelle when he takes her back thirty years to one of his weekly amateur nights. Here the varsity cheerleaders are given a break and ably demonstrate their acrobatic and dance talents. Not to be outdone, members of Southwest's football team show that they can perform an intricate ballet number with grace, or try to anyway. Willing to concede that vaudeville had some merit, Maybelle, nevertheless, continues to plead with Grandpa and finally succeeds in taking him to see modern day entertainment. Reluctantly Grandpa goes to the rock'n' roll show and is a bit surprised to find he is enjoying it. A drum duet by Bruce Beale and Bob May and a joint number by all the folk singing groups finally win Grandpa over. Still maintaining that vaudeville was great, Grandpa at last realizes that "The Golden Age of Entertainment" exists today as much as it did when vaudeville reigned. So ends another production of Redskin Revels. Through the efforts of the vocal and instrumental music departments, art department, and members of the cast and stage crew, the many hours of rehearsals turned out an excellent program.

TRAIL Staff

Although they were working in a new room this year, Trail staff members surrounded themselves with the familiar typewriters and stacks of copy that meant a newspaper was in the making. Endeavoring to give Southwest a paper to be proud of, the staff members interviewed such personalities as Natalie Wood and Carleton Sharp and wrote personal notes on our own senior celebrities. Previews of coming school and community events featured in the activities calendar and the "Around the Town" column made Trail days important highlights of the year. As a service to the students, safety reminders were frequently included in the Trail and an entire issue was devoted to safety related articles. For this fine work the Trail was awarded the Youth Award of Merit from the National Safety Council and a certificate of merit and $75 from the American Motorist Insurance Company contest.

HARVEY

"I would like you to meet Harvey. He's a very dear friend of mine." Elwood P. Dowd introduced Aunt Ethel to Harvey. Elwood always performs these niceties, so there is no cause for excitement. Unless, of course, the fellow being introduced is invisible—or a rabbit. And, if he is both, and six feet tall, the shock is a large one! Aunt Ethel makes a rapid exit, leaving the niece and sister of Elwood to suffer with their problem, namely, Harvey. Determined that her daughter, Myrtle Mae, should meet a nice young man and realizing that whoever comes into the house will quickly depart after one encounter with Harvey, Veta decides to put her brother in Chumley's Rest where he can receive psychiatric care. Chumley's Rest is as quiet as can be expected, considering its patrons; that is, until Veta and Elwood—and Harvey—arrive. Because of her rambling tale about how the rabbit eats with the family and she has to call him to the phone when Elwood wants to speak to him, Dr. Sanderson mistakes Veta for the patient and convinces Elwood to sign the admittance papers. More confused and humiliated than before, Veta calls Judge Jaffey, the family lawyer, who secures her release. While she tells Myrtle Mae and the Judge of her traumatic experience, distraught Dr. Chumley sends Wilson, the home's strong-man-in-white, to track down Elwood. Having invited Dr. Sanderson, Wilson, and Nurse Kelly for a few drinks at Charlie's on his previous visit to Chumley's Rest, Elwood returns to pick up his guests. Elwood is at last in the hands of the doctors. It is decided that he should receive Dr. Chumley's wonder drug which is guaranteed to bring the patient back to reality. As Elwood is being prepared for the treatment, Mr. Lofgren, the cab driver, comes in to collect his fare. He describes the experiences he has had with persons who have received the medicine. When Veta discovers that these patients become selfish and crabby, she calls off the treatment and welcomes Elwood—and Harvey—back. "After all, Harvey is not that bad. Actually he is a very dear friend of my brother. I'd like you to meet him."

Although the Literary Society Dinner was held in our all-too-familiar cafeteria and the orations were given the Wednesday before contest night, all the traditions of the Literary Contest—the songs, cheers, crepe paper, balloons, and tension—again filled the auditorium this year. Singing original lyrics put to the tune of songs from the most recent musical or latest Beatle record and wearing dresses purchased for the occasion, the girls' societies arrived with all the pomp that is so much a part of the contest. Noisier than ever, the entrance of the boys' groups was announced by everything from a conspicuously out-of-tune rendition of "When the Saints Go Marching In" to the arrival of loyal society members bearing their leader in a sedan chair. After the declamations had been presented and all the clubs had been given a turn with the baton, the decisions of the judges were announced. It was then that the true literary purpose of the societies came into the limelight and outstanding achievements in creative writing were awarded gold and silver medals. It was then, too, that the pencils and programs served to tally the points as excitement and anxiety made waiting for the announcement of the winning society almost unbearable. Mounting tension climaxed in disappointment for the Excelsiors, who had hoped to achieve a third victory and thus be awarded the cup, when it was announced that they had tied for second place. Their disappointment was shared by four other clubs who also received ratings putting them in the number two spot. Sharing victory in the 1964 Literary Contest, and not the least bit unhappy about it were Delphi, Sesame, and Zend-Avesta.

Literary Contest

A German boy, a Turkish boy, and a South African girl came to Southwest on foreign exchange programs this year. From different countries and different continents they brought with them their own customs, their own beliefs. This was September. Quickly we became friends, making our year their year, in the classrooms learning with us, at the games cheering with us, at the parties laughing with us.

Of course, they had opinions of all these activities. Mehmet Bankaci from Turkey liked best the athletic events with the "great Southwest school spirit." For Esme Joubert of South Africa, the outstanding experience was feeling that youth is a part of the American society and not just a dormant period which each person must endure in anticipation of adulthood. Dieter Bischoff enjoyed the social life which is less restricted here than in his German homeland. The exchange students had other, more general impressions; Dieter found Americans much friendlier than he had expected, and Esme was happy to note that we as a nation are no more materialistic than any other people. To Mehmet, the interest in and curiosity about people in other countries which Americans express was a happy surprise. All these ideas and hundreds of others—some good, some bad—were added each day to the store of thoughts which Esme, Dieter, and Mehmet would carry home with them.

So the give and take, which is the basis of the American Field Service and the International Christian Youth Exchange, continued throughout the year. Soon—too soon—it was June, and all that had been new was old, all that had begun was ended. The friends, who were foreigners no longer, would soon return to their homes, taking a little of the United States with them, leaving a little of South Africa, Turkey, and Germany with us.

Foreign Exchange

On June 24 Dave Cochrane flew to New York, the first step on a trip that would take him to live for six weeks with the Henrik Rom family in Notodden, Norway. Boarding a trans-Atlantic liner with 800 other high school students, Southwest's representative to the Americans Abroad phase of the American Field Service, had a chance to meet and talk with other young Americans participating in this world project. Once in Norway, Dave spent three weeks traveling with his family as far north as the Arctic Circle and on to the Russian border. Having been given this wonderful opportunity to learn about the people in another country, Dave took seriously the task of trying to understand their government, education system, and language. When he returned to Kansas City on September 9, Dave was eager to share with others the experiences he had had in a country where bears are not an uncommon sight on rural streets and life moves without the hustle and bustle characteristic of the United States. Southwest appreciated the talks he gave in an effort to pass his newly gained knowledge and understanding of Norway on to all of us.

SACHEM Staff

A typical day behind closed doors.

It is the momentous task of the Sachem Staff to translate the activities, highlights, work, and worries of a year at Southwest into pictures and words and bind these up in little black (or white or orange or even green) books for the students of this school. So, with heavy yokes of tradition anchoring soaring schemes, a small band of people, not afraid to attempt the seemingly impossible, met this year in the often noisy and sometimes frantic atmosphere of room 306 to record the names, faces, and situations that made 1963-64 the year that was. Although the demands of Sachem work were great, the staff found time to conduct an information center, guiding the many students who daily brought treasury deposits and lists of Trail subscribers to the Sachem room. The interruptions did finally come to an end, however, and so did the year's work. All that was left for the staff to do was finish the last box of tea bags and hope that the student body would receive as much pleasure from the finished Sachem as the staff did in putting it together. Here, then, is the 1963-64 Sachem. Much credit and many thanks go to Mr. Woods whose helpful guidance, constant prodding, and steady nerves brought this book into being. Appreciation is also expressed to Mr. Brewster, Mrs. Bishop, and Mrs. Rains for their assistance.

SACHEM Queen

Miss Gale Griffin

Each year the Sachem staff looks for senior girls who possess the qualities which make outstanding young women. On the basis of character, personality, intelligence, and school service, five girls were selected as candidates for the 1964 Sachem Queen. Every one of the candidates well deserves to be Queen, as each has set a fine example for others to follow and has won the respect and admiration of fellow classmates. Only one girl, however, can be elected in the school-wide ballot. The girl being so honored is Miss Gale Griffin, 1964 Sachem Queen.

Senior Officers

Soon the seniors will no longer belong to Southwest High School. It has taken so much time for each to find his place in the student body that it seems ironic for this place to be so easily relinquished in the time it takes to walk to the platform and receive a diploma. To some, high school has meant a pleasant experience; to others, a compulsory thing. But to all applies the statement, "This too shall pass away." Some will leave happily, some reluctantly; but on each will be left the imprint of his days at Southwest which he will carry on to wherever the future takes him. The high school days are over; they have "passed away." However, let them help to conquer the future.
