the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age is expected to increase from 1.1 billion to 1.5 billion (United Nations 1998).

There are a number of reasons why the number of children in the world is increasing. One of the main reasons is that the number of children who are surviving to the age of 5 has increased significantly in the past few decades. This is due to a number of factors, including improved medical care, better nutrition, and a decrease in the number of children who are dying from preventable diseases.

Another reason why the number of children in the world is increasing is that the number of children who are being born is increasing. This is due to a number of factors, including a decrease in the number of children who are being aborted, and an increase in the number of children who are being born to women who are younger than in the past.

There are a number of challenges that are associated with the increasing number of children in the world. One of the main challenges is that there are not enough resources to provide for all of the children. This is particularly true in developing countries, where there is a high level of poverty and a high level of unemployment.

Another challenge is that there are not enough schools to educate all of the children. This is particularly true in rural areas, where there are few schools and the quality of education is often poor. This can lead to a cycle of poverty, as children who do not receive an education are more likely to be poor when they grow up.

There are a number of ways that we can address these challenges. One way is to increase the number of schools and the quality of education. This can be done by increasing the number of teachers and providing better training for them. We can also improve the quality of the curriculum and provide more resources for the schools.

Another way to address these challenges is to provide more resources to the children. This can be done by providing them with better nutrition and medical care. We can also provide them with more opportunities for education and training. This can help to break the cycle of poverty and improve the lives of the children.

There are a number of other ways that we can address these challenges. One way is to increase the number of people who are working. This can be done by providing more training and education for the young people. We can also create more jobs for them in the private sector.

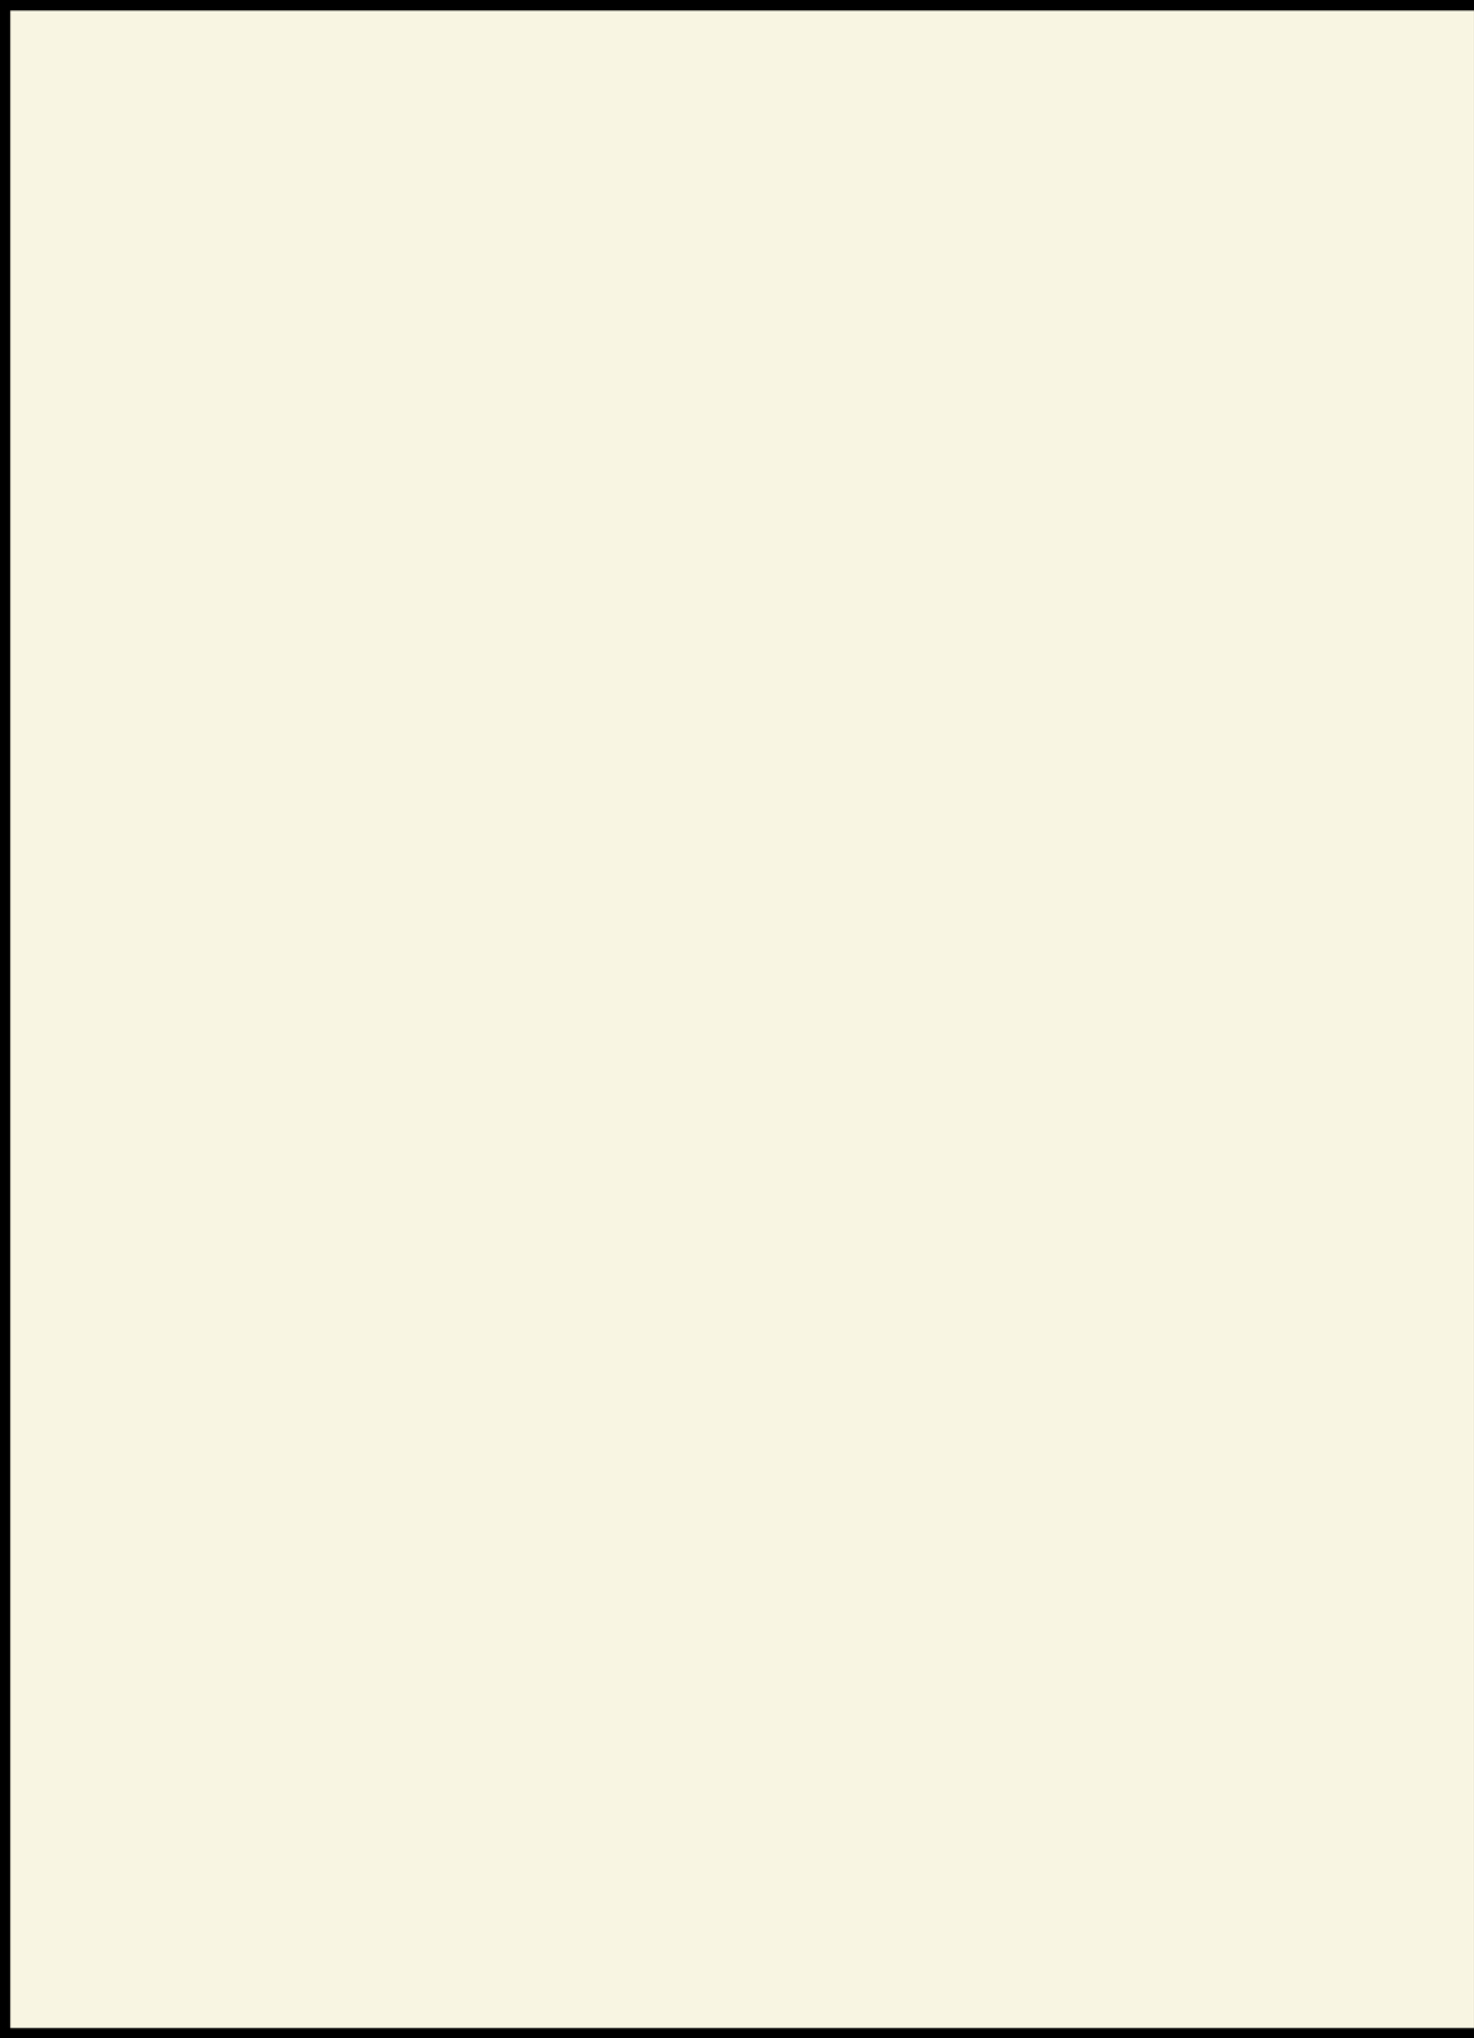

Another way to address these challenges is to increase the number of people who are contributing to the economy. This can be done by providing more resources for the young people to start their own businesses. We can also provide them with more information and support to help them get started.

There are a number of other ways that we can address these challenges. One way is to increase the number of people who are volunteering. This can be done by providing more opportunities for young people to volunteer. We can also provide them with more information and support to help them get started.

Another way to address these challenges is to increase the number of people who are donating. This can be done by providing more information and support to help them get started. We can also provide them with more resources to help them get started.

We stand for . . .

. . . honor, strength, scholarship and character . . . the school crest is an emblem of Truman students and their activities. As Patriots started their new school term, they brought back the enthusiasm and honor of previous years. Accomplishments and goals were reflected in the school crest and served as a guide to future students.

Prominent features of the crest were the thirteen clouds, the stars and the American eagle which is surrounded by olive branches and arrows from the Presidential seal. This part of the school crest is on the class rings.

On top of the school crest is the lamp of knowledge symbolizing scholarship. Departments emphasize learning and the application of this education. The Latin description below the shield is "scientia liberat" meaning ing knowledge is freedom which gives students a chance to choose their classes and express ideas freely.

Athletics, represented by the mantling around the shield, produces active participation as well as group spectatorship. School spirit establishes pride and respect for all phases of school life. This builds high ideals and citizenship.

Symbolizing administrators is a map of the old trails which ran through Independence. They remind students of their heritage and the strength of their ancestors.

To those students who have walked in the halls of Truman, who have honored the school crest, and who have met its challenges, the 1967 Heritage is dedicated.

During a Board of Education meeting, budgets and needed equipment are discussed for the school year

Dr. Guy Carter, Superintendent of Schools and Mr. George Berkemeier, Board of Education president, go over budget details during a Board of Education meeting

Six board members oversee public schools

Mr. George Berkemeier, President

Success of a school is not credited to students or faculty alone. Many hard-working people, some of which are never noticed, contribute to helping a school function smoothly. Although students rarely notice individual efforts of the six members on the Board of Education, the results of their hard work continue to grow.

Efforts and results certainly were evident this year as new accomplishments were made along with various improvements and additions. The six members on the Board of Education represented the legislative body of the Independence school system. All decisions and expenditures were made by them and could be vetoed by them. Along with Mr. George Berkemeier, president, the Board met on the second Tuesday of each month to discuss plans and make necessary decisions. This year land was purchased for a third Independence high school at M-78 and Holke Road. The new Jim Bridger Junior High School was started and is located at M-78 and Speck Road. More mobile units have been added to Ott, Alton and Luff elementary schools. Also, the Board continued improving the vocational programs and started plans for more summer courses.

This year also marked the Centennial of education in the Independence Public School System. Student Councils of Truman and William Chrisman combined to build a float for the Halloween parade in connection with the anniversary. A film strip was made and presented to various civic groups that were interested in the Centennial. Activities, highlights and special dignitaries were given a complete run down in a yearbook commemorated to the Centennial.

The 1966-67 Board of Education members are Mr. Joseph Peters, Mrs. Tom Buckley, Mr. George Morgan, Mr. George Berkemeier, Mrs. Leory Schulenberg and Mr. Melvin Luff.

Dr. Carter and Mr. Benson establish school

Dr. Guy Carter, Superintendent of schools, attended Missouri State College where he received a B S. in Education. He received his masters and doctorate degrees from the University of Missouri.

The main duty of Dr. Guy Carter, Superintendent of Schools, was to provide the supplies, equipment, staff and necessary tools within the financial means of the district. He plans for the educational needs of the future. Preparing and maintaining the budget for the school system, formulating plans for the maintenance and construction of new school buildings also consumed much of his time. Dr. Carter was also the executive officer of the Board of Education and he saw that the policies set forth were administered.

Dr. Carter was a member of the Centennial recognition committee. The Centennial was for the celebration of the one hundred years education has been in Independence. The Centennial started in the spring of 1966 and ran through this spring. A "canned" program, showing education today, then going back through history and progressing into the future, was presented November 15. The Independence Community Teachers Association presented a pageant April 15. This pageant showed the heritage and growth of the school system. A ninety-six page yearbook, "Retrospect," was sold this spring. The theme was "Our Heritage—a Gleam of Faith."

Besides his duties as administrator, he is interested in sports and can be seen as a spectator at Truman games. His hobby is fishing, but he likes working in his rose garden.

Dr. and Mrs. Carter have two children, Maridella, a sophomore at the University of Missouri and Danny, a senior at Truman.

Dr. Carter gestures to emphasize a point during an informal discussion in his office.

policies of educational opportunities

An education from William Chrisman High School, the University of Oklahoma, and Northwest Missouri State at Maryville has brought Mr. Joseph Benson to his present position as Director of Personnel. One of his main duties this year was serving on the steering committee for the Centennial Celebration of the Independence School System. In this way, he helped guide the work of the Centennial and saw if everything was going as planned.

Along with this, salary schedules, leave time, retirement, promotion, and transfer of personnel were all a part of Mr. Benson's busy schedule. He also assisted teachers with certification and acted with the State Department of Education on certification matters. A new responsibility of Mr. Benson this year was administering a continuous program of in-service training of personnel. He also established personnel policies that affect the morale and welfare of school employees.

Along with his job, Mr. Benson spent a lot of his free time with his family. He and his wife, a librarian at St. Paul's Seminary, have a teenage son and daughter. Jill is a freshman attending the University of Missouri and Jack is a sophomore at William Chrisman High School.

Besides the time Mr. Benson spent with his family and at his job, he tried to find time for his hobbies. He especially enjoyed golf and other similar sports. Fishing and hunting also attract Mr. Benson.

After performing his many duties, Mr. Joseph Benson decides a coffee break would be in order.

Mr. Joseph Benson, Director of Personnel

Making plans for a new high school site was only one of many duties facing Mr. Emory Parks, director of instruction. His main job consisted of selecting textbooks, evaluating the instructional program, deciding curriculum and planning for school expansion. Mr. Parks actively participated in the centennial steering committee. He also helped purchase the site for the new high school and expanded several elementary schools.

When not busy with pressing problems at work he enjoys fishing and church work with his wife, Lorene. Mr. Parks also has two sons, Eddie, a junior at the University of Missouri at Kansas City, and Mike, a sophomore at William Chrisman High School.

A native of Virginia, Mr. Parks attended Central Missouri State College and the University of California. He received his master's degree from Kansas University.

He taught in Washington and at Missouri State College. In addition to his present position, he has been principal of William Chrisman Junior High School, vice principal of William Chrisman High School, principal of Ott Secondary Unit and a counselor at Palmer Junior High School. Mr. Parks has been director of instruction for six years.

Mr. Emory Parks, Director of Instruction

Administrators work for better learning conditions

Mr. Paul Landers, Director of Business Services

Mr. Paul Landers, director of business services, includes in his job budgeting for the school system and supplying materials and equipment to the schools.

One of his duties this year has been working on the plans for a third high school in Independence. Also a new running track was being built at Truman this year. In addition to budgeting construction, Mr. Landers is in charge of inventory and distribution of stock from the school system's warehouse.

Parsons, Kansas, is the hometown of Mr. Landers. He went to high school and junior college there and later received his B.S. degree at Kansas State Teachers College. He earned his masters degree at Bradley University in Peoria, Illinois. Mr. Landers has also done work at the University of Missouri at Kansas City and the University of Pennsylvania.

Teaching in public schools was Mr. Landers' occupation before he became an administrator for the Independence school system. He worked as director of business services.

Beagling is one of Mr. Landers' hobbies. His spare time has also been spent helping the Centennial steering committee with budgeting and planning.

Mr. Keith Bench, new co-ordinator of Federal Funds and special programs concentrates on ideas. One of his duties this year was being chairman of the Centennial

at Truman High School

Coach Norman James, director of sports, takes a breather from his duties of coordinating the athletic program and scheduling all games and sports facilities for secondary schools

Mr. Brown takes pride in Truman student body

His twelfth year in the Independence school system marked Mr. LeRoy Brown's third year as principal of Truman. However, he has not always been a principal. After graduating Mr. Brown was called to the service and held his first job in the Marine Corps personnel administration office. He taught science in junior high school for one year and then became vice-principal of Ott secondary school. This position eventually led to vice-principal of William Chrisman division II. He held this position for five and one half years and then became principal.

Born in Green Ridge, Missouri, Mr. Brown graduated from Green Ridge High School. He graduated from Central Missouri State College with a Bachelor of Science in education degree. His graduate degree, Master of Arts, was earned at the University of Kansas City.

Besides principal and co-ordinator of all activities at Truman, Mr. Brown spends much time as a family man with his wife, Carol and four children. They enjoy vacations and family outings together. Mr. Brown not only shows his enthusiasm in athletics at Truman, but often devotes his spare time to a game of golf, his favorite sport.

Mr. Brown was proud to be associated with students at Truman. "I feel that there was a high caliber of students and they each contributed to the progress and success of Truman High School. I enjoyed working with them and it was indeed a challenge to observe their growth and development during the year."

Mr. LeRoy Brown, Principal

Mr. Moore checks the audio visual schedule before checking out the equipment to the teachers

Mr. Moore copes with school problems effectively

Mr. Jerry Moore, Vice-Principal

Coping with administration problems was nothing new to Mr. Jerry Moore, vice-principal of Truman High School. Before he came to Truman this year, Mr. Moore was vice principal at Palmer Junior High School three years. Before that Mr. Moore taught mathematics for five years at William Chrisman High School.

Mr. Moore attended school at Southwest Missouri State College, where he received a B.S. in Mathematics. He later went to the University of Missouri at Columbia, where he received an M.S. in Secondary School Administration.

Among his many duties as vice-principal, Mr. Moore handled school supplies, locker assignments, locker adjustments, attendance and discipline problems, schedule making and schedule changes. He also headed the audio-visual program at school by co-ordinating the use of film projectors, tape recorders and various other school equipment by different teachers.

Despite his many duties as vice-principal, Mr. Moore often finds time for leisure activities. In his spare time he sometimes reads, but more often he engaged in athletic recreation. He liked competitive sports. Though a spectator at baseball and football, Mr. Moore became a player when basketball was the game. Mr. Moore enjoyed outdoor sports, too, especially fishing and quail hunting, which took up much of his time in the summer and the fall.

Performing one of their many duties, checking the attendance problems, are Mr. Kenneth Cline and Mr. Merle Shafer, visiting teachers

Supervision of school property and custodians is the duty of Mr. Don Allee, director of buildings and grounds

Administrators work to better learning conditions

School nurse, Mrs. Mary Jane Sears, checks senior Marilyn Bates for reaction to a tuberculin test

Counselors aid students in scholastic problems

Counselors guide students of Truman High in an effort to prepare them for high school and college life. Senior counselor, Mr. William Smith, a graduate of Drury College with a Master's degree in Education, advises students on deciding which college is the best for the subject in which they want to major. Each year, Mr. Smith gives the Ohio psychological test to seniors. His main purpose is to help in prearrangement of college, vocational school, technical school and with boys wishing to enter the armed forces. Along with his many duties, Mr. Smith finds time to help coach the varsity football team.

Junior and sophomore counselor, Mr. Bill Moyer gives the PSAT test and the National Merit Test to seniors. Mr. Moyer graduated from Central Missouri State College with a Bachelor of Science degree and a Master's degree in Education. His major aim is to help sophomores and juniors in scheduling classes and also getting classes changed.

PTA sponsors third annual back-to-school night

Truman High School Parent-Teachers Association worked closely with the International Relations Organization and promoted the welfare of children in the community. Projects this year included several student mixers, Senior Prom, Senior Banquet and sponsoring a Back-to-School Night. This year the Independence PTA council initiated a local scholarship fund which helps send one student from Truman and one from William Chrisman to college.

Parents work beside the officers and the thirty-three members of the executive board to become better acquainted with school functions and activities. Officers of the 1966-67 PTA were president, Mrs. Gilbert Gordon, first vice-president, Mrs. Phil Weeks; second vice-president, Mrs. Edgar Coffman; recording secretary, Mrs. Knott Meloy; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Jerry Irving; treasurer, Mrs. Richard Evans; and historian, Mrs. Hugh Graff.

Among many books, 'Fail-safe' highlights LAS

Highlighting the year for Literary Arts Seminar members was the publication and distribution of the LAS magazine. Image.

All Truman students were eligible to enter the Image competition. Entries were made in poetry, fiction and non-fiction. Judging was done by teachers who had experience in writing. A cash prize of five dollars was awarded to first-place winners in poetry, fiction and non-fiction. Other winners received certificates of merit. Competition was also held in designing a cover, with the winner being presented a special award.

A genuine interest to share opinions and ideas concerning literature was shared by each member. Students with this interest were required to pass both a written and oral examination and to have an "S" average to become a member.

Each month members read literature such as Fail-Safe, All Quiet on the Western Front, Inherit the Wind, Brave New World and Don Quixote. Discussion was held concerning the literature. Members also attended a series on poetry at the Jewish Community Center in the spring.

Sponsors were Mrs. Pallas Cockefair and Mr. Kingdon Anderson. Officers were Tony Agee, president, Ray Ford, vice president, Bev Tice, secretary, Gayle Stoller, treasurer, and Pat Heckman, historian.

'Animal Farm,' 'Scarlet Letter,' 'Exodus' mean

To build a wide background of language heritage, the English department provided each phase of world and American literature. With the foundation of grammar and vocabulary, pupils probed into the depths of famous works, searching for symbolism, realism and romanticism. By applying acquired knowledge, students attempted to form individual forms of writing.

English II concentrated upon distinguished world literature. Julius Caesar and Silas Marner highlighted the program of novels, poetry, short stories and non-fiction. Sophomores practiced their authorship on assigned themes from Animal Farm and other books along with subjects of personal interest.

Junior English appreciated contributions of American authors, poets and philosophers. They examined the structure of abstract ideas in the historical novels The Scarlet Letter and The Red Badge of Courage and expressed their interpretations in compositions. Memorizations of poems added to the culture obtained in this widened scope of English education.

Concerning mainly novel and composition study, English IV prepares students for life and college. Students analyzed purpose and reasoning in Exodus, Of Human Bondage, Lord of the Flies and Crime and Punishment. Seniors throughout the year composed a writer's notebook in which they expressed emotions and experiences. English IV concluded with a major project for senior-research paper.

Group work could seem vital to students interested in talking Spanish to one another.

Breaking language barriers promotes understanding

Students enrolled in foreign language classes at Truman High School spent much of their time mastering the basic fundamentals in first and second year language courses. French, Latin, Spanish and German were electives offered to interested students. Customs, ideas and different ways of life were studied in contrast to life in America. They learned to conjugate verbs, spell, pronounce, punctuate and put the new vocabulary into meaningful sentences. Workbooks, textbooks and various audio-visuals provided a solid background in the special language each student desired to learn and become acquainted with.

As they progressed and mastered new techniques, it became easier to speak as well as write in the new language. First year students studied basic foundations in grammar, structure and usage in order to prepare them for further study. They practiced reading sentences and short paragraphs on a tape recorder in an effort to improve pronunciation and diction. Second and third year students wrote longer papers and learned to understand films and songs by actual foreigners. They concentrated mainly in speaking as fluently as possible.

German class and German club were the newest edition to the foreign language department at Truman. This class was taught by Miss Hubert, who also sponsored the club. Students enrolled in German began mastering new skills and vocabulary of the language.

Language clubs join in preparing festival

French club combined with German club and Spanish club to plan and produce the annual festival. This year it was called "Das Fiesta Gras."

French club members met after school at different times to plan their part in the fiesta. They divided into committees to plan and prepare a portion of the evening's entertainment. A floor show, a flea market and a film were part of French club's entertainment. They also sold colorful flowers and decorative garters made by various members of the club. A club member posed as a fortune teller and foretold the future.

Spanish club's part in the festival was a limbo booth, commercial, Mexican Hat Dance and a pinata break. The fifty pinatas were made from paper sacks stuffed with candy. Each person willing to pay a quarter was given three swings at the pinata. They received all the candy in it if they succeeded in breaking it. Another Spanish booth was the "Ely Ella" where members sold flowers and somberos.

Each club provided exotic foods and foreign dishes in an effort to transform the Truman cafeteria and surrounding halls into an arena of foreign festivities.

Spanish club member, Karen Pitchford, paints a booth to be used in the Das Fiesta Gras.

Presenting the first round of the affirmative side takes deep consideration on the part of Nola Matthews. Other team members are John Brown, Mike Whitehead, and David Taylor.

Preparing for a future debate Bev Tice and Dotty Craig look up information to support their view.

Debate challenges students to think more clearly

Filled with emotion, John Brown presents his reasons for a change in the status quo

Debate provided an opportunity for students to develop the ability to think clearly. The debater studied the mental process of drawing conclusions from evidence. In discussion, in practice debates and interscholastic debates the student developed and practiced reasoning skill.

Each Truman debater competed in five to seven tournaments during the year. These tournaments were held on Fridays and Saturdays throughout Missouri and Kansas. They provided competition not only in debate, but also in extemporaneous speaking, original oratory and dramatic interpretation.

Truman debaters won trophies this year at Rockhurst, Shawnee Mission, Ruskin, Leavenworth and North Kansas City.

Climax of the season was the National Forensic League District Tournament. Winners in debate, extemporaneous speaking, original oratory and dramatic interpretation became eligible to represent Missouri in the National Speech Tournament this summer at Nashville, Tennessee.

While intently listening for flaws in the affirmative plan, Bruce Lowe, one of the judges, makes mental notes.

NFL, Speech promote communication of ideas

To think clearly, critically and reflectively was the aim of students in the speech department. Speech I students hoped to achieve this goal through class activities. They studied the mechanics of good writing and speaking. Students put their knowledge to use by giving panel discussions, individual speeches and oral interpretations. Speech I students gave demonstration speeches and extemporaneous speeches which helped them communicate ideas. Both speech classes gave orations which was the main speech of the year. Here they put all of the principles of good speaking to work.

Speech II students delved deeply into the study of logic as a problem-solving process. Through the study of famous statesmen students gained impetus to excel in competitive inter-school events.

Speech students who went on to become debaters were eligible for membership in the National Forensic League, an honorary speech organization. This year the Truman chapter had thirty members. To become a member, students participated in enough debate tournaments to accumulate twenty-five points.

Publications department

Deciding what pictures to use in the introductory section of the yearbook are Terry Richey, editor, and Judy Russell, assistant editor.

Truman High School's yearbook, The Heritage, is the product of two years of work and learning by the publications department. Students just beginning work on the yearbook take Publications I. Here they learned how to draw layouts, write copy and captions, and crop pictures. They also discussed themes of yearbooks and new picture ideas. Several weeks were also spent on the arrangement of the activities and sections of the book. Near the end of the year, students in this Publications I class were chosen for different positions on the staff for the next year. This staff then chose the theme, cover, and color of the next year's yearbook.

In Publications II the actual work is done on the yearbook. Each editor was in charge of one particular section and was responsible for everything in his section. Staff members also met deadlines several times throughout the school year. Planning was a big part of the staff's job and was done mainly at the beginning of the year.

In December, the department sponsored a Christmas formal for the student body, during which the yearbook queen was crowned.

Both classes also attended workshops throughout the summer and school years to learn new ideas from advisors and other students.

Making plans for their various sections of the yearbook are Susan Fain, Debbie Butrick, Candy Tittel and Patti Lane.

Newspaper staff provides news of school activities

A typical hour in the journalism room is filled with the chatter of typewriters, discussions on page layout and questions about the names of the people in certain pictures. These activities, along with many others, are part of the responsibilities faced by the paper staff.

To prepare them for the job ahead, future staff members take Journalism I. Here they learn the history of writing and study journalistic literature. As might be expected, the ability to write well is essential to this class. Students extend their knowledge and talent by composing articles of news, features, editorials and sports. They also study advertising principles, page make-up, photography and copy editing.

After learning the fundamentals of journalism, students put them to use during their second year of journalism by publishing a bi-weekly newspaper, The Spirit of '67. Everyone on the staff is responsible for some part of the newspaper. In the sixteen issues of the paper, the staff manages all the financial business, writes all articles, draws layouts and takes pictures. Each member of the staff has to meet deadlines throughout the year.

Through practice and responsibility students in the journalism department provide fellow students with a memorable keepsake—the school paper.

An important part of Journalism II is reviewing previous work and finding problem areas. Cathy Yoder, editorial editor, Lynne Kauffman, business manager, Kay Carlisle, copy editor, and Gaye West, feature editor, decide how they can improve their part of the newspaper.

Rushing to meet the last minute deadline are Steve Thompson, photographer, and Martha Schroeter, art editor while Cathy Yoder and Kay Carlisle discuss plans for the coming issue.

Staff members, Steve Turner, photographer, Joann Bittick, news editor, Susan Blocker, circulation editor, Robert Lauderdale, sports editor, Martha Schroeter, art editor, and Stephanie Hackett, columnist, gain new ideas from newspapers of other schools.

Discussing new ideas in newspaper and yearbook lay-out are officers Terry Richey, president, Patti Lane, vice-president, Kay Carlisle, secretary-treasurer, and Cindy VanKirk, historian

Torn emotions burst from dramatic classes

A small portion of the activities for dramatics classes was learning to interpret and memorize cuttings from popular plays. The classes studied different techniques of various authors and portrayed characters in each play which are performed before the students.

On December 12 interested students went to "Playboy of the Western World" at Circle Theater. After the play the dramatic students were allowed to go backstage. They talked with the actors, viewed props and costumes, and learned some "behind the scenes" experiences of the crew.

Besides daily assignments of play reports and the history of the theater all students wrote one acts plays. These plays were produced and presented later to the other classes.

For a variety of study Mrs. Schell, dramatics teacher, helped students build usable flats for a future use at Truman plays.

A group project was formed when each class built model stages. They used three different types of stages: conventional, theater-in-the-round, and reader's theater. These miniature replicas were supplied with props, setting and characters by the students.

as dramatics groups present annual One-Acts

Laughter burst from the audience on November 17 and 18, as "A Night of Melodrama" was presented. Four one-acts plays were presented by the drama classes and Thespians in the Truman gym.

For the first weeks of rehearsals the production staff was faced with many problems. A flash box had to be loaded with flash powder and wired so a short would set off the sound effect of an explosion. Also, a wind machine was constructed.

For the first time the Truman stage acquired a curtain. A large canvas sheet connected by a long lead pipe raised and lowered the curtain. Costing fifty dollars, it was painted by the students with a neutral landscape scene, and can be used for any stage presentation.

The dramatics department gained a large profit from 500 people attending the plays. This money was used to make durable and usable flats.

After the final performance of the plays a cast party was held at Howard Johnson's Restaurant for cast, production staff and Mrs. Juda Schell, director.

Cultural Groups

Thespian troupe enables further dramatic study

Adding to the educational environment at Truman High School were National Art Honor Society and Thespians, which promoted advanced work and opportunities in the field of fine arts.

Thespians, a selective group of dramatics students, worked to improve their acting ability. Early in the year they put on one of the One-Act plays. Through this experience and other plays during the year, members received point ratings. Ten of these points and an M average were required for membership. A formal initiation was held in November. Thespians officers were Nancy Noble, president, Deanna Gordon, vice president, Kay Carlisle, secretary, and Ruth Anne Lachance, treasurer.

Another club promoting intensified work in the fine arts field was National Art Honor Society. Projects such as designing and selling school pennants and senior sweatshirts were worked on during their bi-monthly meetings. The club also sponsored a Christmas party for present and graduate members. During the spring an art exhibit was held in which every member displayed his work. Officers for NAHS were Connie Huntsucker, president, Sandi Cookston, vice-president, Cynthia Chapman, recording secretary, Ronnie Holzbaur, treasurer, Marta Schroeter, historian, and Marta Duckworth, corresponding secretary.

A quiet atmosphere prevails as students work diligently on montage to create individual interpretation and style in art

Art is the expression of ideas and feelings in visual form and developing the skills took desire as well as talent on the part of each student. Each year delved into different aspects of art techniques and required new skills to be learned.

Art I students spent the first part of the year studying theory, including elements and principles of design. They experimented with color, learning how to use value scales and intensity scales. History was learned through films, slides, prints, magazines, charts and books. They expressed their new-found art ability through drawings, paintings, print-making, graphic design and carving.

Students enrolled in Art II and Art III started projects at the beginning of the year concerning their own special field. They sculptured with wood, wire, ceramics, plaster and soap. They learned history of sculpture from ancient to contemporary times. Also, projects on industrial designs and interior designs taught students to become more observant and discriminating of products as design for function.

Art IV spent one quarter on a project of their own choice in order to delve more deeply in certain fields of art. Many students specialized in carving, paintings, sculpture and various other aspects of art. The biggest project of Art IV students were the silk screens or serigraphs which required time and concentration along with talent.

Leading the way for the Queen of Flowers in the Halloween Parade was the Truman High School Band. The band also marched in the American Royal Parade. December 11 the band combined with a cappella and girl's choir to present a musical concert at the William Chrisman Auditorium. The second annual Band-a-Rama was presented February 20. A concert, featuring the combined bands, orchestras and vocal music groups of both Truman and William Chrisman, was presented. April 1 the band traveled to Warrensburg to complete in the state music contests

The band, led by drum majors Pam States and Kevin Northcraft, marched at all home football games. United effort and daily practice enabled the majorettes to perform with precision. Majorettes this year were Nancy Garrett, head majorette, Debbi Butrick, solo majorette. Others were Connie Downs, Celia Seaton, Paula Ries and Diane Irving. Winter concert features 'The Sound of Music'

Orchestra members were composed of string instruments and a few brass instruments. Their main purpose was to perform music that is both educational and entertaining.

Presenting music of high quality demanded discipline on the part of the performance group. Many types of music were included in the orchestras' curriculum. Festival and concert music usually gave some measure of their ability. However, the real test of any musical activity was the pleasure derived from diligent work at every opportunity.

The Truman High orchestra held a dual-concert with Southeast High School at William Chrisman. They also performed at the Music Hall in Kansas City for the Missouri State Teacher's meeting.

Also in December the choir combined with the orchestra and Girls Choir to present a special concert December 11 in the William Chrisman auditorium.

Besides preparing for concerts and musicals, members of the choir also studied principles of theory for further study of music.

Officers for the choir this year were Hughey McClenny, president; Kenny Miller, vice-president; Joy Doubledee and Deanna Burrows, secretaries; and Melissa Setchfield and Tom Steele, pitch-pipe.

Working with Student Council and the a cappella Choir, the Girls Choir presented the annual Christmas assembly at Truman.

Singers achieve blend with regular practice

For the Girls Choir, the three or four weeks before Christmas vacation was a busy time of the year. Preparing for two concerts occupied most of their time. On December 11, they combined with the a cappella choir and orchestra in presenting a special concert for parents and friends. And again on December 20, they presented a Christmas concert with the band.

Planning for the Christmas assembly with the Student Council was another part of the Girls Choir activities during the Christmas season. During the assembly they sang several selections along with readings and other songs by the a cappella choir.

In preparation for these concerts and presentations, members also study blend, vowel pronunciation, tone quality, and breath control throughout the year.

As a Christmas gift to Truman, Girls Choir members caroled in the halls the Friday preceding Christmas vacation.

Outstanding band, orchestra, vocal students fill requirements to join Modern Music Masters

Modern Music Masters of Truman High School was an honorary music society. This select group and mixed choir arrived at a better understanding of music. Mixed choir also strived to improve their performing abilities. These boys and girls worked on vocal exercises to aid their musical talents.

As a group, Tri-M was provided with the opportunity of listening to various types of musical selections and discussing these selections on the basis of their own abilities. Any student who received an excellent rating at the State Music Festival in his particular category was eligible for membership in the club. This festival is held in the spring, at Columbia, Missouri. The main activity of the year for Modern Music Masters was a trip, as a group, to a concert in February. The sponsors were Mr. Don Welborn, band and orchestra instructor and Mr. Elwood Brown, vocal music teacher.

with foreign, national, local, social, world affairs

Behavior patterns, foreign affairs and famous happenings brought interest to students active in social science classes at Truman

Psychology and sociology were offered as electives. Most participants who displayed interest in the classes learned about human behavior patterns in society. Watching films and listening to lectures were the daily assignments in psychology. Along with taking notes from the lectures and writing term papers, the amateur psychologists also gave oral reports for extra credit.

Scheduled assignment sheets were given to each sociology student to follow. Charts and graphs were prepared to help individual groups give oral reports. For extra credit newspaper clippings and book reports were handed in.

Sophomores were linked with world affairs in world history. They drew and explained maps of all parts of the world. Group projects on political, economical and religious views were presented to their classes. They studied from the renaissance to the assassination of our thirty-fifth President of the United States, John F. Kennedy.

Basic issues about the American government since the Constitution was adopted in 1789 were debated by the juniors in American history. America's responsibility to the rest of the world and its effect on world situations in the past and present were discussed in class lectures.

Missouri history gave Trumanites the opportunity to learn about the Missouri laws and governmental body. One of the main features of the course was the Missouri Constitution.

Discussing current events was a daily exercise in contemporary issues. For outside information the "Great Decisions" magazine published by the Foreign Policy Association was referred to. Five students went to the mock session of the United Nations Security Council at Park Hill College. Representing Truman as New Zealand ambassadors were Jim Bedwell, Sandi Cookston, Ruth Ann Lachance, Judy Russell and John Tonyan.

Economics presented a generalization of daily budgets and the standard of living. Participating students made semester notebooks.

Through the sociological, political and historical aspects of social science classes at Truman, students learned to build on past experiences. This added insight and interest and challenged them to build on past experiences.

In the 1966-1967 year Science Club participated in activities of entertainment and of education. They went on field trips to industrial companies and chemical laboratories. Members visited the James Weldon laboratory where they studied various methods of testing metal in machines. They went to Brunson Industrial Company and Armco Steel in an effort to understand the methods of factory production. Science Club went as a group to the Linda Hall Library at UMKC. They looked at books over 300 years old and discussed the rare books and ancient materials used in them. Officers made plans for the club to shoot off model rockets this spring. They planned various experiments and studied famous scientific experiments. They held regular meetings during the year and listened to guest speakers on the subject of scientific accomplishments.

Officers for 1966-1967 were Mike Emsbach, president; Carl Olson, vice-president; Cheryl Dunkle, secretary; David Beshore, treasurer; Gary Holtzman, parliamentarian and reporter. Sponsor of Science Club was Mr. James Bowman.

Plant life poses interesting problems and discoveries for two biology students, Clifford McCarty and Charles Pope

Offering courses in major scientific fields, the science department strives to provide students with the basic foundation and opportunity to go beyond normal classwork

General science was the beginning for many special interests in this field. Here students learned about the various phases of biology, physics and chemistry.

Biology and advanced biology studied in depth the basic requirements and types of life. They dissected animals, examined plants and went on field trips!

Closely related to biology is chemistry. Chem study, a new technique of teaching chemistry, was used. Students spent much of their time doing lab work and individual study.

Physics, another advanced science class, dealt with the laws and principles of science. Here students studied and experimented in many areas such as electricity, radioactivity, magnetism and atomic energy.

No matter what branch of science students wanted to study, Truman's department gave them the opportunity to do intense work in major areas. Through experimentation and study, students became aware of life and the laws and elements of nature.

Math classes demand clear, logical thinking

Students at Truman High School were challenged and stimulated as they developed an interest in mathematical facts and figures. Various techniques were learned and practiced to provide a background that can later prove beneficial in family and business transactions.

Classroom activity involved student teacher discussions, blackboard demonstrations and problems to work at home to improve skills. Basic courses offered are terminal math, algebra and geometry. Any student who wanted to specialize or accomplish higher goals enrolled in trigonometry or math analysis.

New machines require careful touch and skill

Secretarial practice student, Marietta Bianco, gains proficiency in using the adding machine through practice in class

Necessary business machines and spacious classrooms with new equipment gave a boost to the business department at Truman this year

Students interested in becoming secretaries or stenographers without college training were able to take vocational courses in clerical and secretarial practice. This enabled students to get professionalized training in the classroom without having to take further business courses after graduation

Students not planning to become secretaries found uses for the skills they learned. Typing was an advantage for both students while still in high school and later on when they attend college since so many papers handed in must be typed. Shorthand was essential for beginning secretarial students and proved beneficial for note taking in other classes. For the first time at Truman two boys enrolled in the shorthand classes

Also adding to the well-rounded business program at Truman was bookkeeping. This class provided instruction in financial skills that not only proved an aid for the college-bound accounting student, but also to any student to make personal use of it in budgeting personal and business finances

Students not interested in the more specialized fields of business were offered courses in business law, salesmanship, merchandising, and basic business. These courses gave students concepts of the business world, adding to a well-rounded program at Truman High

Job opportunities prevail for career seekers

Among her many duties at a doctor's office is sterilizing hypodermic needles. Jeanne Cantwell puts the needles in an autoclave.

The Cooperative Occupational Educational (COE) program at Truman High School encouraged students to participate in outside jobs and develop a wholesome attitude toward the dignity of work. They enrolled in COE and attended four periods of school and devoted the remainder of the school day to their respective jobs.

Students in Supervised Office Occupations (SOO) also gained experience and new skills as they held a part-time job in some type of office work. These students were limited to clerical work and were enrolled in a secretarial or clerical practice class to learn new commercial skills.

To provide an opportunity for the development of good citizenship and intelligent leaders, to promote participation in extra-curricular activities, to develop wholesome attitudes towards vocational training as the individual developed were the goals of the Cooperative Education club. Members of COE held regular meetings throughout the year and planned various activities, including participation in state contests, Christmas activities and an Employer-Employee dinner.

Officers of the 1966-1967 COE club were president, Pat Hardin, three vice presidents, David Beltz, Sharon Gannaway and Paul Green, secretary, Sue McCoy, treasurer, Sandy Hartford, and reporter, Jim Tjardes.

Highlighting the year for Future Homemakers of America was a trip to the Home Show. There they saw all of the modern conveniences useful to the homemaker of today. Other activities were a bake sale with the proceeds used to defray expenses of the club, a Christmas party where a demonstration was given on Christmas center pieces and decorations. At other meetings speakers were heard on varied subjects. A beautician spoke on proper grooming and personal appearance for high school girls. Educational speakers talked on home economics as a teaching vocation. Also, a demonstration was given on flower arrangement and corsages.

Officers for the year were Sandy Rodgers, president; Marlene Carroll, vice-president; Rena Miller, secretary-treasurer, and Karen Pitchford, sergeant-at-arms.

Atmosphere is good for home economists

Two rooms for sewing classes, including a large dressing area and six complete kitchens made home economics classes complete for girls at Truman High School

The aroma of baking bread, cookies, muffins, cakes and the cooking of candy surrounded the home economics classroom. Besides the basic fundamentals of cooking, the students in foods and family living classes studied child care, home budgeting and problems of the home.

Besides learning to cook the students of clothing, housing and interior design studied the fundamentals of sewing. After finishing their products the students modeled the clothing. They also learned how to use color schemes, home decorations and different fabrics effectively.

From design to construction, Industrial Arts

equips students with skills for future employment

From design to construction, the Industrial Arts department equipped its students with the skills of industry. Vocational training in drafting and metals was offered as well as general woodworking.

Drafting I and architectural drafting gave a foundation for the vocational class. Young draftsmen not only learned basic skills, but could seek job opportunities and find out about salaries and working conditions. After completing their studies, these students should be able to get a job as an apprentice draftsman.

Another vocational course in the industrial arts field is metals. Here the emphasis was on skill in using basic machine shop tools. Closely associated with metals, woodworking gave students the opportunity to build many useful articles.

Whether the student took a vocational course for a career or a regular class for the enjoyment of working with his hands, the industrial arts department provided an outlet for interests and abilities.

FFA and Drumm Farm challenges young men

After the field has been cleared, these Drumm Farm boys collect logs which have been cut for firewood

Few city schools can boast of having a vocational agriculture program as well as a Future Farmers of America Club. Boys who live at Drumm Farm, an institute for worthy boys, attended Truman High School and participated in the agricultural program. They also formed an FFA chapter.

Future Farmers and Drumm Farm helped train these young men for rural leadership. Combined with school and farm life, FFA was an outlet for skills learned. Contests held at Warrensburg included fields such as poultry, meat judging and public speaking.

The boys also built a gym and several dorm buildings. During the year they can participate in basketball and track in a city league. One of the boys at the farm, Ed Armstrong, played in the National Band at the National FFA convention, in Kansas City this year.

Director of the institute is Mr. George Berkmeier, president of the Board of Education. The vocational instructor, Mr. Arthur Kelly lived at Drumm Farm as a boy and after completing college, came back to the farm as a teacher.

Pats displays athletic ability in sports events

Providing the Pats club with a real workout for their competition meets against rival schools they played against the men's faculty in volleyball. This was in effort to combine health, recreation, the ability to excel in sports and to compete well in all physical activities.

They met twice a month under the supervision of Mrs. Barbara McBride and worked hard to gain control in various sports. Sportsdays gave the participating teams experience in gaining respect and recognition of other schools.

Club socials each month provided members with an opportunity to relax from sports and settle down to an evening of fun and gaiety.

This spring activities lessened and the group had a picnic as its final meeting of the year. This gave the girls the opportunity to give last-minute good-byes and to welcome new members into the club.

Gym classes promote physical fitness program

At any hour through the school day, loud, clear excited cries could be heard coming from the gymnasium. A strenuous physical fitness program was planned for all students taking physical education this year.

To start the year in good shape, various exercises were taught. The balance beam and tumbling helped students become agile while performing stunts. Volleyball and basketball were played during the winter months as appointed teams vigorously competed.

When spring came the gym classes took up softball and archery. Preparing for the long summer months, the course ended with physical fitness tests and more exercises.

Although physical education involved much hard, strenuous work for participants, the fitness achieved rewarded the exhausted feeling.

A major activity of the Truman Lettermen's Club for the year was the forming of a boys cheering section behind the Pep Club at the football and basketball games. In this way, they cheered their fellow lettermen and helped the Pep Club. Besides yelling the cheers with the cheerleaders, they made up some of their own for basketball season.

Also during the basketball season, the Lettermen's Club sponsored the annual Faculty-Lettermen's Club Basketball Game for the student body and other interested spectators. In the spring, the Truman Booster Club gave a banquet in honor of all lettermen.

Officers Tom Norman, president, Tony Agee, vice-president, Danny Shields, secretary, Russell Titus, treasurer, and Robert Lauderdale, sergeant-at-arms, planned the initiation of new members. Faculty sponsors for 1966-1967 were Mr. Laural Hobick, football coach, Mr. James Black, wrestling coach, and Mr. Clay Snowden, basketball coach.

New members of Lettermen's Club prepare for initiation by wearing jewelry and rubbing flour and hair spray on their heads.

Driver education student, John Skouse, finds that parallel parking required excellent maneuvering skill of the automobile.

Instructors receive safety-promotion awards

Training students to become conscientious drivers was one of the ambitions of the drivers education program. Any interested student had the opportunity to learn and improve driving skills.

Students began training in the classroom for future driving. Reading of the text gave students added insight into the mechanics of driving a car and also acquainted them with different traffic problems. Many films were shown to help students understand driving hazards and what they should do if they were involved. Once each week for an hour students applied their driving skills.

Getting behind the wheel of a 1967 Plymouth Fury III, students practiced driving skill tests. One skill test is the speed run which the student driver has to show his ability to drive between stakes at different rates of speed. They also learned fundamentals of parking and how to change tires. In order to prepare students for everyday driving, they were allowed to drive in town, out in the country and on highways and freeways.

Changing a tire prepares this drivers education student for future emergencies.

The ribbon below the shield signified character. This was developed as students participated in extra-curricular activities where each individual was a unique part of the whole. Many clubs and organizations have been formed at Truman, ranging from honor societies to clubs promoting physical fitness. These organizations are a part of the school curriculum and stress student character in relation to them.

Lily, Mike see American life through participation

In Truman's third consecutive year of participation in the AFS program, Patriots were able to boast of, not one, but two foreign exchange students.

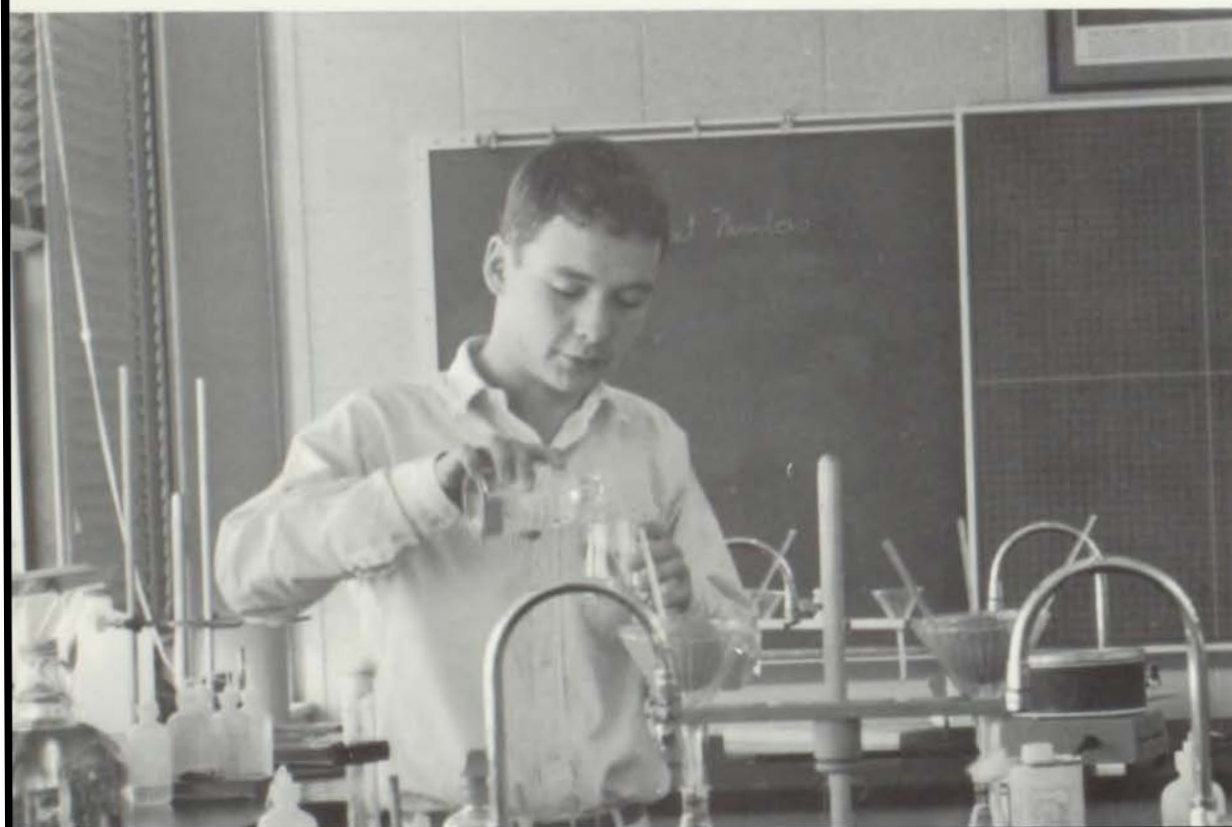

Sharing her smile with Truman students was Lily Valsami. Dark haired, bright-eyed, Lily hailed from Rhodes, Greece, and stayed in Independence at the home of Jan Cottle, a senior. From Lily's family of six, she learned that people were basically the same all over the world, only customs varied. Among Lily's favorite pastimes was active participation in various clubs. She belonged in Pep Club, Student Council, and AFS.

Lily liked her stay at Truman. "I think American schools are bigger and there is more variety here than in Greece. Students have a choice of classes they take and make their own decisions more."

From Hanover, Germany, came Mike Emsbach into the halls of Truman High for one year. Mike came from a family of three and his father is an attorney for an insurance company. He made his home with Dick Smith, a junior. During the year, Mike participated in many school activities including French club, science club, Interact, and the AFS committee of Student Council.

Mike felt that, "Everybody goes to high school in America and only a small percentage could attend at home. American schools provide a high level of education for everyone."

Interested in chemistry, Mike experiments with a chemical solution.

Council officers work toward successful year

Definite goals developed a year of practical contribution for Student Council.

At the pep assembly for the Truman Chrisman basketball game, Student Council presented an official school flag, which will permanently display the school crest and colors in the gymnasium along side the American flag.

A list of names for the dances was put before the student body for final voting. The name "Patsville" was officially adopted by a majority vote.

In addition to sponsoring the Christmas family adoption program, the Council enabled the student body to participate in the Christmas card exchange. The same procedure was repeated for Valentine's Day, allowing students to mail cards to fellow classmates.

Student Council also sold Chatter Matter, conducted the Thanksgiving assembly and directed the United Fund campaign. Such responsibilities as publicizing all extra-curricular activities, counting election ballots and changing the bulletin boards added to the Council's duties.

The executive committee serving during 1966-67 were David Taylor, president; Kevin Northcraft, vice-president and chairman of assemblies, Cathy Yoder, secretary and chairman of activities committee, Judy Van Kirk, treasurer and finance chairman, and Judy Russell, parliamentarian and elections committee chairman.

Special committees, AFS and dance, were headed by Dee Pritchard and Dick Fisher, respectively.

Interact donates canned hams to needy families

Interact, Truman High School's division of an international organization for outstanding junior and senior boys, strengthened individual character, integrity and ability. The Interact Club also functioned in the promotion of bettering school and community welfare.

Sponsored by the Independence Rotary Club, Interact contributed their time and money in fulfillment of the group's purposes. During the 1966-67 school year, these selected boys provided thirteen canned hams for the student body's Christmas family adoption program. The group of boys also presented Young School a record player. To complete the school year's gift giving, Interact donated to the American Field Service during Truman's AFS week.

Assisting presentation and serving refreshments at the Rotary Club's Travellog film sessions earned a large percentage which enabled Interact to perform many profitable activities.

Officers for the 1966-67 school year were Barrie Smith, president; Dave Bennett, vice-president, Ray Ford, secretary, Pat Brock, treasurer, and Don Cain, parliamentarian. Kevin Northcraft, club service chairman, Tony Agee, chairman of fund raising, and Gary Allen, project chairman served as the three councilmen.

Mr. Keith Bench, Co-ordinator of Federal Funds, and Mr. Jerry Moore, vice-principal, sponsored the group of boys.

to designate establishment of open membership

The 1966-1967 Red Cross chapter at Truman changed the name of its club to the Active Red Cross. The charter was changed to accept any person who wanted to join. Previous years only elected representatives from homerooms were admitted. Each member was asked to serve on a committee.

October 15 was the deadline for the first project. Several members filled red and green Christmas packages with such items as paperback books, cigarette pouches, footpowder, pocket knives and combs, and writing materials. These packages were sent to the men fighting in Vietnam.

Throughout the year appointments were made for members to visit nursing homes. Skyview was visited twice a month. Members read and talked to the bed-ridden patients and played games with the people staying at Skyview. Several students went to the Four Pines Rest Home to visit with Miss Mabel Potter who sponsored the first school newspaper for the Independence schools.

With homerooms helping, 50 Christmas stockings were supplied with small luxury items and sent to the war veterans at the Veterans' hospital in Kansas City, Missouri. Students brought groceries, clothes and toys to homerooms to be distributed to needy families adopted by the Active Red Cross at Truman. The club also sponsored a contest between the boys and girls to see which could raise more money for the United Fund Drive. The Hootenanny, a musical activity of the club, presented talent in folk music and was successful in raising money.

Officers of the 1966-1967 Active Red Cross were Kevin Northcraft, president; Carol Powell, vice-president; Terry Sartwell, secretary, Patti Lane, treasurer, Linda McConnell, parliamentarian, and Annette Shirky, reporter.

Qualities of leadership, character, citizenship, scholarship and service formed the basis for membership.

As a money-raising project, members sold Christmas trees. They also had charge of the concession stand at some of the football and basketball games.

Officers for the 1966-67 year were David Taylor, president, Ray Ford, vice president, Beverly Tice, secretary, and Cathy Yoder, treasurer. Mr. William Smith, senior counselor, sponsored the club.

FTA endeavors to provide

Any student interested in the teaching profession gained experience and knowledge from Future Teachers of America Club. FTA met twice a month and planned various activities. October 30 marked the Missouri State Future Teachers of America Convention, in which Truman delegates attended five sessions and learned "How to Make a Better Club". On November 19, members attended the William Jewel Workshop.

At Christmas time, members presented all teachers with an apple. Also, the Teachers Service Corp helped teachers with typing, filing, running errands and grading papers during the school year.

Every spring FTA members visit various area schools and taught a class for a half a day. This helped students gain experience as they practiced their own techniques.

Everyday after school, speed reading classes were available to all interested students. FTA members were in charge of this course.

The elected officers of Truman's Future Teachers of America were President, Susan Goodyear; vice-president, Martha Wood; secretary, Susie Walters; treasurer, Stephanie Meloy; reporter-historian, Patti Lane; and parliamentarian, Kevin Northcraft. Cheerleaders support all Patriots' activities

During the spring of each year Trumanites elect seven cheerleaders to lead the school at sporting events and arouse school spirit. After election, cheerleaders devoted most of their time to practicing cheers, planning pep assemblies and making announcements. This was an honor which required skill and hard work along with desire and a willingness to cooperate.

Truman's seven cheerleaders earned Grand Championship award at the Marshall Cheerleading clinic for the second consecutive year. This state-wide camp provided cheerleaders with professional instruction in the latest techniques on formations, pep rallies and assemblies. They also competed in daily contests with other schools, where they received three first place ribbons and two third place ribbons.

Cheerleaders for the 1966-1967 school year were seniors, Terri Brown, Susie Fain, Judy Van Kirk and Sharon Wright; Juniors, Patti Cain, sophomores, Debbi Brown and Paulette Peterson. Their sponsor was Mrs. Verna King, physical education teacher.

Football and basketball season alike, Pep Club cheered the Patriots to victory. With dignity and poise these 150 girls in red, white and blue supported not only sports, but all functions of Truman.

They contributed to the activities by raising money to pay for football homecoming and basketball queen crowning. Having a rummage sale on August 1-5, selling spirit badges and Amway products were only a few of the methods used to build a large treasury. The girls were responsible for decorating the goal posts for the football games and hanging posters in the gym for basketball. This year the Pep Club formed 65-66 on the football field with the band which helped welcome back graduates for homecoming.

But it was not all work. Besides the fun they had at the games, they held an annual picnic and banquet. At the banquet the newly elected officers were officially placed in charge.

During all seasons and at all school functions, Pep Club prided in its establishment of organization and efficiency. Striving to better support all school activities, Pep Club represented Truman High's school spirit.

This year's officers were Sandy Cookston, president, Susie Walters, vice-president, Kathy Haggard, secretary, Bonnie Draper, treasurer, Patti Lane, reporter-historian, and Debby Calovich, parliamentarian.

Giving advice on all activities and chaperoning all bus trips were the sponsors, Mrs. Paula Jones and Mrs. Verna King.

Cathy Haggard reigns as Queen of Flowers

Keeping a tradition for the third consecutive year the Truman high school student body helped Cathy Haggard reign over the halloween parade as Queen of Flowers

Centered around on "op" art theme the float was decorated with carnations, chrysanthemums and leaves. Cathy was crowned and presented with a dozen red roses. Sharing her royal court with two runners-up were Vicki Consentino from St. Mary's high school and Debbie Voorhees from William Chrisman high school. Cathy reigned over parade festivities.

Leading the parade were the Truman marching band preceded by the the seven varsity cheerleaders. The two weeks which preceded the announcement students organized car caravans to carry voters to the various flower shops to vote.

Hooty receives title of Mr. Spirit 1967

With his usual exuberance and jovility Robert Lauderdale accepted the honor of Mr. School Spirit 1967 during the half-time of the Truman-Oak Park basketball game. Sandy Cookston, Pep Club president, and Susie Walters, vice-president, presented Hooty with a trophy which had his name engraved.

During his high school career Truman's honored senior boy participated in several organizations. He was a member of Science Club, Chess Club, Quill and Scroll, Red Cross, Student Council and held the office of sergent-at-arms in the Letterman's Club.

Hooty also had special honor during his senior year when was named a National Merit Scholarship Finalist. He was also one of the representatives from Truman on the Categories television program.

Besides Hooty, Pep Club nominated two other candidates — Danny Carter and Bob Hackler. They were selected for their service to school on both scholastic and extra-curricular activities. Final voting was by the student body.

Athletics

Athletics, represented by the mantling around the school crest, developed special skills and promoted school spirit among students. Various sports, requiring different abilities, were available at Truman. This provided a way for more to participate actively in athletics. School spirit was shown by spectators as well as participants. A sense of pride was established as the high ideals and citizenship of school spirit were developed.

Truman High Patriots sported enthusiasm and endurance during each game of the 1966 gridiron season. Although Patriots suffered a 0-10 losing streak, spirit and strength prevailed as the long season rolled to an end.

The night of September 9 started what proved to be a season of disappointments for Truman. Jefferson City's Blue Jays presented Patriots with the first sting of defeat as the Jays chalked up 32 points against scoreless Truman. The Patriots then journeyed to Center and were handed a 19-0 defeat by the Yellowjackets. On September 23 the Truman team met up with another loss as Raytown eked out a win over the Pats 21-18. Truman dropped the next game in a disastrous 14-7 upset as Lexington's Minutemen left the field victorious.

On October 7, at Ruskin, Patriots came close to victory in a 7-6 battle with the Eagles. As the score proved, Ruskin's defense was a step ahead of Truman's offense. Losing the next game to Oak Park on October 15, Truman moved on to another loss from the North Kansas City Hornets 40-6. Springfield Center added to Patriots list of defeats as they won 34-6. Still another defeat came from Raytown South 25-0 and left Truman with 9 down and 1 to go. Patriots took their last trip of the season to the north side of town and rounded off the season with a tight 14-13 loss to Chrisman.

Truman's, Danny Shields was chosen guard of the Independence Examiner's All Area football team. Also, representing Truman on the second team was Tom Sloan, center. Honorable Mention went to Lloyd Cunningham and Tom Norman. Chosen for Honorable Mention on the Suburban Eight All-Conference Team were Lloyd Cunningham, Tom Norman, Danny Shields and Russ Titus. Tri-captains of the Patriot football squad were Tom Norman, Danny Shields and Russ Titus. Under the supervision of Coaches Loral Hobick, Robert Felling and Bill Smith the Red, White and Blue team concluded the 1966 football season.

Sportsmanship Code

We, the student body of Truman High School, feel that good sportsmanship should prevail at all school functions. We consider all opponents as guests and treat them with the courtesy due friends and guests. We accept all decisions of officials without question. We never utter abusive or irritating remarks to a player or an official. We applaud opponents who make good plays and show good sportsmanship. We never attempt to antagonize any opponent (such as a player attempting a free throw). We seek to win by fair and honest methods according to the rules. We try to win without boasting and lose without excuses. We ask that every player and fan do his best throughout the game to cooperate with us in living up to our code.

Royal Rhapsody

"Royal Rhapsody" was the theme of Truman's second annual Homecoming, Friday, October 21. Half-time festivities included the formation of the numbers "66-67" by members of the band and Pep Club. As Queen Kay Carlisle and her royal court rode in convertibles around the field, the band played "Moon River," "Wonderland by Night," and "Missouri Waltz." Queen Kay was crowned by last year's queen, Lollie Zander, and then honored at the 1967 Homecoming Dance following the game. Her attendants were Teri Brown and Sharon Wright, seniors; Debbie Calovich and Martha Duckworth, juniors; and Susan Grinham and Brenda Hartley, sophomores.

Seeing red-clad boys running up and down the hills at Swope Park was not an uncommon sight after the beginning of the Cross Country season on September 13

This year's co captains, Danny Baird and Mike Maloney, set the pace by working hard to keep team spirit high. Team members had to work together due to the method of scoring. The number of points gained by each runner gave a total for each school competing, thus deciding the victor. After six victorious meets Truman placed seventh out of twelve in the conference and seventh out of seventeen in the district. During the meet against Liberty and Chrisman at Swope Park, Danny Baird broke his own record of 11:08.2 for the two-mile, setting a new school record of 10:54.

Varsity letters went to eight tracksters, while six junior varsity letters were earned. November 1 marked the end of the 1966 Cross Country season.

in tough fight for first in suburban conference

For the first time in its three year history, Truman's basketball team surged to the top sharing the Suburban Eight conference title in a tie with Raytown South. In a triumphant season's conference record of eleven wins and three losses, the Truman cagers managed to break a "jinx," stay on top of an eleven-game winning streak and grab the championship trophy in the Class L Regionals.

The first game resulted in a 71-73 loss to St. Pius. This began the ten game "jinx" in which Truman won every other game before finally winning two in a row to break the pattern. After whipping Westport 75-49 and losing to De La Salle 48-61, Patriots entered the North Kansas City Tournament. Here, Pats downed North Kansas City and Oak Park with a loss to Raytown South, putting the Truman team in third place.

The conference opener brought Ruskin to the Patriot court in a close win for Truman 66-64. A week later, Pats lost a close bout with Raytown 48-50. Entering the Lee's Summit Tournament, Truman defeated Hogan 54-38 and fell to Raytown 50-56.

Hustling forward, Patriots again captured a victory over North Kansas City with a decisive 56-42 win. Defeat then came to Truman on William Chrisman's hardwoods 56-60.

Next Truman met up with Raytown South to post a 68-63 win over the Cardinals. In the following game Pats suffered at the hands of Oak Park 61-71.

Rushing back, Truman bagged a 74-56 victory over Center, beginning an eleven game winning streak. Ruskin, Raytown and North Kansas City next fell prey to the Patriot team. Moving on, the Chrisman Bears visited Truman only to be defeated in a close match 45-44. Another tight game came when the Pats shot down Raytown South in an overtime 56-55. Oak Park stood in line as the next target for the triumphant Patriots with a smashing score of 91-65. Finally, as tension reached its peak, Truman cagers stomped Center 75-57 clinching the Conference title along with Raytown South.

Highlighting the roundball season, Truman hosted the Class L Regionals, blasting past the Liberty Bluejays in an all-out conquest for the championship trophy. Victory-hungry Patriots hit State to play Central in the first round of the State tournaments, but the Eagles managed to slip past Truman in a hard fought 68-56.

The crowd rushes forward to congratulate the boys on winning third place in the North Kansas City Tournament

Sandi Cookston, court reign in 'Crowning Glory'

As the scene changed from a hotly contested basketball game to the splendor of a coronation, Sandi Cookston was crowned Basketball Homecoming Queen. The lights were dimmed during halftime when last year's queen, Debbie Hatch, set the crown on Sandi's head.

From a daffodil pedestal, the queen and her court watched over the game which Truman won. Reigning in "Crowning Glory," the theme of the ceremony, with Sandi were Linda Conrad and Sandi Hartman, senior attendants; Pam Leaf, junior attendant, and Paulette Peterson, sophomore attendant.

These girls were selected from a group of nine nominated by the basketball team. A vote of the student body determined the winners.

After the game, a homecoming dance was held carrying through the same theme. The "Epics," a Kansas City band, played at this student council sponsored dance.

Cunningham advances to state wrestling finals

In its second consecutive year at Truman High School, competitive wrestling was open to any sophomore, junior or senior boy. Under its new head coach, Jim Black, wrestlers experienced a successful season of eight wins and four losses.

On November 14 a pre-season meeting was held to acquaint parents and prospective matmen with the basic requirements necessary to become a good wrestler. The boys practiced after school learning basic techniques, moves and holds designed to develop the skills needed for wrestling.

Truman's wrestling team participated in various tournaments during the 1967 season. At the St. Joseph Tournament Lloyd Cunningham and Tom Bryant placed first. Charlie Cockerell placed second in the tournament with Steve Coffman, third, and Gaylen Coffman, fourth. Placing first at the Conference Tournament was Cunningham, followed by Bryant and Cockerell in third place. The Truman team moved on to the District Tournament with Cunningham holding second place. Bryant, Cockerell, Ric Evans, and Steve Coffman placed third, followed by Gaylen Coffman in fourth place.

Truman then journeyed to Excelsior Springs, to participate in the Sub-state Tournament where Cunningham won his match. Also, Truman sent Cunningham to St. Louis, to wrestle in the State wrestling matches. In the junior varsity tournament, Randy Coil placed first with Clark Smith in third and Tom Ryburn in fourth place.

Classes

Many students carry a part of the shield on their school ring. The ring crest is similar to the Presidential seal with the eagle, olive branches and arrows on it. It shows that each student is a part of one of the classes at Truman and this symbol will be carried with them the rest of their life.

Sophomore class officers for the 1966-67 school year are Kathy Burlingame, secretary; John Skouse, vice-president; Ben Snell, president; Charles Laxon, treasurer.

Snell, Skouse, Burlingame, Laxon are officers

Sophomores were involved in many activities in their first year at Truman. They took more part in school life than they had before, both in school athletics and organizations.

The class of 1969 gave their all out support to the athletic events sponsored by Truman. On the sophomore teams, the boys delved into football and basketball with hopes of making varsity next year. Some of them made junior varsity teams this year, in basketball, baseball and football. Sophomores invaded wrestling and track teams as well. Meanwhile the girls cheered the boys on through yelling with Pep Club or by themselves.

In the Truman Glee Clubs, one could hear the voices — tenor, soprano, bass and alto — of the sophomore vocalists. They took an active part in many of the vocal groups and choirs this year.

Not all of their talents were spent harmonizing vocally, many were devoted to the playing of instruments in orchestra or sophomore band.

Besides this, sophomores were involved in several organizations — Student Council, Future Teachers of America, French, Spanish, German and Latin. In these clubs the sophomores applied their skills as well as their enthusiasm, as they did throughout the year in all their school activities.

Juniors established meanings and memories as they progressed and grew in their second year of school at Truman High. Being a junior meant long hours of studying ... American Literature ... American history ... algebra ... geometry ... physical education ... biology; it meant reading The Scarlet Letter and The Good Earth.

These second year Trumanites gained leadership abilities and grew in stature by participating in school-wide activities as well as junior class responsibilities. But their hard work was rewarded, for being a junior also was a varsity letter ... queen attendant ... debate trophy ... National Honor Society ... Science Club.

Being a junior meant preparation for the last year at Truman senior year. Campaigning for a Student Council office ... having Senior pictures made ... ordering class rings set the pace to students anticipating another year. This ring symbolized the end of their junior year and the beginning of a new one.

Finally, juniors climaxed the years' works, rewards and preparations with their Junior Prom. This year, juniors chose a Roman setting for the theme, "Three coins in a Fountain." Class officers and class members worked after school before the prom in an effort to make it a memorable occasion. Thus, juniors added their last memory and looked forward to building a special significance for their coming year.

Officers of the 1966-1967 year were Charles Cockerell, president, Dave Bennett, vice-president, Debbie Nagel, secretary, and Dotty Craig, treasurer. Junior class sponsors were Mr. Ronald Clemons, Miss Sharon Powell, Mrs. Sharon Spurlin and Miss Marilyn VanderLinden.

Hap Graff, Ray Ford,

Culminating their last year of activities at Truman High School, members of the senior class found themselves on the threshold of new experiences and challenges in the future. Each level of high school was a series of stepping stones leading and preparing the way for adult life. Seniors faced this new world and new beginning with mixed emotions as graduation drew nearer.

These oldest pioneers in the field of high school education have lived up to standards and traditions set by the senior classes which have preceded them. They participated in school-wide activities including the annual Kiddie Car Contest on November 11. Seniors sponsored and planned Senior Week in an effort to raise money for the last payment on the school crest. The money was earned through school participation in Slave Day and King Pin along with various other money-making contests. The value of co-operation and self-sufficiency was developed as they came to the end of the year.

It was in the senior year that friendships were sealed and a recollection of the joys and sorrows of high school were remembered. After three years at Truman, students faced the last pep rally, the last game, the last dance, the last election, the last yearbook . . . the last good-bye.

Index

The yearbook staff would like to acknowledge some of the people who made this book possible. We thank the Board of Education and Central Office administrators. Our photography was done by Roland's Studio and our publishing done by the American Yearbook Company. Mr. Matthews from the yearbook company worked with us on problems with production. We want to thank the faculty, office staff and especially our principals, Mr. Moore and Mr. Brown, whose cooperation and encouragement helped us throughout the year.

of South Africa with classmates

Dear Susan,
 It's so hard to believe that after all these years we're finally going to graduate. And when it comes to a girl like you, I hardly know what to say. I'm so proud & happy for you - going abroad this summer, I'd couldn't think of a more deserving person. We've had so much fun together the past few years - just talking about problems going to football & basketball games. One of your greatest assets is your sincerity & desire to stand up for what you believe. You're one of the sweetest & most considerate people I've ever known. I'll miss you so much next year, well just have to write & see each other often. Best of luck to a wonderful person.
 Love,
 Bev Lee

Mass hysteria reigns as Patriots capture third place in the North Kansas City Tournament

Hail! Truman High School,
To you we're loyal and true.
We are the Patriots,
The red, white and blue.
Firm and un-daunt-ed
Always we stand.
Hail to the school we love,
Best in the land.

The first part of the document discusses the importance of maintaining accurate records of all transactions. It emphasizes that every entry, no matter how small, should be recorded to ensure the integrity of the financial data. This includes not only sales and purchases but also expenses and income. The document provides a detailed list of items that should be tracked, such as inventory levels, supplier payments, and customer orders. It also outlines the procedures for reconciling accounts and identifying discrepancies. The second part of the document focuses on the analysis of the recorded data. It describes various methods for interpreting the information, such as comparing current performance with historical trends and industry benchmarks. The document also discusses the implications of the data for decision-making and provides recommendations for improving efficiency and profitability. Finally, the document concludes with a summary of the key findings and a call to action for the management team to implement the suggested changes.

Orchestra receives top rating for third year

A cappella and girl's choir were entries at regional contests. Here they perform at Truman's third annual commencement.

During the spring of 1967, Truman's vocal and instrumental departments spent many hours practicing in preparation for the regional music contests held at Central Missouri State College at Warrensburg. Nearly 250 of Truman's music students traveled to CMSC to participate in band, orchestra, chorus ensemble and solo performances.

As a result of their practicing many top ratings were received. For the third consecutive year, orchestra earned a "I" rating. Band established a Truman first this year by receiving a "I" rating. Other top ratings went to seven instrumental solos, one instrumental ensemble, five vocal ensembles and two vocal solos.

Truman's recipients of "I" ratings then were eligible to enter state competition, held at Missouri University in Columbia.

Mr. Don Welborn was band and orchestra director. Mr. Elmwood Brown instructed the vocal music department.

Varsity baseball team achieves suburban title

Tearing down the home stretch, Steve Williams crosses the first Truman run of the game

In the nippy cold of Mill Creek Park, the Patriot baseballers cinched their second straight championship with a win over Chrisman. Leading to this climax were many games on the baseball schedule.

Starting the season off right, the Pats won their opener in a close 5-4 decision over St. Joe Benton and followed this up with a shut-out against De LaSalle.

In a close game against Oak Park, the Patriots were defeated 1-0. Another 1-0 score occurred in the Chrisman game, but the Pats were on the winning end this time. The Big Red continued their winning ways with a 5-1 victory over North Kansas City.

Pitching was the key to the Pat's victory, as it was all season, with a 3-1 win over Park Hill. This win pushed Truman into a first place tie with Chrisman for the conference title.

Traveling out of town, Columbia Hickman was the next victim of the Patriots' winning season.

Another decisive win over Park Hill pushed the Pats ahead of the rest of the pack in the title race.

In the state tournament, De LaSalle defeated Truman in the first round. Traveling to another tournament, however, the Pats took third in Seditia. Finishing the season, the 5-0 shut-out of Chrisman placed Truman in the conference championship.

Tom Steele, "File" sings of the misery the town is in because of drought.

Scourged by drought, gym becomes town filled with problems from marriage to rainmakers

The Truman High School gym was scourged by drought and desperate for rain, May 12 and 13 for Truman's third musical, "110 In The Shade."

Paulette Votava as "Lizzy," Chris Smalley as "H.C. Curry," Seibert Quick as "Noah Curry," and Kenny Miller as "Jim Curry," try to find Lizzy a husband, while Hughy McClenny as "the rain-maker" swindles the Currys out of $100, making them think he can bring rain. Joy Doubledee as "Snooky" played the town flirt, trying her best to attract Jim Curry's attention. Tom Steele as "File" accuses the rainmaker of being a fraud, but Lizzy persuades File to let him go. File proposes to Lizzy and the rain comes pouring down just as the rainmaker drives away.

Members of the three choirs, a cappella, girls choir, and the mixed chorus, composed the chorus, and the school orchestra accompanied the musical, directed by Mr. Elwood H. Brown.
