¹ spark: that which sets off a sudden force

Each team goes forth
To conquer the other.
One will dim while the other
Will shine forth —
In victory.

Some sparks unite
To form a team.
As each group of sparks
Faces the other, a dominant force
Is apparent.

spark: a latent particle capable of growth or developing

The intense blaze of the fire
Represents us as a whole —
A conglomeration
Of energy particles,
Radiating power

With feverish defiance.
Smoldering with potential,
These particles prepare to burst forth
And launch a new Life.

³ spark: a hot glowing particle struck from a larger mass

The small glowing sparks
Symbolize each of us
As we are catapulted
Into the unknown.
Some surge forward rapidly

While others drift,
Joining the masses
Of humanity in their attempt
To add fervor to mere Existence.

'The Man From Independence'

President Gerald R. Ford: "I admire President Truman because he was forthright. He believed in certain things and he was willing to go out and fight for them. I think that is a very admirable trait."

Sue Gentry: "Harry Truman was never too busy to stop and then and welcome delegations of young students to the Library. He reminded young people that they were going to be running the government and it is up to them to maintain the greatest government in the history of the world."

On this site shall be erected a life-size statue of:
"The Man from Independence"

Harry S. Truman
Thirty-third President of the United States

Gilbert Franklin, American Sculptor and Professor at the Rhode Island School of Design, has been commissioned to create the work in bronze. The sculpture will be completed in May of 1976.

A public fund-raising campaign is under way so that every person may feel he has had an opportunity to pay tribute to the memory of this vital and courageous citizen who became a world leader and returned to take

The tribute to former President Truman was made possible through the courtesy of the Harry S Truman Library. I would like to extend my sincere thanks to them. Also, to the following for providing photos: Bradley Smith — "American Weekly," "the St. Louis Post-Dispatch" and "the New York Herald-Tribune."

Gail Schwab

Pastor Thomas G. Melton: "One day Mr. Truman said to me, 'I really appreciate you being my neighbor. I can look out of my window and when I see your newspaper on your lawn I know my newspaper is on my lawn and I don't have to go out and see if my paper is there if I don't see your paper.' "

Mrs. W. L. C. Palmer: "I have watched Harry all through his political career and he has remained as I knew him as a youth — pure in morals, upright in all his dealings, an incorruptible patriot."

Rufus Burrus: "I always found him to be absolutely honest in everything he did. All the time as county judge, there was never any suspicion or criticism that the county's money was misspent. People showed complete confidence in his honesty and integrity."

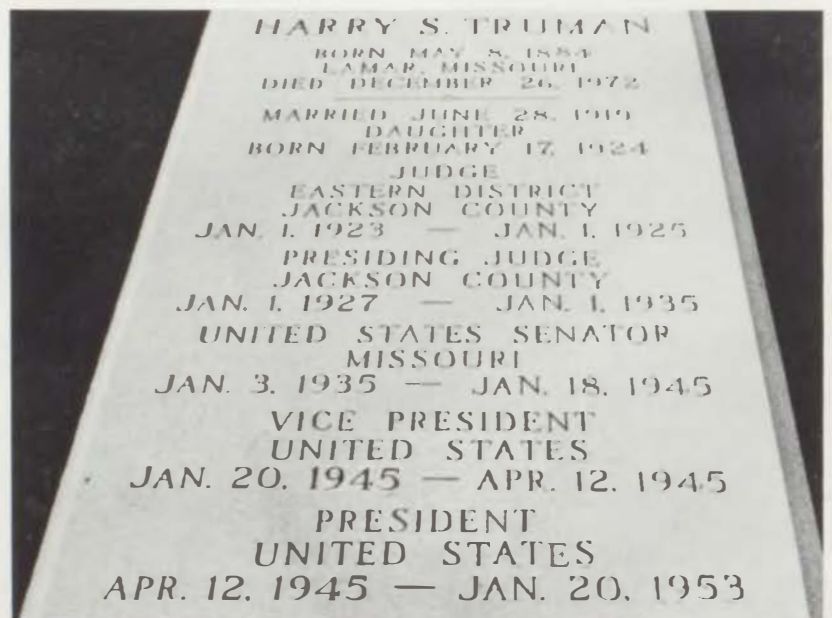

He Symbolizes Honesty

"America needs you, Harry Truman. Harry, won't you please come home?" So go the lyrics of a contemporary song, which typify the general consensus of American teenagers today about Harry S Truman. Youth have found an identifiable hero in "The Man from Independence."

Attempting to relate to his candor and frankness, Truman High students, with their "Harry's Place" T-shirts, have joined the Trumania craze. This surging fad could be attributed to Americans who are looking for a leader like Mr. Truman who will "call a spade a spade."

As one student said, "Crooked politics has a lot to do with it. The big thing today is to be honest — and Truman symbolized honesty."

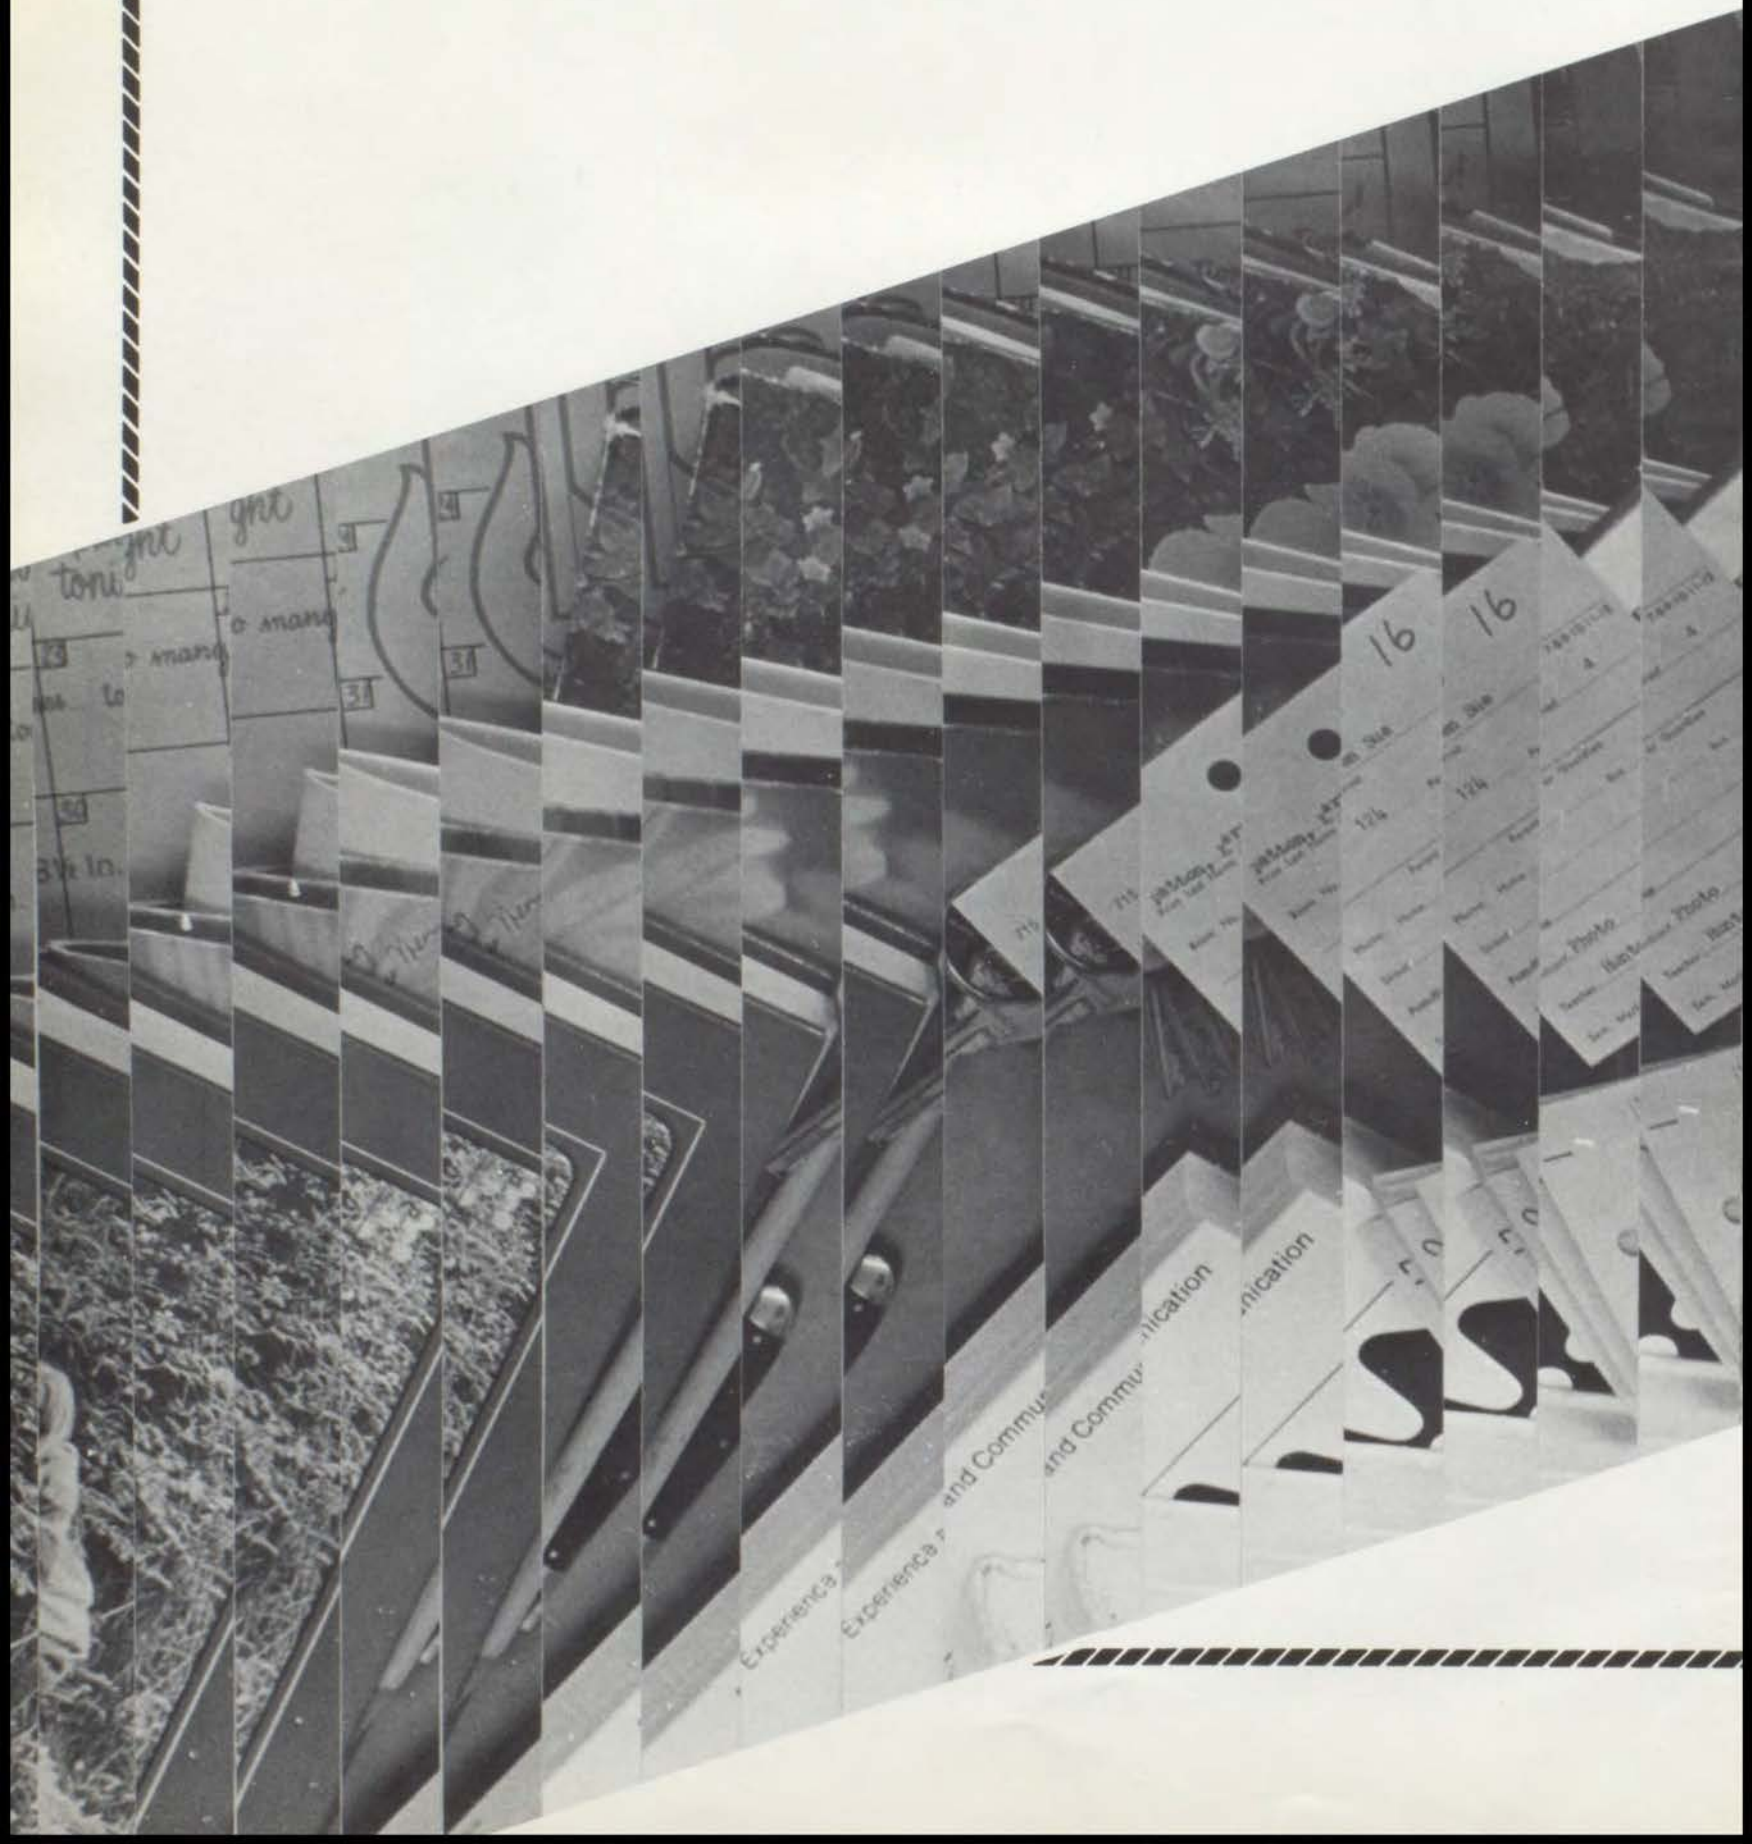

Harry — a man.
Truly a man of "Independence" —
Not only was it his hometown,
It was his way of life.
Through his common touch and earthy humor,
People could identify with him.
His frank, down-to-earth personality both attracted and repelled.
"Undignified!" charged his opponents.
"Dependable!" countered his defendants.
Blunt and outspoken,
His salty spirit won him loyal friends and bitter enemies
As events altered the course of his life.

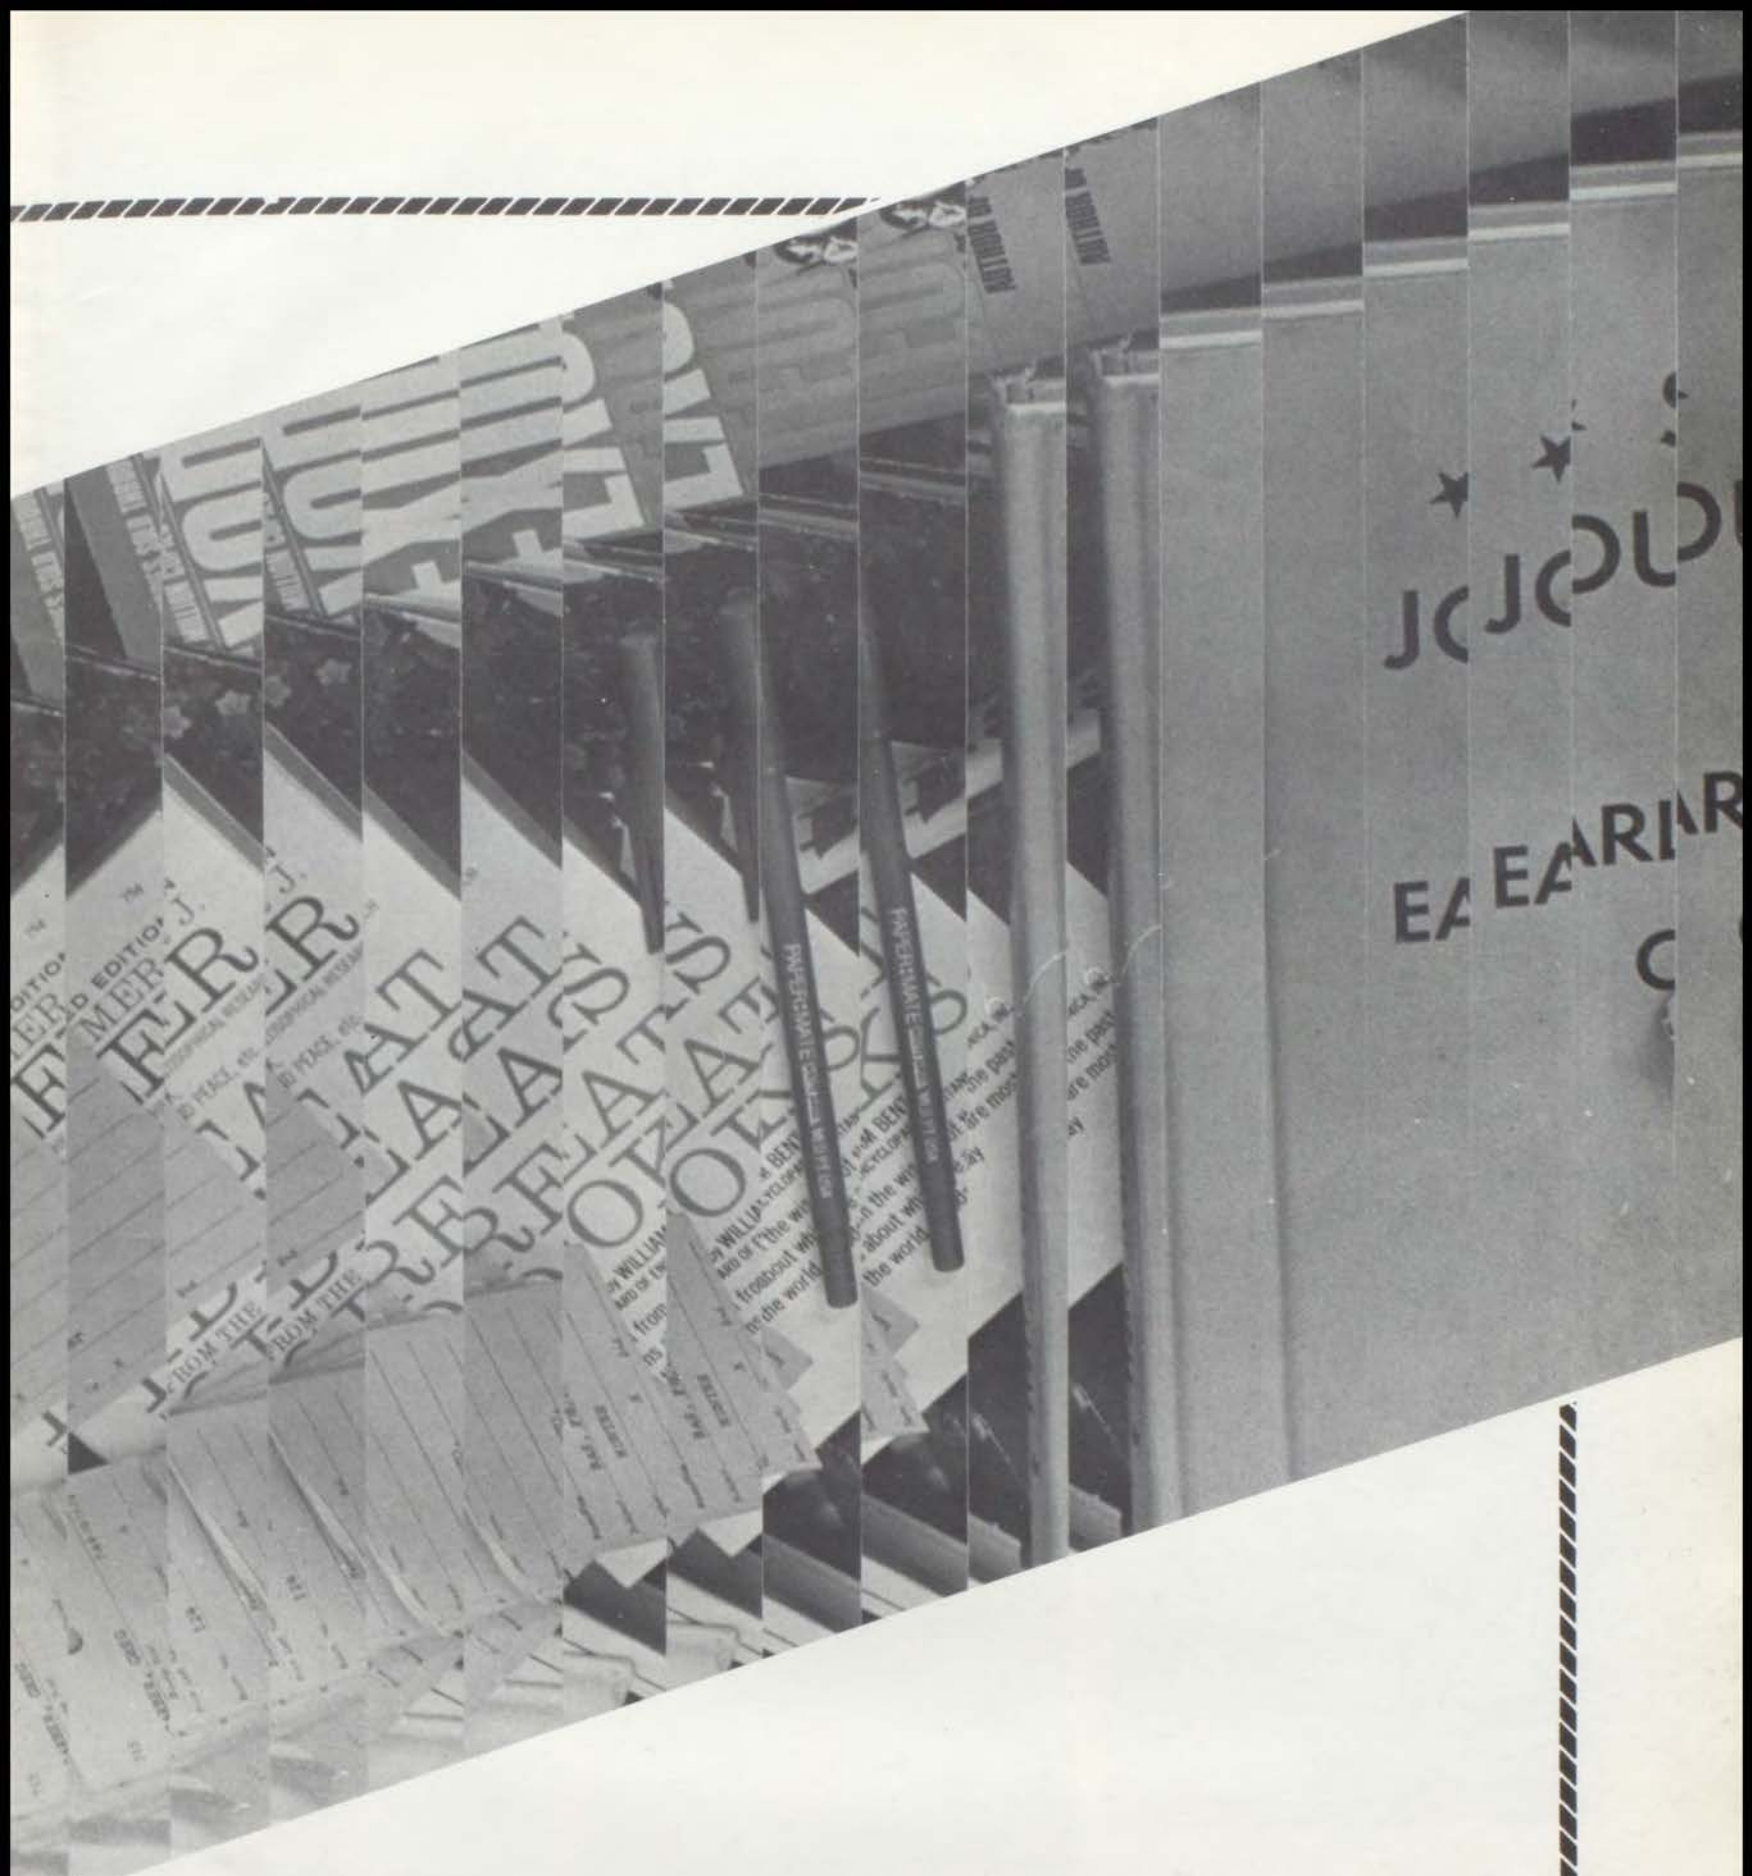

Harry Truman — a leader.
Critical decisions came his way,
Yet he accepted the responsibilities thrust upon him
And emerged as a statesman in his own right.
Serving his country in the face of danger,
With a bold resoluteness and brave defiance,
Through triumph and failure,
He met challenges with courage, integrity and imagination.
In speaking, he shunned eloquence for simple,
direct language
And monitored the pulse of the nation.

Harry S Truman — a legend.
From haberdasher to President
He possessed flair — a style of his own.
While serving, he was not fully appreciated,
Though later his influence was revealed.
Honesty, determination, indomitable spirit ...
This valiant pioneer took the country by surprise.
A little bit of everything,
This man from Independence.

Individuality

Book choices affect students

True stories, adventures, sports, mentally retarded children, mysteries, and the outdoors all shared one characteristic. They were the kind of books "that interest the kids."

Individual reading interests were stressed in Mrs. Rosemary Boetjer's English II classes. She encouraged reading by finding out what the students liked and then selected books based on their interests. It wasn't always an easy task.

"A lot of students are interested in motorcycles this year, but there aren't too many books written on them," Mrs. Boetjer said.

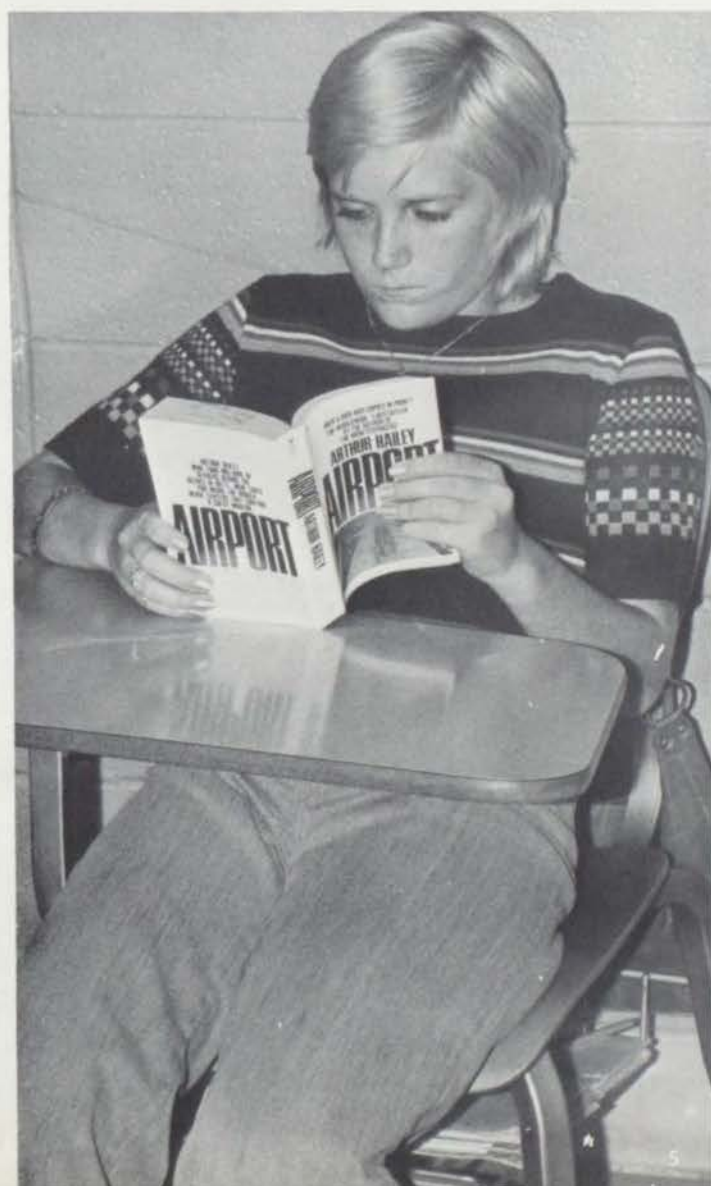

In this respect, Vicki Hoeger said, "Each student should choose their own books to read. A book may mean something different to you than to a teacher."

Some students would not read books. This was the case with senior Gary Reid two years ago.

"I would just go to class and day-dream. Once I started to read about mountains nobody could stop me. Also, my other schoolwork improved and I could understand it better."

Just as books inspired Gary to climb mountains, it motivated others in a different way.

As Vicki Todd said, "When I read a book, I feel I have found a new friend."

Goal

'Image' takes on new look

The Image, a magazine of student writings, was compiled by Literary Arts Seminar. A contest was held to determine what essays, poems and stories were to be published in the magazine. Club members read all submitted works and then other high school teachers judged the top writings to insure impartiality.

"We wanted the Image to have a more literary, professional approach instead of the normal high-school-mimeographed-through-together thing," president Valerie Smith said.

The club wanted to have the magazine printed professionally, so to defray publication costs members sold candy and candles.

Valerie explained, "We wanted to have the Image printed at the district's printing shop at Chrisman instead of mimeographing it in the office like we did the past two years. This will result in a smaller and more selective magazine."

To Topeka

Trip becomes major activity

Students who are in the upper one-fourth of their class and make above average grades in a journalism or publications class have a chance to be accepted in Quill and Scroll, a national club for high school journalists. Once chosen, students are initiated and presented a membership card, a charm, and subscription to the Quill and Scroll magazine.

President Roxanne Wyss said, "The club this year is trying to be a little more active than in the past."

One thing they participated in was a field trip to the American Yearbook Company in Topeka where Truman's yearbook is published.

Stat sheets

Sports format adds variation

An initiative change on the sports page of the Spirit of '76 was the Stat Sheets, a compact account of the various sporting events in statistical form.

"Stat sheets give the reader a different aspect of the game a week or two after the game has taken place. It doesn't rehash the same old stuff that has already been written in other publications, such as The Examiner or The Kansas City Star," Tim Bryant, sports editor, said.

Managing editor Paul McCulley, favored the stat sheets because he thought the sports page needed a change.

"Instead of just finding out who won the game, you could find out the individual efforts. On the other hand, if an incident such as an accident occurred, this information would not be found on stat sheets," Paul said.

Opinions among students varied as to whether the stat sheets were an improvement over sport stories.

"I'd be more likely to read the stat sheets. The stories are opinionated and there's always too much icing on them," commented senior Cindy Kilgore.

In conclusion, senior Tom Raga said, "The stat sheets were better for information but the stories made better reading."

Spark

Theme relates to Trumanites

"We used a patriotic theme, the spark, and related this to the student body and how they, like a spark, could affect other people," Gail Schwab, editor of the '76 Heritage, said.

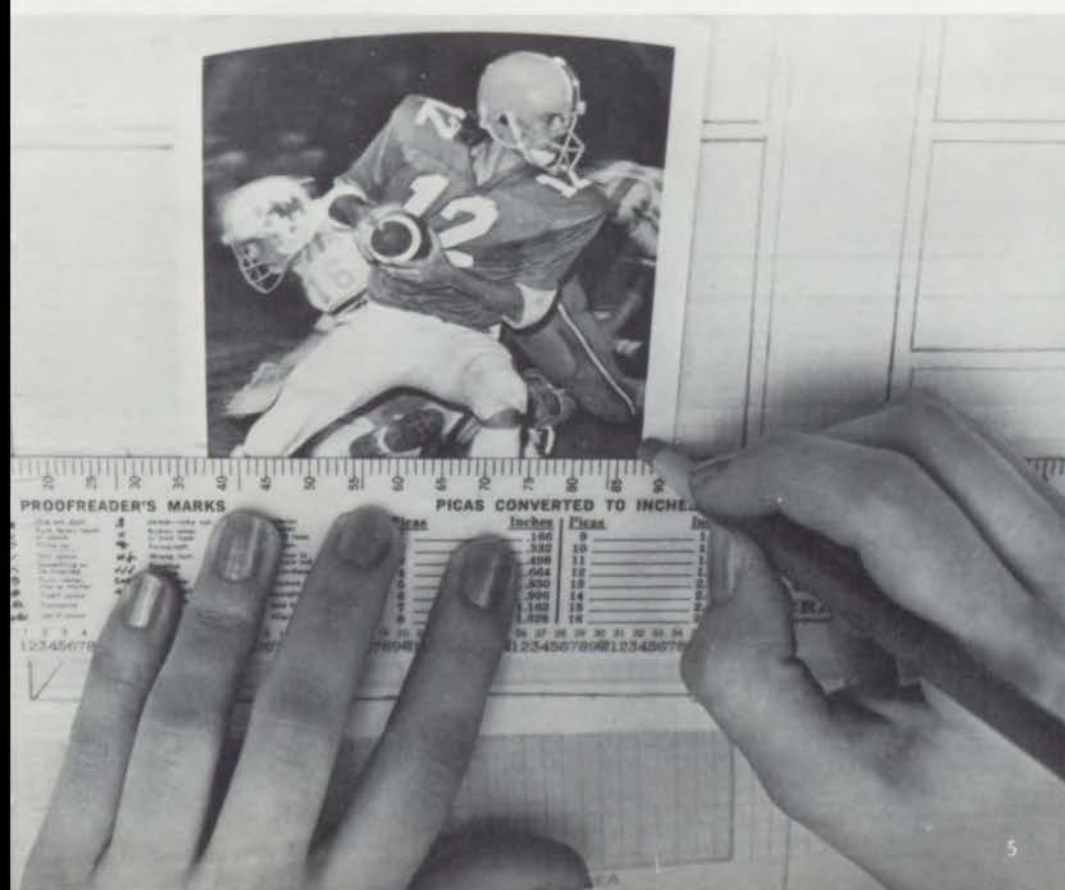

The staff chose the spark for various reasons:

"We wanted a theme that applied directly to us. So we combined the heritage of Harry S Truman and the Bicentennial with one idea — spark," commented Kathy Lamb, associate editor.

While the cover introduced the spark theme, the introduction and conclusion carried it through.

Design editor Robert Kaleikau said, "The spark is what influenced the design of the book. We kept in mind that the spark was long-lasting, so we used a continuous element through the book."

For an added dimension, the staff had the student in mind when it decided to limit the division pages to allow more space for pictures of people and activities.

1. The responsibility of writing receipts for the yearbook and newspaper is one of the many jobs for business manager Roxanne Wyss. 2. Layout problems are major concerns for staff members such as Cathy Angotti. 3. Decisions require two-way communication as Gail Schwab presents her idea to the staff. 4. Robert Kaleikau checks over all layouts before they go to the printer. 5. Accuracy is a prime factor in the design of the yearbook.

Understanding

'Scrabble' aids their learning

After learning the basics in German I, German II students learned more about the culture and how to use the language.

Junior Cathy Dean said, "Scrabble" is one way we put our new vocabulary to work — besides, it's fun."

Another way students learned to understand the language was by playing "Geheime Mission," a game that consists of a mystery story on a tape. Students had to figure out the plot and answer questions about it.

"We also work on worksheets, cartoons, and commercials," junior Bob Payne said.

Senior Nancy Huelse remarked, "It's hard, but at least I can say I've learned something."

En francais

Singing, eating teach culture

Sing? In French class? The idea seemed strange to French students — at first.

"Everybody was shy at the beginning of the year but once you got over that it was fun," sophomore Nancy Houston said.

In addition, singing served a useful purpose in teaching the French language.

Senior Donna Altis commented, "It really helps your pronunciation."

Ms. Janelle Jennings collected the songs, which ranged from old folk songs to the currently popular tunes, on her trips to France and Quebec.

She said, "Singing helps you learn the language and the culture. Lots of people can't say the words but they can sing them. Also, a song stays with you longer."

Along this line, senior Lisa Sheehy added, "It's a good way to trick you into learning new vocabulary words."

Not all students, though, enjoyed the singing.

Ellen Mount, senior, replied, "I hate to sing but it's better than doing class-work," while senior Julie Adams commented, "Anything to break the monotony of class."

Others, however, agreed with sophomore Eddie Paterson when he said, "I like it. It's a change of pace."

Another change of pace combining lingual and cultural learning involved French Club and its annual progressive dinner. The menu included onion soup, chicken in mushrooms and sour cream, tossed salad and chocolate mousse — all prepared according to traditional French cuisine, of course. But even the French cuisine had its "lumps."

Senior Laura Barnes, who hosted the first course, explained, "We almost had a catastrophe with the onion soup. It started to get lumpy just before the people came and we had to strain it at the last minute."

However, most members considered the dinner a success. As senior Raylene Hosley concluded, "I'll go to France if they eat like that everyday."

SCAT

Helpers keep children active

National Spanish Honor Society sponsored SCAT (Student and Community Action Team) as its project. Students who volunteered went to Proctor and Alton elementary schools every Wednesday afternoon. The children, chosen by their principal and teachers, included fourth, fifth and sixth graders. Volunteers helped the kids with whatever problems they had. These problems included adjusting to school life. The project operated on a one-to-one basis. Therefore, the problems and the aid were both individual. One of the common problems was homework.

"The boy I'm assigned to has trouble with math so I help him with it," said junior Martha Nix.

Besides helping the kids with the school work they already had, SCAT contributed even more by teaching them a little Spanish. And, the students seemed eager to learn.

Junior Kelly McDermott's student, 5th grader Gloria Sullivan, anxiously asked every week, "When are we going to learn Spanish?"

"I can tell she's happy," Kelly said, "and I look forward to it probably as much as she does."

This one-to-one contact, participants said, made the project worthwhile.

As junior Julie Ferguson said, "We're mainly just supposed to be a friend to them."

Humanitarians

Club donates all to charity

Spanish Club knew where the money they made went to — the American Cancer Society. All the profits from selling candy and t-shirts and running the concession stand were donated. Never before had all their profits been turned over to a charity.

"I like the idea of donating our profits to the Cancer Society because I can see the need of it," said junior Kim Gordon.

President Sherri Hauser explained the action the club took: "Throughout the year, we're holding fund-raising activities and we plan to have a banquet to present all the money to the Cancer Society."

The club members wanted to do something for someone besides themselves.

As Sherri said, "In the past two years the services we've performed have been 'nada.'"

The Cancer Society was a cause Spanish Club members could relate to.

Vice-president John Salazar concluded, "We feel donating our time, efforts and money to the Cancer Society is one of the most worthwhile projects a club could undertake."

Trophies

Individual help fosters results

"We definitely have an advantage this year. Forensics has really improved our tournament results," Mrs. Penny Swisher commented on her new class. "Always before I had to take time out of my classes to help a someone practice. This limited me. Now I have the whole hour to work with students individually," she added.

Drama, debate and speech students combined their talents to make up the class. And senior Joe Wyatt, three-time first-place winner, found the class beneficial: "I've gotten a lot of individual help this year. It has really built up my confidence."

Mrs. Swisher went on to say, "Forensics has brought something to Truman that hasn't been seen for a long time. We have consistently placed in the top five rankings at tournaments."

Along with the competition, another big part of the class was making preparations for the tournament held here. It was estimated that nearly 1,000 hours went into the planning.

"I feel as though I've done more work on our tournament than I have on working to compete in one," senior Jason White said.

Besides better tournament work, Mrs. Swisher said that one of the most important aspects of the class was that "it united the whole forensics and debate program."

Senior Annette Powers expressed some of this unity: "We know what others are doing and can help them and they help us. The class really brought us closer together."

A 'first'

Club receives district honor

National Forensic League recorded a "first" this year by receiving the Outstanding Chapter Award. The award is given each year to the club with the highest accumulation of members and degrees. The plaque, presented to Mrs. Penny Swisher by the district chariman, Mrs. Alyce Ivan, was then given to Mr. LeRoy Brown for display in the trophy case.

"I can't take the credit for this award," said Mrs. Swisher. "Neither can the kids who are here this year. It is something we've earned over the past 12 years."

'Things' roam Weird beings invade halls

Through the years, the Thespian society has gained the reputation of being one of the "weirdest" clubs at Truman. The informal initiation takes partial credit for this accusation. Each applicant for the club must dress-up according to the part he or she played in a production or as a member of the production staff. Costumes ranged from light bulbs to mountains and trees.

"I was really embarrassed. I had to open the door of the cage in order to eat. It was really bad when I took my tray back to the counter and the lady in the window said, 'Hey Ethel, look at this one,'" senior Larry Fahnestock said.

Others, like senior Mindy Brice agreed: "I felt like everyone was looking at my tail."

Costume making created a problem for some. Junior Kelley Chadwick said, "I first had to dye my underwear and then find enough yellow material to cover me so I wouldn't hang out all over."

Dramatists

They act out commercials

"Try new Promise. It really works, that's a promise!"

So went one of the commercials in fourth-hour drama. Unlike other drama classes instructed by Mrs. Kathleen Tucker, this class presented commercials and dramatic interpretations.

"It's not as much of a drag as doing the rest of the stuff. Since most people don't pay attention to the other things it gives them more of a laugh," explained junior Kim Morris.

Although the audience got a laugh, so did the performers.

I'd rather do commercials because they're fun to do. They give you a chance to express your imagination," junior Steve Crick said.

The commercials were either originals or alterations of professional ones. Props such as diapers, detergent boxes and beer bottles were used in demonstrating their products.

Dramatic interpretations were cuttings from plays and/or books and were performed by memory with expression in voice and gestures.

Perhaps junior Tim Smith summed it up by saying, "It's neat to see how one person would do a commercial differently and how someone would develop his character or role he portrays in dramatic interp."

From scratch

Young artists make jewelry

"I put too much enamel on my piece and had to hammer it off," commented senior Tammy Krokstrom as she chipped away.

Tammy was just one of 10 students studying jewelry in advanced art this year.

Students designed their piece, glued it on, then cut it out of copper or silver.

"Sawing was the worst part of all," said junior Marcia Gran. "Mrs. Malott charged us a dime a blade to discourage us from breaking them. The blades were real fragile and it got pretty agitating breaking the blade and having to pay for a new one every five minutes."

After successfully sawing out the metal, students spent two-to-three days filing and sanding.

The piece had to be perfectly smooth for the enamel to go on.

Steel wool was then used to remove any oil remaining on the piece. After that students could not touch the metal.

Class members found enameling frustrating at times. The colors often ran together or didn't stay on and peeled away from the edges.

"Once while I was firing it the kiln started smoking. The room filled up with smoke and an awful smell. Everybody thought it was funny but me," said senior Susan Kraner. "I had to enamel the darn thing all over again."

The Art of Ceramics

The art of ceramics is a craft that has been practiced for thousands of years. It involves the shaping and firing of clay to create a wide variety of objects, from simple pottery to intricate sculptures. The process is both challenging and rewarding, requiring a great deal of skill and patience. In this section, we will explore the techniques and tools used in the world of ceramics, and meet some of the talented artists who are pushing the boundaries of the craft.

One of the most important steps in the ceramic process is the selection of the right clay. Different types of clay have different properties, and choosing the right one for the project is crucial. The next step is shaping the clay, which can be done using a pottery wheel or by hand. The final step is firing the piece in a kiln, which hardens the clay and gives it its characteristic color and texture.

There are many different styles of ceramics, and each has its own unique characteristics. Some artists focus on creating functional pieces, such as mugs and plates, while others create purely decorative objects. The art of ceramics is a constantly evolving field, and there are always new techniques and materials being discovered. Whether you are a beginner or a seasoned professional, the world of ceramics offers a wealth of opportunities for creative expression.

For more information on the art of ceramics, visit our website at www.ceramics.com. We have a wealth of resources, including articles, videos, and a community of artists who are passionate about their craft. Join us today and discover the beauty and artistry of ceramics.

For music

Club initiates letter program

Tri M's major endeavor this year was the initiation of the music letter program.

"It was about time the music students received some recognition for their hard work," senior Julie Adams, president, said.

Setting up the program was not an easy task. First, a point system needed to be established. After that, discussion began on letter style and sweater color. Then a pin and bar style was voted on.

"There was a lot of controversy and not everyone's ideas were used," senior Sharon Tyree said.

Finally, the program was organized and letters were awarded.

Julie added, "I think the letters will help bring more respect to the music department."

T-shirt

Sales boost NAHS funds

An overall enthusiasm among members of National Art Honor Society was apparent this year. Thirty new members were initiated and introduced to the club's activities, which included selling the "Harry's Place" t-shirts.

"We sold so many we reordered them in colors for the bicentennial," commented Kris Gibson, president. The money helped pay for the banquet held at V's in May.

T-shirts weren't the only successful endeavor of NAHS. The annual District Art Contest, held at Central Missouri State University was an event looked forward to by many members.

Senior Glenda Bailey said, "I looked forward to contest all year. It gives you a chance to compete on the spot with other high school students from all around."

For singers

Concerts have tense moments

Confusion, excitement, anxiety — it's all part of a good performance. Of course, from the audience, the program may appear to run smoothly, but one peek behind the curtain tells the real story.

... "Where's my robe?" ... "Will everyone please sit down and shut up!" ... "Hum this pitch." ... "m-m-m" ... "Line up and let's go."

Although the actual performance was not as hectic as the warm-ups, the should-be silent hallways and dressing rooms were continually cluttered with performers moving from auditorium to backstage.

"Being in Trutones really kept me running around. We sometimes had to change outfits two or three times. With all the other people combing their hair and using the facilities, the dressing room was always busy and sometimes loud," said senior Randy Winship.

Soon, maybe too soon, all the excitement was over and the halls echoed with sighs. In the choir room hugs and smiles were exchanged between participants. In the auditorium lobby, parents and friends congratulated students for a "smooth and well-done concert."

Sophomore Karen Davis said, "It was worth all the work we put into it. I enjoy being in the choir and really look forward to the next two years."

Orchestra

Strings suffer from cutback

"This was a building year," commented Mr. Don Welborn, director, when talking about the orchestra.

"We only had 33 members and only 11 of them were strings," he continued.

"I couldn't believe there weren't more violins," senior Karen Cline said.

The reason for such a decrease in numbers, according to Mr. Welborn, was the grade school instrumental music cut in 1970-71. The cut came because of the money crisis when schools were closed for two weeks.

"The cut is really beginning to show and hurt us now," Mr. Welborn said.

Tone balance was a problem.

"The brass, percussion and woodwinds drown the strings out," Janet Maitland explained.

Percussionist Jim Reeves said sometimes he couldn't hear any strings.

Despite these problems, Mr. Welborn was optimistic.

"We began to sound like an orchestra," he said. "We always had good intonation, we just needed power."

1. Mr. John Sinclair, student teacher, directs in the music department. 2. Flutist Mark Hatcher contributes to orchestra sound. 3. Concentration to achieve good intonation is met by junior Lauren Riegler, first chair cellist. 4. As bass player, senior Susan Weber helps form the foundation of the orchestra. 5. Orchestra. 6. Tone, blending and pitch are qualities Mark Slayton and Barry Midgordon strive for.

Bicentennial

Band attends jet dedication

This Bicentennial year gave Truman's 89-member varsity band a boost when the group was invited to perform at Kansas City International Airport for the dedication of the official Bicentennial jet, "The Flying Colors of the United States."

The Braniff aircraft was painted by artist Alexander Calder in red, white and blue. Its purpose was to involve Americans in the Bicentennial celebration. After making special visits to several cities it was then placed into scheduled service.

"It was quite an honor," Mr. Don Welborn, director, commented.

"We'd never done anything like it before," junior Beth Morrill added.

Participating in the ceremonies were Russell Thayer, executive vice-president of Braniff International; John W. Anderson, president, Kansas City Bicentennial Corporation; and Lawrence Sickman, director, Nelson Art Gallery.

"We knew there were going to be some celebrities there," senior Steve Taylor said.

Television and newspaper coverage was made of the event.

"We got our pictures on the front page of the Kansas City Times," senior Betty Slight commented.

1. Trombone section contributes to half-time entertainment at home football games. 2. First-hour marching band is directed by Mr. Don Welborn. Varsity band practices every morning, weather permitting, during marching season. 3. Rhythm and sound are added by head percussionist Jim Reeves. He along with others forms the background for the marching band. 4. Clarinets strive for perfection in daily practice. 5. As drum major, David Johnston is responsible for giving signals and directing band members. 6. Varsity band.

Joye Lyon, Gina Frogge, Judy Nichols and Vickie Preston, Majorettes. 7. Concert band members such as junior Laura Potts practice daily during first hour.

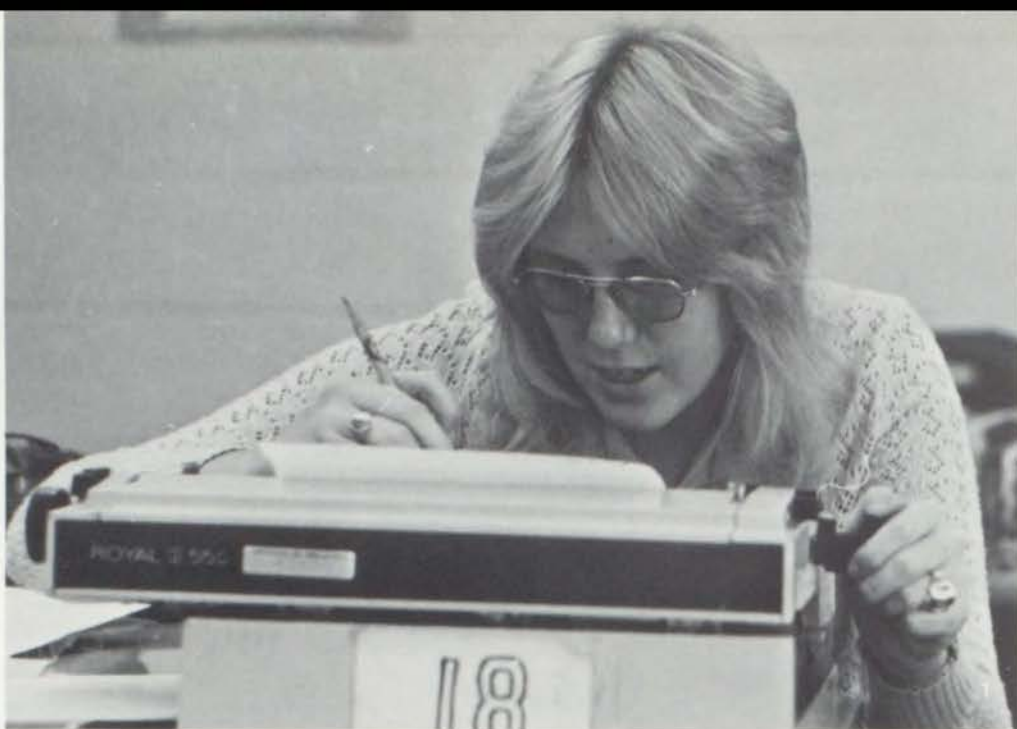

Initiative

Key word is responsibility

Whether a receptionist or classroom distribution clerk, everyone had a job to do in clerical and secretarial procedures.

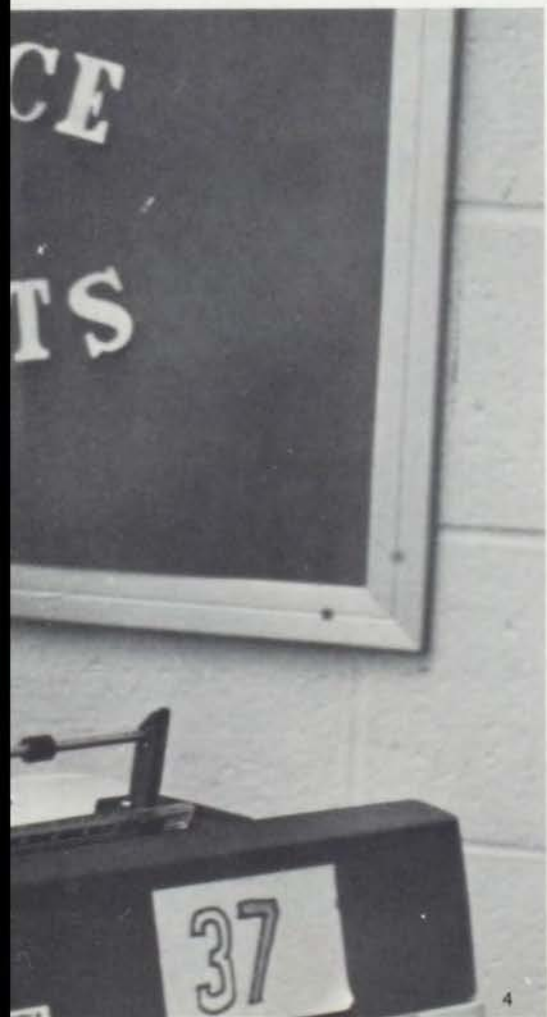

"These jobs changed every six weeks," senior April Miller said. "This gave us an idea of what office work is like. We got a taste of everything." In this two-hour course, there were five main clerks and alternates.

"If you aren't one of the five clerks or alternates, you are a maintenance clerk. This included the whole class," Cheryl Bair said. "I think this helps the girls to train to prepare for a job," said instructor Mrs. Mary Cornett. "It gave them the initiative for office and classroom responsibilities." Other duties included shorthand, typing, and rotation.

1. Cindy Welborn strives for perfection as she takes five-minute timed writings. 2. The bulletin board is used to display Janet Williams cookbook cover. 3. Debbie Phillips passes out papers, a job done by distributive clerks. 4. Receptionist Marye Cahill types dictated letters while she is in charge of answering the door. 5. Sheri Gunter tells the class of upcoming events.

Experience

Opportunities at Vo-Tech

Some 100 juniors and seniors had the opportunity to attend the Joe Herndon Area Vocational Technical School in Raytown. The school offered classes in auto body and repair, food services, health-related classes, building and welding, business and data processing, television and radio repair, and cosmetology.

Through this program students experienced the reality of the occupation of their interest.

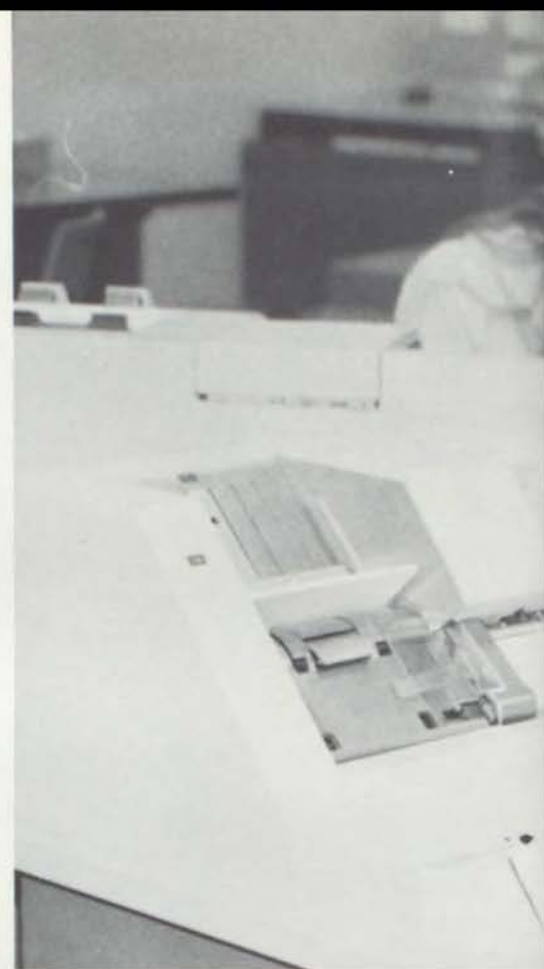

Senior Donna Coleman said, "It's just like you're on the job. We have the materials right there to work with."

After passing a course at Vo-Tech, students worked with counselors and teachers to find a job relating to the courses they took.

"Counselors talk with certain companies and set up interviews for you," said senior Earlene Boyer.

"We had 100 per cent placement of senior girls last year in cosmetology," Mrs. Dorothy Anderson, cosmetology teacher said, "and a list of salons waiting for our girls from this year."

Senior Barbara Botts perhaps summed up the school's purpose: "Vo-Tech is a great way for people who don't plan on going to college to learn a trade that will help get them a job."

SOO, DECA

Students learn while working

"It's hard to get experience in this type of secretarial work. These girls in Supervised Office Occupations are looking for employment so they can receive on-the-job training," Mr. John Shinn, coordinator, said.

Although these students leave school after fourth hour, they still receive grades from their employer. They are graded according to the quality of work, quantity of work, responsibility, cooperation, attitude, dress and grooming, promotional possibilities and attendance.

Senior Helene Cross added, "I like SOO — especially getting out of two hours of school — except you can't ever wear jeans."

Distributive Education Clubs of America was open to students in D.E. I and D.E. II who wished to join. These members worked money-raising projects throughout the year to send people to district contests for competition in sales demonstrations and manuals.

Senior Calvin Gimple said, "The main project for this year was to sell reminder boards."

No skimping

Home design includes plugs

Split-level, duplex, two-story — these were common household terms used in Mr. White's architectural drafting classes. Students demonstrated skills while shaping their talents around building homes. Sharpened pencils soon became dull as individuals busily sketched the structure of their house and the outlying features which included trees and shrubs.

"You progress throughout the year and draw each part of the house. Doors, windows, everything," senior Joe Wilson said.

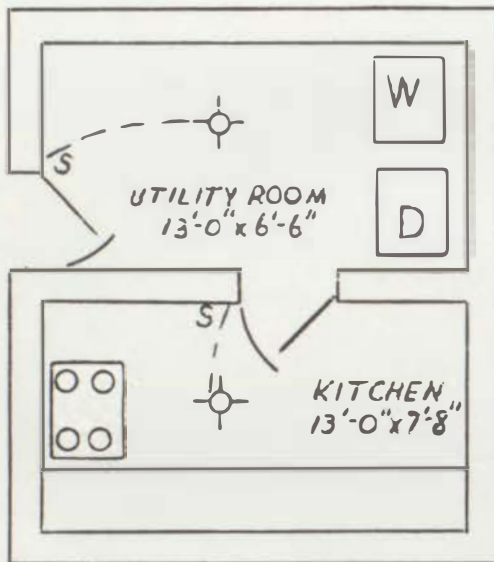

Most of the school year was devoted to the designing of the house and included everything from basement to roof.

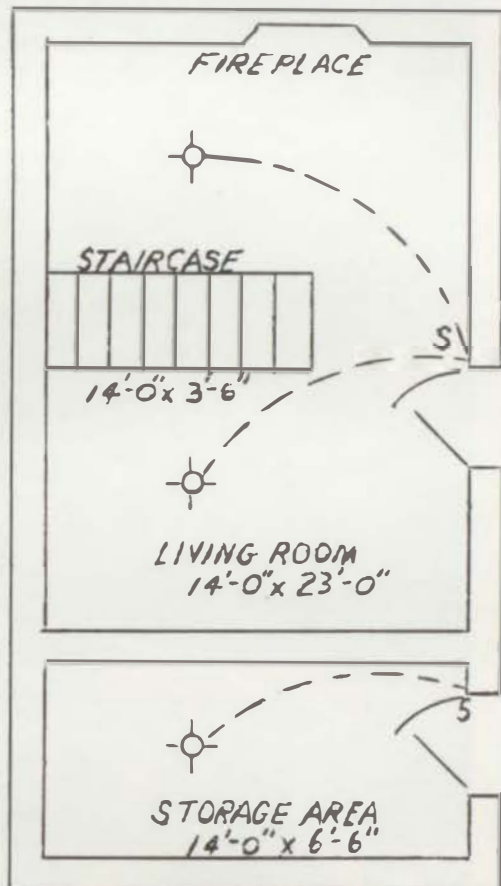

Senior Brian Snyder commented, "It's time-consuming work, but it will help me if I choose a career in civil engineering."

Precision and carefulness were important as intricate details such as wiring and electrical outlets were included.

"I had to redo one of my drawings because some of my measurements were off," replied sophomore Danny Clark.

Blueprints made at the end of the year comprised the finished product of the classes and reflected upon the designing and work that each student accomplished.

1. Finding solutions and analyzing are time-consuming for Jim Sincox. 2. Erasing mistakes keeps Ron Fry busy at his drawing. 3. Rules are set before Robert Fuller starts out on his layout. 4. Patterns and design help Joe Wilson finish his home. 5. Figuring where utilities and switches go presents problems for Jody Serum. 6. Floor plans show every detail and feature of the house. 7. Students concentrate on drawings so that nothing is overlooked.

Returning the ping-pong ball, senior Kim Waisner displays a fancy backhand. 6. Softball was a popular choice in co-ed classes. 7. These girls watch the action while awaiting their turn.

In P.E. classes

Variety brings new activities

Variety ... choice ... assortment — These were keys in setting up physical education classes this year at Truman.

The girls' department had four classes of ping-pong competition.

"After we played for awhile, we played for the championship," senior Sharon Seiwald said.

Besides ping-pong, girls participated in such activities as volleyball, bicycling and bowling.

Boys, like girls, wanted variety in their P.E. classes, so non-competitive swimming, along with other courses, was added. They participated in an hour of instructional swimming taught by Mr. Mike Kassen, swim coach.

Fishing was also added to the boys' schedule. The boys went out to Lake Jacomo by bus. The results of the fishing trip:

"I had reason to believe there weren't any fish in that lake," commented Ted Gibler, sophomore.

1. After a day of work, Jim Doughty and Tom Hufft relax in front of the tube. 2. It's a family affair. 3. The raising of turkeys brought in extra money for the boys. 4. Chores are included in the daily routine of Drumm Farm boys. 5. Drumm Farm Institute.

At Drumm

It's just like one big family

"It's the same as having a big family," junior Tom Hufft said, in referring to life at Drumm Farm Institute. As planned by Andrew Drumm, founder of the institute, the boys basically raise their own food.

Family life includes the distribution of daily chores, allowance and fellowship.

"The boys are allowed to go to any activities of school and are permitted to join outside organizations," Mr. Kenneth Brink, vocational agriculture teacher, said.

Seniors could hold outside jobs and have access to station wagons for dating, etc. All the boys are members of Future Farmers of America, which as Mr. Brink said, "is an intracurricular activity instead of an extracurricular activity." After graduation, boys may either leave Drumm Farm or stay and attend a community college.

Discipline

Projects need daily attention

Selecting, feeding, and training animals for district, state, and national judging contests were the project activities of Future Farmers of America.

"FFA activities are part of the vocational agriculture program, not an extra-curricular activity," Mr. Kenneth Brink, vocational agriculture teacher and FFA adviser, stressed. "The unique difference our FFA chapter has at Drumm Farm is that we all live in one place, not on separate farms. The boys here are able to work on their FFA projects with assistance from the farm."

Some FFA members raised hogs for marketing and nine showed their hogs at the American Royal. A few of the boys were involved in turkey-raising projects which they sold before Thanksgiving. Other members continued working on calf- and lamb-raising projects for future judgings.

The group held a Four Square Livestock Judging contest at Marshall, Mo. in March.

"This was a learning process for the boys in judging other's livestock," Mr. Brink said. "The more chances a person has to judge livestock, the better he becomes at it."

Caroling

Girls brighten elderly's day

Future Homemakers of America. It wasn't just for girls getting married or wanting to learn how to cook.

"It gets girls together with a common interest such as personal needs," senior Glenda Bailey said.

Club members visited Resthaven where they sang Christmas carols to a crowd of elderly people.

"I really liked singing songs to them because it made them smile a lot. Some even had tears in their eyes they were so happy," senior Peggy Gooding said.

"We might adopt grandparents from Resthaven," Mrs. Mary Ann McGovern, sponsor said. "We would send them Easter cards and do nice things to remember them."

Under this program the grandparents would change each year.

Other activities included a decorating demonstration, a make-up demonstration and an end-of-the-year party.

1. FFA officers discuss upcoming activities. 2-3. Caroling provides pleasure for senior citizens at Resthaven. 4-5. Lambs and sows are two of FFA's animal projects. 6. FFA club members. Quality

Homemakers learn basics

Clothing students learned the importance of quality more than quantity this year.

"I'd rather the girls have two complete garments handed in with excellent sewing techniques, rather than four poorly done," Mrs. Mary Robinson, clothing teacher, said.

Students start by learning the basics, such as basting, seams and hems.

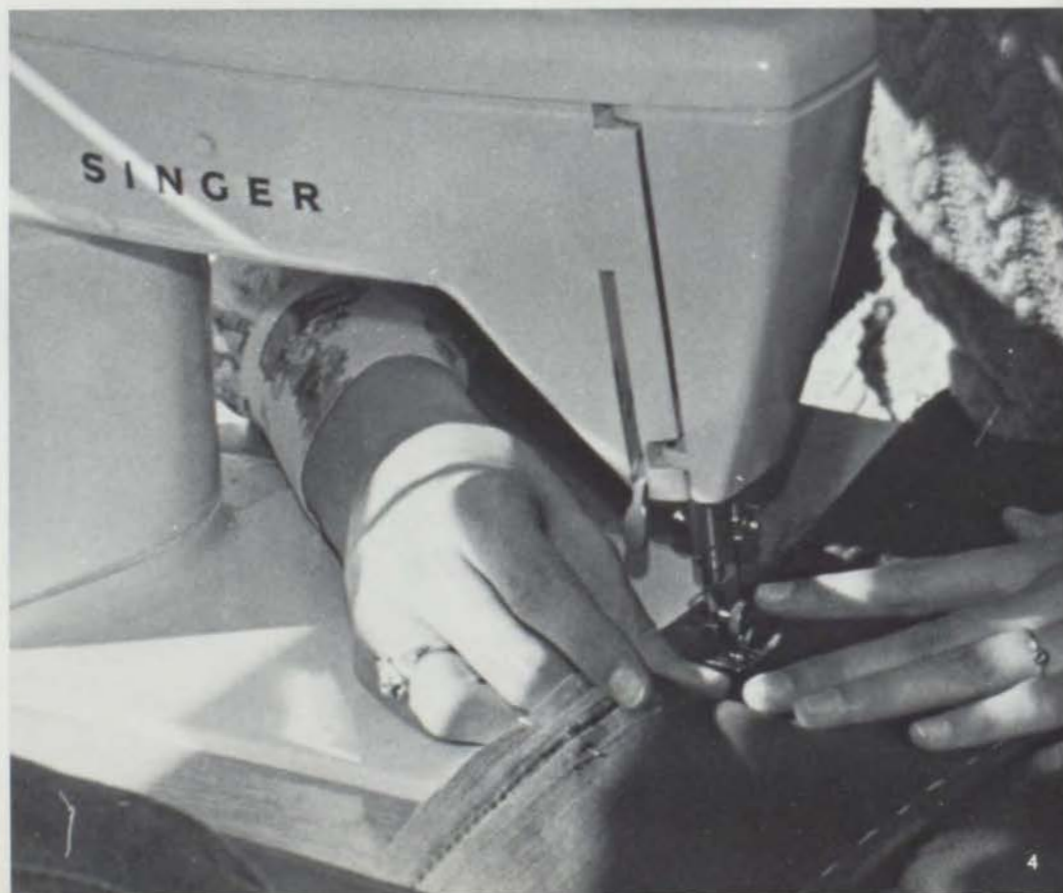

Senior Susan Harris saw the importance of these fundamentals: "It's good to learn the techniques at first because you ask fewer questions and have more time left for your sewing."

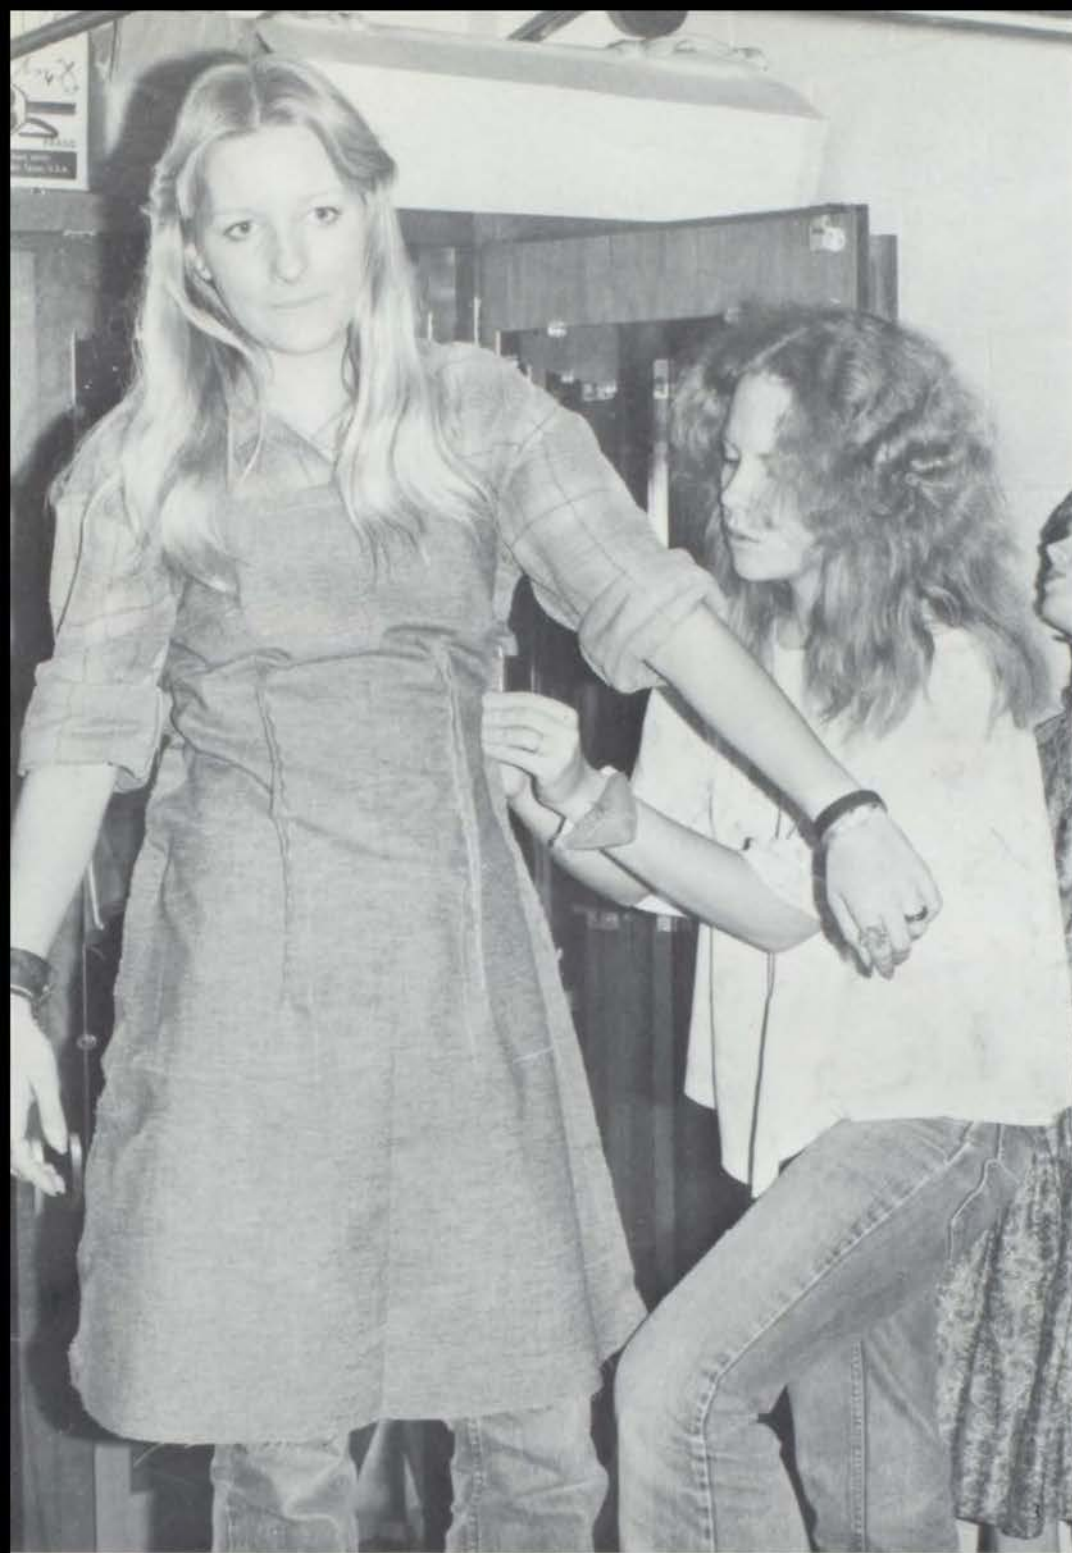

Even though Mrs. Robinson said the girls spent a lot of time learning the techniques, she added, "It's important for the girls to learn these first techniques so they can apply them to their garments."

Girls taking the class have pride in their accomplishments.

As Susan said, "I can't believe I put this zipper in all by myself."

"I was ecstatic when I finished," sophomore Lisa Honaker said.

1. Instructions prove helpful as girls struggle with garments. 2. Senior Kathy Nance exemplifies that concentration is essential. 3. Pin-fitting results in a tailored look as illustrated by sophomores Pam Hubble (right) and Sharon Hopkins. 4. Crucial timing involves putting a zipper in correctly. 5. Senior Julie Shackleford shows that pressing makes efforts easier.

1. "The inoculating loop is NOT to be used as branding iron," Mr. Dinsmore emphasizes while explaining a particular lab procedure. 2. Sophomores Hunt White and Greg Bliss demonstrate skills in carrying out the prescribed lab assignment. 3. Everything must be sterilized before and after each laboratory session. 4. Students compile lab instructions before beginning the day's experiment. 5. The proper light adjustment is a crucial step in using the microscope. 6. Locating chromosomes under a microscope is sometimes difficult, as shown by junior Bob Egan. 7. Slides must be rinsed to remove excess stain.

Phew!

Labs beneficial despite smell

"Using the high power objective, locate the number of bivalents on the equatorial plate during metaphase II in meiosis . . ."

Problems such as this were not uncommon in advanced biology classes, which included many future doctors, botanists and technologists. Laboratory work comprised a major part of classroom activities, with students learning various microscope skills and slide preparation techniques.

Regarding the labs, Mr. Jerry Dinsmore said, "They are just another way of gaining knowledge as well as developing new skills."

Most students, like junior John Ragsdale, planned to pursue biology-related careers. "The labs will be helpful in my profession.

lege and med school anyway, so why not learn the procedures now?"

But Bob Egan, junior, replied, "I'd rather DO it than hear about it. Besides, they put some excitement in the class."

Others tended to agree with senior Sharon Tyree when she said, "The labs are just a starting point. They provide a background for new thoughts and ideas. Also, the actual contact with whatever we're studying helps me to relate better to the subject.

For some, however, the experiments proved hazardous, as sophomore Mike Jenkins recalled, "I leaned over an alcohol burner and the next thing I knew, my hair was on fire!"

On the whole, students said they found the labs challenging and informative, but senior Patti Lindsey conceded, "The only thing I hate is the way the room smells on lab days."

1. Concentration and perseverance are necessary to conquer geometry. 2. Time in class is allotted for sophomore Karen Wood to begin homework problems. 3. Logical steps must be established in working a proof. 4. Class participation includes working problems at the board as shown by sophomore Jeff Scott. 5. Mr. Drinkwater discusses homework problems before explaining new material each day. 6-9. A brain-teasing puzzle presents a challenge for the inquisitive student.

Abstract

Math course demands logic

The surging demands of technology have placed increasing importance on math-related fields. Geometry, "the study of physical space," is today finding vast new areas of application in space travel and similar fields of study.

And, sophomore Karen Wood saw this study of geometry as helping students to think logically: "You have to think. It's a new and different type of math, but it's easy if you just think it through."

Students examined the relations and properties of points, lines, surfaces and solids. Undefined terms, postulates and theorems were established for developing logical proofs. From given information students logically had to establish facts before reaching a solution.

According to Mr. Bill Drinkwater, geometry teacher, "Proofs help students develop a basic reasoning process which will help them make decisions in life."

In addition to logic, geometry also requires abstract reasoning; therefore, some found the course confusing.

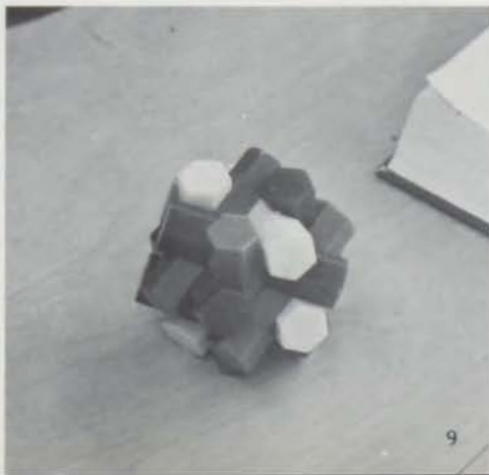

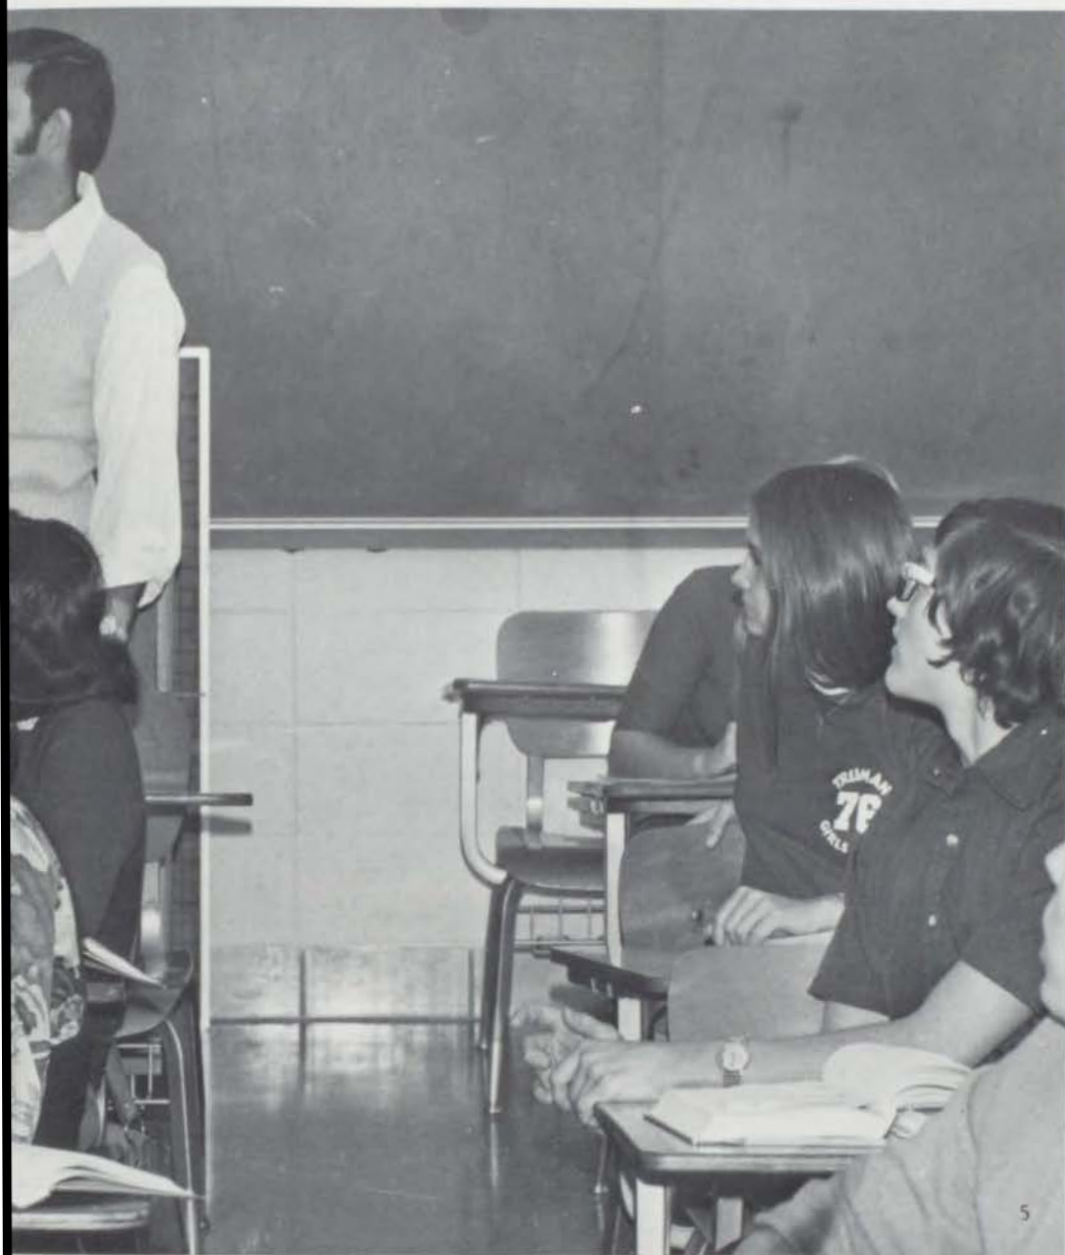

"It mixes me up," Lisa Hardin, junior, said.

Likewise junior Pam Allee said, "I just don't understand it."

On the other hand, sophomore Debbie Crawford said, "I like it because it's more challenging than the other math classes."

Or, as sophomore Kiro Yun said, "I need it for my future plans in college."

Perhaps Mr. Buell Stewart, another geometry teacher, best summed up the class when he said, "It is frustrating because students are required to do the initial thinking, but most find that they can do well if they work."

Engineering

JETS share same interest

Interest in engineering was shared by members of Junior Engineering Technical Society.

During one meeting senior Jeff Davies demonstrated his homemade synthesizer. Jeff told how it worked and its purposes.

Jeff explained, "Most people don't know what a synthesizer really is. Actually it is a musical instrument that is capable of making almost any sound."

In addition to learning about the synthesizer the club took several field trips to places concerning engineering occupations.

C.B. radios

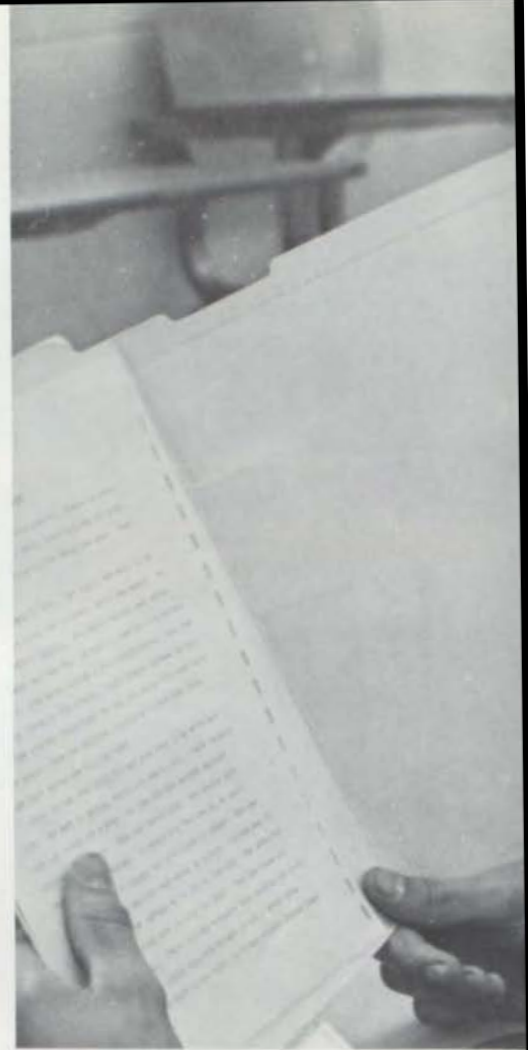

Club boosts current 'fad'

Citizen band radios found a place at Truman this year.

"We're there to help others learn about C.B. radios if they're interested. You don't have to have a radio to be able to join," Mark Robertson said.

The club was set up so that if someone was interested he could come to the club for three weeks but then he had to join and pay the dues or stop coming. The dues went toward setting up a base station at school.

Another project the club worked on was setting up a place at Truman for people to come in and check radios with the police.

Doug Bingham thumbs through the files to discover his next subject.

With files

History buffs study 'greats'

Mr. Doug Allen used tools other than textbooks to teach his Great Americans classes this year. He collected an assortment of articles and made files for the students to study.

Senior Joe Scardino said, "The files were really different. After we read the material, we could write our opinion of the guy and draw a cartoon or something."

After one file was completed, students moved on to another file of their choice.

"The files allowed each student to choose whom they wanted to study," commented senior Nancy Huelse. "It was neat not having a teacher telling you who to study."

Mr. Allen commented, "I felt the files allowed each student to progress at his own rate while enjoying his freedom of subject matter. In each class students had different conceptions of the files, but overall they were a success."

Permits

Parking space limits drivers

Student Council issued parking permits to all juniors and seniors driving to school. The need was evident, Mark Mangels, president, said, when he and Joe Wyatt, vice-president, found there were about 70 more cars than parking spaces.

The result was double, even triple parking behind teachers, near loading and unloading areas and on the space provided for P.E. classes. Besides permits, another measure was taken to alleviate this problem. The teachers' parking lot was painted with yellow numbers which corresponded to the number on their permits.

In response to the improvement, Miss Harriett Weatherford said, "I think it was much better. It wasn't hard to find a parking area because students don't park there now. It's real nice to have your own parking space."

The change, though, affected sophomores more drastically. For the first time they were not allowed to drive to school. This, too, was Student Council's decision to reduce the number of cars in the parking lot.

Sophomore Robbin Vandever saw this logic: "Since it's so crowded the juniors and seniors should be the ones allowed to drive. We'll get our chance next year."

1. Blood pressure is taken before donors such as Bob Hughes give their blood to others. 2. Lisa Hardin, student and community services chairman. 3. Colette Pement, entertainment chairman. 4. Joe Wyatt, vice-president, and Lynn Crutchfield, parliamentarian. 8. Storage case preserves blood for emergencies.

Lifesavers

Students give to blood bank

"I have enough blood to give, so maybe I will be saving someone's life by giving. It also goes along with my religious beliefs and my hopes of becoming a doctor someday," senior Pam Newman said.

So, Pam and many others took advantage of the blood mobile at Truman and the opportunity to donate one pint of blood to the Community Blood Center of Greater Kansas City. Student and community services of Student Council sponsored the event led by chairman Lisa Hardin.

"It took about 30 minutes for one person to go through everything," Lisa explained.

Withdrawing the blood took only ten minutes. The other time was spent questioning the donor's medical history, taking blood pressure, and having a blood test. All medical history was kept confidential.

After they withdrew the blood, donors were instructed to lie on the table for five minutes.

The reason for this procedure was, as Lisa said, "If you're going to have a reaction, you'll have it there."

The drive ended with Truman having 107 pints — one more than the challenger, Chrisman.

For Anna

It's Christmas far from home

Christmas in a foreign country did not erase memories of her own Finland for Anna Gummerus, Truman's AFS student.

"We celebrate Christmas on Christmas eve. We also decorate the cemeteries by placing candles on the graves. It's really pretty against the snow," Anna said, "and on Easter the kids dress up much like they do here on Halloween."

Though celebrated differently, Christmas still meant presents, and Easter still meant eggs in both America and in Anna's hometown, Oulu.

Although this was Anna's first time in the U.S. she was not unfamiliar with what went on here.

"I knew some people who came over here and told me about it. That's how I became interested in AFS," she said.

Among Anna's talents, she has this "thing" about languages. Besides Finnish and English, she speaks Swedish, French, German, Spanish and Russian. Her schedule included three of these: French, German, Spanish.

"I like learning different languages. They're pretty easy to learn and besides, the more you know, the more people you can get along with," Anna said.

1. "Our Christmas is a little bit different . . ." 2. Among many talents, Anna also sings. 3. The AFS reception provides a time for meeting fellow students. 4. Writing letters back and forth provides knowledge of what's happening in her homeland. 5. Busy schedules make it hard for Anna and her American sister, Julie Ferguson, to find time to talk at school. 6-8. Languages are one of Anna's interests. She was enrolled in three language classes at Truman: French, Spanish and German.

Service

Interact aids city, school

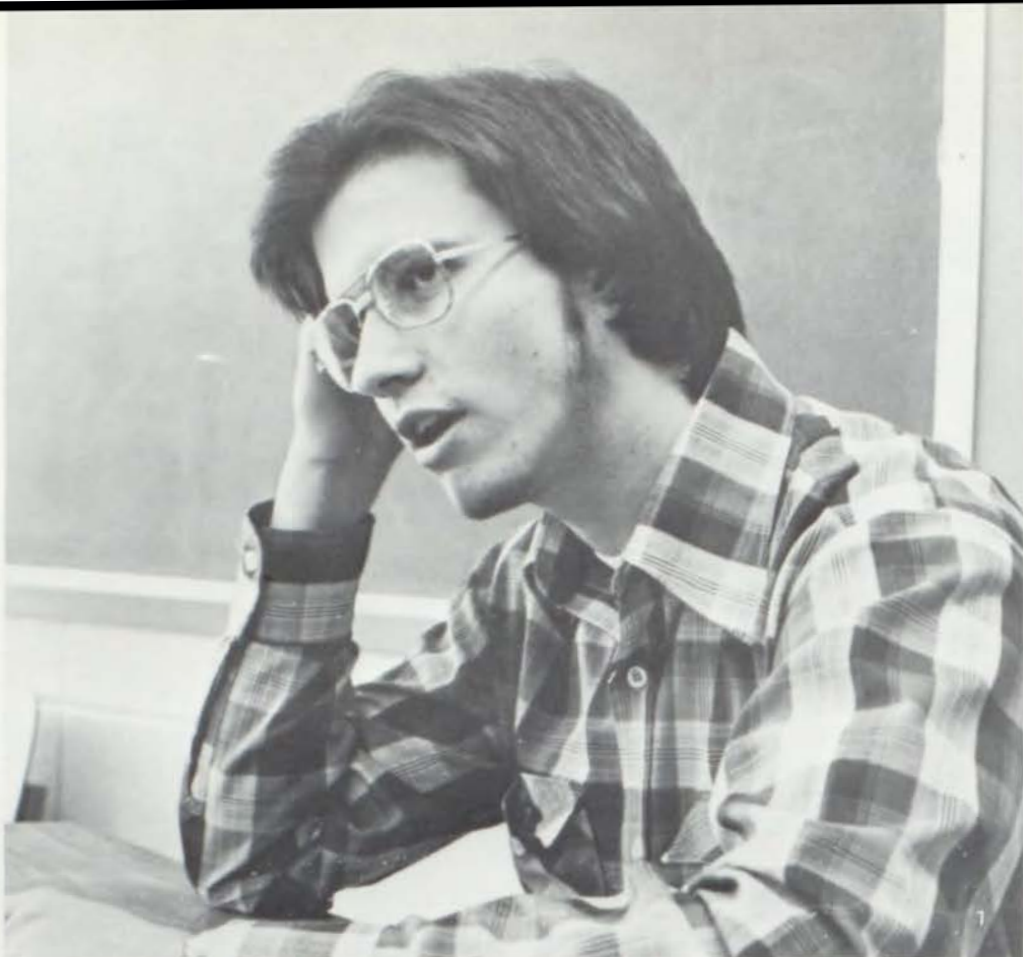

Interact, set up to be a service club, worked both for the school and the community this year.

"Each month we put on travelogs at Chrisman High School," said Bob Payne. "We ran the slides and furnished refreshments."

"At Christmas a couple of us bought hams for needy families," said Roxanne Wyss.

In serving the school Interact paid for a telephone call home for the exchange students at Christmas.

Wanting to leave something for the school in 1976 they created a flower bed made with red and white geraniums in the shape of a "T". The flower bed was dug last fall and the flowers were planted in the spring.

Education

SAE members share ideas

Learning about different ways of teaching was the main goal of members of Student Action in Education.

One way they did this was by having Wendy Stebbins, the domestic exchange student, explain how the schools are run in Tigard, Oregon.

"We also exchanged ideas of how our school could be bettered," said senior Yvonne Bailey. "There were some pretty good suggestions given."

NHS amuses Oldham pupils

"We wanted to be more than just an honor society," president John Salazar said. "We tried to do a service project once a month."

One service National Honor Society performed was a Halloween party for students at Oldham, a special education school. The club took over classes for about an hour while members led the students in games and served refreshments afterwards.

"It was fun to dress up in costumes and watch the little kids laugh at us," senior Lisa Sheehy added.

Other projects the club participated in were caroling at Pleasant Heights and an Easter party, also for students at Oldham.

Senior Pam Newman viewed the parties most rewarding: "I really enjoyed the parties we had for the kids at Oldham. I liked to watch their faces light up. They seemed so eager to communicate with new and different people. After the Halloween party, one little boy was so happy he just kept thanking me and hugging me."

Pats mutilate record books and opponents

The varsity football team was billed as the best in school history — and was. Coach Ed Russell's squad rolled up the first winning season for Truman gridders, and in the process gained a piece of the Big Six Conference championship.

The final mark was 8-2-0 as the Pats finished amidst a four-way tie for the title with Raytown, Winnetonka and Oak Park. All finished 3-2-0 in conference action, and Truman fell just 10 points short of winning the conference outright.

Both losses came to conference teams, both thrillers decided in the waning seconds. Of the eight games won, the total point differential was 290, and the closest game was a 30-14 score with Raytown.

Enroute to the big season, the team shattered about all school records in sight, and by massive proportions. They outscored opponents by a 379-99 margin, scoring 56 touchdowns and allowing 14. The previous season's high for a Truman player was 220 points scored, and Bobby Narron's point production was more than eight previous entire Patriot varsity teams had scored in a season.

Narron, the senior running back, landed All-Metro honors along with linebacker Mike Rogers, also a senior. Another of Narron's records came when he scored six touchdowns in the season's finale with Hickman Mills.

Senior quarterback Mike Royle closed out his third year as starting signal-caller with 20 touchdown passes and 1500 yards total offense. Senior Scott Beck was the leading rusher, with 695 yards.

The defense shut out three opponents, and didn't allow a touchdown until the season's fifth game. Seniors anchoring the unit were Rogers, Stu May, George White, Jeff Shockley, Dave Waggoner and Randy Lierman. Juniors who played important roles on the team were Eric Holm, Bill Morris and Chuck Simmons.

Probably the biggest sports spectacle in Truman's history was the annual battle with crosstown rival William Chrisman, which had special significance this year. Played on the season's seventh weekend, Chrisman came in undefeated and Truman with only one loss; it was the best start for both teams ever.

Viewed by an estimated record crowd of 7,500 at the All-School Stadium, the battle brought about what was probably record enthusiasm also. Prior to the contest, football and sports interest was probably at an all-time high for Truman.

The two met for the 11th time on Oct. 17. Chrisman scored first and last in the game, but the Pats did all the damage in between, winning by a 50-12 margin. Beck scored twice and Royle threw for a pair of scores to highlight the victory.

At an assembly the following week, Principal LeRoy Brown summed it all up best when he accepted the Wagon Wheel trophy, symbolic of the annual game's winner. "It's so nice to have you back where you belong."

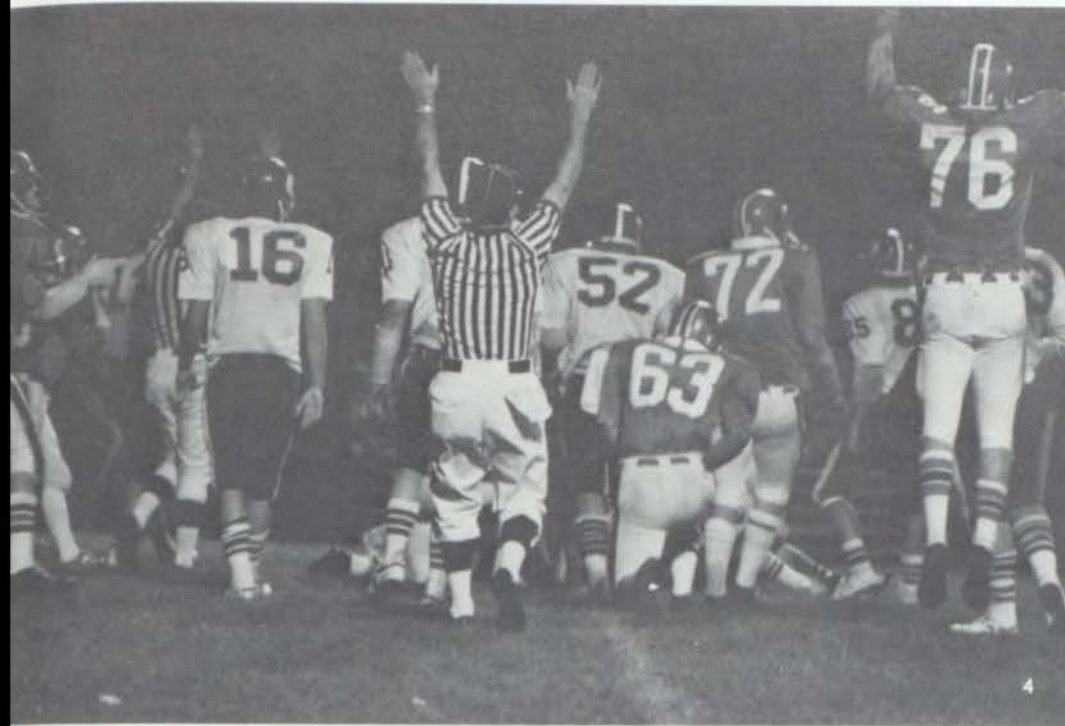

"I felt our players earned this first winning season. They practiced hard, played hard and were good talent."

Grid teams add thrill to good season

As the varsity enjoyed its first winning season ever, the junior varsity and sophomores also recorded winning campaigns. Each won five games to complete a successful year for the entire football program.

A pair of sophomore quarterbacks, Greg Houlihan and Jim Keyton, came along at a good time to help out the football program, and may be the arms that the varsity will rely on in the future. Houlihan led the sophomore team and Keyton the JV.

"At the start of the season I thought we could go undefeated, but I'm glad we did as good as we did," said sophomore coach Don Coffman. "We didn't really put it together until the Chrisman game and then we started hustling and playing with enthusiasm."

The sophomores were an opportunistic team, scoring on blocked punts and kick returns. They won the big battle with Chrisman, 27-0.

"They really played as a group," said JV coach Al Schnitzer, who said that it was a monumental year for a junior varsity team. "This was the best JV team we've had since I've been here."

Varsity qualifies for state

The cross country teams combined for one of the best records among fall sports teams, as varsity finished 14-2. They finished second in conference as well as district, and 12th in state.

"I don't think we fulfilled our potential," said Coach Tom Demark, "but I'm proud of the way we performed."

The squad had a good blend of youth and experience, as the varsity was paced by junior Rick Brasfield, and senior Dave Winslow. Brasfield placed first in conference and 53rd in state, and Winslow consistently finished high.

Other seniors contributing were Kirk Freels, Brian Bowen, Andy Gerrard and Brian Snyder. Juniors running on varsity were Dirk Taitt, Paul Jensen and Brasfield.

"It was a good year, but you can't really be satisfied unless you win state," Demark said. "This year we had more emphasis on team effort than individual, and I think it paid off."

The JV squad also posted a winning mark, and showed promise for 1976. John Ferguson, Mike Boothe, Steve Braby and Kyle Braun consistently finished high.

Arches of blue, shining stars and shades of satin accented Homecoming, where Jodi Tucker was crowned 1975 Fall Sports Queen. Completing the royal court were Lori Crabtree and Leisa Evans, seniors; Lisa Hardy and Leanne Shireman, juniors; Lynn Medlin and Shelly Phillips, sophomores. Halftime festivities began with a parade of queen candidates and attendants, chauffeured in sporty vets. Senior Pep Club members held blue, star-studded arches which emphasized the "Midnight Blue" theme. The annual Homecoming dance was held in the gym following the game.

Queen candidates were nominated by Pep Club and fall sports teams. They were then voted on by the student body. The queen was crowned by the 1974 Fall Sports Queen, Lorinda McKnight. She was escorted by Student Council president, Mark Mangels.

Tennis girls swing toward state honors

Girls varsity tennis team ended with a 6-7 record. Season standouts were Amy Brant, Laurie Brown and Pam Crawford. Amy won in conference and two consecutive times in district. She then qualified to go to Columbia, Missouri for state tennis matches, but was defeated in her first round.

Laurie and Pam placed second in district and also qualified for state. They won their first round and were defeated in the second.

"We wanted to win, but all that mattered was being able to play," Pam said.

Junior varsity completed the season with a 3-10 record. The team, composed mostly of first-year tennis players, stressed fundamentals first and victories later.

As Coach Kingdon Anderson said, "Fundamentals should be taught first if they are beginning players and style follows afterwards."

Volley team places third in conference

Girls' volleyball finished the season with a 6-4 record, placing them third in conference. The team started off the season losing to Oak Park, but came back to defeat Winnetonka. Raytown South proved to be too much for the Patriots in their third game of the season. Truman placed sixth in the Belton Tournament, beating only Ruskin. However, the Patriots began gaining momentum after the tourney, losing only two out of seven matches.

Junior varsity began with three losses to Oak Park, Hickman Mills and Raytown South. The Pats overpowered Winnetonka and Hickman Mills with easy defeats. Oak Park and Hickman Mills easily captured the Patriots. Raytown came back, ready to retaliate, beating Truman. The Patriots then picked themselves up, taking Winnetonka in the final game of the season. JV finished 3-6.

"We stressed unity and team spirit more so this year," commented Coach Diane Lloyd.

"Now please to enjoy our little story and may August Moon bring enjoyment and peace," said Joe Wyatt, as the play opened. The audience suddenly found themselves amidst a small Okinowan village, Tobika.

"It has been said that some play directors can build mountains out of mole hills . . . well, I won't guarantee so lofty an undertaking but taking 34 American students (some of which have never been in a play before) and building them into Okinowans comes mighty close to being as hard," said Mrs. Kathleen Tucker, director. April Miller served as student director of the three-act comedy.

An original army jeep and a goat, Melvin, added realism to the many props. The biggest obstacle was the speaking of Okinowan.

"One difficulty was communicating without creating distracting noises," Karen Houston, costume crew member, said.

Larry Fahnestock summed up backstage jitters: "I can tell there's one butterfly down there."

A new twist in the old tradition

What's a Heritage Dance without a queen? And, what's a queen without a king? That's right, a king!

The Heritage Dance featured both a king and queen, adding a new twist to an old tradition. In this age of male chauvinism, this age when gallantry seems to be dead, there the king sat with his queen, throne-by-throne, as they reigned over the Heritage Dance. Mike Rogers was proclaimed king with seniors Stu May and Paul McCulley, junior Mike Copeland, and sophomore Brent Lyon as attendants. Dawn Nienhueser reigned as queen with seniors JoEllen Larabee and Debi Fresonke, junior Karen Umbach and sophomore Kathy Richardson as attendants.

Students experienced mixed emotions about the new addition, but, as one senior commented, "It's about time the girls had someone to admire during the crowning ceremony."

Grapplers attain goals with discipline

Tension mounted as wrestlers were weighed-in. They literally fought to reach their weight goals to avoid forfeiting a match. If overweight, wrestlers had only a few hours to reduce in order to be eligible to wrestle in a certain weight class.

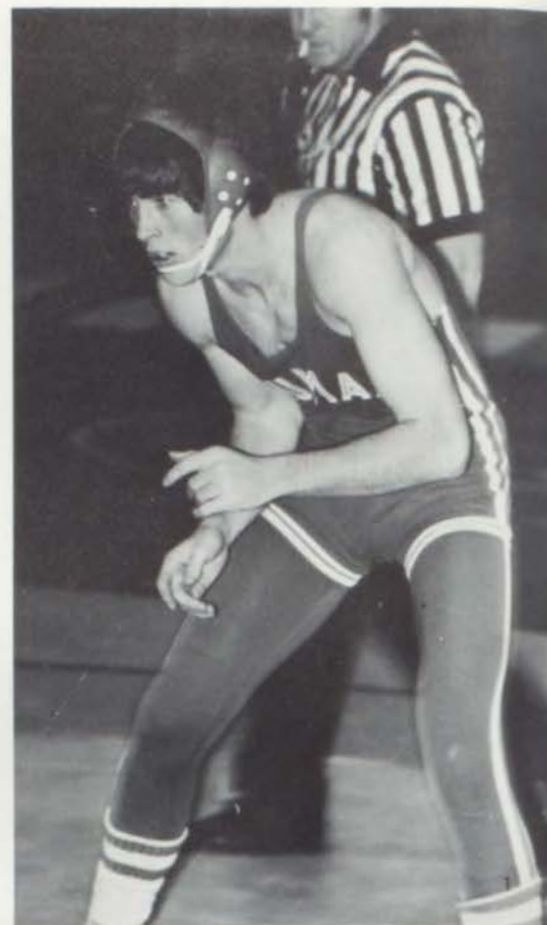

Truman wrestlers found several methods to reduce their weight before a match. For some, like senior Mike Cook, not eating was a way out. "I just don't eat before a match. It would be better if I stayed on a strict diet, but I'd rather eat as I wished."

This strict discipline though, helped varsity finish 7-5. Mainstays were Kevin Graham at 105, Greg Bliss at 112, Randy Stratton at 167 and Russ Long at heavyweight. Each placed first in a tournament: Graham at the Ruskin Quad, Bliss at the Truman Tournament, Stratton at the Ruskin Quad and Conference and Long at the Ruskin Quad, Chrisman Quad, Truman Tournament and Conference.

Highlights of the year came at the Chrisman Quad and the Truman Tournament where varsity placed second in both tournaments.

JV Wrestlers shatter records for team 'bests'

The junior varsity shattered every team record but one this year. New records are: Takedowns — 20-Jack Thomas, old record 16 in 1969-70; Reversals — 20-Mike Jenkins, old record 18 in 1969-70; Escapes — 9-Jack Thomas, old record 8 in 1970-71; Two-point nearfall — 15-Mike Jenkins, old record 16 in 1969-70; Pins — 12-Bob Zink, old record 6 in 1969-70; Team Points — 94-Jack Thomas, old record 46 in 1972-73.

Coach Al Schnitzer summed up the season: "This was probably the best J.V. team ever. Overall we were 9-5-1. The highlight of the year came at the Blue Springs Invitational where the J.V. team took first place. I was really pleased with the team effort and the way the boys put out effort."

Wrestlerettes — they are not lady wrestlers

"Wrestlerettes" were a bunch of lady wrestlers. Right? Wrong! Contrary to popular belief, the Wrestlerettes were NOT lady wrestlers. They acted as a pep club for the wrestling team — not as teammates. Because of their name, Wrestlerettes suffered this slight mix-up.

Junior Brandy O'Neal commented, "When I first told my parents that I was going to be a wrestlerette they said, 'You mean you're going to get out there and wrestle with the boys?'"

Some of the wrestlerettes grew accustomed to being called lady wrestlers.

"When I tell someone that I am a wrestlerette I just expect them to say, 'Oh. . . You're a wrestler?'" junior Jana Sisk said.

Although some got used to this misunderstanding, others did not.

Junior Diana Richey said, "I get tired of telling people I'm not a lady wrestler so sometimes I just go along with it and tell them that we all get out there and wrestle just like the boys."

1. Wrestlerettes (names on pages 242-243). 2. Recording times for the swim team is one of the services performed by the Tickers. 3. Wrestlerettes usually seat themselves around the mats to support the team with their cheers. 8. Tickers (names on pages 242-243).

Tickers act as Pep Club for swim team

"Judges and timers ready?"

"Swimmers, take your marks!"

"Bang!"

Tick. Tick. Tick. Tick. Tick.

Tickers — timers, judges, scorers and supporters of the swim team.

"We decorate their lockers and have team tables. We're really just a pep club for swimmers," junior Laura Mawhirter said.

Although it was just like a pep club, there was one difference — no point system.

"Because there is no point system, you don't have to go to the meets if don't want to. That way we get people who want to come and help and not just people who want to sit around and talk," commented Susan Kraner, senior.

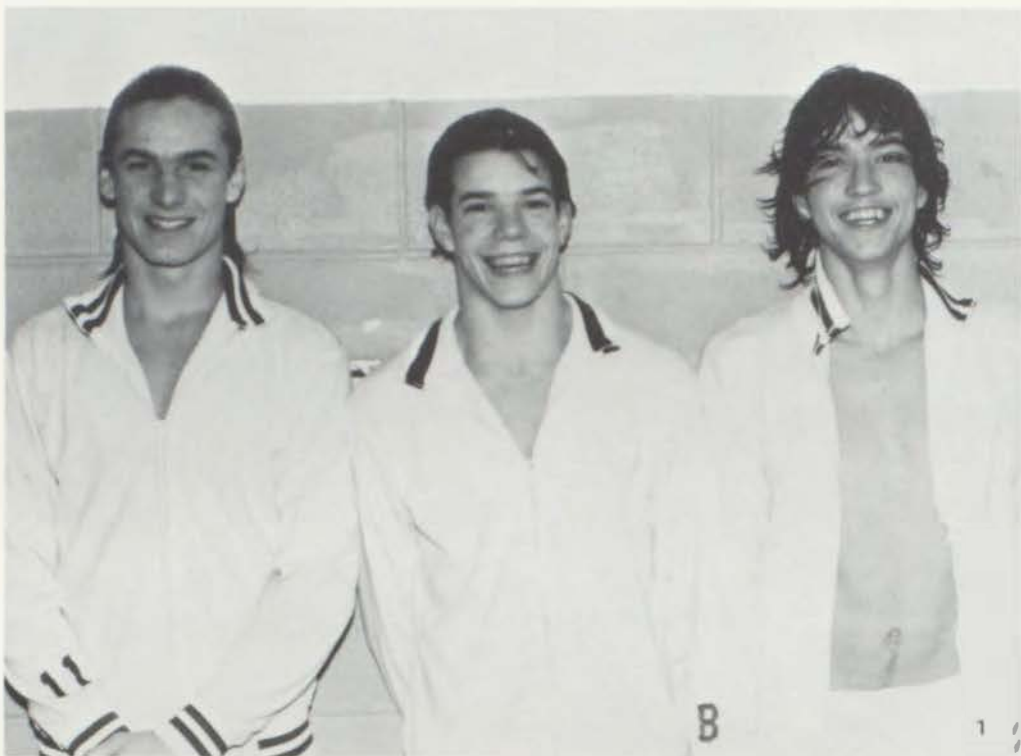

Most of the swimmers seemed to appreciate the moral support of the Tickers.

"It makes a swimmer feel like he's being recognized even if he's not all that good," senior Alan Johnson said.

President Barbara Botts concluded, "We just try to back the team because they don't get enough support. Lots of times guys come up and say 'thanks.' That's what really makes it worthwhile."

1. Tri-captains: Seniors Tom Graves, Mark Mawhirter and Steve Taylor. 2. "It's all in the mind" as senior Mark Mawhirter psyches himself up for the 100-yard butterfly event. 3. Strength, timing and practice team together in senior Jim Reeves' breaststroke. 6. Quickness, drive and entry combine to form a speedy start, one of the most important aspects of a good race. 7. Fast relay starts enable junior Karl Koch to get the edge on competitors.

United efforts pull swimmers to best season

Winning. One thing the swim team accomplished as the varsity squad surged to it's best season ever, 8-2, and a mass of new school records.

Team closeness, along with depth in all areas, spurred the victories.

"Everybody just put it together," commented Coach Mike Kassen. "The closeness helped."

Also, all-around depth added to efforts. Approximately twenty lettermen with varsity experience returned.

"The guys that needed to improve came through," junior Joy Howard replied.

Massive attacks launched on school records proved successful.

"All eleven records were broken," Coach Kassen added.

Leading this phenomenon were junior Scott Chapman seizing seven and senior Mark Mawhirter gaining three. Senior Tom Graves and junior Karl Koch each captured two and junior Corky Nickerson and senior David Steinhauser one apiece.

"This was the year to do it," Karl said, after breaking the 100-yard breaststroke record, the oldest on the board.

Winning and record-breaking required mental as well as physical preparation.

"Motivation is the biggest single factor in high school athletics," Kassen explained.

To initiate spirit and enthusiasm, he introduced "pain club t-shirts" for supreme effort in a meet, and swim caps for achieving a school record.

"It was just little things that helped team attitude," he continued.

"With the shirts you have something else to work for other than just improving your times," Joy said.

Mark Mawhirter agreed: "They (the shirts) made us try a little harder."

Swim lanes are cramped in practice

Closeness meant two things to the swim team: unity and cramped conditions.

Junior varsity swimmers experienced both as the tankers swam to a 4-2 season record.

Crowded swimming lanes, locker rooms and buses were familiar:

"Somebody from the other side keeps hitting me!!"

"Would you swim down the right side of the lane?!"

Combined varsity and junior varsity numbers totaled 45, approximately seven or eight per lane at practice. Rookies invariably got stuck in the outside lanes.

"I know why nobody swims in lane six," sophomore Kevin Taylor commented. "The wall is terrible."

Despite these and many other adjustments, harmony and closeness prevailed.

"We (varsity and J.V.) stuck together and had a lot of spirit," sophomore Tom Ibarra said. "Everybody's friends."

Junior Marcia Gran added, "Our closeness is a main factor in why we do so well."

Empty stands big complaint for dribblers

A buzzer sounds. Opposing players leap for the ball. Team members scramble wildly to keep up with the ball. A basket is made. But wait — where is the cheering and clapping?

There was very little cheering for the girls' basketball team this year. Empty bleachers were an obstacle to overcome.

"We like people to come support us because it gets you psyched up," sophomore Vicki Hoeger said.

Junior Tammy Romstad added, "It gets you feeling good when you know there's somebody out there who wants you to win besides your teammates."

The girls on the team suggested that all home games should be required by Pep Club.

Kathy Andrews, Pep Club president, replied, "Having girls' home games required along with boys' games would be impossible to do. With an average of two-to-three games a week we have a hard enough time getting Pep Club members to attend the boys' games."

Junior Mary Lascuola commented, "It just goes to show that when it comes to school spirit for girls' sports there isn't much."

NEW
OUTLOOK

The Patriots longed seven years for a winning basketball team — and got it, in the 1975-76 season. First-year head coach, Rex Stephens, led the club to a 13-12 final record and third place in the Big Six Conference.

The season left many unforgettable moments for the new coach — some pleasant and some not so pleasant.

"I was real pleased with the way several things went," he said. "We could have and should have done much better than we did, you can always look back and say that."

The difference between the 13-12 record and a much better one was just inches — or points. Six times during the year they fell to defeat by either one or two points, or in overtime. Still, the winning season was managed.

Early in the year they pocketed the Independence Invitational Tournament at Fort Osage to get off to a 4-1 start that would lead to the best mark since the 1969-70 season. The year also featured three victories over William Chrisman in three tries. Twice the contests came in tournament action, as the Pats exercised dominance over the cross-town rivals in basketball — something hard to do in the past.

In the state regional play-offs at Truman in March, the Patriots earned the number one seed position, and after destroying Chrisman in the semifinals, met Raytown for the championship — a team they had split the season's series with at a game apiece.

Raytown led by nine points entering the fourth quarter before Truman rallied to go ahead with less than three minutes left. But the Bluejays eventually prevailed 69-65 in overtime. Senior Greg Kirk led the effort with 29 points, as the season ended.

Mike Royle paced the team with a 17.8 scoring average and was an all-area choice. The senior guard poured in over 700 points in his career.

MAJESTIC JUNIORS

The 1975-76 season was the first at Truman for Forrest Bertoldie.

Coach Bertoldie, former freshman coach at Palmer, saw some differences between the two age groups.

"The maturity level here is much higher," he said. "There isn't much difference between freshman and sophomores, but there is a noticeable change between sophomores and juniors,"

"It's easier to be more sophisticated as a coach because the players already know a lot of what they're supposed to do."

There were many players on the squad who played for Coach Bertoldie at Palmer and were used to his coaching style.

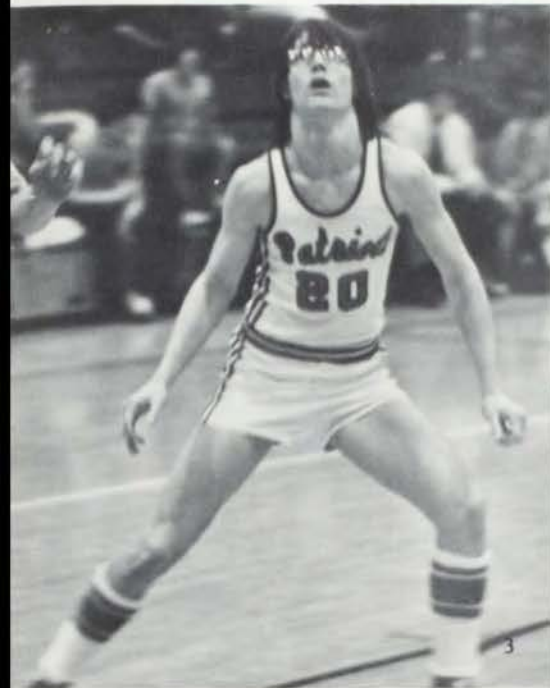

"There was a very loose attitude. He created a very workable attitude," junior Steve Broughton said.

"I thought he was pretty fair," junior John Haggard said.

"I don't think he plays any favorites," said Brent McMilian, junior. "It was a different situation. We worked on fundamentals but still did very constructive things while learning them."

Accomplishing what they set out to do, the sophomore cagers played the season with an emphasis on something besides just "winning." Mr. Monte Gagliardi took the coaching reins for the first time and stressed playing as a team rather than as individuals.

"I'm real pleased with the way things went," Gagliardi said. "We had tremendous improvement from the beginning of the year. Not only did they grow as players, but we also hope they grew as people. I think they learned to care about each other — not just a bunch of individuals like it was when we started out."

"I think the job on the sophomore level is not so much to just 'win', but more so to get these boys ready for varsity in the years to come. There will be plenty of emphasis on winning in their futures."

Did Gagliardi enjoy his experience with the team?

"I had a great time with the boys, and I'm looking forward to next season."

Did the sophomores get the experience that they needed?

"Well . . . only time will tell."

Courtwarming acknowledges Bicentennial

The "Spirit of America" rolled on as senior Terri Solito was crowned the 1976 Winter Sports Queen. Terri and her attendants, seniors Tammy Bucey and Kim Campbell, junior Barbara Honeycutt and sophomore Denise Morris, were escorted to the queen's area which radiated with colors of red, white and blue. A major feature was the backdrop, designed and created by Pep Club members, headed by president Kathy Andrews.

The girls wore starred satin dresses with lace jackets and carried red, white and blue carnations. Terri was crowned by the 1975 Winter Sports Queen, Susan Scott, who was escorted by Mark Mangels, Student Council president.

Student Council decorated the cafeteria for the Courtwarming dance which featured the band Cycle. Despite the efforts to increase participation, there were few in attendance. According to Mark Mangels, this may be the last Courtwarming dance sponsored by Student Council.

"We tried to build it up but we ended up in the whole. I doubt Student Council will sponsor it next year."

Role-swapping boosts spirits for rival game

"Hell hath no fury like a woman's scorn." Perhaps the words muttered by the coach of the first powderpuff football team. What started as a spirit booster for the cross-town rival game on Friday turned into a hair-pulling quarrel.

"I couldn't believe how violent we were all getting," said junior Nancy James.

The game, in which a team of senior girls battled a junior-sophomore combination, was played under the lights at the All-School Stadium. After a mighty struggle there was neither a victory nor a defeat, with the final score 6-6.

A male cheerleading squad provided sideline and halftime activities.

"Now I know the work the girls in Pep Club go through," said Bruce Duncan, senior male cheerleader.

Other spirit-oriented projects throughout the year included Hat Day, Halloween Dress-up Day, Red, White and Blue Day, Overall Support Day and Frontier Day.

In connection with the Spirit Days, the students voted Joe Wyatt and Debi Fresonke as Mr. and Miss School Spirit. They received this award during halftime of the Truman-Chrisman basketball game. Nominees included Mark Mangels, Paul McCulley, Laura Barnes and Karen Cline.

1. Coach Mike Royle gives suggestions to senior team members. 2. Tension arises as Nancy James prepares to kick-off. 3. Miss School Spirit is Debi Fresonke, who served as head yell leader. 4. Manager of the girl's basketball team is one activity of nominee Karen Cline. 5. Nominee Laura Barnes participates actively in Pep Club. 6. Hat Day adds attractions to classrooms. 7. Frustration prevails on the underclassmen's sideline. 8. More like Starstompers, the male drill team performs at the powderpuff game. 9. Mr. School Spirit, Joe Wyatt, excels in drama and is vice-president of StuCo. 10. Nominee Mark Mangels serves as StuCo president. 11. Editor of the Spirit of '76 is nominee Paul McCulley.

AFS exposes many concepts to exchangers

"AFS opens the door for a complete new world to understand people, love people and really want to have peace," said Glauca Diniz, William Chrisman's AFS student from Brazil.

AFS (American Field Service) meant many things to the foreign exchange students. To some it meant peace, while to others it meant a greater appreciation for one's country, family and friends. And to still others, AFS meant finding out about one's self. However, in order for these things to come about, money was needed. Therefore, February 2-6 was set aside for AFS Week to raise money for next year's foreign exchange student(s).

As an opener for the week's activities, AFSer's from area high schools visited Truman on Monday. They participated in a special assembly, classes and a reception after school. During the day, the AFSer's expressed the changed viewpoint they now held of their country.

"I always thought it was stupid to be patriotic, but now I see all the good things in my country instead of all the bad things," said Hickman Mills' student from Italy, Monica Coti Zelati.

They appreciated their home country more since their exchange.

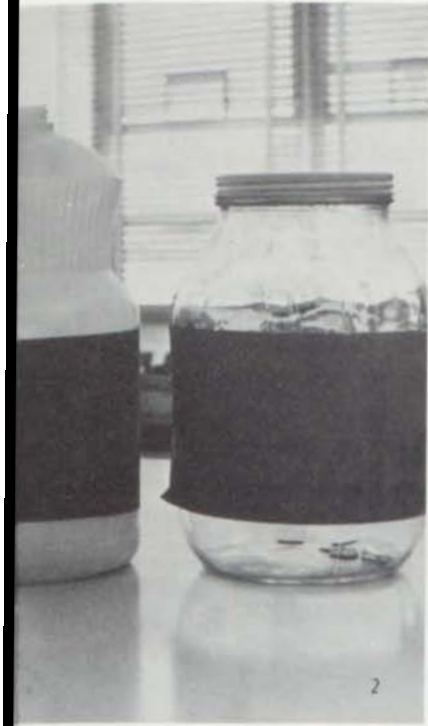

As Glauca said, "I learned I love that place (Brazil) more than anything in the world."

Besides learning new feelings for their country, the foreign exchange students experienced a sharper awareness of themselves.

Pem Day's student from Sweden, Henrik Kallen, said, "I found what's important to me and why I do things."

And, Monica commented, "I wanted to come here to see if I could do things for myself. If I have to do something, I found I can do it."

1. Anne Murray, from Australia, says she wants to take with her "memories of a great experience." 2. Penny jugs establish competition between classes and teachers during the week. 3. Through conversation, students obtain an in-sight of Italian student Monica Coti Zelati's opinions. 4. Another type of communication — listening — is an important aspect of peace as Glauca Diniz demonstrates. 7. Creativeness awards Room 219 first door prize after selling shares all week.

Hootenanny shows off hidden talents

"I've heard it before," said Joe Wyatt, as the joke contest went on between emcees David Allen and Joe. The two entertained the audience between acts of the annual variety show — the Hootenanny. Acts ranged from an impressionist to the playing of a trombone by a 102-year-old Yugoslavian immigrant. A number of individuals and rock bands provided musical entertainment while WINO broadcasted the latest in news. Skits included Monty Python episodes, George Carlin cuttings and an open heart surgery.

As one senior explained it, "I doubt an outsider would enjoy it because the most fun is seeing the people you know get up and either show their hidden talents or make fools of themselves."

Proceeds went to Student Council and were distributed among the classes.

1. Entertaining the audience between acts brings a laugh to emcee David Allen. 2. The band plays on, unfortunately without the help of Mark Mangels. 3. Bass sounds are created by senior Bruce Fenimore. 4. Displaying her talent is sophomore Laura Wheaton. 5. Shorts and suspenders add flair to the German band. 6. "... more than anything else, I'm sorry for myself," sings sophomore Janet Maitland. 7. "And that's the latest in WINO news." 8. Senior June McCargar is a Hootenanny regular.

1776-1976

Why is it a privilege to be an American?

Donna Byrd, sophomore: "The first thing that comes to my mind is the school systems. We are so lucky to have the opportunity to learn, unlike countries like Africa or India, where most of the people are illiterate. Most kids take this privilege for granted, though."

Cathy Dean, junior: "It's great to be an American. We have so many civil liberties, whereas in many other countries these liberties are oppressed. But we as Americans should be more appreciative of these liberties."

Greg Bliss, sophomore: "Of course, as Americans we have so many freedoms, but just in our day-to-day existence we take these things for granted. Crises, such as wars, have made us realize how lucky we are to be free from communism, totalitarianism and socialism."

Kenny Treaster, senior: "Yes, because you have the choice of what you want to do. In America, you can do anything just as long as it doesn't bother anybody else."

Karen Cline, senior: "We have so many rights and freedoms. Our democratic government allows each person to have a say in government affairs. But few people are appreciative of these rights and some don't even care."

Alicia Kelly, junior: "Yes, but I don't think we should consider ourselves the only people. Sure, we have a lot of freedoms and respect but there are small countries that are growing and creating something while we're just sitting here."

Mark Schley, junior: "I just read a book about POW's and all the hypocrisy they lived with. What the Vietnamese government taught and what it practiced were completely opposite. Those who think communism is the answer don't know what it's all about."

David Waggoner, senior: "Despite all the complaining about social and economic inequalities, it is a fact that an American — any American — has an opportunity to improve himself."

As the nation celebrated on a larger scale, many Truman students did their part by participating in various activities. For instance, marching band performed at the dedication of the official Bicentennial jetliner.

Regarding this, student director Mark Mangels said, "It was well worth the time spent. I felt it was an honor to be asked and it made me proud of our school and country. The plane was pretty impressive, too."

In another activity, senior Gigi Gallagher and sophomore Beverly Cleveland entered a writing contest sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Each wrote an essay entitled, "What Our Bicentennial Heritage Means To Me," with Beverly winning first place and Gigi taking second at the school level.

While some students expressed their talents through music or writing, others contributed on stage. Skits, musical numbers and dance routines combined for "The Memoirs of Uncle Sam."

David Allen, coordinator of the program, explained, "It wasn't necessarily intended to be humorous or informative. It was meant to be more of a tribute."

1. Truman students presented several Bicentennial shows throughout the year, but a group from Waverly, Mo., performed the first show — "I hear America Singing." 2.

Various historical displays remind students of their past heritage. 3. The marching band greets the official Bicentennial jet at its dedication.

PAT-REVUE

1. Ronald McDonald (Bob Hughes) assists men's choir in a commercial break. 2. Concert choir members swing to "Enter the Young." 3. Backdrops and choreography add to the effect of the songs. 4. Straight from tub to stage came Kevin Edwards and "Rubber Ducky." 5. Sesame Street's Big Bird makes a guest appearance. 6. Karen Davis and Mark Mangels help to accompany concert choir on "Country Roads."

SEVENTY-SIX

Dances, sets add variety to music show

Pat-Revue is coming! . . . Pat-Revue is coming! . . . Pat-Revue is coming! . . . And it did, only this year the bi-annual music show took on a different look. Instead of the stand-on-risers type concert, a change of sets and dancing added a touch of variety.

"This show was really different. We sang a wider variety of songs and did a lot more movement than two years ago," senior Denise Mallow said.

The show was divided into five different parts, each having its own setting: American Pop, Gospel Pop, Country Pop, A Time for Women and even a Sesame Street segment.

Junior Cathy Davis said, "It was a lot of fun, but hard work on the sets. After we hung them, they looked really good. They had to after all the work!"

The other added feature was dancing. Senior Beckie Romans, professional dancer and concert choir member, choreographed many of the songs. But a professional teaching un-professionals had its problems.

"We had some problems with people not being as coordinated as others so we had to simplify a few steps," senior Annette Hill said.

Boys decry constitution— refuse girls

Lettermen's Club differs from other clubs in that they don't have elected officers. Instead they have a 5-member executive council which presides over the meetings.

This year the Lettermen's Club received static on whether girls should be considered members of the club.

Some members did not feel girls should be in the club.

"They should not be in Lettermen's Club because they are not guys. "We have our sports and our own club. Girls have their own sports, why not their own club?" junior Doug Shockey said.

Clint Gillis disagreed: "I think that if they lettered, they should be able to join just like a boy."

The club's constitution states that anyone fulfilling the requirements for a letter is considered a member.

So girls — whether they like it or not you're considered an official member.

FCA discusses link between sports, Christ

"I thought it was going to be real religious. But we just discuss religion and how it relates to sports," senior Eddie Kuklenski said.

That was the general feeling when Fellowship of Christian Athletes announced their first meeting.

"We talk about Christ but it's not denominational," junior Eric Holm commented. "We get into some pretty good discussions," he added.

At their meetings, FCA frequently invited college and professional athletes and coaches who spoke on how they felt about the link between religion and sports.

Eddie concluded, "We try to make athletes not feel ashamed of being an athlete who believes in a religion."

1. The wagon wheel trophy, symbolizing a victory over Chrisman, is presented to Mr. Brown by Randy Lierman at a pep assembly. 2. Lettermen's Club members are active in a variety of sports. Girl athletes join forces in new club

A new club originated this year called the Ladies' Lettermen's Club. Any girl lettering in of one of the competitive sports was eligible to be a member.

Originally the club tried to join the boys' Lettermen's Club, but controversy prevented this.

"I thought it was for anyone who lettered. It would have been nice if all lettering athletes could have been together," junior Tammy Romstad said.

In regard to joining the boys' club, Terri Brannock said, "Everyone wanted to join it, but there was too much pressure from the boys."

1. Although there are two separate clubs, male and female athletes must practice in the same area. 2. Kelley Chadwick catches her breath before continuing to practice. 3. "Rebound that basketball," chant Lisa Hardy, Vicki Hoeger, and Lori Krokstrom. 4. Ladies' Lettermen's Club (names on pages 242-243). 5. "We've got a team that's sure all right," shout Julie Nelson, LeAnne Shireman and Linda States. 6. Karie Barnard, head cheerleader. 7. Pam Allee received a junior varsity letter for tennis enabling her to be a member of the club. 8. Junior varsity cheerleaders pause between cheers to check the scoreboard.

They chant 'Boogie Down' to 'Fire Up'

A wide variety of cheers — ranging from "Boogie Down" to "Fire Up" — was chanted by JV cheerleaders. Supporting both sophomore and junior varsity teams kept the girls busy, but all agreed it was worth the effort.

"It was fun, but we needed more support," Lisa Hardy said.

The season began last summer for the squad headed by Karie Barnard. They attended Missouri Valley Cheerleading Camp and were awarded four blue ribbons. Other members were juniors Lisa Hardy and LeAnne Shireman; and sophomores Vicki Hoeger, Lori Krokstrom, Julie Nelson and Linda States.

Miscalculation doesn't dampen squad's spirit

New challenges faced the varsity cheerleaders when one extra girl was added to the squad.

"There was an error in counting the votes," Mrs. Lou Winship said.

Finding the extra uniforms, changing cheers to fit and raising more money for camp were problems the girls had to cope with.

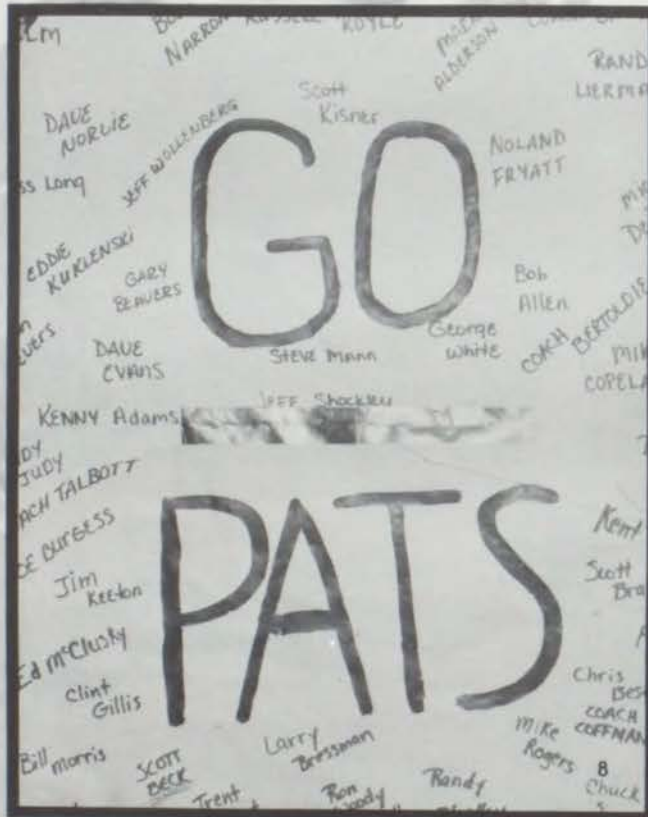

"We worked out most of the problems, but it was awful cold cheering through football since we only had short-sleeved uniforms," Tammy Bucey commented.

The squad, led by Karen Rector, attended camp at Missouri Valley College. They were awarded four blue ribbons and two spirit sticks. They were also noted as one of the top six squads at that camp. Other members were seniors Tammy Bucey, Lynnette Dutcher, Leisa Evans, and Gail Schwab; and juniors Tammy Alumbaugh, Cindy Cox and Karen Umbach.

The Pep Club Constitution brought controversy as members debated whether a girl should be expelled from Pep Club for not having the required points or if extenuating circumstances should cause exceptions.

With this large of a group (averaging 120 members), the necessity of the point system was questioned.

Mrs. Lou Winship, sponsor, said, "There needs to be some sort of value system to give the girls in the organization something to work for and receive recognition."

Another sponsor, Mrs. Jan Pule, agreed: "Any organization needs rules, and then a checking system to insure that the rules are followed."

But senior Donna Jones, who voiced the opinion of several members, said, "I think it's very unfair that someone who has been active in Pep Club since eighth grade can be kicked out in her senior year just because she is five points short."

Regarding the controversy, president Kathy Andrews commented, "The point system is necessary to get a lot of the girls to go to the games. We've tried to make it a fun club, but it's hard to keep it from being a big hassle."

Debate flares as girls fight point system

1. Mixed emotions are evident as Pep Club members anxiously await another touchdown. 2-6. Cheering the Pats on to their first winning football season is junior Teri Marsh. 7. Pep Club members (names on pages 242-243). 8. Posters were made by Pep Club girls to psyche up the team.

Starsteppers freeze muscles in icy cafeteria

"I'm freezing to death!"

"Hurry and move those tables out of the way!"

"How are we supposed to kick high with frozen muscles?"

No, drill team didn't practice in the warm gym this year. The cafeteria was the site of the first-hour class and as the weather got colder, so did the cafeteria.

"I liked the extra room but you wouldn't believe how cold it is in there," co-captain Julie Ferguson said.

Since gym space was limited and drill team consists of 26 members, the cafeteria was the next best alternative.

"At least now we can hear what Beckie has to say because the gym was so loud," senior Renae Fanara explained.

The extra room in the cafeteria provided the space needed to practice the routines performed at half-time of all major home games, one CMSU game and the Kings vs. Celtics game at Kemper Arena.

A new rule enforced last summer was the requirement of going to camp. Two camps were chosen; one at the University of Oklahoma and the other at Sam Houston University.

Captain Beckie Romans explained, "This requirement gave the girls a chance to dance before they got to school and clammed up in front of an audience."

Or, as senior Julie Peters concluded, "It also gave us more routines to work with so there aren't so many repeated ones."

Seniors recognize 'leaders'

The class of '76 chose three seniors — Youngil Yun, Eddie Kuklenski and Dawn Nienheuser — to represent them at area Optimist clubs.

Youngil was treasurer of Student Council, a member of NHS, SAE, Thespians and NAHS and in the upper 3 per cent of her class.

Eddie was involved in NHS, FCA, football, track and Lettermen's Club.

Dawn was in the upper 10 per cent of her class and a member NHS. As a member of Pep Club, she served as yell leader.

Youngil and five others were also acknowledged at the annual Cream of the Crop show for their outstanding achievements. Honored at the special recognition night were Lisa Sheehy, Debbie Willis, Rob Cox, Mike Royle and Mark Mangels.

1. Outstanding Seniors — Youngil Yun, Dawn Nienhueser and Eddie Kuklenski. Youngil also received the DAR Outstanding Citizenship Award. 2. Outstanding Senior nominees — Mike Royle, Gail Schwab, Paul McCulley, Lori Crabtree and Mark Mangels. 3. Receiving Cream of the Crop outstanding senior awards were Mike Royle, Lisa Sheehy, Youngil Yun and Debbie Willis. Not pictured: Rob Cox and Mark Mangels.

THE NOTABLES

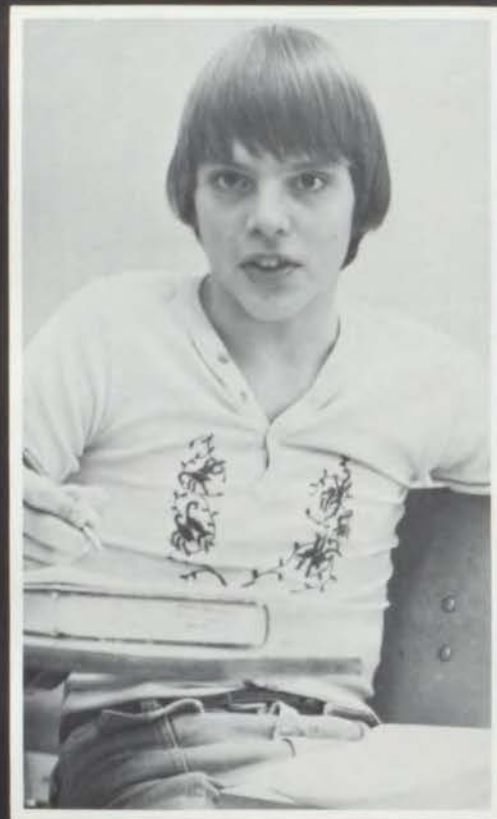

Senior

MARK MANGELS, nominated and selected by the senior class, is the outstanding senior student. In addition to serving as president of Student Council, Mark was active in National Honor Society, Interact, Trutones, concert choir and band.

Junior

MIKE COPELAND, nominated and selected by the junior class, is the outstanding junior student. Mike was a member of Interact, National Honor Society, Youth for Christ and Lettermen's Club. He also participated in football and served as captain of the wrestling team.

Sophomore

BRENT LYON, nominated and selected by the sophomore class, is the outstanding sophomore student. Brent participated in basketball and was a member of Fellowship of Christian Athletes.

Clubs

ROXANNE WYSS, nominated by club sponsors and selected by the executive members of Student Council, is the outstanding club member. She was a member of National Honor Society, president of Quill and Scroll and French Club, secretary of Interact, and treasurer of Future Homemakers of America. Dr. Henley

He stresses involvement

"Today we have to develop a closer relationship with the community. We tried not only to send out bulletins and letters, but also to meet the people head on," said Dr. Robert Henley, new superintendent of the Independence Public Schools.

According to Dr. Henley, people need to see the school to know what is needed and what really goes on.

The new plan involved coffee hours and bus tours to unite people and show them school situations in actuality.

The first bus tour of 40 PTSA women visited several schools in the district, concluding at Chrisman for lunch. They went through the line just as the students did.

"They were impressed with what they saw," Dr. Henley commented.

Group sizes were kept low.

"We were trying to communicate in small groups," Dr. Henley said. "This way people could ask questions and get answers on a more personal level."

However, not everyone would get out and become active, so the action needed to go to them, Dr. Henley added.

"Sometimes we would even go to a home to get to know someone"

Area residents, he said, need to know what is going on because they have rights to become aware of events.

"People are the important thing, whether they are school, city or neighborhood friends," Dr. Henley concluded.

Mr. Moore prepares for the committee with evaluations on the school system. 5. Mr. LeRoy Brown, principal. 6. Mr. Jerry Moore, vice-principal. 7. Mr. Clay Snowden, vice-principal. 8. Principals discuss self-study reports for the North Central Committee.

Evaluation

Principals lead way to goals

Every seven years the Independence School System undergoes an educational evaluation by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools, and this year marked Truman's re-evaluation.

"We wanted to make sure we were maintaining a good standard of educational practice," Mr. LeRoy Brown, principal, said in explanation of the purpose of the evaluation.

All teachers were involved in two committees which met on alternating Mondays.

"Local school staff involved itself in a self-study where each department looked at itself to see if it was doing what ought to be done," commented Mr. Brown.

After Christmas, each committee reported recommendations for improvement to the entire staff. A month later the visiting committee, composed of state, college and high school personnel began evaluations.

"They went to classes and observed for about three days," Mr. Brown said, "Then they met together and made out their reports."

According to Mr. Brown, the goals of education must be met and the North Central Association makes them more apparent.

"We feel it sort of helps us stay on our toes as far as maintaining excellence."

Mr. Dinsmore heads group

The school system underwent a re-evaluation of the educational system and goals by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools. Mr. Jerry Dinsmore headed Truman High School's section.

"I was in charge of coordinating the whole re-evaluation and contacted the visiting committee," Mr. Dinsmore said.

The North Central visiting committee had two purposes: to evaluate the strengths and weaknesses of our system and to make recommendations for the improvement of the school system.

The entire staff worked along with Mr. Dinsmore to prepare reports for the visiting committee. Chairpersons of the major committees were Mr. Don Coffman, school and community; Mr. Norman Cox, philosophy and objectives; Mr. John Henderson, curriculum.

Attendance

Tardies meet new secretary

Latecomers each morning met a new attendance secretary — Mrs. Barbara Jones.

Mrs. Jones, who studied at Oral Roberts University, came here from Palmer where she also was attendance secretary for two years.

"I applied for the job because I really like working with kids," Mrs. Jones commented. "That's why I like my work."

She spent some time working in August learning and adapting. Becoming used to the job was no problem.

"There are more kids than at Palmer, but that doesn't make much difference," Mrs. Jones said.

Attendance aides helped her during the school hours.

"I had three or four an hour, depending on the number of kids here in each hour," Mrs. Jones continued.

Challenging is a word Mrs. Jones used to describe her job.

"It really kept me on my toes because there were always new things happening."

1. Students must meet Mrs. Barbara Jones when late to school, tardy to class, absent or checking out. 2. Help may be found in the office. 3. PTSA open house acquaints parents with school staff. Mr. Jerry Moore, vice-principal, greets parents at annual PTSA Open House. 4. Mrs. Phyllis Hanson, records secretary. 5. Mrs. Mary Holliday, finance secretary. 6. Mrs. Barbara Jones, attendance secretary. 7. Mrs. Alice Miller, secretary to Principal LeRoy Brown. 8. Attendance aide duties include collecting cards and placing them on the peg board. 9. Aid is given to junior Kathy Hodges from Mrs. Alice Miller. 10. Basketball meet-the-squad is supported by Mr. Gene Ogle, Booster Club president, and Mr. Lloyd Briggs, member. 11. Chain gang member Mr. Ogle works at a football game as downsmarker. 12. Parents learn about student activities and classes through fall open house.

Supporting

Organizations finance extras

Various money-raising projects beneficial to students were enacted by the Parent/Teacher/Student Association and the Booster Club.

Projects such as rummage sales and a Hallmark card survey were sponsored by the PTSA.

"The money went to various mixers through the year, an AFS Christmas gift and the senior prom. Also, we gave some to the state scholarship fund," Mrs. Helen Branstetter, PTSA president, commented.

Booster Club projects, headed by Mr. Gene Ogle, president, included memberships, football programs, red and blue hat sales and a chili supper in February.

The money went to various uses.

"We bought square backboards for the basketball goals, new score boards for the football field and weight equipment," Mr. Ogle said.

They also furnished food for athletics and other organizations when needed.

Helping students and raising spirit seemed to be big goals.

PTSA, with 446 members, was not quite as active as Mrs. Branstetter had hoped.

"I wanted more interest, but it is hard to get people to come."

Mr. Ogle found things differently.

"We tried to boost all Truman High School activities," he said, "and hope the job was done well."

Whether it's a winning debate squad, marching band or athletic team, enthusiasm may be built, he said.

"If you've got a winning team, you've got a lot of spirit," Mr. Ogle said.

'Type A'

Lunch thrives with support

Rah, Rah Ravioli, Deep Sea Dandy, and Plymouth Turkey — sound familiar? These along with various others combine to form what is called "Type A" lunch.

Sound confusing? Not really, said Mrs. Marilyn Bosso, director of food service for the Independence Public Schools: "The government reimburses us about 12 cents for each 'Type A' lunch we serve."

A "Type A" lunch consists of at least two ounces of protein, three-fourths cup fruit or vegetable, and bread, butter and milk.

Mrs. Lois Bridges, cafeteria manager, said, "We can't count a lunch as 'Type A' unless the student takes a carton of milk with it."

Students need to be aware of the "Type A" school lunch program, Mrs. Bridges said "We couldn't afford to sell our lunches for 50 cents without the government support and commodities."

Crawfords

Frank, Mayme retire this year

"Whistle while you work." This described Frank Crawford, custodian, as he went about his duties. Mr. Crawford retired this year after eight years at Truman.

Coincidentally, his wife Mayme, who was pastry cook in the cafeteria, retired after seven years of service.

What are their plans for retirement?

"After being with the kids everyday for eight years, I have to find a part-time job; I couldn't just sit," Mr. Crawford said.

Mrs. Crawford added, "I'm going to do anything I want to."

1. Mr. John Freytag is supervisor of buildings and grounds. 2. Mrs. Marilyn Bosso is supervisor of food services. 3. After eight years of service, Frank Crawford is well-known figure around Truman's halls. 4. The Crawfords are retiring after several years of service. 5. The janitorial staff includes John Beebe, Brian Pennell, Elbert Wallace, Wayne Fleming and James Pack. 6. The "Type A" lunch adds nutrition to a student's daily diet. 7. Also on the janitorial staff are Bottom Row: Greg Wendleton and Lee Austin. Top Row: LeRoy Parks and Charles McQuerry. 8. The malt machine proves to be a popular additive to lunches. 9. A smile from Mrs. Reagan makes going through the lunch line easier. 10. Working in the cafeteria are Bottom Row: Ollie McLees, Mayme Crawford, Shirley Leaf, Joan Hall, Helen Cross, Ann Hess, Kimberly Morain and Delores Ayers. Top Row: Lois Bridges (cafeteria manager), Dorothy Felix, Darlene Cooper, Emma Hutton, Frances Spielbusch, Glenna Cooper, Nada Chenoweth, Maxine Corliss, Patricia Reagan, Amalia Schaefer, Mary Sexton, Freda Tippin, Theresa Rayguso, Sandra Morain, Lelia Smith and Roy Waldron.

New faces

At last we're sophomores! Strangers in a new setting. New teachers, unfamiliar halls and new friends. Searching for a place to make known our presence in the mass of upperclassmen. Patiently waiting for our turn to dominate the halls of Truman.

1. Kurt Hausheer, president. 2. Pam Whittington, vice-president. 3. Shelly Phillips, secretary. 4. Kathy Richardson, treasurer.

So long, seniors

Our senior year —
we waited so long.
And now
that it's over
we wonder,
where did it go?
It slipped through our fingers
so fast
we barely had a chance to grasp on to the good times.
But still we have something we can always cherish —
our memories.

“Let the Army help you with college.”

Last year, 90,000 young people like yourself earned college credits in the Army.

They attended classes on post. They studied at nearby colleges and universities. And they took courses through various correspondence programs. And the Army paid for up to 75% of their tuition costs.

And after your enlistment's over, you're entitled to 36 months financial assistance at colleges throughout the country.

Our educational benefits are in addition to the job training you'll receive, the salary you'll earn, and the travel opportunities you'll have.

If you'd like to find out more about all the educational benefits the Army has to offer, see or call your local Army Representative.

Call me.

The '76 Heritage Staff would like to thank the student body for its participation in the events we recorded. We hope our theme — the spark — conveyed the same meaning to you as it did to us. Throughout our school years we are massed together as one. Then we graduate and like the bursting of a spark we, too, scatter in our directions.

We would like to thank the following people whose contributions and cooperation in the production of our book are deeply appreciated: Mr. LeRoy Brown, Mr. Jerry Moore and Mr. Clay Snowden, principals; Mr. Al Hunter, photography teacher; Rolland Studio and Baldwin School Portraits; Mr. Gary Byrne, American Yearbook Company representative; Mr. John McNown, in-plant yearbook supervisor; Scott Henson, Tim Bryant, Tony Gulotta for assistance in writing sports copy; and Rick Whitmore for artwork.

We would also like to thank Col. Rufus Burrus, Miss Sue Gentry, Dr. Benedict Zobrist and the staff at the Truman Library for making our special "Truman Tribute" possible.

Spark: to flash or fall

But as with all things,
Sparks have individuality.
Each has his own
Way to express his Daily joys and sorrows.

... Like fireworks we grow,
Reaching the top
Together.
Then —

We burst into sparks of life,
Shooting far out
For our own
Goals and ideas.
