GRACE PIPER

OUR HERALD

We who are about to depart salute thee. May the kind fates who have smiled upon us this year continue to favor old Westport. As we go out from Westport's halls, ready for further conquest in college or in business, we must pause a moment to look back over a year of achievement, of strife, and of victories, to point out its records with modest pride, and to urge the underclassmen on to further glory for the high school.

A year like the one just completed comes but rarely and is the sweeter for it. Who has ever before seen the victory column so full or the defeat so lonesome? We Seniors are glad that we can go out with such grand finale, because we have helped in a large measure to accomplish these things. A clean sweep in football, a championship in basket ball, along with the first victory over Central in five years, an unusual season on the track, in short, a year of honor for Westport.

And besides this, in fact, preceding it, came the spirit which has filled the school, while enough has slipped out to surprise our rivals in the sports. Those of us who have been here four years know that the enthusiasm shown for everything has not been equaled in our time. It has been a spirit of win for Westport, and it has carried us across ahead of the rest every time. Calls for men, or money, or support were never neglected, very gratifying to us who have seen other conditions. We have had what previously had been longed for as the "old Westport spirit," and in greater measure than had ever been hoped for.

Lastly, we turn to the record of the work of the year. We are proud of this Herald. We think it embodies the thought of the year. It has been our aim to make it more truly a "year book" and a concise tabulation of the activities of the school, so that you may turn back to it and refresh in your minds the remembrance of a great year.

We have dedicated this Herald to our Westport patriots who died in the service of their country and of the world. It is with a heart-felt prayer of thanksgiving that the world conflict is over that we pay homage to our defenders who went gladly to the great sacrifice. May all of us and all of those to come look up to them as the ultimate goal of service toward which we, as American citizens, may strive for all our lives.

Again, farewell! All honor and loyalty to old Westport.

The Crier

Progress has been our ambition always. We have realized it in very definite form in the Crier. Continuing with our policy of selling advertising space in our paper and keeping ads out of the Herald, we have grown to an eight page news-magazine of distinction. Our ads have provided the money for a paper of doubled size at the usual cost. Publishing the Crier met with difficulties. Hardly had things been first lined up when the flu ban hit us. In spite of this we got out two editions during the holidays and ran on forced draft all the rest of the year.

Needless to say, we are very proud of the Crier. We have worked with it and tried to make it a newspaper equal to the standard of the year. The "dope" has been presented in what we thought was a pleasing manner. In return for our labors we have had an unprecedented support. All of which we are very grateful for. With a new year we hope to progress in even greater strides, that is the "we's" who are not Seniors. To those "we's" and to all supporters of the Crier we wish good luck.

Influenza Ban

A Commencement on one of the last days of June, a six weeks' vacation in the most delightful and usually busy time of the year, the shortening of courses of study, and the increase in the number of failures naturally needs explaining. Kansas City was one of the first cities to be engulfed by the wave of Spanish influenza which rolled over the country. During the consequent bans on all public gatherings, the schools were closed and the pupils turned loose, some to profitable work, others to profitable and otherwise play. For unfailingly delightfully, warm weather, everyone was thankful, and the holidays were appreciated more in proportion. Then after a long period of idleness, nearly everyone went back to increased work and the curtailment of many outside activities which usually had made school life more interesting, and started to make up for lost time in a whole-hearted manner. This to the credit of the Westport of 1918 and 1919.

War Work

Last year Westport carried on an extensive Red Cross Campaign. We became members of the Junior Red Cross organization. Our Liberty Bond was given to that society. We held classes where hygiene was taught by the Red Cross organization. Our aim then was to relieve the suffering of those men, so gallantly fighting in the trenches. We hope that by the work we did that we alleviated some of their suffering.

This year, the service has been devoted to a broader scope of activity. Besides relieving the suffering of our soldiers, we have given our time to relieving the suffering of the people who have given everything to help the Allied cause. Without clothing, their suffering has been terrible, especially among the little children. Westport has made clothing and sent it to them through the Belgian-French Relief and the Red Cross organization.

It will be years before Europe can hope to emerge from the abyss of destruction where the war has plunged her. The United States will continue to do everything to help her, and Westport, too, will help, because she is one hundred per cent patriotic.

Military Training

When we think of the work of Westport's battalion of cadets, we cannot but marvel at the progress made under the adverse conditions of the last year. Although hampered to an irreparable extent by the imposed influenza vacations, the cadet leaders have achieved a degree of success in their work which is very unusual. To form a battalion of four companies, each with its organization of commissioned and non-commissioned officers, to whip this unit into a smoothly working military machine, to enforce a discipline of private school standards in a public high school, and all this with boys whose knowledge of cadet work was practically nothing, has been the work of the military department of Westport. The victories of our battalion have been thoroughly in step with the spirit of the year. Progress has been striven for, and by faithful work and earnest co-operation, great progress has been made.

Extra Study Halls

Following up the lengthened lessons and increased number of failures, came the seventh and eighth hour study periods, compulsory to pupils who had received invitations to them in the form of F's. One failure plus a greater amount of work would make a better grade the next time, figured the faculty. A deserved popularity was enjoyed at first, but after four weeks of a good thing, it did not seem quite so enjoyable, and good results were seen. Certainly the extra study halls were an innovation, and they helped to make up for the many days missed in the fall.

Clubs

Last year the societies of Westport were very quiet, not to say dead. But with the new school spirit has come a greater loyalty to the clubs. The old established charter societies have felt the urge of the new day and awakened to unusual activity. It is now a distinct honor to belong to a club where previously the novitiate had thought himself doing the favor. All were interfered with by the enforced vacation, but they have recognized their opportunities anyway, and made the most of them. Some weaker ones were united into strong clubs of unquestioned life. Others have pulled out of the mud by themselves. But either way, all go to make up a distinct element in Westport life.

New Yells

When Westport teams started on their brilliant careers, the need of new yells to help out the old ones was promptly filled. Old familiar tunes were given up-to-date words, and they produced a big effect when first sung in Convention Hall. Too much cannot be said for the cheer-leaders who kept us on our feet and howling for the scalps of the enemy. They had the pep and the winning spirit, just as the teams they cheered and the yells they led in had. They helped Westport get the "will to win."

Sophomore Organization

Another new institution, a Sophomore Business Committee, has been founded. The Sophomores have been an ambitious lot, being the proteges of the Seniors, and they started something hitherto unthought of. The class also put on a mixer which followed in the footsteps of those of the Seniors in its success. The Sophomores are comers.

Debating

The announcement of the ban on inter-high school debates this year came as a hard blow to Westport's hopes of a clean-up in this field. The influenza epidemic added another black mark on its record when it caused the debates to be called off. The despairing scholars found one solace however—"Senate Debating." This form of verbal combat, originated by Mr. Humphrey, was tried out by his Public Speaking classes in a debate on the "League of Nations" in assembly. Its success was most justified since it offers a chance of speaking before an audience to a large number, when before, few had been benefited. With a few changes, it should be made a permanent thing, not only for Inter-Public Speaking, but also for inter-class and society contests.

Mixers

Mixers that mix are hard to find. Westport has had a number of the genuine article. Their success in making everyone feel easy has been partly due to the stunts which preceded nearly all of them. In staging a really artistic play, the Seniors lead all the others in the elaborateness of the entertainments. The jazz orchestra of one of Westport's pupils furnished music as good as that of outsiders and made the affairs seem more truly Westport. The excellent precedent of inviting the parents of the class officers has been established; the mixers next year should follow their leaders. Enjoyable as well as profitable, the Mixers of 1919 are worthy of note.

Senior Play

A play which gave opportunities for acting of all kinds and yet was of direct personal interest to a high school audience has been found. Such was the offering of the Senior Class of 1919. It was a big and difficult production, presented in a big way. The spirit of the play is the spirit of Westport. The artistry of the players showed the ability and thoroughness of her students. "The End of the Rainbow" epitomized the Westport of 1919.

Campaign of Friendship and Clean Living

One of the most pleasant recollections of the Seniors will be that they organized and put across the biggest and best campaign of Friendship and Clean Living ever held either in Westport or in Kansas City. Unforeseen conditions which necessitated its abandonment after three helpful days were the only mar on the otherwise smoothly running schedule, and these were not faced in Westport. Hard work and a good organization assured the success of the campaign even before it started. The opening rally for the boys caused a rush of applicants for interviews, as did also the first few conferences. The spirit of doing what was best for Westport also helped to put the meetings across.

The girls' assembly with its well-liked speaker, also helped along the work of the High School Clubs.

ART

IN THE ART CLASSES

A great deal of interest has been shown in the drawing classes this year, and a large amount of new and creditable work has been done. Besides the regular work of the drawing classes, there have been other phases of art work stressed.

Special attention has been given to the choosing of the appropriate and suitable. Apartments, small cottages, large houses, in fact, all kinds of houses, have been taken and fitted up suitably. A number of the pupils visited Suydam's Decorating Shop and studied some of the questions of interior decorating.

Great attention has been given also to period furniture. The good taste that must be used to give it a beautiful and not incongruous effect was emphasized. Plans to visit many furnishing houses and study the furniture were made.

When the Best Co., the makers of children's clothing, exhibited at the Muehlbach, the costume designing classes visited the exhibition.

The biggest thing in the art year is the competitive work for the Herald. The top headings are competitive for the entire school, but the folk studying drawing always compete more enthusiastically.

The Herald covers this year were universally contributed by all four classes.

With the exception of one Freshman and three Sophomores, the remaining pupils were Juniors and Seniors. Virginia Becker, a Junior, won the first prize; Ruth Roberts, a Senior, was given second place; and Katherine von Minkwitz, a Senior, was awarded third.

There were five judges: F. C. Slaughter, an artist of the Holland Engraving Co.; Miss Henry, a Central teacher; Miss Brian, an instructor at Manual; Mr. C. T. McCown, an art collector; and Mr. J. M. Mott, a representative from the business world.

The Herald wishes to thank these people who have drawn the headings and have helped in this way to make the Herald a success.

Musical Contest

This year when Superintendent Cammack, like the benevolent father in the dime novel, proclaimed the bans, the effects were immediately felt in the Musical Department at Westport. Besides having much of the time for instruction cut short, many activities were omitted. To crown everything, "The Pirates of Penzance," a light opera, was reluctantly given up. "Pinafore" was presented last year, and a slightly more difficult opera was planned for this year. The cast had been chosen, and work on it had progressed to a considerable degree, when it was decided to close school two weeks earlier, and the arrangements had to be abandoned.

This left the Spring contest as the most important musical event. For the first time it was held in the evening, and took place at Polytechnic Institute, Friday, May 16, before one of the largest audiences an affair of this kind has ever attracted. The rooting was better than in former years, and the Westport section, though small, was concentrated pep. However, the hearty support of the school as a whole is lacking. The Alpha Lyra Club and those who assisted it sang their best, but Northeast won all four cups, and Central the four seconds.

The numbers were:

- Boys' Chorus.... "Softly She Slumbers Lightly"
- Girls' Chorus..... "The Dew Is On the Clover"
- Mixed Chorus.....
- "Good Night, Good Night, Beloved!"

The Orchestra

In spite of the various interruptions, the orchestra of '19 has spent a very profitable and successful year. In two assemblies, programs were given, one on the day that Mr. Brewster gave a speech on Theodore Roosevelt, in which Joseph Harding and Manuel Newman, each gave violin solos, and one in the second semester in which a French horn solo was played by Thomas McMillin. It helped introduce several new school songs just before the basket ball season. On the evening of the community meeting to decide on a soldiers' memorial, a short program was given. The orchestra also rendered great assistance at the soldiers' reception and dance in playing in the Auditorium. It also played at the Senior Play and at the Commencement Exercises. For a year in which so many activities have been omitted, this has been a tolerably busy and on the whole, a satisfactory one for the orchestra.

The members of the orchestra have practiced diligently two days a week for two periods under the efficient management of the musical instructor, Mrs. Hedges. In addition, they have worked on "The Pirates of Penzance," which was not given on account of the shortened school year.

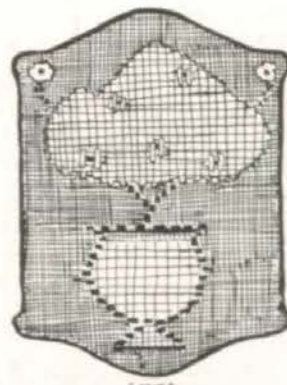

The orchestra wishes to extend the best wishes to its Senior members, Elizabeth Johnson, Melba Martin, Lee Hamlin, Thomas McMillin, and Clyde Lucas.

Here's to an equally pleasant year in 1920.

The Spanish play, presented on May 23, was one of the most snappy, sparkling foreign plays ever given at the school. A good play with an excellent cast, what more could be wished!

James Darnell, as Don Indalecio, a wealthy farmer and a gourmand, was a "scream." His solicitous wife, Rita Goss, was charming. Ruth Adler, as Maruja, the loved one of Carlos, did an unusually good piece of work, receiving many compliments from the Spanish department of the University. Carlos Raymond Childs, nephew of Don Indalecio, and lover of Maruja, gave a perfect presentation of a difficult role. His heart-rending cries of agony were so piercing and real that even the cast began to fear that he had impaired his stomach with the milk and vinegar which always quarrel. Adolph Larson was perfect as Pio, a timid student tyrannized over by his mother, who was certainly endowed with a woman's tongue. James Hyndman, as Zaragueta, was well worthy to create fear and laughter in the heart of any man.

Don Indalecio and his family were certainly fortunate in securing such servants as Lila Wood, Adelia Coles, as Perico, and Howard Snow, as the hack-driver. A good servant is a rare jewel.

A pretty Spanish dance between acts furnished local coloring.

Calderon Picnic

On May 17, members of Los Calderones made a joyful trip to Lawrence, Kansas, with the express purpose of showing the superior talent of a high school cast and with the incidental result of showing themselves a "spiffy" time. A visit to the Dyche Museum, a picnic lunch on a Kansas meadow, a trip to the track meet, and the play as a climax in the evening were some of the events which will make it stand out clearly as a bright spot in the high school days of those who participated.

A special car and all that it signifies, with a congenial bunch, added to the day's enjoyment. We feel satisfied that the Kansans were duly impressed.

Zaragueta

At the End of the Rainbow

One of the most delightful productions ever put on in the Westport Auditorium was staged by the Senior class on the evening of May 29. When the college comedy, "At the End of the Rainbow," was selected, the object was to get as far as possible from any previous presentation, and with the substitution of our own Westport for the college town, to carry out the tremendous enthusiasm for the school "above all others" on the stage. How well the idea was developed and how splendidly the cast entered into the free, natural swing of the college life may best be described by those fortunate enough to have seen the production. It was a comedy primarily, but there were moments tense with suspense and interest and it was then that the players rose to the true heights of dramatic perfection.

Jack Moffitt, as Robert Preston, a promising young lawyer, played a difficult part with the ease and assurance of a star, while Ruth Weinberger, as his beautiful ward, won the hearts of her audience by her appealing grace and ability. Ann Elizabeth Hill, as Phyllis Lane, made a typical college girl, led by the captain of the Varsity team in the person of Conrad Eckert, to induce a hesitating player into joining the squad and then finding herself head over heels in love with him. Johnny O'Keefe, of "Caliban" fame, played the part of the harassing player, Douglas Brown, to perfection. Marjorie Harbaugh and George Bates, two pledges and pseudo-servants, carried on a most charming love affair, the latter's encounter with Jane, or Isabell Sears, the eccentric maid of the "Theta Phis," furnishing a most refreshing bit of dialogue. Henrietta Shane and Terence Clark, as Nellie and Dick Preston, tiffed and squabbled as any young married couple might be expected to do. Caro Mitchell, as the "Imp" or college freshman, was the "life of the party," so to speak, while Velma Rucker, as the vampire, and George Berry, as her dupe, acted their different parts splendidly.

The entire play was charmingly done, never a hitch marring the smooth running sequence of plot, and the interpretations as directed by Mr. Humphrey gave the affair a finished tone so seldom seen in attempts of its kind.

ASSEMBLIES

Our assemblies have been few and far between, but they have made up in quality what they lacked in quantity. This year they have been of vital interest to the entire school because the larger number of the assemblies have been directly connected with the war or with school life at Westport.

We have been fortunate in having for speakers, men who have been in the thick of the war, and consequently we have heard a great deal of first hand information.

Then in athletics it has been a glorious year for Westport. Our victories have brought about some enthusiastic assemblies, which everybody enjoyed.

In all, the assemblies have been pitched upon a higher plane of enthusiasm and interest for the entire student body. No doubt, these assembly notices will recall some of the good times to you.

Our first assembly, on September 17, was presented as a musical. Mr. Claude Rader and Miss Womacks, violinists, and Mrs. Rader, accompanist, gave a very much appreciated musical program.

Rex Miller, a graduate of '13, addressed us in assembly September 30th. His talk was on Mesopotamia where he was connected with the Y. M. C. A. of the British forces.

On January 9, the orchestra made their debut in an entertaining way. Then, Mr. Brewster, after throwing bouquets at our athletic teams, talked to us of unselfishness.

The assembly on January 20th was devoted entirely to athletics and war. Captain Haas and Captain Reeves said their "says," and then Mr. Edwards gave out fifteen letters to the first squad football men. Following this, the McLaughlin twins, Henry and Tom, gave some interesting reminiscences of their life in the balloon school of the air service.

The assembly on February 4th was both unique and entertaining. Messrs. Homer and Jesse Kellens sang several of their college songs. Then Mr. Jesse Kellens talked on the subject, "Let each man heed how he buildeth." As a conclusion, the cheer leaders were summoned, and some enthusiastic cheering ensued.

The awarding of the basket ball W's was the purpose of another athletic assembly. Mr. Edwards presented the letters to the members of the first basket ball team. Joe Reicher, captain elect, for next year was called upon to tell of our chances for 1920. Mr. Shouse was presented with a battle scarred basket ball by Mr. Harman, who also made a plea for track men to come out.

The orchestra started off the assembly of March 13 in a thoroughly enjoyable way. The story of Westport's heroes was told by Mr. Foster. The assembly ended with a short prayer for those who gave their life for their country.

On March 16, the boys met in the auditorium to hear Mr. Hale Holden, who gave one of the most interesting and stirring speeches ever delivered from our platform. Mr. Holden spoke upon the advantages of clean living, the main purpose of the Friendship Campaign staged by the Boys' High School Club.

The special assembly, March 18, for girls, appealed to them in that Miss Wigal, the speaker, understood high school life. The necessity of cultivating one's individuality was emphasized, because it is the one thing that is really ours.

A new kind of debating was initiated into Westport during the assembly, March 25. The three public speaking classes of Westport clashed over the League of Nations question. This "Senate" debating was a success and no doubt will be tried again.

We have had many different war assemblies, but perhaps the most interesting was the one on April 7, Dr. Abernethy related his experiences while at the front and gave us a close up view of the war.

The assembly on April 25, was opened with a rush by an enthusiastic War Camp and Community Service speaker, Mr. Twitchell. The main speaker, Professor A. S. Root, of the library department of Oberlin College spoke of the "by-products" of education. The assembly ended by singing that never to be forgotten "John Brown's Baby."

The assembly May 14 was marked with a number of unusually interesting events. Mr. Haywood made an announcement regarding the Sons of the Revolution contest, which is a yearly competition. Mrs. MacLaughlin then talked of Westport's soldier record and the reception to be given May 17. After two announcements by the Senior president and some entertainment from the cheer leaders, the girls' gym classes and the boys' tumbling team gave a very clever and appreciated program.

Our Faculty Line Up

Cupid and Mars have played havoc with our faculty line up this year. A great many new teachers have filled the places made vacant by our sadly missed last year instructors.

When Mars beckoned, Mrs. Liggett entered the service as hostess in a Y. W. C. A. Canteen in Long Island. Mr. Brooks left our French Department to serve as an interpreter with our army in France. Mr. Miller was absent from our Science Department six months, studying high explosives for the Ordnance Department.

Miss Hodshire and Miss Wilson succumbed to Cupid, Miss Hodshire becoming Mrs. Crossman and Miss Wilson, Mrs. Sellars.

There are some who left for other purposes. Miss Rosenberger obtained leave of absence and is studying at the University of Chicago. Mr. Roberts is now an instructor at the Oak Park School, near Chicago. Mr. Campbell took up work at Polytechnic and now is out of teaching altogether. Dr. Ockerblad has left us after the one year he promised. Miss Waltner, our substitute last year, has also left us.

There are many new faces, two of whom are familiar. Miss Hanna has returned to the History Department after one year's study at Wisconsin. Mr. Irion has also returned to our History Department after three and one half year's employment as High School Inspector in the office of the State Superintendent. Miss Platz is dividing her instruction in elocution between Manual and Westport. Miss Totten, instructor in commercial subjects, is a product of the "Sunflower State." Miss Miller, formerly of Manual, is now teaching mathematics and English here. Miss Northrop from Polytechnic fills the gap in our French Department. Mr. Edwards, our new athletic director, comes well recommended from Missouri University. One other change has been made. Miss Klee-man has succeeded Miss Hodshire as girls' adviser.

To those who have left us and to those new instructors who have come to us and especially to our old "stand-bys," the Herald wishes the best and happiest of futures.

Boy Scouts

We can justly be proud of the work Westport Scouts have done this last year. September 30th all the scouts in the city who had sold 10 or more Liberty Bonds of the third issue were given a War Medal by the government. About twenty of our boys received one of these medals. Again in the Fourth Liberty Loan and in the Victory Loan the scouts rendered valuable service as messengers and Westport was as usual well represented. We have also had a good showing in the scout section of all the numerous parades of the year. In the annual City Scouting Contest, three Westport scouts, Marvin Creager, troop 1, Dryden Hodge, troop 60, and George Lewis, troop 40, won first, second, and third place in the first class contest. We wish our scouts the best of luck next year and know that they will make a record of which Westport will be proud.

Thanksgiving Offering

Westport's annual Thanksgiving offering amounted to one hundred and fifty-one dollars this year. A committee of eight, composed of two members from each class met and decided where the money was to go. The committee was Seniors, Euthalia Lavery, Stanton Miller; Juniors, Marjorie Thraikill, James Darnell; Sophomores, Evelyn Wyatt, Jules Rosenberger; Freshmen, Lela Jesse, Dessa Skinner.

They divided our offering among the most deserving charities, as follows:

Mattie Rhodes Day Nursery.....	$ 15
Rest Cottage Association	15
Florence Crittenden Home	15
Institutional Church	11
K. C. Provident Association	20
Citizens' League of Kansas City for West Side Missions, Colored	15
Mercy Hospital	25
Children's Hotel	15
Boys' Hotel	20
Total	$151

Westporters Win Scholarships

Westport continues to hold the Blair scholarship. Florian Gass, a Senior this year is the Westporter who now holds it. This is a scholarship well worth winning, for it provides for two hundred and fifty dollars a year for four years at Missouri University. The contestants were examined in Latin, English, and History and a thorough knowledge of these subjects enabled Florian to win the scholarship. Westport is more than proud of him and we wish him success at college commensurate with his success at Westport.

Again Westport was honored when Alfred Benjamin won a scholarship at Harvard. Quoting from a letter sent Mr. Shouse: "You will be glad to know that in the list of men who on the basis of their work last year have won for this year scholarships in either the first or second group, is the following graduate of Westport: First group, Alfred Benjamin." Alfred was a graduate of '16 and at Westport he also was a success in everything he undertook.

Hudson Declamation Contest

A new form of inter-school contest was established this year, but on account of the influenza epidemic it was impossible to carry out the plan. The contest is known as the Hudson Prizes in Declamation. The plan was presented by Dr. H. H. Hudson, a well known physician of Kansas City. Prizes totaling $100 will be divided yearly among the contestants representing the four high schools of this city. Dr. Hudson is much interested in the oral expression classes, and it was this interest that prompted his kind offer. The selections this year were to have been "Old Glory" by James Whitcomb Riley and its sequel by Dr. Hudson, but it is uncertain as to whether they will have the same selections next year or not. However, we warn the other schools that the flu ban only meant a postponement of the day when victory will arrive at Westport and give us a clean record in all major events. So here's hoping for the success of next year's oral expression classes.

Thrift Stamps

Over five thousand dollars worth of Thrift Stamps have been sold this year! That is some record for such a "banful" year. The campaign has been continued from last year, and Mr. Beckmann regularly visited rooms on the first floor, Mr. Hart the second, and Mr. Ward the third. Room 36, Miss De Witt's English Literature class, has the record of being 100% every Thrift Stamp day. No comparison can be made with the sales in other high schools, as they have not been reported to the headquarters. A banner was to have been awarded to the school selling the greatest amount.

Westport and S. A. T. C.

Along with the news of the plans for the selective draft came the announcement that the United States proposed to form a Student Army Training Corps. This branch of the army was to consist of young men who had the necessary requirements for college entrance. They would take up their college work under government supervision—all expenses paid and thirty dollars a month. A great number of Westport graduates and some Seniors jumped at this chance. They have been scattered all over the country, the great majority, however, at M. U., K. U., and Polytechnic.

Sewing Classes and War Work

The energy and enthusiasm of the sewing classes have been undiminished even though the war work at Westport has been less emphasized than last year.

A very creditable and appreciated amount of work was done by the classes last year. Ambulance squares, knitted garments, soldiers' property bags, and hospital pads were the articles that were made chiefly.

The work was done principally to relieve the suffering of the fighting men.

This year, however, has been devoted almost entirely to the making of clothing to relieve the suffering of the people in the war devastated regions of Europe. The year started off with the work for the Belgian-French Relief. A great deal of time and effort was spent for this society, and twenty-five cunning little dresses and twenty shirts were the results of their work. When the headquarters of the Belgian Relief Committee at the Coates House closed the classes discontinued this work. Westport is also proud of the service the classes have given the Red Cross. A large number of childrens' dresses and underwear comprised this work. The classes also darned socks and made luncheon sets to be sold for the organization.

Westport is proud that she has had a part, however small, in bringing this war to a successful close. She stands ready always to do whatever she can to alleviate the suffering of those who have sacrificed, fought, and died for Democracy.

Pershing Week Campaign

"Pershing Week," September 6 to 13, was attended by unusual activity in the sale of Thrift Stamps. Westport went over the top, subscribing a total of nine-hundred and twenty dollars for Thrift and War Savings Stamps in five days.

Miss Kleeman, New Adviser

Miss Kleeman has succeeded Miss Hodshire as the girls' adviser. She has had a very happy and successful year in this capacity and has won the confidence, respect and love of the entire school body.

Miss Kleeman has had much to do in furthering class spirit, for she has helped a great deal in planning the mixers and the other student activities. Consequently a great amount of the success of the social year can be credited to her. So here's to the continued success of our new adviser, Miss Kleeman.

Senate Debating

In the assembly on March 25th, Mr. Humphrey's innovation, "Senate debating," was tried out by his Public Speaking classes. The speeches were almost entirely extemporaneous because neither of the teams knew which side it was to take until a few moments before the contest started. The hour passed very rapidly, since members of both teams were clamoring for the floor all the time. The captains of the two teams led off with rather definitely outlined arguments. After them came all the rest, refuting points and making new ones during the whole time. The subject of the "League of Nations" was a popular one, and the affirmative side, in favor of its adoption, won a unanimous vote from the judges. Rex Miller, a former Westport debater of much ability, was a very impartial and well-liked chairman.

Five Westporters Die

During the past year five of our best and finest Westport people have died.

George Strother, a graduate of '12, one of Westport's finest athletes, died of influenza. From Westport he went to Kansas University, where he continued to make a splendid record. Again we were very much grieved to learn of the death of Leah Nelson, due to complications of Spanish influenza. Westport has missed this quiet, unassuming girl—the girl who was a friend to everybody. Eleanor McCarthy of last year's Senior class died of influenza. Although she was not very well known, being quiet and rather unobtrusive, she was a splendid girl, kind hearted and sympathetic. Westport was surprised and grieved to learn of the death of Lidabel Tracy, who would have graduated this year. She was living in New Mexico for her health at the time of her death. Miss Tracey won the War Saving Stamp Essay Contest and her cartoons and sketches were a source of pride to Westport. Stella Guettel, a graduate of '18, died of heart disease at her home April 18. She was a double star graduate at Westport and while at Smith the past year, she was a conscientious and painstaking student.

It seems hard that five of our young people should have died during the past year. Westport misses them sadly and wishes to extend through the Herald, her sympathy to the sorrowing friends and relatives.

Basket Ball Yell Fests

At last we have found a way to show that we are back of our team, that we mean business, in fact, that we are out to win. It was this spirit that gave our boys the courage to beat Central twice. The spirit that was shown in those snappy meetings where we practiced our yells put that confident feeling into the hearts of our players. When they found out that the school believed they could do it, that was all that was needed. Remember the scores?

Cadet Hop

Saturday, March 22, the First Battalion Cadet Corps staged their dance at Morton's Hall. The dance proposition has been worked on by former Westport cadet companies, but this year the plans materialized. Westport's jazz orchestra, pretty girls, and cadets in full uniform, made the affair one of the most successful happenings of the year. The unanimous opinion of everyone present embodies the hope that the Cadet Hop will be made an annual affair.

Mixers

Although the Mixers have been rather late in coming this year, due to our enforced vacations, they have been the best mixers that Westport has ever had, in that they have appealed to everyone. They have furthered a feeling of good fellowship and acquaintance which would have taken weeks to form in the class room.

The Seniors celebrated their first mixer in one happy jollification, a first class dance. The greater part of the Senior class was on hand, and everyone danced. The plaintive strains of "Home, Sweet Home" ended a glorious success.

The Juniors carried off their mixer April 10th with their characteristic pep and vim. The entertainment consisted of a series of stunts and the customary dancing. With refreshments and Jimmy Mitchell's jazz orchestra, the celebration was a real mixer.

The second Senior mixer was the most elaborate one Westport experienced. A clever quartet of stunts, some good dance music, refreshments, and an Oriental atmosphere comprised a good time.

The Sophomore class has the unique distinction of being the first Sophomore class to have a mixer. Dancing and stunts made the mixer a crowning success.

Second Childhood—Senior Day 1919

Soldiers' Reception

Westport's reception to her service men was held on the night of May 17, after only a few days of preparation. The entire building was covered with flags which hung on the walls and festooned from ceilings. Masses of spring flowers completed the decorations which met the approving eyes of the many soldiers and sailors who came back to meet their friends in high school. It was one grand jubilee from the third floor corridor down through the auditorium where the orchestra played, to the gymnasium which was crowded full with dancers and on-lookers. It was really a big "mixer" of Westport students and graduates, and as such, was an unqualified success.

HER SMILE

A little sunshine brightened
My weary life to-day;
The birds began to sing and
Remind me it was May.
The flowers raised the heads to Disclose their colors gay;
The whole world hummed with joy for
The sun had shone to-day.

A little sunshine helped to Dispel the shades of night,
And make one worldly weary
To see the dawn of light.
It showed me in its brightness
The road so scorned—the right, and
That tiny ray of sunshine
Chased gloom far from my sight.

A little sunshine in
The form of one bright smile,
By one who has the power
To make things seem worth while, changed
A world that knew no joy
Into one that knows no guile.
To her, it means so little,
To me, just all—her smile.

OUR HEROES

The names of the Westport men who answered their country's call in the Great World War of 1914 will live in the annals of Westport as long as it stands. That it had a part in the development of their characters, helped to form their standards and ideals, will be a source of pride and a spur to greater things in the hearts of Westport students in all the years to come.

No finer lot of men could have been found in the country. Well trained in mind and body, they represented the flower of the nation's manhood. Most of them enlisted as soon as our country declared war. Practically all were college men who had had from one to four years of university military training. All that we know who applied for commissions received them, and the list of lieutenants and captains and higher officers is long. They took part in almost every phase of the war, in every department of the service. Nor has their heroism gone unrewarded by the governments. Many are the citations, Croix de Guerres, and other honors bestowed upon Westporters.

On the service flag, only graduates and those who enlisted direct from school have been considered. It would be impossible from so large a number of alumni to obtain an accurate list so soon after the close of the war. Nevertheless the names of 429 have been obtained, more than any other Kansas City high school.

Many more attended Westport for a few years but did not graduate, and so they cannot be included with them.

Of these, eleven have made the supreme sacrifice, and five more from the list which cannot be classified. A volume would not suffice to give justice to their patriotism and the spirit in which they gave their lives. They were all young, just entering on life, but they willingly gave theirs that the lives of others might be made safe and happy. Little enough can be said here, but Westport appreciates, as far as human appreciation can go, the nobility of that sacrifice.

To these men, this edition of the Herald is dedicated:

Charles Holmes McCoun, '09.
Wilfrid C. Bourke, '12.
Emmet Carry, '14.
Renick Carson, '14.
Guy E. Morse, '14.
Ellison Luther, '15.
Elmer Wickline, '15.
Charles W. Jackson, Jr., '15.
James Y. Simpson, Jr., '15.
Eudell Lusher, '16.
Frank Ehrenhofer, '16.

The others who did not graduate are:

Donald Baker.
George Huff.
Lawrence MacKenzie.
Kenneth Cramer
Ray Oliver.

Charles Holmes McCoun

Charles Holmes McCoun, '09, a graduate of M. U., died in France Oct. 6, 1918, of pneumonia. He had planned to stay abroad and travel and his father had just sent him the money when he received word of his death.

Lieut. Wilfrid C. Bourke

Lieutenant Wilfrid Bourke, '12, was attending Yale Scientific School when the war broke out. He went to the First Officers' Training Camp at Fort Riley, and was made Second Lieutenant in the Field Artillery. He was transferred to the air service, however, and was sent to the Officers' School for Observers at Fort Sill, Oklahoma. He was killed in an airplane accident when his plane struck a guide wire to an observation balloon, dashing him to the ground and killing him instantly.

Emmet Carry

Emmet Carry of the class of '14, was one of the first to go. His many friends among the faculty remember him as a quiet, reserved fellow, old beyond his years, always faithful, and a man who could be depended on for the right thing at the proper time. He was a private in the 384th Infantry, 89th Division. Enlisting in April of 1918, he saw service by August. He was killed August 26th, by accidental gunshot wounds, received while on sentry duty in the Saint Mihiel sector.

Renick Carson

Renick Carson, was another favorite of the class of '14. He joined the Marine Corps in May, and was stationed at Paris Island, where he received his training.

From there he was transferred to the Field Artillery School at Quantico, Virginia. Here he contracted pneumonia and died.

Lieut. Guy E. Morse

Lieutenant Guy E. Morse, '14, son of our own Mr. Morse, entered the aviation division of the Signal Corps. After five weeks at the Officers' Training Corps at Fort Sheridan, he was made Second Lieutenant and sent to Key West to the Coast Artillery. He was then transferred to the air service, and sent to Austin, Texas, where he was trained for an observer. In that capacity he went to France in September, and soon saw active service. On September 12, a pilot and he as observer flew back of the Hindenberg line and successfully located an advancing enemy unit. They were sent back on another reconnaissance, but they were shot down in an attack by seven German planes. Later Mr. Morse received his Distinguished Service Medal.

Ellison Luther

Ellison Luther, of the class of '15, died at Pascagola, Mississippi, October 13, 1918, of pneumonia. He was in the first June draft, and, as he had been engaged in the lumber business, he was sent to the shipyards, where he contracted pneumonia. He left a widow, also a Westporter, Berenice Myers Luther.

Sergt. Elmer Wickline

Sergeant Elmer Wickline, '15, was one of the greatest basket ball stars Westport will ever have. He enlisted soon after our entrance into the war in a unit of the Field Artillery organized in Jackson County. He was trained at Camp Doniphan, where he contracted pneumonia, from which he never completely recovered. He went to France as sergeant in Battery D, 129th Field Artillery. While in France he succumbed to the weakened condition in which the pneumonia had left him, and died.

Charles W. Jackson, Jr.

Charles W. Jackson, Jr., was killed in an airplane accident at the training station at Urbana, Illinois. He graduated from Westport in 1915 after an active career. In athletics he was a member of the track and Senior basket ball teams. He was also an important member of the High School Club and of the Irvings at Westport. On account of his versatility, his friends, both among students and faculty, were numerous.

James Y. Simpson, Jr.

James Y. Simpson, Jr., was another popular member of the class of '15. He was a private in Company I, Sixth Marines and the first Westporter to fall in actual battle. With seven others, he charged a machine gun nest June 8, in Belleau Wood, capturing one and destroying another. He and one other were killed and the rest wounded. He is now buried in Belleau Wood. He was posthumously cited and awarded the Croix de Guerre.

Sergt. Eudell Lusher

Sergeant Eudell Lusher, '16, had a high school record to be proud of. Unassuming, almost to shyness, he went through school attracting little attention except the respect of his teachers and the admiration of his friends. He was a member of the Irving, High School, and Circulo Calderon Clubs, and was on one of the victorious debating teams. When we entered the war, he attempted in every way to get into active service, but was kept out for some time on account of his age. When he did get in, he worked to be transferred to a branch where he could see immediate action. At last he went overseas with his own unit, a sergeant. He was killed in action soon after his arrival at the front.

Frank Ehrenhofer

The case of Frank Ehrenhofer, '16, was perhaps the saddest of all. At school he was a scholar of the highest type, and a poet of no mean order. He was a private of the Sixth Marines and took part in the battles of Chateau Thierry and Soissons. In the latter battle he was blinded by shell shock, and was invalided back to Fort McHenry, near Baltimore, where his sister went to nurse him. Two operations were found necessary, the second of which proved fatal. His body was sent to Kansas City for burial, and a full military funeral was given.

Our Non-Graduate Heroes

Of the five others who lost their lives, Donald Baker died of pneumonia at Camp Doniphan. George Huff, who attended Westport for a year, was a member of the old Third Regiment. He was wounded in the Argonne, contracted diphtheria from exposure and died October 9. Lawrence MacKenzie was a corporal in a unit of the regular army trained at Eagle Pass, Texas, but also attended the Officers' Training Camp at Camp Grant.

He was sent in charge of a car of forty-two soldiers, all but six of whom were struck with influenza. He himself died from it October 7. Kenneth Cramer went here three years, and when this country went to war, he became a member of the 90th Division Casual Department of the Coast Artillery. He died of double pneumonia December 24, at Fort Winfield Scott, California. Ray Oliver, who almost completed his four year course here, was killed in the Argonne.

A Faculty Committee under the Chairmanship of Mrs. MacLaughlin, is busy gathering material for the publication of a complete record of our Westport men. This will include all who have ever been enrolled with us. At the present we can only give you the list of names for whom we have stars in our service flag. We are proud to acknowledge them as sons of Westport.

 AN ANSWER TO "IN FLANDER'S FIELDS"

Sleep on in peace, ye Flanders dead,
 We've freed the world of hate and dread.
 Sleep peacefully in Flanders fields.
 You've showed a love that never yields;
 You fought for love of home and land,
 To save it from a tyrant's hand,
 And by the blood of you who died
 Democracy was glorified.
 O dead of Flanders, you have taught
 The manhood liberty has wrought.
 We broke not faith, and so the foe
 Is paying now his debt of woe,
 And o'er your graves where poppies bloom
 Is seen no more war's bloody gloom.
 The lives you gave where crosses stand
 Have brought the freedom of your land.
 To you who loved your country so,
 Eternal is the debt we owe.

—Helen May Lock, '20.

CADET CORPS

The third year of military training has far surpassed the two previous years, both in the interest shown the cadet corps from the school at large, and the benefit received by the men themselves. The cadets entered into the work with the greatest possible enthusiasm, and the interest did not lag but kept up until the end of the year. When one thinks of the mistakes and blunders that occurred at the first of the year as contrasted with the perfect work done at the close of the year, it is hard to believe that so much could be accomplished in one year.

It would be useless to relate the trials and tribulations that were undergone by both the officers and men, but suffice it to say that they were speedily overcome. A new plan of training the new men was established this year. Each new man was put under the command of an old man whose duty it was to drill him in the marchings, facings, and the like. At the close of the instructions the old man that had the best drilled pupil was accordingly made a squad leader.

The real drilling began with the arrival of the rifles. Under the careful supervision of their squad leaders the men were instructed in the manual of arms and also squad maneuvers. It was due to this early training that the cadets made such a fine showing in the two parades that they took part in, the first being the parade that launched the Red Cross drive and the second one being the Victory Loan parade. Preceded by the regimental band that furnishes some real music they indeed did themselves proud.

Probably the greatest change made in the Cadet Corps this year was that of changing the uniforms. The blue gray uniform of the previous years was replaced by the khaki colored uniform, consisting of cap, blouse, trousers, and puttees. The West Point uniform would have done fine for dress occasions had the cadets possessed two uniforms, but it was not suited to outside drill.

Another change in the Corps this year was the one caused by the arrival of the new rifles. Owing to the fact that the Seventh Regiment was short on arms, the Craig rifles used last year were therefore donated to the National Guards. This caused the cadets at the beginning of the year to be minus any rifles whatsoever, with the exception of a few carbines. However, after about a month's delay, which gave the new men ample time to become familiar with the drill, the rifles arrived. The present rifles are a Springfield model, and while they are of an older make than the Craig rifles, still they surpass them in weight and double timing facilities.

The cadets have indulged in several hikes this year, from which great benefit was derived. The hikes were conducted in true military style and were instructive as well as interesting to all.

Along with the drill the cadets were taught the two arm semaphore, and though difficult at first, every man succeeded in learning it, as was shown by the examination that was given at the end of the first term.

Taken as a whole, the work this year was up to the highest possible standard that could be asked, and we only hope that in the succeeding years the cadets will accomplish as much as has the 1919 Cadet Corps.

Competitive Review

Judging from the results of the competition, held May 24, the Westport Battalion was not as successful as in the previous year, as we lost both the battalion and company drill to Northeast. However, the signaling contest was a clean sweep for the local boys, their two teams, George Bates and Milton McGreevy and Dryden Hodge and Jack Chesney, placing first and second.

The day started with an inter-company contest in the First Battalion to decide which company was to represent Westport in the final competition between the four schools. Company D, commanded by Captain Bulkley, was adjudged the victor, taking third place later in the day. Regimental review followed as soon as the other battalions had assembled. The battalion competition, which followed, went to Northeast.

After a long period of rest for lunch, the boys were assembled and marched down to the field to view the drill of the crack companies. Company F, of Northeast, Company M of Manual, and Company D were very closely matched, finishing in the order named. The cup was accordingly awarded to Company F, that Company and Companies A and C of Westport, each having held it once. Then the result of the signaling contest was announced, our winners being well ahead.

The final event of the program was the regimental parade, when the fourteen companies marched in review before regular army officers. In this event the Westporters demonstrated splendid form, all four companies preserving a faultless line and a time-perfect step. No crack squad drill or wall scaling contest was held this year, thus depriving our boys of two additional opportunities for demonstrating their supremacy, but it is the opinion of the local officers that the honors were well divided with Northeast, our men taking a first and a second as against the Purple's two firsts. As for the year's results being unfavorable, nothing could have been farther from the fact, the work of the cadets being praised very highly by Colonel Palmer, the reviewing officer.

The past year has been a year of success for the Round Table Club. Somewhat handicapped, she started on the year's course with only forty names on her roll, but her members have worked with characteristic club spirit and enthusiasm, her membership has doubled, the interest and pep in the meetings have increased, and now at the finish the Round Table Club comes through with her colors flying.

With Miss Leitch as our adviser, the splendid efforts and cooperation of the members resulted in unusually interesting meetings, and many and varied have been the programs. Discussions of modern subjects, modern authors and books, prominent men of today, original stories, and dramatic and musical talent have contributed to the instruction and entertainment of the Club, and put life into the meetings.

Round Table has occupied a prominent place in all school activities. Athletes, musicians, oratory, cadet officers, artists, and actors are to be found among her members. In the Crier Staff, the Senior play, the track team, in every activity Round Table is well represented. Such has been the record of the Round Table Club for this year and for past years, and with the support of her loyal members such will be her fame in the future, and next year will be another year of glory for the Round Table Club and for Westport.

At the close of the school year 1918-19, the Clionian Literary Society looks back on a year the success of which is yet to be surpassed. Knowing that all students should keep in touch with current events, many programs were on that subject, given in the form of debates and talks, though music and readings helped to keep alive the general interest and insured a good attendance.

Our eighty members were chosen with due regard to their worth. It is with pride that we can say that all the Senior class officers and one Junior class officer are Clionians. In the few school activities left this year after the epidemic, our club members have held prominent places. The track team and basket ball captains, Walter Kleinstuber and George Reeves, and the basket ball stars, Creed Joyce, Gilbert Hardacre, and Arch Richards, are all Clionians. In the orchestra, Joe Harding has won us fame and respect. Ten roles in the Senior play are taken by our members. On the Crier and Herald staff, business committees, and cadet offices we have been well represented.

The annual social affair, a dance given on Washington's birthday at Morton's Hall, will live long in Clionian history. But the climax to the entire year of achievement and success came in our victory over the Round Tablers in our joint musical and debate contest.

All of our success, however, we can and do attribute to the untiring efforts of our adviser, Miss Shelton.

The year 1919 has seen another step forward in the advancement of the Irving Club. Our programs have surpassed any of the preceding years. A new feature has been added to our programs, the study of the scientific side of the great war. This phase of the work has been greatly enjoyed by all the members. We have reviewed the English novel and have also studied the modern novel. As variety is the spice of life, we have endeavored to have one of the aforementioned subjects on each program, thus avoiding a monotonous meeting. Honorable mention should be given to some of the original papers this year.

Our members have, as usual, held places in all school activities. The Crier and Herald were composed almost entirely of Irvings as eight of our number had this honor. We were also represented in athletics, military achievements, Junior and Senior class officers, and the Senior play. The Irving Club was well represented in the Westport division and in the main division of the Boys' High School Club.

On looking over the past year we Irvings can feel justly proud of ourselves, in that we have increased our membership, that we have been immensely benefited by our programs, that we have established ties of friendship that time cannot break, and that we have kept up the high standard.

This year, as all the preceding years, has been a great year for the Clay Club. The club has increased in membership, its meetings have grown more interesting and instructive, and the general club spirit has advanced until it has grown to be not only a privilege but also an honor to be a member.

The high grade standard of the club is such that not only amiable, but also capable members are allowed. We were very creditably represented in basket ball, football, and track, and had there been the usual inter-scholastic debate, a good percentage of the debate team would have been Clay Club members, just as in former years.

As it is, we look forward with hopeful anticipation to next year when we will have a chance to show what we can do in debate, especially as the Clay Club is essentially a debating club. In addition we will have many of our present members back and with these and whatever new members that may join, we hope to make next year as prosperous for the Clays as the past year has been.

Another successful year has been added to the career of the Pundit Club. The main purpose of our club is debating, and we have carried this out in our meetings throughout the year. As the inter-scholastic debates were discontinued, we had no chance to spread our fame abroad and show the wonderful debating talent which we have in our club.

However, we have been represented in practically every other activity in the school. We were represented on the Crier staff and Senior play and also many members of the Girls' High School Club Cabinet are Pundits.

During the year we have had several thrilling social events. For instance, we gave a tea at the Muehlebach Hotel with the Alpha and Aristonian Societies of Northeast and Central respectively, which proved to be such a success that we hope it will be a yearly social event. Also, our annual dance, which was given at Hillcrest Country Club, was a great success.

We have had unusually interesting meetings this year, such as our debate on the League of Nations, a study of the Irish Question, and a real minstrel show.

Altogether this has been a very interesting year in Pundit history. We certainly owe much of our success to the instruction and untiring efforts of our popular adviser, Miss Dorrel.

The Spanish Club continues to enjoy its career of remarkable success. The influenza "espanola" can little hamper a club of its high order, and the scarcity of the meetings was easily redeemed by the quality of each.

Each meeting was divided equally between interesting instruction and delightful pleasure. Mexico, Spain, and the Philippines were studied with the aid of slides and interesting discourses given at various times by Senores Ray, Morales, and Phillips and often by members of the society. On one occasion Miss Campbell, art instructor of Polytechnic Institute, gave accounts of the lives of Spanish artists at the Nelson Art Gallery.

Members of the Spanish Club also presented the lively little comedy, "Zaragüeta" once in the school auditorium and another time at the Kansas University.

We earnestly hope for the continued success which must and will come to a club of such indomitable spirit and such a capable adviser.

Perhaps the roster of no other club in Westport could present a more complete census of the leaders in school activities than does that of the History Club. This club seems to be the one place where fellows of widely different hobbies and talents meet on a plane of common interest and enjoyment. We are proud to believe the History Club is one of the causes for Westport's being the splendid school it is.

These facts have been emphasized during the year just completed. Never before has a league of leaders been more complete in the records of the school. Every fellow has worked for our central purpose. Nineteen-nineteen shall be a red-letter year for this school for time to come as a result of it.

Because we have a high standard, do not jump to the conclusion that we do not have fun. Our meetings are full of pep, and our hikes are visions of heaven, loads of fun, gallons of wit, and no girls. The club is at all times in close contact with the coach and his athletes. Other school activities receive our heartiest support. Perhaps you think this is a bit chesty. We reply, it is enthusiasm that has made these statements true. We shall not shout "Eureka," for that is not our style; we are satisfied that nineteen-nineteen is a record year, and we shall continue from here to build a greater Westport of the future.

Do you know what B. C. P. means? Thereby hangs a tale. Way back in the dark ages—1914—the Science Club was organized. Its members discoursed fluently upon subjects that baffled the great minds of the age, and so exhausting was it that the club only lasted three years.

The interest in science, however, did not die. The Biology Club was organized among the Botany and Zoology students; and the Chemistry and Physics students, after attempting departmental clubs with varying degrees of success, clamored to be admitted. The result is the B. C. P. Club, which includes Biology (Botany, Zoology, and Hygiene), Chemistry, and Physics.

The plan of organizing by divisions gave rise to a spirit of enthusiastic rivalry, each division attempting to secure the greatest number of members and to present the most interesting programs.

Reconstruction work was studied from the view point of the various sciences, leading to the discussion of wood for airplanes, Red Cross dogs, and electrical inventions such as the High Frequency and X-Ray. These programs were worked out in a very interesting manner, laboratory experiments being given to illustrate the various subjects. Each member took a special interest in the club, and at one meeting (given by the Physics division) the audience became electrified—Sh! the seats were wired.

Did we say rivalry? Imagine the consternation when it was discovered that all of the second term officers belonged to the Zoology division.

Though old man "Disappointment" loomed up again this year, we are not in the least discouraged. On the contrary, we look forward to next year with but one thought in mind—victory, and victory of the Northeast brand. You remember she "copped" all four of the cups. We are very much elated, however, over the support the students gave. Though very much outnumbered by the other schools, it goes to show that the students are beginning to recognize the musical contest as a school activity, just as important as basket ball and debate.

It was the intention of the club to give the opera "The Pirates of Penzance," but this had to be omitted because of the shortness of the term and other interruptions. However, there is every chance of having an opera next year.

The Alpha Lyra Club has shown, as it has in former years, the value of such an institution in the school. It is at once a means of allowing a certain group of the students to advance the interests and renown of Westport, and at the same time, to continue the study of their favorite accomplishment. Any one who is interested in music and in the promotion of music at Westport would be an aid to this club as the club would be an aid to him. The popularity and prosperity of our club will therefore be lasting in the history of this school.

This year has proven a most successful and enjoyable one for the Girls' High School Club. We not only aided in all patriotic campaigns, but we also gave a liberal sum for the support of Miss McFarland, a missionary in South America. Thanksgiving and Christmas dinners were taken to poor families and we entertained the old people at the Armour Home with a lively program. Along with all this work, the social activities of the club were not forgotten. In September we started out with a "peppy" party for all Freshman girls, which was decidedly a success. Besides this we had a birthday party, a hike, a mothers' meeting, a farewell party for the Seniors, and last but not least, a banquet. The clubs of all the High Schools participated in the banquet and it was a howling success.

The discussionals this year have been very interesting and lively, and have added much to the enjoyment of the meetings.

We feel that it is greatly due to our faithful adviser, Miss Humfeld, that our club has prospered this year, as never before.

Enthusiasm in the fellows and steady and persistent work by the officers put the Westport Division of the Boys' High School Club through a big year, not only in the attendance at the meetings, but also in the matter of getting a good school spirit. Last year the success of the club was not great, but the spirit of the year held sway in 1918 and 1919, and things boomed. Supper tickets were sold at school before the days of the meetings, and bigger crowds than ever before filled the Y. M. C. A. auditorium each night.

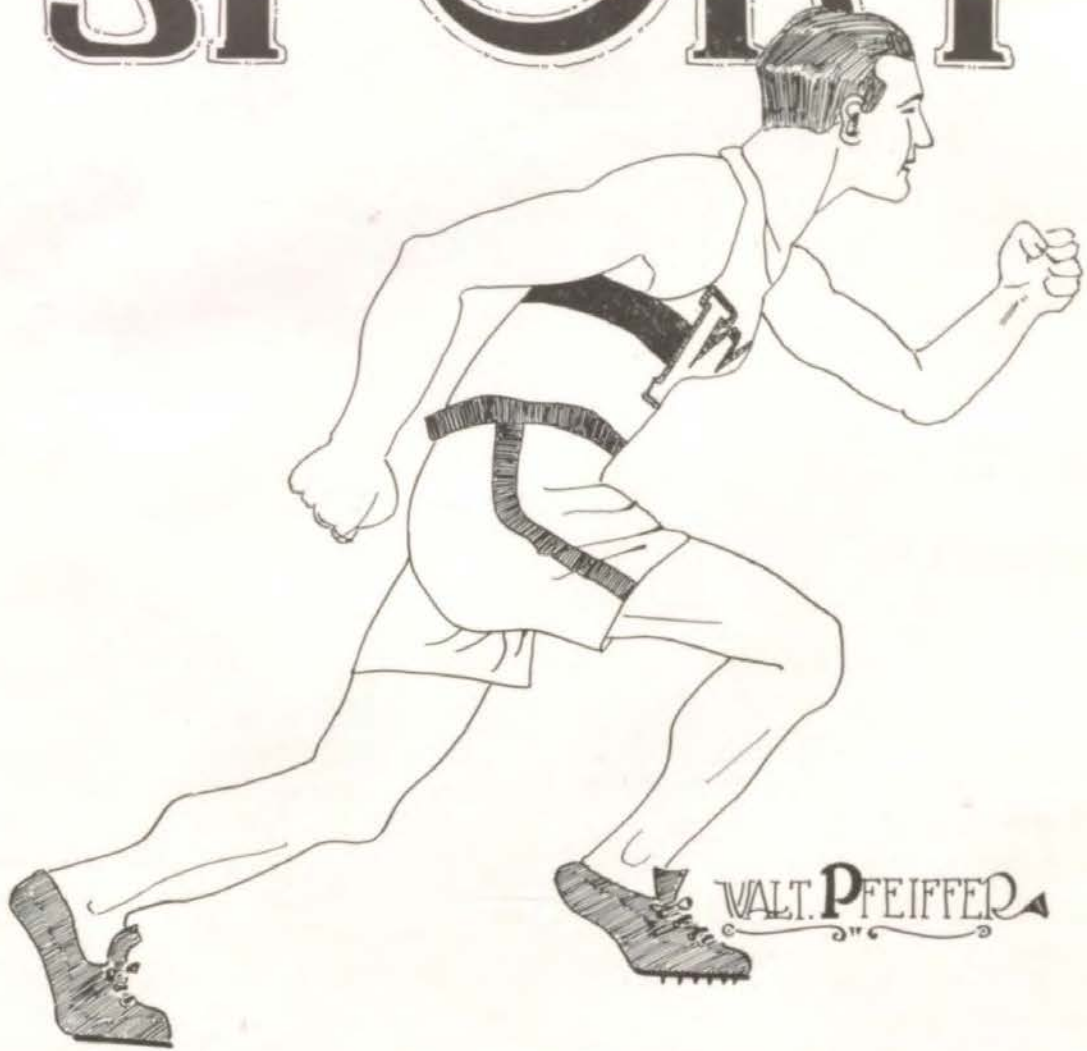

The work that the High School Club has done in Westport is great. As proof of this consider the Friendship Campaign and its success. The fellows carried the winning spirit of Westport down to the club and helped keep her directly before the other schools.

The programs were unusually interesting on account of the opportunities for obtaining men just back from the war work who could emphasize the need of Christian work in every man. The colleges near Kansas City put on some of the programs which were noticed carefully by the Seniors.

To put it in a few words, the High School Club has grown as never before in enthusiasm, co-operation, arousing greater school loyalty and most of all, in making Westport a better high school.

SPORT

REESTABLISHMENT OF FOOTBALL

Late last year the followers of sport in the four Kansas City High Schools was overjoyed by the announcement that football was once more to take its place in the athletic curriculum of the schools. The question had been more or less constantly debated for the past several years, but no definite conclusion was reached. Finally, urged by Mr. Shouse and others, the School Board decided to reinstate football as one of the annual quadrangular competitions.

Since 1905, when a Manual player, Gipson, was fatally injured in the Thanksgiving Day game with Central, the ban has been on. An attempt in 1908, under the modified code of rules, to bring the sport back, proved a flat financial failure. It is interesting to note, however, that our own Coach Edwards served as full-back on the team Central put out that year.

So for ten long years the school officials were obliged not to encourage football, yet they wondered why the spirit of the various student bodies did not demand it. The climax, long overdue, came in 1918, when the School Board felt that it was not fair to the students to deprive them of the greatest game of all, and so consented to its reestablishment.

As far as material was concerned, Westport was not unprepared, as the Country Club team, city champions of the year before, formed a nucleus around which Coach Edwards built a magnificent machine. Such men as Captain Haas, McAlester, Mel Horton, and Arch Richards, were already recognized as sterling players, and many others equally good were developed. The fact that the schedule was cut in two was deeply regretted by our boys, but the superiority they demonstrated over Central and Northeast in the two games that were played, gave them undisputed possession of a well earned championship.

Our first game against Central, was by far the classiest exhibition of football the season produced, and had it not been for the splendid work of "Hoxie" Haas, the game might have ended in a scoreless tie. The uncanny elusiveness displayed by our captain in that beautiful 55-yard run for a touch down was marvelous, when one considers how closely the two teams were matched.

Central played a passing game, short throws to Burke, gaining for them consistently, and for the first half our boys were baffled. On the kick off, the Gold and Blue offense was extremely weak, and Central was able to rush the ball far into our territory. Here the defense tightened, and the ball was kicked out of danger. The rest of the half was turned to hard, fast playing, our boys gaining confidence with every down.

The third quarter brought out the prettiest work of all. Central started another drive for the Tiger goal, which again broke down before the stone wall defense of our line.

Again the ball was kicked out of danger, and Central fell back to the pass. This last play was fatal. Jack Haas seized the ball in mid-air and clutching it under his left arm, started on his sprint to victory. Away he went, dodging and stiff-arming half the Central team, till he planted the old pigskin in triumph under the goal posts. Then his team mates fell upon him and alternately beat and caressed him for his splendid work. The bleachers went wild.

The last quarter, Jack wisely turned into a punting duel, and despite the desperate efforts of the Blue and White, the score remained. After four long years, Central was beaten.

The second and last game was with Northeast and was easy picking compared with the fast game against Central. The teams were about evenly matched as to weight, and it was evident that they had no chance against Coach Edwards' speed-demons.

Our boys started off on the jump and maintained the pace all the way, scoring in every session except the last, when Coach sent in a number of the second team men. "Doc" Joyce gets the credit for the first touch-down, scored soon after the game began. Hoxie Haas did most of the heavy work in the second quarter, counting twelve points in rapid order. After each score, Mel Horton added a point by his beautiful kicking.

Rudolph's score came in the third quarter, when he blocked a Central kick to safety, and took the ball over on the next play. The rest of the game was a struggle all the way, our substitutes showing up well against the Purple. Although the final score registered a 7 to 0, Northeast is to be congratulated on the clean sportsmanship which she displayed, and with a little more weight or a little more speed, should be able to furnish some good competition next year.

Second Team

Few people realize the great part the second team plays in the development of a crack team. Without the loyal support of the "scrubs," as they are called, the machine which turned back Central and romped on Northeast, might possibly have failed, for it is in the scrimmages on the home practice field that the first string men gain perfection in the interference, tackles, blockings, and the like. The second team deserves as much credit, share for share, as their more skillful brethren, and we take off our hats to them.

Not alone for such unselfish service should we remember them, but for the fact that they upheld the high standard set by the Tigers by keeping their goal-line uncrossed. Owing to the fact that Central did not have enough men out for a second team, no official league could be organized, so two games with the Purple and one with Manual made up their season's record.

The first game with Northeast was an easy victory, 19 to 0, Captain Stith doing most of the work. The second, however, was fast and closely competed, a field goal by Gray scoring the winning three points. In both games, Northeast played clean, hard football, a few of the first team men playing in the line-up, and our scrubs deserve much credit for those two victories.

Jack Hoxie Haas, Captain and Captain-elect, played the prettiest all-round game of any performer in the league, justifying a thousand times the choice of his teammates when they elevated him to the captaincy. He filled the hardest positions in football, that of defensive full-back, and filled it in a manner that would have done credit to a collegiate man. Hoxie was a deadly tackler, a reliable kicker, and never failed to gain his yards when given the ball. Just as Coach Edwards built the team around Jack this year, so will he be the mainstay next fall, and if he were the only old man coming back, Westport's prospects would be more than bright.

The Manual second team was a strong one, their first and second teams being practically one and the same. The scoreless tie that was the only result when our light midgets clashed with their beefy first squad is a fine example of the superior brand of football the Gold and Blue is capable of.

These three games brought out some splendid players, Stith, Kassebaum, Gray, Neuer, and Kleinstuber. Unfortunately, however, most of this group graduates this year, and they will not have the opportunity to display their wares in a first division game.

Gilbert Hardacre, Center, '19

Ask any man on the Central and Northeast teams who broke up more of their plays before fairly started, and the answer will be the same, Gibbie. With a head and body that could not be hurt, this midget filtered through the opposing line on every play and worked havoc with the best of "trick" plays. Gibbie will be a real loss to the team next year, and the man must be a star who can successfully fill his boots.

Andrew McAlester, Guard, '19

"Chick" was one of those "fighting fools" who would rather be torn limb from limb than be forced out of the game. Quiet and unimpressive to look at, he was one of the hardest, most unrelenting players on the team. "Chick's" specialty was the forward pass, and he could heave the pig-skin as far as most fellows could throw a baseball. No one will ever forget "Mac" and his little baseball hat, which he never seemed to lose in the hottest scrimmage.

Lee Johnson, Guard, '19

"Nig" played his first and last season of inter-scholastic football this year, and a more fearless player never wore the Gold and Blue. The second team linesmen can best testify as to the power of his attack, the fierce scowl he gives his opponents being enough to terrify the stoutest heart. With a little more practice and experience, "Nig" would make a star, but perhaps that will come in his college career.

Creed Joyce, Half-back, '19

"Doc" could make more noise than any man on the team, and all the while follow his noise up with a clean-cut, consistent brand of the grand old game. Once give Creed the ball in a broken field, and the man who could catch him must be able to do the "fifty" in :06 flat. "Doc" would be a star next season with his experience added to natural ability, but he leaves Westport this year.

Melvin Horton, Full-back, '19

"Mel" was not given much chance against Central, but showed up splendidly in the second game. Despite his small stature, "Mel" was a tower of strength in the back-field, pulling down many a runner who had fought his way through the line. His long suit, however, was in kicking and in running "fake" plays. He kicked every goal in the Northeast game, adding three points to an already big score.

George Reeves, Half-back, '19

A man who can be a top-notch in basket ball and football, too, is a wonder, and that is exactly what "Cotton" Reeves is. Westport athletic stock fell to zero when George joined the S. A. T.

The Second Team

C. at Manhattan, but the Allies apparently sensed our vital need, and finished up the war in a hurry. Uncle Sam thus lost a good soldier, and Westport recovered her star athlete. It was remarkable the way in which George got through the Purple line, and his handling of the ball was superb.

Verne Wilkin, End, '20

"Handsome" was one of those quiet fellows that does not inspire one on first sight, but anyone fortunate enough to have seen him perform on the gridiron will vow they have never seen a more certain tackler. His nick-name might well be "Never-Miss," and many were the interferences that went to pieces rounding his end of the line. If Verne keeps up the high standard he has set for himself, he is our bet for a berth on the All-Stars.

Archibald Richards, End, '19

"Arch" like "Chick" McAlester, was always getting crippled in practice, and consequently went into the big games with a lame ankle. Considering this handicap, his work was remarkable, being especially good at receiving passes. We all wish Arch was coming back next year, as his cheerful smile and winning personality will be sadly missed in the fall work-outs.

James Stewart, Tackle, '20

"Old Hercules" was the iron man of the team, playing the full season and playing it in a way that was a constant incentive for harder effort from his team mates. The man who drew Jimmy to buck against, either on the practice field or at Association Park, always sighed and determined to die as bravely as possible. With a little more experience, Jimmy will make an unusual kicker, the strength he puts behind his swing, carrying the ball far down the field.

Esmond Kearney, Half-back, '20

"Kearney" was one of the few men out for first practice who had ever played the game before. Esmond was a member of the Country Day team sometime ago and was noted for his kicking ability. Since then he has developed into the fastest, hardest tackler on the squad. Hard luck in the form of a dislocated chin kept him out of the second game, but he should be at his best next fall.

Martin Lyle, Half-back, '21

"M. V." was a Sophomore this year, and if he keeps on developing at his present rate, the school will soon be too small for him. Lyle played faultless football as safety man, never dropping the kick and was sure to fight back most of the distance lost by his splendid open-field running. As a live-plunger he shone particularly for his knack of picking holes in a seemingly impregnable line. Martin is a star in basket ball as well.

Chester Cooksey, End, '20

"Titter" improved a thousand per cent after the first week or so of practice, and, like Lyle, should be a star next year. Chet was one of those solid, husky chaps, who could get over the ground at break-neck speed. No one on the team was more conscientious in his training, and he was out for every work-out, giving his best to the team at all times.

Walter Rudolph, Tackle, '20

"Rudy" was the handy man of the team, and could be played in any position, line or back-field. As strong as an ox, his sprint and fight made him a dangerous man to buck against. If any man could fill "Nig" Johnson's place it would be Rudolph, as all he lacks is a little self-assurance.

Herbert Darnell, Guard, '21

"Herb" is one of the two Sophomore letter-men, and his large build and immense strength make him a most valuable asset. "Herb" started out at center this year, and may be shifted to fill "Gib" Hardacre's place. His battle cry, "Come on fellows, a little pep," was always a signal for added effort, generally ending in a score.

MY FRIEND

I have a friend who seems to me
A lifeboat on a stormy sea.
No radiant figurehead has she,
Nor stays she close in near the lee.
Her solid planks brave ocean gales;
Wild winds ne'er hinder once her sails.
The white wave foam is dashed aside,
And near me through tempests does abide.

I love her for her watchful post,
For she is here when wanted most,
I love for love she's given me,
My lifeboat on a troubled sea.
Loving, faithful, wearied never,
She is my friend for aye and ever.

BASKET BALL

ENGLEMAN.

INTER-SCHOLASTIC BASKET BALL

It is a very hard thing to sit down and give a quiet, concise review of an athletic season when a single phrase, brief in formula, but of momentous importance, constantly repeats itself, insistently breaks into any channel of thought, and leaves one's mind contentedly reviewing a certain night in midwinter when cheering thousands thronged Convention Hall and saw Westport's goal shooters send the Central team reeling to a 28 to 22 defeat. On that night an undefeated record of four and one-half years was wiped out and forgotten, and Westport gained a new war-cry, one that will never fail in the future to spur a lagging team on to glorious victory. That cry is "Twenty-eight to twenty-two."

The first game of the season saw a repetition of the same old story that Westport supporters have been forced to listen to for as long as they can remember. We opened the season with Central, and the Blue and White took home the bacon. The boys were in the thick of it all the way, fighting to overcome a poor start, but the self-assurance that habitual victory always brings gave Young's proteges just enough to pocket the contest. A look at the score, 35 to 32, will show that the game belonged to no one until the final whistle blew, and the feeling that they were not outclassed in any phase of the game gave Captain Reeves' men a good start for their second meeting with the Centralites.

From the local standpoint, the second game was the most unsatisfactory of the season. To fall before Central had become customary and could be endured, but to be forced to bow to Northeast was intolerable. The team was not a team, but rather a group of hostile units, working at cross-purposes when they worked at all, and to the tortured spectators the season was a disaster—a nightmare to be quickly forgotten. "Cotton" Reeves worked like a Hercules to turn the tide, but he was working alone. The other men were apathetic, dull, and to all appearances, extremely bored with the whole proceeding.

Then came the change. It would have been impossible to identify the snappy, fighting team that buried Manual under an avalanche of points with the listless aggregation of the night before. For the first time every man on the team had found his place in the machine and never a clock ran more smoothly. The passing was dazzling, the shooting brilliant, and the old fighting spirit that has made Westport Westport was fairly boiling over. From that victory, expected and conceded though it was, the fellows took new heart, and a firm resolve, steadily growing into a passionate determination to "beat Central," found root in each of Coach Edward's basketeers.

Every Westporter knows by heart what happened on that historic night when George Reeves took his last shot at a Central team. George has played basket ball pretty regularly since he entered Westport, and he has seen a number of Tiger teams walked on by the Blue and White. Now, generally, George is a quiet chap, but he solemnly swore that before he said good-bye to Westport, Central was going to get a man-sized dose of her own medicine. Did she? Ask George, he can tell you. Ask any member of the squad. Ask Mr. Shouse or Coach Edwards. Ask any student or teacher—yes, even ask a Freshman. They can all tell you and will go to considerable length to explain the matter in full detail. It was a wonderful fight, as all Central-Westport games have been, and at last, it ended as it should end.

The next two games could not have been different. The Tigers swept everything before them, trimming Northeast by a safe margin and letting Manual down to her second season of straight defeats. It was natural that the Purple should have given us competition. A win would have given her the pennant, and she had beaten us earlier in the season. From their standpoint, all circumstances pointed to a league championship. Poor old Northeast! How she could be expected to calculate on that irresistible attack of a team that had broken a four years' precedent and one of the best teams Central had ever turned out?

The last night of the season saw the Crimson performers yield to a championship team with little argument. It also saw the Blue and White traditional supremacy shattered forever when Captain Cross and his Northeasterners took a thrilling, "knock 'em down and drag 'em out" battle from the ex-champs in the last minute of play.

Three cheers, everybody, for Captain Reeves and his Championship Tigers.

Second Team

Although our first team boys won the big league championship, the second team made no such record, in fact, they finished in the very opposite place, at the bottom of the league with a percentage of 000.

The second team had bad luck from the word go. For instance, take the case of Captain Lyle. After the first game Coach decided that M. V. was good enough to be on the first team, so to the first he went. This left the second without a captain. However, this was soon remedied, as Rudolph was elected to take M. V's place for the rest of the season.

The opening game of the season which was played with Central on the Westport court, resulted in a defeat for the Blue and Gold. The game was a hard fought one, and our boys made the Centralites work for every point they got. Northeast was the next one to administer the unpleasant dose of defeat to us. We led until the last few minutes of play when a late but effective rally by the Purple and White sent them home victorious. The game with Manual was rather rough, verging on football. Our boys could not find the basket, and as a consequence met their third defeat.

At the beginning of the second round Central again came off victor. This time, however, the game was much closer than the first one, the Blue and White winning by only 2 points. This was one of the best second team games of the season and ranked with some of the first team games for spirit and play. Northeast and Manual each won their second game with us and in so doing left us without a single game to our credit.

As above mentioned, the second team had hard luck. They played rings around their opponents in nearly every game, but the lack of ability to hit the basket caused them to lose games they should have won. Rudolph, Brewster, and Brown were three of the most prominent members of the second team. Brewster is only a Freshman and has three more years to play. He bids fair to be quite a player.

The teams finished as follows:

Team	W	L	P	Pct
Central	5	1	6	838
Northeast	4	2	6	666
Manual	3	3	6	333
Westport	0	6	6	000

Inter-Class Games

The inter-class games are held primarily to allow the coach to get a line up on the men for the squad. Every one has a fair chance, and the men are picked.

There are two classes: A, all men weighing over 125 pounds; and B, all men under the weight of 125 pounds. Each class has a team in both the A and B leagues.

When the dust of the season had cleared away, it was found that the Juniors had won the class A championship. To accomplish this feat it was necessary for them to play an extra game with the Seniors, who disputed their rights to the title. With "Salty" Wetzell and Cooksey as forwards for the Juniors, the other teams found it impossible to keep up with them on the scoring end of the game. The third year men also won the class B championship, winning three straight games without one defeat. Again their nearest competitors were the Seniors who finished with two games won and one lost. Neither the Freshmen nor the Sophomores seemed able to put up a very good game.

The results were as follows:

Team	CLASS A
	W	L	P	Pct
Junior	3	1	4	750
Senior	2	2	4	500

Sophomore.	1	2	3	333
Freshman.	1	2	3	333

CLASS B

Junior.	3	0	3	1000
Senior.	2	1	3	666
Sophomore.	1	2	3	333
Freshman.	0	3	3	000

Heite, Hammett and Stewart showed up best on defense.

A has won the championship twice, and another victory will give her a claim for the title.

The final standings were as follows:

	W	L	Pct
Company A.	3	0	1000
Company C.	2	1	666
Company B.	1	2	333
Company D.	0	3	000

Inter-Company Games

Company A annexed the title for the second time, by a straight line of victories, three in number. The tournament was held in the gym February 19, 24 and 26, each team playing three games. A developed the best team work and defeated C, her only rival by a score of 32 to 13. A had no star, but her team played together like a machine. Hyndman, Cooksey, and Hammett deserve special mention for their fine work. Peck and O'Keefe starred for C, the former being practically the only one of the C team who was able to find the basket. Heite and Reicher starred for B and D respectively.

The first round gave a line on the winners. B bowed to A under a 34 to 9 score, while C defeated D. This game was mainly between captains, Reicher scoring 11 of his team's 14 points and Peck 10 of his team's 18.

The second round confirmed the first, A winning from C, due to C's over-confidence and lack of training, and B beating D by 2 points, which was undoubtedly due to the absence of Reicher.

In the last round everything ran according to the dope. C smothered B nicely, playing a much improved game. A fairly lost D in a 60 to 10 score, it being impossible for Reicher to cover the entire D team, and as they all were in a shooting mood, the score mounted higher and higher.

These games brought out some good players, Reicher, Peck, Cooksey and Hyndman being the best scoring factors, while

Creed "Doc" Joyce

One of the fastest, brainiest players in the league, can be truthfully said about Doc. Joyce made a record last year as a specialist on floor work and an accurate shot from any angle, no matter how difficult, and he certainly lived up to this record.

When viewed by an outsider, Joyce seems rather small to be holding down a first team position, but looks are deceiving things, as anyone who saw him play will testify.

We are graduating Creed this year and in him the school loses a fine all around athlete.

Verne Wilkin

Verne held down the position of center on the big team this year and made a great success of it. He played all six games and had a faculty of being everywhere at once and proving a great factor in our passing machine. There is no doubt about it, Verne was an immense help in the game when we defeated Central. That night he played a nearly perfect game and was on every point of the floor at once, besides keeping Storms down to two goals and making two goals for our team.

George Reeves, Captain

George realized his life ambition this year and captained the team that hung the crepe on that grey brick building out at Thirty-third and Indiana. George is leaving us this year, but his reputation is made, and wherever he goes, if he plays basket ball, he will be recognized as a star.

George is a good all-round player, and while he has never tried his hand at guarding, yet we all know he would succeed should he try. As a center he is fine, but as a forward he is a shining light. It took George to show Central where to get off. Did you see him that night? He was everywhere at once, guarding, passing and continuously keeping the scorekeeper busy counting up Westport's health improvers. In all the games George kept at the boys, filling them with pep, and playing the game of an all around star. We are sorry to lose him, and wish him the best of luck, wherever he goes.

M. V. Lyle

M. V. showed up in basket ball as well as he did in football. His ability to hit the basket and pass the ball made him a valuable asset to the team. Lyle played in all of the games and while he only made eleven goals, he was right there when he was needed and kept the ball moving in the right direction. Lyle is only a Sophomore and so has two more years to play. He is a mighty fine forward and will show up for Westport next year. He has a fine chance of being captain of the team his Senior year.

next year? Sure! Go to it, Joe, we're for you.

Gibbie Hardacre

Gibbie was as usual the jester of the squad and did a great deal towards keeping the boys in good humor. He played four of the six games and showed up very well. As a guard, Gibbie was quite a success and lived up to the predictions made about him last year. We will be sorry to lose him. Good luck, Gibbie!

Joe Reicher

Joe was elected to lead our boys to victory next year. He was unable to play the first game on account of his game leg, but played in all the others. He can be likened unto Dana Munsell for his prowess as a guard. Joe was one of the fairest and squarest guards in the city and was greatly feared by all his opponent guards, for he often took jaunts into their territory and added points to our score. Did you know that Joe is going to lead our boys to victory over Central again

Jack Haas

Jack was a find this year, as he had never played basket ball before, and while no one doubted his ability as a football player, nevertheless, he showed them, to use a slang expression. Jack's attachment for the enemy forwards, especially Browning, in our memorable game with Central, made him a much feared personage. He played a clean, fast game and fit perfectly into our splendid machine. Jack has another year ahead and without doubt will be one of the pennant winners next year.

TRACK SEASON

The track season this year seemed disastrous to us and more so in comparison with our victories in the other athletic events of the year. The fellows worked and worked hard for Westport, but the trouble was that there were not enough of them. Has the splendid interest shown in football and basket ball detracted from our interest in track? Or was it just because things seemed so upset on account of the many interruptions? These are questions which will be answered next year, and next year will be the test.

Coach Edwards worked hard with everyone. It was not his fault. His interest had not lessened with the end of the football season. The old-time pep that marked our victories and our training for those victories seemed to have perished when we finished up the other two major events. Perhaps we were over-confident at the beginning of the track season. Perhaps the school just took it as a matter of course and thought that Westport could not help but win the track championship also. However that maybe, Westport did not win, and did not win by a big margin. We did not show the interest in track that there should have been and as a consequence lost hope of rounding out a complete year of athletic championships. Next year with our old-time spirit manifesting itself, let us hope that we will walk away with the track season.

M. U.-K. U. Indoor Meet

The track team, true to precedent, was a little off form in the first night of the season and Northeast won the cup by one point. The meet, however, gave our boys a line on the other schools' talent, which they used to good advantage later on.

Kleinstuber and Kearney grabbed four points in the first event, taking second and fourth respectively, which our Captain augmented when he took another point in the quarter-mile. Our midget quartet, Lockwood, Gray, Eiser, and Esslinger ran Northeast a close race in the relay, and they, with Richardson, who took second in the half-mile, tacked another six points on to our growing total. As a fitting finish to the evening, Kearney, Kimball, Joyce, and Kleinstuber took first honors in the A and B relay, putting us within one point of Northeast.

Walter Kleinstuber, Captain

Look at the picture again. Yes, it is Captain Kleinstuber all right, that wizard at the dashes, and he has "speed" written all over him. Messrs. Lott and Polite know that they can not loaf when "Cap" Monroe is on the job. He does not hand out anything except pure unadulterated swiftness when he hears that gun go off, and anyone who is up against him might as well prepare to lose a whole lot more than his breath before he is through. But our captain is not limited to the cinder path for his avenues to fame. He is equally well known to the denizens of the broad-jumping pit and to the hurlers of the iron pill. Wherever his manly face is seen, there victory must go. Westport is grateful to have such a fellow within her walls.

Such a close finish, instead of discouraging the boys, simply spurred them on to greater efforts for the K. C. A. C. meet, and how they profited may be seen from the results on that occasion.

K. C. A. C. Indoor Meet

Coming back determined to retrieve their close defeat at the hands of Northeast, Coach Edwards' boys went into the K. C. A. C. trackfest with everything they had, and the result was a smashing victory. Captain Kleinstuber and his knights of the abbreviated trousers were at their very best, and the final tabulation showed the Gold and Blue well out in front.

In the 50-yard dash, Kleinstuber and Kearney ran a beautiful sprint, taking second and fourth, Lott of Central and Polite of Northeast capturing the other two places. Kleinstuber also placed third in the quarter mile, giving Westport a total of six points. Then Richardson, running his last race before being ordered by the doctor to cut out all athletics, shook the dust out from under his feet and placed at the head of the procession. This first, with a first and second from the two relay teams, Essinger, Lockwood, Herndon, and Gray in C and D, and Kearney, Kimball, Joyce, and Kleinstuber in A and B, hoisted the local accumulation to 19, enough to win the meet.

The final stands:

Westport.	19
Northeast.	16
Central.	14
Manual.	6

Missouri Invitation Meet

The annual track meet at Columbia went to Webster Groves, now three times winner of the event, the Tigers finishing two points behind Central for second honors. This was the first exhibition of the team since Richardson, Lewis, and Pratt were forced to drop out and with those consistent point-winners on the field, that loving cup would doubtless have been added to our collection. As it was, the boys lost point after point to outsiders which should have gone down in the Gold and Blue column against Kansas City competition. Only considering the local high schools, Central's victory evened up the minor meets of the season, Northeast, Central, and Westport each winning a first.

"Dutch" Kassebaum started the scoring when he took third place in the high hurdles, which, with McAlesters' fourth in the half-mile and Captain Kleinstuber's third in the 440 gave Westport five counters. Kearney and Kimball both placed in the 220 yard dash, Kearney and Joyce also taking six points in the low hurdles. Had the little tin God of Luck been on our side, Central would no doubt have trailed, as Esmond and "Doc" each won their heats. A poor start lost the finals, however, and we took six points instead of eight. A third in the high jump and second in the broad jump by the versatile Esmond Kearney and "Kleinie" were the only Tiger points in the field events, most of the honors in this division going to the Webster Grove contingent.

The relay was one of those affairs that one does not like to remember. Our boys, Kimball, Joyce, Kassebaum, and Kleinstuber, ran splendidly, setting the pace a good part of the way. When Kassebaum, who was running third, passed the stick to Kleinie, a Northeast man stopped directly in front of the latter, causing him to lose many precious seconds. As it was, the "Cap" ran a great race, closing the gap to inches, and taking third. A protest was overruled and the final tabulation stood: Webster Groves 36, Central 25, Westport 23, and Northeast 21.

K. U. Invitation Meet.

The Kansas City high schools reckoned without their host on the McCook Field, May 17, and were given a drubbing which they will not soon forget, by a quintet of athletes from Winfield, Kansas. Dobson of Winfield was the individual star, scoring seventeen out of the thirty-two Winfield points. He set a new record in the pole vault while doing it, too. Central came home with second honors with twenty points, Northeast gathered in sixteen counters for third, while Atchison and Abilene tied for fourth with fifteen points apiece. Westport trailed along in sixth place with eight points, which were the result of Kearney's first in the high jump and fourth in the hurdles, Kleinstuber's fourth in the 220-yard dash, and a fourth in the 4-man relay.

Westport drew another blank in both the 50-yard and 100-yard dashes, and her hopes for victory got shakier after the 120-yard hurdles, 220-yard hurdles, the 440-yard, and 220-yard dashes went by with only two domestic points on the scoreboard.

The shot-put also slid away with nary a tally. In the half-mile we sorely missed Richardson who could have gathered in a first in this event. Westport's athletes only nodded to points in the pole-vault and broad-jump, although they resolved to become better friends with them before the Quad. By this time everyone saw what a raw deal the Winfield aggregation was handing us, so Kearney got busy and stretched himself to a first in the high jump. The final counter came when our relay picked up a fourth in the last event of the meet.

Westport felt bad about that K. U. meet, but—well, alibis are lying around all over the place. In the first place the whole team walked up and down Mt. Oread twice, enough to kill any team. Bill Stotts took one look at the "stiffs" in the medical laboratory and Bill is not going to be a doctor. And, etc.

The Westport team is grateful to the Sigma Chis at whose house they stayed and had a fine dinner.

The Quadrangular

Perhaps if the meet had been earlier in the year Westport would have won. As it was the Quadrangular came in late and so did we. The day was scorching, and the Rootlets blossomed out in the full magnificence of a real track team, winning the meet with 14 2-5 points. Central landed in second place with 120 1-3 points; Westport gathered in 112 1-2; and Manual trailed with 58 2-3.

It was especially hard to lose the meet, because it was the only thing we needed to fill out a year of athletic triumphs. Surely after winning the football and basketball championships it would have been the logical thing for Westport to have come off with first honors in track also. But such was not the case, worse luck! and Northeast picked up the Quad with some to spare. One consolation, however, remained. Creed Joyce was high man with firsts in 100-yard hurdles, 220-yard hurdles, and the shot put. Kearney was runner-up to Joyce with two firsts and a second to his credit. But, although Westport did have the individual stars, we fell down in Classes C and D. Northeast had a good lead in Class D and also won Class A, and although Westport nearly ran away with Class B, it was not enough to overcome the lead of either Northeast or Central in the other three classes. Our Business Manager

We have heard much of Coach Edwards and his boys this year. They have accomplished a great piece of work and certainly 1919 will go down as a banner year in our athletic history. There is, however, one more who has contributed as much toward making our jubilees possible as any single member whose praises have been so often sung. Instead of being in the limelight, this individual has always seemed to be trying to avoid anything that smacked of notoriety. He has been back of every contest, smoothing the way, lending a helping hand everywhere, dropping the kindly word at just the time when some member of the team most needed it. Without his earnest and untiring effort many things that have happened this year would have been impossible. Three cheers for Mr. Harman!

SPRING

Faint strains of music fan the air,
 The bees and birds hum everywhere;
 Fair flowers breathe with glad delight
 Their perfumed odes, which echo bright.
 The brooklet ripples its jocund note
 To shaded woods and nooks remote.
 The sunbeams smile with childlike glee,
 All nature's one great symphony.

—Ruth Weinberger, '19.

Girls' Athletics

Very few people are aware of the fact, that in girls' athletics, Westport ranks far ahead of most schools. Besides the regular course in physical training, there are the inter-class contests, which are open to every girl in school, and which are growing more popular every year. This year an unusually large number of girls were to be found taking part in these inter-class games on Tuesdays and Thursdays. The contests were livelier and showed more pep and enthusiasm than ever before. Perhaps this is due to the fact that girls' athletics are given a more important place at Westport than in any of the other high schools.

Westport is the only one of the four Kansas City high schools which has three recognized major sports for girls. These are hockey, basketball, and baseball. In this the girls are ahead of the boys, for they have had only two major sports until football was introduced. This is the first year in a long time that the boys have enjoyed a real fall sport.

This year marks the fourth successful hockey tournament for Westport girls. From the very first practice day the contest was assured of success by the hard work of the players and their fine spirit in all of the games. This sport gathers a larger number of followers each year and stands in great favor among the girls.

For many years basket ball has been the favorite sport. This year was no exception. The games were exceedingly interesting. The teams developed surprising skill in the short time they had for practice. The final games were the most exciting and the best attended of the three inter-class contests of the year.

Baseball received an enthusiastic welcome in this, its second season as a major sport. The triangle on Gillham Road was the scene of the match games which ended the year's program of girls' athletics. Considering the many interruptions in the work, this has been a very successful year.

Hockey

The class teams entered the hockey contests, the first of the girls' athletic activities, with splendid enthusiasm and class spirit.

After six weeks of practice, the first inter-class game, the Junior-Senior game, was played on the triangle November 21. The teams were so well matched that the game was a very close contest, ending with a 2 to 1 score for the Seniors.

The Freshman-Sophomore game was a hard fought struggle. Three quarters were played without a score by either team. During the last quarter, "Marty" Williamson made a goal and won the game for the Sophomores.

The Senior team suffered defeat in the Sophomore-Senior game, scoring only 1 point to the 6 made by their opponents.

Great was the joy of the Freshmen when they defeated the Junior team by their splendid playing. The score was, Freshmen 3, Juniors 2.

The day set for the final games was the Tuesday after school closed because of the influenza. The Junior and Senior teams failed to make their appearance, so they lost the games by default.

The final standing of the teams was: Sophomores champions; Freshmen second; Seniors third; and Juniors last.

Here is the winning Sophomore squad: Martha Williamson, captain; Elizabeth Meriwether, Harriet Chittenden, Virginia Jackson, Aileen Allbritain, Alice Hafer, Eleanor Renfro, Nadine Longshore, Evelyn Miner, Louise Allen, Felicie Thresher, Lula Canada, Cuddy McKewn, Helen Proctor, Marjorie Powell, Martha Fowler, and Elizabeth Shepard.

The members of the other hockey squads are:

Freshmen: Lela Jesse, captain; Grace Ringle, Lucy Hall, Frances Chambers, Gertrude Matinlee, Ruth Thompson, Gladys Owens, Elizabeth Turner, Virginia Duval, Helen Hale, Gwendolyn Manson, Gertrude Edwards, Grace Edwards, Elizabeth Dietrich, Olga Anderson, Marie Sillex, and Elizabeth Wilson.

Juniors: Irene Hess, captain; Virginia Smith, Ola Moon, Elizabeth Emmert, Helen Decker, Eloise Engleman, Hazel Munden, Luella Halbert, Helen Lock, Alma Sumner, Peggy Moore, Marguerite Chandler, and Frances Kenny.

Seniors: Bernice Burkhardt, captain; Margaret Kelly, Marie Frauens, Mae Shufflebotham, Virginia Compton, Isabel Sears, Cornelia Eckert, Cleo Parsley, Marie Richardson, Margaret Wolf, Margaret Hamilton, Catherine Smith, Florence MacMahon, and Ann Elizabeth Hill.

Basket Ball

Although basket ball practice did not start till very late, the games were marked by more than usual enthusiasm this year. Not only the large number of players who came out for practice but the many spectators at the games testified to the popularity of this sport.

This year before the regular inter-class games, a series of practice games between the different gymn classes was played. In these games the team of third year girls, in the seventh-hours class, was the winner.

The first inter-class game came off February 25, when the Sophomores defeated the Freshmen team by a score of 19 to 13.

The Junior-Senior game was a hot contest but finally ended with victory for the Juniors. The Juniors made a number of fouls which gave their opponents several points. The score was, Juniors 24, Seniors 21.

The Sophomores won the Sophomore-Senior game. The final score was 12 to 11 in favor of the Sophomore team.

At the end of the first half, the Freshman-Senior game appeared to be a certain victory for the Seniors, the score being 8 to 1 in their favor. But the Freshmen took heart and piling up their score, they defeated the Seniors by one point. The score was 18 for the Freshies to 17 for the Seniors.

The Freshman team was unable to withstand the steady teamwork of their opponents in the Junior-Senior game. When the game ended, the Freshmen had 18 points, the Juniors 24.

The Sophomore-Junior game was almost a farce. The Sophomore team, which was minus some of its regular members, played a very half-hearted game, which ended with the score 44 to 6 in favor of the Juniors, giving them the 1919 inter-class basket ball championship.

For three years this class has won the basket ball championship. The remarkable thing about it is the fact that they have never lost a game. Virginia Smith, Helen Decker, Hazel Munden, and Irene Hess have been with the team for three years. The other members are: Peggy

Basket Ball Champions

Moore, Ruth Butin, Gladys Mullins, Mildred Harris, and Marguerite Chandler.

The other squads are:

Freshmen: Grace Ringle, Frances Chambers, Lela Jesse, Lucile Florea, Ellen Hale, Lucy Hall, Elizabeth Dietrich, Gertrude Mattenlee, Gladys Owens, Mary Bernsetten, Irma Kevan, and Gertrude Chapman.

Sophomores: Martha Williamson, Eleanor Renfro, Alice Hafer, Nadine Longshore, Elizabeth Shepard, Martha Fowler, Dorothy Block, Lula Canada, and Louise Allen.

Seniors: Margaret Kelley, Marie Richardson, Ann Elizabeth Hill, Cleo Parsley, Cornelia Eckert, Marie Frauens, Margaret Hamilton, and Catherine Smith.

The final standing of the teams was: Juniors first; Sophomores second; Freshmen third; and Seniors last.

The basket ball captains are: Ellen Hale, Freshmen; Martha Fowler, Sophomore; Helen Decker, Junior; and Marie Frauens, Senior.

Baseball

The baseball games, the last of the girls' sports, ended a very successful year.

The first games were played May 20, when the Sophomores defeated the Seniors with 12 points to their 3, and the Freshman-Junior game ended with the score 6 to 5 for the Freshmen.

The game between the Freshman and Sophomore teams went to the Sophomores. The score was 16 to 13. The Seniors lost to the Juniors, having 6 points, while the Juniors had 9.

At the end of the Sophomore-Junior game the score was Juniors 10, Sophomores 8.

The Seniors lost the Freshman-Senior game by default.

The result of these games was a tie between the Junior, Sophomore and Freshman teams for the championship, as each team won two of the three games they played. The games which decided the winners of the baseball championship were played after the Herald went to press.

The captains of the baseball teams are: Margaret Kelley, Senior; Genevieve Pierce, Junior; Martha Williamson, Sophomore, and Lucy Hall, Freshman.

The members of the baseball squads are:

Freshmen—Lucy Hall, Gertrude Mattenlee, Elizabeth Turner, Gertrude Edwards, Grace Ringle, Frances Chambers, Lucile Ross, Henrietta Ginsberg, Marian Mitchener, Katherine Brewster, Lucile Florea, Lela Jesse, Gladys Owens, Vivian Kinelly, Olga Anderson, Mary Berntsen, and Helen Hale.

Sophomores—Martha Williamson, Josephine Slezak, Louise Allen, Grace Phillips, Eleanor Renfro, Felicie Thresher, Evelyn Miner, Elizabeth Shepard, Estella Ginsberg, Dorothy Block, Marjorie Powell, Nadine Longshore, and Virginia Jackson.

Juniors—Genevieve Pierce, Mildred Harris, Irene Hess, Hazel Munden, Elizabeth Emmert, Virginia Smith, Ruth Butin, Marguerite Chandler, Helen Lock, and Marie Jones.

Seniors—Margaret Kelley, Marie Richardson, Bernice Burkhardt, Catherine Smith, Margaret Wolf, Isabel Sears, Margaret Hamilton, Cornelia Eckert, Ann Elizabeth Hill, and Marie Frauens.

SENIORS

THE SENIORS

The class of nineteen hundred and nineteen! A victorious class in this victory year! Probably never before has the spirit of the whole school been so fine. In spite of all set-backs and handicaps the Senior Class has gone "over the top."

Our Seniors stood out conspicuously on every athletic team. Captain George Reeves, Creed Joyce, Gilbert Hardacre, Verne Wilkin, and Arch Richards were the back-bone of our basket ball team which, after four years of endeavor, humbled Central. Football was revived in September and the excellent team, on which there were seven Seniors, won the pennant. The two Senior cheer leaders and our representatives on the track team sustained the reputation of the class.

The mixers of the class of '19 were a revelation as to what mixers should really be. Our daring acrobats, Waggoner, Joyce, Hardacre, Kassebaum, and Herndon, and our talented actors gave entertainments well worth remembering. The Seniors really "mixed" which proved our unusual good fellowship and democratic spirit.

The Senior play demonstrates that histrionic art at Westport High School is being faithfully maintained at its already high level.

The standard musical appreciation has also been loyally fostered by this class. Had it not been for the Seniors, the Jazz Orchestra would not have been so jazzy, nor the glee club so gleeful.

It is not too much to say that this class has a record for scholarship unequalled by any class in the history of the school.

The Senior class motto, "Esse Quam Videri," has been given a new interpretation—Persistence and Pep Lead to Victory.

The Secretary.

THE CLASS OF 1920

In the year A. D., 1916, a most noble undertaking was recorded in the books of Time. A great body of young people, the men and women of tomorrow—indeed valiant heroes and heroines—renounced the idle pleasures of this cold, cruel world to plunge onward, to strive, and to conquer, bearing the flaming torch of knowledge at their head and with light of true desire in their eyes. And when the world saw them, it cried out in joy, "All is not lost!" Up they came, four hundred strong, like a guiding light shining out above the oblivion and obscurity which had surrounded them until they took up the standard of good education.

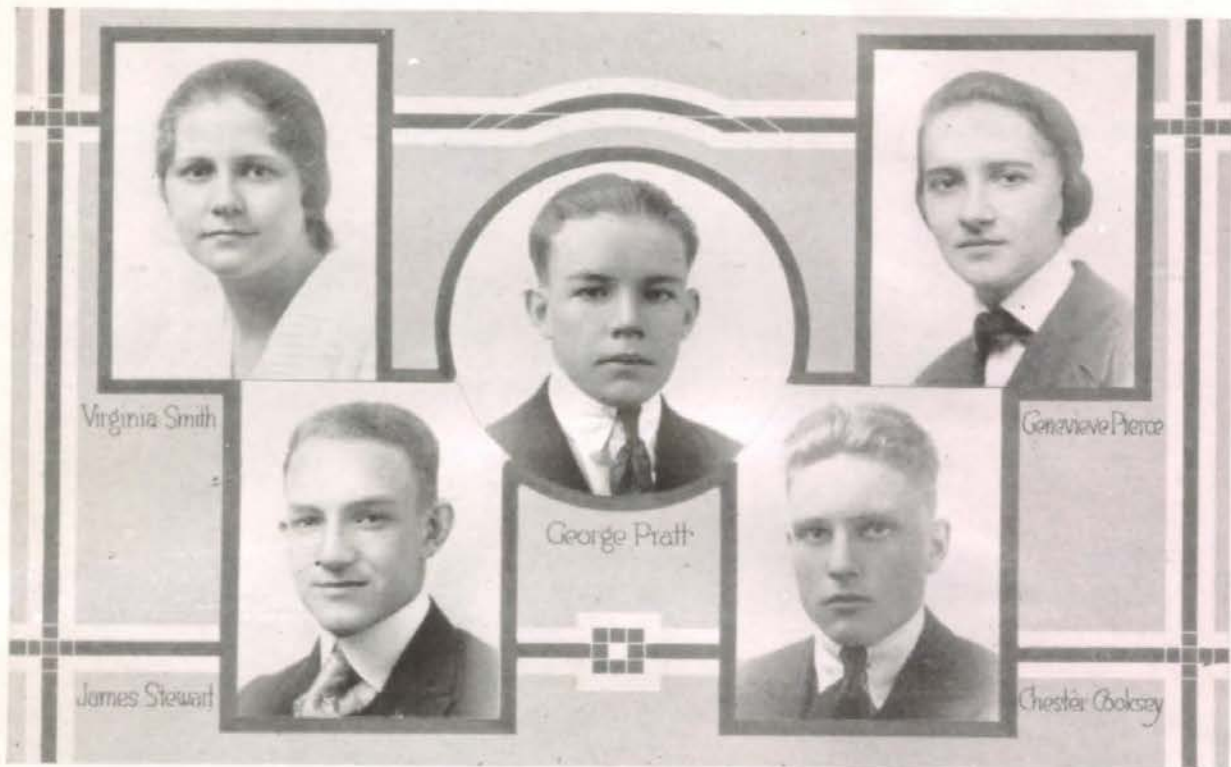

Time passed. The clock has stricken three. Three long years have they toiled and toiled, and now they have conquered the third obstacle on the road to fame, and this obstacle which, up to that time, had seemed too remote an object for their ambition to grasp, has now become merely a resting place in the progress of their ever victorious march.

Conceit it may seem, but only a partial list of their achievements will prove that they have ample cause to believe in themselves. Football—a new sport, claimed its share of the Junior Class, and was not the captain of this team a Junior? Basket Ball was also not a mere name to the Juniors, and two at least of the coming Senior class had very close connection with it. The captain and almost all the star performers of the track team were members of that illustrious class of '20.

Such has been the past record of that gallant band who started out so nobly and so bravely in condition of helpless verdancy, commonly called Fresh—manhood, and we shall not worry concerning their future. Continuing in their path of righteous knowledge; meeting the torrents and tempestuous floods squarely and surely; they will pursue their purpose to the end. They cannot die, they cannot perish by the wayside, and now the goal of their ambition is at hand. Friends of Westport dread the coming years when the guiding hand of the class of 1920 will no longer steady the wheel of learning at the school on the hill. After us—what?
